FAMILY HANDBOOK

Including ROGET'S UNIVERSITY
THESAURUS

Volume Three

HOW TO USE ROGET'S UNIVERSITY THESAURUS

The most common use for a thesaurus is to find a word that precisely fits a thought you wish to express.

Let us assume that you have written this sentence:

The ship sailed at dawn.

You may be dissatisfied with the word ship because it does not specify precisely the type of ship you have in mind. You think for a moment but cannot bring to mind the word you should use. Rather than spend any more time trying to recall the word, you turn to your Roget University Thesaurus.

First you look up ship in the index to the thesaurus. On page 566, column 3, you find the following:

sheet short deviation 279

–off avoid 623 (depart 293)
sheet layer 204 covering 223
paper 593
–of fire 382
–of water 343
white–penance 952 winding–363
sheet anchor safety 664, 666, 706
hope 858
sheet lightning 423 sheet work 591
sheik ruler 745 priest 996 shelf support 215 rock 667 on the –powerless 158 disused 678 inaction 681 shell cover 223 coffin 363 bomb 404, 727 bombard 716 shibboleth 550
shield heraldry 550
safety 664
buckler 666 defend 717
scutcheon 877
look only at one side of the–481 reverse of the –rear 235
counter evidence 468
under the–of 664 shield-shaped 245 shift change 140 convert 144 substitute 147
changeable 149
displace 185 chemise 225 more 264 transfer 270 deviate 279 prevaricate 546 plea 617
cunning 702 (expedient 626)
last–601
–in conversation 588
–upon illumine 420
aid 707
take the–out of 874 shingle covering 223, 635
powder 330
–house 189
shining (see shine)
–light sage 500
shinny 840
shinplaster 800 shintiyan 225 shiny 420 ship lade 190 transfer 270
vessel 273
one's–coming in 803
–of the line 726
take–sail 267 depart 293
ship biscuit 298 shipboard, on–273 shipentine 273
shipload much 31 cargo 190 shoal assemblage 72 multitude 102
shallow 209 shoals danger 667 surrounded by –difficulty 704
shock sheaf 72 violence 173
concussion 276 agitation 315
unexpected 508 discord 713 affect 821 move 824 pain 828
give pain 830 dislike 867
scandalize 932 (contest 720) shocking bad 649 painful 830 ugly 846 vulgar 851 fearful 860 disreputable 874 hateful 898
in a–temper 901*a* –star world 318 luminary 423 omen 512
shooting coat 225 shooting iron 727 shop buy 795
mart 799
keep a–business 625 trade 794 shup up–end 67 cease 142 relinquish 624 rest 687 smell of the–851 shopkeeper 797 shoplifter 792 shoplifting 791
shopman 797 shopmate 890 shopping 794, 795
shop-worn cheap 815
shore support 215 border 231 land 342 buttress 717
hug the–286

The words listed under ship are keys to larger listings of words that are related to it in various ways. For instance, the subentry transfer would lead you to a list of words that are close in meaning to the sense of ship that means to transfer (transport, convey, carry, etc.).

Obviously, transfer is not the meaning of ship that you have in mind. You are looking for a type of vessel, and you find that vessel is also a subentry of ship, so you know your thesaurus will help you. The number that follows vessel, 273, is the number of the category of words that will include the word you are looking for.

So you turn to the major section of your thesaurus, looking for 273. Ship. You get there quickly by scanning the numbers in red that appear at the top of each page. You find the beginning of 273. Ship on page 84. The synonyms you see read in part as follows:

272. Vehicle

barb, roan, jade, hack, bidet, pad, cob, tit [dial.], punch [dial.], roadster, goer; race–, droshki or drosky.

dogcart, trap [colloq.], whitechapel, buggy, char-à-bancs (pl. chars-à-bancs) [F.], shandry-dan or shandradan [Scot., Ir., & dial. Eng.].

team, pair, span, tandem, randem; spike team or spike, unicorn; four-in-hand.

litter, palanquin or palankeen, sedan or sedan chair; palki, jampan, dandy or dandi, dooly or doolie, munchil [all India]; cacolet [F.]; tonjon [Ceylon], brancard, horse litter; stretcher, adj. vehicular, curricular [rare], vehiculatory [rare]; ambulatory etc. (traveling) 266.

273. Ship

n. ship, vessel, sail; craft, bottom.

navy, marine, fleet, flotilla.

shipping, man-of-war etc. (combatant) 726; transport, tender, storeship; merchant ship, merchantman; packet, liner; whaler, slaver, collier, coaster, freight-steamer, freighter, lighter; fishing–, pilot- boat; trawler, hulk; yacht; baggala; floating -hotel, –palace; ocean greyhound [colloq.].

ship, bark or barque; shipentine, four-masted bark or barque; brig, snow, hermaphrodite brig; brigantine, barkentine or barquentine, schooner; topsail–, fore-and-aft- schooner; fore-and-after [colloq.]; three–, four–, five–, six- masted schooner; chasse-marée [F.], sloop, cutter, corvet or corvette, clipper, foist [obs.], yawl, dandy, ketch, smack, lugger, barge, hoy, cat, catboat, buss; sailer, sailing vessel; windjammer; steamer, steamboat, steamship; mail–, paddle–, turbine–, screw- steamer; tug; line of steamers etc.

adv. afloat, aboard; on board, on ship board; hard-a-lee, –port, –starboard, –weather.

274. Velocity

n. velocity, speed, celerity; swiftness etc. adj.; rapidity, eagle speed, lightning speed; expedition etc. (activity) 682; pernicity [obs.], acceleration; haste etc. 684.

spurt, sprint, rush, dash, race, steeple chase; automobile race; Marathon race or Marathon; smart–, lively–, swift etc. adj. -, rattling [colloq.] -, spanking [slang] -, strapping [colloq.]- -rate, –pace; round pace; flying, flight.

pace, gallop, canter, trot, round trot, run, scamper; hand–, full- gallop; swoop.

[comparisons] lightning, light, electricity, wind; cannon ball, rocket, arrow, dart, hydrargyrum,

As you can see, the words are grouped according to meaning, and the first word in each paragraph tells you the kinds of words you will find in a given paragraph.

You then search for the precise word you have in mind. Is the word you want clipper, steamer, steamship, windjammer, or another of the many types of ships listed? Now, for example, you can write:

The windjammer sailed at dawn.

Caution: When you locate a word in a thesaurus and you are not certain of its meaning, be sure to look up the word in a dictionary. You want to make sure that the word you choose means what you think it means.

Family Handbook

with

Roget's University Thesaurus

Family Handbook

with

Roget's University Thesaurus

THE SOUTHWESTERN COMPANY
Nashville, Tennessee

Roget's University Thesaurus
was originally published under the title
Roget's International Thesaurus of English Words and Phrases.

ROGET'S UNIVERSITY THESAURUS.
Copyright 1911, 1922, 1930, 1932, 1936, 1938, 1939, copyright © 1958, 1959, 1960, 1963, 1985
by Harper & Row, Publishers, Inc.
All rights reserved.

Copyright under the Universal Copyright Convention;
the International Copyright Union; Pan-American Conventions of Montevideo, Mexico, Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, and Havana

Family Handbook copyright © 1987, 1985
The Southwestern Company

All rights reserved

Printed in the United States of America

Preface

The Family Handbook with Roget's University Thesaurus is the most practical reference book ever designed for use by the American family. All members of the family—students looking ahead to advanced schooling or that important first job, those out of school and wanting to advance their careers, parents concerned with the organization and management of their lives, senior citizens wishing to remain active—will discover essential information about increasing their enjoyment from life by becoming healthier, wealthier, and wiser. The Family Handbook covers in a single volume subjects that ordinarily require an entire shelf of books. Thus, it is an indispensable home reference book to be kept next to the other, more specialized books you may already have: cookbooks, telephone books, the Bible, etc.

Though the Family Handbook is completely independent and can be consulted separately, it is expressly designed to be the third volume in the well-known and popular Student Handbook set. The Student Handbooks are intended to help students improve at school. They assemble in an easy-to-learn way the many subjects taught in elementary, junior high, and high schools.

The Family Handbook, on the other hand, offers help to the whole family in its everyday activities. It is especially useful for those who are looking for a job or who want to move ahead in their careers, and for those who are retired and want new ways to make life more interesting and productive. Thus, the Family Handbook is a lifelong resource. It will be as useful to you decades from now as it will be the first time you consult it.

The Family Handbook is in two major parts: PART ONE covers all practical aspects of home management, such as finances, health, and the law; and all aspects of career advancement, such as computers, letter writing, memory improvement, speaking, and writing. If published separately, each of these topics would be a book in itself.

PART TWO is a world-famous thesaurus, a treasury of words that will help you find exactly the right one to express your every thought.

The 15 sections of PART ONE are:

1. Understanding Computers—You too can be knowledgeable about computers.
2. Advancing Your Career—How to get a job, get along in your job, change careers, or start your own business.
3. Health and Fitness—How to eat well and stay healthy, with good advice for every family member, even senior citizens.
4. You and Modern Medicine—What to do when you are sick; how to choose a doctor; generic drugs; your hospital stay; medical payments.
5. Managing the Family's Money—Credit, banking, investment, shopping, vacationing, retirement, money-saving ideas.
6. You and the Law—Wills and estates, consumers' rights, criminal law, finding a lawyer.
7. Improving Your Memory—A tested and successful way to learn how to remember anything: names, numbers, essential facts, school subjects, on-the-job information.
8. Building Your Vocabulary—How to learn new words and their meanings; 15 days to a more forceful vocabulary; vocabulary tests; words you should know.
9. Improving Your Speech—How to say what you want clearly and effectively; public speaking made easy; Robert's Rules of Order.
10. Writing Effective Letters—Social letters, business letters, hard-to-write letters, postal information, scores of examples for every need.
11. Improving Your Reading—How to read better and faster; learning to read special kinds of texts; reading lists.

12. Taking Aptitude Tests—How to prepare for tests; sample questions from those all-important General Educational Development Tests (GED's), Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT's), American College Testing (ACT's), and Graduate Record Examinations (GRE's).
13. Review of French Grammar—Parts of speech, rules governing their use, verb tables, sample sentences, important expressions, plus a concise French-English dictionary and English-French dictionary.
14. Review of German Grammar—Parts of speech, rules governing their use, verb tables, sample sentences, important expressions, plus a concise German-English dictionary and English-German dictionary.
15. Review of Spanish Grammar—All parts of speech, rules governing their use, verb tables, sample sentences, important expressions, plus a concise Spanish-English dictionary and English-Spanish dictionary.

PART TWO is the complete, newly revised publication of the famous Roget's University Thesaurus, printed here for the first time in two colors to make it easier and quicker to use. This thesaurus, though it has been modernized, is based on the family word book devised over a hundred years ago by Peter Mark Roget. It has proven so useful that it has been in print continuously ever since. Your family will find it helpful in writing letters, student papers, and reports.

We invite you to turn the pages of the practical and beautifully designed Family Handbook. Note that each section begins with its own table of contents, including page numbers, so that you can turn immediately to the particular subject that interests you most. Each section offers charts, checklists, and boxes of special information that you will use again and again. The Family Handbook presents a wealth of practical information. Learn how the famous Roget's University Thesaurus will help you find the word you need and assist you in building your vocabulary, simply and quickly. Are you intimidated by the world of computers? Have a look at the very first section for an introduction to these marvelous machines that every member of your family can use with ease. Are you interested in brushing up on your French, German, or Spanish? In the Family Handbook the essentials are laid out in a new, easy-to-learn way. Note, finally, that there is a general index that gives you quick access to every topic in the book.

We are certain you will find the Family Handbook of lasting value for the whole family.

—Gorton Carruth, Editor-in-Chief

Table of Contents

Part 1
Family Handbook

Understanding Computers 2

- What is a computer? 3
- The microcomputer 5
- Computers and education 12
- Financial and business programs 14
- Word processing 16
- Staying healthy with computers 17
- Glossary 18

Advancing Your Career 22

- Preparing for the job search 24
- Going after the job 32
- Getting the job 40
- Moving up the ladder 41
- Changing careers 44
- Getting back into the work force 47
- Starting your own business 49
- Matching yourself to the world of work 52

Health and Fitness 58

- Fatigue 59
- Stress 60
- Eye care 62
- Ear care 63
- Foot care 63
- Health nutrients 64
- Good nutrition 69
- Watch your weight 72
- Get back into shape 74
- Home medical testing 75
- Glossary 76

You and Modern Medicine 78

- You and the doctor 78
- You and the hospital 82
- You and emergency rooms 85
- You and drugs 87
- Your mental health 92
- Medical payments 95
- Glossary 96

Managing the Family's Money 110

- Planning and record-keeping 111
- Using credit wisely 114
- Dealing with your bank 115
- Saving and investing 118
- Looking ahead to tax time 120
- Buying insurance 122
- Putting your affairs in order 126
- Planning for retirement 127
- Managing your shopping 130
- Your shelter dollar 132
- Managing your car 134
- An economical vacation 135
- Glossary 136
- Booklets on request 139

You and the Law 140

- Your family and the law 141
- Your home and the law 147
- Wills and estates 154
- Consumers' rights 156
- Personal property 159
- Injuries and damages 162
- Earning a living 164
- Criminal law and procedure 167
- How to find a lawyer 169
- Glossary 171

Improving Your Memory 180

- Observation 182
- Paying attention 183
- Getting organized 186
- Image formation 187
- Peg words 188
- Link method 190
- Everyday applications 192
- Names and faces 194
- Suggestions for students 196
- Appendix 198

Building Your Vocabulary 206

- Your Word Power file 207
- A permanent memory system 209
- How words are used 210
- Natural settings for words 215
- 15 days to a forceful vocabulary 224
- Preparing for vocabulary tests 232
- American English 234
- Puzzles and word games 236
- Words you should know 238

Improving Your Speech 244

- The five keys 245
- Correct speech 252
- Body language 254
- Prepare to speak 257
- Everyday uses of speech 261
- Robert's Rules of order 264

Writing Effective Letters 266

- Social letters 266
- Business letters 276
- Clubs and organizations 290
- Tips for retired people 292
- Postal information 298
- Forms of address 300

Improving Your Reading 302

- Enjoy the benefits of reading 302
- What is good reading? 306
- Efficient reading 310
- Special types of reading 318
- Continuing to improve 322
- Reading lists 324

Taking Major Tests 328

- Improve your test taking 329
- The GED 332
- The SAT 336
- The ACT 343
- The GRE 349

Review of French Grammar 352

- Articles 352
- Pronouns and adjectives 354
- Verbs 360
- Numbers, dates, time 368
- French-English dictionary 370
- English-French dictionary 375

Review of German Grammar 382

- Articles 382
- Nouns 383
- Pronouns 384
- Prepositions 386
- Adjectives and adverbs 387
- Verbs 388
- Conjunctions 391
- Numbers, dates, time 392
- German-English dictionary 396
- English-German dictionary 402

Review of Spanish Grammar 408

- Articles 409
- Nouns 410
- Adjectives and adverbs 410
- Pronouns 412
- Prepositions 415
- Verbs 416
- Numbers, dates, time 424
- Spanish-English dictionary 426
- English-Spanish dictionary 432

Index 438–444

Part 2
Roget's University Thesaurus

ILLUSTRATION CREDITS: page 5 Sperry Corporation, (inset) Texas Instruments; 6 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 7 (left) Mike Heck; 8 Spiegel/Black Star; 9 Peter Loewer/Graphos Studios; 12 (left) Mike Heck, (right) Ogden/Art Resource; 14 Mike Heck; 15 (both) Mike Heck; 17 UPI; 18 Mike Heck; 19 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 29 Peter Loewer/Graphos Studios; 37 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 39 (left) Mahon/Monkmeyer, (right) Hankin/Stock, Boston; 41, 43, 46 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 47 (art) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates, (photo) Wendy's International; 48 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 51 (left) Hankin/Stock, Boston, (right) Shelton/Monkmeyer; 58 Forsyth/Monkmeyer; 59 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 61 Wolinsky/Stock, Boston; 64, 68, 69, 70, 73, 75, 76 (bottom) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 76 (top) Peter Loewer/Graphos Studios; 78 Rotker/Taurus Photos; 80 Lambert/Frederic Lewis; 83 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 84 Hewlett Packard; 88 (both), 89 (bottom) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 89 (top) Rotker/Taurus Photos; 92 Strickler/Monkmeyer; 93 Gatewood/Stock, Boston; 94 (left) Rotker/Taurus Photos, (right) Delevingne/Stock, Boston; 95 Forsyth/Monkmeyer; 96 (top, middle) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates, (bottom) Wilks/Stock, Boston; 110 Schlossberg/Monkmeyer, H. Armstrong Roberts, Sacks Art Resource; 111 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 112 Rachelle Friedle; 115 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 116 Rachelle Friedle; 117 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 119 Greenberg/Monkmeyer; 120, 123, 125, 127, 129 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 130 Peter Loewer/Graphos Studios; 135 (top) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates, (bottom) National Park Service; 136 (top) Rotker/Taurus Photos, (bottom) SUVA/DPI; 140 AP/Wide World; 141 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 143, 144 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 146, 147, 148, 152 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 155 National Kidney Foundation of New York/New Jersey; 157, 159 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 160 Coleman/Frederic Lewis; 162 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 163 UPI/Bettmann; 166 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 170 Levick/Black Star; 172, 173, 180, 181 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 182, 183 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 184 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 185 (first row, left to right) Forsyth/Monkmeyer, Sidney/Monkmeyer, Forsyth/Monkmeyer, (second row) Forsyth/Monkmeyer, Prelutsky/Stock, Boston, Franken/Stock, Boston, (third row) Morrow/Stock, Boston, Forsyth/Monkmeyer, Forsyth/Monkmeyer, (fourth row) Conklin/Monkmeyer, Forsyth/Monkmeyer, Albertson/Stock, Boston; 187 (both) Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 188 (all) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 189, 190, 191, 192 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 194 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 195 (top row, all) Forsyth/Monkmeyer, (second row, left to right) Albertson/Stock, Boston, Franken/Stock, Boston, Forsyth/Monkmeyer, (third row) Conklin/Monkmeyer, Forsyth/Monkmeyer, Morrow/Stock, Boston, (fourth row) Sidney/Monkmeyer, Prelutsky/Stock, Boston, Forsyth/Monkmeyer; 197, 198 (all), 199 (all) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 206 Ray Hand; 207 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 211 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 212, 215, 216 (top) Ray Hand; 216 (bottom), 217, 218 (bottom) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 218 (top), 219, 220 (top) Ray Hand; 220 (bottom), 221 (both) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 222 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 225 Bettmann; 226 Ray Hand; 227 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 228 Ray Hand; 229, 230 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 235 Frederic Lewis; 236, 238 (top) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 238 (bottom) Ray Hand; 244, 246 Forsyth/Monkmeyer; 247 Krathwohl/Stock, Boston; 248 (top) Southwick/Stock, Boston; 248 (bottom), 249 (bottom) Forsyth/Monkmeyer; 249 (top) Franken/Stock, Boston; 251 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 253 Falk/Monkmeyer; 255 (top row, left to right) Leinwand/Monkmeyer, Wolinsky/Stock, Boston, Herwig/Stock, Boston, (second row) Sidney/Monkmeyer, Dunn/Stock, Boston, Balzer/Stock, Boston, (third row) Cox/Stock, Boston, Smolan/Stock, Boston; 256 (left) Siteman/Stock, Boston, (right) Southwick/Stock, Boston; 257, 261 (left) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 261 Buck/Stock, Boston; 262 AP/Wide World; 263 Smolan/Leo de Wys, Inc.; 271 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 282 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 302 Sidney/Monkmeyer; 303 Rogers/Monkmeyer; 304 Rutledge/Taurus Photos; 307 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 308 Leinwand/Monkmeyer; 317, 319 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 323 Mahon/Monkmeyer; 328 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 331 Rachelle Friedle; 334 Minassian/Woodfin Camp & Assoc.; 339, 343 (top) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 343 (bottom) Collidge/Taurus Photos; 345, 346 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 349 Paireault/Magnum; 351, 352 (both) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 364 Greene/Frederic Lewis; 367, 369, 372, 374 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 376 Reichman/Monkmeyer; 377 Peter Arnold; 378 (both) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 390 McKoy/Taurus Photos; 393, 394, 395 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 397 UPI/Bettmann; 400 Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates; 406 Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates; 407, 408 (both) Ric DelRossi/Mulvey Associates.

SAT and GRE questions and explanations on pages 336–342 and 349–351 are excerpted and reprinted by permission of Educational Testing Service, from: Taking the SAT and 10 SATs. College Entrance Examination Board, 1986 and GRE Information Bulletin, 1984–1986. Permission to reprint the above material does not constitute review or endorsement by Educational Testing Service, the College Board, or the GRE Board of this publication or any testing information it may contain. The ACT questions on pages 343–348 © 1984 by The American College Testing Program. All rights reserved. Reprinted with permission. The GED questions on pages 332–335 are reprinted from Official GED Practice Test, Form A with the permission of GED Testing Service, © 1985.

Editorial development of the Family Handbook was directed by The Hudson Group, Inc., Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570.

Administrative editor:	Eugene Ehrlich
Editor-in-chief:	Gorton Carruth
Managing editor:	Hayden Carruth
Copy-editing:	Felice Levy/AEIOU, Inc.
Contributors:	Renni Browne/The Editorial Department
	Frances E. Barth, Else Behrendt, Marietta Burrowes, Delia Bye, Gisele Carruth, Karl Friese, John Harrington, Sylvia Helm, Lawrence Heyl, Jr., Helene Isaac, Naomi Katz, Seymour Levine, John Maloney, Elizabeth Rich
Special advisor:	"Improving Your Memory," Harry Lorayne
Design and production:	Pam Forde Graphics
Production:	Rachelle Friedle, Kathleen Marks
Illustrations:	Ric Del Rossi, Bill Colrus/Mulvey Associates, H. Peter Loewer/Graphos Studio, Ray Hand, Rachelle Friedle, Tara Forde
Photo researcher:	Lenore Weber

Part 1

Family Handbook

Understanding Computers

- What is a computer? 3
- The microcomputer 5
- Computers and education 12
- Financial and business programs 14
- Word processing 16
- Staying healthy with computers 17
- Glossary 18

Today, computers are everywhere you look, even in places where you might be surprised to find them. Nearly all of us use computers every day, whether we realize it or not.

Computers process your checks at the bank by reading the computer-scannable numbers on the bottom left-hand corner of your check. Computers in automated cash or teller machines let you withdraw and deposit money regardless of banking hours. Airline ticketing and reservation agents book you on a flight by using a computerized system that keeps track of routes, fares, and seats.

Computers scan the Universal Product Code on your groceries, tally your bill, and adjust the store's inventory. Computers tune the radio, pump gas, set thermostats, and control or monitor engine emissions and fuel economy.

Computers are on your wrist (digital watches) and in your pocket (calculators). If you have a microwave oven, you have a computer. When you press the "redial" button on a telephone receiver, a computer remembers and dials the number you last called.

Computers are creating an enormous job market, and almost every job soon may require some level of computer use. Computer-related occupations will grow 47 percent in the next ten years, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. That is three times the rate of all other occupations. By 1990, we will need 1.5 million computer programmers in a variety of businesses.

The computer age is your age. You have the right to live in it comfortably, without feeling threatened by this pervasive new technology. A computer is just another tool for you to use.

Numerous tasks at home can be performed by a computer. You can bank at home, shop at home, and read newspapers on the computer; you can even use your computer as a library. You can also monitor your health and advance your education by means of a computer.

The computer will make it possible for you to bring work home. Some insurance and financial companies already allow employees to work on company-owned terminals placed in employees' homes.

In our schools, the push is on to make children "computer literate." This means learning more about computers themselves, and being able to use a computer to learn about other subjects. Many parents and teachers fear that those students who are not familiar with computers will be left behind. They know that long after youngsters leave school, computers will remain a powerful tool in their lives.

This chapter will explain what a computer is, and what it can and cannot do. It will tell you how you can use one in your home to improve your job skills, earn extra income, and enjoy more leisure time.

What is a computer?

Historically, a computer, broadly defined, was a device that helped in computation—counting, calculating, adding, subtracting, multiplying, dividing, etc.—as you might guess from the root of the word computer. Today the word computer is used to describe an electronic device that stores, manipulates, and analyzes information. Computers no longer simply perform mathematical calculations: they can perform a much wider range of tasks, as described in the second half of this chapter.

The first computers. Stonehenge, the prehistoric circular stone monuments in Great Britain, and the abacus are two examples of early computers.

Stonehenge is a manmade device used to calculate the movement of the stars and planets in order to measure the seasons and predict seasonal change.

The abacus, although it is associated almost exclusively with the Chinese, was also used in some version by early Romans, Greeks, and Egyptians to count and calculate. The abacus was the first genuine calculating machine.

Gottfried Leibniz (b. 1646) and Blaise Pascal (b. 1623) each invented calculating machines in the 17th century. Leibniz also developed the system of using the base-two (binary) number system that computers use today. Consult the glossary under binary for a fuller explanation.

How computers work. Five steps are always required to make a computer work:

1. Input: the parts of the problem must be entered into the computer;
2. Storage: the computer must hold ("remember") the problem;
3. Sequencing: the computer must decide on the steps required to tackle the problem ("control");
4. Calculation: the computer must solve the problem; and
5. Output: the computer must deliver the answer.

The shrinking computer. Although Pascal's simple calculator (which could add and subtract) came before that of Charles Babbage, Babbage is considered the father of the modern computer. An early 19th-century Englishman, Babbage developed the principles on which modern computers are based.

The Difference Engine. Babbage started by inventing a small machine, the Difference Engine, in 1822. The machine computed algebraic expressions with many terms (polynomials), but it did only that. Babbage decided to build a machine that could solve virtually any mathematical problem and perform any kind of mathematical calculation.

The Analytical Engine. Babbage's design—a general-purpose computing machine—encompassed the main elements of a modern computer: it had input, storage, control, and output mechanisms. It was controlled by punched cards and was digital. (Think of a digital computer as a machine that counts on its fingers, or digits.)

Babbage planned for his Analytical Engine to be capable of storing thousands of figures, but as with many modern computer designs, his plans and his machine were never fully realized.

Hollerith's tabulating machine. Across the Atlantic Ocean, about 50 years after Babbage's work, the U.S. Census Bureau was having trouble tabulating the 1880 census, even though the next one was fast approaching. Herman Hollerith, a census agent, was asked to invent a mechanized tabulating system for the 1890 census.

Hollerith's system used paper tape initially, but punched cards worked better. Census takers punched holes in census cards to record data. The cards were fed into Hollerith's device, which had pins that stuck through the punched holes to form a closed electrical circuit, causing the information in each census category to be recorded.

The machine was a success. Hollerith went on to form his own concern, the Tabulating Machine Company, which became the International Business Machines Corporation (IBM) in 1914.

Mark I. Thirty years later, World War II gave the development of the computer its next big push. In 1944, the Mark I was built at Harvard University for IBM. Instead of punched cards, it used electric relay switches, and punched paper tape for input. The Mark I, which was used to set up tables of artillery gradations for the Army, produced figures accurate to 23 digits in .3 seconds.

ENIAC. The world's first electronic digital computer was ENIAC—the *E*lectronic *N*umerical *I*ntegrator *a*nd *C*alculator. Until ENIAC was developed, computers were mechanical.

ENIAC was room-sized, taking up 15,000 square feet. It was built of 18,000 vacuum tubes, and it weighed 30 tons. ENIAC, developed by a U.S. government team in 1946 to test weapons development and ballistics strength, was 17 times faster than Mark I, performing 5000 additions per second.

UNIVAC. Business first computerized with UNIVAC, the *Univ*ersal *A*utomatic *C*omputer, which was smaller than its predecessors in size. UNIVAC, introduced in 1951, correctly tabulated the results of the 1952 presidential election.

Beginning with UNIVAC, people began to see computers as powerful, fast, accurate—and threatening. In the movie 2001: A Space Odyssey, a computer named Hal does exactly what people are afraid computers will do some day: take over.

Transistors. The invention of the transistor at Bell Laboratories in 1947 quickly made possible a miniature world of transistor radios, hearing aids, and electronic equipment of all kinds. The transistor was smaller than a thimble. While the computer memory storage in use in the late 1950's was only 1.2 million figures, transistorized computers introduced by IBM in 1964 had a storage capacity of 8 million figures.

As memory went up, prices went down. Transistors made computers cheaper. In 1965, Digital Equipment Corporation of Maynard, Massachusetts, introduced the PCP-8, a minicomputer. It cost $20,000, while other, physically larger, computers of that time cost $1 million.

Computers that once took up an entire floor of a building could now be fit into the corner of an office. The next invention, the microchip, would make possible a computer small enough to fit on your lap.

Common questions about computers

Q: Do I need to know a lot about computers in order to use one?

A: No. Here is what you do not need to know. You do not need to know how to program a computer. You do not need to know programming languages. You do not have to possess scientific or mathematical aptitude. In fact, you do not have to know any math at all. You do not even have to know how the computer works. Most users do not.

Q: What should I know about my computer's disk operating system (DOS)?

A: All you have to know about a computer's DOS is which kind it is: common types are CP/M and MS-DOS. No advantages separate them. Your choice determines the range of software you can use. All the software you buy has to run on your operating system, or you cannot use it. Think of your DOS as speaking, say, French—unable to "read" German or Russian programs.

Q: Do I have to be computer-literate in order to use a computer?

A: You may be intimidated by what is called computer literacy. There is no need to be. Other than the experience of using a computer and a software program or two, nothing is required to qualify anyone for the ranks of the computer qualified.

Why do you want a computer?

How do you translate the things a computer does well into the kinds of things you might want a computer to do?

Some common reasons for wanting a computer are listed here to get you started. Look at this list and check off the things you want your computer to do.

_____Balance the checkbook
_____Chat with other computer users
_____Do calculations in class, at meetings, on trips
_____Do taxes
_____Draw pictures/graphs/charts
_____Improve job skills
_____Keep addresses
_____Keep Christmas mailing list
_____Keep personal records
_____Keep recipes
_____Keep the family budget
_____Learn more about computers _____Organize records and tapes
_____Play games
_____Start or run a small business
_____Teach programming languages
_____Teach spelling, math, or other subjects
_____Tie into computer data banks
_____Track the stock market
_____Write music
_____Write term papers or reports

The microcomputer

A microcomputer, also called a micro, is simply a computer that is very much smaller in size than previously built computers. Microcomputers are also called personal computers because they can be owned and used by individuals, and because only one person at a time can use them. A home computer is a simple, inexpensive personal computer, such as the type people use to play games.

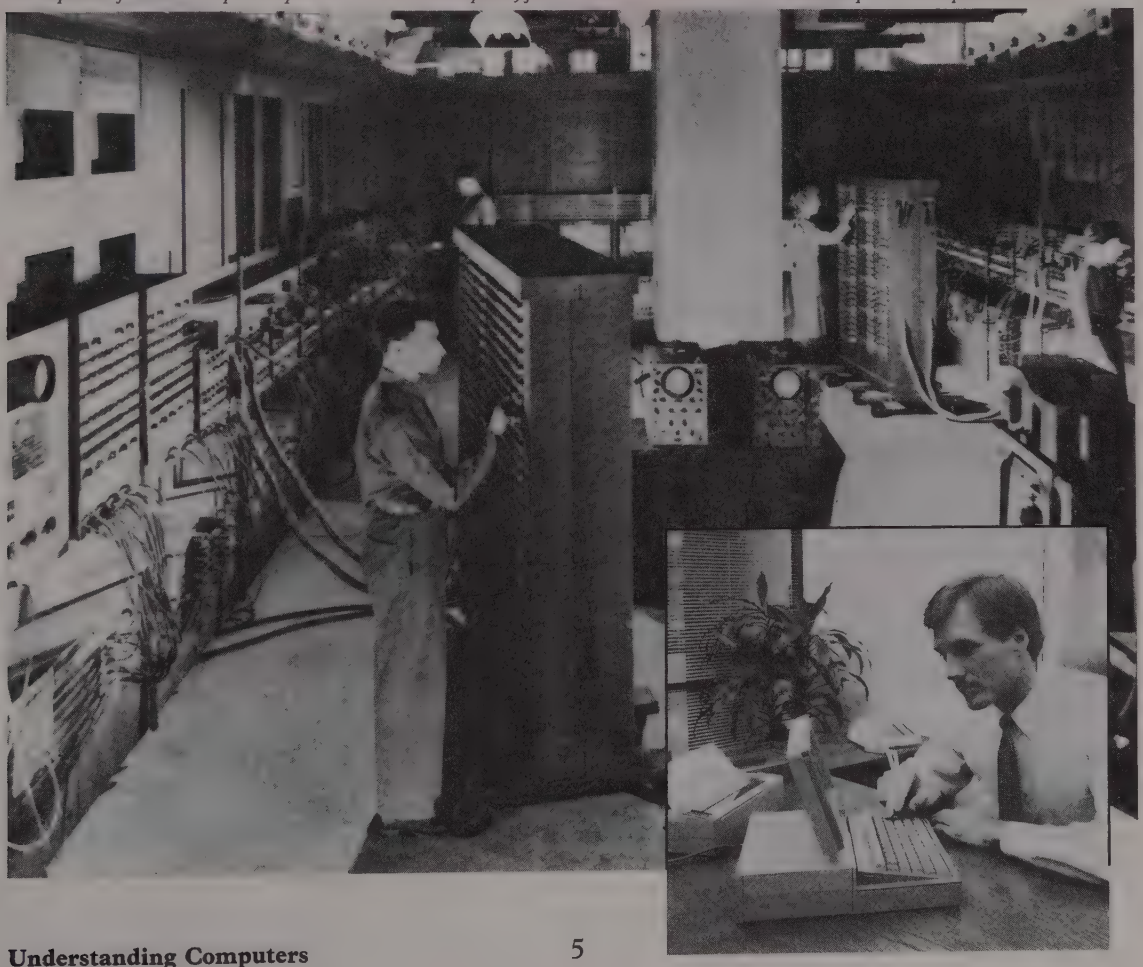
The microchip. The core of the microcomputer is the microprocessor, a computer on a microchip. The microchip is integrated electronic circuitry on a silicon base. It made its debut in 1959.

The electronic components and circuitry on a microchip, also called a chip, serve the same function as did the relay switches and vacuum tubes of the older, larger computers. A chip can hold 1 million electronic components (electric transistors, wiring, and circuitry) on the space of a baby's thumbnail. The chip offers ten times the capacity of ENIAC at 1/30,000th of the cost. It performs a million calculations a second—200 times the number that ENIAC could perform.

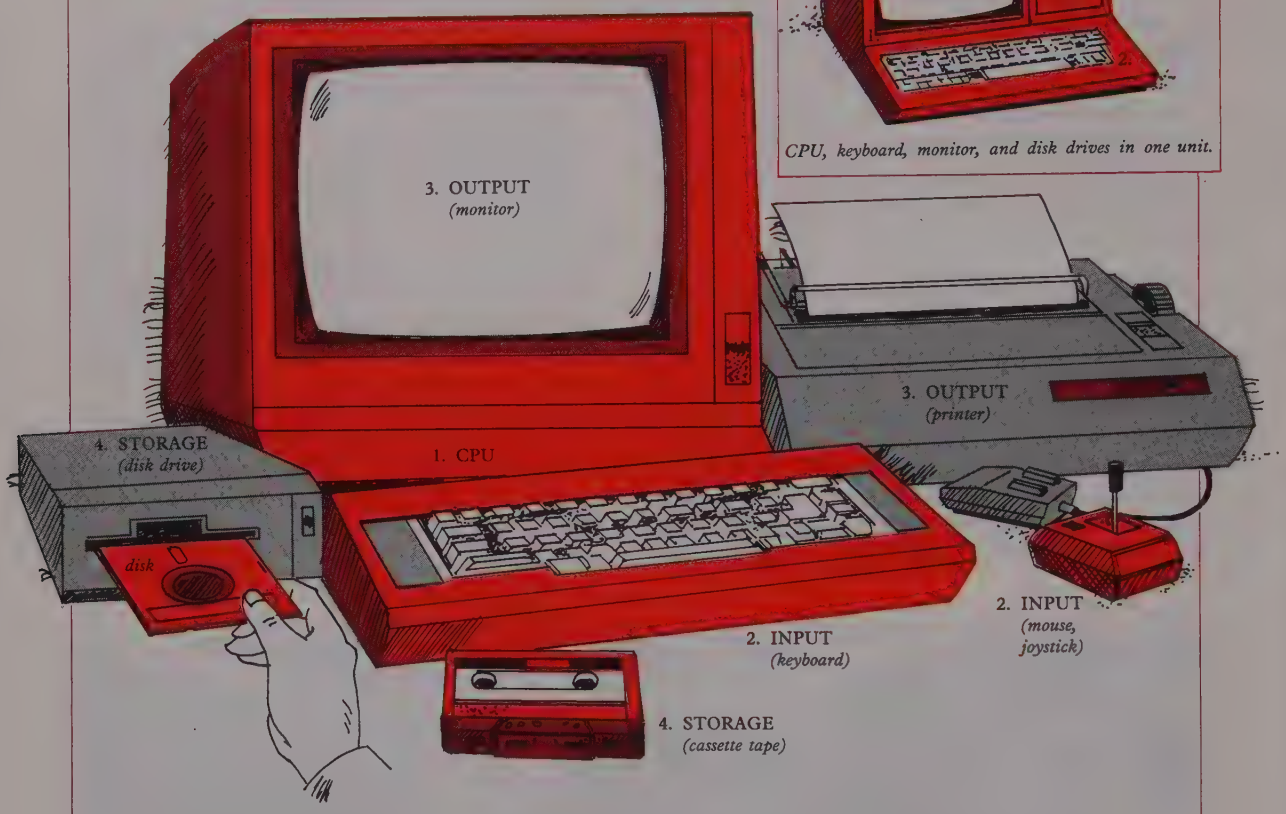
You would have to use a microscope to examine the circuitry on a chip. It carries hundreds of thousands of transistors connected by microscopic "wires" on a sliver of silicon. Ten million transistors on a chip are expected in a few years. To "remember" 16K (store in memory 16 kilobytes, or about 16,000 pieces of data or numbers), a computer memory bank of the 1950's had to be taller and larger than an average adult standing up. That same amount of memory can now be stored on a tiny 16-K memory chip.

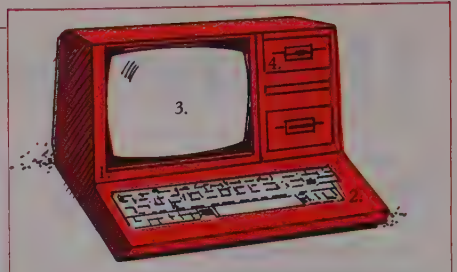
The same technology that put these myriad transistors on one chip has also reduced drastically the price of the computer. Today, personal computers that rival those once available only to government and big business can be purchased by small businesses, private individuals, and families.

Development of the microchip made possible ever smaller computers, from the room-size ENIAC to the desk-size personal computer.



The parts of a computer





CPU, keyboard, monitor, and disk drives in one unit.

The main part of the computer, the *c*entral *p*rocessing *u*nit (CPU), may be the only part of the computer that an advertisement or a salesperson refers to when offering a computer at what sounds like a price too good to be true.

Though the CPU is the "brains" of the computer, you will not be able to do anything with a CPU by itself. You need some way to communicate with it.

The computer's ears. The computer has to "hear" what you say. That is accomplished with input devices, such as game controls or a keyboard.

You use game controls to communicate with your computer. These controls, sometimes called joy sticks, come with or without a number pad. The stick moves up, down, right, and left in a two-dimensional axis and controls the movements of the game (your space ship, your hero, etc.) on the screen. Or the stick is a trigger that fires a weapon or, perhaps, a Ping-Pong ball at your command.

A more advanced way of communicating with your computer is to use a typewriterlike keyboard. The keys may include a number pad similar to that on a calculator.

The computer's mouth. The computer has to communicate back to you what it has done. It "talks" to you through output devices.

A screen, such as that on a television set, is an output device for game playing as well as for other more advanced or professional applications, such as word processing. It is often called a CRT (cathode ray tube) or a monitor.

A printer is an output device that records what the computer has done on paper. It is essential if you use your computer for writing or business.

If you want to store what you did on the computer, you need a storage device, such as a cassette (tape) recorder or a disk drive. Printers and storage devices are discussed in more detail later in the chapter.

Some low-priced computers turn out to be, upon closer investigation, next to useless without add-ons like monitors, disk drives, and printers, which can end up being more expensive than the computer itself.

Bit/Byte

How does a bit differ from a byte?

Bit is a contraction of "*b*inary dig*it*" and refers to the smallest unit of information a computer can process. Everything a computer does is done with electric circuitry, and electric current has two states: on and off. These two states are represented by the base two, or binary, number system, which has two symbols (0 and 1) to represent all numbers.

A byte is a group of bits, usually eight, forming a character, letter, number, punctuation mark, etc.

Here are some examples:

letter	byte:
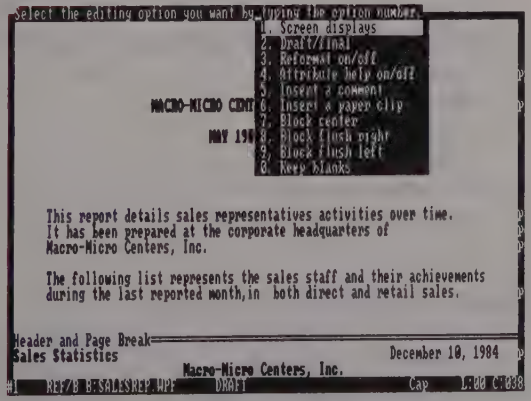
The letter A is	01000001
The letter B is	01000010
The letter C is	01000011

It is never too late to learn!

In an adult education class at your local school you can learn how to use a personal computer. For those out of work or seeking a new job, experience in using a computer will provide new opportunities. Even if you have been out of school for a long time, it is not too late to learn how the computer can help you at home or on the job. In addition, many computer programs are designed to be easily learned: they lead you step by step throught their use, eliminating the need to memorize dozens of commands.



Select the editing option you want by typing the option number.
1. Screen displays
2. Draft/final
3. Reformat on/off
4. Attribute help on/off
5. Insert a comment
6. Insert a paper clip
7. Block center
8. Block flush right
9. Block flush left
0. Keep blanks
This report details sales representatives activities over time.
It has been prepared at the corporate headquarters of Macro-Micro Centers, Inc.
The following list represents the sales staff and their achievements during the last reported month, in both direct and retail sales.
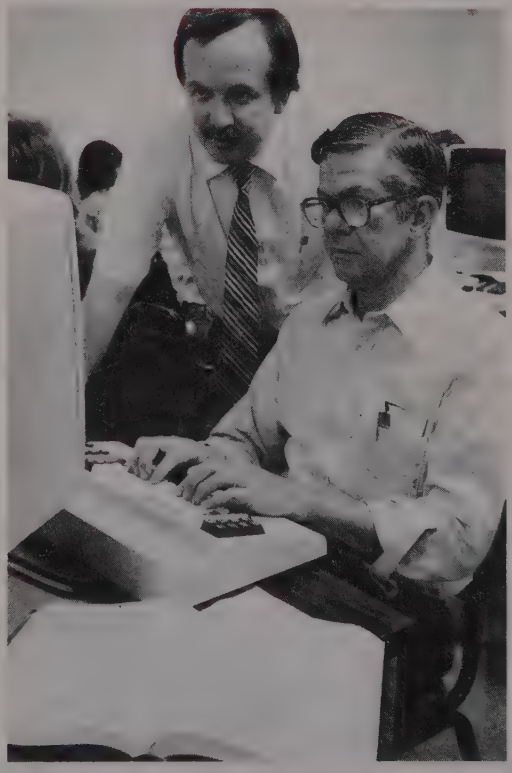
Header and Page Break
Sales Statistics
December 10, 1984
Macro-Micro Centers, Inc.
DRAFT
Cap



Computer programs. The computer that you use to play video games on your television set is dedicated to one task: playing games. You tell your computer what to do (play a game) by inserting a game cartridge. More expensive, sophisticated computers also need instructions to tell them what to do. These instructions are called programs, or software.

You can write a program yourself, but you certainly do not have to. Many computer owners hire someone to write a program for them. Businesses and some professionals (doctors, accountants, etc.) tailor programming to the exact requirements of their offices. Although you, too, could hire someone to write a program for your computer, the cost would probably exceed the price of the computer itself.

Far more likely, you will buy canned programs sold off the shelf, without any modification for personal quirks. You buy these programs exactly the way you buy a phonograph record or tape cassette, in a store or by mail. You then put the disk or tape in your computer and run it. A set of instructions, usually called documentation, comes with software programs.

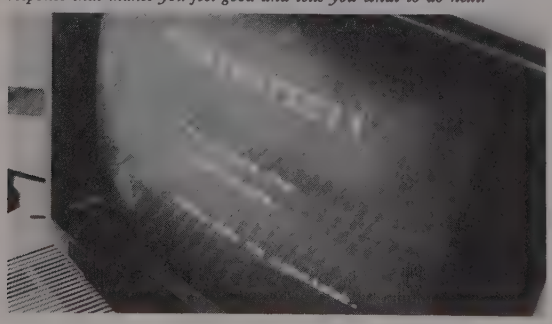
There are two broad categories of software: system and applications.

System software. This category includes operating systems, utilities (software programs of a specific type), and languages.

A disk operating system (DOS) is what the computer uses to run itself. It directs the transfer of information from one part of the computer to another, and controls its storage in memory and on disk. It consists of a supervisory core and a collection of utility programs.

Utilities help tell the operating system how to work. They fill in the gaps where the operating system creates them. Gaps exist because a computer's operating system cannot—and does not have to—be all things for all uses. Two of the most common utilities include one that copies files from one disk drive to another and one that lets you specify exactly how you want something to be printed. Some of the more exotic utilities can examine and change specific bytes or groups of bytes in memory.

Good applications software is made easy for a beginner to use. Here is a response that makes you feel good and tells you what to do next.



Levels of computer literacy

How computer-literate are you? Perhaps more than you think. Instead of being intimidated by computers, check yourself against these criteria to find out where you fit on a computer literacy scale.

Level 1: You have used a computer. You have run a very simple computer program, such as a game cartridge.

Level 2: You have bought a software program that fits your personal needs, such as a word processing or spreadsheet program, and have used it.

Level 3: You are familiar with a computer language, such as BASIC. You have copied a program from a book or magazine, perhaps modified it, and run it on a computer.

Languages let you talk to the computer. Computers are machines that work with electrical impulses; computer languages let you "talk" to the computer without knowing anything about the machine's internal processes. Consider the language to be your interpreter.

Applications software. This term describes the task-oriented software programs that your computer uses to run your business, play games, type term papers, teach you or your family how to program, etc.

The difference between system software and applications software has been compared to the difference between knowing how to build a house and living in one: you do not need the former to do the latter. Unless you want to design or modify a software program, you will not need to use or understand system software.

The applications software (other than games) that you are most likely to use are programs in the fields of

- business/financial
- education
- health
- word-processing

Later in this chapter you will learn more about software categories and how to use them.

Compatibility. The computer's disk operating system (DOS) determines the kinds of software that will or will not work on your computer. Applications software is run (made to work) by the computer's operating system. For example, Apple computers can

Home computer limitations

Entertainment or home computers play arcade games and cost anywhere from $100 to $700. However, such computers have limitations. If you want a computer for extensive typing or for business use (accounting, inventory, mailing lists, etc.), you may not be able to expand a home computer's capability to meet your needs. Some home computers, for example, will not accept a disk drive. And you cannot necessarily expand the internal memory of the system (the RAM—*r*andom *a*ccess *m*emory) to the requirements of professional software. You are likely to be limited in your choice of software in any case: entertainment computers primarily come with game software.

only run Apple-DOS software. IBM PC computers can only use PC-DOS software.

Some operating systems work on several types of computers, called compatible computers. Most computers, however, are not compatible with each other, and most software will run on only one type of computer. This is similar to the situation with automobile parts: you cannot put a Cadillac El Dorado carburetor on a Volkswagen Rabbit.

Software, sometimes called parts, is built up around computer brands. There is no standardization in the computer market. You cannot use IBM PC software on an Apple computer. That is why you are advised to pick out software first—to know in advance what you want your computer to do for you—before you buy hardware (the computer itself, the printer, etc.).

Buying software. Take your list to a computer store—or to any large retail store that sells computers—and ask to see a demonstration of software that will perform the tasks you want. In addition, look through computer magazines for the names of software programs that do the tasks you have selected. Then ask to see these programs demonstrated as well.

While you are trying out software, you will also get a chance to see different types of computers. The best way to begin selecting a computer is to actually try it out, watching it do what you want it to.

Although the conventional approach is to buy software first, this has become less important recently because of the many different versions of the same software programs for different machines. There are many software programs continually being developed to perform everyday tasks on home computers.

Shop around for the best price for both software and hardware.

Selecting hardware. To select the right computer for you—the hardware—go back to the list of things you want your computer to do.

Do you want to buy a computer to become computer-literate or to play games? Then consider a basic, inexpensive computer.

Many of these units use the family television set as a screen. A beginner, spending less than $100, can learn how to use a computer with these low-cost models.

Game computers can introduce the family to computers without requiring any other investment in hardware. You can hook a game computer up to your existing television set with a converter (usually included). The converter translates computer signals into video signals for television display. It will come with a set of game paddles. You buy game cartridges for the games you want to play. Cartridges are the easiest software to use and are ideal for very young children.

Education computers will give you games plus education. You will spend about $100 to $500 for a computer with a keyboard as well as game paddles. You can still use the television set for the visual display. This simple setup will introduce you to how computers work. If you wish, you can even learn programming.

Personal computers. To run business programs and to do business typing, a computer with disk drives, costing $1000 or more, a typewriter keyboard with a numerical keypad and function keys, a high-resolution display screen, and a printer are required. This kind of computer can play games, too, but it would be a waste of money to buy it solely for entertainment.

Storing your data. One fact of computer life that people often forget (with sometimes tragic results), is that when you turn off the computer, or the power fails, you lose any information that was stored only in the internal electronic memory of the computer. If you want to keep records, balance the checkbook, plan the budget, keep recipe files, or organize your record collection, then you want your computer to remember what you did the last time you used it. This requires a storage device. With inexpensive learning or entertainment computers, the storage device is a cassette recorder. The computer remembers your information by recording it on cassette tapes.

Cassette tapes are the least expensive of the storage devices. Running them is like running a tape recorder: you put the tape in the recorder and push the "play" button. Tapes are slow to use and are not available with a full range of software programs. The advantage is that they are inexpensive and easy to use.

Disks and disk drives. The next step up in computer storage is the floppy disk, which runs on a disk drive. You can upgrade some, but not all, home entertainment computers with a disk drive that will expand the amount of material you can manipulate and store. For a computer with disk drive, you should anticipate spending at least $1000, and should intend using your computer for serious applications, such as running a business from your home. Disk drives are used by more expensive personal, desk-top, or business computers to store data on disks, either floppy or hard. Disk drives are similar in purpose to a tape recorder that records data on cassette tapes, but the drives are much faster. Unlike a tape recorder, disk drives can "read" data anywhere on a disk without playing through all the recorded material sequentially.

Both floppy disk drives and hard disk drives are usually a physical part of the main computer housing. The essential difference between them is that a floppy disk can be removed from its drive, while a hard disk is permanently fixed in its drive.

Floppy disks may be single- or double-sided, and single- or double-density. Just as a double-sided disk will hold twice as much information as a single-sided disk, a double-density disk holds twice as much information as a single-density disk. A double-sided, double-density disk will hold from 320K to 400K depending on the operating system. Hard disks generally are available in the 5-, 10- or 20-megabyte (millions of bytes) capacity ranges.

The storage capacity that you need will be determined for the most part by the applications you intend using the computer for. Some applications programs are very large and can only be stored on one of the higher capacity disks. If you intend to use your computer to create a very large database, you may need a hard disk. This is something you should discuss with your computer salesman.

What about those expensive add-ons?

The following are extra features that can be bought as add-on, peripheral (side) devices or can be built into the computer. They are nonessential, and in some cases quite expensive.

Touch screens	Some computers allow you to tell them what to do by touching the video display screen instead of the keyboard.
Voice	Some computers recognize voice commands. Speech recognition is rudimentary right now, but it is an important feature for those who cannot use a keyboard.
Mice	Using a mouse is another way of telling the computer what to do. Instead of using a typewriterlike keyboard, you use a hand-held controller, or mouse, which you move over a rectangular pad. The upper left-hand corner of the pad corresponds to what you see on the upper left-hand corner of the video display screen.
Hard disks	These are storage devices for sophisticated business-type uses of personal computers. They have a storage capacity in the 10-megabyte (millions of bytes) range, as compared with the 180- or 360- kilo byte (thousands of bits) range of floppy disks commonly found on home computers. The disks are sealed inside a disk drive. They can come as part of the computer or they can be bought as extras.
Modems	These devices let a computer talk over telephone lines to other computers. Sometimes a modem is built-in, most common in portable or transportable computers. More often, however, you have to buy the modem. You need a modem to tap into the information services that carry stock quotes, airline guides, and user bulletin boards. If you do not want your computer to communicate with other computers, you do not need a modem.
Sound synthesizers	These plug into the computer and create sounds, including spoken words and music. You can compose and play music on your computer with special extras you plug in or add on to it, although some computers do come with this ability built-in.

Printers

Certain uses you may have for your computer—writing letters or research papers, keeping your budget, running a business from your home—will require putting the output of your computer on paper. This is called hard copy and it requires a printer.

There are several kinds of printers. Two popular choices are the daisywheel and dot matrix printers. Both names describe the kind of printing element that produces their distinctive type of character. Each has advantages (+) and disadvantages (−).

Daisywheels. These printers have a printing element that resembles a flat circular hub with spokes radiating outward, something like a daisy. Daisywheel printers

− Are relatively expensive ($600 up).
+ Produce high-quality print, good for professional-looking (letter quality) correspondence, manuscripts, etc.
− Are slow, printing only 12 to 50 characters per second. At that rate, an average letter on 8½″ × 11″ stationery, 65 characters across, would take about half a minute to print.
− Cannot produce graphs (bar graphs, charts, drawings, tables, etc.). Because daisywheel printers have actual letters, numbers, and punctuation on the "petals" of the print element, they are not useful for graphics, which are formed with dots instead of letters.

Dot matrix. These printers have a printing element that produces everything on a keyboard, such as letters, numbers, and punctuation, plus graphs and pictures, by "drawing" them with a series of tiny dots at a speed of 80 to 350 characters per second. The "matrix" may consist of a grid of five rows of seven dots (5 × 7), nine rows of nine dots (9 × 9), and so on. The greater the number of dots, the higher the quality of character produced. Dot matrix printers

+ Can produce graphics.
+ Are very fast.
+ Are relatively inexpensive ($100 to $600 or more).
− Are noisier than daisywheel printers.
− Do not produce print that looks like that of a typewriter.

Letter quality printers are st characters required for profes Though still expensive, the la of the dot-matrix units. The such as underlining, embolding These printers provide a vast print wheels or element characters needed for s
A

Dot-matrix printers have very quick, and inexpensiv
But in gaining speed,
Letters are formed from ma
The dots can be used in m style can be changed at a type might be more
A

Which printer is for you? Quality is in the eye of the beholder. You have to look at the print and decide if it is what you want.

A 9 × 9 matrix on a dot matrix printer is considered to rival daisywheel print quality. Each character is produced from a total of 82 dots, and it is clear and well delineated. A 5 × 7 matrix, on the other hand, may not print the tails of descenders (j, q, p, y, and g) deeply enough.

While you are looking at the print, listen to the printer. Any impact printer (including both daisywheel and dot matrix) is noisy. Thermal printers, a type of nonimpact printer that burns the print into specially treated paper, are quiet. The disadvantage lies in the treated paper you must use with a thermal printer. Ink-jet printers are also nonimpact and quiet—and expensive. They sell for about $5000.

Pin-feed advance mechanisms use "pins" on the platen to advance the paper through the printer. Page after page, the alignment of your line of copy stays perfect because of the way the paper is locked on the pins on the right and left sides. However, those pins require that all your paper be specially made with holes along both margins.

Friction-feed advance mechanisms grip paper between the platen and roller, like a typewriter, but the paper may slip after continued use. Some printers have both methods of advancing paper, a definite plus.

Computers and education

The Four Steps
1. Check your typing. Everyone makes misteaks ocassionally. (See?)
2. Lock the CAPS LOCK key down. Many programs require you to type everything in capital letters.
3. Check the program manual. The displayed instructions may be unclear.
4. Seek help from someone who knows how the program works.

Educational software for children that is also fun to use can be an important learning aid. However, not all educational software is for children. There are many programs for older students and adults.

Why are computers good for learning new things? Computers can entertain as they educate, with engaging graphics, colors, sounds, movement, and simulations. Computer learning can be fun.

Computers can force one-to-one attention (one person, teacher, or computer to one student), which is known to speed learning.

Unlike a textbook, computers can encourage you when you have grasped the material. By making a sound or by flashing a message on the screen ("GREAT WORK!"), they can congratulate you on a job well done.

Computers are endlessly patient when you are wrong, going over and over the material until you get it right. No harsh words, no lost tempers.

Young children are especially good candidates for computer education because they are fascinated with how a computer works. Early education software takes advantage of a child's natural delight with games, and combines games with learning to produce a painless teaching environment.

Educational software.

A wide variety of educational software is now available for use on home computers. For the most part, they come packaged in one of two ways.

Plug-in cartridges for use on even low-cost computers allow the youngest of users to count, spell, read, etc., on a home computer. If you have very young children, consider buying an inexpensive home computer that uses software cartridges that the child can plug in without help.

Floppy disks containing many educational programs are now available. They can teach typing, logical analysis, programming, science subjects, and more.

Evaluating the software.

Some educational software consists of nothing more than expensive flash cards, such as those you used in school to learn multiplication and addition. Such software does not take advantage of the full potential of your computer.

How can you tell a good educational software program from a bad one? How do you go about finding a good one?

1. For children, start in the school. If your child's school has computers, ask the teacher what kind of software they use. You may wish to duplicate or complement the software your child is already using. Or you may want to use the next, more advanced program in a series.

   If the school does not have computers, your child's teacher may still have some recommendations. Be prepared, however; the teacher may know no more than you do.
2. Next, go to a computer store and try out some programs. If you are buying the software for children, take them into the store to try it out with you. The software should be labeled with suggested age levels, but a test run will ensure that the software is appropriate for your children. Let them use it.
3. Read the manual (the documentation, or instructions that go with the program). Are the instructions easy to read? Some are written very poorly, and some are useless. It is not your fault if you cannot understand the instructions. If they are incomprehensible, look for another program; if the program has no documentation, do not buy it.
4. When you test-run the program, look for these features:

Two educational software examples

Speed reading. Speed-reading courses outside the home are often quite expensive, and they require you to spend hours in a classroom that may be far from home. With a computer, you can learn to increase your reading speed, at home, much more economically. You can buy a speed-reading software program for about $70. More than one member of your family can take the same "course," which brings the cost down even further.

The computer is an especially effective tool for learning speed reading. It can train your eye movements to extend your peripheral (side) vision, so that you read larger groups of words at a time instead of one or two at a time. It can flash individual words on the screen at faster and faster rates, enabling you to build up your comprehension. It can also roll text across the screen at increasingly faster rates to train you to read actual running text more and more quickly.

Some of these techniques are the same ones used in speed-reading courses given outside the home. But when you are working on your own computer, you can insert your own reading material so that the selections you use for practice are the kinds of material you enjoy reading.

History. How does history take shape? Instead of memorizing names and dates of famous people and wars, you can use the computer to study factors that influence the way history unfolds. Some history programs trace the interplay of economic, political, religious, and other influences. The programs use the software to present a "model" that allows for the random selection of events within the established limits (historical period, countries, etc.).

Instead of reading the names of kings and generals and the locations of the major wars, for example, you could put yourself in tenth-century Spain or the American Civil War. Then, you could manipulate the historical, economic, and human factors as variables on the computer. The result is a model of theoretical history.

The program is unique each time it runs, although it preserves the broad historical overview. Color displays are used to show maps and graphic detail for the time period, as well as political or religious areas of influence.

The models offer information you might also get from books or a course, but learning through models allows you to make choices and participate in the process.

- Friendliness. Is the structure of the program nonthreatening and easy to use? It should be. This does not mean that the course content of the program should be something your child can breeze through, thereby learning nothing. It means that the program itself should be something you and your child can use on the computer without major problems.

  In addition, the content of the program, the actual material to be learned, should be neither above nor below your child's ability. Just because the package says "Ages 5–8" does not mean that your seven-year-old will find the program useful. Your child may not be ready, or may be too advanced, for that particular program.
- Usefulness. What does this program purport to do? Read the claims on the package or brochure. It should clearly state what the program will teach your child. Is this what your child wants or needs? Do not waste money on programs that your child cannot, or will not, benefit from.
- Encouragement. The software should assess your child's progress. If an answer is incorrect, does the program just move on, or does it offer help, and review the material when an answer is incorrect? Better yet, does it rephrase the original explanation, presenting the material in a new way for those who did not understand it the first time? A program that simply indicates wrong answers is not as good as one that offers feedback and encouragement.
- Flexibility. A good program has the flexibility to adjust to progress. If the child grasps the material with no difficulty (three answers right in a row, for example), the program should adjust accordingly: it should become progressively more challenging. Some programs are flexible enough to let you add new material—for example, extra passages for reading comprehension, additional vocabulary, or a whole new text with questions. When the original content has been mastered, such programs remain useful so long as you continue making additions to them.
- Entertainment. Finally, the software should take full advantage of the computer's ability to enhance the learning experience with movement, color, interesting displays, simulations, etc. If the program simply presents screen after screen of straight text, followed by multiple choice questions, it offers no advantages over a textbook. Do not buy it. You do not need a computer to read a book, unless you are learning how to speed read.

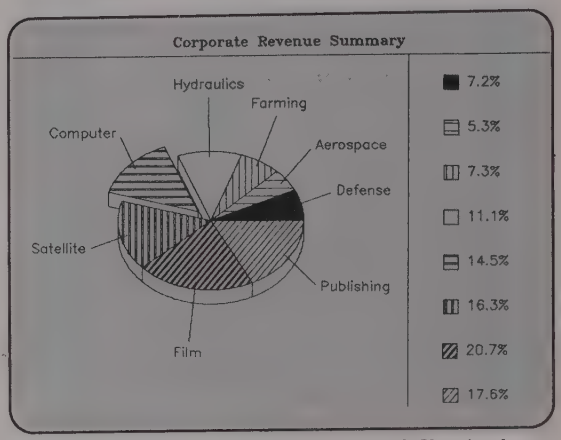
Financial and business programs

- Are you thinking of starting an income-producing business at home?
- Do you run a small business?
- Do you take work home from the office frequently?
- Do you want tighter control over the family budget?

Using a personal computer for financial or business applications will probably justify the cost. For simply balancing your checkbook, a pocket calculator is more cost-effective than a computer, and it is more time-efficient. But if you also want to set up a small business in your home, then a computer is a wise purchase.

The computer offers invaluable assistance for business-oriented tasks, such as:

- maintaining inventory records
- keeping a customer file for billings or advertising
- accounting



Computer-drawn illustrations can be instantly revised. Changing the percentages will automatically cause the pie to be redrawn.

Applications

Word processing. Writing on a computer—word processing—is discussed on page 16. If you prepare long or repetitious documents on a typewriter, a computer with word processing software can make you more productive.

Number crunching. Simple addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division—the kind you do to balance the checkbook—do not require a computer. Figuring out how much a mortgage would cost at five different interest rates, for five different down payments, over a $20,000 range in housing prices, is, however, the kind of complicated calculation made easier and quicker by a computer. Computers perform these kinds of math gymnastics, called "crunching," with electronic spreadsheet software.

Database management. Also called information management, this software allows multiple arrangements of files of data. For a business, a database management program could sort your customer list by zip code for cheaper mailing rates, or target the big spenders for advertising promotions, or select them by any other category you enter into the computer.

Graphics. Do you make sales presentations? You can turn numbers into charts, graphs, and other visual displays with a computer and a graphics printer.

Sample business software titles

pfs: File	Lotus 1-2-3
pfs: Report	Symphony
BPS Graphics	Wordstar
Market Analyzer	dBase III
Financier II	Framework

Buy or lease?

If you are buying a computer for business reasons, the 10 percent investment tax credit on the purchase price is a definite advantage of outright purchase.

But leasing, too, has its advantages:

- You avoid being stuck with out-of-date technology. At the end of a short-term lease, you turn the computer in and get the latest model.
- If anything goes wrong, you do not have to pay for repairs.
- If you are leasing for business, you can deduct all the leasing expenses.
- Leases can cost less than purchases, especially if you have the lessor pass the tax credits through to you.

Leasing also has its disadvantages:

- You lose depreciation and other deductions that you would have gotten had you bought the equipment. Those benefits include a one-time $7500 ($10,000 in 1986) writeoff, investment tax credit, accelerated depreciation, loan interest deductions (if you borrow money to buy the computer), and business expense deductions. You may be entitled to partial tax advantages if you buy the computer for both home and business use. (For strictly personal home use, you cannot claim business tax deductions.)
- You will have to pay a security deposit.
- If you do not read the fine print carefully, you may find yourself paying additional charges (service and maintenance) or getting locked into an extension of the lease.

The electronic spreadsheet

The software most used in business is the spreadsheet program. In fact, it is the electronic spreadsheet that made microcomputers popular. It was invented by a student at the Harvard Business School in 1978. He knew there had to be an easier way to do the recalculations required every time one element changed in accounting or recordkeeping. His invention made it possible for the recalculations to be done on a microcomputer.

What is a spreadsheet? Think of an electronic spreadsheet as a computer program that duplicates the rows and columns printed on accounting graph paper, and does all the arithmetic you would have to do to fill in all those rows and columns (254 horizontal rows and 63 vertical columns on most spreadsheets).

To do an accounting or recordkeeping spreadsheet by hand often means doing not one spreadsheet but many, each one different, each involving a multitude of complicated, repetitive calculations. Changing one figure requires changing related figures. A mistake in one figure produces a chain of mistakes in related figures.

Unlike people, the computer thrives on doing things over and over again, and it does not make mathematical errors. It does all its calculations in seconds. You simply enter the figures, or in a few places change them, and the entire spreadsheet is recalculated in an instant with no mistakes.

What can you use a spreadsheet to do? You can analyze a business or personal budget using a spreadsheet program.You can see the effect of changes in income or of different deductions on your taxes; you can keep track of your investments; you can control your cash flow; or you can project your profits.

You can, to use a more specific example, make use of "what if" scenarios. Suppose you want to buy a new house. Into a spreadsheet you could enter figures for varying

- down payments: $5000 $7500 $10,000 $15,000 $20,000
- purchase prices: $30,000 $50,000 $80,000 $100,000
- interest rates: 9% 10% 12% 14%

Now you can find out how much house you can afford if interest rates go up, or if you put down a larger or smaller down payment, or if you buy a more or less expensive house.

In business the electronic spreadsheet can help answer questions like these:

- Should you build or buy? What would the difference in cost be?
- How much should you charge for a new product in order to recoup your cost?
- How much should you charge to make a profit?
- What would your financial situation be if you gave every employee a raise?
- What would the impact on your business be if sales fell by 10 percent next quarter?
- How much new business will you have to generate to recoup the cost of advertising?

The problem-solving capabilities of the spreadsheet are nearly limitless.

By using a spreadsheet program you can automatically revise a whole table to reflect a change in only one number. In this example the sales figure in October for the Marina was corrected, resulting in instant recalculation of the totals in three places.

	1	2	3	4	5
1		Sales analysis by month for selected outlets
2
3		Marina	Downtown	The Plaza	Total
4
5	January	1,000.00	4,214.00	2,100.00	7,314.00
6	February	1,250.00	4,645.00	1,534.00	7,429.00
7	March	1,100.00	4,123.00	2,134.00	7,357.00
8	April	1,463.00	3,078.00	3,245.00	7,786.00
9	May	1,634.00	2,345.00	4,234.00	8,213.00
10	June	2,134.00	2,034.00	4,768.00	8,936.00
11	July	3,645.00	2,345.00	6,034.00	12,024.00
12	August	4,234.00	2,890.00	5,123.00	12,247.00
13	September	3,215.00	3,245.00	4,235.00	10,695.00
14	October	2,867.00	4,218.00	3,985.00	10,245.00
15	November	1,789.00	5,200.00	3,324.00	10,313.00
16	December	1,903.00	4,890.00	2,984.00	9,777.00
17
18	TOTAL:	25,409.00	43,227.00	43,700.00	112,336.00

Command list 5: Auto-Recalc Beep Confidence Display Execute F-Calculator
Macro Parameters Remember Send User-Menu
Worksheet: sales Location: r14c2 FN:0 Font: Standard
AUTO-RECALC - specifies the method to be used in formula recalculation

	1	2	3	4	5
1		Sales analysis by month for selected outlets
2
3		Marina	Downtown	The Plaza	Total
4
5	January	1,000.00	4,214.00	2,100.00	7,314.00
6	February	1,250.00	4,645.00	1,534.00	7,429.00
7	March	1,100.00	4,123.00	2,134.00	7,357.00
8	April	1,463.00	3,078.00	3,245.00	7,786.00
9	May	1,634.00	2,345.00	4,234.00	8,213.00
10	June	2,134.00	2,034.00	4,768.00	8,936.00
11	July	3,645.00	2,345.00	6,034.00	12,024.00
12	August	4,234.00	2,890.00	5,123.00	12,247.00
13	September	3,215.00	3,245.00	4,235.00	10,695.00
14	October	2,867.00	4,218.00	3,985.00	10,703.00
15	November	1,789.00	5,200.00	3,324.00	10,313.00
16	December	1,903.00	4,890.00	2,984.00	9,777.00
17
18	TOTAL:	25,867.00	43,227.00	43,700.00	112,794.00

Command list 5: Auto-Recalc Beep Confidence Display Execute F-Calculator
Macro Parameters Remember Send User-Menu
Worksheet: sales Location: r14c2 FN:0 Font: Standard
AUTO-RECALC - specifies the method to be used in formula recalculation

Word processing

If you want to use your computer for running a home-based business, improving your job skills, or writing long research papers, word processing is the application software for you. In fact, word processing has become the most important use for most people who have computers in the home.

There are also word processers (that is, computers) that have advanced word-processing programs built into their systems. They are intended for heavy duty, professional use.

Word processing: how it works.

Word processing is typing by computer, with a big plus. Word processing software can turn your computer into a typewriter, a typesetter, a printer, a dictionary, a thesaurus, an editor, and a secretary.

Instead of using paper to try out your ideas, you use the computer's memory. Instead of typing and retyping on paper, you type a first draft of a document into the computer. The computer lets you correct or revise it without retyping the whole document.

What can word processing do?

Whether you use a word processor or—as is more likely and much less expensive—a computer, running a word processing program, such as MultiMate™ or WordStar®, allows anyone who can type to do word processing. What can word processing do that a typewriter cannot?

Related software

A spelling checker. A spelling checker automatically looks through your typed document for spelling errors. Any word that is misspelled will be highlighted for you to correct.

An electronic thesaurus. Do you keep using the same words over and over? With this software, you can be creative instead of repetitive in your word choice. At the stroke of a key, synonyms for the word you want to replace appear on the computer screen.

Mailing lists. You can coordinate word processing software with programs that can handle any mailing list—your Christmas cards, your business clients. Each letter will carry an individual salutation with its own address.

1. It can justify margins automatically. That means that everything on the right and left side of the page or column will be lined up evenly.
2. It can rearrange the order of anything you have typed. You can move sentences, words, and paragraphs up or down on the page without retyping them.
3. You can copy automatically any part of the document, or even another document, and deposit it at another location using one key.
4. You can change the format of material. You can make the margins much wider, or you can make them much narrower if you prefer. Without any retyping.

   You can center material with one keystroke.

   You can underline, highlight, number and renumber the pages, insert footnotes automatically, type above or below the line, use bold type for emphasis.
5. You save time because you do not have to retype. Also, because you do not have to retype the whole document, you reduce the possibility of introducing new errors while correcting old ones. If you are sending one letter, manuscript, or document to several people, the computer saves you even more time.

What equipment do you need?

A keyboard. If you intend to do a lot of typing (whether of words or numbers), you should have a computer with a typewriterlike keyboard. Instead of such a keyboard, some computers have a membrane with the letters and symbols painted on; some have thin little keys somewhat like those on pocket calculators. Neither is adequate for heavy word processing.

A printer. You will need some kind of printer for the output of your typing.

A word processing program. You need not buy a word processor to do word processing. A word processor is expensive, and word processing is the only thing it can do. Fortunately, you can buy word-processing software for inexpensive home computers. For business or demanding professional use, you will need a more elaborate program, one costing several hundred dollars, and a more professional computer, costing at least $1000.

A video display. You can use your television set for viewing copy, but for long stints of typing, the resolution (sharpness) on a television screen is not clear enough, and your eyes will tire. For this reason, you may want to buy a computer video display.

Staying healthy with computers

From improving the hearing to monitoring heart disease, computer-based health aids are helping people live longer and better. A computer can affect your health and well-being in two major ways.

Staying healthy. If you are already in good health, or simply need a little push to get there, there are computer programs that monitor your lifestyle to make sure you stay healthy.

Programs you may want include the following:

Computerized medical records keep track of doctor visits, immunizations, and health problems. They schedule checkups and record the health history for every member of your family.

Exercise programs monitor the quality of your exercise. Some exercise devices have their own built-in computer.

Diet software translates your meals into the nutrients and calories you get from them. The programs typically use the U.S. Department of Agriculture's nutritional data values, focusing on 24 nutrients in 1000 foods. Some programs combine diet and exercise, analyzing your exercise and your food intake to see if you have met a weight-loss or weight-maintaining goal.

Computerized meal-planning programs range from gourmet cookbooks to simple menu planners that analyze and plan meals so that all nutritional needs are covered. Such programs can recalculate calories and nutrients for reduced servings or substitutions ("What if I use cottage cheese instead of sour cream?").

Handling a health impairment.

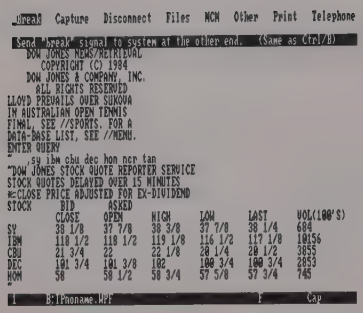
Microcomputers are also used in a variety of devices designed to help people with various disabilities. They improve the quality of life. They can make the difference between idleness and productivity, or between dependence and independence. Here are some of the many devices and inventions that are already helping disabled people:

- Bio-ears, implanted behind the ear, offer hearing for the severely impaired.
- Prostheses (artificial limbs) can be electronically activated by computer circuitry.
- Electronic reading aids for the visually impaired include devices that translate a printed word into a vibrating tactile form.
- Game paddles help physically impaired computer users.
- Expanded computer keyboards accommodate people with motor disabilities.
- Microprocessors for Braille combine computers and Braille communication.
- Microcomputer-based devices allow the hearing-impaired to send and receive messages over the telephone.
- Sonar-guided wheelchairs and voice-operated robot arms are two sophisticated computer aids. The wheelchair uses a microcomputer for steering and speed control.
- Blood pressure monitors that you can wear during your normal day-to-day activities have an electronic memory and use a computer display. They are more likely to reflect a normal blood pressure reading than the inflated reading a visit to the doctor's office sometimes produces.

Also in development is a computer aid to help the blind to see: a small television camera attached to an even smaller computer.

For more information about disabilities and personal computers, see the list of books on page 21.

A microcomputer, which is carried over the shoulder, can be tuned to adjust a prosthetic knee joint for different gaits: normal walking, running, or climbing stairs.



Break Capture Disconnect Files MCM Other Print Telephone
Send "break" signal to system at the other end. (Same as Ctrl/B)
DOW JONES NEWS/RETRIEVAL
COPYRIGHT (C) 1984
DOW JONES & COMPANY, INC.
ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
LLOYD PREVAILS OVER SUKOVA
IN AUSTRALIAN OPEN TENNIS
FINAL, SEE //SPORTS. FOR A DATA-BASE LIST, SEE //MENU.
ENTER QUERY
sy ibm cbu dec hon ncr tan
"DOW JONES STOCK QUOTE REPORTER SERVICE STOCK QUOTES DELAYED OVER 15 MINUTES
*:CLOSE PRICE ADJUSTED FOR EX-DIVIDEND STOCK BID ASKED
CLOSE OPEN HIGH LOW LAST VOL(100'S)
SY 38 1/8 37 7/8 38 3/8 37 7/8 38 1/4 684
IBM 118 1/2 118 1/2 119 1/8 116 1/2 117 1/8 10156
CBU 21 3/4 22 22 1/8 20 1/4 20 1/2 3855
DEC 101 3/4 101 3/8 102 100 3/4 100 3/4 2853
HOM 58 58 1/2 58 3/4 57 5/8 57 3/4 745
1 B:Phoname.WP Cap

Dow Jones averages from online database

Glossary of computer terms

Some standard keyboard characters with their ASCII equivalents

033 !	063 ?	093]
034 "	064 @	094 ^
035 #	065 A	095 _
036 $	066 B	096 '
037 %	067 C	097 a
038 &	068 D	098 b
039 '	069 E	099 c
040 (	070 F	100 d
041)	071 G	101 e
042 *	072 H	102 f
043 +	073 I	103 g
044 ,	074 J	104 h
045 -	075 K	105 i
046 .	076 L	106 j
047 /	077 M	107 k
048 0	078 N	108 l
049 1	079 O	109 m
050 2	080 P	110 n
051 3	081 Q	111 o
052 4	082 R	112 p
053 5	083 S	113 q
054 6	084 T	114 r
055 7	085 U	115 s
056 8	086 V	116 t
057 9	087 W	117 u
058 :	088 X	118 v
059 ;	089 Y	119 w
060 <	090 Z	120 x
061 =	091 [	121 y
062 >	092 \	122 z

acoustic coupler. A type of modem with two "ear muffs" into which you place your telephone handset (see illustration) to let your computer "talk" over phone lines to other computers. See also modem.

ADP. Automatic data processing.

AI (artificial intelligence). The field or study of computer use to reproduce human intelligence. Also describes the ability of computers to simulate human intelligence and reasoning, as well as attempts to make computers "think."

algorithm. The mathematical or logical steps needed to solve a problem.

ASCII (the *A*merican *S*tandard *C*ode for *I*nformation *I*nterchange). An internationally used coding scheme for representing information digitally. With ASCII, any two computers—regardless of operating system or brand—can communicate. ASCII uses 128 seven- or eight-digit codes to represent the letters of the alphabet, the numbers 0 through 9, and punctuation marks. The codes are based on the binary system (for example, the lower-case letter "a" is represented by 0110001).

BASIC (*B*eginner's *A*ll-purpose *S*ymbolic *I*nstruction *C*ode). The most widely used programming language on home computers. Also considered one of the easiest to use. See also language.

baud. Measuring unit of the speed of computer information transfer. Usually calculated in bits per second (bps). Three hundred or 1200 are two common speeds for modems used with home computers. This means that if you were sending information through a modem at 300 baud, your computer would be transmitting the information at a rate of about 30 words per minute. The baud rate generally is divided by ten to get the approximate number of English words per minute at a given baud rate. You can read 300 baud material moving across your screen. You cannot read 1200 baud, which moves too fast. Twelve hundred baud is used for transferring long files or programs from computer to computer.

binary, binary system. The base-two number system used by computers (see chart). The two digits used in base two, and in the binary system, are 0 and 1. Each space to the left of the decimal is a progressive power of two. Base two is used in computers because it represents the basis of computer operations: on-off or high-low electric current.

bit, binary digit. The basic unit of encoded computer data. A bit is one unit of storage space in a computer. Each electric pulse is one bit. Generally, eight bits form one byte.

boot. To start up a program (pull it up by its bootstraps). Bootstrapping, or booting, is the process used to start up the computer with its first instructions.

Bps. Bits per second. A way of measuring the speed at which a computer sends information. See also baud.

bug. An error in the computer or its programming software. Legend has it that an early large mainframe computer malfunctioned because of an insect trapped somewhere in the computer's tubes. The insect was discovered and removed. Since then, the word "bug" has come to describe general computer problems. Getting rid of the problems is called debugging the computer.

byte. Eight bits, the number required to encode one letter or number or symbol.

chip. A tiny piece of silicon (the size of a baby's fingernail) that contains thousands of transitors joined by very fine metal circuitry. A modern computer will have one or more chips, also called microchips.

command. Any instruction given to a computer. Commands are frequently preset by the software program you use.

CP/M (R). Control program for microcomputers. An operating system used by a number of microcomputers.

CPU (central processing unit). The computer's "brains," actually a chip. See also microprocessor.

CRT (cathode ray tube). The video display (looks like a television screen) where computer output is displayed.

database. Computer-organized and computer-maintained filing. In databasing, you type into your computer addresses, recipes, etc.—whatever information you want it to keep track of. Online database, also called information utility, offers information services (about 1500 of them) that you can tap into with your computer, some communications software, a modem, and your phone line. Online database/information services give you access to business information, stock quotes, legal research and case law, games, restaurant and movie reviews, classified ads, advice and so on.

disk/diskette. The magnetic-coated flexible disk (looks something like a 45 rpm phonograph record though you can bend it) on which software programs are stored, and on which you can store your own data (documents, files, etc.).

Computer communicating

Your computer can communicate. You can use it like a telephone, to call and chat, using the keyboard and monitor, with other computer users. You can program it to send calls to other computer owners late at night, when rates are cheap.

You can also use your computer to gain access to libraries of books, newspapers, and magazines through computer information services and bibliographic databases.

How it works. Your computer can talk to another computer any distance away over telephone lines. To use normal phone lines, you have to convert the binary or digital signals your computer makes into the voice-frequency signals telephone lines carry.

Modems do that, among other things. They translate digital signals produced by your computer into oscillating signals, and vice versa (when in the receiving mode). That process is one of *mo*dulation and *dem*odulation, hence the name modem.

Equipment. There are two popular types of modems that are used with microcomputers.

Acoustic coupler modems consist of a cradle, or earmuffs, into which you place the handset of your telephone. Acoustic couplers have one drawback: they allow noise onto the line, which can interfere with data transmission.

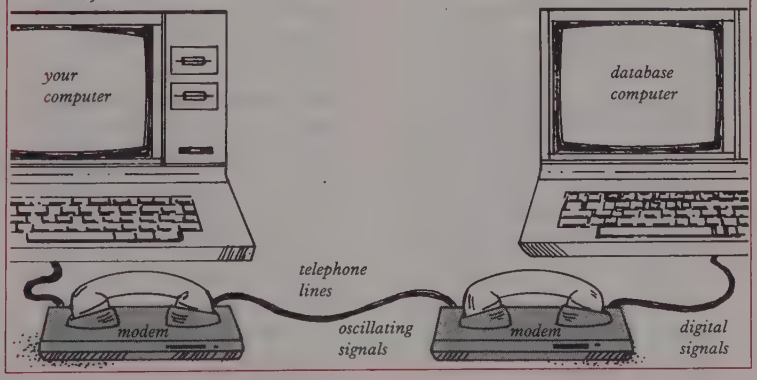
Direct connect modems, as the name suggests, connect the computer to a phone jack directly.

What must you buy? Some computers are sold with built-in telecommunications ability. But many microcomputers do not have this capability, which means you will need additional hardware and peripheral equipment:

- an asynchronous board with RS232-C port and cable,
- the modem itself,
- and a telephone line to connect the modem into a wall jack.

You also will need communications software: programming on a disk telling your computer how to interact with other computers. You may find modem hardware and communications software sold together.

You can buy good programs for under $200—sometimes well under. PC-talk is a public domain program (free, uncopyrighted software), highly regarded, with good features and documentation. You can find public domain software in magazines, through computer clubs, etc.



documentation. The instructions for using a computer or software.

expansion slot, port. Space in the main body of the computer for board with additional memory or capability.

floppy disk. See disk.

hard or fixed disk. A disk sealed in a hard disk drive with a storage capacity in the millions of bytes.

hardware. The computer and related machine equipment, such as the printer.

home computer. A basic, inexpensive personal computer.

input/output (I/O). What goes in and what comes out of the computer.

K (kilobyte). One thousand and twenty-four bytes. K is an abbreviation for the Greek word kilo, or thousand. However, in the binary system, which is based on two, the closest corresponding power of two is 1024.

language. The means by which you talk to your computer. Has special vocabulary you can use to write programs or command instructions for the computer.

load. To enter data or programming into the computer.

logo. An easy-to-learn and easy-to-use computer language for programming and for learning programming. Frequently used in schools, especially for young children. Created at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

list-merge. Combines a list of names and addresses with correspondence or any other file or data. Used for mailings, it is frequently combined with word-processing software.

mainframe. Large business and academic computers. They can be used by many people at one time. They can also be hooked up to and used by other, smaller computers.

```
list                                    run 10 PRINT "What is your name":           What is your name? David 20 INPUT X$                             Hello David!
30 PRINT "Hello ";X$;"!"
40 END
```

Programing languages like BASIC, in which this simple program is written, allow you to make a computer do exactly what you want it to do.

Mb (megabytes). Million(s) of bytes. See also byte.

memory. The storage capability (circuitry and devices) of the computer.

menu. Selections, choices, and options presented on the video screen for a program, or for an information or electronic database. See also database.

microcomputer, micro. A computer that uses the microprocessor as its "brain." A personal computer.

microprocessor. The primary chip in a typical microcomputer. Like other chips, it is silicon-based circuitry wrapped in plastic or ceramic; but this particular chip contains the "brains" of the computer.

modem. A machine that translates computer signals into signals that can be carried over telephone wires.

mouse. A hand-held pointer used with a computer for word processing, graphics, etc. Bypasses the keyboard as a means of telling the computer what you want it to do.

Pascal. A programming language named after the French philosopher, mathematician, and inventor Blaise Pascal.

peripheral. A side item used with a computer. Peripherals include modems, joy sticks, and printers. Usually either an input or output device.

personal computer. A microcomputer, designed for personal use by an individual at home or in a business.

pin-feed. One way of pulling paper through a printer. Also called tractor or sprocket feed because the paper-advance mechanism consists of raised sprockets on the printer's platen that fit into holes on the right and left margins of the paper to pull it through the printer.

pixel. The unit of picture elements on a computer's video (visual) display. The equivalent of a dot. Used to measure the quality of the picture (resolution).

platen. The cylinder in a printer that corresponds to the platen in a typewriter. This cylinder rolls paper through the printer and serves as the backing against which the print element strikes.

program. Any instructions telling the computer what to do. See also software.

RAM (*r*andom *a*ccess *m*emory). The computer memory available for your use. It "forgets" whatever is in it when the computer is turned off.

RF (radio frequency) modulator. Adapts computer signals for use with a television type display.

ROM (*r*ead *o*nly *m*emory). The computer memory that is permanent. It is programmed when the computer is manufactured, and is not part of the memory available for you to use.

RS-232, 232C. A standard connector for computers and peripheral devices, such as a modem.

save. To store a program or data on a storage device, either cassette or disk.

scroll. To move text on a screen vertically or horizontally.

semiconductor. Used for computer circuitry switches. Any material that transmits electricity better than a resistor or insulator, but not as well as a true metal conductor, is a semiconductor. The level of a semiconductor's ability to conduct electricity can be changed by temperature variation or by introducing impurities into it.

software. The instructions telling a computer what to do. Also called programs. There are two main types of software: systems and applications. Systems software gives the computer general instructions telling it how to do what it does. Applications software tells the computer how to perform a specific task.

unix. An operating system.

user friendly. A term that indicates that a computer or piece of software is easy to use.

user groups. Clubs of computer owners, usually organized around one particular type of computer or software. Some user groups have software libraries—programs members can try out, copy, and use. This is public domain (free, uncopyrighted) programming, often written by group members.

vacuum tubes. Glass tubes that control and amplify electric current. Used in early computers.

Winchester. When the Winchester hard disk was developed at IBM, its project number was 3030, and it was nicknamed Winchester after the Winchester 30-30 rifle.

For further reference

General

Bates, William
The Computer Cookbook
Doubleday

Bradbeer, Robin, De Bono, Peter, and Laurie, Peter
The Beginner's Guide to Computers
Addison-Wesley

Edelhart, Mike, and Garr, Doug
The Complete Computer Compendium
Addison-Wesley

Laurie, Peter
The Joy of Computers
Little, Brown

Leventhal, Lance, and Stafford, Irvin
Why Do You Need a Personal Computer?
John Wiley & Sons

Makower, Ernest
Personal Computers A–Z
Doubleday

Spencer, Donald
What Computers Can Do
Scribner's

How to buy a computer

Bates, Timothy, and Wright, Judith Choosing the Right Small Business Computer
Hayden

Birnbaum, Mark, and Sickman, John
How to Choose Your Small Business Computer
Addison-Wesley

Hillman, Howard
Complete Computer Buyer's Checklist
Macmillan

How to Buy a Home Computer Electronic Industries Association (free booklet)

Children and computers

Gerber, Carole
Turn Your Kid into a Computer Genius Dutton

Hammond, Ray
Computers and Your Child
Ticknor & Fields

Walsh Burke, Anna Mae
Microcomputers Can be Kidstuff
Hayden

Computer games

Ahl, David
Basic Computer Games
Workman Publishing

Mau, Ernest
Create Word Puzzles with Your Microcomputer
Hayden

Computer history

Kidder, Tracy
The Soul of a New Machine
Little, Brown

Levy, Steven
Hackers: The Wizards of the Computer Revolution
Doubleday

The Microchip
National Geographic
Vol. 162, No. 4, October, 1982

Parker, Donna
Crime by Computer
Scribner's

Special applications

Brand, Stewart
The Whole Earth Software Catalogue
Doubleday

Edelhart, Mike, and Davies, Owen
Omni Online Database Directory
Macmillan

McWilliams, Peter
Computers and the Disabled
Doubleday

McWilliams, Peter
Questions and Answers on Word Processing Prelude

Mau, Ernest
Secrets of Better Basic Hayden

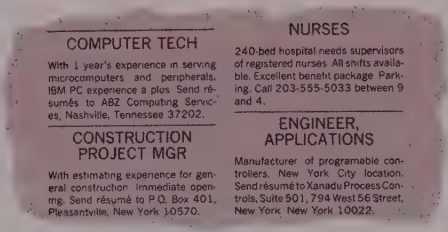
Ross, Peter
Introducing Logo
Addison-Wesley



COMPUTER TECH

With 1 year's experience in serving microcomputers and peripherals. IBM PC experience a plus. Send résumés to ABZ Computing Services, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

CONSTRUCTION PROJECT MGR

With estimating experience for general construction. Immediate opening. Send résumé to P.O. Box 401, Pleasantville, New York 10570.

NURSES

240-bed hospital needs supervisors of registered nurses. All shifts available. Excellent benefit package. Parking. Call 203-555-5033 between 9 and 4.

ENGINEER, APPLICATIONS

Manufacturer of programable controllers. New York City location. Send résumé to Xanadu Process Controls, Suite 501, 794 West 56 Street, New York, New York 10022.

Advancing Your Career

- Preparing for the job search 24
- Going after the job 32
- Getting the job 40
- Moving up the ladder 41
- Changing careers 44
- Getting back into the work force 47
- Starting your own business 49
- Matching yourself to the world of work 52

Whether you are interested in part-time work or a lifetime career commitment, careful reading of this chapter will inform you of the many possibilities before you. If you have already chosen your career, the information will help prepare you for promotion. It will also help those who simply want to ensure that they keep their jobs. Starting a new career in mid-life or after retirement calls for special advice and encouragement.

Here are some of the forecasts worth considering before making any new career decisions:

- About 131 million men and women are expected to comprise the 1995 labor force—3.8 million more than the figure named in earlier projections.
- Nearly two-thirds of the increase will be among women. Already, two-income families are the norm rather than the exception in today's economy.
- Job growth in the service industries (such as transportation, communications, public utilities, trade, finance, insurance, real estate, fast food, and government) is expected to account for nearly 75 percent of all new jobs between 1985 and 1995.
- By 1990, over 4.3 million senior citizens will have retired. Many of them will be taking advantage of the new Social Security laws (1984) that allow them to earn additional income (from $5160 to $6960, depending on age and yearly cost-index adjustments).
- High-school graduates are quickly entering the job market, often foregoing college in favor of computer schools and vocational training institutions.
- A shortage of college graduates is starting to show up in such fields as computer engineering and telecommunications.
- The demand for typists will decrease as the use of word processors creates openings for computer operators and programmers.
- Two of the fastest growing occupations will be repairmen for the computers and electrical equipment being produced, and health technicians to operate the new medical equipment being developed.
- Employment of teachers for preschool children is expected to surge in the next ten years, increasing by more than 40 percent. This demand will be created in part by the children of those born during the baby boom.

Specific, practical advice follows in each of the following sections.

Job opportunities in rapidly growing fields

Fastest growing industry	Fastest growing occupation	Jobs with most openings	Annual openings
Medical and dental instruments and other medical services	occupational therapists physical therapists physical therapy assistants medical insurance clerks	nurses' aides, orderlies, and attendants registered nurses licensed practical nurses	94,000 85,000 60,000
Business services	legal assistants office machine repairers banking and insurance credit clerks employment interviewers	secretaries and stenographers cashiers bookkeepers accountants typists real estate agents and brokers bank clerks receptionists	305,000 119,000 96,000 61,000 59,000 50,000 45,000 41,000
Computers and peripheral equipment and scientific and controlling equipment	computer systems analysts computer programmers computer operators peripheral EDP equipment operators	fast growing but small industry engineers
Radio and television broadcasting	electrical engineers electrical and electronic technicians	engineers	total in engineering occupations: 46,500
Electronic components	electronic engineers electrical and electronic technicians	engineers
New construction	surveyors' helpers mechanical engineers mechanical engineering technicians	blue-collar workers and supervisors local truck drivers carpenters construction laborers	69,000 64,000 58,000 49,500
Plastics products	compression and injection mold plastics machine operators	industrial assemblers machinery repairers	77,000 58,000

Preparing for the job search

Assessing your abilities. When preparing for a job search, take the time to sit quietly and assess what you have done with your life. In addition to any work experience, what abilities do you have that qualify you for the job market? If you look closely at your past experiences, you may be surprised at the possibilities they point to for your future.

Take a pencil and paper and list all the skills and talents you have taken for granted all your life. What abilities do you use in your nonpaid activities? Can you cook, drive a car, write letters, sing in the church choir? See how you might apply the skills that you enjoy using most to a job situation.

How to start. To draw up your success chart, start as far back in your life as you wish. For instance, you may have had to recite a soliloquy from Shakespeare in tenth grade, or a poem in Sunday school when you were even younger. Whatever your age at the time, recitation in front of a group indicates poise, some public speaking ability, commitment—and courage.

Divide your life into five-year intervals. List each success or accomplishment in the first column, the skills or experience gained in a second column. It is also a good idea to consider negative experiences. Perhaps you hated selling Girl Scout cookies. You should ask yourself if this typifies your attitude toward selling

Matching yourself with the World of Work

	1. Leadership/Persuasion	2. Helping/Instructing others	3. Problem-solving/Creativity	4. Initiative	5. Work as part of team	6. Frequent public contacts	7. Manual dexterity	8. Physical stamina	9. Hazardous	10. Outdoors	11. Confined
Automobile mechanics			•			•	•	•	•		•
Bank clerks					•						•
Bank tellers					•	•					•
Blue-collar supervisors		•	•	•	•		•		•
Dental hygienists		•			•	•	•	•
Dieticians	•	•	•	•	•	•
Drafters					•		•				•
Employment counselors	•	•	•	•	•	•					•
Firefighters		•	•		•	•	•	•	•	•
Landscape architects			•	•		•	•
Librarians	•	•	•	•	•	•
Mail carriers						•	•	•		•
Market research analysts	•		•	•	•
Police officers	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•
Photographic process workers							•				•
Secondary school teachers	•	•	•	•	•	•
Secretaries				•	•	•	•
Waiters, waitresses				•		•	•	•

and, if so, remind yourself to stay out of that field.

Stick to your positive experiences when making an entry on the success chart. Consider what satisfactions and rewards came out of each experience. List these in a third column.

Matching your skills with work. Your success chart will give you the information about your marketable skills that you will need to apply to the Department of Labor World of Work chart. A sample from this chart is shown on page 24; you will find the entire chart on page 52.

The average person's length of time at the same job is 4.8 years. Although your career decisions are important, they are not necessarily meant to last forever. Once you have developed some experience at self-assessment, you will be able to go through the process more efficiently five years hence if need be. It would be wise to keep all you paperwork filed away for future reference.

The two examples shown on this page and on page 26 show the success charts of Julie Parsons, a homemaker who wants to reenter the work force, and Edward Stubbs, a hospital administrator who wants to start his own business (with his wife, Alice) after he retires. The amount of your work experience will determine where you start your success chart.

Julie Parsons started her chart back in childhood, which increased her confidence for job-hunting because she saw the range of her own experience. Edward and Alice Stubbs started with adult work experience. Though the Stubbses had tested most of their abilities, they wanted to develop a full profile of themselves because going into business on their own was a big and somewhat risky step for them.

Broad experience is useful in business

Edward and Alice Stubbs's catering business is a perfect example of a business formed from skills that are most enjoyed. Their access to advertising in their community theater program enabled them to reach exactly the right market at a low cost. Their big old house was well suited to their business needs and activities.

Past social and volunteer participation gave them the opportunity to show off their talents to the community and to gain experience and a good reputation.

CATERING SERVICE	Finance, budgeting	Public Relations	Organizational ability	Communication	Working with People	Leadership	Cooperation	Dexterity, cooking	Creativity	Risk
Edward Stubbs age 65	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•		Alice Stubbs age 63
Hospital Administrator 35 yrs.	•	•	•	•	•	•			•
Gourmet cook 40 yrs.							•	•			Gourmet club Secretary 10 yrs.
Budget chairman 15 yrs. Finance committee	•	•	•
Board of Directors Community theater 7 yrs	•	•	•	•	•	•		•	•		Board of Directors Community theater 15 yrs
Co-chairman social committee 8 yrs.			•	•	•	•	•	•			Co-chairman social committee 14 yrs.
Member of Chamber of commerce 30 yrs.		•		•	•
Church Deacon 30 yrs			•	•	•	•					Deaconess of Church 30 yrs.
		•	•	•	•	•		•			Publicity Chairman community theater 14 yrs.
		•	•	•	•						Subscription Drive 8 yrs.
	•	•	•	•	•						Secretary of Church choir 13 yrs.
		•	•	•	•	•	•				Volunteer at hospital cafeteria 25 yrs.

JULIE PARSONS' SUCCESS CHART

Age	Successes	Skills used/acquired	Enjoyment/rewards
5-10	Recited poem at school assembly	Courage, poise, following directions, public speaking	Public acclaim, applause, approval
	Learned to swim	Physical fitness, athletic dexterity	Feeling of fitness, prize for diving
	Won spelling contest	Competition, self-motivation	Prize, public acclaim
11-15	Sold most Scout cookies	Salesmanship, competition, teamwork, self-motivation	Prize, personal satisfaction, helped troop
	Babysitting	Dependability, trust, child care	Approval, earning money
16-19	Editor of yearbook	Typing, design, layout, organization, photography, public relations, dependability, leadership	Concrete proof of accomplishment: book, name in print; problem-solving
	Lead in school musical	Teamwork, poise, following directions, dependability	Public acclaim, approval, using talent
	Class treasurer for 3 years	Mathematical ability, leadership, dependability	Problem-solving, public approval, trust, popularity
	Graduation	Intelligence, public relations, leadership	Diploma, feeling of accomplishment
20-25	Job as library assistant	Public relations, mathematical ability	Feeling of independence, earning money
	Church choir	Musical talent, teamwork, dependability	Public approval, using talent
	Marriage	Economics, math, sewing, teamwork, budget management, public relations	Personal acceptance, independence, trust, love
	Mother	Nursing, laundress, instructor, chef, counselor, public relations, arbitrator, flexibility	Trust, approval, love, problem-solving
26-30	Cub Scout leader and Sunday school teacher	Organization, leadership, fund-raising, trust, commitment	Public approval, teamwork, problem-solving
	Treasurer of church fair and fund-raising drive	Mathematical ability, trust, popularity	Teamwork, public approval, leadership
	Treasurer of reading club, member of library board of directors	Mathematical ability, trust, leadership, knowledge of books	Working with books and math again

Career goals

Ultimate goals. Carefully consider your success chart and see what patterns show up. On Julie Parsons' chart, two interests keep reappearing: math/accounting and books/publishing. These patterns caused Julie to list "comptroller of her local newspaper" as her ultimate goal.

Edward Stubbs found the confidence to begin his own catering business after reviewing his success chart. He saw that throughout their 40 years of marriage, he and his wife had gained great satisfaction and given great pleasure to others through cooking, a joint hobby.

Now is the time to let yourself think about your ideal job. Refer to your success chart and ask yourself what you would most like to do with the remainder of your working years. Consider what contribution your work could make to society and make sure that your goal fits your values. A sample goal statement is shown at the top of this page.

Intermediate goals. With your goal statement in front of you, consider what intermediate goals you can set for yourself that will logically lead to your ideal job. If you want to be a teacher, education courses would be one of your intermediate goals. An even shorter range intermediate goal would be finding out about available courses. The point is to break your tasks down into manageable steps so that you can embark enthusiastically on taking the first one.

GOAL STATEMENT	PAUL CARTER
1. Career goal:	Chief computer programmer in medical diagnostics
2. Preparation:	B.S. electrical engineering and computer programming
3. Company:	High-tech industries
4. Social value:	Contributing to medical research

If you find yourself procrastinating, you may have made your intermediate goals too general. Rework them until you have made them so specific that at least one of them can be accomplished immediately. Making a list is an important visual aid, and you have the added pleasure of checking off each step that you complete. Below you will find an intermediate goal scoreboard used by a young man preparing for a job interview.

Paul Carter's scoreboard illustrates one way of setting down intermediate steps. Set up your own scoreboard any way that works for you, as long as it is

Paul Carter's monthly plan

SUN	MON	TUES	WED	THUR	FRI	SAT
	1 SEND FOR HI-TECH ANNUAL REPORT	2 CHECK LIBRARY FOR RECENT ARTICLES ABOUT HI-TECH; LOOK FOR NAMES	3 Call Friends Who might know someone in HI-TECH Field	4	5	6
7	8 See College Placement officer Ask For References	9	10 FIND NAME TO WRITE TO IN ANNUAL REPORT	11 Talk with Professors in Related courses; Ask For References	12 CHECK COLLEGE DIRECTORY FOR ALUMNAE IN HI-TECH JOBS; TELL THEM OF PLANNED VISIT	13 CHECK ALL MATERIAL FOR JOB DESCRIPTIONS
14	15 Begin work on resumé	16	17	18 FINISH RESUMÉ	19 HAVE RESUMÉ PRINTED PROFESSIONALLY	20
21	22 VISIT HI-TECH FIRMS; SPEAK WITH CONTACTS; TAKE NOTES FOR INTERVIEW	23 PICK UP RESUMÉ	24 WRITE FOR INTERVIEW; SEND RESUMÉ AND COVER LETTER OF INTRODUCTION	25 SEND THANK YOU NOTES TO ALL CONTACTS	26 Plan questions For interview	27
28	29	30 Follow up Letter with call for appointment GET APPOINTMENT!!	31

specific. Some useful questions to ask yourself are:

- Keeping in mind your ultimate goal, what skills must you develop? How?
- What are the available jobs in your area and how do your qualifications fit their needs? How do your needs fit their requirements?
- What are the priorities among the steps you must take to qualify for your ideal job?
- What resources are necessary—money, education, equipment, uniforms, etc.?
- What reasonable time limits can you set for accomplishing each intermediate goal?

If the intermediate goal is a course, when can the course be completed? If it is an interview, when will you set that up? Be realistic, write everything down, and then do your best to stick to your timetable.

If unexpected delays occur, rewrite your scoreboard so that it is once more realistic and manageable. If you face long-term career preparation, such as completing a course, serving an apprenticeship, or getting an advanced degree, divide your goals into yearly steps until they can be broken down into monthly or weekly tasks, as Paul Carter has done.

What schooling do you need?

To school or not to school? If you have been out of the job market for a while, you may immediately think of additional schooling as a solution to your dilemma. Often it is the appropriate first step to embarking on a new or different career. Nevertheless, make sure you do not rush to the registrar's office before taking an inventory of your skills. Lack of confidence rather than lack of education may be your problem.

The essential diploma. There is only one diploma that should not be questioned—your high school diploma. If your high school career was interrupted, there is a basic exam you may take to earn your General Equivalency Diploma (GED). This certificate will make you eligible for jobs requiring the completion of high school.

Your local high school guidance office will refer you to the nearest adult learning center where you can find out what steps are necessary to obtain your GED. Often you can study independently at home and pass your exam without having to go back into the classroom. You may take the exam as many times as necessary to earn your GED.

Going back to school?

Pros and cons. If you are undecided about the necessity of additional schooling, consider these arguments for and against. Applying such arguments to your own situation can help you make the right decision.

PROS

- An additional degree may advance your career in a specific way.
- A particular course of study may guarantee you a job.
- A master's degree may guarantee you a higher salary in your field.
- You may need more education to break into the field of your choice.
- All education is useful and may be applied in unexpected ways in the future.

CONS

- A liberal arts degree does not guarantee a job.
- Most people do not end up working in their field of study.
- Approximately 80 percent of the new jobs (see chart on next page) do not require a degree, though they may require vocational training.
- Many companies prefer to do their own training.
- You may price yourself out of the job market with more degrees, especially in the field of education.

Checklist: Getting the most out of additional training

Recall your previous educational experience. Consider each of the following and check one.

1. You prefer:
   ( ) Studying by yourself ( ) Studying with others
2. What suits you best is:
   ( ) Learning at your own speed
   ( ) Learning at the speed of a group
3. You learn best:
   ( ) In a lecture course taking notes
   ( ) In a course where you learn by doing
4. You prefer having material presented:
   ( ) By using words and ideas
   ( ) By sounds, pictures, and objects

Try to tailor any courses you take to fit the choices checked above. You will learn more easily in a situation that suits your educational preferences.

More school = more pay

Earnings: L = $145 – 225, M = $225 – 360, H = $360 –

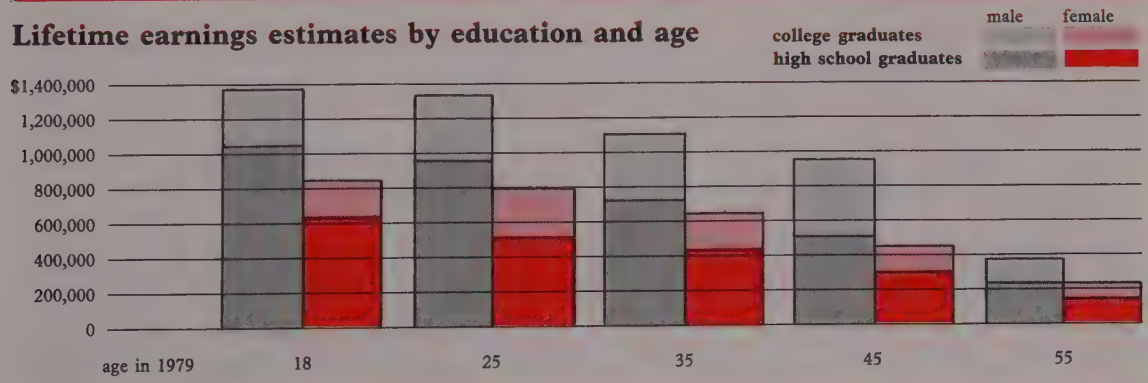
Degree jobs

Administration
Buyers	H
City managers	H
FBI agents	H
Secondary school administrators	H
Clergy
Ministers	M
Priests	M
Rabbis	H
Education
Counselors	M
Engineering and science
Oceanographers	H
Physicists	H
Professional, technical
Chemists	H
Computer systems analysts	H
Dentists	H
Laboratory technicians	H
Lawyers	H
Librarians	M
Registered nurses	M
Social scientists
Psychologists	H
Social workers	L
Teachers
College and university	H
Elementary	M
Technicians
Airplane pilots	H
Radio and TV announcers	L
Writers, artists, entertainers
Painters	M
Publicity writers	H
Reporters	H

Nondegree jobs

Clerical-type workers
Bank tellers	L
Bookkeepers	M
Counter clerks	L
Insurance adjusters	H
Mail carriers	H
Payroll clerks	M
Receptionists	L
Secretaries, medical	M
Teachers' aides	L
Telephone operators	H
Craft-type workers
Bakers	M
Carpenters	M
Electricians	H
Heavy equipment mechanics	H
Painters, maintenance workers	M
Radio/TV repairpersons	M
Tool and die makers	H
Food service
Bartenders	L
Waiters, waitresses	L
Health and personal service workers
Child care workers	L
Hairdressers	M
Operatives
Bottlers and canners	L
Earth drillers	H
Selling
Insurance agents, brokers	H
Real estate agents	H
Sales clerks	M
Transportation
Taxi drivers	M
Truck drivers	M

Lifetime earnings estimates by education and age



Weighing the alternatives. Julie Parsons, the homemaker who filled out one of the success charts shown earlier, wants to reenter the job market now that her children are in high school. As is the case with many families, the Parsons will find an additional salary more than welcome when the time comes to put two children through college.

How should Julie Parsons go about qualifying for a job in the field of her choice? Although she has had very little paid job experience, the skills she discovered from her success chart affirm her enjoyment of and talent for math and her interest in the field of publishing. Matching her skills to the Department of Labor occupational charts, Julie has decided on a career in public accounting and publishing. Her ultimate goal—her ideal job—is to be the comptroller of her town newspaper. Does Julie need to go back to school?

Julie Parsons has many responsibilities to juggle while preparing herself for a career. She cannot abandon her role of homemaker to become a full-time student. She still wants to participate in activities with her children, and knows she must find a way to advance her knowledge and expertise in the field of public accounting. Can she do all of these?

Educational alternatives. Getting a Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science (B.A. or B.S.) degree usually involves a four-year commitment, a luxury many people cannot afford. Fortunately, there are other options that still will allow you to advance your career. Listed on the next page are a series of alternatives to a four-year degree. Evaluate each one in the light of your particular career situation and needs.

Going for the college degree

Deciding on the institution. Colleges and universities will send catalogs on request, but your local library may have copies of the ones you are interested in.

SHOULD JULIE PARSONS GO TO COLLEGE?

ULTIMATE GOAL: Treasurer of town paper

JOB DESCRIPTION: Position requires excellent bookkeeping and accounting skills, ability to deal directly with the public, and the leadership qualities necessary to supervise a business office.

QUALIFICATIONS	JULIE'S EXPERIENCE
Knowledge of newspaper business	Editor of yearbook
Experience	organizational skills
bookkeeping	leadership
budgeting	initiative
accounting	Treasurer—various organizations problem-solving bookkeeping budgeting Skills problem-solving leadership
initiative	History of public relations
administrative	dependability

LACKING: accounting; administrative

JULIE'S CHOICE: Community College

In a community college Julie could take her courses while the children were in school during the day. Vacations would coincide with their school vacations.

In two years she completed a course in business administration in a classroom situation that allowed her to learn and experience leadership roles again in a setting best suited to her.

Make an appointment with your local high school guidance counselor, who has all the information you need—and, probably, some helpful advice. These guidance services are available to any taxpayer, no matter how long ago or where you received your high school diploma. The counselor will help you choose a college and make out the application.

How do you pay for college? When Paul Carter, the graduating high school student interested in a job in computer programming, decided to go to the state university, his family could not afford to support him throughout his college career. Paul was an exceptionally bright student and he earned a scholarship. This helped but did not entirely solve his financial problems. His guidance counselor referred him to Financial Aid Guide for College, a book by Elizabeth W. Suchar (Monarch Press, Simon & Schuster, NY). If your local guidance counselor does not have a copy, try your library. Suchar's book contains excellent information.

How to get credit for what you know (alternative routes to educational credit)

Contact: Women's Bureau
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Avenue
Washington, DC 20210

(Note: This pamphlet is intended for both men and women.)

For veterans:
Read The Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experiences in the Armed Services, published by the American Council on Education, which is available in most libraries and at many Veterans Administration offices.

Alternatives to a four-year degree

Community colleges: Most of these colleges vary their courses to fit the needs of the community where they are located. Usually, courses in both vocational training and management are offered. Specific training courses (hotel and restaurant management, accounting, nursing, hairstyling, dental hygiene, etc.) generally take two years to complete. Associate degrees in applied arts and sciences are often awarded for the completion of a two-year course of study. The academic courses are similar to those given at four-year colleges, and credits are transferable for those who wish to continue their education.

Vocational training schools: Courses are offered full- or part-time to prepare you for a particular occupation. The placement rate for these schools is high, and the costs are reasonable.

Correspondence and evening courses: These courses may take longer to complete than those in which attendance is required, but they make the exploration of new fields available to everyone, no matter where they live. People who cannot attend classes regularly may continue their education or job advancement at their own pace without putting a strain on their financial resources.

Apprenticeship programs: These are offered by many companies or, in some instances, by master craftsmen. Usually the company or craftsman will pay the apprentice and guarantee a job if the program is successfully completed.

Employee training programs: Many companies prefer to train their own personnel (airlines, for example). The training may be considered part of the job in that it requires a full-time commitment and is paid at the same rate as the base salary of the job itself. Often it is regarded as on-the-job training.

Armed services: The U.S. government offers training in marketable skills applicable to civilian life in return for an armed-service career commitment of two to four years.

Temporary services: There are many temporary services throughout the country that offer part-time work, mainly in clerical jobs. Working for one or more of them can be a productive way for a person who has been out of the job market a long time to become familiar with office procedures, earn a salary, and get an idea of what work is available. Getting some experience in a field unfamiliar to you may reveal talents you did not know you had. In addition, working for a company as a temporary employee may lead to a permanent job offer.

Going after the job

Résumés. Résumés are a useful if overrated tool in a job search. Sending out résumés is not an effective way of seeking job interviews. In fact, statistics show that you will receive a response on the average of one out of every 40 to 50 résumés; depending on the competition in the field you want to enter, the response could be as low as one out of every thousand. You could end up very discouraged if you depend on your résumé to launch you. You will, however, need a résumé at some point before being employed.

An important function of your résumé is to serve as a reminder to a prospective employer of your suitability for the job available. A résumé can also serve to notify the company that you have skills or abilities they may wish to call upon in the future. The wisest course is to carry your résumé with you to interviews rather than send it on ahead to be thrown away, or to be filed away, with dozens of other résumés.

Some experts advise writing the résumé after the interview, tailoring it to the job. You would then send the résumé along with a thank-you letter. Some people use a heavy beige or cream-colored paper for their résumé so that it will stand out from all the rest. Those sending out a great many résumés should use a professional copying machine or service.

The short form. Anyone faced with writing a résumé knows the frustration of trying to stretch the relevant information to a full page—or to cut it down to fit just one page. The most important thing to remember is that the résumé must point out a special talent or interest you have that matches the job desired. Although the rule is to make your résumé precise and concise, keeping it to one page if possible, you should never crowd the information so that it is hard to read. Special circumstances may necessitate a two- or even three-page résumé. Just make sure that it is neatly typed, correctly spelled, and attractively arranged on the paper. If your typing is inadequate or nonexistent, professional résumé services are available at a small cost. Since a messy, badly typed résumé will represent you very poorly indeed, this expenditure is well worth the investment.

Job search detective work. Once you have prepared yourself for a career in the field of your choice, you need to become a detective dedicated to finding the best job for you. Unless you are lucky enough to have the right job offered to you early in your job search, finding it in the shortest possible time is—and should be—a full-time occupation in itself.

JEROME DAY
56 Cash Street
Catersville, Kansas 09376
(814)773-5791

JOB OBJECTIVE
Electrician

WORK EXPERIENCE	Tom's Small Engines
1976-Present	Catersville, Kansas Repaired electrical equipment and parts of engines, hand-crafted parts for obsolete machines.
1961-1975	Jansen Tool and Electrical Parts 56 Center Street Evansville, Kansas Apprenticed and worked up to position of foreman of ten men doing industrial wiring.
EDUCATION
1961-1964	Electrician's Apprenticeship Completed all courses including blueprint reading.
1959	General Equivalency Diploma
ARMED SERVICES 1959-1961	U.S. Army. Private to Sergeant. Served in California and Japan. Inventoried electrical parts.
PERSONAL	Excellent health. Free to travel.
REFERENCES	Furnished upon request.

JULIE PARSONS
Halfbend Road
Turnston, Indiana 32557
(702) 560-1422

JOB OBJECTIVE
Accountant, Administrative Assistant

WORK EXPERIENCE	Turnston Standard Journal
1980-Present	45 Main Street Turnston, Indiana Sold classified advertising.
1965-1980	Retired to raise family.
1964-1966	Assistant in Turnston Library.
EDUCATION
1980-1985	Part-time courses in Accounting and Business Administration Turnston Community College Certificate of Completion with distinction.
VOLUNTEER WORK Accounting and Budgeting Public Relations and Communications Publishing	Served as treasurer of community organizations for 15 years (Parent-Teachers Assn., Reading Club, church fund-raising campaign and fairs). Appeared on local radio and TV during fund-raising campaigns, promoting church fair and shows. Editor of high school yearbook; in charge of layout, editing, financing, printing, and bookkeeping.
PERSONAL	Mature, in good health, own and drive a car.
REFERENCES	Furnished upon request.

Your future is worth your concentrated attention to the details that could make the difference between earning your salary in a boring, dead-end job or advancing over the years in a satisfying and rewarding career.

Looking for valuable clues. You have chosen your field and identified geographically where you are likely to be most successful in your job search. The next step is to target the companies or institutions that could actually offer you the job you want. Your local library and magazine stand are logical places to begin your research.

Magazines covering business generally or concentrating on the particular field you hope to enter will give you an idea about the successful companies, the future trends, and even the openings in new areas. A search through the periodical (newspaper and magazine) catalogs in your library can provide valuable information about any company you are interested in working for.

When you have narrowed down your choice of places to apply, your detective work should focus on learning everything you can about those companies. Ask people in the field for information about the company's future, its problems, its new products, its expansion plans, and, of course, any expected layoffs. Sending for the company's newsletter and promotional material will add bits and pieces to the overall picture of your potential employer. No clue you find to a possible job should be overlooked.

Organizing the job search

Networking. Much has been written on the "old boy network"—a seemingly closed club of powerful men making executive decisions among themselves. Though most of us do not qualify for chairperson of the board, we can thank the "old boys" for a good idea. Realize the power of networking, and create your own network. Enlist the help of people you know or meet in your job search. Tell them what your goals are and ask them to help you in any way they can.

You will be surprised at the way useful bits of information turn up if you keep asking friends and acquaintances what they know about your field or company of choice.

Your butcher, your minister, your car mechanic—do not hesitate to let everyone with whom you are on friendly terms know that you are job hunting. Your mechanic may service a manager in the company where you want to work and may have overheard him mention a problem or an opening. You never know.

Another way to create your own network is to go to conventions or civic interest groups frequented by the personnel of a company you have targeted as a prospect. Make yourself known to these people and listen to any advice they have. There is, of course, a fine line between showing enthusiasm for your job search and making a nuisance of yourself. Watch people's faces, listen to their tone of voice, and politely withdraw if you feel a chill.

Checklist for writing your résumé

1. Your name, address, and phone number should be typed at the top of the page.
2. Your job objective comes next. Be as specific as you can. Your research should have informed you of the job that the company has available or the area that you want to pursue for your career.
3. List your work experience and education, along with any special experience (volunteer work, avocations) that enhances your qualifications for the job. There is no need to list jobs or bosses that were a career mistake for you.
4. Add personal information if you wish. Personal information should never be negative (such as "Divorced"). In fact, all the information on your résumé should be positive. Do not lie, but do omit any negative information, such as being fired, or negative preferences, such as "Hate to type."
5. References need only be furnished on request; however, you should have your references readily available should they be called upon. Everyone (friends and past employers alike) appreciates advance notice that a stranger may be calling to ask questions about you. This consideration will keep your source from being embarrassed and caught off-guard, and will probably result in a better recommendation for you.

Suggested reading

Résumés that get jobs
Résumé Service
Jane Reed, Editor
Arco Publishing Co., N.Y.

What Color Is Your Parachute: A Practical Manual for Job and Career Changers
Richard Nelson Bolles
Ten Speed Press

Introduction to the Job Hunt Success Kit
Center for Career Development
Phyllis Martin
11385 Landon Lane
Cincinnati, Ohio 45246

Resources for researching careers

For information about particular fields:
A Guide to Special Book Collections in Libraries
Lee Ash and Denis Lorenz, editors
New York: Bowker

For information about organizations:
Annual reports, house organs, stock reports, public relations offices, newspapers, historical societies

For information about occupations:
Directory of Professional and Trade Organizations (check local societies)

For information about people:
Who's Who in America;
Who's Who in the East;
Who's Who in the West
Professional directories

Let Uncle Sam help you in your search

The federal government has agencies engaged in continuous research on careers. This work is funded by your tax dollars. Let them work for you. Here are a few places to write for assistance:

Director, Office of Plans, Policies, and Design
Employment Service
Employment and Training Administration
Department of Labor
601 D Street NW
Washington, DC 20213

Job seekers and employers will be sent a list of placement related services funded by the government.

Division of Applicant Services
Office of Program Services
Employment Service
Employment and Training Administration
Department of Labor
601 D Street NW
Washington, DC 20213

This job information service is located within local employment centers. The office provides a Job Bank Book that enables the applicant to conduct his own search.

Department of Labor
601 D Street NW
Washington, DC 20213

For any questions regarding the job possibilities in your area or forecasts with respect to employment, an inquiry to this agency will prove useful.
Your letter will be directed to the proper office, which will send you the information you have requested.

Computerized Placement System
Automated Matching System Division
Office of Program Services
Employment Service
Employment and Training Administration
601 D Street NW
Washington, DC 20213

This office provides a daily printout of all jobs listed with the employment service in your area and distributes it to local employment service offices. Automated Matching System uses computers to identify registered jobs for which a particular applicant is qualified.

Where to look for job openings

- Local Chamber of Commerce
- Local Better Business Bureau
- Commerce and Industry Directory (Contacts Influential Market Research and Development Services 321 Bush Street
  San Francisco CA 94014
  Check your library first.)
- Career Guide to Professional Associations
  Garrett Park Press
  Garrett Park, MD 20766
- National Trade and Professional Associations of the United States and Canada and Labor Unions
  Garrett Park Press
  Garrett Park, MD 20766
- How to Reach Anyone Who's Anyone
  by Michel Levine
  Price/Stern/Sloan Publications, Inc.
  410 North La Cienega Blvd.
  Los Angeles, CA 90048
- What Color Is Your Parachute?: A Practical Manual for Job-Hunters & Career-Changers
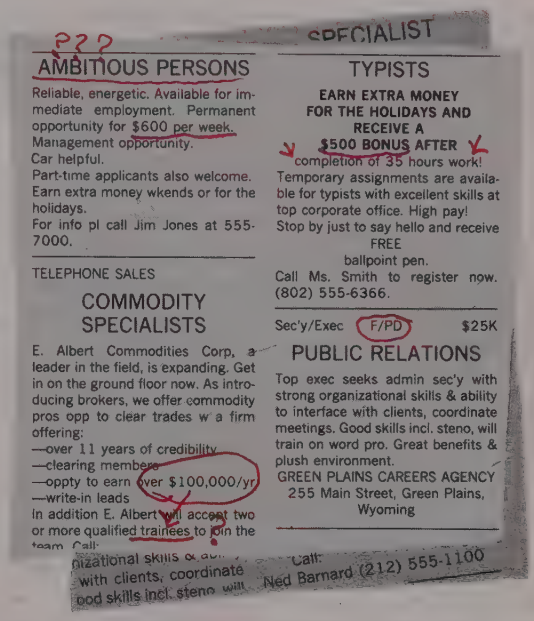
  by Richard Nelson Bolles
  Ten Speed Press
  P.O. Box 7123
  Berkeley, CA 94707
  Published annually, this book is an invaluable source for job-hunters.

Reading want ads

Quite a bit of time may be required to go through want ad columns. You must read enough of each ad to discover whether it interest you, whether you are qualified for the job offered, and—most important—whether you should apply. This is time well spent. With experience, you will be able to read the ads faster because the wording used will become familiar. You will learn, for example, that EOE means equal opportunity employer, a term indicating that the firm offering the job does not discriminate against women or minority groups. FEE PAID or F/PD means that the firm offering the job will pay the employment agency's fee. EXPD F/T means experienced, full-time.

Most important, however, is the caution you develop in deciding whether a job offered in an ad is realistic. Can one really believe a claim that an untrained person can make $35,000 a year at a job? Incidentally, ads that make such claims often do not mention what the job is. Other ads offer work at home for unrealistically high rates of pay. It is wise to be careful.



SPECIALIST

AMBITIOUS PERSONS

Reliable, energetic. Available for immediate employment. Permanent opportunity for $600 per week. Management opportunity. Car helpful. Part-time applicants also welcome. Earn extra money wkends or for the holidays. For info pl call Jim Jones at 555-7000.

TELEPHONE SALES

COMMODITY SPECIALISTS

E. Albert Commodities Corp, a leader in the field, is expanding. Get in on the ground floor now. As introducing brokers, we offer commodity pros opp to clear trades w a firm offering:
—over 11 years of credibility
—clearing members
—oppty to earn over $100,000/yr
—write-in leads
In addition E. Albert will accept two or more qualified trainees to join the team. Call:

TYPISTS

EARN EXTRA MONEY FOR THE HOLIDAYS AND RECEIVE A $500 BONUS AFTER completion of 35 hours work! Temporary assignments are available for typists with excellent skills at top corporate office. High pay! Stop by just to say hello and receive FREE ballpoint pen. Call Ms. Smith to register now. (802) 555-6366.

Sec'y/Exec F/PD $25K

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Top exec seeks admin sec'y with strong organizational skills & ability to interface with clients, coordinate meetings. Good skills incl. steno, will train on word pro. Great benefits & plush environment. GREEN PLAINS CAREERS AGENCY 255 Main Street, Green Plains, Wyoming nizational skills & ab... with clients, coordinate ood skills incl. steno will ... Call: Ned Barnard (212) 555-1100

Know your salary range

Before you go to an interview, you should know the salary range for the job you want. Money is always an intimidating subject, so prepare yourself with as much knowledge as possible. Here are some sources to consult for information.

- Visit your library. You will find a number of books listed in the card catalogs under "salaries" and under the occupations you are interested in.
- Write to the Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Washington, DC 20212. Ask for Area Wage Surveys and the Bureau of Labor Statistics News Releases.
- Consult the professional organization that serves your chosen field. The Encyclopedia of Associations (at your local library) will tell you where to write.
- Call the personnel office of the company you want to interview. Tell them you are doing research on various careers and ask about their salary range for the job or jobs you are interested in. Such a call should, of course, be made well before any interview letter is sent or appointment made.
- Inquire at your college placement office. Here you can find up-to-date material on professional and higher level careers.
- Check the want ads. These newspaper advertisements are good for learning about salaries offered for entry-level jobs.

Know the value of fringe benefits

Find out whether the salary includes such fringe benefits as insurance, health plans, vacation, education, and retirement programs. These benefits can add as much as 25 percent to the value of a salary. A salary of $1000 a month with maximum benefits is really $1250.

The job interview

Writing for an interview. Consult the letter-writing section of this volume for samples of interview letters. What you want to say about yourself in the letter will be more important than the form. You should know specifically to whom you are writing and be clear about what you have to offer in the job you want. You should conclude the letter by informing the employer that you will phone the following week for an appointment.

If you have briefly referred to experience, education, or training that qualify you for a job, you need not include a résumé with your request for an interview. Even if you have no friend or acquaintance to recommend you, it helps to refer to some reputable person of whom the interviewer may have heard: "Professor Johnson of State University Biology Department suggested that I write to you" is a reasonable approach.

Your letter must make the interviewer want to see you. Think of ways you can contribute to the company even though there may not be a job opening at the time. Your letter may even suggest ways to increase sales or solve a problem or meet a challenge that your research has uncovered. If you are inventive, enthusiastic, and organized in your presentation, you may convince the interviewer to create a job for you. This happens more often than you might imagine, but it takes research, confidence, and imagination to prepare yourself with a solid proposal. On the other hand, you have nothing to lose if the company you want to work for has no openings. Making a good impression on interviewers may serve you well at some future time, when jobs you are suited for do fall open.

How to avoid preinterview jitters. The day of the interview, make sure you allow enough time to make your appearance impeccable. Get up an hour earlier or cancel other appointments. Make sure your appearance matches the appropriate points on the checklist and the drawings on the next page. For instance, if you have a heavy beard growth and your interview is scheduled for late afternoon, allow time for a fresh shave. Confronting your five o'clock shadow in the revolving door as you go into a building for an interview can throw you off balance and ruin your composure. These checkpoints are only guidelines, of course. Showing a clean appearance is obvious to most of us. Yet every one of us has forgotten the obvious under stress, and job interviews may certainly qualify as stressful situations. You should check every detail before you leave for your appointment.

Conservative dress is the recommendation of all experts in the employment field. Loud colors and flamboyant styles are not appropriate when interviewing for most jobs. Nevertheless, the ultimate judge of appropriate dress is you. If you are interviewing for a job as a construction worker, you may decide that clean work clothes would be most appropriate. Surveys have shown, however, that even in occupations where a certain type of clothing is necessary on the job, taking the care to dress up instead of down for the interview impresses the employer and may even lead to an offer of a job at a higher level than the one you seek.

It never hurts to present yourself properly dressed. It is the first signal to the interviewer that you are concerned with detail. He will certainly see it as a sign of respect for him and your serious intent about the job.

Finally, write down and memorize the name of the person who will be interviewing you. If possible, find out and write down the names of any company personnel you will be dealing with before or after the interview.

Preinterview checklist

Once your research and detective work are completed, check off these next steps:

1. Make sure you have used all your contacts and resources to inform yourself thoroughly about the company. Have you been able to identify the person who is in a position to hire you?
2. Ask yourself if you have done everything you can to have an interview arranged by someone in your network. All it takes is one sentence—"A good friend of mine asked me to recommend that you see a young journalism graduate"—and there you have an interview, thanks to the intervention of a stranger. But you have to set the process in motion and follow up.
3. Deal with personnel departments when you must. They are useful for entry-level jobs and are sometimes a necessary channel in setting up interviews with the department head you want to see. You may walk into most personnel departments without telephoning in advance. Have with you (in your head or on paper) a list of questions you wish to have answered, and leave with copies of any informational material (annual reports, benefit plan pamphlets, etc.) that may be useful to you.
4. Make use of employment agencies. They can sometimes be the fastest route to a job for which you are qualified. Use them if you feel you are bogging down in your own efforts. Every interview is a learning experience, and your ideal job can turn up through any channel.
5. If none of these approaches is successful, write a letter asking for an interview.

Checklist for night before interview

1. Hair trimmed. Check supplies of shampoo, deodorant, toothpaste, etc., for morning shower.
2. Fingernails filed conservatively and cleaned. For women, polish should be neutral or coordinated to blend with your clothes and makeup.
3. Clothes freshly cleaned and pressed.
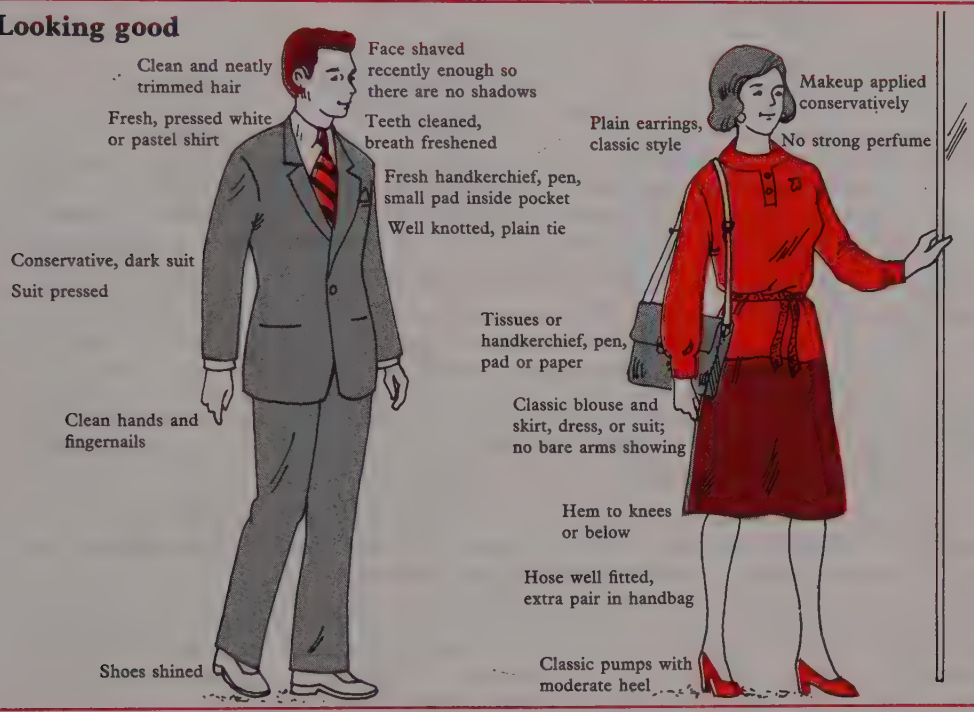
4. Two pairs of hose ready (one pair for your handbag) is a good idea for women. A sudden unsightly run need not be the cause for panic.
5. A clean handkerchief or a packet of tissues. Nervousness often makes the nose run; snuffling your way through an interview is likely to make both you and the interviewer uncomfortable.
6. A small notebook and pen for taking notes, such as names of secretaries, assistants, and receptionists. Make sure the notebook already contains the list of questions you want to ask, and the names of the people you will be seeing.

Looking good



Clean and neatly trimmed hair
Face shaved recently enough so there are no shadows
Fresh, pressed white or pastel shirt
Teeth cleaned, breath freshened
Fresh handkerchief, pen, small pad inside pocket
Well knotted, plain tie Conservative, dark suit Suit pressed
Clean hands and fingernails Shoes shined
Makeup applied conservatively
Plain earrings, classic style
No strong perfume
Tissues or handkerchief, pen, pad or paper
Classic blouse and skirt, dress, or suit; no bare arms showing Hem to knees or below
Hose well fitted, extra pair in handbag
Classic pumps with moderate heel

Checklist for arrival at interview

1. Arrive early enough to visit the rest room and check your appearance.
2. Consult your notebook to refresh your memory on the questions and names you have written down.
3. Focus your attention on what is happening around you. Be alert to people's expressions, the atmosphere of the office, and any clues as to how smoothly things are functioning. If what you notice is positive, say so in the interview: "The atmosphere here is electric. It must be an exciting place to work. . . . I find I do my best work in a calm environment like this one. . . . I like the way everything is neat and organized. . . . Your employees seem so cheerful and friendly. . . . I work best in a busy, fast-paced office like this one."
4. Comment only on what is true and positive. Negative thoughts should be kept to yourself and noted for your private consideration in accepting or rejecting the job. If noisy, chaotic work areas disturb you, do not think you are going to change the atmosphere. A better decision would be to turn down the job if it is offered.

Tips for the interview

1. Always knock on doors before entering.

2. Use the interviewer's name when acknowledging the introduction and when saying goodby. Introduce yourself by name if there is no one to perform the introduction. Be prepared to shake hands but do not initiate the gesture.

3. Speak clearly and slowly.

4. Do not smoke or chew gum.

5. Listen well:
   - Face the person squarely.
   - Establish eye contact.
   - Sit upright with straight but relaxed posture.
   - Keep hands away from face, preferably resting in your lap.
   - Lean forward to show interest.

6. Do not use slang or questionable language.

7. Be prepared for leading questions: Have clear, brief answers rehearsed.
   "Tell me about yourself."
   "What do you think you could do for this job?"
   "Why are you interested in us?"

8. Ask open questions as much as possible:
   "I would like to know more about the qualifications for the job."
   "What do you think Hi Tech's future [production, sales] will hold in the next few years?"
   This sort of question leads to more information and a chance for you to participate by pointing out ways in which your qualifications fit the job description or the company's goals.

9. When appropriate, ask questions or make comments that reveal your knowledge of the company: "Hi Tech chose one of my favorite architects to design their executive offices. . . . I am very impressed with SeaLinks' support of the Olympics (or involvement in the community)."

10. Do not interrupt; always let the interviewer be the guide. Eye contact will enable you to tell if the interviewer expects you to fill in a silence. If he looks down at something on his desk, he may be thinking a point over. Wait until he looks up again before continuing the conversation.

11. Do not get flustered when asked a question you have no answer for. This is an opportunity to show your presence of mind and composure. Simply say, "I don't have the answer right now, but I will get back to you tomorrow." Make an entry on your note pad and follow through.

12. Do not volunteer negative information. If you left a previous job because you hated it, a positive but truthful comment might be that you wanted to move on to something more challenging. If you were fired, do not lie about it if asked, but do not volunteer the information. "My previous job was terminated," is just as truthful and less negative-sounding than "I was fired."

13. Describe yourself by your skills ("I have good secretarial skills") instead of letting your skills describe you ("I am a secretary"). The message thus conveyed is that you are not limited to a certain job category but can apply your skills to different jobs.

14. Be alert to signs that the interview is over. If the interviewer does not seem to know how to conclude, you might say, "I know your time is valuable. Thank you for seeing me. Is there anything more you would like to know about me?"

15. Say goodby and thank you (when appropriate) to assistants, secretaries, and receptionists. Use their names whenever possible.

16. Always write a thank-you note. Include any new information you think relevant, or any responses to unanswered questions. Attach your résumé (tailored to fit the job and preferably on beige or cream-colored paper).

A job search may begin (left) at a state employment office. A warm handshake (right) may signal successful conclusion of a search and the start of a promising career.

Interviewers are people too. Most people who conduct interviews do not think they are very good at it. It is unlikely to be their main occupation. In fact, they may dread the interviewing process more than you do.

Interviewers fear they will fail to screen out applicants who are:

1. Chronic abusers of sick time.
2. Too passive to take any initiative or too headstrong to take instruction.
3. Abrasive or disruptive around coworkers.
4. Dishonest, incompetent, or irresponsible.

Any of these defects showing up in an employee would reflect badly on the interviewer's judgment and represent an expensive mistake for the company. In other words, hiring you could end up costing the interviewer his or her job.

It is up to you to address these silent questions and real fears by conveying the message that you will not turn out to be a problem. Here are some possible ways to do this:

Character: The interviewer is looking for signs that you are honest, trustworthy, and responsible. A mention of charitable activities, volunteer work, personal recommendations, or awards you have received may be appropriate.

Competence: How to handle this subject depends on your previous experience and the type of work you are seeking. The hardest situation is when you want to convey your ability to perform effectively in a job where you have no experience. Your enthusiasm and confidence will have to convince the interviewer. "I'm a quick learner and know I have abilities in this area from [mention avocational experience]. . . . I particularly enjoy mastering new skills. . . . I have always taken pride in my work. . . . I have always had a knack for detail work. . . . I'm good at working with people."

Health: "I never used up my sick time in my previous job," or simply, "I keep myself fit by regular exercise." Or, "My feeling is that if I'm home sick, I'm not doing the job I'm being paid to do."

Your interview rights

Federal law prohibits a hiring decision based on race, color, national origin, religion, sex, pregnancy, marital status, parenthood, age, height, weight, or criminal record.

There are rare exceptions in which an employer is entitled to demand a certain race or sex as a bona fide occupational qualification, as in a job for an actress.

Finally, the law prohibits asking personal questions or questions irrelevant to the position for which you are applying.

How to handle illegal questions

1. Answer politely with a question: "Is this relevant to the requirements of the job?"
2. Answer the question and ignore the fact that it is illegal if the job is important enough to you, or if you think the question is actually innocent of discriminatory intent.
3. Contact the nearest Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Office and file a complaint if you believe you have been discriminated against.

Getting the job

The job offer. Finally your search comes to a successful conclusion. You are offered a job, or perhaps several jobs. At this point, take time to consider before accepting a job.

Show your appreciation for the job offer and ask when your decision is expected. If the employer says immediately, then you must give an answer unless you can use your negotiating skills to convince him or her that you need some time to reflect. You certainly can indicate that you are very interested while postponing your decision for a few days to allow consideration.

Evaluating the job offer. Often a series of interviews is necessary before a job is offered. This gives your prospective employers the opportunity to find out more about you and to observe you at different times; it also gives you the same opportunity. Take the time to consider these questions:

Challenge: Will the work keep you motivated and enthusiastic?

Personalities: Do you like what you have seen of your coworkers? Do you think you can work well with them?

Environment: Is the work space acceptable to you; for example, if you are allergic to smoke, will you be surrounded by chain smokers? Have you observed any safety violation?

Job security: Have you investigated the future of this company? What is the long-range economic outlook for the industry?

Reputation: Do the values of this company come up to your standards? Will you be asked to do anything that would compromise your integrity? (One job applicant thought she had found a job selling by phone until the employer informed her she must lie and say that her husband is a paraplegic.) Save yourself embarrassment by finding these things out ahead of time.

Never sell yourself short. Your research will have given you an idea of the salary range for the job offered. Where you fall in that range will depend on your negotiating ability. There can be as much as a $2000 to $3000 difference in your salary. Your employer wants to save the company that dollar difference as much as you want to earn it.

One negotiating expert has suggested the following tactic for securing the highest salary. Suppose the salary range is $12,000 to $15,000. When the employer asks you what salary you are thinking about, say that you are thinking about $16,000 as fairly representing your abilities, but that you cannot consider an offer under $13,500. Your lowest salary consideration falls

What is your bottom line?

To arrive at a salary figure you can live with, list all your necessary monthly expenses:

rent	_____
food	_____
gas/electricity	_____
transportation	_____
clothes	_____
miscellaneous	_____
subtotal	_____
__% of city, state, and federal taxes*	_____
add another 15% for emergencies and inflation	_____
monthly salary	_____
multiply subtotal by 12 for yearly salary	_____
divide by 52 for weekly	_____

This is your bottom line—weekly, monthly, and yearly. You cannot accept a job paying less without changing your lifestyle.

*Find the approximate percentage of taxes on the income you have arrived at by calling your local tax office.

Can you afford this job?

1. Are there hidden expenses, such as transportation, day care/babysitting, or nursing for elderly members of your family? Are you required to buy equipment or uniforms?
2. What is the travel time to and from the work place? Is employee parking provided?
3. How much overtime is expected? Is it reimbursed? At what rate? If you are required to work late hours, will you be safe returning home?
4. Do you need flexible hours occasionally if children or elderly relations living at home become sick? Will your employer agree to them?
5. Is it possible to do some of your work at home?
6. Are the fringe benefits (medical, insurance, retirement, vacation, sick days) acceptable to you? If not provided, how much additional salary will you need in order to assume the cost of these benefits?

within their range but is well above the bottom. And if you have impressed them with your abilities enough to make them stretch their salary offer above their range limit, you are on your way to a resounding success.

This is also the time to clarify the company's policy on raises, fringe benefits, and vacations. Often these items are negotiable. It is up to you to put the highest value on yourself. If you know what is possible, your employer can only respect you for wanting to secure the best offer possible. He may even envision your using your negotiating skill on behalf of the company.

Once terms are agreed upon, you should get them in writing. A good way to protect yourself is to write a letter to your boss immediately after these face-to-face negotiations, formally accepting the job. Include a run-down of your verbal agreements and ask him to inform you if you have misunderstood any point. Keep a copy of the letter and of any response to it in case a misunderstanding develops in the future.

Job descriptions

Unless your duties are self-evident or absolutely cut and dried, you should ask for a written copy of your job description when you accept the position. It will save both you and your boss a lot of time in the long run, and it serves as a protection for both of you.

Remember, your job description is a guideline, not a law written in stone. When you see things that need to be done that do not come under your job description, you have a choice. If you choose to take on additional work, your job description will verify your initiative. If you refuse (because of overwork or distaste for the extra work), the job description is your proof that these tasks were not to be expected of you.

Moving up the ladder

Work rules. Every organization has work rules. It is a great mistake to assume that they do not apply to you. Find out from the start what the basic rules are and show your cooperation. Remember, there is usually a good reason for every rule. Employers expect that their employees will live up to work rules.

Common rules of employment

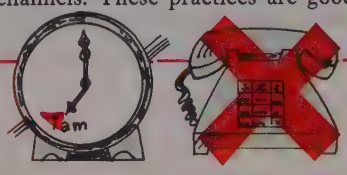
Attendance: You are expected to work a certain number of days or hours for your salary. Most businesses allow you sick leave; some give you days for personal leave, such as funerals; nearly all grant vacation time. Find out exactly what is allowed and stick to the rules.

Punctuality: You will be told what time you are expected to be at work each day. Plan accordingly, taking traffic and weather into account. There is seldom a good excuse for being late. Coffee breaks and lunches have set time frames: observe them.

Dress: If you have any questions about what the dress codes are for your job, do not hesitate to ask. Some jobs require dress rules to meet safety standards, such as hard hats, safety glasses, long-sleeved shirts, etc. Do not wear strong perfume or after-shave lotion. Your chewing gum should be left at home.

Safety: Many companies have weekly safety meetings. For instance, public service companies have standards dealing with the parking of their trucks, wearing apparel, the handling of equipment in private homes, the backing out of driveways, etc. Safety rules will be prominently posted. It is your responsibility to observe them for the protection of everyone.

Protocol: Leave your personal business at home. Make personal phone calls only in emergencies. Give the respect due a superior. Bypassing the next in line or going over someone's head could cost you your job. Take the time to find out who is in charge and take the care to go through proper channels. These practices are good job insurance.



Communicating on the job. As a new employee, you will be busy mastering your job. Establishing good relations with your coworkers can provide you with much-needed advice and support.

Avoid the pitfalls of participating in office gossip and taking sides in disputes. Your early communications should be especially friendly and courteous. Your curiosity should be focused on ways to perform your job as efficiently and thoroughly as possible.

Be helpful to your fellow workers but not at the expense of your own job performance. If you have any complaints, direct them to the proper person to solve the problem. Be observant of what is going on around you, but avoid jumping to conclusions. If you are patient and stay uninvolved in any potentially explosive situation, your options will eventually become clear to you. Your long-range assessment of the situation will probably be quite different from your immediate reactions during the first few weeks on the job.

Making suggestions

Suggestion box. As a relatively new employee, you may bring a fresh approach to solving company problems. Many companies have a suggestion box. Unless you have been hired specifically as a troubleshooter, the suggestion box is the best place to direct your ideas. Such initiative often pays off in the form of a bonus or even a promotion.

Direct suggestions. You may soon develop a close enough relationship with your superior to make a written memo to him an appropriate way to make a suggestion. If you can relate the inspiration of the suggestion to your superior ("something you mentioned made me think of the possibility of . . ." or "in keeping with your work philosophy, I would like to suggest . . ."), you have expressed support for your superior and created a positive atmosphere for your suggestion.

Suggesting changes can be risky without the support and enthusiasm of the decision-makers. Sharing the credit by allowing them to feel that they were in part the source of the idea allows them to join you in carrying out a constructive suggestion. Learning to communicate diplomatically is a major key to success.

How to be supportive to your employer

1. Have a positive attitude: Take note of your superior's contributions, acknowledge the good ones, and keep quiet about the bad ones.
2. Know your boss: Learn his or her working methods and adjust your own to harmonize with them. Be clear on your boss's priorities.
3. Be informed: Do your homework by keeping up to date in your field. Read carefully all memos and annual reports.
4. Become a team worker: Cooperate with coworkers; contribute whatever you can to a pleasant working environment.
5. Be honest: The best way to be supportive to your boss is to be honest, responsible, and trustworthy.

The art of listening. One of the more satisfying rewards of teaching is the profound silence of someone listening. If you can give this attention to your boss, he will not fail to notice.

Most new employees want to impress everyone with how much they know, their speed in catching on, and their enthusiasm. They are much more concerned with feedback ("How am I doing?") than with giving appreciation to their boss or mentor.

Remember, it may be lonely at the top. Your boss needs appreciation for his contributions as much as you do. In fact, directing your attention to listening and acknowledging him can open blocked channels of communication for everyone.

Yearly job assessments. Many companies now make it a practice to require their employees to turn in statements of their yearly goals and assessments of their past job performances. This exercise can be very helpful. Even though your company may not require it, you

Tips for getting along on the job

1. Make your job performance your top priority.
2. Become a team worker.
3. Be willing to accept more responsibility.
4. Be loyal to your boss or keep quiet if you are not.
5. Treat everyone with courtesy.
6. Avoid office gossip.
7. Avoid making personal phone calls.

Checklist for making suggestions

1. Examine your suggestion carefully before you submit it.
2. Make sure you do not imply criticism of a superior or jeopardize anyone's job.
3. Phrase you suggestion positively.
4. Check it from all angles for clarity and detail.
5. Leave no chance for misinterpretation.

could celebrate your yearly anniversary by reflecting on your progress. Experience can change your direction. Yearly assessments will clarify your focus on future progress and serve as a useful guide for making changes if you are dissatisfied. And reviewing your progress can be an enormous help when you are asking for a raise.

Shifts in responsibility

Asking for a lighter load. Sometimes your success on the job can create a situation in which it is wise to request a decrease in responsibility. For example, maybe your workload has increased to the point where you cannot possibly keep up with your work or perform it to your (or anyone else's) satisfaction. Or perhaps a classroom teacher has been promoted to assistant principal, a logical next step up the ladder of success. But that promotion may have robbed her of her greatest pleasure, teaching her students, and may have put her in an administrative position where she has no particular skills.

Awareness of your strengths, preferences, and limitations when a well-intentioned promotion is offered is important. If you are competent and enthusiastic in a job, think twice before accepting a promotion that does not feel right to you. More money and prestige are seldom worth the giving up of duties you love for those you dislike or cannot perform well.

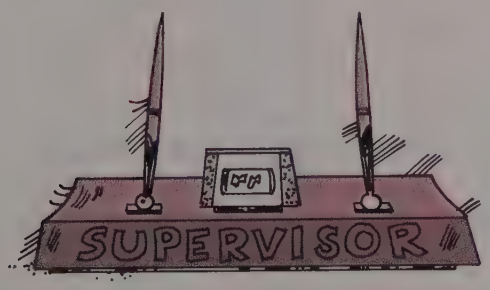
If union membership is mandatory

1. Become familiar with union rules on payment of dues, work, and behavior.
2. Use your union's services responsibly. It exists to improve your working conditions and salary, and to protect you.
3. Do not discuss union business with nonunion employees or with members of other unions.
4. Work for changes if you are dissatisfied with your union leadership. Complaining without constructive suggestions is counterproductive. On the other hand, constructive suggestions may be welcomed and result in improved organizational procedures.
5. Look for a job in another field if you cannot support your union and are unwilling to change it.

Increasing responsibilities. As you become more experienced in your job, responsibilities may be assigned to you that are not in your job description. If you are ambitious and like the challenge, you may

Asking for a promotion

1. Do you have the necessary qualifications, including experience, to do your present job well?
2. Have you been on your present job long enough to warrant a promotion?
3. Where do you stand in line for a promotion?
4. Do you have a clear understanding of the new position and all it involves?
5. Are you willing to make the necessary commitment to the new job?
6. Does your employer know what your expectations are?
7. Are you on good terms with fellow workers?



Steps in asking for a raise

1. Check company policy: Some companies have automatic raises that go into effect at scheduled intervals; some use a merit system. Others will grant increases for merit in addition to regularly scheduled increases.
2. Use good judgment: Check salaries for jobs in companies similar to yours. Make sure your own company is in a financial position to grant an increase at this time.
3. Review your record: Read over your yearly assessments if you have made them. Have firmly in mind your contributions as an employee—from good attendance and/or productivity to increasing the efficiency of your department.
4. Be assertive: Tie your request for a raise to the specific factors most appropriate in your case: your time on the job, comparable salaries in the field, your career goals, your contributions to the company, etc. Asking for a raise is difficult for all of us; taking the first three steps will make this one easier for you—and make you more likely to succeed.

welcome the extra work. After proving yourself sufficiently, you should take the opportunity to review your job description with your superior.

It is a good idea to bring two copies of your old job description with you, plus a new description of your present job as you see it. If you have been assigned more work than you can handle efficiently, make constructive suggestions for dealing with the problem. If you think additional training is necessary, present your request for it along with a specific plan. If you need to hire an assistant, back up your request with facts about productivity and costs.

This is a good time to ask for a raise. It is certainly reasonable to ask for confirmation of your new job description and to inquire what increase in salary accompanies the increase in your responsibilities.

Changing careers

Case history. Paul Carter's mother, Carol, has taught English at the local high school for 15 years. Although she enjoys her work, she has always dreamed of becoming a travel agent: she loves travel, and has a real aptitude for learning foreign languages. For the past four years, while Paul has been at college, Carol has been researching her dream job. She has worked part-time in a friend's travel agency every summer, and is now ready to resign from teaching and take a full-time job with the agency.

One of the reasons Carol Carter can afford to give up the superior fringe benefits and security of teaching is that her husband, Jeffrey, has been promoted from his job as sports equipment buyer for a local department store.

It was Jeffrey Carter who came up with the idea of expanding the sports department into a separate facility to include a health club and restaurant. He presented his expansion plan so convincingly that he was made a vice president of the store and put in charge of the entire new operation.

When to make a change. Unlike Carol Carter, who considered her career change for a number of years before she came to a decision, some people wake up one morning and experience a moment

Carol Carter consulted this list from the Department of Labor Occupational Outlook Quarterly and was pleased to find her background in English related to skills needed in her new career choice.

Occupations related to English

High school graduate
- Actor or actress
- Claims adjuster
- Court clerk
- Court reporter
- Flight attendant
- Insurance agent
- Printer
- Proofreader
- Receptionist
- Reservation/ticket passenger agent
- Salesperson
- Secretary
- Service representative
- Telephone operator
- Travel guide or agent
- Typesetter
- Typist

Two years of college
- Computer operator
- Film editor
- Legal secretary
- Library technician and assistant
- Licensed practical nurse
- Maitre d'hotel
- Medical secretary
- Paralegal
- Police officer

College graduate +
- Administrator
- Advertising executive
- Advertising writer
- Announcer–radio, TV
- Archivist
- Buyer
- Criminologist
- Drama coach
- Editor
- Editorial assistant
- Education and public affairs director
- Educator
- Employment counselor
- Executive
- Job analyst
- Journalist
- Librarian
- Market research analyst
- Missionary/minister/rabbi/priest
- Personnel and labor relations worker
- Physician
- Political scientist
- Producer–TV, films, plays
- Program director–radio/TV
- Psychologist
- Public relations worker
- Publisher
- Registrar–college and university
- School counselor
- Script writer–radio, TV, movies
- Social worker
- Speech pathologist/clinician
- Teacher
- Translator
- Tutor
- Writer

of truth: their job is no longer challenging or satisfying, and no money or benefits are worth so much dissatisfaction.

If this happens to you, do not quit your present job or even start discreetly exploring other possibilities immediately. First, make yourself a plan.

Jeffrey Carter was bored with his job when he got an inspiration from observing the health-club boom spreading across the country. Having always been a fitness addict, Jeffrey now dreamed of opening a health club. He had to restrain himself from putting in his resignation so that he could work full-time on financing his dream.

Instead, he used his spare time to work out a plan, researching it thoroughly and devising a presentation that was practical and specific. Jeffrey was prepared to resign and launch the venture on his own if his proposal met with a negative response. As it was, he got his health club, a big raise and promotion.

Every employee experiences some job dissatisfaction some of the time. If yours is serious and pervasive, however, a change may be indicated. Before you do anything, look at your situation from every possible angle. Sometimes a well-thought-out plan or even a single good idea can make it possible for you to change jobs within your organization.

Changing jobs: what to consider

1. Can you make a job change within your present company?
2. Would you increase your chances of getting a job you like better by staying where you are?
3. Have you done everything you can to increase the rewards in your present job?
4. Are you using the abilities you enjoy most? Are you learning skills important to your career advancement?
5. Are you fulfilling a need for yourself or the community in your present job?
6. Are you willing to risk the loss of security and/or your present benefits if you make a change?
7. Is your family supportive of your desire to change?
8. Can you financially afford to make a change?
9. Would a change involve a geographic move?
10. Is it possible to work part-time in another job to see how well it suits you before leaving your present job?

If you decide to quit

If you are certain that there will be no openings for advancement at your present job, give the boss the proper notice when you decide to leave. He or she should honor your good record with a letter of recommendation. The usual required notice is two weeks, but check your work rules.

Where the jobs are

American workers have always shown an enthusiasm for going after the job if the job will not come to them. If your occupation is threatened with extinction, or if jobs are scarce in your area, you may choose to make a geographic as well as a career move. Consult these charts before you decide.

10 best states

	Number employed in thousands
	1973	1983	Percent change
Alaska	110	213	+94
Nevada	245	405	+65
Wyoming	126	203	+61
Texas	4,142	6,174	+49
Arizona	715	1,064	+49
Colorado	936	1,322	+41
Florida	2,779	3,893	+40
N. Mexico	346	478	+38
Oklahoma	852	1,170	+37
Washington	1,152	1,579	+37

10 worst states

	Number employed in thousands
	1973	1983	Percent change
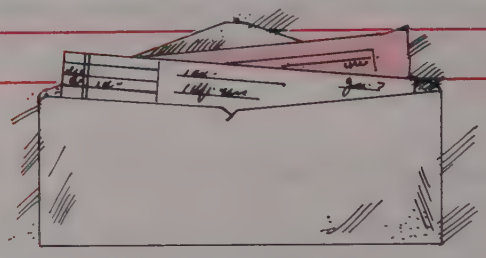
Michigan	3,284	3,186	−3
Indiana	2,028	2,007	−1
Ohio	4,113	4,084	−1
Pennsylvania	4,507	4,519	0
Illinois	4,470	4,501	+1
New York	7,132	7,285	+2
W. Virginia	562	581	+3
Iowa	961	1,018	+6
Rhode Island	366	393	+7
Missouri	1,771	1,917	+8

If you lose your job. If you have been fired, ask questions if you do not know why. The truth may be difficult to face; but only if you know the truth, can you make constructive use of your experience. If you were fired for unreliability, you can try to avoid making the same mistakes next time. If you were dismissed because your company or field is in trouble, you can try to avoid putting yourself in a similar situation next time. Ask for a letter of recommendation.

There is no need to panic, or to rush into a new job you do not want. If you were fired or laid off, you automatically qualify for unemployment insurance to assist you in your search for another job (your local unemployment office will give you all the information you need).

Your time between jobs offers an opportunity to consider carefully where you were, what you have learned, where you are now, and where you want to go.

Warning signs!



1. The company is suffering unusual losses.
2. People are getting laid off.
3. You are not invited to the usual meetings.
4. You feel uninformed.
5. People seem to be avoiding you.
6. You were passed over for a promotion.
7. Your boss shows continued dissatisfaction and impatience with your performance.
8. Your boss leaves.
9. The new boss starts bringing in his own people.
10. Little by little, your responsibilities are being assigned to other people.

You are fired. Why?

1. Were you qualified for the job? Did you honestly represent your skills before you were hired?
2. Were you truly suited for the job?
3. Should you have taken additional courses to keep you up to date?
4. Did you make costly mistakes?
5. Did you get along with your fellow workers?
6. Did you participate in office gossip and politics?
7. Were you given warnings before being fired? Did you make constructive use of criticism from superiors?
8. Did you often find yourself making excuses for work not finished, getting to work late, leaving early, taking excessive sick leave?
9. Have you been fired before? If so, why?
10. Do you see a pattern forming? For example, do you always become bored in your jobs?

Taking an unflinching look at what went wrong can be invaluable for finding the right job in the future and for recognizing how you can perform that job more effectively.

Applying for unemployment insurance

Go immediately to your nearest office of unemployment with two forms of identification (driver's license, birth certificate, passport, etc.) and your Social Security number (your Social Security card does not qualify as identification). Pride is not a factor: get in line and sign up.

How to survive until the first unemployment check comes

1. Call or visit your local office of Human Services for information about:
   a. food stamps b. rent allowances c. fuel assistance
2. An employee laid off or fired will normally receive at least two weeks' severance pay.
3. Look in the first few pages of your telephone book for a special section commonly called Community Service Numbers. There you will find the local telephone number for job services, unemployment, food stamps, and other social services that can help you.

Getting back into the work force

Opportunities for retirees. Many companies have a mandatory retirement age, as do certain occupations (pilots must retire at age 60, for example). Some retirees are surprised to find that they do not adjust well to so much leisure time and are not happy unless they are in a work-related environment. For others, continuing to work for pay is not a matter of choice but of simple economics: Social Security and pension checks are often inadequate to provide a comfortable or even a reasonable standard of living.

There are many opportunities for older people to get back into the work force or work-related activities. For those who are not concerned with more income, programs such as ACTION, Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), VISTA, Peace Corps, Foster Grandparents, and Senior Companion urgently need older Americans who are willing to share their concern and expertise. See pages 296-297 for more information.

If you discover that your retirement income will be inadequate before you have actually retired, you may be able to arrange with your employer for part-time work as a consultant or during vacation or peak periods. You may even find that full- or part-time work in an entirely different capacity from your present job can be arranged. The fact that you still work for the company gives you more leverage than you would have as a former employee in the months after retirement.

Retirement often allows people the security to take the risk of trying to make money out of a new activity or one formerly considered recreational. America is the home of success stories like those of Ray Kroc and Colonel Saunders, who came out of retirement to start McDonald's and Kentucky Fried Chicken. It is also the home of thousands of cottage industries started all over the country by retirees who turned their hobbies into profit-making ventures.

If you cannot find any work in your field, the JTPS (Job Training Partnership Act) is a state-funded program that assists low-income people over 55 who need job training and placement.

Other areas to investigate are local churches, YMCA and YWCA occupational services, professional or trade associations, labor union employment services, and Forty-Plus Clubs. Ample help and counseling are available if you know where to look.

Another avenue to explore is the office of your state representative or senator. Their local offices have workers who collect information in all problem areas, especially unemployment. Upon request they will provide this information and assist you in any other way they can.

Odd jobs can solve problems

For retirees, there are many ways to make money without actually working at a regular job. Clara Peller became famous for her "Where's the Beef?" commercial. Here are some ideas to start you thinking:

1. Retired teachers or anyone with expertise in a particular area (in a foreign language, for example) can tutor at home. An ad in your local paper, a call or visit to a school or college in your area, even a notice on a supermarket or shopping-mall bulletin board can help attract this kind of business.
2. In most communities, those qualified to supply music, art, or drama coaching can attract willing students.
3. Anyone who can sew or tailor is likely to find a ready supply of customers.
4. Those who have no specific area of expertise can make money running errands, chauffering, housesitting, babysitting, or assisting the elderly and infirm.
5. Gardening can be profitable to those who sell their own vegetables, flowers, or fruits. Tending other people's gardens while they are traveling can be enjoyable and profitable. Landscaping can supplement your income even more.
6. There is a market in most communities for handcrafted items, from dolls and pillows to furniture. Homemade baked goods are easy to sell, and can be the start of a home catering business.
7. For more ideas write for an eight-page fact sheet compiled by the government telling where to look for both paid and unpaid jobs:

   Consumer Information Center
   Pueblo, Colorado 81009

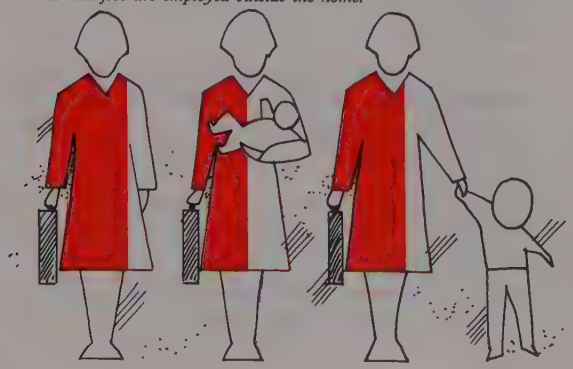
Women who work. Approximately 131.4 million people will make up the 1995 labor force—3.8 million more than originally projected. Nearly two-thirds of that growth will be among women. For example, according to the Department of Labor, the employment of preschool teachers (nearly all of them women) is expected to increase 40 percent from now to 1995.

The majority of people reentering the work force are also women. In 1960, slightly more than 23 million women held paying jobs. Today, the number is more than twice that, and rising every year. Women comprise over 53 percent of the work force in America today. Many of these women are supplementing the family income or working their way up in a chosen career. The majority of them are in the work force because of economic necessity. Over 50 percent of women reentering the work force are single parents.

Far-reaching social changes have contributed to the surge of women workers. More and more women choose to defer marriage and/or motherhood. Equal pay and antidiscrimination laws, along with new tax allowances for child-care expenses, have opened up the job choices available to women. It is still true that many more women are employed in service rather than goods-producing industries; but it is also true that the service industries are expanding while manufacturing is on the decrease. Service industries (public relations, transportation, communications, finance, insurance, real estate, etc.) are projected to account for nearly 75 percent of all new jobs between now and 1995.

Over half of women with children under six are now in the work force. Lack of adequate child care remains the most significant problem for working mothers, although the picture is considerably brighter than it was a few years ago. Federally funded day-care centers, where tuition is scaled to income, are still on the increase. Many corporations, and some local schools, are now providing day-care centers.

About three out of four employed adult American women work full time. Forty-five percent of American mothers with infants are employed outside the home. Sixty percent of American mothers with children between ages three and five are employed outside the home.



Alternative work patterns

For information on part-time work, flexible work schedules, and shared jobs, write to:

New Ways to Work Newsletter
New Ways to Work
149 Ninth Street
San Francisco, CA 944103

Alternative Work Patterns: Changing Approaches to Work Scheduling, by David Robinson Work in America Institute, Inc.
700 White Plains Road
Scarsdale, NY 10583

First National Directory on Part-Time and Flexitime Programs
National Council for Alternative Work Programs 1925 K Street NW, Suite 308A
Washington, DC 20036

Many companies now offer flexible hours in certain jobs. This trend is a great boon to working mothers, who can arrange their assigned number of hours per week to accommodate their children's schedules. For example, a parent need not miss a child's graduation or school play: the hours can be made up before or after the normal working day, or on the weekend.

Job-sharing is another trend in meeting the special needs of working women. Two people can share the same job, working out their hours and finances between them along whatever lines seem fair to both parties. So long as they get the job done satisfactorily, it does not matter to the employer which worker does what. This arrangement can allow each employee to hold a more challenging or better paying job than part-time work could offer either of them.

Help is as near as your mailbox

The U.S. government spends millions of dollars each year printing information invaluable to women in—or entering—the work force. Write to:

Information Office
Women's Bureau
Department of Labor
200 Constitution Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20210

Ask for a list of their publications. There is likely to be one pertaining to any problem you may have or supplying any information you seek.

Starting your own business

Starting your own successful business can be best described as turning your passion into your profession. The secret ingredient in the formula for a successful small business is likely to be an obsessed owner—one willing to put in the time needed to get the job done (often well over eight hours a day) and full of unflagging enthusiasm.

It is likely that running your own business will be harder than working at a regular job. Studies have demonstrated that most entrepreneurs are not motivated primarily by the desire to make money. The satisfactions lie more in the areas of independence, power over the future, and the pleasure of doing a good job.

Whether a business succeeds or fails most often depends on a simple thing called "cash flow." If there is not enough cash coming in or reserved to pay the expenses of running the business, the business will soon fail. It does not matter how much money is owed to you (debtors may also be suffering a cash flow problem); what counts is cash in hand.

Smart entrepreneurs reserve every bit of cash they can for unexpected expenses or dry periods. Giving in to the temptation to expand too quickly or display the fruits of sudden profits can turn an apparent success into a sudden failure.

Here are some questions to ask yourself before you embark on any business venture of your own. Answering them thoughtfully will help you decide whether starting your own business is right for you.

Starting your own business

1. Do you have a clear idea of the business you would like to start in terms of the product or service?
2. Do you have (or can you acquire) the necessary knowhow to run that type of business?
3. Have you gained experience in that field or in a related field?
4. Do you have any necessary equipment, or the money to acquire it?
5. Do you have the kind of contacts you will need to launch your business—bankers, accountants, potential customers, promoters, etc.?
6. Do you have the time and energy necessary to commit to a new business? (Remember, this may mean 18-hour work days and seven-day work weeks.)
7. Does your family support your endeavor?
8. Do you have the temperament for taking risks?
9. Are you practical enough to implement your ideas?
10. Are you capable of picking the right people to help you?
11. Do you have a good supply of self-confidence?
12. Are you willing to admit your mistakes and learn from them?
13. Can you tolerate the uncertainty that characterizes any new business?
14. Do you have a plan to provide for you and your family if the business fails?
15. Do you have plans to expand where necessary if the business succeeds?

Advantages and disadvantages of starting your own business

ADVANTAGES

- You are totally responsible for any success.
- You can work at your own speed.
- Your schedule will be flexible.
- You will reap the profits of your hard work and have many tax advantages.
- Your business may provide security and even jobs for your family.
- You will not face forced retirement.

DISADVANTAGES

- You are totally responsible for any failure.
- You may work during all your waking hours.
- You will have no paid vacation; you may have no vacation at all.
- You will have no weekly paycheck or fringe benefits.
- You may go deeply into debt; you may have almost no time to spend with your family.
- If the business fails, your savings and property can be eaten up by debts, leaving nothing for your retirement.

The birth of a small business.

Edward and Alice Stubbs, whose success chart appears on page 25, want to start a catering business now that Edward is retired. They have had many years of volunteer catering experience at their church and community theater. More important, they both love to cook and have ample kitchen facilities in a large house with plenty of storage space.

If you want to start your own business, make an analysis similar to the Stubbs's. Think of every contingency for success and failure. Write everything down. Consult anyone who might have valuable advice or experience, including people operating a similar business far enough out of your area to be noncompetitive. Visit or write to the Small Business Administration, whose retired business people are available for free consultation. Inform yourself about your proposed business from all sources mentioned in this section. It is particularly important to get help in arriving at the right profit margin for your product or services (many businesses fail because they are priced too low). If you are thinking about opening a retail shop, for example, you will probably find that doubling the cost to you of items for sale will not be adequate. Finally, make sure you have enough cash to carry you until the business can carry itself.

Stubbs's catering service: An analysis

Market: Their initial market already existed, since their reputation as splendid cooks was well established in the community.

Pricing: After doing research at the library and drawing from their own knowledge about the actual cost of preparing dishes, they marked up the price of their ingredients three times in order to ensure a profit. Dishes or meals especially time-consuming to prepare were marked up five times.

Competition: The only catering service in their community was a firm that catered for guest lists of 50 or more. The Stubbses were interested in providing a small, personal service.

Goods and overhead: Because they operated out of their own large kitchen, relatively little initial investment was required. They needed trays and some large pots and platters, but their expenditures were minimal. They used their own station wagon for deliveries, making it a company car and a tax deduction.

Regulations: The Stubbses worked out of their home, so there was no need for health department inspections (although theoretically there could have been).

Risk: Relatively little risk was involved. The Stubbs's policy was to ask for one-third to one-half of their fee in advance, which covered their costs. They either sent a bill for the remainder or collected upon delivery, depending on the customer. After consulting a lawyer, they had a legal form drawn up that each customer signed upon ordering. They consulted their insurance agent and took out a liability policy that covered them in the event of a lawsuit from a customer. These precautions protected the Stubbses from unanticipated threats to their business and personal investment and property, and, more important to their everyday business, ensured their cash flow.

Time commitment: At first, the Stubbses were capable of handling all of the business themselves. They worked long hours to keep overhead to a minimum, not minding because theirs was a labor of love. Eventually, the volume of business became too much for them and they hired an assistant.

Start-up expenses checklist

1. Do you need printed business cards, stationery, invoices, wrapping paper, shopping bags, etc.?
2. Do you need to buy a mailing list or lists?
3. Do you need to rent work space, furniture, typewriters, cash registers, etc.?
4. Do you need a separate phone line for the business?
5. What are the advertising rates in the local newspapers? Can you arrange to have a promotional article written about your new business?
6. Will you need a telephone answering service or machine?
7. Do you need to file the name of your business in your state? Do you need to incorporate?

Think of every hidden expense and write it down. Talk with people in similar businesses and ask them what expenses, including unexpected ones, are likely to come up. Then draw up a budget and compare it with your cash on hand to estimate how much money you will have to raise.

How your government can help

Some of the best information is supported by your tax dollars. It is yours for the asking. Write to:

Office of Small Business Development Centers Management Assistance
Small Business Administration
1441 L Street NW
Washington, DC 20416

Ask for their complete kit of information. Write to the Office of Management Counseling Services, Management Assistance, at the Small Business Administration for free personal counseling.

Special help for women. Helping women become successful entrepreneurs is a special goal of the Small Business Administration. Write to:

Office of Women's Business Enterprise Division
Small Business Administration
1441 L Street NW
Washington, DC 20416

If you want to start a business out of your home, write to: National Alliance of Homebased Businesswomen
P.O. Box 95
Norwood, New Jersey 07648

Starting out

Starting Out Series publications are available free from the Small Business Administration Washington District Office, 1111 18th Street NW, 6th Floor, Washington, DC 20417. Tel. (202) 634-6156.

101 Building Service Contracting 102 Service Stations
103 Catering
104 Radio-Television Repair Shop
105 Retail Florist
106 Franchise Businesses
107 Hardware Store or Home Center
108 Home Building, Small Volume 109 Travel Agency
110 Restaurants
111 Sporting Goods Stores
112 Dry Cleaning
113 Car Wash
114 Beauty Salon
115 Pest Control
116 Marine Retailers
117 Retail Grocery Stores
118 The Nursery Business
119 The Wholesale Nursery Business
120 The Garden Center Business
121 The Landscaping Business 122 Apparel Store
123 Pharmacies
124 Retail Photography Store
125 Office Products
126 Automotive Parts & Accessories
127 Motels
128 Paint & Decorating Store
129 Interior Design Services
130 Fish Farming
131 Day-Care Centers–Preschoolers
132 Men's Outerwear
133 Bicycles
134 Roofing Contractors
135 Printing
136 Fabricare
137 The Bookstore
138 Home Furnishings
139 Handbags
140 Bake Shops
141 Portable Sanitation 142 Ice Cream
143 Recreational Vehicles
144 Real Estate
145 Sewing Centers
146 Exhibit Design and Production
147 Electric Vehicles
148 Personnel Referral Service
149 Selling by Mail Order
150 Solar Energy
201 Breakeven Point for Independent Truckers

A hobby developed into a marketable skill and eventually became a promising small business (left) for an ambitious couple. Another innovative entrepreneur (right) saw a big future in a commodity that always is in demand.

Matching yourself to the World of Work

L = lowest level
M = middle level
H = highest level

[1]Estimates not available.
[2]Vary, depending on job.

	Job requirements												Work environs		Occupational characteristics
	1. Leadership/persuasion	2. Helping/instructing others	3. Problem-solving/creativity	4. Initiative	5. Work as part of a team	6. Frequent public contacts	7. Manual dexterity	8. Physical stamina	9. Hazardous	10. Outdoors	11. Confined	12. Jobs concentrated geographically	13. Part-time	14. Earnings	15. Employment growth	16. Entry requirements
Administrative and Managerial Occupations
Accountants and auditors		•	•		•	•				•			M	M	H
Bank officers and managers	•	•	•	•	•	•				•			H	M	H
Buyers	•		•	•	•								M	M	H
College student personnel workers	•	•	•	•	•	•							1	1	H
Construction inspectors (government)		•	•	•	•		•			•			M	H	M
Credit managers	•	•	•		•	•				•			M	L	H
Health services administrators	•		•	•	•	•							H	H	H
Hotel managers and assistants	•	•	•	•	•	•							1	H	M
Medical record administrators	•		•	•	•								H	H	H
Occupational safety and health workers		•	•	•	•		•			•			H	1	H
Personnel and labor relations specialists	•	•	•	•	•	•							M	L	H
Purchasing agents	•		•		•								1	L	H
School administrators	•	•	•	•	•	•							H	L	H
Engineers, Surveyors, and Architects
Architects			•	•	•	•	•						H	H	H
Landscape architects			•	•		•	•						1	H	H
Surveyors and surveying technicians					•		•	•		•			L	M	M
Engineers
Agricultural engineers			•	•	•								H	H	H
Chemical engineers			•	•	•								H	M	H
Civil engineers and electrical engineers			•	•	•								H	H	H
Electrical engineers			•	•	•								H	H	H
Industrial and mechanical engineers			•	•	•								H	H	H
Metallurgical and mining engineers			•	•	•								H	H	H
Natural Scientists and Mathematicians Mathematical scientists and systems analysts
Mathematicians			•	•									H	L	H
Statisticians			•	•									M	M	H
Systems analysts		•	•	•	•					•			H	H	H
Physical scientists
Astronomers			•	•									H	L	H
Chemists			•	•									H	M	H
Geographers			•	•	•								H	M	H
Geologists and geophysicists			•	•	•				•				H	H	H
Meteorologists			•	•	•								H	L	H
Oceanographers			•	•	•				•		•		H	M	H
Physicists			•	•									H	L	H

	Job requirements												Work environs		Occupational characteristics
	1. Leadership/persuasion	2. Helping/instructing others	3. Problem-solving/creativity	4. Initiative	5. Work as part of a team	6. Frequent public contacts	7. Manual dexterity	8. Physical stamina	9. Hazardous	10. Outdoors	11. Confined	12. Jobs concentrated geographically	13. Part-time	14. Earnings	15. Employment growth	16. Entry requirements
Life scientists
Agricultural and biological scientists			•	•									1	M	H
Biochemists			•	•									H	M	H
Food technologists			•	•									H	L	H
Foresters			•	•	•			•	•	•			M	L	H
Soil conservationists		•	•	•						•			H	L	H
Social Scientists, Social Workers, Religious Workers, and Lawyers
Lawyers	•	•	•	•	•	•							H	M	H
Social scientists
Anthropologists			•	•	•								H	M	H
Economists			•	•									H	H	H
Historians			•	•									H	L	H
Political scientists			•	•	•	•							H	L	H
Psychologists		•	•	•		•							H	M	H
Sociologists			•	•		•							H	L	H
Social and recreation workers
Recreation workers	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•		•			•	L	M	M
Social workers	•	•	•	•	•	•								L	M	H
Religious workers
Ministers and priests	•	•	•	•	•	•								L	1	H
Rabbis	•	•	•	•	•	•								H	1	H
Teachers, Librarians, and Counselors
College career counselors	•	•	•	•	•	•								M	1	H
College and university faculty	•	•	•	•	•	•							•	H	L	H
Employment counselors	•	•	•	•	•	•					•			1	1	H
Kindergarten, school teachers	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•					•	M	M	H
Librarians	•	•	•	•	•	•							•	M	L	H
Rehabilitation counselors	•	•	•	•	•	•								1	1	H
School counselors	•	•	•	•	•	•								M	L	H
Secondary school teachers	•	•	•	•	•	•								M	L	H
Health Diagnosing and Treating Practitioners
Chiropractors	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•					•	H	M	H
Dentists	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•						H	M	H
Optometrists	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•					•	H	M	H
Physicians	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•					H	H	H
Veterinarians	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•					H	H	H
Registered Nurses, Pharmacists, Dietitians, etc.
Dietitians	•	•	•	•	•	•							•	L	H	H
Occupational therapists	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•						1	H	H
Pharmacists	•	•	•	•	•	•				•			•	H	L	H
Physical therapists	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•						M	H	H
Physician assistants	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•						M	1	H
Registered nurses	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•					•	M	H	M

	Job requirements												Work environs			Occupational characteristics
	1. Leadership/persuasion	2. Helping/instructing others	3. Problem-solving/creativity	4. Initiative	5. Work as part of a team	6. Frequent public contacts	7. Manual dexterity	8. Physical stamina	9. Hazardous	10. Outdoors	11. Confined	12. Jobs concentrated geographically	13. Part-time	14. Earnings	15. Employment growth	16. Entry requirements
Health Technologists and Technicians
Dental hygienists		•			•	•	•	•			•		•	L	H	M
Electrocardiograph technicians		•			•	•	•						•	1	H	M
Emergency medical technicians		•	•		•	•	•	•	•	•				L	M	M
Licensed practical nurses		•			•	•	•	•					•	L	H	M
Medical laboratory workers					•		•		•		•			L	H	2
Radiologic (x-ray) technicians		•				•	•		•				•	L	H	M
Surgical technicians		•			•	•	•							L	H	M
Writers, Artists, and Entertainers
Communications occupations
Public relations workers	•		•	•	•	•								M	M	H
Radio and television announcers and newscasters	•	•		•	•	•					•			L	H	H
Reporters and correspondents	•		•	•	•	•								1	M	H
Writers and editors	•		•	•	•						•		•	1	M	H
Design occupations
Commercial, graphic designers			•	•	•		•						•	1	L	M
Display workers	•		•	•			•		•					L	M	L
Floral designers			•			•	•				•			1	L	L
Industrial designers			•	•	•		•							1	L	H
Interior designers			•	•	•	•	•							1	M	M
Photographers			•	•		•	•						•	L	L	M
Performing artists
Actors and actresses			•	•	•	•	•	•				•	•	L	M	M
Dancers and musicians			•	•	•	•	•	•				•	•	L	M	M
Singers			•	•	•	•	•	•				•	•	1	L	M
Technologists and Technicians, Except Health
Air-traffic controllers		•	•	•	•		•				•			H	L	H
Broadcast technicians			•		•		•				•			L	L	M
Drafters					•		•				•			M	H	M
Forestry technicians							•	•	•	•				1	H	M
Engineering, science technicians			•		•		•		2	2	2			M	M	M
Legal assistants				2	•	2								M	H	L
Programmers			•		•						•			M	H	H
Technical writers			•	•	•						•			1	H	M
Marketing and Sales Occupations
Advertising workers	•		•	•	•									1	1	H
Automobile parts counter workers		•				•		•						L	M	M
Automobile salesworkers	•			•		•								M	H	L
Cashiers						•	•				•		•	L	H	L
Insurance agents and brokers	•	•	•	•		•							•	M	M	M
Models					•	•		•				•	•	1	1	L
Real estate agents and brokers	•	•	•	•		•				•			•	M	H	M
Retail trade salesworkers	•					•		•					•	L	M	L
Travel agents	•	•	•	•		•								1	H	M

	Job requirements												Work environs		Occupational characteristics
	1. Leadership/persuasion	2. Helping/instructing others	3. Problem-solving/creativity	4. Initiative	5. Work as part of a team	6. Frequent public contacts	7. Manual dexterity	8. Physical stamina	9. Hazardous	10. Outdoors	11. Confined	12. Jobs concentrated geographically	13. Part-time	14. Earnings	15. Employment growth	16. Entry requirements
Administrative Support Occupations, Including Clerical
Airline reservation, ticket agents		•	•		•	•					•			M	L	L
Bank clerks					•						•		•	L	H	L
Bank tellers					•	•					•		•	L	M	L
Bookkeepers and accounting clerks					•						•		•	L	L	L
Collection workers	•			•	•	•					•			L	M	L
Computer operating personnel			•		•		•				•			L	M	M
Mail carriers						•	•	•		•				M	L	L
Postal clerks					•	•	•	•			•	•		M	L	L
Receptionists		•			•	•					•		•	L	M	L
Secretaries and stenographers				•	•	•	•							L	H	L
Teacher aides	•	•			•	•	•	•					•	L	M	L
Telephone operators		•				•					•			L	L	L
Typists							•				•		•	L	M	L
Service Occupations
Protective service occupations
Correction officers	•	•			•			•	•		•			1	H	L
Firefighters		•	•		•	•	•	•	•	•			•	M	M	L
Guards						•	•	•	•		•		•	L	M	L
Police officers	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•				M	M	L
Food and beverage preparation and service occupations
Bartenders				•		•	•	•			•		•	L	M	M
Cooks and chefs				•			•	•			•		•	L	M	M
Food and counterworkers				•		•	•	•			•		•	L	H	L
Waiters and waitresses				•		•	•	•					•	L	M	L
Kitchen helpers				•		•	•	•					•	L	H	L
Health service occupations
Dental assistants					•	•	•	•					•	L	H	L
Medical assistants					•	•	•							L	H	L
Occupational and physical therapy assistants		•			•	•	•	•					•	1	H	M
Cleaning and building service occupations
Hotel housekeepers and assistants						•	•	•						L	M	L
Personal service occupations
Barbers						•	•	•			•		•	L	L	M
Bellhops and bell captains					•	•	•	•					•	L	L	L
Cosmetologists					•	•	•	•			•		•	L	L	M
Flight attendants		•			•	•	•	•						M	L	L
Mechanics and Repairers
Vehicle and mobile equipment mechanics and repairers
Aircraft mechanics			•		•		•	•	•	•				H	L	M
Automobile body repairers			•				•	•	•		•			M	M	M
Automobile mechanics			•			•	•	•	•		•			L	M	M
Farm equipment mechanics			•				•	•	•	•				L	M	M
Truck and bus mechanics			•				•	•	•		•			M	M	M

	Job requirements												Work environs			Occupational characteristics
	1. Leadership/persuasion	2. Helping/instructing others	3. Problem-solving/creativity	4. Initiative	5. Work as part of a team	6. Frequent public contacts	7. Manual dexterity	8. Physical stamina	9. Hazardous	10. Outdoors	11. Confined	12. Jobs concentrated geographically	13. Part-time	14. Earnings	15. Employment growth	16. Entry requirements
Electrical and electronic equipment repairers
Appliance repairers			•	•		•	•						L	M	M
Central office craft occupations			•		•		•	•	•				1	L	L
Computer service technicians			•	•		•	•						M	H	M
Line installers and cable splicers			•		•		•	•	•	•			M	L	L
Maintenance electricians			•	•		•	•	•	•				M	M	M
Telephone installers, repairers			•		•	•	•	•	•				M	L	L
Television, radio technicians			•	•		•	•		•			•	M	H	M
Other mechanics and repairers
Air-conditioning, refrigeration, and heating mechanics			•				•		•				M	M	M
Business machine repairers			•	•	•		•						M	H	M
Industrial machinery repairers			•				•	•	•				M	M	M
Piano and organ tuners and repairers							•						L	L	M
Watch repairers			•	•	•		•			•		•	L	L	M
Construction and Extractive Occupations
Construction occupations
Bricklayers and stonemasons			•				•	•	•	•			M	H	M
Carpenters			•				•	•	•	•			M	M	M
Electricians (construction)			•				•	•	•	•			H	M	M
Floorcovering installers						•	•	•					L	M	M
Glaziers			•		•		•	•	•	•			L	M	M
Insulation workers							•	•	•				M	H	M
Ironworkers					•		•	•	•	•			H	M	M
Painters and paperhangers						•	•	•	•	•			L	L	M
Plasterers							•	•					M	L	M
Plumbers and pipefitters			•			•	•	•	•	•			H	M	M
Roofers					•		•	•	•	•			L	L	M
Sheet-metal workers			•				•	•	•				M	M	M
Extractive occupations
Coal mining operatives							•		•	•	•	•	M	H	L
Production Occupations
Blue-collar worker supervisors		•	•	•	•		•		•				M	L	M
Precision production occupations
Bookbinders and bindery workers			2				•	•	•		•	2		L	L	M
Dental and laboratory technicians							•							L	H	M
Furniture upholsterers							•	•			•	•		L	L	M
Instrument makers (mechanical)			•	•	•		•				•	•		M	M	M
Jewelers			•	•	•		•				•		•	L	M	M
Lithographers							•				•			H	H	M
Machinists			•				•	•	•		•			M	M	M
Molders (foundry)							•	•	•		•			M	L	M
Patternmakers (foundry)							•	•			•			H	L	M
Photoengravers							•				•			1	L	M
Tool-and-die makers			•				•	•	•		•			H	L	M

	Job requirements													Work environs			Occupational characteristics
	1. Leadership/persuasion	2. Helping/instructing others	3. Problem-solving/creativity	4. Initiative	5. Work as part of a team	6. Frequent public contacts	7. Manual dexterity	8. Physical stamina	9. Hazardous	10. Outdoors	11. Confined	12. Jobs concentrated geographically	13. Part-time	14. Earnings	15. Employment growth	16. Entry requirements
Plant and system operators
Stationary engineers			•			•	•	•					M	L	M
Water treatment operators			•	•		•		•	•				L	L	M
Machine operators, tenders, and setup workers
Boiler tenders						•	•	•					M	L	M
Forge shop occupations						•	•	•			•		M	L	M
Machine tool operators			•			•	•	•		•			M	M	M
Machine tool setup workers			•			•		•		•			M	M	M
Printing press operators						•	•	•		•			M	L	M
Fabricators, assemblers, and hand-working occupations
Assemblers					•	•				•			L	M	L
Automotive painters						•	•	•		•			H	H	M
Welders and flamecutters						•	•	•	•				M	M	M
Transportation and Material Moving Occupations
Motor vehicle operators
Bus drivers				•		•	•	•			•		•	H	L	M
Truck drivers				•			•	•			•			M	M	L
Other transportation and material moving occupations
Airplane pilots			•	•	•		•				•			H	L	M
Merchant marine sailors					•		•	•	•	•	•	•		M	L	M
Operating engineers							•		•	•				M	L	M

For further reference

Barth, George Francis
Your Aptitudes
Lothrop, Lee & Shepard

Bolles, Richard Nelson
What Color Is Your Parachute: A Practical Manual for Job and Career Changers
Ten Speed Press

Brown, Denver
The Entrepreneur's Guide
Ballantine

Figler, Howard
The Complete Job-Search Handbook
Holt, Rinehart & Winston

Guide to Federal Career Literature Superintendent of Documents
U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, DC 20402

Jablonski, Donna M.
How to Find Information About Companies
Washington Research
918 16th Street NW
Washington, DC 20006

Jawin, Ann J.
A Woman's Guide to Career Preparation: Scholarships, Grants, and Loans
Doubleday/Anchor Press

Lieberoff, Allen
Climb Your Own Ladder
Simon & Schuster

Martin, Phyllis
Introduction to the Job Hunt Success Kit
Center for Career Development
11385 Landon Lane
Cincinnati, Ohio 45246

Reed, Jane
Résumés That Get Jobs
Arco

Health and Fitness

- Fatigue 59
- Stress 60
- Eye care 62
- Ear care 63
- Foot care 63
- Healthy nutrients 64
- Good nutrition 69
- Watch your weight 72
- Get back into shape 74
- Home medical testing 75
- Glossary 76

During the past few decades, a great change has taken place in the attitude of the general public and professionals toward the maintenance of good health. A growing number of individuals are concerned about their own health care and that of members of their family. Doctors, as well as other medical and health professionals, are placing greater emphasis on preventive medicine: the use of appropriate measures to help prevent illness.

A century ago, human effort accounted for one-third of all the energy needed to run the factories, farms, businesses, and homes in the United States. However, in the late 20th century, human effort provides only one-half of one percent of the energy needed. We lead softer lives physically, but the pace of life has been stepped up to the point where unbridled stress has become a common problem. The harmful effects of stress contribute to our foremost health concerns: heart disease, stroke, cancer, and high blood pressure.

These degenerative diseases can be controlled and to some extent prevented by your habits and lifestyle. If these diseases were wiped out, the average current life expectancy of 74.5 years would be raised to 90.5 years. This statistical projection, made by the U.S. Public Health Service, is not unrealistic. It can be attained with changes in lifestyle, nutrition and diet, the handling of stress, weight control, and physical activity. Preventive medicine can not only add years to your life, it can put more life into those years.

In this chapter, you will find useful information on nutrition, stress, exercise, and other essentials that can provide preventive health care for your entire family. The highlighted Health Care Alert boxes, listing signals of major diseases, are intended to help you in recognizing early symptoms of disease and in reporting them in detail to your doctor. Because there are still so many myths and misconceptions about various health issues, we have included another feature, Fact or Fiction, which separates false notions from factual information.

Many such notions are obtained from articles appearing in popular magazines and from product advertising that is misleading in the presentation, or lacks factual information. The Food and Drug Administration advises everyone to review carefully all advertisements, especially those making claims for medical remedies. Bogus medical products include certain weight reduction pills or diets, arthritis and cancer cures, and panaceas for whatever ails you.

Answers to specific medical questions, or medical treatment, should be sought from a reputable doctor. While a majority of medical professionals are trustworthy, there are still many quack doctors who make promises of quick cures to unsuspecting victims of such serious diseases as cancer and arthritis. Choose your doctor carefully and know the drugs you use. For helpful suggestions, see "You and Modern Medicine" on page 78.

Fatigue

Fatigue is a common complaint, one for which you yourself can often pinpoint the reason quite readily: a sleepless night, on-the-job frustration, frazzled nerves from trying to run a busy household.

There are many other less obvious, but equally plausible, explanations for a feeling of tiredness. All too often, people fail to see the connection between poor nutrition and fatigue. A lack of B vitamins or an inadequate intake of carbohydrates may interfere with the production of body energy. Too little activity may result in too little oxygen reaching the tissues.

Unless your tired feeling is related to a specific disease or medical problem, you can fight it with some simple changes in your daily routine. However, before you decide how to deal with fatigue, it is important for you to know what is causing it. Under any circumstances, if tiredness continues for more than a few weeks, you should check with a doctor. Such fatigue may be due to an illness that needs medical treatment.

Basically, fatigue may be placed into three major categories: physical (of the body), pathological (from a disease), psychological (of the mind).

Physical. This fatigue may be brought on by strenuous activity such as jogging or heavy housework. It may also be caused by such factors as poor muscle tone or bad posture.

Pathological. A tired feeling is often one symptom present in such conditions as iron-deficiency anemia, heart disease, cancer, arthritis, and diabetes; however, other and even more specific symptoms are also usually in evidence.

Certain prescription drugs (for example, tranquilizers and allergy remedies) may induce fatigue. If medication you are taking seems to rob you of vital energy, ask your doctor to prescribe an alternate drug. Excessive use of alcohol or caffeine, cigarette smoking, and poor eating habits are other factors that may result in fatigue.

Psychological. Severe emotional stress, tension, anxiety, and other psychogenic factors are predominant in causing a feeling of constant tiredness. The person who feels trapped in a job situation or a marriage, for example, is bound to suffer from a persistent fatigue and lack of energy.

There are any number of ways in which you can fight that tired feeling. Take stock of your lifestyle, and see what you can do to take out the monotony, the frustration, or the stress in your day-to-day routines.

A working couple may need to share household responsibilities more equally; a "workaholic" may need to fit in some time for relaxation; and a weary housewife may need to hire a babysitter and join an exercise or art group. Make certain, too, that you include the essential nutrients in your daily diet; they are all needed for top performance by your body. Get enough exercise and rest, and try not to undertake too many demanding activities at one time.

Fact or fiction?

Exercise will make you feel more tired.
Fiction. Exercise releases tensions, improves sleep patterns, and promotes fitness. Those who exercise regularly get more done with less effort.

A sweet snack will not give you energy.
Fact. You will probably feel even more tired an hour or so after a sweet snack between meals. Have some fresh fruit instead.

Coffee or colas will give you energy.
Fiction. Caffeinated drinks may keep you awake, but too much can interfere with sleep and simply add to that tired feeling.

A light supper helps you sleep.
Fact. A high protein meal induces wakefulness; supper should be a low-protein, high-carbohydrate meal.

Energy-boosters to fight fatigue

- Eat three well-balanced meals a day. Include the four basic food groups (milk, meat, vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals).
- Choose a conditioning exercise that you enjoy. Aerobic exercises (increasing the heart rate and flow of oxygen to the blood) are especially beneficial. Jogging, bicycling, aerobic dancing, and brisk walking fall into this category.
- Be certain to get as many hours of sleep as you need. Different people require different amounts of sleep.
- Plan activities according to your natural body rhythms. If you have more energy in the morning, do your most demanding work at that time, and keep lesser tasks for another time of day.
- Pace yourself, balancing out your work demands and social activities. Take revitalizing breaks throughout the day.
- Cut down, or avoid, the use of caffeine, alcoholic substances, and tobacco.
- Do not use over-the-counter drugs to pep you up; do not become dependent upon sleeping pills (they have a bad effect upon the quality of sleep).

Stress

Stress is an essential part of our lives, and we would not want to be without it. Many types of stress provide the impetus that makes us excel at a chosen task, or at reaching a desired personal goal. Other kinds of stress, however, particularly that arising from the complexities of modern life, can have a disturbing effect upon those who do not know how to handle it.

Simply defined, stress is the total response of your body (physical, mental, and chemical) to events that irritate, frighten, endanger, confuse, or excite you. Some stress is of your own making, as when you enter college, embark on a new career, or get married. Other pressures are forced upon you, such as nerve-wracking job or home situations, or sudden injury or illness. Whatever the nature of the stress, the important thing is how you come to grips with it.

There is no one foolproof way of dealing with stress, but learning to identify the "stressor," or stressful event, can be the first step in turning your stress into positive energy. Stressful situations can help you to be receptive to changes and challenges, and to think and act clearly. On the other hand, if not handled right, stress can thwart clear thinking and decisive action and become a threat to good health. It can add to the likelihood of developing such high stress conditions as anxiety, chronic headaches, ulcers, arthritis, high blood pressure, asthma, and heart disorders.

Remember: Experiencing stress is normal. But sometimes stress can be a real problem. The trick is to turn it from a destructive to a positive force.

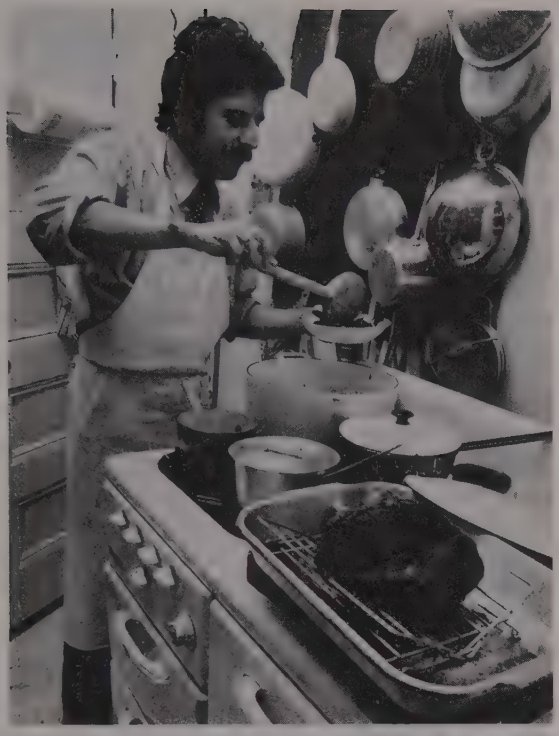
Body protection against stress.

The father of modern research on stress, Hans Selye, described stress in terms of a syndrome—the adaptive energy syndrome. Dr. Selye believed that each one of us is born with an individualized amount of adaptive energy and that we use up some of this supply every time we draw upon it.

There are three stages to the adaptive energy syndrome: 1) the alarm reaction, 2) the resistance stage, and 3) the exhaustion stage.

In the alarm reaction, the body is subjected to stress and it responds with a significant drop in its level of resistance. Adrenalin (the stress hormone) is pumped into the bloodstream, the pulse races, and breathing speeds up. The blood supply is promptly redirected from the internal organs to other parts of the body, particularly the muscles, where it is needed to respond during the emergency.

The resistance stage represents the continuing attempt of the body to develop defenses in combatting the stressor. During this period, the body works hard to raise its level of resistance well above normal. Gradually, the distinctive indicators of the alarm reaction disappear and the body seemingly returns to normal. However, if the body remains mobilized for an overlong period of time, the above normal level of resistance will not continue and will drop below normal. At this point, the exhaustion stage sets in, making the body increasingly vulnerable to disease related to stress, organic dysfunction, and even death.



Executives should have hobbies sufficiently different from their office routines to help relieve the stresses of the work day. Gourmet cooking is relaxing and fun.

HEALTH CARE ALERT

STRESS

Signals of badly channeled stress

Many commonly experienced stress reactions signal potential stress damage to the body. These reactions may include heart palpitations or a pounding pulse, nagging headaches, irritability, and a feeling of tightness in the chest, neck, or shoulders. Other symptoms may be difficulty in falling asleep, back pain, upset stomach, loss of appetite, lack of concentration, and fatigue.

With increased stress, the stress reactions intensify and signal possible greater damage to the body. A person may find it impossible to unwind or enjoy physical relaxation, become impatient or depressed, do more drinking or smoking than usual, spend sleepless nights, or have frequent headaches and stomach disturbances.

Eventually, if negatively channeled stress continues for a long time, the accumulated effects can contribute to such serious ailments as asthma, heart disease, migraine headaches, high blood pressure, stomach ulcers, alcoholism, and drug addiction.

Some common stressors

Stressors mean different things to different people. What is high stress to one person may cause no reaction in another.

Day-to-day living: being stuck in traffic; standing on long supermarket or bank lines; a rough day at home or at work; marital discord.

Emotional: negative feelings such as anger, fear, or worry; positive feelings such as profound joy, love, or excitement.

Environmental: intense noise or air pollution; bright blinking lights; exposure to extremes of heat or cold.

Health: allergies or chemotherapy; serious illness; accidents or physical injury; excesses of drugs, alcohol, caffeine, or nicotine.

Life cycle: adolescent's struggle for independence and identity; pregnancy and motherhood; oldsters adjusting to physical limitations of aging.

Life milestones: start of formal education; graduating from school; getting married; embarking on a new career.

Social: overcrowding or unpleasant surroundings; unsuccessful interpersonal relationships at work or at home.

Some ways to beat stress

Basically, a good stress skill is anything that can help you deal with the stress you feel. There is little help to be found in the use of alcohol or drugs, or "stress-formula" products bought at the drugstore. If a situation becomes too difficult for you to handle, see a doctor or therapist.

- Change your attitude. Either decide to work out or get out of a stressful situation.
- Give yourself a break. Get away from yourself and your problems. Take 10-minute breaks during the day; get away for a day, a week, or longer if possible.
- Eat sensibly. Eat plenty of high-energy foods each day. Avoid, or greatly limit, the use of sugar, salt, coffee, and alcohol.
- Exercise regularly. Keep physically active: walk, run, swim, bicycle to keep trim and strong, and to relieve pent-up feelings.
- Get moral support. At times, talking over a problem with family or friends can be of help in deciding how best to deal with it.
- Learn to relax. Take up a hobby: art or music, vegetable gardening or flower arranging, handicrafts or photography.

Eye care

It has been estimated that no less than 50,000 Americans become blind each year. This number could be reduced by one-half if people took proper measures to guard against accident and disease. By taking simple commonsense precautions, you can help to preserve your sight.

Proper lighting

Reading or close work. A room should have at least 200 watts of general lighting or 100 watts of general lighting and 75 to 100 watts of direct lighting.

Glare. Arrange lighting so that it is not reflected by a book or other reading material. Make certain, too, that no shadows fall upon the reading material.

Television. To avoid eyestrain, a child should sit at least 6 feet from the TV set and at about the same level as the screen. Some other light in the room is necessary, but the TV set should be located where it cannot reflect light from a lamp. Video games are especially tiring for the eyes as children tend to stay closer to the screen and watch it more steadily than when watching TV. Home computers may cause similar problems.

Eye changes in children. Vision problems occur in 5 percent of all preschool children and 25 percent of all school-age youngsters. Ophthalmologists advise a first test when the child is six months, and again at three or four years of age.

Parents can help their children maintain healthy eyes by being alert to various changes in the eye, and by having their children's eyes examined periodically.

Appearance: an eye that turns in, out, up, or down. Red-rimmed, encrusted, or swollen lids. Inflamed or watery eyes, recurring sties, an enlarged eye, an eye that appears cloudy, or a white spot in the pupil.

Behavior: excessive rubbing of the eyes, shutting or covering of one eye. Tilting or thrusting the head forward. Difficulty in reading or doing close work. Blinking more than usual or irritability when doing close work. Inability to see distant objects clearly, squinting, or frowning.

Complaints: itching, burning, or scratchy feeling. Inability to see well, dizziness, headaches, or nausea following close work. Blurred or double vision.

Health hints on eye care

Rubbing and poking

Children especially need to be reminded not to put their fingers into their eyes, particularly if their hands are soiled or if they have touched an open infectious cold sore or wound. Spread of a virus infection to the eye can ulcerate and scar the cornea, a primary cause of blindness.

Safety goggles

These should be worn to protect the eyes from accident or injury. For example, wear goggles when using electric tools such as saws and drills, lawn mowers, and hedge clippers; chemicals such as pesticidal or herbicidal sprays and household cleaning products; and in sports, particularly squash and racketball. An optician can help you choose proper goggles.

Sunglasses

Use sunglasses in reflected sunlight (on the water or the beach). Do not wear sunglasses indoors or for night driving. When selecting sunglasses, check the label to see that they filter out ultraviolet rays. Ask an optician for help, if necessary.

Drugs

At times, prescription drugs may cause complications. If you are taking a medication to control a condition such as high blood pressure, ask your doctor if the drug you are taking can affect the eye in any way.

Visits to the eye doctor

See your eye doctor (ophthalmologist) about any injury to the eye so that he or she can make sure that there is no damage. Check out any eye symptoms such as sudden pain or extreme sensitivity to light. After age 40, eyes should be checked for glaucoma (increased pressure in the eye) every two or three years. Begin checking after age 30 if there is a family history of glaucoma.

Ear care

Together with your eyes, your ears are the most vital sense organs. They are the lines of communication with the world around you.

Wax in the ear. Sometimes wax accumulates in the outer auditory canal; this can impede hearing. Do not remove the wax by using a hairpin, matchstick, or other sharp object. You may cause damage by scratching or perforating the eardrum. If you have a wax plug, an insect, or any foreign body in your ear, keep in mind the advice not to put anything in your ear smaller than your elbow. See your doctor for proper treatment.

Hearing problems. Some people are born deaf. Many others suffer hearing loss as a result of an accident or an infection. When the delicate inner ear structure has been damaged by meningitis or scarlet fever, "nerve deafness" occurs, and very little, if anything, can be done to relieve the condition.

Children who seem to be inattentive at school and who have learning disabilities are often afflicted with hearing problems. To avoid such difficulties, a child's hearing should be checked regularly. The value of good hearing can hardly be overestimated, and any change in hearing ability calls for prompt examination by an ear doctor.

Foot care

Foot problems afflict at least 75 percent of the American adult population. The most common problems are corns and bunions. Proper care of the feet will help keep feet strong and healthy. The most important protective measure is to keep your feet clean and dry. Take soothing foot baths as needed to relieve soreness. Allow toenails to grow to the tip of the toe; then cut straight across, not on a curve. Exercise your feet to keep them flexible and to strengthen the arches.

A large number of foot problems (flat feet, corns, bunions, calluses, and ingrown toenails) are caused by poorly fitted shoes. Select shoes with sensible heels and plenty of toe room. Always try on both shoes of a pair for size (one foot is usually larger than the other). Make certain that the back of the shoe fits snugly, and that the shoe has an inner or outer cushioning sole.

Simple care for minor foot problems

Bunions (hallux valgus)	Some people, such as diabetics, need special foot care. Any foot problems that are troublesome should be checked with your doctor or podiatrist (foot specialist). To avoid bunion pain, pressure on the prominent joint must be eliminated. Chiefly, this is a matter of wearing sensible shoes with plenty of toe room.
Calluses and corns (clavus)	After your bath or shower, gently rub your feet with a piece of pumice smeared with soap to remove excess calluses. Use of an emery board a few times a week will help reduce a hard corn. Medicated corn drops must be used very carefully so that there is no damage to good skin. The use of doughnut-shaped corn pads may also afford some relief.
Ingrown toenail (onyxia)	Try to wedge a small piece of cotton (soaked in castor oil) under the edge of the embedded nail. Apply a clean gauze pad to protect the nail from pressure. Soak the foot in water daily.
Athlete's foot (tinea pedis)	To help avoid this infection, keep feet clean and thoroughly dry, especially between the toes. Dusting with a medicated or other foot powder can help keep feet free of moisture.

Healthy nutrients

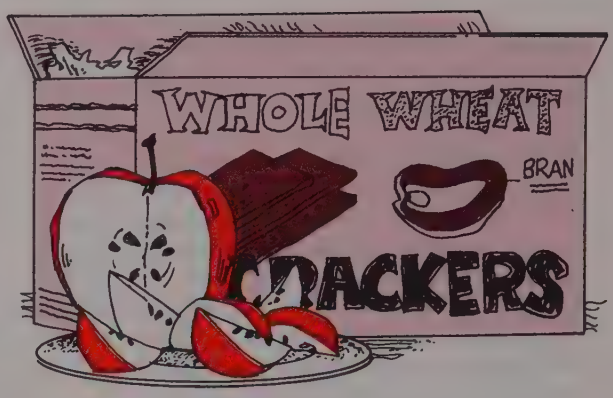
There are about 50 different nutrients that your body needs to stay healthy, including vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates, proteins, and fats. In this section, you will find out more about fiber, trace minerals, vitamins, and water.

On the whole, the American diet is thought to be relatively low in fiber. Most experts agree that the average person could probably double the amount of dietary fiber consumed, increasing intake to about 30 to 40 grams a day.

Mainly, there are two forms of minerals: macrominerals (needed in comparatively large amounts by the body) and microminerals (needed by the body in only very small amounts). There are some additional minerals, such as cobalt and nickel, which will take on greater nutritional importance as research determines the full extent of their usefulness in the human body.

Vitamins, organic substances derived from plants and animals, are required in the diet in very small amounts for normal health and growth. Although vitamins do not supply energy, they do help to trigger biochemical reactions that convert food into usable substances by the body.

In a listing of important nutrients, water is not always mentioned, yet the entire body mechanism needs water to function properly. Active people often fail to drink enough fluids; this may result in muscle fatigue, even upon moderate exertion. During strenuous exertion, as when running a marathon, an inadequate amount of water may be scarcely tolerable and even life-threatening.



You should eat some foods high in fiber each day, but beware of high-fiber diets. Eating too much fiber may interfere with the body's absorption of essential nutrients. Regular servings of whole wheat bread, vegetables, and fruit should provide enough fiber for most people.

Eat more high in fiber foods. To get enough fiber in your diet, eat whole-grain breads and cereals, nuts, fruits, and vegetables. Some good sources are found in dried figs and apricots, avocados, and apples with their skins, green beans and peas, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, turnips, lentils, black beans, whole-wheat breads, and crackers. Adding fiber to foods that contain fiber is of no value.

All fibers are not the same, which is why you must include some of the various available types in your daily diet. Most fibers prove beneficial in weight control, and whole grains may help tighten a flabby stomach. But pectins and gums are needed for the proper body use of fats, cholesterol, and carbohydrates. A high-fiber diet, compared with one that is adequate in fiber, can interfere with intestinal absorption, which may result in the loss of essential nutrients. You will probably get enough fiber in your diet by eating two servings of vegetables and two servings of whole grains (whole-wheat bread, for instance) each day.

How to add fiber to your diet

DO'S

- Make certain to eat a wide variety of foods in reasonable amounts.
- Be sure to drink adequate liquids when you eat fiber to avoid constipation.
- Look for the words "whole grain," "whole wheat," or "whole oats" on breads and cereals. Generally, coarse fiber is more effective than the same fiber ground fine.
- Include fresh fruits and raw vegetables in your diet. Their fiber content is more useful than peeled, cooked, or puréed fruits and vegetables.

DON'TS

- Do not depend upon fiber pills or tablets. You would have to take a whole bottle to get any benefit.
- Do not use fiber as a food additive. Change the kinds of foods you eat gradually to avoid a bloated feeling, diarrhea, or gas.
- Do not cut out all refined carbohydrates at one time. Replace them slowly with natural, whole-grain foods.
- Do not concentrate on one or another type of fiber; consider them all.

Trace minerals. Mineral elements account for only about four percent of total body weight. However, the body holds enough iron to make a good size nail, and enough sodium to fill a small salt shaker. More needs to be learned about the exact daily requirements of trace minerals, but a diet with a sufficient amount of natural foods should be adequate to maintain good health.

Food sources and body functions

Trace mineral	Chief food sources	Chief body functions
Chromium	Liver, beef, dried beans, cheese, whole-grain breads and cereals, peanuts, brewer's yeast, molasses, and beets.	Aids the body, together with insulin, in deriving energy from glucose (blood sugar). Plays an important role in the synthesis of fatty acids and cholesterol in the liver.
Copper	Oysters, fish, nuts, dried peas, beans, beef and pork liver, organ meats, eggs, spinach, asparagus, and corn-oil margarine.	Aids in the manufacture of red blood cells, and helps the body store iron. A component of several respiratory enzymes, copper is also part of the enzyme that helps make melanin (the pigment in the skin).
Fluorine (Fluoride)	Fish, tea, most animal foods, fluoridated water, and foods grown with or cooked in fluoridated water.	Helps form strong teeth and resistance to decay. Aids in maintenance of bone strength.
Iodine	Seafood, saltwater fish, seaweed, sea salt, and iodized salt.	A component of thyroid hormones that control the body's metabolism. Aids in the development and functioning of the thyroid gland, and in the prevention of goiter.
Iron	Liver (especially pork, followed by calf, beef, and chicken), kidneys, red meat, egg yolks, green leafy vegetables, dried raisins, apricots, prunes, dried beans, peas, potatoes, blackstrap molasses; enriched, whole-grain cereals.	Helps form red blood cells and myoglobin in muscles that supply oxygen in cells. Found in enzyme systems, including one that works to produce energy in the body.
Manganese	Nuts, whole grains, fruits, vegetables, tea, instant coffee, and cocoa powder.	Aids in proper function of the nervous system, normal bone structure, and reproduction. Extremely important in many vital enzyme systems in the body. Needed for utilization of iron.
Molybdenum	Legumes, cereal grains, liver, kidney, some dark green vegetables.	Required by three important enzymes. May aid in prevention of tooth decay. Associated with carbohydrate metabolism.
Selenium	Seafood, whole-grain cereals, meat, egg yolks, chicken, and milk.	Antioxidant, preventing breakdown of fats and other body chemicals. Interacts with Vitamin E in protecting cell membranes.
Zinc	Beef, liver, eggs, poultry, seafood, especially oysters, peas, carrots, whole grains, and pure maple syrup.	A component of as many as 100 enzymes in the body. Involved in normal wound healing. Needed for growth and development.

Know your vitamins. There are 13 compounds considered to be vitamins. Four—A, D, E, and K—are soluble in fat. The eight B vitamins and C are soluble in water. The fat-soluble vitamins, stored in body fat, are not readily excreted and therefore do not need to be replaced as often as the water-soluble

How vitamins can keep you healthy

Vitamin	Food sources	How they help you
Vitamin A Retinol (discovered 1913)	Yellow, orange, and dark green vegetables, liver, cheese, milk, eggs, and butter.	Known as the growth vitamin, Vitamin A is essential in maintaining healthy skin, hair, mucous membranes, and bone. It provides visual pigments that allow you to see.
Vitamin B_1 Thiamin (discovered 1936)	Whole-wheat grains, wheat germ, liver and kidney, pork, peas, beans, peanuts, oranges, and many other fruits and vegetables.	All B vitamins play a similar role in the body: they help enzymes to do their job. B_1 acts as a cofactor for 24 enzymes, aiding cells to utilize carbohydrates. It assists in the proper functioning of the nervous system and digestive tract.
Vitamin B_2 Riboflavin (discovered 1935)	Liver, kidney, lamb, beef, veal, eggs, whole-wheat products, yeast, asparagus, beets, peas, and dark green vegetables.	A cofactor in enzymes helping cells to use carbohydrates, proteins, and fats, and producing energy. Promotes growth, healthy skin, and mucous membranes.
Vitamin B_3 Niacin Nicotinamide Nicotinic acid (discovered 1867)	Lean meat, fish, liver, yeast, eggs, whole-grain breads and cereals, peas, beans, and nuts.	An essential component of enzymes that contribute to the production of energy in cells. Also assists in the breakdown of fats.
Vitamin B_6 Pyridoxine Pyridoxal (discovered 1934)	Poultry, fish, liver, whole grains, cereals, breads, tomatoes, yellow corn, spinach, green beans, bananas, and yogurt.	An essential activator of many enzymes, pyridoxine aids in breaking down protein, carbohydrates, and fat, and in forming hormones such as adrenalin and insulin. It also helps to regenerate red blood cells and produce antibodies.
Folic acid Folicin (discovered 1946)	Liver, kidneys, green leafy vegetables, and dried legumes.	Necessary for formation of red and white cells. Aids in protein metabolism and in creating some components of the DNA molecule.
Vitamin C Ascorbic acid (discovered 1919)	Abundant in most fruits and vegetables, especially citrus fruits, tomatoes, potatoes, green peppers, and dark green vegetables.	Enhances the activity of certain enzymes. Aids body use of iron and blood clotting as needed. Helps formation of teeth, gums, and bones; aids in healing of bone fractures and wounds.
Vitamin D Calciferol (discovered 1925)	Egg yolks, butter, fortified milk, liver, fish liver oils, tuna, salmon, herring, sardines, and oysters.	Known as the "sunshine vitamin." Aids in the normal growth and development of bones and teeth. Important in the intestinal absorption of calcium and phosphorus. Affords antirachitic activity.
Vitamin E Alpha tocopherol (discovered 1936)	Lettuce and other leafy green vegetables, seed oils, whole grains, dried beans, and liver.	Helps in the production of red blood cells and in the strengthening of muscles and other tissues. An antioxidant, it protects Vitamin A and fats from reacting with oxygen.

vitamins. These must be included in your daily diet in adequate amounts. On the whole, vitamins can be used and reused by the body, which explains why you need only small amounts to replace those lost in the urine or feces. Studying this table will help you choose the right foods for a balanced diet.

Research indications

In animal tests, some researchers found that a lack of Vitamin A can increase the toxicity of aflatoxin (a natural poison produced by a fungus living in peanuts and grains), and with it the chance of getting cancer of the colon. It is also becoming more evident that Vitamin A may play an important part in preventing epithelial cancers, such as are produced by smoking cigarettes.

Vitamin B_1 deficiency is implicated in all stages of alcoholism; a diet rich in B_1 will help prevent polyneuritis in alcoholics. There has been some success in treating children suffering repeated episodes of fever and gland swellings (unresponsive to conventional therapy) with B_1 supplementation.

Vitamin B_2 helps the body obtain energy from food. One study has shown that women who exercise vigorously and regularly may need almost twice as much riboflavin as those who are less active. This may be owed to the part Vitamin B_2 has in producing energy.

Niacin has been used effectively to lower high cholesterol levels associated with familial hypercholesterolemia, which cannot be controlled by diet alone and which quintuples the risk of heart disease.

In test animals, a diet lacking pyridoxine and other B vitamins, and with exposure to aflatoxin, increased the likelihood of cancer of the liver. Pyridoxine has been used medically to treat the toxic effects of carbon disulfide. A diet rich in pyridoxine may help prevent cirrhosis in alcoholics.

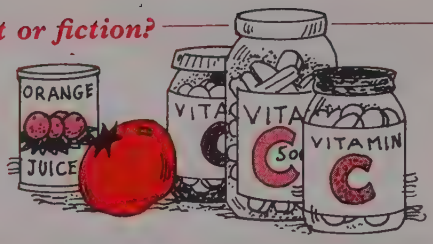
Preliminary British studies with pregnant women indicate that a large dose (4 mg daily) of this vitamin may help prevent such congenital defects as spina bifida (a defect in the wall of the spinal canal) and encephalocele (a defect involving the brain). An American study indicates that a megadose (10 mg daily) may lower the risk of cervical cancer in women on the pill who show cervical cell abnormalities.

In animal studies, Vitamin C has shown a possible activity against gum disease. Research shows that large doses of Vitamin C may be able to help the body detoxify such poisonous substances as malathion, lead, and cancer-causing nitrosamines.

Rickets and osteomalacia due to a lack of Vitamin D can be effectively treated with a form of Vitamin D known as 25-hydroxy-cholecalciferol. It has been found that Vitamin D breaks down in the body into compounds that may act as hormones. A synthetic compound, 1-25 Vitamin D, has been approved for use as an agent to promote bone growth.

Animal tests have shown that Vitamin E can lessen the damage that two air pollutants, ozone and nitrogen dioxide, can have on the lungs. Vitamin E, together with Vitamin C and zinc, may reduce toxicity to cadmium. Reportedly, Vitamin E may relieve chronic cystic mastitis in many cases; also, nighttime leg cramps.

Fact or fiction?



Vitamin C is a cure for the common cold.
Fiction. To date, there is no accepted medical evidence to support such a claim. Excessive doses, many times higher than the recommended 30 to 60 milligrams a day, may cause health problems in some people, such as the formation of kidney or bladder stones.

Vitamin D should be used carefully.
Fact. Too high doses of Vitamin D can result in nausea, loss of appetite, excessive thirst, and excessive urination. The heart, lungs, kidneys, and joints may develop calcium deposits, while the bones may become fragile.

Laxatives can cause vitamin deficiencies.
Fact. For example, the frequent use of mineral oil can rob your body of vitamins A, D, and K. Vitamin deficiencies due to overuse of laxatives make the user more susceptible to many toxic substances and to carcinogens.

There is no danger in taking large amounts of Vitamin A.
Fiction. A form of Vitamin A, retinol, taken in very high doses, can be quite toxic. If too much is taken, retinol can cause various conditions, including headaches, fatigue, blurred vision, intestinal disturbances, liver and kidney damage, hair loss, and brain damage.

HEALTH CARE ALERT

OSTEOPOROSIS

Signs of brittle bones

In the United States, women over 45 suffer a million fractures each year. Most are associated with a condition in which there is a degenerative thinning of the bones.

Detection in the early stages is difficult. X-rays, for example, will not show bone loss until there is a loss of 30 to 50 percent. There are a few simple signs that may alert a person to the presence of osteoporosis.

Decrease in height may give the earliest detectable sign, and it is one that often goes unnoticed. It is suggested that people at high risk of osteoporosis (such as menopausal women, alcoholics, and the elderly) keep a record of their height and check it every six to twelve months. Any height loss should be reported to a doctor.

Another sign is tooth loss brought on by periodontal (gum) disease. Gum inflammation, attributed to the formation of plaque on teeth, can also be due to bone degeneration. Regular visits to the dentist will prevent the development of gum disease.

To help avoid brittle bones, women over 35 should get an adequate amount of calcium, magnesium, and vitamins C and D in their diet. Regular exercise, such as walking and stretching, is most important, as it improves calcium absorption and stimulates bone formation. Excessive intake of coffee and alcohol, and smoking, add to bone loss and should be avoided.

Water is a vital nutrient. Your body is about two-thirds water, and contains about 40 to 50 quarts of water. In women, water content averages 55 to 65 percent, while it is around 65 to 75 percent in men.

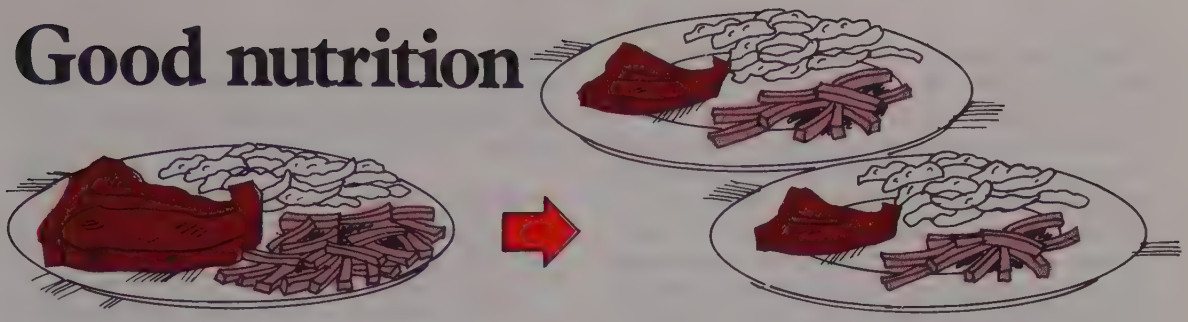
Every living body cell needs water to perform its vital function. Water aids in the digestion and absorption of nutrients, such as vitamins. It transports oxygen to the cells and removes both liquid and solid wastes. It helps the body maintain a normal temperature, and lubricates the joints. It provides a protective cushion for the tissues, and keeps skin from drying out.

How much water should you drink? Most people drink far less water than the six to eight 8-ounce glasses considered nutritionally adequate even though the fluid requirement includes fruit juices, soft drinks, milk, coffee, and tea as well as plain water. Even greater amounts of liquid are needed during periods of increased water loss in hot weather, strenuous exercise, and illness accompanied by fever. Infants and childbearing women also require extra fluids.

Water forms the larger part of most solid foods. Fruits and vegetables are about 80 percent water, green beans 89 percent, and lettuce 95 percent. Even milk is 87 percent water, and fish foods around 75 percent. Meat is half water, while bread is about one-third water by weight.

The body excretes about 2 quarts of water a day, most of it as urine. Water may also be lost in sizeable amounts through the skin by sweating, through the lungs in the process of breathing, and upon extreme exertion in strenuous exercise.

Good nutrition



Eating less meat and other high cholesterol foods will reduce deaths caused by heart disease, from which 555,000 die each year.

Most Americans eat too much. There is too much fat, refined sugar, and salt in our diets. On the whole, our diets consist of about 50 percent nonessential foods. You can, however, easily improve your eating habits for the better. Start by cutting down on fats and using polyunsaturated for saturated fats. Eat more lean meats and poultry, and fewer dairy products. Instead of overloading your diet with foods high in sugar, substitute fresh fruits and vegetables. Use low-calorie for high-calorie foods whenever possible. Limit your salt intake, using herbs to flavor food.

Types of fats

Saturated	butter	meat
Avoid use of	cheese	milk chocolate
(tend to raise	coconut,	palm oil blood cholesterol)	coconut oil	vegetable shortening egg yolks	whole milk
	lard
Monounsaturated	avocados	peanuts
Use occasionally	cashews	peanut butter
(have no effect on	olives,	peanut oil blood cholesterol)	olive oil
Polyunsaturated	almonds	pecans
Good to use	corn oil	safflower oil
(tend to lower	cottonseed oil	salad dressing blood cholesterol)	filberts	soybean oil
	fish	sunflower oil
	margarine	walnuts

Heart attacks. The average American, eating a diet high in saturated fats and cholesterol, is at greater risk of having a heart attack than other populations consuming diets low in fat and cholesterol. In the opinion of the American Heart Association, reduction of fat intake is one of the most important steps a person can take to lower the risk of heart disease. Most people obtain their total daily calories from fat. It is recommended that fat intake be cut to 30 percent, and that fats in the diet be equally divided among saturated, polyunsaturated, and monounsaturated fats.

HEALTH CARE ALERT

HEART ATTACK

A key signal: chest pain

In a heart attack, pain may range from a feeling of slight pressure in the chest to a crushing sensation.

- Generally, pain lasts for hours.
- Pain does not respond to rest, or the use of nitroglycerin.
- The face turns ashen gray, and a cold sweat appears.
- Retching, belching, or vomiting may occur, which can easily be confused with an attack of indigestion.
- Pain responds only to use of a narcotic drug.
- Act promptly: call for medical help at once, or take victim to the nearest hospital emergency room.

Chest pain may be due to a number of different causes, some of a minor nature, such as gum chewing, drinking too much carbonated water, and excessive smoking. Chest pain may also be caused by such conditions as bruised or fractured ribs or angina pectoris. Angina is similar to a heart attack in that it usually comes on with exertion (for example, running to catch a bus or train), but the type, extent, and duration of pain are quite dissimilar.

Cancer. Faulty diets, according to a report from the National Academy of Sciences, account for 30 to 40 percent of all cancers in men and as high as 60 percent in women. The cancers most exclusively linked to diet are cancers of the stomach, colon, breast, and, to a lesser extent, the lung and prostate.

Eat more fruits, vegetables, fiber. Fresh dark green, orange, and yellow vegetables (broccoli, carrots, and others) are rich in a substance called beta-carotene, which the body converts into Vitamin A. Cabbage-family vegetables (Brussels sprouts, cabbages, and others) contain several chemicals that have been found to inhibit cancer in animals. Their plentiful use is associated with a reduced risk of certain cancers, especially of the colon.

Get plenty of foods rich in Vitamin C, especially citrus and red fruits and dark green vegetables. Laboratory studies have shown that Vitamin C stops the formation of certain chemicals causing cancer. In studies of persons at high risk of cancer, Vitamin C reduced the incidence of stomach or esophageal cancer.

When dietary fiber (whole grains, fresh fruits, and vegetables) intake amounts to 20 to 40 grams a day, there is possible protection against colon and rectal cancer.

Eat less fats, smoked foods. Avoid or limit intake of dietary fats. Both saturated (for example, animal fats, butter fat, palm oil, coconut oil) and unsaturated fats (mostly vegetable oils) have been linked with increased cancer, in particular, of the breast and colon. A 25 percent reduction in all dietary fats is recommended.

Eating out . . . healthily and enjoyably

Be in control of your diet, no matter where you eat or what the occasion.

- Ask that dishes be prepared as you wish: with reduced salt or no salt at all; with margarine instead of butter; with entrees broiled, roasted, or baked.
- Avoid rich sauces, or ask that sauces be served on the side. Spoon off as much sauce as you can when you are served a precooked dish with a rich sauce. Also, pass up such salads as shrimp and tuna.
- Trim off all fat and skin from served meats.
- If high sodium seasonings, such as soy sauce, monosodium glutamate (MSG), and salt are used, ask that they be used sparingly, or not at all.
- Snack on nonfattening foods at a buffet party and leave the patés, dips, smoked fish, and the like.

Smoked, salt-cured, or pickled foods should be used sparingly. In smoking and curing, foods are exposed to certain compounds, such as the nitrosamines. These compounds cause cancer in animals and are suspect in humans.

The consumption of alcohol should be limited to one or two drinks a day, or eliminated. More than a few drinks a day has been linked to cancer of the mouth, larynx, esophagus, and respiratory tract, and beer drinking has been linked to cancer of the colon and rectum. The risk is increased with cigarette smoking.

Fact or fiction?

Cow's milk is a perfect food.
Fiction. Cow's milk may be a relatively good food for young children, but most infants fare better on mother's milk. Milk is a good food but does not contain enough of some important nutrients, especially iron, copper, and Vitamin C.

Enriched breads are nutritious.
Fact. Important vitamins and minerals (thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, and iron) are partially removed in the milling of flour. By enrichment, these substances are replaced to a level equivalent to those in whole-wheat flour or bread.

Vegetarians often develop severe nutritional deficiencies.
Fact. Strict vegetarians do not get enough Vitamin D or Vitamin B_{12} (the only B vitamin not found in any vegetable). For good sources of these vitamins, as well as calcium and protein, we must depend upon foods of animal origin.

HEALTH CARE ALERT

CANCER

Seven signals

1. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
2. A sore that does not heal.
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
4. Thickening or lump in the breast or any other part of the body.
5. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
6. Obvious change in wart or mole.
7. Nagging cough or hoarseness.

If you have any of these signals, it does not necessarily mean that you have cancer. It does mean that something is wrong in your body, and you need to check with your doctor.

Cigarette smoking is a major cause of lung cancer. For more than a decade, the number of women smokers has been increasing steadily. Today, lung cancer will kill more women than breast cancer.

Fast foods. Probably nothing has changed the eating habits of millions of Americans more than the fast-food eateries found nearly everywhere and the introduction of convenience foods, which are steadily increasing in number and variety.

Many of these foods are labeled junk foods. They provide few or no nutrients other than sugar calories. These are rightly called empty calories because they are mostly carbohydrate and contain no proteins, minerals, or vitamins. Most popular soft drinks, pastries, candies, and ice creams contain as much as 100 percent of sugar calories.

While fast foods do not fall into the junk food category, they supply either too little or too much of one or more essential nutrients. Even pizza, which contains more protein and less fat than most other fast foods, has a rather high calorie and salt content. The average American consumes nearly 10 grams of salt a day, which is more than three times the recommended daily allowance. This excessive use of salt has led health authorities to suggest that salt intake be restricted to 5 grams a day.

It pays to read food labels. You can readily check packaged foods for their sugar, sodium, or fat content by reading the labels. In general, the ingredient with the highest amount of a given substance is listed first, followed by others in descending order of content.

Familiarize yourself with other names for sugar, sodium, or fat content in packaged foods. Sugar may be listed as sucrose, glucose, zylose, fructose, mannose, and disaccharides or monosaccharides. Sodium is the main ingredient in monosodium glutamate (MSG), phosphates, nitrites, and baking soda as well as in table salt. Some manufacturers give the milligram content of sodium per serving. A product is considered high in sodium if it contains more than 350 to 500 milligrams per serving.

In general, the term "shortening," either animal or vegetable, implies that the fat is saturated, and the term "liquid vegetable oil" suggests a polyunsaturated fat. If the label lists "vegetable oil" as a main ingredient but does not specify the kind, or if it lists coconut or palm oil (high in saturated fat), it is best to avoid use of the product.

Food values of fast foods

Fast food	Calories	Protein (grams)	Carbohydrates (grams)	Fats (grams)	Sodium (mg)
Burger Chef Hamburger	258	26	39	31	962
Burger King French Fries	214	3	28	10	5
Burger King Vanilla Shake	332	11	50	11	159
Burger King Whaler	486	18	64	46	735
Burger King Whopper	606	29	51	32	909
Dairy Queen Banana Split	540	10	91	15	N.A.*
Dairy Queen Cheese Dog	330	15	24	19	N.A.*
Dairy Queen Onion Rings	300	6	33	17	N.A.*
Kentucky Fried Chicken Extra Crispy Dinner (3 pieces chicken)	950	52	63	54	1,915
Kentucky Fried Chicken Original Recipe Dinner	830	52	56	46	2,285
Long John Silver's Fish (2 pieces)	318	19	19	19	N.A.*
McDonald's Apple Pie	300	2	31	19	414
McDonald's Big Mac	541	26	39	31	962
McDonald's Chocolate Shake	364	11	60	9	329
McDonald's Egg McMuffin	352	18	26	20	914
McDonald's Filet-o-Fish	402	15	34	23	709
Pizza Hut Thick 'n Chewy Pepperoni Pizza (½ of 10-inch pie)	560	31	68	18	N.A.*
Pizza Hut Thin 'n Crispy Cheese Pizza (½ of 10-inch pie)	450	25	54	15	N.A.*
Taco Bell Taco	186	15	14	8	79
Arthur Treacher's Coleslaw	123	1	11	8	266
Arthur Treacher's Fish Sandwich	440	16	39	24	836

Source: Data supplied by the companies to the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs.
*N.A.—not available.

Watch your weight

As a nation we are becoming more obese, with the typical American adult male averaging 20 to 30 pounds of excess weight, and the typical female carrying 15 to 30 extra pounds. Overweight people are more likely to run the risk of high blood pressure, diabetes, high blood cholesterol, and heart disease.

To maintain ideal weight, it is necessary to keep your body energy needs in balance. Take in more energy than is needed and your body will store it as excess fat and you will gain weight. Take in less energy than is used up, and your body will withdraw some from the stored fat and you will lose weight. For the average person, it takes about 3500 extra calories to produce a pound of fat and, conversely, about 3500 fewer calories to use up a pound of stored fat. The easiest way to keep your weight constant is to lose any weight gain promptly, even if it is only 1 pound.

Ideal body weight may be determined by checking a table of suggested body weights. Such tables give no absolute answers on what constitutes ideal weight, but they can be helpful in determining your weight range.

Cut calories, not nutrients. There are almost as many diet plans as there are dieters. They embrace a variety of weight-loss theories: crash diets, liquid protein diets, cleansing and no-food diets, fruit juice, vegetable, or meat diets, high-fat and low-carbohydrate diets, low-fat and high-carbohydrate diets, to mention a few. To this list must be added the numerous reducing drugs that can be bought at the drugstore.

Many diet plans are nutritionally unbalanced. Most are disappointing as they seldom result in permanent weight loss. The repeated gaining, losing, and regaining of weight is considered by some health professionals to have a more damaging effect upon health than being consistently and moderately overweight. In sensible weight loss, you reduce your calorie intake without depriving your body of the nutrients needed for good health.

In the long run, the only diet that can do you real good is one that changes your bad eating habits for the better. The need is not for a 7-, or 10- or 21-day reducing plan, but a lifetime diet that includes all the Metropolitan Life height and weight tables

Compared with figures as revised in 1959, this latest update on height and weight tables issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company shows that adults can now weigh more than previously. There is an average increase in weight of 13 pounds for short men and 10 pounds for short women; 7 pounds for men of medium height, and 3 pounds for women of medium height; and 2 pounds for tall men, and 3 pounds for tall women. These tables apply to people from ages 25 to 59. The weight is stated in pounds, according to body frame size and the wearing of indoor clothing (5 pounds for men and 3 pounds for women in shoes with 1-inch heels).

Men

Height	Small frame	Medium frame	Large frame
5′ 2″	128–134	131–141	138–150
5′ 3″	130–136	133–143	140–153
5′ 4″	132–138	135–145	142–156
5′ 5″	134–140	137–148	144–160
5′ 6″	136–142	139–151	146–164
5′ 7″	138–145	142–154	149–168
5′ 8″	140–148	145–157	152–172
5′ 9″	142–151	148–160	155–176
5′ 10″	144–154	151–163	158–180
5′ 11″	146–157	154–166	161–184
6′ 0″	149–160	157–170	164–188
6′ 1″	152–164	160–174	168–192
6′ 2″	155–168	164–178	172–197
6′ 3″	158–172	167–182	176–202
6′ 4″	162–176	171–187	181–207

Women

Height	Small frame	Medium frame	Large frame
4′ 10″	102–111	109–121	118–131
4′ 11″	103–113	111–123	120–134
5′ 0″	104–115	113–126	122–137
5′ 1″	106–118	115–129	125–140
5′ 2″	108–121	118–132	128–143
5′ 3″	111–124	121–135	131–147
5′ 4″	114–127	124–138	134–151
5′ 5″	117–130	127–141	137–155
5′ 6″	120–133	130–144	140–159
5′ 7″	123–136	133–147	143–163
5′ 8″	126–139	136–150	146–167
5′ 9″	129–142	139–153	149–170
5′ 10″	132–145	142–156	152–173
5′ 11″	135–148	145–159	155–176
6′ 0″	138–151	148–162	158–179

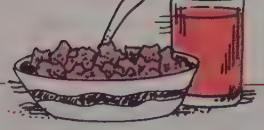
© 1983 Metropolitan Life Insurance Company/Source of basic data 1979 Build Study, Society of Actuaries and Association of Life Insurance Medical Directors of America, 1980.

essential nutrients obtained from a variety of foods. It is never too late to correct faulty eating habits, and by doing so you can help children learn good eating habits as they grow up.

To gain weight, add calories. To those who are forever fighting the battle of the midriff bulge, putting on extra pounds may seem to be an easy task. Such, however, is not always the case. Some people are naturally thin because of their inherited body build; others cannot put on weight no matter how much food rich in calories they consume. In some cases, medical problems such as hyperthyroidism or diabetes must be corrected before considering a program to gain weight.

If you are underweight, it may be due to faulty eating habits, or just eating too little food. You may not have a good appetite, which in itself may signal an underlying illness, and you may also suffer from poor digestion and absorption of food. A physical checkup may be needed to determine the cause of being underweight, or having continued weight loss, before deciding on the measures necessary to assure weight gain.

In general, a person who desires to gain weight needs to eat more nutritious food and to increase the total number of calories in the daily diet. Proper living habits are important, too: eat regular meals, take mild exercise, get sufficient sleep, and avoid tension.



Fact or fiction?

You can shed pounds by skipping breakfast. Fiction. Breakfast should be your first meal of the day, providing essential nutrients to assure body function at a high level of energy. Without breakfast, you may be tempted to snack between meals, or eat too much at the next meal.

The more exercise, the bigger the appetite. Fiction. You will not only use up calories with regular moderate exercise, but you will keep physically fit. In many cases, inactivity is a main reason for obesity in children as well as adults.

You can lose ten pounds in ten days. Fact. This is possible, but it will probably be mostly a water loss, which will be quickly replaced once you go off the crash diet. A sound weight loss program recommends a slow, sure loss of 1 or 2 pounds a week.

With determination, everyone can reduce. Fact. People who claim they cannot lose weight are usually themselves at fault. Many persons do not eat to appease hunger, but to satisfy a craving. Hunger signals the body's need for food; appetite, based on remembered eating pleasures, is a desire for certain types of food.

Food for thought

If you eat . . .	you add on . . .	to lose, you must walk
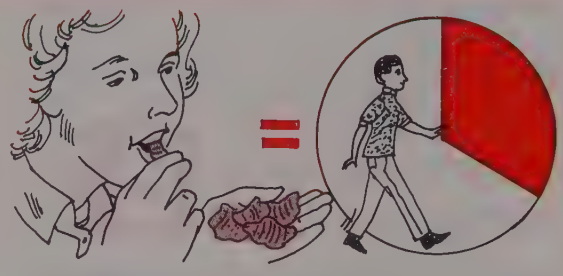
2 strips of bacon	100 calories	20 minutes
10 potato chips	100 calories	20 minutes
1 doughnut	150 calories	29 minutes
1 piece cake	358 calories	68 minutes
1 slice apple pie	375 calories	73 minutes
1 malted milk shake	500 calories	97 minutes



Substitute . . . burn off more calories. By substituting one ingredient for another in the preparation of food, and eating one type of food for another, you can reduce your total calorie intake. An ounce of pure protein or carbohydrate will produce 110 calories; an ounce of fat will supply 250 calories. These figures may help you calculate your own calorie intake from a meal or dietary plan.

Food preparation		Food consumption
Instead of . . .	Substitute	Instead of . . .	Substitute . . .	Saved calories whole milk	skim milk	2 tbsp. regular mayonnaise	2 tbsp. diet mayonnaise	about 150
cream	evaporated milk	1 cup ice cream	1 cup ice milk	about 90
sour cream	yogurt	1 regular hamburger	1 lean hamburger	about 76
cream cheese	low-fat cottage cheese	1 serving French fries	1 baked potato	about 200
whole milk cheese	skim-milk or low-fat cheese	1 can (6½ oz.) tuna, oil-packed, drained	1 can (6½ oz.) tuna water-packed, drained	about 100

Get back into shape

Moderate and regular exercise, which is good for you at any time of life, is doubly important when losing weight. It can help your body burn up unwanted fat faster while firming up muscles and flattening out bulges. Physical activity can also keep your body flexible, and help maintain muscle tone, stimulate body functions, especially the circulatory and respiratory systems, and help relieve tension.

To keep physically fit, you need not take up strenuous exercise or a demanding sport. If you make a conscious effort, you can even find plenty of opportunity to stretch and bend while you are doing some everyday task—dusting, sweeping, making the beds, weeding the garden, doing small repair jobs around the house.

Choose an exercise that you enjoy, and one suited to your physical condition, body build, age, and lifestyle. While you will benefit little from doing exercise in a lax manner, you should not overexercise to the point of physical pain or injury.

Exercise works. Walking is an excellent form of exercise, considered by health authorities to be the best overall nonstrenuous activity for the heart and legs. All you need is a comfortable pair of walking shoes. A brisk 20- to 30-minute walk each day can help you take weight off and keep it off.

Swimming, jogging, or bicycling are exercises that develop a strong heart, while calisthenics and gymnastics improve strength, agility, and muscle tone. Whatever your choice of activity, it is important to remember that it will only be beneficial and improve your state of health if you stick with it.

Energy expenditures

This table gives approximate energy expenditures by a 150-pound person in various activities.

Activity	Calories per hour
Bicycling, 5½ mph	210
Bicycling, 13 mph	660
Bowling	270
Domestic work	180
Driving an automobile	120
Gardening	220
Golf	250
Lawn mowing (power mower)	250
Lying down or sleeping	80
Roller skating	350
Running, 10 mph	900
Sitting	100
Skiing, 10 mph	600
Square dancing	350
Squash and handball	600
Standing	140
Swimming, ¼ mph	300
Tennis	420
Volleyball	350
Walking, 2½ mph	210
Walking, 3¾ mph	300
Wood chopping or sawing	400

Source: Based on material prepared by Robert E. Johnson, M.D., Ph.D., and colleagues, University of Illinois.

HEALTH CARE ALERT

ARTHRITIS

There are many forms of arthritis but, in general, sufferers are afflicted with either osteoarthritis or rheumatoid arthritis. Osteoarthritis takes a decade or longer to develop, so most sufferers are at least middle-aged. In this condition, the protective cartilage normally cushioning a joint begins to break down, causing pain and stiffness, and inflammation in some cases.

Rheumatoid arthritis (RA), unlike osteoarthritis, strikes children and young adults as well as older adults. In this arthritic disorder, the body's immune system (defense network) goes haywire and turns on the body itself. There is pain and recurrent inflammation. RA can be severely crippling.

Do not ignore these signals.

Medical care in the early stages of arthritis can often lessen the permanent damage to diseased joints. If you experience any of the symptoms listed below for more than two weeks, check with your physician.

- Swelling in one or more joints.
- Recurring pain or tenderness in any body joint.
- Inability to move a joint properly, or to perform normal activities.
- Obvious redness and warmth in one of the joints.
- Persistent early morning pain and stiffness in joints. Unexplained weight loss, fever, weakness, or fatigue combined with joint pain.

Home medical testing

Medical tests help to determine the cause of pain or disease, and in themselves become meaningful only after your physician has studied them in the light of your complete medical history. There are any number of medical tests that can be performed at home. Some require nothing more than close observation, while others, such as various urine tests, require certain medical supplies (which can be purchased at a local pharmacy), and a knowledge of how the tests should be performed. Still others, such as taking your blood pressure, call for the purchase of special equipment and must be carefully performed to be useful. Before buying medical supplies or equipment, it is advisable to check with your doctor to see if there is any drawback to home testing and to obtain detailed instructions on performing a test correctly.

Home medical testing should not be regarded as a means of making a self-diagnosis, or instituting self-treatment. Any body signals, such as persistent pain, unexplained bleeding, skin or other growths, difficulties in breathing, seeing, or hearing, or uncoordinated movements, should be promptly brought to the attention of your physician.

The tests included in this discussion do not call for the purchase of special supplies or equipment. They are intended to help you learn more about your own or your family's health, and to communicate more effectively with your doctor if a medical problem arises.

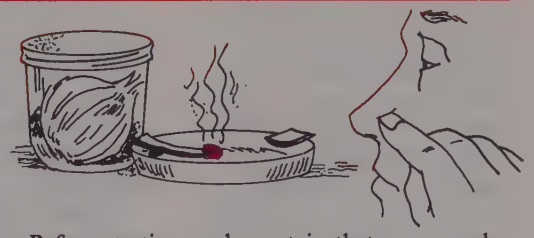
Two important tests

Taking your pulse. Pulse measurements generally consist of rate, rhythm, and character. The most frequently used location is the wrist. With the palm up, place two or three fingers of the examining hand on the thumb side of the wrist being examined. Do not use the thumb, and be careful not to apply too much pressure.

Rest for ten minutes before taking your pulse, and then take it in a sitting position. To begin with, you may want to count the pulse beats for a full minute, timing them by the second hand of a watch. As you become more experienced, you can shorten the time to half a minute, and then 15 seconds, multiplying the result by four. Normal pulse rates may range from 60 to 70 beats per minute for men and from 70 to 80 beats per minute for women. Wide variations in pulse rate, or a weak or irregular pulse, should be checked out with your doctor. Pulse rhythm may be observed at the same time that the pulse rate is being counted. It should be regular without pauses; that is, there should be no skipped beats or extra beats between normal beats. Pulse character is determined by the smoothness of the beat: no beat should be any stronger or weaker than any of the others.

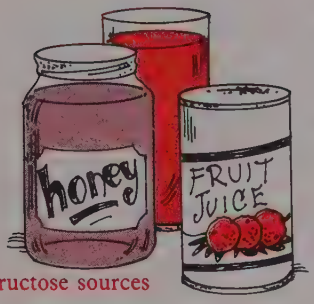
Testing your sense of smell. This type of test is more useful than it may seem at first. There are many people who live in danger of serious harm because they are unable to detect the odor that accompanies spoiled or contaminated foods, smoke from fire, escaping gas from a heating apparatus, and lethal chemical fumes.

Gather together at least three items with familiar odors, such as an onion or garlic, milk chocolate, turpentine, fresh flowers with a distinctive scent (roses, lilacs), and a burning paper match, or burning paper in an ashtray. With the exception of the burning match and paper, the items are best tested by being enclosed in a tightly closed container, and then opened for a few seconds when the test is being made.



Before starting, make certain that your nasal passages are clear. Then, begin the test by closing one nostril (apply pressure to it with a finger). Close your eyes, and smell the odor being tested through the open nostril; repeat with the other nostril. Both sides of the nose should be able to smell the tested odors with equal efficiency.

Glossary



fructose sources

Blood pressure readings

Pressure is written as a fraction: $^{120}/_{80}$ mm Hg, or 120 over 80 millimeters of mercury, which is generally regarded as an average normal pressure in an adult. The higher figure is the systolic pressure, when the heart contracts. The lower figure is the diastolic pressure, when the heart relaxes between beats. Blood pressure that consistently remains at $^{140}/_{90}$ or higher is considered to be high blood pressure, requiring medical attention.

High blood pressure is often called the silent disease, because it produces no specific symptoms and many people are unaware that they have it. You should have your blood pressure checked regularly.

For definitions of additional medical terms, see Glossary on page 96.

angina pectoris. Painful oppression about the heart which is usually severe and radiates from the heart to the shoulder and down the left arm.

antioxidant. An agent inhibiting oxidation and thereby preventing oils or fats from becoming rancid through the process of oxidation.

aromatic. The series of carbon compounds in which the carbon atoms form closed rings, such as benzene.

arthritis. An inflammatory condition of the joints in which there is usually pain and changes in structure.

asthma. A term generally used to mean bronchial asthma, which is a condition of the lungs having widespread narrowing of the airways.

calorie. The energy value of foods, calculated by the amount of heat needed to raise one kilogram of water through 1° C, a kilocalorie.

carbohydrates. Sugar; saccharides. A class of organic compounds in which hydrogen and oxygen are in the same ratio as they are in water.

cells. Minute structures that are the physical basis of all plant and animal life processes.

cellulose. A plant fiber, or fibrous form of carbohydrate, which aids peristaltic stimulation and intestinal elimination.

cholesterol. A sterol (fatlike substance) widely distributed in animal tissues, and occurring in egg yolk, various oils, fats, and nerve tissue (brain and spinal cord).

cornea. A transparent membrane that is part of the outer coat of the eyeball.

degenerative. The state in which a body part or organ becomes impaired or deteriorates.

disaccharides. One of a group of carbohydrates, dissacharose is a complex sugar that may be split into two molecules of monosaccharides.

DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid). A nucleic acid that is found in chromosomes of the nuclei of cells. It is considered to be the carrier of genetic information and the chemical basis of heredity.

enzymes. Complex proteins that are capable of inducing chemical changes in other substances without themselves becoming altered in the process.

fructose. Levulose; a fruit sugar found in corn syrup, honey, and fruit juices. Produces glycogen and maintains normal glucose content in the blood.

glaucoma. Eye disease marked by increased pressure in the eye that results in atrophy of the optic nerve and blindness.

glucose. A sugar that is formed during digestion. It is the most important carbohydrate in body metabolism.

glycogen. A polysaccharide, it is the main carbohydrate reserve in the body that is readily converted into sugar.

goiter. An enlargement of the thyroid gland.

hydrocarbon. A compound made up only of hydrogen and carbon.

hydrogenation. Adding hydrogen to a compound, especially to an unsaturated fat. In this way, soft fats or oils are solidified or "hardened."

hypertension. Condition in which a person has higher blood pressure than is considered to be normal.

mannose. An aldohexose (sugar) obtained from various plant sources: mannons (various legumes).

monosaccharide. A simple sugar (fructose, galactose, glucose) that is absorbed directly. It maintains the glucose content of the blood and aids in the production of glycogen.

monosodium glutamate. Sodium salt of glutamic acid; a white crystalline substance with a meatlike taste. It is used to flavor foods.

myoglobin. Muscle protein that transports oxygen, similar in function to blood hemoglobin.

nitrosamines. A combination of nitrites with a type of organic chemical in food known as amines. Nitrosamines are potent cancer-causing substances.

nutrient. A food supplying the body with essential elements. Carbohydrates, proteins, and alcohol provide energy. Water, electrolytes (acids, bases, salts), minerals, and vitamins are needed for metabolism.

nutrition. The taking in and utilization of food substances for body growth, repair, and maintenance. Successive stages are known as digestion, absorption, metabolism (assimilation), and excretion.

osteomalacia. A disease that is marked by increased softening of the bone. This makes bone flexible and brittle, resulting in deformities.

pectin. Plant carbohydrate that forms a gelatinous mass in the cooking of fruits and vegetables, causing them to jell.

polysaccharide. One of a group of carbohydrates that, upon hydrolysis, yields more than two molecules of simple sugars.

polyunsaturated. Refers to long-chain carbon compounds, especially fats that have many carbon atoms joined by double or triple bonds.

saccharides. A group of carbohydrates (including sugars) that is divided into these classifications: monosaccharides, disaccharides, trisaccharides, and polysaccharides.

saturated. Carbon compounds in which all the atoms are linked by single bonds.

sodium. Sodium salts are found in body fluids, serum, blood, lymph, and tissues. These salts are needed to maintain a balance between calcium and potassium for normal heart function, and for equilibrium of the body.

synthesis. In general, this is the process involved in the formation of a complex substance from simpler elements or compounds; for example, the synthesis of proteins from amino acids.

HEALTH CARE ALERT

DIABETES

In this disorder, the body does not make proper use of sugar. Sugar, derived from the food we eat, is an important fuel needed by the body to supply energy. Normally, insulin (a substance made in the pancreas) allows sugar to reach the muscles, fat, and other tissues and be burned to produce energy. In diabetes, there is not enough insulin; consequently, the sugar cannot enter the tissues.

Diabetes is found most often in persons who have a relative with diabetes, are overweight, or elderly. In some cases, adults become diabetic without developing any symptoms.

Signals of diabetes

Check with your doctor if you notice any of the following symptoms:

1. Excessive thirst
2. Increased appetite
3. Frequent urination
4. Itching of the skin, especially the genital area
5. Weakness and tiredness
6. Weight loss
7. Pain, numbness, or tingling in the hands and feet
8. Disturbances of vision
9. Irritability, nervousness, or nausea

For further reference

Bright, Deborah
Creative Relaxation: Turning Your Stress Into Positive Energy
Harcourt Brace Jovanovich

Brody, Jane
Nutrition Book: A Lifetime Guide
W. W. Norton & Company

Calabrese, E. J. and Dorsey, Michael W.
Healthy Living in an Unhealthy World
Simon & Schuster

Davis, Adelle
Let's Stay Healthy: A Guide to Lifelong Nutrition
Harcourt Brace Jovanovich

Schroeder, Henry A.
The Trace Minerals and Man: Some Positive and Negative Aspects
The Devin-Adair Company

Tubesing, D.A.
Kicking Your Stress Habits: A Do-It-Yourself Guide for Coping With Stress Whole Person Associates

Wenck, D. A.
A Supermarket Nutrition
Reston Publishing Company

Wentzler, R.
The Vitamin Book: A Complete Guide to Vitamins, Minerals and Essential Nutrients Gramercy Publishing Company

You and Modern Medicine

- You and the doctor 78
- You and the hospital 82
- You and emergency rooms 85
- You and drugs 87
- Your mental health 92
- Medical payments 95
- Glossary 96

There are doctors practicing today who have never seen a case of polio, smallpox, typhoid, childbed fever, or any number of other diseases that devastated human society in the past. As a generation, our life expectancy is longer than that of any other generation in history. Organ transplants and miraculous surgical techniques seem to promise an even brighter future.

We also live in a time when technology has outrun man's ability to absorb its implications or to use it safely and wisely. Life-saving devices are frequently perverted into death-prolonging machinery. Drugs proliferate at a rate beyond the ordinary doctor's capability to use them. Medical costs have skyrocketed, giving us the most expensive system in the world, with many of us living in dread of a catastrophic illness that could bankrupt us.

The average American is caught in the middle. This chapter is a guide for those consumers of medical services who wish to take better control of their lives and to use the medical system to their advantage.

You and the doctor

A doctor is an ordinary human being, highly and expensively trained to treat disease. He sees himself as a saver of lives. All of his training has led him to expect unquestioning obedience from his own staff, hospital personnel, and his patients.

In the past, most patients agreed that "doctor knows best," but as specialization and technology have eroded the patient-doctor relationship, many have begun to ask questions.

Recent court decisions have affirmed patients' right to know and right to informed consent. Informed consent means that the doctor must not only tell his patient what he proposes as treatment, but must make sure that the patient truly understands. A consent form, read and signed, is not enough.

Not all doctors are comfortable with this arrangement, and not all patients are ready to give up a dependent relationship.

When to look for a doctor. The key to good medical care is having a competent, knowledgeable, well-trained primary care physician. Many people postpone finding such a doctor for years. They use an orthopedist if they break a bone, or consult a dermatologist for skin problems. It is only when they become seriously ill that they begin the search. This is the very worst time to look.

A primary care physician has the opportunity to know his patients, their families, and their lifestyles. He is the logical keeper of medical records, an invaluable go-between in the mystifying world of specialists, an important member of the hospital treatment team, and more likely to treat the whole person than just the disease.

The hole left by the disappearing general practitioner is being filled by a growing number of young doctors who choose "family practice" as their specialty. The general internist also serves as a primary care physician. Pediatricians are primary care doctors for children.

How to find a doctor. Talking to as many people as possible is a good beginning in finding the right doctor. Since other doctors and medical associations are rarely frank about their fellow professionals, the most reliable source of information about doctors are friends, neighbors, storekeepers, pharmacists, and nurses.

Once a tentative list of names is compiled, The American Medical Directory (available in libraries) and your local medical association can be consulted about medical schools, medical degrees, board certification, and hospital affiliations.

Particular attention should be paid to the hospital affiliations of doctors under consideration. You should be sure that the doctor you choose is entitled to admit patients to the hospital you determine to be the best in your community.

When the list of doctors has been narrowed to one or two, it is time to make an appointment with the doctor who sounds most promising.

A good strategy is to make a list of things you wish to observe and learn. Time and extent of office hours, who takes over when the doctor is not available, and how he can be reached in an emergency should be among the items on the list. You will want to inquire about fees, and how and when they are payable. Women will ask whether the doctor handles routine gynecological matters, and people with children will ask at what age their children will be accepted as patients.

How a doctor's office is run can affect the quality of medical care. A crowded waiting room may mean poor scheduling. The amount of time you are kept waiting on your first visit probably will not change. Only you can decide what your limits are.

A concerned, courteous, and helpful office staff is an important link between patient and doctor. An arrogant, disinterested, or rude staff can put a real stumbling block in the way of your getting the most for your medical dollar.

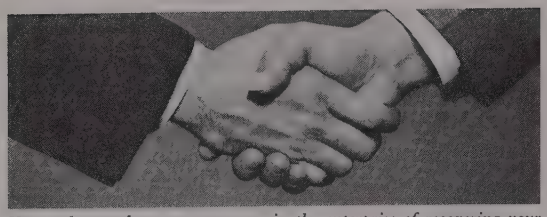
Getting the most from a doctor.

A successful patient is one who has reasonable expectations from his doctor; who learns as much as he can

Do not lie to the doctor

Many people have things in their lives that they do not want anyone to know about. These things should not be kept from the doctor. Drinking more than just occasionally is a habit he needs to know about—not only because of its possible effect on physical health, but because it can influence the kinds of medications he may safely prescribe. A three-pack-a-day smoker should own up, as should users of drugs, even recreationally. Venereal diseases are treatable but not if you are too embarrassed to describe your symptoms. If you are not comfortable discussing such things with your doctor, you should not hesitate to change to someone you are comfortable with.

It is not uncommon for a patient to accept a prescription and then, for some reason, not use it. The doctor should know about this, too. Consulting another doctor when not satisfied is a mistake only when you fail to tell your own doctor in advance.



You and your doctor are partners in the enterprise of recovering your health. Like all successful partnerships, it requires mutual trust.

about his own illness and treatment; and who follows instructions or informs his doctor when he is not doing so and why. He gets to know the office nurse and talks frankly and openly to her about why he is calling and what he expects from the phone call. He learns to be explicit and insistent with the answering service, and he also learns the value of an early call when he is feeling ill (perhaps making it easier for him to place a call in the middle of the night). A combination of assertiveness and consideration is as effective in dealing with a doctor as it is in dealing with the rest of the world.

When to change doctors. A continuing feeling of dissatisfaction is a valid reason for changing doctors. The frequent changing of doctors is deplored by the medical profession, and may be an indication that the patient has unrealistic expectations; however, when needs are not being met, it is time for a change.

In the case of doctor error, each case should be decided on its own merits. A mistake that is freely acknowledged and does not represent a pattern of carelessness is not necessarily a reason for change. An error that is life-threatening may permanently shake our confidence, however, and make a change advisable.

When to call the doctor

People are often reluctant to call the doctor for fear of being either a nuisance or an alarmist. There are symptoms that call for an immediate call to the doctor and an immediate response from him.

Symptoms to take seriously

- Chest pain; sudden rapid or irregular pulse
- Difficulty in breathing
- Sudden coughing up of blood
- Severe nosebleed
- Inability to urinate or defecate
- Sudden and profuse vaginal bleeding
- Severe abdominal pain
- Blood in the stool
- Uncontrollable vomiting or diarrhea
- Inability to swallow
- Sudden loss of vision
- Eye pain or double vision
- Loss of balance, hearing, or sudden weakness
- Mental confusion, fainting, or vertigo
- Headache accompanied by stiff neck
- Very high or very low temperature

GET A SECOND OPINION!

Surgery is not always the only effective treatment. Check with another qualified surgeon before agreeing to even minor surgery.

Do you need a specialist? The decision to consult a specialist should always be made after consultation with your primary care doctor. A referral from him will insure that you are seeing someone whose competence he trusts, and that your care will continue in the hands of someone you trust.

A consultation with a specialist does not mean that you will continue to see him on an extended basis. Although your internist may wish you to see a cardiologist for diagnosis of a heart problem, he is quite capable of monitoring and managing heart conditions himself. Not only will this make you more comfortable; it will save you money as well because internists' fees are usually lower than those of specialists.

What about surgery? Surgeons not only save lives but improve the quality of life for many people. They also are rather single-minded in that they are inclined to think only in terms of surgical procedures, frequently rejecting alternative methods of treatment. Since even minor surgery can be hazardous, the patient and his primary care doctor must be on guard against unnecessary surgery.

Many insurance companies now require and pay for a second opinion when surgery is recommended. There are certain operations that are widely considered to be overperformed. If any of the operations listed below are advised, it is wise to ask for a second opinion.

Overused surgical procedures. These operations, which used to be considered more or less routine, are often thought to be unnecessary today. As with any operation, be sure you get the very best advice before proceeding with:

- Hysterectomy
- Oophorectomy (removal of ovaries)
- Tonsillectomy
- Gallbladder removal
- Radical mastectomy
- Dilation and curettage
- Caesarean section

Doctors: Who they are and what they do

Primary care

Family Practitioner. Receives additional training in family medicine. Replaces old general practitioner. Provides care from birth to death.

Internist. Not to be confused with intern, a recent medical school graduate. Practices "internal medicine." Training qualifies him to care for adult patients in all matters that do not require surgery.

Pediatrician. Trained to deliver primary care to children from infancy to adolescence.

Specialists

Allergist. Treats such diseases as asthma, hay fever, or skin allergy.

Anesthesiologist. Administers anesthetics, or pain killers, during an operation.

Cardiologist. Highly trained to treat complicated diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

Dermatologist. Specializes in diseases of the skin.

Endocrinologist. Deals with disorders of the glandular system.

Gastroenterologist. Treats diseases of the digestive organs—esophagus, stomach, bowels, liver, and pancreas.

Gerontologist. Deals with aging and the problems of old people.

Hematologist. Expert in diseases of the blood.

Infectious Disease Specialist. Helps treat patients with serious or baffling diseases.

Nephrologist. Specializes in diseases of the kidney.

Neurologist. Qualified to treat illnesses of the nervous system.

Obstetrician/Gynecologist. Manages pregnancies, delivers babies, and handles problems concerning the reproductive organs of women.

Oculist. Deals with diseases of the eye.

Oncologist. Treats malignancies; decides on appropriate treatment and administers it.

Pulmonary Specialist. Treats diseases of the lungs; performs pulmonary function tests and bronchoscopy.

Radiologist. Gives and interprets x-ray photographs.

Rheumatologist. Cares for patients with diseases of the joints, and treats diseases such as rheumatoid arthritis, systemic lupus erythematosus, and scleroderma.

Nonmedical Specialists

Osteopath. Licensed to practice medicine and perform surgery, specializes in musculoskeletal manipulation.

Chiropractor. Licensed in most states to practice a system of manipulation of the spine.

Optometrist. Tests the eye for defective vision in order to prescribe corrective lenses.

Podiatrist. Trained in a four-year program as a specialist in disorders of the feet. Admitted to practice in many hospitals, but usually treat and operate on an outpatient basis.

Surgeons

General. Trained to perform abdominal, gynecological, and vascular surgery. In most urban areas, removes gallbladders, appendixes, moles, and cysts. Performs hysterectomies and repairs hernias.

Cardiac. Performs heart surgery such as coronary bypass and grafts. Removes aortic aneurysms.

Neurosurgeon. Operates on brain and spinal tumors, performs back surgery, repairs carotid arteries.

Obstetric/Gynecologic. Performs surgery related to the female reproductive system.

Ophthalmologic. Eye surgeons. Will also treat diseases of the eye.

Orthopedic. Sets bones, replaces joints, pins hips, and cares for traumatic injuries.

Otolaryngologic. Ear, nose, and throat.

Plastic. Performs both cosmetic and reconstructive surgery.

Urologic. Operates on the prostate, scrotum, bladder, and kidneys.

You and the hospital

The modern hospital is a remarkable place. It is a scene of human drama, where lives are saved, pain is eased, babies are born, and people die. The hospital is also a place where serious errors in treatment may be made, where unnecessary surgery may be performed, where technology may prolong life when there is no hope for survival, and where even strong-minded individuals are reduced to childlike dependency.

Increasingly, doctors and insurance companies recognize the advantages of limiting hospital stays, not only to save money for the patient and his insurer, but to assure the ultimate well-being of the individual.

Before you go. When the doctor recommends putting you in the hospital, it is time to ask serious questions and to make sure they are answered satisfactorily. Are there alternatives? What are the benefits? What are the risks? Is it an emergency? Can it be postponed? Is a second opinion advisable? How long will I be there?

Frequently, hospitalization is suggested by a specialist, and it may be wise to postpone decisions until you have discussed the situation with your primary care doctor.

Which hospital to choose. Factors such as what is available in the community, where your doctor has admission privileges, or where an ambulance takes you after an accident often limit your choices. Large and famous is not always better. Open heart surgery is probably best performed in a large medical center where there is a concentration of specific skills and experience; the gallbladder patient, however, may actually receive better care in a small community hospital.

Although differences may be blurred in specific cases, the kinds of hospitals can be categorized:

Teaching hospitals are connected with medical schools, are usually large, and are staffed by students, residents, and doctors who both teach and attend patients.

Public hospitals are the large institutions funded by local, county, state, or federal governments. They also have interns, residents, and a permanent medical staff.

Private and community hospitals are usually operated on a not-for-profit basis. They may or may not have a house staff, and they are operated for the convenience of the doctors who admit patients.

Nursing and convalescent homes are designed for patients who no longer need full medical facilities and who cannot be cared for at home.

There are no simple guidelines, but a little research into available facilities, before they are needed, will help a great deal. Nursing homes, particularly, should be investigated in advance. When you visit, talk with patients and their families. Ask your own doctor if a particular home is a place he recommends.

Your decision is made. Before packing a bag and finding your health insurance card, choose a member of your family or a close friend to act as your personal advocate during your stay in the hospital. When the person in the admitting office asks for "next of kin," give the name of the person you wish to serve as advocate. If the hospital requires further authorization, you will be informed at that time. Your advocate will be able to keep track of your treatment, ask questions on your behalf, register legitimate complaints, and stand between you and hospital bureaucracy.

Defend against hospital error. Most people emerge from the hospital in better health than when they went in. Usually, their most serious complaints deal with the food or difficulty in sleeping.

Can you stay out of the hospital?

1. Not all surgery requires hospitalization.
2. Many tests and procedures can be performed on an outpatient basis.
3. Many kinds of medical care can be delivered at home through the use of community services.
4. Families of the terminally ill have more options as a result of the hospice movement and changing attitudes toward care of the dying.

How to help yourself in the hospital

Ask questions!
Do not remain ignorant of what is being done for you.

1. Make sure you get the right medication.
2. Make sure you get your medication on time.
3. Make sure you get the right tests—not someone else's tests.
4. Make sure you get the food your doctor ordered for you.

However, wrong medications, wrong tests, and needless exposure to invasive procedures are all hazards.

Patients are not helpless. The person who constantly asks questions or has his personal advocate ask them in his behalf is putting up a good defense against error. No procedure, test, or medication should come as a surprise—it could be meant for someone else. Make a point of knowing your medication schedule; if medication does not come on time, ask for it. If it is new or unfamiliar, make sure that it is intended for you.

If you have been told to take nothing by mouth prior to surgery or a diagnostic test, do not assume that the arrival of your breakfast tray means that someone has changed his mind.

Be sure to take some of your personal belongings to the hospital. Do not forget your eye glasses so that you can read or watch television.

What to pack for your stay. As an antidote to the loss of identity that usually occurs when you walk through hospital doors, take part of your home with you: snapshots, a favorite bathrobe, even if it is old, your own cosmetics, deodorant, shaving cream, and toothpaste. Leave valuables at home, but you may want to take a small battery-run radio with earphones. Arrange to have your favorite newspaper delivered. Maintaining a sense of your own personality will help you to stand up for yourself and to make the best use of the facilities that exist to restore you to health.

When you get there. Checking into a hospital used to be an interminable ordeal. Today, many hospitals arrange for blood tests, x-rays, urine analyses, and many diagnostic tests to be done well in advance of admission. The vast amount of preadmission paperwork is handled by the admitting office before you arrive. This has worked to shorten hospital stays and has nearly eliminated those weekend admissions that once resulted in a patient's being tucked into a very expensive hospital bed days in advance of his need for it.

The Patient's Bill of Rights

The patient has a right to:

- Complete, current information concerning his diagnosis, treatment, and prognosis in terms he can understand.
- Information necessary to give informed consent prior to any medical procedures, except in emergencies, including knowledge of significant risks, duration of incapacitation, alternatives for care or treatment, and the names of persons who will perform the procedures.
- Refuse treatment to the extent permitted by law, and to be informed of the medical consequences of refusal.
- Privacy concerning medical care, diagnosis, and records.
- Reasonable response to requests for services.
- Not be transferred to another facility without his permission.
- Be advised if treatment involves human experimentation.
- Refuse such experimentation.
- Continuity of care following discharge.
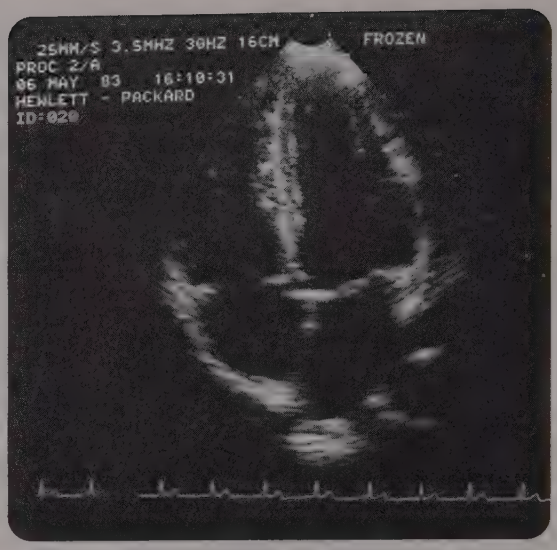
- Examine and receive an explanation of charges regardless of source of payment.

—excerpted from a document prepared by the American Hospital Association

What about all those tests? As diagnostic techniques have improved and expanded, and words like "CAT scan" and "sonogram" have entered ordinary language, doctors have an increasingly difficult time knowing when to stop testing. Hospitals have enormous sums of money invested in machinery; the way to pay for them is to charge for their use.

Another factor in overtesting is the doctor's real fear of malpractice suits. This seems to be a byproduct of overspecialization on the part of the medical profession. A patient who has developed a comfortable and trusting relationship with his doctor rarely sues, even when things go wrong.

You and your primary doctor can work together to ensure that you get only those tests that are absolutely necessary. High-risk, invasive procedures, such as arteriograms or surgical biopsies, require especially careful consideration. They will not be performed without your consent, but before giving that consent be sure to ask about benefits, risks, and alternatives.



New computer-aided testing equipment has made the diagnosis of illness more reliable. This is an ultrasound image of the heart at work.

What they mean when they say . . .

CAT scan	(Computerized tomography) An x-ray technique that photographs cross-sections of the body. Normal x-rays produce pictures that are flat, like a photograph; the CAT scan sends rays through the body that are picked up by a scanner, fed into a computer, and visualized on a screen. This procedure has eliminated many complicated and high-risk tests.
Sonogram	(Ultrasound examination) High-frequency sound waves are directed at the body; the echoes are received on a TV screen and recorded photographically. This procedure is often performed in the last trimester of pregnancy to determine the position and health of the fetus.
EEG	(Electroencephalogram) Electrodes are glued to the scalp, and the electrical activity of the brain is painlessly recorded.
EKG	(Electrocardiogram) A machine records the electrical activity of the heart. It gives information about heartbeat, the strength of the heart, and the location of any injury. A stress test is an EKG given while the patient is exercising.
Spinal tap	(Lumbar puncture) A small amount of fluid is drawn from the spinal column to test the internal pressure or to provide a sample for laboratory testing.
Biopsy	A surgical procedure, often performed under a local anesthetic, in which a small amount of tissue is obtained for laboratory study.
GI series	(Upper and lower) X-ray pictures are taken of the digestive tract after the introduction of barium, by mouth or by enema, to make the tract visible.
Amniocentesis	Fluid is drawn from the amniotic sac surrounding the fetus during the end of the first trimester of pregnancy. Cells grown in the laboratory provide information about such genetic defects as Down's syndrome.

You and emergency rooms

Some emergency rooms are little more than first-aid stations with a nurse on duty and a doctor on call; others are full-scale trauma centers attached to major medical centers. The average emergency room falls somewhere in between. Locating and evaluating emergency rooms in your immediate area could save a life. The closest place to go is not always the best place to go in a true emergency.

What to look for. A well-run emergency room is staffed around the clock by doctors trained in emergency medicine. If there is not a permanent house staff, specialists are on call. Emergency rooms attached to good hospitals have access to cardiac and intensive care units; these can assume great importance for patients needing such care.

A talk with your doctor about nearby facilities should prove helpful; your choice will be governed by his hospital affiliations whenever possible.

Before you go. No matter how serious the emergency, a cool head is essential. A call to your own doctor for his help in evaluating the seriousness of the emergency is wise. His call to the emergency room—warning them that you are on the way and ordering whatever tests or treatments he thinks necessary—will cut a lot of red tape and assure fast attention. If you cannot reach your doctor before leaving, have the hospital call him on arrival.

In the face of an emergency, calling an ambulance is almost a reflex action. When there is a suspected heart attack, poisoning, severe pain, impaired breathing, or any condition in which rapid medical help is essential, it is best to use whatever transportation is available—personal car, taxi, or police car. Many police departments have trained their officers in basic first aid and equipped their cars with life-saving apparatuses.

If there is time, locate insurance cards, regular medication, and, in the case of poisoning or drug overdose, the original container the substance came in. If there is not enough time, a neighbor or a friend can follow soon after with the appropriate information.

True emergencies

- Severe and uncontrolled bleeding
- Serious difficulty in breathing
- Choking
- Poisoning
- Severe chest pain
- Convulsions
- Heat stroke
- Unconsciousness
- Severe injuries
- Stabbing or bullet wounds, severe burns
- Diabetic acidosis or shock from hypoglycemia
- Hypothermia

DO NOT BE TIMID!

Remember to leave tact and good manners at home. An emergency room is no place to assume automatically that somebody else knows best or to let consideration of other people sway your judgment. If you know that the condition is serious, do whatever is necessary to make sure that the doctor and nurses know it too.

When you get there. At a glance, the average emergency room looks like a scene of total chaos. Despite appearances, there is a system functioning called "triage." This means that a nurse, a doctor, or other emergency room personnel will determine who will have first call on limited facilities and personnel. Top priority is assigned to patients with suspected heart attacks, seriously injured accident victims, cases of poisoning or drug overdose, or those in need of immediate attention.

Although many people tell horror stories about interminable hours spent waiting for attention, as a rule those who need help the most get it the quickest. To the parent of an hysterical child who has suffered a non-life-threatening injury, the system may seem unfair and insensitive. But remember, the person in charge must balance urgent need against discomfort and inconvenience.

Children and emergencies. Mothers of large families may, when the children are grown up, swear that they spent most of their children's younger years in one emergency room or another. The most common reasons for these trips are accidents, poisoning, and difficulties in breathing.

Often there seems to be a conflict of interest between medical personnel and parents. No child should be left unattended by a familiar adult or made to go through any procedure alone. Parents are often asked to leave the room in the interest of the child's welfare. The answer to that request is an emphatic "No!" Keep quiet and calm, but stay. Your leaving may be better for the doctors and nurses, but it is not better for the child.

The elderly and emergencies. Fractures are the most common reason for trips by the elderly to emergency rooms. Pseudo-dementia is a close second. If an elderly person becomes suddenly disoriented, hallucinates, or shows signs of paranoia, he may be suffering from a drug reaction. If the attending doctor has a list of all the prescription and nonprescription drugs that the patient is taking, it may save time, money, and discomfort. The tests to determine organic causes, such as those in Alzheimer's disease, stroke, etc., are complicated, upsetting, and expensive.

The emergency room doctor. If the emergency room does not have a permanent medical staff, it does have a list of doctors who are on call. Make clear to the admitting desk, and to the doctor you see, that you do have your own doctor and that you do wish to have him informed as soon as possible. Although you may receive excellent care from the available doctor, if hospital admission is indicated, you may not welcome the discovery that you have inadvertently changed doctors. It is better to be clear in the beginning than to try to sort things out later.

Misusing the emergency room. The hospital emergency room has become a substitute for a personal doctor in many people's lives. Families often postpone finding a doctor when they move to a new community and fall into the habit of going to the nearest emergency room whenever anyone in the family needs medical care. Tetanus shots, medication for sore throats, or examination of a sick child are very expensive when delivered by an emergency room.

Other people have a very low tolerance for suffering, their own as well as that of other people. A bump on the head when there is no loss of consciousness, a minor cut that bleeds profusely, mild muscle sprains or strains, and vomiting when there is no indication of poisoning are not reasons for taking up valuable time and space in a busy emergency room. A course in first aid at the local Red Cross—and a greater use of your doctor's telephone number—will save money.

Should you be admitted? Admission to the hospital is not necessarily the outcome of a visit to an emergency room. If your own doctor is on hand or on the other end of a telephone, this decision should be made under his guidance.

If your own doctor is not available, the discussion will need to be carried on with the attending physician. No one would think of taking a suspected heart attack victim home until his condition has been verified, but a bump on the head may be a different matter. Careful questioning, followed by the use of your own common sense, should resolve the matter.

Unless you are far from home or have been taken by an ambulance to a hospital where your doctor does not have admitting privileges, try to make sure that the hospital has the name of your primary care doctor. If your doctor is not available, you are entitled to be admitted by a private doctor of your choice.

If you are not admitted to the hospital, you should inquire about follow-up care. For example, who will remove the stitches?

Post a note by the telephone

Display prominently the telephone number of your local police and your own street address. Emergency police cars can arrive at your house in minutes. Also, households with young children or elderly parents should place a notice near the telephone for use by babysitters or caretakers.

- If you have found a primary care doctor, investigated local hospitals and emergency rooms, and located a pharmacist you can rely on, this information should be readily available when you are out of the house.
- Current medications, how they are taken, and for what conditions should be noted.
- If children are likely to have croup or experience allergic reactions, the measures to take in case of an attack should be described.
- Working mothers with regular, reliable babysitters or housekeepers should make certain that the doctor knows their names and whether or not they are empowered to act in your behalf.

You and drugs

Most drugs simply alleviate symptoms, modify the course of an illness, or assist the body to achieve normal functioning. Our own bodies fight most illnesses better than most drugs. Given time, many conditions improve without any treatment. For example, early diabetes can often be controlled by diet alone. And drugs used to control high blood pressure need assistance from a modified diet and appropriate exercise.

Otherwise sensible people cling to the notion that all they need to recover from any illness, from a cold to cancer, are the right words written on a prescription blank, or the right bottle of nonprescription medicine brought home from the drugstore.

Any drug powerful enough to have a significant effect on a disease also has the potential to cause harm. The risks range from slight to major, and it is the job of the patient and his doctor to weigh risks against benefits. Powerful drugs are to be reserved for serious illnesses.

No one should refuse medication that is thoughtfully and knowledgeably prescribed, but the wise person guards against misuse and overuse of medication by assuming personal responsibility for knowing as much as possible and for following directions.

Doctors are human. Most of us have nagged our doctors for a prescription that we think we need to make us feel better, and most doctors have written unnecessary prescriptions for the same reason. In the past, doctors had a very limited number of effective drugs they could use, so they sometimes offered their patients "sugar pills" to make them feel better.

Today, however, modern pharmacology has made a bewildering number of drugs available to doctors, making it difficult for them to keep up with their names, much less their efficacy and side effects. When today's physician reaches for his copy of the Physician's Desk Reference to look up a drug he is about to prescribe, he is demonstrating sound medical sense and taking care to prescribe the right drug for the right condition.

The smart patient should not hesitate to use the same reference book, which is available in libraries and pharmacies, before starting a new medicine. Although the information may seem too extensive and too technical, it will provide a basis for asking further questions of your doctor. Understanding all you can about your medication should make it easier to follow instructions and to make the most effective use of it.

Doctors complain that their patients accept prescriptions that they never fill, fill prescriptions that they never take, and take medication only until they feel better. If the goal is to form a full partnership with a doctor, thus ensuring better care, such quirks on the part of a patient get in the way. A doctor needs to know about the course of a disease—what worked and what did not, why a patient seemed to recover and then had a relapse, etc. Good information is one way to ensure good care.

Warning signs when taking medication

- Rash, nausea, swelling, muscle cramps
- Trouble with urination, heart, breathing, circulation, headaches, vision
- Yellowing of skin or eyes
- Depression or exhilaration
- Weight gain or loss
- Stomach upset, constipation, or diarrhea
- Feeling worse or showing no sign of improvement

How to use your pharmacist. Pharmacists are highly trained professionals who are well informed on the use, composition, and effects of drugs. They are qualified not only to advise the consumer, but the doctor as well. They are not allowed to prescribe medications, make a diagnosis, or refuse to fill a prescription. They can offer advice about nonprescription medicines and are usually willing to take the time to answer questions about prescription drugs.

Many good pharmacists keep a complete drug record on each customer; as more and more stores are computerized, this information is stored for instant retrieval.

In an effort to save money, many people use the discount drug stores and chain stores. The pharmacists in these large operations are inaccessible to customers and do not keep personal drug profiles. It is advisable to balance the advantages and disadvantages in making a choice between a well-stocked neighborhood pharmacy and a large commercial operation.

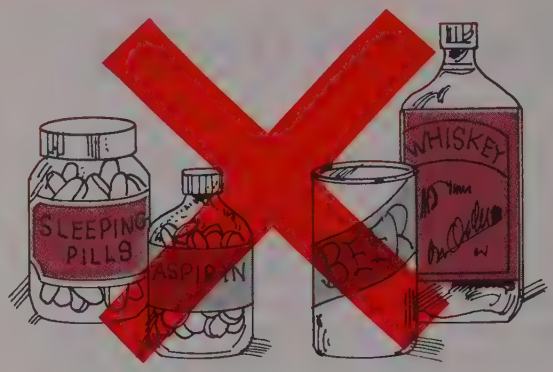
Over-the-counter drugs. After this category of drugs was studied by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), many over-the-counter drugs were taken off the market because they were judged to be ineffective.

Some drugs do not mix safely

(see drug chart on pages 90-91)

Do not take even an aspirin without consulting your doctor or pharmacist if you are taking prescription medication. Aspirin, for example, taken with anticoagulants, increases the anticoagulant effect of the aspirin and internal bleeding can result.

Alcohol, even in small quantities, can have fatal effects when combined with barbituates.



It is reasonably safe to use nonprescription drugs for such conditions as a bad cold, headache, mild allergic reaction, constipation, mild diarrhea, or any condition that is self-limiting—so long as you receive some guidance from a doctor or pharmacist.

Elderly people, young children, pregnant women, or people who are taking prescription medication should exercise particular care.

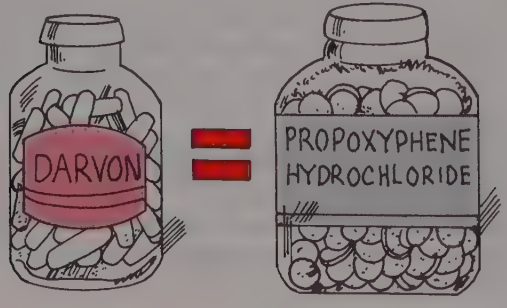
Make sure to read the label, avoiding medications that contain more than two active ingredients. Make sure not to use these preparations to put off a visit to the doctor for a condition that might be serious.

Brand name vs. generic. Achromycin is a brand name antibiotic that costs just under $10. Tetracycline is its generic equivalent; it costs about half that amount. The drugs are equally effective and pharmacists in all states are permitted to fill a prescription with either drug, providing the doctor has not specifically forbidden it.

Unfortunately for the consumer, not all brand-name drugs have a generic equivalent available. Some are still protected by patent. Until recently, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) made approval of generic copies so complicated and expensive that there was no real incentive for other drug companies to manufacture copies, even when the patent expired.

But now, under a recent FDA ruling, drug companies will be able to issue generic copies so long as they demonstrate that the generic drugs are chemically the same and that they perform in the same way as the brand-name drugs. Any FDA-approved generic drug is as safe and effective as any brand-name drug. The saving to the consumer should be enormous.

Darvon is one of a half-dozen brands, all relatively expensive, for the common generic analgesic Propoxyphene Hydrochloride, which costs much less.



Medicine and high-risk groups.

These three groups are at particular risk, and extra precautions must be taken to ensure that medications are effective and do no harm.

Children. Children not only require smaller doses of drugs than adults, but they frequently react in opposite ways. Sedatives may stimulate, and stimulants may sedate. Children should be given only those medicines prescribed for them by their own doctor.

Adults should make their own medicine-taking a very private affair. Many doctors and psychologists feel that children who observe their parents taking drugs for any discomfort are getting a message that could pave the way for drug abuse at a later age.

Pregnant women. Extraordinary care must be exercised when taking medication during pregnancy. Nursing mothers should practice the same restraint. The fetus was once considered totally secure while in the womb. The tragic thalidomide babies were a testament to the fallacy of that perception.

Not all pregnant women can forego all medication, but they must cooperate closely with an obstetrician who is sensitive to the possible dangers.

The elderly. This group can present their doctors, their caretakers, and even themselves with troublesome medication problems. They complain of lack of sleep, lose their appetites, develop aches and pains, break bones, lose their sharpness of sight and hearing, and find that their vital organs have slowed in their functioning. As a result, many of them become doctor shoppers and enthusiastic consumers of vast quantities of prescription and over-the-counter drugs. To add to their problems, many old people swap drugs with each other. The result may be a drug-induced nightmare for those who love the elderly and care for them.

A single primary care physician—a gerontologist or an internist—can act as a deterrent to freewheeling drug use. Not only will one doctor have a record of all the drugs taken, but the patient can be encouraged to substitute exercise, relaxation, and good nutrition for some of the medication. An introduction to commonly prescribed drugs, their generic names, and a guide to possible problems appears on the next page.

The home medicine cabinet

The bathroom medicine cabinet is often a disorderly jumble of deodorants, toothpaste, expired prescriptions, cosmetics, dried-up cough syrups, and empty Band-Aid boxes. This may lead to a small child's being rushed to the emergency room after eating a bottle of aspirin.

The smart thing to do is to clean up and lock up. Medications belong in a locked cabinet, preferably located in a cool, dry place. All out-of-date medications should be discarded. The pharmacist will usually be willing to make recommendations about what to keep and what to flush down the toilet.

Home remedies should be confined to a few reliable kinds, and first-aid supplies should be kept organized and ready to use.

A well-ordered medicine cabinet will reduce the temptation to self-medicate with leftover prescription drugs.

Suggestions for the home pharmacy

Keep	For
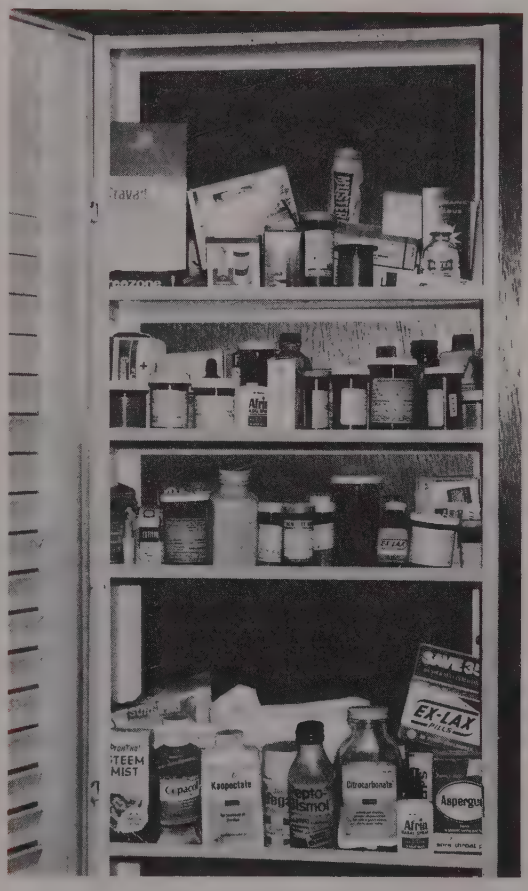
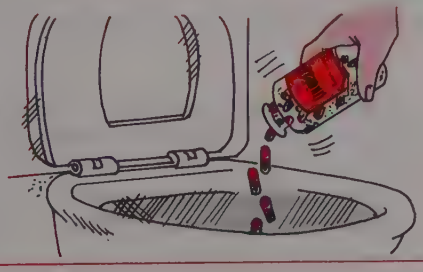
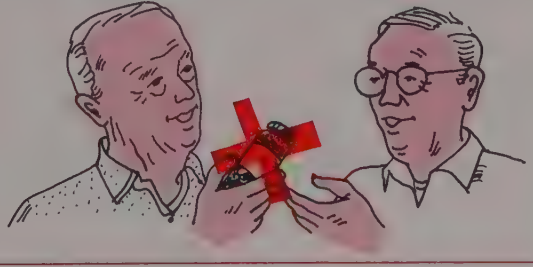
Aspirin or nonaspirin pain reliever	Pain or fever
Antacid	Upset stomach
Adhesive tape and bandages	Covering minor wounds
Hydrogen peroxide	Antiseptic
Sodium bicarbonate	For soaking
Syrup of ipecac	To induce vomiting
Milk of magnesia	Constipation
Kaopectate	Diarrhea
Eyedrops	Simple irritation
Hydrocortisone ointment	Poison ivy, other rashes



Home remedies and first-aid supplies should be kept in one place. Teach children not to open the cabinet doors, which should be kept locked. Do not give old medicines to friends. Destroy them by flushing them down the toilet.





A sample listing of frequently prescribed drugs

Brand name	Generic	Possible problems
Pain killers
Darvon	Propoxyphene hydrochloride	Habit forming; avoid alcohol, muscle relaxants, tranquilizers, nervous system depressants
Percodan	Oxycodone, aspirin, phenacetin, caffeine	Avoid alcohol, sedatives, antihistamines, oral diabetes drugs, muscle relaxants
Antibiotics
Achromycin V, SK-Tetracycline, Sumycin	Tetracycline	Avoid milk, dairy products, exposure to sun; oral anticoagulants may have increased effects
Amcill, Omnipen, SK-Ampicillin	Ampicillin	Avoid other antibiotics and antacids
E. E. S., E-Mycin, Erypar, Erythrocin, Ethril	Erythromycin	Avoid other antibiotics and alcohol
Penicillin, SK-Penicillin VK, Pen-Vee K	Penicillin	Avoid if you have a past history of allergy to any penicillin; to be taken for full treatment on empty stomach; do not take with fruit juice; avoid antacids
Anticoagulants
Coumadin, Panwarfin	Warfarin	Avoid if pregnant or a nursing mother
Antihypertensives
Aldactatone	Spirionolactone plus hydrochlorothiazide	This group of drugs, used to control high blood pressure, must be taken under regular supervision of the doctor with attention to high or low potassium levels; before any surgical procedure, the surgeon and anesthetist must know about the medication (this includes dental surgery); Regroton can cause sensitivity to sunlight
Apresoline	Hydralazine plus hydrochloride
Inderal	Propranolol plus hydrochloride
Lopressor	Metoprolol plus tartrate
Regroton	Resperine plus chlorthalidone
Oral antidiabetics
Diabinese	Chlorpropamide	Avoid taking anticoagulants, aspirin, diuretics, or any other medication without consulting a doctor
Ulcer medication
Cogentin	Benztropine mesylate	Can cause sensitivity to sunlight; do not take within an hour of antacid or diarrhea medication
Tagamet	Cimetidine	Avoid anticoagulants, some penicillins, Valium, Librium, etc., and alcohol and caffeine

Psychiatric medications

Brand name	Generic	Possible problems
Major tranquilizers
Thorazine	Chlorpromazine	These are important drugs used in controlling serious mental illness; they have many side effects when taken over an extended period of time; many patients discontinue medication when they feel better or because of side effects; taking these drugs can mean the difference between being hospitalized or being able to live in the community; cooperation on the part of the patient and careful management on the part of the doctor are essential
Prolixin	Fluphenazine
Mellaril	Thioridazine hydrochloride
Stelazine	Trifluoperazine
Haldol	Haloperidol
Navane	Thiothixene
Minor tranquilizers
Librium	Chlordiazepoxide	No other medication should be taken without consulting a doctor; alcohol can be highly dangerous
Valium	Diazepam
Equanil	Meprobamate
Serax	Oxazepam
Tranxene	Clorazepate
Xanax	Alprazolam
MAO inhibitor antidepressants
Marplan	Isocarboxazid	Aged cheese, aged meat, pods of broad beans, beer, wine, pickled herring, yogurt, liver, yeast extract, heavy amounts of caffeine, bananas, soy sauce, anchovies, avocados, and sour cream (all with high tramine content) must be avoided; can cause dangerous rise in blood pressure
Nardil	Phenelezine
Parnate	Transylcypromine sulfate
Tricyclic antidepressants
Tofranil	Imipramine	Take two to six weeks to become effective; do not combine with other medication except on doctor's specific instruction; avoid alcohol; may have side effects like dry mouth or constipation; people over 60 years of age should have heart and blood pressure checked before beginning medication and regularly thereafter
Norpramin	Desipramine
Elavil	Amitriptyline
Sleeping pills
Seconal	Secobarbital	Tolerance develops very quickly and physical addiction can occur from extended use; withdrawal can be dangerous if not undergone slowly; absolutely avoid combining with alcohol
Nembutal	Phenobarbital
Sodium Amytal	Amobarbital

You and mental health

Many people are uncomfortable with discussions of mental illness. A persistent stomach ache sends us to the doctor at once, yet the pain from a deep depression may be endured for months or years out of fear or shame. We talk freely of triple bypass heart surgery or kidney dialysis, but speak of schizophrenia in whispers. Alcoholism or drug addiction may be fervently denied in the face of incontrovertible evidence.

What is mental illness? Mental illnesses fall roughly into two categories: neuroses and psychoses. Neurotic symptoms may become disabling, but they respond well to psychotherapy. Psychosis is a term for serious organic mental illness often thought to be caused by a disruption in the brain's chemistry. These illnesses, such as schizophrenia and manic-depression, are treated by a combination of hospitalization, medication, and supportive therapy for both the patient and his family.

When to go for help. Few people escape periodic feelings of depression. Death, job loss, broken marriages or relationships, and major illness all make normal people feel sad, angry, or unhappy. But when those feelings persist over an extended period of time, even when the situation changes, or when there seems to be no rational explanation for the feelings, it is time to look for outside help. Researchers have found that therapy helps most people to some extent, no matter who delivers it.

Depression is the most common reason for people to seek help. Anxiety attacks, eating disorders, marital conflict, phobias, and some psychosomatic illnesses are all responsive to psychotherapy.

Depression checklist

- Sad moods and crying spells
- Feelings of despair
- Recurring guilt feelings
- Loss of pleasure
- Forgetfulness and lack of concentration
- Insomnia or abnormal amounts of sleep
- Loss of appetite or abnormal hunger
- Loss of interest in sex
- Suicidal thoughts
- Vague or actual physical complaints
- Irritability

Other mental illnesses, such as psychoses, alcoholism, and drug addition, are rarely helped by psychotherapy alone.

How to get help. The phone book is a good place to begin for mental health centers, Alcoholics Anonymous, and drug and alcohol treatment centers, but it is probably the very worst way to locate a psychotherapist.

Although proper credentials are important, they are not as vital as a sense of caring and warmth. A recommendation from a primary care doctor is useful, but word of mouth is also valuable. Talking to people who have been in therapy and who have been helped can put you on the right track.

Many clergymen are trained as counselors. For some people, this help is the most accessible and the least expensive.

Who are the mentally ill?

One out of ten American families has a member who is seriously mentally ill. If you do not have a victim in your own family, the family down the block probably does. It is particularly important not to dismiss a "blue Monday" teenager as just going through an adolescent stage. Seek professional advice if your daughter or son seems persistently depressed.

Understanding alcoholism. Alcoholism is defined by the American Medical Association as a disease that, if not checked, leads to death. Yet the image of the alcoholic as the town drunk sleeping it off on a park bench fades slowly. Since most people in our society drink safely, it is easy to view alcoholism as the result of moral weakness and poor self-control.

Alcoholism is a leading cause of death and is implicated in 90 percent of physical assaults, 50 percent of murders, and 25 percent of suicides. Drunken drivers account for 25,000 deaths on the highway each year.

The causes of alcoholism are still obscure, although recent research points toward a genetic predisposition in many cases. Young people who combine alcohol with drugs account for a new phenomenon—17- and 18-year-olds who are as physically and mentally ill as older alcoholics who have been drinking for 30 or 40 years.

Who are the alcoholics? Despite the popular stereotype, alcoholics are found in corporate board rooms, on the police force, in the classroom, in the medical profession, among priests, ministers, and rabbis, and in suburban homes. Alcoholism permeates our entire society.

Because the progress of the disease is often slow, many people cross the line into alcoholism without being aware of it. Any wife who has tried to convince her husband that he is drinking too much knows how difficult it is for someone else to make an alcoholic recognize his own problem.

Can an alcoholic be helped? Very real help is available to the alcoholic who is able to recognize his need for it. Lifelong abstinence sounds like a grim sentence in a society that celebrates all occasions with alcohol. However, many people considered "hopeless" by their families, employers, and doctors have recovered through participation in Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.), the self-help group with the best track record. Many people combine A.A. with alcohol counseling.

Many large corporations now have outreach programs for their employees, often financing extended treatment. Local governments are establishing alcohol treatment centers, and in many states, insurance companies are required by state law to provide coverage for both in-hospital and outpatient treatment.

Are you in trouble with alcohol?

- Do you need a drink to make you feel relaxed? Self-confident? To have a good time?
- Do you drink every day?
- Do you look forward all day to your first drink?
- Are you drinking more than you used to? More than you want to?
- Do you have a drink before going to a party?
- Have you changed your favorite drink lately to help you cut down?
- Have friends, family, or your employer mentioned your drinking?
- Do you frequently plan to stop drinking?
- Do you ever hide bottles or lie about the amount you drink?
- Do you drink in the morning, alone, or at work?
- Do you ever carry liquor in your breast pocket or pocketbook?
- Do you have blackouts, severe hangovers, or guilt feelings?
- Are you proud of being able to hold your liquor?
- Are most of your friends heavy drinkers?

There is no passing grade for this quiz. If you answer "yes" to more than one question, it is probably time to take a hard look at your "social" drinking.

Understanding drug addiction.

The drug addict is as poorly understood as the alcoholic. Although alcohol is available at the corner liquor store, drugs are available only from illegal sources—which puts the drug user at odds with the law.

Some drugs, such as heroin and morphine, are truly addictive. Others are considered to be "habituating." The effect is frequently the same. It is not uncommon for someone to try "recreational" drugs as an experiment at a party, to like the effect, and in time to become as addicted as the heroin user.

Prescription drug abusers are a hidden element in the drug addiction picture. Many people start taking tranquilizers or sleeping pills as recommended by their doctor and find themselves not only addicted but forced to seek illegal sources if they do not have a compliant doctor.

Can the drug addict be helped? The same conditions prevail for the drug addict as for the alcoholic. He must want to stop and be willing to turn to appropriate channels for assistance. Detoxification is almost always essential in the case of such drugs as heroin, amphetamines, barbiturates, and some tranquilizers. "Cold turkey" withdrawal from heroin is merely painful, but with some other drugs, it can cause convulsions and even death.

Chapters of Narcotics Anonymous are appearing all over the country, as are fine drug rehabilitation centers. Although addiction is seemingly intractable, many people do recover from its effects and go on to lead normal, drug-free, productive lives.

What about mental patients?

The discovery of major tranquilizers promised a new era in the treatment of the mentally ill. The hospitals were emptied of long-term patients, and promises were made to support their existence in the community. Those promises were not kept, and many communities find heavily medicated former patients wandering the streets, frequently with no place to live. Some are leading sad and dreary lives, with no supervision, as residents of shamefully inadequate rooming houses.

If serious mental illness strikes someone in your family, becoming informed about treatment, medication, and management is vital for your family's survival and for the well-being of your sick family member. Joining advocacy groups, support groups, and becoming active in your community mental health center will provide a focus.

Schizophrenics who learn to manage their illness, who are properly medicated, and who receive family and community support are often able to lead nearly normal lives, spending most of their time outside a hospital setting.

What are psychiatric medications? Psychotropic (psychiatric) medicines are tools used by psychiatrists in treating many kinds of mental illnesses. These medicines do not cure; they ease symptoms or, in the case of psychotic illnesses, control the disease.

As with any other medication, these drugs carry risks that have to be balanced against benefits. The major tranquilizers, for example, carry the potential for serious, permanent side effects; yet they can make the difference between long-term hospitalization and the possibility of living independently.

Managing medication—whether it involves an antidepressant or a major tranquilizer—should be a joint effort on the part of the therapist, the patient, and the patient's family. See page 91 for a chart of psychiatric drugs, their uses and side effects.

Methadone stations like this one exist all over the United States. Methadone helps the addict to overcome his or her dependence on heroin.

Former mental patients often live in group homes where they gain support from each other and live constructive lives.

Psychiatrist (M.D.)
A medical doctor who is trained in diagnosis and therapy. He is the only choice when medication is necessary as an adjunct to therapy.

Psychologist (Ph.D.)
A nonmedical doctor trained in therapeutic techniques, skilled at helping people who do not suffer from psychosis. Cannot prescribe medication. Fees are generally lower than those of a psychiatrist.

Psychiatric Social Worker (M.S.W.)
Trained in counseling and particularly effective in family therapy.

Medical payments

Health insurance is a major element in a family's economic security. Many people are insured through their employers and have only a vague idea of their coverage until a sudden, major illness strikes. Sometimes the extent of that coverage comes as a painful and expensive surprise. It is also not uncommon to forget that health coverage stops unless converted to a personal policy when an employee is dismissed.

Get to know your health policy.

If the language of your policy is difficult to understand, consult the person in your company who handles the coverage.

There are a number of important things to know: Is there coverage for office visits? What about prescription drugs? Out-of-hospital tests? Pregnancy? Newborns? Premature births? What are the dollar limits and when does the insurance company begin to pay? Do you pay in advance and get reimbursed later? Are doctors and surgeons fees paid in full or according to an established fee schedule? When does your coverage run out?

Major medical insurance. Many people who are self-employed or who have minimal coverage turn to major medical insurance. Basically, this insurance either picks up when primary insurance stops or provides full coverage when medical expenses pass a predetermined amount, the deductible.

Major medical insurance can be very expensive, but it can frequently be tailored to an individual family's needs.

How does your doctor get paid?

The day of doctors' bills being sent to the home seems to be passing. It is quite common, today, to be expected to pay as you go. If this is not possible, discuss it with the doctor himself, since his office staff is merely following his instructions. Price is often negotiable, particularly if you are a long-time patient or if your means are limited.

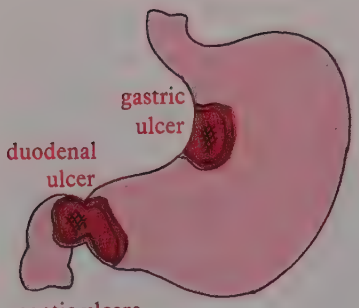
Specialists' fees. Specialists and surgeons set their own fees, sometimes at a scale that has made many patients gasp upon hearing them. This is a very sound reason for using specialists only when your primary care doctor thinks it absolutely necessary. If a surgeon's fee is beyond your ability to pay immediately, make arrangements in advance to pay it over an extended period of time.

Medicaid and Medicare. The simplest thing to remember about these two government-subsidized health benefits is this: Medicaid is linked to income and/or disability; Medicare is linked to age and/or permanent disability.

A doctor must accept the standard of fees set by Medicaid. He is not bound to a fee schedule for Medicare, under which patients pay part of their medical bills.

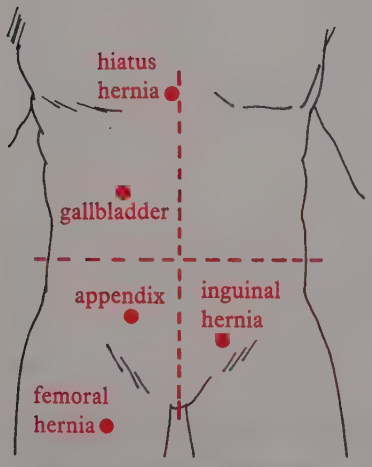
Many retired persons choose to supplement their Medicare coverage with additional private coverage.

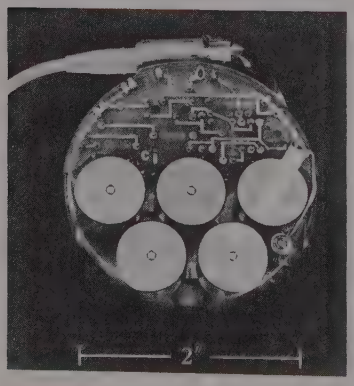
Further information is contained in the chapter Managing the Family's Money on page 110, or in the government pamphlet on the subject listed at the end of this chapter.



peptic ulcers

Glossary





pacemaker

abdominal distention. Condition that may be due to overeating or to gross enlargement of any abdominal organ. Other causes include fluid in the abdomen and gas in the bowels.

abscess. A localized collection of pus (dead cell debris) that can develop in any part of the body. Commonly, abscesses are caused by bacteria, but fungi, yeasts, and amoebae may also be involved.

acromegaly. Slowly progressive disease that produces a characteristic appearance: enlarged bones, a protruding jaw, and a coarsening and thickening of all features.

addiction. Medically, the habitual use of alcohol or drugs.

Addison's disease. Condition caused by inadequate secretion of the adrenal glands. Early symptoms include weakness, loss of energy, and muscular aches.

aerophagia. The habitual swallowing of air as while eating fast, drinking large amounts of carbonated beverages, or chewing gum. In severe cases, there may be abdominal distention, difficult breathing, and palpitations.

alcoholism. The compulsive abuse of alcohol, with resultant extreme nervousness, loss of appetite, vitamin deficiencies, nausea, and vomiting. When chronic, there is liver and kidney dysfunction, and DTs (delirium tremens).

allergy. An unusual reaction in an individual to a substance that usually does not affect other people. Most often, dust, feathers, animal hair, cosmetics, some foods and drugs, and fabrics are involved.

Alzheimer's disease. Generally noted between the ages of 40 and 60. It is associated with gradual memory loss, disorientation, and apathy, and is caused by a disorder of the cells of the brain.

amenorrhea. The absence of menstrual flow. Occurs most commonly during pregnancy and the menopause. Menstruation not started by age 18 is termed primary amenorrhea, while cessation of periods after they have begun is called secondary amenorrhea.

amniocentesis. Diagnostic procedure used to assess various genetic defects and some hereditary disorders of the fetus.

anaphylaxis. A potentially life-threatening type of allergic reaction that can result from the injection of some drugs or diagnostic agents. It may also be caused by wasp stings or such foods as shellfish and strawberries.

anemia. A variety of conditions marked by excessive loss, destruction, or faulty production of red blood cells. Iron-deficiency anemia, the most common form, is often due to a lack of dietary iron.

aneurysm. A swelling or localized bulging of a weakened arterial wall, particularly dangerous when it involves the aorta or arteries in the brain. If ruptured, it can lead to massive internal bleeding that may prove fatal.

angina pectoris. A condition marked by sudden pain in the chest. Generally occurs during strenuous exertion, such as shoveling snow or climbing stairs, which makes the heart work harder.

angiography. X-ray technique in which blood vessels are made visible by injection of a radiopaque substance. The test is useful in detecting the presence of tumors, atherosclerosis, and aneurysms.

anorexia nervosa. A condition that mainly affects adolescent girls and younger women who eat less and less food. As food intake and weight continue to drop, severe nutritional deficiencies and even death by starvation may occur.

antibiotics. Various natural and synthetic substances widely used to treat infectious diseases. If bactericidal, an antibiotic kills organisms; if bacteriostatic, it prevents their growth.

anticoagulant. Term used to describe the prevention of blood coagulation, or an agent that prevents coagulation.

appendicitis. An inflammation of the worm-shaped (vermiform) appendix, which is located at the tip of the cecum (part of the large bowel). A perforated appendix is a serious complication with the potential of peritonitis.

arrhythmia. An alteration in the regular rhythm of the heart, either in the formation or conduction of heart impulses. Such disturbances may be functional or due to disease.

arteriogram. An x-ray picture of an artery after it has been injected with a contrast medium.

arteriosclerosis. Commonly referred to as hardening of the arteries. Involves thickening, hardening, and loss of elasticity of the artery walls.

arthritis. An inflammation of the joints. Rheumatoid arthritis is a chronic and generally progressive inflammatory disease marked by pain and swelling of the joints. Osteoarthritis is a chronic degenerative disease mainly of weight-bearing joints. See also Still's disease.

asthma. A condition marked by difficult breathing and wheezing, chronic or episodic. Three major contributory factors are allergy, respiratory infection, and emotional stress.

atherosclerosis. A form of arteriosclerosis in which fatty substances are deposited in the arteries and their inner layers become tough and sinewy.

athlete's foot (tinea pedis). An infection caused by a fungus that thrives on dead skin cells between the toes. It is commonly found in locker rooms, public showers, and swimming pool walkways.

beta blockers. Drugs that reduce the workload of the heart and thereby lower the demand of the coronary arteries for blood. Beta-blocking agents are prescribed for the treatment of angina pectoris, hypertension, and cardiac arrhythmias.

biopsy. The excision and microscopic examination of tissue samples and cells to determine abnormalities. Indicated when cancer, or certain liver or kidney diseases, are suspected.

bone marrow. The soft red (in spongy bones) or yellow (in long bones) tissue filling the interior cavities of bones. Red marrow is the site of production of the red and white blood cells and the platelets.

brain death. Condition in which there is irreversible coma and evidence of irreparable brain damage. There is lack of electrical activity for a prolonged period, no response to external stimuli, fixed pupils, and absence of spontaneous breathing.

brain scan. Diagnostic technique in which a radioactive isotope or tracer is injected into a vein, usually the arm. A scintillation scanner is used to detect the tiny radioactive emissions as the tracer flows through the blood vessels in the brain.

bronchitis. An acute inflammatory condition usually due to exposure to cold and dampness. When chronic and uncontrolled, bronchitis can create serious lung problems.

bronchoscopy. A diagnostic procedure that permits inspection of the interior of the tracheobronchial tree through a bronchoscope. The technique is helpful in obtaining biopsy specimens and removing obstructions.

bursitis. A painful inflammation of the bursa, which are small fluid-filled sacs that facilitate movement of body joints. Most commonly, the shoulder, elbow, hip, and knee are involved.

Caesarean section. A technique in which the fetus is removed by means of an incision into the uterus, usually via the abdominal wall. Generally, it is employed when there is an overly large fetus or an abnormally small pelvis.

cancer. Many diseases, all characterized by an irregular and uncontrolled growth of body cells. These malignant cells may remain in the area where they formed or may spread via the blood and lymph to other parts of the body.

candidiasis. A yeastlike fungus. Candida albicans is responsible for this infection, called thrush when it is localized in the mouth or throat, vaginitis when it affects the vaginal walls.

cardiac arrest. A sudden cessation of heartbeat and breathing. This is a medical emergency calling for immediate attention. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) is potentially life-saving, but can only be performed by a person trained in the technique.

CAT scan. See computerized axial tomography.

chemotherapy. The use of drugs or chemical agents that have a specific and toxic effect upon disease-causing microorganisms. The term is often applied to potent drugs that destroy cancer cells.

chicken pox (varicella). A highly contagious infectious disease that occurs mostly in children. Symptoms include fever, headache, malaise, and at times a sore throat. A red rash that crusts develops.

childbed fever (puerpural fever). Occurs after a prolonged or difficult childbirth and is marked by septicemia. There is absorption of septic products into blood and tissues, or disease-causing organisms that may multiply in these areas.

cholecystitis. Inflammation of the gallbladder, either acute or chronic, often due to obstruction of the bile duct by gallstones. Symptoms include pain, nausea, vomiting, and fever.

cholecystography. The examination of the gallbladder by x-ray study. Useful in detecting gallstones or gallbladder dysfunction.

cholesterol. A sterol, this fatlike substance is found in animal fats and oils, nerve tissue, bile, blood, and egg yolk. A normal constituent of bile, cholesterol can also be manufactured in the liver.

chromosome. A microscopic J- or V-shaped body present in all living cells. Chromosomes contain genes, the particles responsible for determining hereditary characteristics. The normal number of chromosomes in each human cell is 46, arranged in 23 pairs.

cirrhosis. Chronic condition in which there are degenerative changes in the liver cells and thickening of surrounding tissue; interferes with normal liver function. Often associated with advanced alcoholism.

collagen. An insoluble protein that represents about 30 percent of total body protein. Found in the white fibers of connective tissue, cartilage, and bone.

collagen diseases. Various conditions causing cellular changes affecting the body's connective tissue. Diseases include lupus erythematosus, rheumatoid arthritis, and scleroderma.

colonoscopy. Permits examination of the upper portion of the rectum with an elongated speculum. May also be useful in removing polyps and obtaining tissue samples for biopsy.

colostomy. Temporary or permanent surgical opening made from the colon through the abdominal wall. Creates an artificial passage for the elimination of solid wastes to the outside of the body.

computerized axial tomography (CAT scan). A computer-aided x-ray system that can be used with safety and effectiveness, exposing a person to about the same amount of radiation as obtained from a chest x-ray. Provides highly detailed imaging of internal structures of the brain, lungs, pancreas, and kidneys.

concussion. Commonly the result of a severe blow to the head. Brain concussion may be accompanied by temporary or prolonged unconsciousness. Recovery may be gradual, depending upon age, damage, and care given.

congestive heart failure. Impaired circulation when the heart cannot pump sufficient blood to supply the body's needs. Congestion, or fluid accumulation, may develop in the lungs, legs, or abdomen.

conjunctivitis. Refers to inflammation of the conjunctiva, the mucous membrane lining the eyelids and white of the eye. Causative factors include allergy, bacterial and viral infections, smoke, dust, or wind.

convulsions. Condition marked by involuntary jerking movements, often with momentary unconsciousness. Some possible causes may be epilepsy, stroke, meningitis, hypoglycemia, skull fracture, brain tumor, and drug reactions.

coronary bypass. A major operative procedure in which a blocked coronary artery is bypassed with a section of vein taken from the leg and grafted into position. Double, triple, and quadruple bypass can be performed.

coronary occlusion. Blockage of vessels supplying blood to the myocardium (heart muscle). May be produced by growth of plaque (fatty materials), or by growth of a thrombus (blood clot) plugging the artery.

corpus luteum. Ovarian follicle after it has released its ovum. Produces the hormone progesterone, which prepares the uterine lining for possible implantation of the ovum.

crib death. See sudden infant death.

cross-eye. See strabismus.

croup. An acute viral infection that occurs most often in infants and young children. Marked by difficult breathing and a hoarse cough.

cryosurgery. Surgical procedure in which cells are destroyed by the application of extreme cold (the tissue is usually cooled to below 0° F (−20° C). Used in the treatment of malignant tumors and certain precancerous conditions.

culdoscopy. Examination of the female internal organs and pelvic cavity with an endoscope. Used in cases of suspected abnormal uterine tissue growth, infertility, and pelvic disorders.

curettage. Scraping of a cavity with a curette. In uterine curettage, scraping is done to remove contents of the uterus, obtain diagnostic specimens, or remove growths.

cyst. An abnormal sac or swelling filled with fluid or a semisolid material; may occur anywhere in the body. Sebaceous cysts, often forming on the scalp, consist of a small sac containing a yellowish-white caseous matter.

cystocele. A hernia sometimes associated with childbirth, where part of the bladder protrudes into the vagina. The condition may be accompanied by bladder incontinence or infection.

cystoscopy. An examination of the inside of the bladder and urethra with a cystoscope. Indicated when there is a suspicion of bladder or urinary tract cancer or polyps.

D&C (dilation and curettage). Procedure in which the cervix is enlarged (dilated) to facilitate scraping of the uterine walls. Undertaken to remove unwanted tissue from the uterus, remove growths, or obtain tissue for examination.

decubitus ulcers. Bedsores caused by poor circulation in the area under pressure. Common in bedridden patients who must lie in one position. Buttocks, shoulders, elbows, and heels are often involved.

dermatitis. An inflammation of the skin which, in extremely sensitive persons, may be due to contact with such skin irritants as acids and alkalis, cosmetics, fabrics, and animal hair. Marked by itching, redness, and skin lesions.

diabetes insipidus. Form of diabetes in which there is a chronic excretion of very large amounts of urine, accompanied by extreme thirst. Ordinarily results from an insufficient production of the antidiuretic hormone by the pituitary gland.

diabetes mellitus. A metabolic disorder in which the body is unable to utilize carbohydrates, primarily due to the inadequate production of insulin by the pancreas. It is detected by the presence of sugar in the blood and urine.

diagnosis. The use of various methods to determine the cause and nature of a disease. Among the methods are study of the signs and symptoms of a disease, laboratory data, and special tests.

dialysis. A process employed to separate or extract certain substances in solution by diffusion through a porous membrane. Used to purify the blood (hemodialysis) in persons with one or both kidneys defective or absent.

diarrhea. A condition that is marked by the frequent passage of loose, watery stools. May be caused by infection, food poisoning, overeating, or certain drugs.

diverticular disease. Condition marked by diarrhea, colic, and abdominal pain. Diverticula are pouches or pockets that form on the large bowel. In diverticulosis, the colon contains dozens of these pouches.

DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid). A nucleic acid present in chromosomes of the nuclei of cells. Considered the chemical basis of heredity, and the carrier of genetic information.

Down's syndrome. Congenital abnormality, also known as mongolism, marked by moderate to severe mental retardation. Children born with Down's have a sloping forehead, low-set ears, slanted eyes, and a generally dwarfed physique.

dysmenorrhea. Painful or difficult menstruation. Discomfort is usually felt in the lower abdomen and sometimes the lower back. Often the condition improves with age and may disappear after childbirth.

dysplasia. Abnormal tissue development that can occur in the cervix, lungs, and other parts of the body. Women with cervical dysplasia must be examined regularly as it may become cancerous.

electrocardiogram (ECG or EKG). A graphic record of the electrical activity of the heart. Can indicate whether electrical conduction is normal and whether there is dead tissue due to a previous heart attack.

electroencephalogram (EEG). Graphic recording of the electric activity of the brain. May be used for a number of different purposes, such as diagnosing epilepsy and for research into sleep and dream patterns.

embolism. An obstruction of a blood vessel by a transported solid (an embolus): a blood clot, bacterial mass, or other foreign material. The severity of the condition is in direct relationship to the size and location of the blocked vessel.

emphysema. A chronic lung disease. The alveoli (air sacs) become greatly distended, bronchioles become thinned, and, eventually, the architecture of the lungs is destroyed. Chronic bronchitis or bronchial asthma, smoking, and air pollution may be implicated.

endocardiography. Method used to record the size, motion, and composition of various cardiac structures. Indicated in heart valve problems that are difficult to diagnose.

endocarditis. An inflammation of the heart lining (endocardium). Persons with damaged heart valves are most vulnerable. The condition is often observed in young adults and the middle-aged.

endometriosis. A nonmalignant condition in which tissue normally located in the lining of the uterus (endometrium) begins to grow elsewhere. Often seen in the ovaries, the Fallopian tubes, the bladder, or between the rectum and vagina.

enzyme. One of various complex proteins produced by living cells. Enzymes alter the chemical reactions in other substances while remaining unchanged in the process, and help break down food particles into simple, more readily absorbed compounds.

epilepsy. Includes a group of nervous disorders characterized by either convulsive or nonconvulsive seizures and, generally, a temporary loss of consciousness. Seizures are associated with a sudden unruly pattern of brain waves.

epistaxis (nosebleed). Included among the causes are high blood pressure, injury, infection, foreign bodies, and a direct blow to the nose. If severe or uncontrolled, nosebleed requires medical attention.

erythrocyte sedimentation rate. A laboratory test that determines how fast red blood cells (erythrocytes) in a blood specimen settle to the bottom of a long narrow tube. The speed of settling is increased in various infections, pregnancy, and cancer.

fever (pyrexia). A body temperature above the normal, which, taken orally, is 98.6° F (37° C). Generally, a fever of 101° F (39° C) calls for medical attention.

fibroma. A benign tumor derived from fibrous tissue. May vary in size from a millet seed to large enough to fill the entire abdominal cavity. May be single or multiple in number.

fistula. An abnormal tubelike passage that leads from a normal cavity or tube to the free surface, or to another cavity. Fistulae may be congenital or result from abscesses, injuries, or inflammatory processes.

flatulence. An excessive amount of gas in the stomach and intestine. May be due to habitual air swallowing or indigestion. If it is worse after eating fatty foods, there may be gallstones.

flu. See influenza.

fluoroscopy. A technique that permits examination of inner parts of the body by means of the fluoroscope. In the upper body, there is x-ray visualization of the esophagus, stomach, and duodenum; in the lower body, the large intestine is visualized.

gallstones. Concretions or stonelike masses that form in the gallbladder or bile ducts. May not cause much distress or may be associated with painful attacks.

gamma globulin. Various proteins found in the lymphatic system, bone marrow, and spleen, associated with the production of antibodies. They circulate in the blood and help the body to resist infection.

gastritis. Inflammation of the mucous membrane of the stomach. May be due to viral infection, hot spicy food, food poisoning, or overindulgence in alcoholic beverages.

gastroscopy. Inspection of the inner surface of the stomach by the use of an endoscope. Useful in confirming stomach ulcers, unexplained bleeding, or other abnormalities.

genetics. The branch of science that is concerned with heredity.

German measles (rubella). An acute contagious disease similar to measles and scarlet fever. Women who have not had rubella in childhood should be protected against this disease before considering pregnancy.

glandular. Relates to the nature of a gland, a secreting organ or structure. There are many types of glands, and they serve different purposes throughout the body.

glaucoma. A disease of the eye marked by an unaccountable rise in fluid pressure within the eyeball. If unrelieved, it can cause permanent damage to the eye and result in partial or total blindness.

glossitis. Inflammation of the tongue, which may be associated with stomatitis (inflammation of the mouth). The tongue becomes tender and painful; thick saliva makes swallowing difficult.

goiter. An enlarged thyroid. Due to overactivity of the gland in secreting an excessive amount of hormones. In severe cases, the thyroid gland may swell to several times its normal size and be observable as a large growth on the front of the throat.

gonorrhea. A sexually transmitted disease that, if untreated, can lead to serious damage. In the male, it can cause epididymitis; in women, it may result in painful infection of the Fallopian tubes, often causing sterility.

graft. Insertion of skin or other living substance into similar substance for the purpose of overcoming a defect. In skin graft, a piece of skin is removed from one part of the body to another to cover a large superficial burn.

gynecology. A branch of medicine that deals with diseases of women, in particular, the genital tract and the female endocrine and reproductive systems.

habituation. The act of becoming accustomed to something by frequent use. In general, it refers to the psychological dependence that develops with the continued use of a drug, eventually resulting in drug addiction.

Hashimoto's disease. A chronic form of thyroiditis (inflammation of the thyroid gland) manifested by a particular type of goiter.

headache (cephalalgia). A symptom that is associated with a great many diseases and emotional states. Infection and tension are among the causes.

heart attack. See myocardial infarction.

heartburn. An abnormal return of acid liquid from the stomach into the esophagus. Produces a burning sensation deep in the chest together with an oppressive tightening sensation.

hematoma. A localized mass of blood that has escaped from a vessel into the tissues, occurring at the site of an injury where the blood vessels have broken.

hemodialysis. A procedure that is used to purify the blood in persons with kidney failure; usually requires 20 hours a week; 10 hours twice a week; or 6½ hours three times a week.

hemophilia. An hereditary blood disease in which the blood fails to clot and there is an abnormal tendency to bleed from a cut or other injury. Transmitted from mother to son as a sex-linked recessive condition.

hemorrhoids (piles). Varicose (enlarged or swollen) veins of the anal and rectal area. External hemorrhoids occur on the outside of the anal sphincter; internal hemorrhoids develop within the anal canal.

hepatitis (infectious). Acute disease of the liver. Viral hepatitis type A is transmitted by the oral-fecal route. It is spread from person to person by infected food handlers or contaminated food, water, feces, or bedpans.

hepatitis (serum). Viral hepatitis type B. Transmitted by injection of infected blood or by the use of contaminated needles or instruments. Similar to type A, it is caused by a virus found in blood and tissues rather than in the feces.

hepatitis (toxic). An inflammation of the liver caused by exposure to certain chemicals (carbon tetrachloride, insecticides, solvents). In those overly sensitive to such drugs as ioniazid and bromates, liver damage may result.

hernia. A weak point in the abdominal wall through which a part of the intestine can protrude. Commonly seen types are inguinal (groin), umbilical (navel), and femoral (thigh).

hernia (hiatus). Protrusion of the upper part of the stomach into the chest cavity. This condition is associated with weakness in the area where the esophagus opens up into the diaphragm. This impairment permits leakage of acid stomach contents into the esophagus.

herpes smplex. A virus infection that causes painful fluid-filled blisters, called cold sores or fever blisters. Other forms of herpes simplex are denoted according to site; for example, herpes genitalis.

herpes zoster (shingles). A completely different disease from herpes simplex, this painful vesicular eruption occurs along the course of a nerve. It is due to the same virus, herpes varicella, as that causing chicken pox.

Hodgkin's disease. A malignant disease that mostly afflicts men. It is marked by painless and progressive swelling of the lymph glands with enlargement of the spleen. Some symptoms are anemia, fever, and fatigue.

hydrocephalus. An increased accumulation of cerebrospinal fluid within the hollow spaces (ventricles) of the brain. It may result from a malformation, infection, injury, or a brain tumor.

hypertension. High blood pressure denoting arterial pressure that is consistently elevated. Added pressure on the blood vessel walls makes the heart work harder; untreated, it can cause organ damage.

hyperthyroidism (Graves' disease). The result of an overproduction of hormones by the thyroid gland. Besides exophthalmos goiter, symptoms include increased nervousness and heart rate, weight loss, and heat intolerance.

hypoglycemia. An abnormally low concentration of sugar in circulating blood. May be due to an insulin overdose or a missed meal by a diabetic. In nondiabetics, poor diet may be a cause.

hypothermia. A technique used to lower body temperature and so reduce the need for oxygen during surgery. It is especially useful when the heart and the nerves are involved.

hypothyroidism (myxedema). Condition in which the thyroid gland is underactive, failing to secrete an adequate amount of hormones. As the condition progresses, there is slowed pulse rate, sluggish movement, facial puffiness, and muscle weakness.

hysterectomy. An operative procedure that involves removal of the uterus. It is usually indicated when tumors are present, whether benign or malignant.

immunosuppressive agent. Belonging to a group of drugs that interfere with the body's natural immune system. Used before surgical transplant of a foreign organ, such as a kidney, to avert body rejection.

indigestion. Often caused by eating too much too fast, not chewing food well, eating when emotionally upset, or swallowing large amounts of air. Symptoms may be heartburn, gas, and belching.

infarction (infarct). Condition in which there is death of tissue and consequent scarring in an organ deprived of an adequate supply of blood. Myocardial infarction describes such an occurrence in the heart.

influenza (flu). A respiratory infection caused by one of several related, yet distinct, viruses. It strikes suddenly with chills, fever, headache, muscle aches, and a dry cough, most of which subside after a few days.

insomnia. Inability to sleep. In itself, not a disease, but it may be a symptom of disease, either of a slight or serious nature. Most often due to pain or anxiety.

insulin shock. A low blood sugar reaction that can be caused by an insulin overdose. Often the result of lowered blood sugar brought on by a break in normal routine or emotional upset.

irritable bowel syndrome. A common gastric disorder marked by abdominal pain, diarrhea, and/or constipation. In general, the problem is not organic but stems from the nature of a person's personality, particularly an inability to deal with stress.

jaundice. An excessive amount of bile pigment in the blood and a yellowish discoloration of the skin. Associated with diseases of the liver, gallbladder, bile ducts, and certain blood diseases.

laryngitis. An inflammation of the larynx. May be due to improper use or overuse of the voice. May also be caused by upper respiratory infections, the inhalation of irritating vapors or dust, or tobacco smoke.

lead poisoning. Results from the ingestion of lead, as during prolonged exposure to lead dust in the workplace, when using lead vessels for eating or drinking, or when chewing on lead toys.

legionnaires' disease. Applies to a severe pneumonialike disease that felled 249 American Legion conventioneers in Philadelphia (July, 1976). Marked by fever, cough, and bloody sputum. Additional symptoms may not be distinguishable from other types of pneumonia.

leukemia. A form of cancer in which there is a rapid increase of white blood cells in the bloodstream. The cells infiltrate body tissues and, in particular, bone marrow. This condition leads to anemia, hemorrhaging, and infection.

lumpectomy. Surgical procedure in which only a primary tumor and a varying amount of surrounding breast tissue is removed. Radiation therapy is used postoperatively.

lupus erythematoses. Systemic, and possibly chronic, disease in which a skin rash spreads across the bridge of the nose and face in a butterfly pattern. The disease affects the blood vessels.

lymphatic vessels. Vessels that transport lymph (the clear fluid bathing all body tissues), lymphocytes (a type of white blood cell), and other substances needed for the body's immune system. These vessels are part of the lymph system along with the lacteals, lymph capillaries, ducts, and nodes.

malignancy. Term that describes a condition occurring in severe form, growing worse, and resisting treatment. In cancer, it denotes uncontrollable growth and dissemination, or recurrence after removal of a tumor, or both.

mammography. Specialized x-ray technique for detecting breast abnormalities, especially early cancers. Recent improvements assure more accurate information and smaller amounts of radiation.

manic-depressive psychoses. A major mental disorder in which a person displays severe changes of mood: overelation and excessive activity during the manic state; depression and anxiety while in the depressed state.

mastectomy. A surgical procedure that involves removal of the breast. If simple, only breast tissue is excised; if major, the underlying chest muscles and the lymph nodes in the armpit are also removed.

mastoiditis. Infection that spreads through the ear to the mastoid process (part of the temporal bone). When acute, symptoms include chills, fever, malaise, and headache. When chronic, mastoid tissue is destroyed and there is loss of hearing.

measles. A highly communicable viral disease that usually occurs in early childhood. Marked by nasal discharge, fever, cough, and reddening of the eyes; also, a blotchy rash and fine white spots inside the mouth.

medication. A medicinal substance that is a medicine or remedy. Also refers to treatment with a remedy. (See pages 90-91 for a list of prescription drugs.)

Ménierè's disease. An impairment of the balancing mechanism of the inner ear. Attacks often come on with alarming suddenness. Symptoms include vertigo, ringing or other disturbing noises in the ear, and progressive loss of hearing.

meningitis. An inflammation of the meninges, the delicate membranes covering the layers of the brain. A local infection of the ears, sinuses, or tonsils may spread the infection to the meninges, or be carried into the bloodstream.

menopause. The cessation of menstruation that brings to a close the reproductive life of a woman. Natural menopause may occur as early as age 35, and as late as 58. Usually, it takes place between the ages of 47 and 52.

metabolism. The sum of chemical changes affecting the function of nutrition. Two fundamental processes are involved: anabolism—converting small molecules into large; and catabolism—converting large molecules into small.

microorganisms. Living organisms too small to be seen with the naked eye. Only a relatively small number are pathogenic (capable of causing disease). Protozoa, bacteria, fungi, rickettsiae, and viruses are all microorganisms.

migraine. A severe, periodic, vascular type of headache, usually one-sided. It may be preceded or accompanied by various symptoms: visual disturbances, extreme sensitivity to light, and nausea.

mole. A congenital discolored spot raised above the skin surface. Generally, moles are harmless unless there is irritation in the area.

mongolism. See Down's syndrome.

mononucleosis (infectious). An acute infection, also called glandular fever, believed to be due to a virus. It is manifested by a sore throat, fever, swollen lymph nodes, headache, and a faintly red eruption.

multiple sclerosis (MS). A chronic disease of the central nervous system in which there is degeneration of the myelin (a fatlike substance) sheath in the brain and spinal cord. Symptoms may come and go for years, but incapacitation worsens with progress of the disease.

mumps (epidemic parotitis). An acute febrile disease marked by inflammation of the parotid salivary glands (just below the ears). Although not as communicable as chicken pox or measles, mumps are quite contagious.

muscular dystrophy (Duchenne's disease). A hereditary disorder that primarily affects boys. There is progressive weakness and wasting of muscles, first affecting the abdomen and buttocks, then the chest and other body parts.

musculoskeletal. Relates to the muscles and the skeleton.

myasthenia gravis. A chronic neuromuscular disorder caused by a defective transmission of nerve impulse to the muscles. Marked by extreme muscular weakness, but no wasting of muscles.

myelitis. An inflammation of the spinal cord or of bone marrow. A potentially serious condition that calls for prompt diagnosis and treatment. If the spinal nerves are involved, there may be partial or total paralysis.

myocardial infarction (heart attack). Condition in which part of the heart muscle is deprived of blood and dies, being gradually replaced by a fibrous scar (infarct).

nephritis. Inflammation of the kidneys. Denotes a group of noninfectious diseases involving widespread kidney damage. The glomeruli (filtering units of the kidney) or the tubules may be affected.

nephrolithiasis. Condition in which calculi, or stones, are formed in the kidney and urinary bladder. Many kidney stones eventually pass out; others must be removed surgically.

neuritis. May be inflammation of a nerve (mononeuritis) or nerves (polyneuritis), usually characterized by pain. May be caused by injury, infection, metallic poisoning, or a metabolic disturbance.

neurosis. A psychological or behavioral disorder with the chief underlying factor being anxiety. In contrast with psychosis, persons with neurosis maintain contact with reality and undergo no major personality changes.

nonspecific urethritis. Condition in which the specific organism causing inflammation of the urethra is unknown. May be due to Chlamydia trachomatis, the same microbe that causes the eye disease trachoma.

nosebleed. See epistaxis.

oophorectomy. Surgical procedure in which an ovary or a portion of it is removed; also called ovariectomy.

osteoarthritis. Form of arthritis in which there is chronic degeneration of the joints, especially the weight-bearing (spinal column, hip, and knee) joints. Swelling may appear at the sides of each finger joint (Heberden's nodes).

osteomalacia. Disease in which bones gradually become soft due to bonelike tissue that fails to calcify. Bones become flexible and brittle, resulting in pain and deformation.

osteomyelitis. An inflammation of bone marrow and adjacent bone involving sudden pain, fever, and bone tenderness. Movement is painful and restricted, with subsequent swelling over the bone and often the nearby joint.

osteoporosis. A disorder characterized by the loss of bone mass. Increases the potential for fractures, particularly of the weight-bearing vertebrae. With compression of vertebrae, there is loss of height and, at times, kyphosis (humpback).

otitis. Inflammation of the ear differentiated by the part of the ear affected: otitis externa, the outer ear; otitis media, the middle ear; and otitis interna, the inner ear.

otosclerosis. Formation of spongy bone around the stapes (a small bone in the middle ear) that results in progressively worsening deafness. This hearing loss can be corrected surgically or with a hearing aid.

ovarian cyst. An abnormal fluid-filled sac that develops within an ovary. It afflicts many women between the ages of 30 and 60. Enlarged, painful cysts are removed surgically.

pacemaker. Defines any rhythmic center that controls heart rhythm; normally, the sinus node. An artificial pacemaker is a device that substitutes for the normal pacemaker and controls heart rhythm.

Paget's disease (osteitis deformans). Generalized skeletal disease seen mainly in older persons. It is marked by an increased breakdown and reforming of bone that leads to abnormal thickening and softening of the bones.

pancreatitis. Condition in which there is inflammation of the pancreas. In the acute form, may lead to areas of tissue destruction and scattered hemorrhages. Complaints include abdominal pain, nausea, vomiting, and fever.

paralysis. A temporary or permanent loss of voluntary muscular movement in a part of the body. There are many different causes, including injury, infection, and stroke.

paraplegia. Paralysis caused by injury to the spinal cord. Paraplegics suffer paralysis in both legs and, usually, the lower trunk. Quadriplegics have paralysis in all four limbs.

paratyphoid fever. Similar to but less severe than typhoid fever. Caused by an infection of Salmonella bacteria. The infection is transmitted by contaminated food, milk, or water.

Parkinson's disease (paralysis agitans). A chronic, progressive disease involving the brain. Symptoms include a masklike face, muscular tremor of the head and extremities, and muscular stiffness with slowed voluntary movement.

pediculosis. An infestation of the body with lice. The infection is spread by direct contact with an infected person, or by the use of infected clothing or objects. There are three kinds of lice: head, body, and pubic.

pellagra. Chiefly a B vitamin deficiency (nicotinic acid). May also be caused by intestinal diseases or alcoholism. In severe cases, there is inflamed mouth and tongue, skin rash, diarrhea, and anemia.

peptic ulcer. May be a stomach ulcer (gastric) or of the duodenum (duodenal). It is associated with a decreased ability of the organ to withstand bathing by the acid gastric juices (pepsin and hydrochloric acid).

pericarditis. Condition in which there is inflammation of the pericardium, the membranous sac enveloping the heart. It is often accompanied by shortness of breath and chest pains that may be aggravated on coughing or deep breathing.

peritonitis. Inflammation of the peritoneum, the membrane lining the abdominal cavity. Acute peritonitis is caused by infection, such as that caused by a ruptured appendix, which requires immediate hospitalization and treatment.

pheochromocytoma. A disorder caused by a tumor of the adrenal gland. Usually manifested by sustained high blood pressure. Symptoms, varying widely from person to person, include nausea, headache, palpitations, and weakness.

phlebitis. Inflammation of a vein, most often noted in a leg. May involve injury to the vein, obesity, infection, or a problem related to blood circulation.

pleurisy (pleuritis). Inflammation of the membrane covering the lungs. Usually due to a bacterial or viral infection. In acute cases, there is stabbing pain in the affected side, high fever, and a dry cough.

pneumonia. An inflammatory condition of the lungs, marked by cough, chest pains, and fever. Causative agents are bacteria or viruses, but mostly the pneumococcus—Diplococcus pneumoniae—is involved.

pneumothorax. A condition in which air or gas escapes into the pleural cavity. It usually results from a penetrating chest wound, or may be due to various lung diseases. In either case, the lung or parts of the lung collapse.

poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis). A viral infection that attacks the gray matter of the spinal cord. This can lead to muscular paralysis, especially of the limbs and of the muscles involved with breathing.

polyarteritis. Condition marked by widespread inflammation of the smaller arteries. Often leads to complications, such as kidney disease and high blood pressure.

polyp. An abnormal, often benign, stalklike growth. Usually occurs in vascular organs, such as the nose, uterus, and rectum. If there is any sign of malignancy, polyps should be removed surgically.

Pontiac fever. A pneumonialike disease first noted in Pontiac, Michigan (1968). The bacteria are believed to be slightly different strains of the same bacteria as those causing legionnaires' disease.

positron emission tomography (PET). A scanner that makes images of the body from radioactive isotopes; the images are deciphered by computers. It is an invasive means of visualizing brain sites to detect neuropsychiatric disorders.

Pott's disease. Spinal tuberculosis. The condition may also affect the hips and knees. It occurs mainly in children and adults up to 40 years of age.

preeclampsia and eclampsia. Conditions commonly referred to as toxemias of pregnancy. Preeclampsia is often marked by fluid retention and high blood pressure. In eclampsia, convulsions occur and pregnancy must be terminated.

pregnancy tests.

Slide test. Simple test that involves mixing urine with a solution on a slide and examining results. It is most accurate when done at least seven weeks after the last menstrual period.

Tube (hemagglutination inhibition) test. Typical of home pregnancy tests, urine is mixed with a testing solution in a tube. It is slightly more accurate and can be done about a week earlier than the slide test.

Radioreceptor assay (RRA) blood test; beta-HCG (human chorionic gonadotropin) test; monoclonal antibodies test. The newest of available tests with which accurate positive results can be obtained as early as the time of the first missed period.

prognosis. Foretelling of the probable course and outcome of a disease.

prolapse. Downward or forward displacement of a part of the body. Most often used in denoting a displaced or "fallen" uterus.

prostaglandins. A group of fatty acid derivatives present in many body tissues. They can lower blood pressure, stimulate uterine contractions, and regulate body temperatures.

prostatitis. Inflammation of the prostate. In the acute bacterial form, marked by fever, chills, and back pain. There is usually accompanying difficulty in urination, as well as pain in muscles and joints.

prothrombin time (PT). Test that measures the time needed for a fibrin (a protein formed by the action of thrombin on fibrinogen) clot to form in a treated blood sample.

pseudodementia. Condition in which a person experiences an exaggerated indifference to his surroundings. However, there is no actual impairment of mental capacity.

psittacosis. A viral disease that may be transmitted to humans by infected birds, especially parrots, parakeets, love birds, and canaries. It is generally acquired by breathing in the dust from the cage contents or feathers of the infected birds.

psoriasis. A skin condition marked by formation of unsightly reddish, silvery-scaled patches. In general, the elbows, knees, legs, lower back, chest, and scalp are affected.

psychiatry. A medical specialty that deals with the diagnosis and treatment of mental illness. Psychotherapy employs mental rather than physical means.

psychosis. Mental disorders in which there is disturbed thought, disintegration of personality, and lack of touch with reality. Schizophrenia is the most common psychosis.

psychosomatic. The influence of the mind (emotions, fears, desires) upon the body functions, especially as it pertains to disease.

psychotropic. All that affects the mind and its processes. Also refers to psychotropic drugs, which have an effect on psychic function, behavior, and experience.

pulmonary embolism. A clot in an artery of the lungs, often due to a detached clot from a leg vein. Those most vulnerable are the bedridden or those with heart or lung disease, cancer, or hip fractures.

purpura. A group of bleeding disorders due to various causes. Characterized by bleeding into the skin and other tissues, mucous membranes, and internal organs.

pyelography. X-ray examination of the renal pelvis and ureter.

It is indicated in cases of recurrent kidney or bladder infection, or severe symptoms of prostate enlargement.

pyelonephritis. Inflammation of the kidney as well as the renal pelvis, commonly caused by an ascending bacterial infection. When chronic, the kidney suffers irreversible changes.

Q fever (query fever, Balkan grippe). An acute infective disease. When first noted, its cause was unknown and the Q stood for "query." The organism is carried by livestock and transmitted to humans by inhalation of infected dusts, or by drinking of contaminated milk of infected animals.

radiation sickness. An illness resulting from chronic exposure to or excessive amounts of high-energy radiation. Symptoms may be mild or may result in serious disturbances in blood cell formation, leukemia, and other changes.

radioisotope scanning. The study of the function and condition of internal organs, vessels, or body fluids with radioactive forms of chemicals, such as iodine.

radiotherapy (radiation, roentgenography). Treatment of disease by the use of roentgen rays (x-rays), radium, ultraviolet, and other radiations. It may be used alone or in combination with surgery or drugs.

Raynaud's disease. Condition in which there is spasm in the blood vessels of the extremities, especially in response to cold temperatures that would not normally affect a person. Most often, the fingers are affected.

reticular activating system (RAS). A complex system of nerve cells and fibers in the brain stem, hypothalamus, and adjacent areas. It plays an important part in maintaining alertness or wakefulness.

retinitis pigmentosa. Chronic and progressive disease that usually starts in childhood. It is marked by retinal degeneration, widespread changes in retinal pigmentation, wasting of the optic nerve, and defective night vision.

Reye's syndrome. Potentially fatal disorder that usually afflicts children under 18 following a viral infection such as chicken pox. It is marked by increased pressure on the brain and fatty degeneration of the liver.

Rh blood factor (Rhesus factor). A factor discovered in red blood cells of the rhesus monkey. It is present in about 85 percent of the human population who are said to be Rh positive (Rh+). Those not having this substance in the blood are Rh negative (Rh−).

rheumatic fever. A disease of childhood and adolescence that often follows symptoms of throat infection. If untreated, it can lead to heart damage.

rheumatoid arthritis. A chronic and usually progressive inflammatory disease of the joints that affects women more than men. Pain and swelling of the joints result in restricted movement.

rickets. A childhood disease primarily due to a lack of dietary Vitamin D, or inadequate exposure to sunlight, or both. Rickets interferes with the normal deposition of calcium.

RNA (ribonucleic acid). The "message" molecule that carries information from the nucleus (the vital body in cell protoplasm) to cytoplasma (cell protoplasm outside the nucleus) sites.

Rocky Mountain spotted fever. An infectious disease caused by a species of rickettsia. Usually acquired in man from the bite of infected ticks. Marked by high fever, muscle and bone pain, and rash.

Salmonellosis. The most common form of food poisoning, caused by ingestion of food contaminated with bacteria of the genus Salmonella. There is severe inflammation of the stomach lining and intestines.

salpingitis. Inflammatory condition of a Fallopian tube usually caused by a bacterial infection spreading upward from the uterus, cervix, or vagina.

sarcoma. A general term for cancer. Composed of cells from connective tissues of the body, such as bone or muscle. The bladder, kidneys, lungs, liver, spleen, and nearby tissues may be involved.

scabies. Highly infectious skin disease caused by the itch mite, Sarcoptes scabiei, and spread by close contact with infected persons. Most often, the hands, wrists, armpits, breasts, and thighs are affected.

scarlet fever. Acute contagious disease caused by a bacterial infection. Marked by sore throat, fever, and a scarlet rash. The infection is spread by the breath or cough of an infected person, or by handling contaminated objects.

schistosomiasis (snail fever). Parasitic infestation due to blood flukes (a type of worm) belonging to a species of Schistosoma. Man becomes infected by bathing in water containing parasitic worms issued from snails.

schizophrenia. A group of mental disorders in which there are disturbances in thinking, mood, and behavior. In some cases, there is an altered sense of reality, delusions, and hallucinations.

sciatica. A severe pain involving the sciatic nerve, which extends from the back of the thigh down through the inside of the leg. The pain is sharp, usually more intense when standing, and often accompanied by tingling, numbness, and tenderness.

scleroderma. Progressive skin disease involving collagen tissue. There is widespread hardening of the skin due to swelling and thickening of fibrous tissue. This may be followed by skin atrophy and pigmentation.

scoliosis. An abnormal sideways curvature of the spine. There may be just one curve or a compensatory curve in the opposite direction. It may be due to a congenital defect, injury, disease, or poor posture.

senile dementia (senility, senile psychosis). A wide variety of mental and emotional changes affecting the elderly. Symptoms of this condition include loss of recent memory, short attention span, and irritability.

shingles. See herpes zoster.

shock. A state of deep mental and physical depression after receiving severe physical injury or undergoing emotional stress. Some causes are heart failure, hemorrhage, drug reaction, or poisoning.

sickle-cell anemia. An inherited blood disorder marked by a genetic abnormality of the red blood cells in which the cells become crescent or sickle-shaped.

sigmoidoscopy. A technique that permits inspection, through a tubular speculum called a sigmoidscope, of the interior of the sigmoid colon. It is indicated for detection of polyps, cancer, and bowel abnormalities.

sinusitis. Inflammation of the lining membrane of any sinus, but especially the nasal sinus. Most often, the condition occurs as an extension of nasal infections.

sleeping sickness. See trypanosomiasis.

slipped disk (prolapsed disk). Herniation or rupture of part of the intervertebral disk, which is normally held in place by fibrous tissues. When fibers weaken, protrusion from between the vertebrae occurs.

smallpox (variola). An acute, contagious, febrile disease that begins with chills, high fever, backache, and headache. Symptoms subside within five days and a skin eruption appears, ending up in dry scabs that fall off and mark the skin.

snail fever. See schistosomiasis.

specialist. A physician who, on completion of specialized postgraduate training, is able to practice a particular branch of medicine, such as surgery or obstetrics. (See page 81 for a description of various specialists.)

spinal tap. Involves lumbar puncture, which is used in cases of suspected meningitis and in certain types of spinal cord or brain damage.

Still's disease (juvenile rheumatoid arthritis). Similar to rheumatoid arthritis found in adults; however, children are affected much more severely during the development of the disease and less so in the later stages.

Stokes-Adams syndrome. Characterized by light-headedness or sudden loss of consciousness. Condition is associated with various disorders of the heart that disrupt its normal pumping action and consequent output of blood.

strabismus (cross-eye, squint). Condition in which the eyes fail to point in the same direction. Involves one or more muscles controlling eyeball movement.

stroke (apoplexy). Sudden loss of consciousness and paralysis on one side due to blockage of a cerebral artery by an embolus or thrombus or rupture of a blood vessel in the brain.

sudden infant death (SIDS; crib death). Unexplained death of an apparently well infant occurring most often between the second week and the first year of life. About 10 percent of cases are associated with cardiovascular or central nervous systems.

symptom. Any noticeable change in the body or its functions that indicates the presence of an illness or disease. May be of a general nature or pertain to the part of the body affected.

syphilis. A venereal disease caused by bacterial infection of the species Treponema pallidum. Spread almost exclusively by sexual intercourse with an infected partner.

tachycardia. Condition in which there is an abnormally fast heartbeat, especially over 100 beats per minute. May result from an overactive thyroid gland or some form of heart disease.

tapes dorsalis (locomotor ataxia). A late manifestation of syphilis involving the spinal cord. Occurs in persons having had inadequate or no treatment during early stages of syphilis.

Tay-Sachs disease. An hereditary disease caused by transmission of an abnormal gene. It results in a specific enzyme deficiency and is marked by progressive mental and physical retardation, paralysis, spasticity, and blindness.

telangiectasia. Dilation of capillaries, or a group of small blood vessels, which causes a small dark red elevation on the skin. May appear as a birthmark or become noticeable in young children.

temporal arteritis. Inflammation of the arteries that supply the sides of the scalp. Of unknown origin, it is becoming increasingly recognized in the elderly.

tetanus. An acute infection caused by the bacteria Clostridium tetani. These bacteria enter the body through a scratch or wound, where they release their poison (toxin) by growth and multiplication.

tetany. Nervous disorder in which there are intermittent tonic spasms involving the extremities. It can occur after a critical drop in the amount of calcium circulating in the blood.

thalassemia. An hereditary form of anemia characterized by the development of abnormally thin and fragile red blood cells. There are several variants of the disease, but no specific treatment is obtainable.

thalidomide. A hypnotic drug widely used in European countries as a sleeping pill in the early 1960's. Use of the drug was discontinued when it was found to cause severe limb deformities in developing fetuses.

therapeutic. The treatment of disease, or the results obtained from treatment. It may also pertain to a healing agent, or having healing properties.

thermography. A technique used to detect, record by a sensitive scanner, and interpret the significance of radiant heat thrown off by tissues affected by disease. It is used to study blood flow in limbs and to detect cancer.

thrombocytopenia. An abnormal decrease in the number of platelets (thrombocytes) in the circulating blood. It results in an inability of the blood to clot efficiently.

tinnitus. Condition in which a person experiences in one or both ears the sensation of noises that are not caused by external sound vibrations. It may be nothing more serious than impacted wax, or it may be an early sign of inner ear disease.

tonsillitis. An inflammation of tonsillar tissue. Tonsils appear enlarged and red, and are painful on swallowing. There may also be high fever, chills, and headache. It is more frequent in children than in adults.

toxic. A poisonous substance, a condition caused by a poison, or pertaining to a toxin. A toxin is a poisonous substance of animal or plant origin.

toxic shock syndrome. A fast-spreading, often deadly form of toxic reaction that sometimes kills or permanently disables a person within hours. About 80 percent of the cases occur in menstruating women using tampons.

toxoplasmosis. An infection caused by a parasite. Usually transmitted to humans through cat litter or from raw or uncooked meat. In pregnant women, the infectious organism can be transmitted to the fetus and cause jaundice, anemia, or nerve damage.

tranquilizer. Drug that acts to reduce mental tension and anxiety without causing depression in the user. Such drugs have facilitated treatment of certain severely disturbed psychiatric patients.

trichinosis. A parasitic disease caused by eating raw or inadequately cooked or processed pork or pork products infected with Trichinella spiralis. Symptoms may be absent or there may be pain, nausea, and diarrhea.

trichomoniasis vaginitis. One of the most common vaginal diseases, it is caused by a single-celled organism. Sometimes, it produces no symptoms, but often there is discharge and itching. Untreated, it can cause urinary problems.

trypanosomiasis (sleeping sickness). May be one of several diseases occurring in man and domestic animals caused by a trypanosome. The infection is marked by drowsiness, lethargy, muscular weakness, and cerebral symptoms.

tuberculosis. Three types of tubercle bacillus cause this infection: human, bovine, and avian. The human type is most responsible for the infection in man. Generally, contact is with an infected person or with contaminated milk from an infected cow.

typhoid fever. A bacterial infection caused by ingesting contaminated food, milk, or water. The bacteria responsible, Salmonella typhosa, are excreted in the feces and sometimes the urine of infected persons or carriers of the disease.

ulcerative colitis. Inflammation combined with ulceration of the mucous membrane lining the large intestine. Marked by acute abdominal pain, tenderness, and watery stools.

ultrasonography. The use of sound waves to produce an image or photograph of an organ or tissue. It is indicated where there is a suspicion of thyroid or gallbladder dysfunction, in certain heart problems, and in the last trimester of pregnancy to determine size and position of fetus.

ultrasound (sonogram). Procedure that produces velocities in tissues that differ in density and elasticity from others. Outlines the shape of various body tissues and organs.

uremia. A toxic condition in which the kidneys fail to filter out various nitrogen-containing waste products in the blood, especially urea.

urticaria. An allergic skin reaction, more commonly called hives or nettle rash. Produces an eruption of wheals (red or white raised patches on the skin) that is accompanied by intense itching.

vaginitis. An inflammation of the vagina that may be caused by a bacterial, fungal, or protozoan infection. May also be due to irritation from chemical douches or foreign bodies, or poor hygiene of the vulval area.

varicose veins. Enlarged, twisted veins, usually in the leg, caused by damage to their one-way valves (which normally prevent a backward flow of blood); stretching of their relatively thin walls results.

vascular. The blood vessels. Collectively, the blood vessels together with the heart and lymph vessels constitute the vascular system.

vertigo. A sensation of whirling about, either of oneself or external objects, associated with difficulty in keeping one's balance. May be due to drug reactions, middle ear disease, or infection.

volvulus. A twisting upon itself of a section of intestine, causing a serious obstruction. Signs and symptoms include severe, sudden abdominal pain followed by vomiting and distention.

wart (verruca). A small skin tumor caused by papilloma viruses. They are usually benign, and may disappear spontaneously. Warts may form on fingers, elbows, face, soles of feet, or genitalia.

whooping cough (pertussis). An acute infectious disease caused by Bordetella pertussis and spread in the air by the cough of an infected person. Highly contagious, it is a serious childhood disease.

xanthema. Condition in which a yellow pigment, carotene, is present in the blood. Marked by yellowing of the skin and a pseudo, rather than a true, jaundice, as there is no yellow discoloration of eye whites.

x-rays. Electromagnetic radiation of a wavelength shorter than visible light or ultraviolet radiation. X-rays have the ability to penetrate the body and most other solids, and to act on photographic film, making them valuable in diagnosing diseases.

yeast infection. A popular term for several fungal infections: candidiasis, thrush, and some forms of vaginitis. Yeasts, which reproduce by budding, are unicellar fungi of the genus Saccharomyces.

Zollinger-Ellison syndrome. A condition characterized by tumors of the pancreas, about 60 percent of which are malignant. With the secretion of too much hydrochloric acid and pepsin, there is eventual ulceration of the intestinal lining and the stomach.

For further reference

The American Medical Directory
American Medical Association

Angel, Jack E.
Physicians Desk Reference
Medical Economics Company

Belsky, Marvin S., M.D.
How to Choose Your Doctor Arbor House

Berkow, Robert, M.D.
The Merck Manual (Diagnosis and Therapy)
Merck & Company

Directory of Medical Specialists
A.N. Marquis Company

It's Good to Know About Mental Health
U.S. Government Printing Office
1724-0037

Medicaid-Medicare, Which Is Which?
U.S. Government Printing Office
MSA-901-70

Mindell, Earl
Earl Mindell's Pill Bible
Bantam Books

Sehnert, Keith W., M.D.
How to Be Your Own Doctor
Grosset & Dunlap

Someone Close to You Drinks Too Much
U.S. Government Printing Office
HE 20.8302:D 83 (SB) $2

Vickery, Donald, M.D. and Fries, James F., M.D.
Take Care of Yourself: A Consumer's Guide to Medical Care
Addison-Wesley Publishing Company

Wolfe, Sidney and Coley, Christopher Pills That Don't Work
Farrar Strauss & Giroux

Information resources:

American Hospital Association 840 North Lake Shore Drive
Chicago, IL 60611

Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals
875 N. Michigan Avenue
Chicago, IL 60611

The National Cancer Institute
Building 31, Room 10 A Bethesda, MD 20205

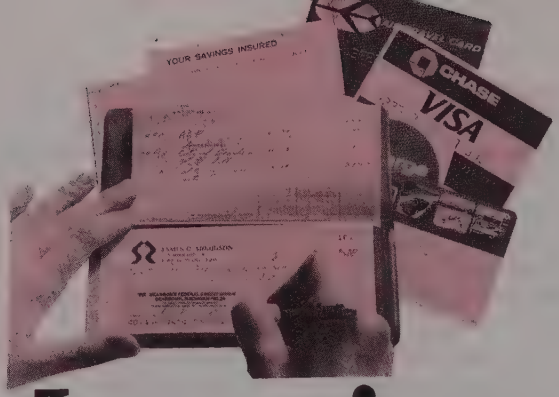
The American Heart Association
44 East 23rd Street
New York, NY 10010

The U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, DC 20402



Managing the Family's Money

- Planning and record-keeping 111
- Using credit wisely 114
- Dealing with your bank 115
- Saving and investing 118
- Looking ahead to tax time 120
- Buying insurance 122
- Putting your affairs in order 126
- Planning for retirement 127
- Managing your shopping 130
- Your shelter dollar 132
- Managing your car 134
- An economical vacation 135
- Glossary 136
- Booklets on request 139

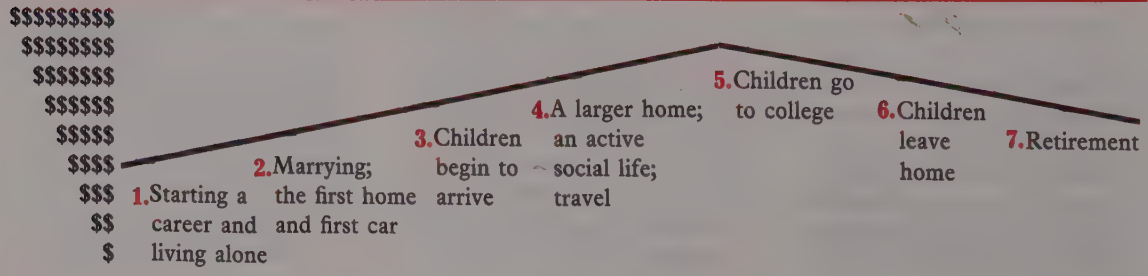
When we do think about money, it is either about how it comes in or how it goes out. This section will not tell you how to make more money come in—except through prudent investing. It will tell you some of the ways you can control the way money goes out. Managing the family's money means keeping track of it and making sure you put it to the best use in the ways you spend and save it.

In this age of inflation, high interest rates, and wide-ranging opportunities for saving and investing, money management has captured the interest of people everywhere. People who never spent much time thinking about the subject before are now paying for the advice of professional financial planners.

There are many paths on the financial landscape, and not all of them lead where we might hope. But there are some basic facts that can help us make sensible choices. This section sets many of them forth.

The information here is generally correct for the entire United States, but state laws do vary in some cases. If you think your state requirements might differ, ask your elected representative to check them for you.

The seven ages of your economic life



Planning and record-keeping

Dwight D. Eisenhower is said to have remarked when he was a general, "It's not the plan that counts, it's the planning." What he meant, of course, was that the very act of planning—setting goals, gathering facts, deciding what is important, figuring out how to get where you want to go—is worthwhile in itself. It helps you to understand what you are doing and why you are doing it. The particular plan you come up with may have to be changed or discarded in favor of a better one, but the discipline and knowledge that come from working up a plan will always be to your advantage.

Managing the family's money begins with planning. You set your goals for the kind of life you want to lead and the things you want your family to have. You get all the facts you can about how much you will need to save, to spend, and to invest. You also need to know how to make the best use of credit, the services that are available, and the potential pitfalls.

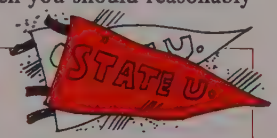
Good record-keeping is essential. You must keep receipts for important items and make note of important cash outlays. To do this, you must find a way to keep records that suits you. For one person, it might be a ledger book with neatly written entries. For another, a shoebox would be just right for keeping records on separate pieces of paper. There is nothing wrong with a shoebox provided you use it consistently and start a new one at regular intervals—every six months or a year—putting each important sales slip or receipt into it and making sure that each item is identified on the slip. Include gifts to charity, interest expense items, sales tax, and all other items you would not find recorded in your checkbook.

Planning also means keeping permanent records of basic information (such as that suggested on the next page). This information can be useful to you and your family at various times throughout the year and is absolutely essential when a family member dies. The mere act of filling out the form may suggest ideas to you. Perhaps you have partly overlapping insurance policies, or not enough coverage. As you review the record at least once a year, changing conditions will suggest other revisions. It may be a good time to switch

Your financial plan should start with your estimate of how much you are worth. Use the chart on page 112 as your guide.

Your net worth at any one time does not mean very much by itself. But if you go through the exercise of figuring out your net worth every year and you find that it is going down, this is a clear signal that something is wrong.

Next it is time to work up a budget, based on how much you earn and how much you should reasonably



Paying for college

Saving enough to send a child to college is unrealistic for most families.

Some schools offer tuition budget plans. You make monthly payments while your son or daughter is in college.

The federal government's Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) program enables freshmen and sophomores to borrow up to $2625 a year and juniors and seniors up to $4000 a year at low interest rates. Repayment begins six months after studies are completed. The student has to show need to be eligible for a GSL. Loans for Parents are available up to $4000 a year with higher interest rates and repayment beginning in 60 days.

Students who can show need are eligible for Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG) of $100 to $2000.

Unusually needy students borrowing for the first time can get loans at 5 percent from the Carl D. Perkins National Direct Student Loan program. The Pell Grant program provides grants based on need up to $2300 a year.

spend. Before you draw up a budget, have your family keep an informal record of expenses for a month. Then estimate how much you spend on once-a-year events like a vacation and Christmas, dividing such expenses by twelve. Make sure you take into account all other outlays that come up during the year, such as quarterly tax payments. Then summarize all your income during the year, including interest payments from the bank and dividends on life insurance. With this information on inflow and outgo, you have the basis for your budget.

If the figures show that there is not much left over for savings, review your expense items with your family and decide on what can be cut back or eliminated. Be sure to make some provision for unexpected expenses. A budget will soon fail if it is too tightly drawn up.

The problem of our time

Underlying all your planning, there should be an awareness of the unavoidable problem of our time—inflation. Remember this rule of thumb: a 7 percent increase each year means a doubling in ten years, which means that you would need $2 ten years from now to buy what $1 buys today.

When you see an advertisement for an Investors Retirement Account (IRA) that states $2000 a year may grow to a million dollars at your time of retirement, remember that a million dollars in the 2020's will be worth $125,000 in today's dollars, assuming 6 percent inflation.

How much are you worth?

Like a business, a family that manages its money effectively starts with a balance sheet. The difference between the assets and the liabilities is what cost accountants call net worth.

Assets

Cash and marketable securities

Cash in checking and savings accounts _____
Certificates of deposit _____ Mutual fund shares _____
U.S. Savings Bonds _____
Life insurance cash value (obtainable from your insurance agent) _____

Other assets

Real estate (including your home) _____
Pension value _____
IRA and Keogh accounts _____
* Automobiles _____
* Furniture and appliances _____
* Personal possessions _____

Total assets _____

Liabilities

Current liabilities

Bills payable _____ Installment loans _____

Long-term liabilities

Mortgage _____
Bank loans _____

Total liabilities _____

*Depreciated

Net worth _____

The family budget

No budget format would be right for all families, but here are typical items that should be included in an annual budget.

Income

Salaries _____ Interest _____
Dividends _____
Sale of securities or property (these should be recognized as unusual items unless you sell securities every year) _____
Bonuses (also to be treated as unusual items) _____

Total income _____

Outgo

Food _____
Clothing _____
Automobile operating costs _____
Shelter costs, including mortgage payments _____
Miscellaneous purchases _____
Health care _____
Entertainment _____
Vacation _____
Education _____
Interest expense _____
Insurance premiums _____
Charitable contributions _____ Taxes _____

Total outgo _____

Balance available for saving and investing _____

The family record

Information related to money management that should be available to everyone in your family.

Your name: Date and place of birth:
Your Social Security number:

Your spouse's name: Date and place of birth:
Spouse's Social Security number:

First child's name: Date and place of birth:
Social Security number:

Same information for each additional child:

Your employer's name and address:
Name and telephone number of your supervisor:

Spouse's employer's name and address:
Name and telephone number of supervisor:

Your attorney's name and telephone number:

Your accountant's, or tax advisor's, name and telephone number:

Your insurance agent's name and telephone number:

Your bank or savings institution officer:

Date and location of your will:
Your executor:

Numbers of bank checking and savings accounts and certificates of deposit:

Interest income:

Location of check recordbooks, passbooks, and certificates:

Your safe deposit box location and number:
Location of keys:
Description of valuable possessions and serial numbers (of such items as cameras):

Description of real estate you own:
Date and cost of purchase:
Name and address of mortgage holder:

Descriptions of investments, such as mutual fund shares:
Income from investments: Dates investments were made:
Name of investment company, bank or broker,
and numbers of the accounts:

Name of life insurance company:
Numbers and face values of the policies on your life: Loans against the policies:
Same information for policies on your spouse's life: Premium due dates:

Name of automobile insurance company:
Number and amount of the policy: Premium due date:

Name of health and disability insurance company:
Number and amount of the policy: Premium due date:

Name of home-owner's insurance company:
Number and amount of the policy:

Loans outstanding: Interest payment dates:
Repayment dates:
Mortgage balance and monthly payment:
Installment loans: Payments due:

Credit card account numbers:
Address of issuer to be notified:

Your Social Security benefit (if applicable):

Using credit wisely

Like fire and water, credit is a good servant but a poor master. The nation's economy runs on credit, and most of us have come to depend on it every day of our lives.

For most people, credit is not difficult to obtain, whether in the form of a charge account or installment credit at a store, a credit card from a bank, or a loan from a credit union.

Applying for credit. When you apply for credit, you will be asked questions about your stability in society and your ability to pay off loans. How long have you been with your present employer? Do you own your own home? If not, how long have you rented the space where you now live? Do you have checking and savings accounts? Do you have a history of paying your bills on time?

There is no fixed credit rating that follows you wherever you go. Lenders judge you by their own standards.

Credit at a store. When you open a charge account at a department store, you may be offered a revolving account. This has a set limit on how much you can owe the store at one time, with interest to be paid every month on the unpaid balance.

If you want to buy something on the installment plan, ask yourself these two questions first: Would I pay cash for this if I had the cash available? Is what I am buying going to last longer than it will take me to pay off this loan?

Before you sign the installment contract, ask the seller for the annual percentage rate (APR). The APR, which is the total finance charge expressed as a percentage of the amount you are borrowing, is the true interest cost, and it may be higher than you realize. For example, if you paid off a loan of $100 with twelve equal monthly installments totaling $110, your true interest was not 10 percent; it was 18 percent. The amount you owed kept declining while you continued to pay interest on the total loan.

Also ask the seller for the total cost of the loan, including payments and principal, the cost of late charges, and the penalties, if any, for paying off early.

Credit unions. If you live in an area where there are few banks or savings institutions competing with each other, an economical source of credit is a local credit union. Members purchase shares in the association, and loan applications are reviewed by a committee of members. Since members do much of the administrative work with the help of a small paid staff, a credit union can give its members better value.

Credit card tips

- Be sure to sign your credit card promptly.
- Do not carry more cards than you absolutely need.
- Do not give your card to a salesperson without making sure that you get your own card back.
- When your card expires and a new one is issued, cut the old card in half before you discard it.
- When you get your credit card receipt, ask for and then destroy both of the little pieces of carbon paper. Wastebaskets are searched by credit card defrauders, who can copy your number and signature from the carbon paper, or even manufacture a fake card with your name and number.
- Do not give your credit card number to strangers who telephone you.
- Keep the numbers and issue dates of your cards with your personal records.
- Report the loss of your card immediately, even if someone telephones you to say he has found it and will return it. He may be stalling for time in which to run up charges in your name. You are not liable for any charges if you report the loss promptly.

"Plastic" from the bank. Credit cards issued by banks, such as Visa and MasterCharge, are by far the most widely used form of credit. If you have "plastic," the best rule is to think of it not as a credit card but as a charge card—a convenience that you have with you to avoid the trouble and risk of carrying cash. A card also saves you money by enabling you to take advantage of unexpected sales and bargains. In addition, it offers the great convenience of shopping by telephone.

With many bank cards, it has been possible to obtain free credit by paying the bill in full before the monthly due date. Increasingly, however, banks are charging interest from the day they receive each charge slip from the participating establishment.

If you let your balance accumulate, you are paying interest at the rate of 18 to nearly 20 percent a year, although some banks introduce credit cards with rates as low as approximately 12 percent. Your bank will not object if you take your time paying off the balance, provided you pay the relatively small monthly minimum—a sure sign that this arrangement is to the bank's advantage, not yours. By paying off more than the minimum, you significantly reduce your interest costs.

Dealing with your bank

A bank borrows at wholesale and lends at retail. Besides paying you interest on money you deposit and charging you higher interest on money you borrow, a commercial—or full-service—bank offers a wide range of services.

In addition to checking and savings accounts, banks offer money market accounts, Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA's), Keogh accounts, certificates of deposit (CD's), home improvement loans, home mortgages, automobile loans, personal loans, and credit cards. They also provide such services as automatic teller machines (ATM's), safe deposit boxes, purchasing government bonds on your behalf, paying utility bills out of your account, and automatically depositing your paychecks or Social Security checks. Savings institutions offer some of these services, including negotiable orders of withdrawal (NOW) accounts, which are interest-bearing checking accounts.

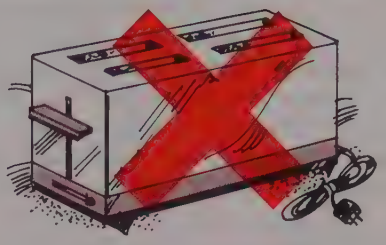
Choosing your bank. In selecting your bank or savings institution, remember that no service is truly free. Compare the rates and service charges with those of their competitor institutions and look at the details of the various savings plans, including certificates of deposit and money market accounts.

Ask about savings plans. Among the questions you should ask about savings plans are these: How frequently is interest compounded? What is the effective annual yield, not just the interest rate? Is interest compounded from day of deposit to day of withdrawal? Is there an interest penalty for early or frequent withdrawal? Are deposits insured? How quickly do funds become available?

Banks and savings institutions now pay the same interest on passbook savings accounts, but the relatively low rate makes such an account unattractive for depositing more than a few hundred dollars.

The checking account. The greatest convenience a bank or savings institution offers is the checking account. A check is essentially theftproof and, once it has been paid and returned to you, indisputable proof that payment was made. Your check recordbook gives you a dependable and up-to-the-minute record of your cash inflow and outgo.

Many banks offer as many as five different kinds of checking accounts. Find out if the checking services in the bank you are considering are competitive on interest paid (if any), number of checks allowed, service charges, and minimum balance required.



Do not choose a bank on the basis of its giveaways. Instead read the bank's fine print about its interest rates and service charges.

Special checking usually involves a fee but no minimum balance; it is best suited to someone who writes less than half a dozen checks a month. Regular checking, for people who write more checks, is likely to require a minimum balance or service charge. A NOW account, at either a bank or savings institution, pays interest close to savings account rates. A Super NOW account pays higher rates, like those of the bank's money market deposit account, but it may require a minimum balance, and it imposes relatively high service charges. The Super NOW is of greatest use to people who need quick access to a lot of cash and who write many checks. As we shall see later, banks also offer overdraft accounts, for convenient borrowing at high interest rates.

A joint checking account is a convenience for a couple, provided they both enter all their transactions in the same recordbook, which the bank provides along with the blank checks. A couple should be aware that any money in a joint account belongs legally to either person and can be completely withdrawn without the other's knowledge. Since some states freeze a joint account when one of the co-owners dies, it is essential for the survivor to have access to other funds at such a time.

Do not make out a check to "cash" unless you immediately give it to the recipient, because you have thereby turned your check into cash. If your checkbook is stolen, notify the bank immediately so that your account can be frozen. The bank will honor only those checks that you have written.

If you write a check and then decide you do not want it honored, call the bank's stop-payment department. It will stop payment for a fee, provided there would have been enough in your account to pay the check anyway. Notify the person to whom you issued the check.

When you make a deposit into your checking account, allow several working days for your account to be credited. Always deposit a check as soon as you receive it.

Balancing your checkbook.

After you receive your checking account statement from the bank, balance your check recordbook against the statement within a few days. If you wait longer and find an error in the bank's statement, it may be too late for them to locate their error speedily.

Although it should be a simple matter to balance your check recordbook, some people find it confusing because not all of the checks that have been written clear the bank by the time a statement is completed.

The figure on the last line of your table should equal the balance on the bank statement. If it is off by a significant amount, check your arithmetic, making sure you did not add when you should have subtracted, or vice versa. If your balance is off by an insignificant amount, assume the bank statement to be correct and make a compensating entry on the first open line of your check recordbook.

How to balance your checkbook

1. Arrange the canceled checks in numerical order.
2. Check them off in pencil against the debit column of the bank's statement.
3. Go through the canceled checks again, this time checking them off in pencil against the entries in your check recordbook. The lowest-numbered checks will probably include a few that did not clear before the previous statement.
4. When you come to a check in your recordbook that has not yet cleared the bank, draw a circle in red around the number of that check in the recordbook.
5. Go through the same two procedures with your deposit slips. If you have entered a deposit in your check recordbook that does not show up on the bank statement, draw a red circle around it in the recordbook.
6. Draw a red line underneath the last check in your recordbook that is also shown on the bank statement. This is the cutoff point.
7. Enter in your recordbook the bank's debit for charges and credit for interest (if any), so that these amounts will be reflected in your own balance before the next statement comes from the bank.
8. Draw up a simple table on a piece of paper like this:

Your recordbook balance

	(the last balance above the red line you drew)	_____
Plus	Total of outstanding checks (those you circled in red)	+ _____
Plus	Any interest credited to your statement (if it is an interest-bearing account)	+ _____
	Total	_____
Minus	Recent deposits entered by you but not yet credited by the bank (circled in red)	− _____
	Difference	_____
Minus	Service charges shown on the bank statement	− _____
	Difference: Your balance	_____

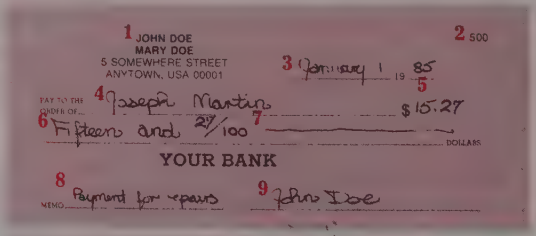
Do's and don'ts of writing a check

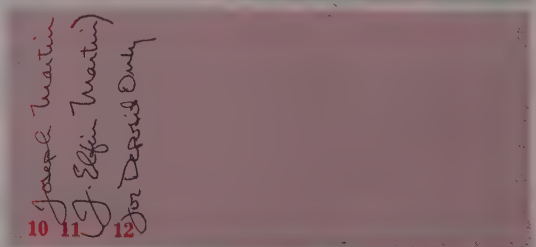
Face of check

1. Name and address printed on check make it easier to cash.
2. Number your checks if they are not already numbered.
3. Date properly; never postdate. It is legal to date a check on a Sunday or holiday.
4. Do not use Mr., Mrs., Ms., or Miss.
5. Do not leave a space between $ and the first digit.
6. Start writing at the end of the line. The written figure with the fraction is the amount the bank pays.
7. Draw a line between the fraction and "dollars."
8. The memo entry is for your convenience only.
9. Sign the same way every time. Do not write in pencil, even though it is legal. If you make a mistake, tear up the check and cross out the check number in your check recordbook.

Back of check

10. Endorse on back of left end.
11. Endorse exactly as your name appears on the face of the check as payee. Write your regular name underneath in parentheses.
12. Writing "for deposit only" will prevent the check from being cashed by someone else.





Other kinds of checks. For an unusual transaction, you may be asked to pay with a certified check. In this case, you write your own check for a specific amount to a specific payee and take it to your bank, where it will be signed and stamped by a bank officer. At the same time, the officer will reserve that amount from your account so that there will be enough to pay the check when it comes in, regardless of what other checks you write. At this point, your certified check is as good as cash and should be given directly to the payee.

A cashier's check has similar uses. It is made out and signed by an officer of the bank in return for a payment by you to the bank. It is best to have it made out to your name so that there is a record that the payment is going through your hands. You can then endorse it to the payee when you hand it over, and be sure to get a receipt.

Most banks provide traveler's checks, which are issued by a few large banks or other financial institutions known around the world. Traveler's checks are useful when you are traveling or moving because they are usually accepted everywhere while personal checks are not. If lost, traveler's checks can be replaced and the money returned. But they should not be held for a long time. When you buy one, you are in effect lending the bank your money at no interest, and at a small charge to you.

A place for your savings.

Banks compete vigorously for your savings. In addition to the traditional passbook savings account, many banks and savings institutions now offer time deposit accounts with fixed interest at much higher rates. Usually referred to as CD's, these insured accounts have minimum periods of deposit ranging from three months to as long as ten years, with penalties for early withdrawal. The minimum deposit in many banks is $1000 for certificates of deposit of less than a year and $500 for longer terms.

Banks also offer money market deposit accounts, which pay interest that is adjusted periodically in line with interest rates in the money market. This is the market where short-term debt securities are traded. Some banks require a minimum deposit in a money market account.

A place to borrow.

On the other side of the banking business, there is at least as much competition to lend you money.

One of the simplest and most economical ways to borrow at a bank or savings institution is to borrow against your own passbook. The interest rate is lower than on a regular loan, and you continue to earn interest on your entire deposit.

Do not carry your ATM number

- Be sure not to write your ATM identification number on anything you carry or keep at your place of work. Keep the only record of the number in a safe place at home.
- Always check your receipt before leaving.
- Make sure the machine is back to its original setting.
- As soon as you get home, enter your ATM transaction in your recordbook.
- If you lose your ATM access card, call the bank immediately. If the card is used by someone who has found out your ATM identification number, you will have to file a report with the police.

Many banks also offer overdraft checking accounts under various names. You activate your account simply by writing one of the special checks for that account given to you by the bank. Each month you receive a statement specifying the part of the loan to be paid back that month and the high interest rate charges you have to pay.

You can obtain loans at banks for a variety of specific needs. In applying for such a loan, be sure to ask the annual percentage rate. This is the total finance charge—more than simple interest—expressed as a percentage of the amount borrowed.

Some banks also offer debt consolidation loans, for people who are unable to keep up with their bills. The idea sounds appealing because your monthly payment for the loan can be less than the monthly total for all your bills. The bank achieves this sleight-of-hand by stretching out the payments over a long period of time; thus, the total interest you pay is very high.

Other bank services.

Automatic teller machines (ATM's) enable you to make deposits or withdrawals at any hour of the day, including weekends and holidays. This means you can make a deposit without carrying cash or checks around, and you can begin earning interest immediately. It also means you can obtain cash whenever you need it.

Safe deposit boxes are useful for storing items difficult to replace. These include securities; the deed to your house; the title to your automobile; birth and marriage certificates; your home-owner's insurance policy; an inventory of possessions in your house; and a copy—not the original—of your will. Since some states seal safe deposit boxes on the death of the owner, do not store any items that would be needed right after your death. Keep a list at home of the contents of your box.

Saving and investing

Everyone knows it is wise to put something aside regularly. Everyone also knows of good uses for the money saved—an untroubled retirement, a vacation home, a weekend cottage.

Clearly, some ways of saving are easier than others, and some investments are safer than others. U.S. Savings Bonds purchased through the payroll savings plan and mutual fund shares acquired with regular monthly payments offer good investment and good savings.

Savings bonds. U.S. Savings Bonds, Series EE, once considered an unappealing investment choice in a time of rising interest rates, are now more attractive. The most secure of all savings or investments, because they are backed by the U.S. government, they now offer—when held for five years or more—an annual interest rate that equals 85 percent of the average yield on U.S. Treasury five-year notes over the period, with a guaranteed minimum of 6.0 percent. They can be bought in multiples of $25 and can be redeemed at any time between the fifth and tenth years. After ten years, an EE bond purchased for $25 is worth $50 or more, depending on how much interest has been accumulated; it will continue to earn interest for another 40 years if it is not redeemed. Federal income taxes do not have to be paid on any of the interest until the bonds are redeemed, an attractive feature for people approaching retirement who expect to be in a lower income tax bracket when they cash in the bonds. Like other U.S. government securities, EE bonds are never subject to state and local income tax.

Great American tax shelters. In recent years, two forms of investment have been introduced through changes in the tax laws. They have made it highly attractive for employed and self-employed people to save for their retirement.

Investment Retirement Accounts (IRA's). An IRA offers any man or woman earning at least $2000 a year who is not covered by an employer pension plan (or, if covered, with an adjusted gross income of less than $25,000) an opportunity to take a tax deduction for $2000, if the same amount is deposited in an IRA account. You can take this deduction even if you do not itemize deductions on your tax return. More important in the long run, any income earned in the IRA account is sheltered from income tax until you withdraw it after the age of 59½. This has a powerful multiplier effect, since tax-sheltered income on your original investment can be reinvested to produce further income that is also tax-sheltered.

Compounding makes the difference

Always ask for the effective annual yield when you are planning to deposit money in a bank or savings institution.

Here is why. Simple interest—that is, without compounding—on $10,000 at 7.15 percent would be $715 for a year.

With daily compounding, the interest would be $26 more.

SAVINGS BANK RATES
(not typical of all savings banks)
Compounded Daily

Account	Annual rate %	Annual yield %
1 year	6.20	6.40
2 years	6.65	6.88
4 years	7.15	7.41

No tax is due until you begin withdrawals, which can be as early as age 59½. At age 70½, withdrawals must begin according to a schedule based on your life expectancy.

If you need to, you may borrow the funds needed to deposit in your IRA; it would likely be to your advantage to borrow for this purpose in view of the tax benefits. Your deposit can be made as late as April 15 in the year following the year for which you want to take the deduction on your income tax. The sooner you make the deposit, however, the sooner it will begin earning tax-sheltered income for you.

IRA accounts at banks, savings institutions, and credit unions are all insured up to $100,000. If your account is with a mutual fund company, it will have more potential for gain at possibly greater risk than in a bank or savings institution, and it will not be federally insured. Insurance companies also offer IRA's, but they tend to charge higher fees for opening accounts.

If only one member of your family is earning income, a joint IRA account can be opened with an annual deposit and tax deduction of $2250. For a working couple not covered by employer pension plans (or with an adjusted gross income of less than $40,000 if filing jointly and if either is covered by an employer pension plan), the amount would be $4000.

Keogh accounts. Self-employed people can invest not only in IRA's but also in Keogh accounts, which work in a similar way.

If you are self-employed, you can invest in a Keogh plan and claim a deduction each year for as much as 25 percent of your earned income, or a maximum of $30,000, whichever is less. This would be in addition to the $2000 that you invest in an IRA. As in an IRA, the deposit can be made as late as April 15 of the year following the year of the tax deduction, you can begin withdrawals as early as age 59½ without a tax penalty, and you must begin withdrawing by age 70½.

There is, however, one other requirement of a Keogh plan. If you have any employees who have worked for you for at least three years, you must contribute to your Keogh plan on your employees' behalf a percentage of their income equal to the percentage of your own income that you are contributing. Any contributions that you make for your employees are deductible as business expenses.

Your investment choices. Many people look for opportunities for investment, but few have the expert knowledge to select from the many choices offered by the financial markets. Except for the wealthy person who can pay for expert advice, it is nearly impossible for an investor to obtain professional, unbiased recommendations on which stocks or bonds to buy and, sometimes more important, when to sell.

Mutual funds. Many investors meet the problem of obtaining expert advice by purchasing shares in mutual funds. Owning large, diversified portfolios of stocks or bonds selected and continuously reviewed by professional managers, mutual funds spread the risk, and they can be bought and sold easily.

Many mutual funds have a sales charge as high as 8.5 percent of the investment. These are called "load" funds. "No-load" funds, so called because they have no sales commission and charge only a management fee of typically no more than 1 percent a year, perform in many cases as well as the load funds or better.

In either case, you can select a fund according to its investment objective—income (from high-dividend stocks and corporate or government bonds); growth (with investments in stocks that involve more than average risk); or balance (offering both income and growth). Funds are rated according to their performance every year in magazines that you will find at your library, including Forbes and Money.

Mutual funds can be purchased under various plans. If you do not have a large sum to invest at once, you might consider the contractual plan, under which you pay a fixed amount each month.

Dividends are paid every quarter from the income on the fund's portfolio of investments. Once a year, the fund makes a capital gain distribution based on any increase in the value of the shares of the stocks it owns.

Money market funds. Many investment companies that manage mutual funds also offer money market funds. These funds are directly competitive with banks' money market accounts, and tend to have somewhat higher returns on investment. Unlike the banks' accounts, money market funds are not insured by the government; but you can, if you wish, select a fund that invests only in U.S. Treasury securities, which is as good as insurance. Some money market funds require an initial investment of $1000. You can write checks on your account, usually with a minimum of $500.

A family of funds. If you have not invested in mutual funds before, you could pick an investment company with a family of funds and start in their money market fund until you build up a substantial amount of cash. Then you could switch all or part of that money to one or more of the other funds in the same group.

Real estate. A completely different kind of investment—and, in the view of many, a hedge against inflation—is real estate. Before the Tax Reform Act of 1986 took effect, real estate investments offered significant tax advantages to people in higher income brackets. But tax considerations aside, there are some disadvantages to real estate for investors to keep in mind.

If the neighborhood deteriorates, you may have to sell at a sacrifice. In a time of depression, any real estate value is likely to suffer. If your property stays undeveloped, it produces no income but still gets taxed. Values are no longer rising as they did in the early 1980's, and in some areas they are falling.

If you are, nevertheless, persuaded by the argument that the supply of land is fixed while the number of people keeps growing, limit your real estate investing to opportunities in your own area. Then you can see for yourself what is happening to values. Experts say the best residential real estate investment, whether you live in it or not, is a medium-priced house in a neighborhood that is desirable or improving.

For those in high-tax brackets, municipal bonds are often a good investment because they are tax-free for people living in the issuer's jurisdiction.

Looking ahead to tax time

Income tax instructions have been simplified in recent years, and several inexpensive books are available to help you prepare your return. Whether you do your own return or have it done for you, it is essential to keep good records throughout the year. These include

- property tax receipts;
- canceled checks for gifts to charity, tax payments, and other deductible items;
- receipted bills for moving expenses;
- medical bills;
- bills for expenses in connection with your job, such as safety equipment, for which you have not been reimbursed.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) urges you to continue keeping such records three years after a return is filed, after which the statute of limitations runs out for that return.

The IRS also suggests that you read the tax form when you receive it at the beginning of the year and make sure that you understand it; collect all your records early; begin to work on the sample sheets; and call the nearest IRS office if you have any questions. The earlier in the year you do this, the easier it will be to get their attention.

After you have filled out your return, wait until just before April 15 to mail it. The funds that you have to provide with the return can be earning money for you at the bank until the filing date. More important, you are likely to pick up an error you may have made if you give yourself plenty of time to review the figures. The IRS says that people who prepare their returns just before the deadline make the most errors.

Income you do not have to report

- Accident and health insurance benefits
- Benefits from disability insurance you purchased yourself
- Federal income tax refunds
- Gifts to you
- Life insurance dividends (unless they include interest on reinvested dividends)
- Life insurance proceeds
- Sick pay (if permanently and totally disabled)
- Social Security benefits (unless your adjusted gross income—including half of Social Security retirement benefits—is more than $25,000 for you alone or $32,000 for you and your spouse filing jointly)
- Veterans' benefits
- Welfare payments
- Workmen's compensation

Start work on completing your tax return early, but wait until the last minute before returning it with your check.

Confusing income tax terms exemption: reduces each taxpayer's income by $1900 in 1987 and more in later years; if your income was $1900 or less, you are exempt from paying taxes.

deduction: an amount that you are allowed to subtract from your income before computing your tax.

credit: an amount that you subtract from your tax after computing it; thus, it is worth more, dollar for dollar, than a deduction.

deferral: a tax obligation that you do not have to pay as long as the income is sheltered.

Do you like to get a big refund?

If you like to get a big refund on your income tax, you are not managing your money the best way.

Getting a refund means you have given the government the use of your money for nothing, because a refund comes to you with absolutely no interest.

If you got a big refund last year, try doing an estimate of what your tax is going to be for the current year. If you find that too much of your income is being withheld, ask your employer for a W-4 form. Using the formula on the form, figure out how many allowances to request in order to bring your total withholding for the year close to your estimated tax.

You will not have a nice refund to look forward to, but you will have the use of funds to invest yourself.

Tax facts

Loss on sale. You cannot deduct a loss on a sale of property or goods to close relatives—grandparents, parents, children, brothers, sisters, spouse. In-laws are no problem.

Working at home. If you are unable to set aside a whole room as an office for a business that you carry on at home, you can meet the IRS test for a home office by setting up a partition to separate the office area from the rest of the room.

Selling your house. If you sell your house when you are 55 or older, you can avoid tax on up to $125,000 of the profit on the sale. But you can do this only once, and, if the profit is less than $125,000, you cannot save the balance for another tax-exempt sale. The $125,000 allowance must also include any deferred profits on sales of houses you made before you were 55. (If you sold a house at a profit before 55, the capital gain was deferred for tax purposes if you bought another house costing at least as much.)

Job deductions. You can deduct the cost of looking for a new job in the same line of work as you are currently in, along with the cost of courses to maintain or improve your job skills.

Marriage penalty. A working married couple is penalized in comparison with two single people with the same incomes. For 1986, a working couple could take a deduction up to $3000 to reduce the penalty, but this deduction was repealed effective in the tax year 1987, making the penalty more severe.

Itemizing deductions. Nearly all home owners save taxes by itemizing deductions instead of taking the standard deduction, chiefly because of interest costs on the mortgage.

State tax deduction. Your deduction for state income taxes should be the actual cash outlay for the tax year, not the amount shown on your latest state tax return.

Moving costs. Moving costs and unreimbursed employee business expenses can be subtracted from your income even if you are not itemizing deductions. The moving deduction is allowed only if a change in your work place has added at least 35 miles to the distance from your previous home to the new work place.

Travel expenses. Although daily travel expenses from home to work are definitely not deductible, you can deduct travel expenses from one regular job to another.

Child care credit. If both parents are working full-time, or if you are a single working parent, you are entitled to a credit against your tax of 20 percent of the total costs of care of a child or a dependent relative living with you and incapable of self-care. But this credit cannot exceed your income from employment.

Baby exemption. A baby born on December 31 counts as an exemption for the whole year.

Deceased spouse. If your spouse dies during the year, you may file a joint return for that year and continue to do so for two more years, provided you have at least one dependent child and do not remarry during that time.

Filing for the deceased. If you are an executor, administrator, or legal representative of someone who died during the year and had taxable income, you must file a return for that person for that year. Taxes are paid out of the estate.

Quarterly intervals. If you file a quarterly return, remember that the amount is not due at regular three-month intervals. Starting with the April 15 filing, succeeding intervals are two months, three months, four months, and three months.

Buying insurance

When you take out an insurance policy, you are betting that something unfortunate will happen to you at some time. The insurance company is betting it will not happen, at least for quite a while. If nothing happens to you for many years, you and the insurance company both win—in different ways. If something does happen to you, nobody wins, but the insurance coverage helps protect you or your family from financial disaster.

The rates you pay for insurance reflect to some degree the odds of something happening to you. But there is clearly more to buying insurance than knowing the odds. In each field—life, health, home owners, and automobile—you have to make your choice from many types of policies offered by many companies at different prices. Some kinds of coverage are far more economical and effective than others.

Life insurance. The first rule about life insurance is not to buy it until someone is dependent on the earning power of the insured person. That is why it makes no sense to buy it when you are just out of college, or to insure the life of a child, as some people do.

A rule of thumb many people follow is to buy enough life insurance to make up for five years of the breadwinner's take-home pay. You should also find out how much your family would receive in Social Security survivors' benefits if the breadwinner died now. Your local Social Security office will figure this out for you if you make it clear that you are not asking them to estimate how much you will get in retirement benefits at a future date.

After you have decided how much coverage you need, it is time to select an insurance company. Do not wait for an agent to call on you; he or she will come primed with all the reasons why you should buy from a particular company. If you have a good library nearby, ask to see a copy of Best's Insurance Reports, which rates the quality of companies from A+ to C. Then, no matter where you live, make sure that the company you are considering is licensed to write insurance in New York State, which has the strictest standards in the country.

There are two basic kinds of life insurance policy—whole life (also called straight, ordinary, or permanent) and term insurance.

Whole life. This is a combination of insurance and savings, since it eventually builds up a cash value that you can borrow against or cash in. Insurance companies will not tell you how much of your whole life premium is going for savings, but you would probably do almost as well to save money in a passbook loan account. From a savings point of view, the return on your investment in a whole life policy is negative for about the first ten years.

When you take out a whole life policy, the premiums are fixed for life. Since the cost of one company's coverage is hard to compare with that of another, ask your agent to show you the interest adjusted cost index for the policy. This takes into account dividends, cash value, and interest you would have earned if you had invested elsewhere. The lower the index figure, the more favorable the comparison.

Some companies also offer whole life without dividends, which means lower premiums. Ask whether the policy has a waiver of premium in the event of your total and permanent disability, and double indemnity in the event of your accidental death. Also ask about discounts for nonsmokers and people who exercise regularly.

The head of a family needs the most insurance when he or she is young and with dependents. Thus, there may come a time when it no longer seems necessary to continue paying premiums on whole life insurance. At that time, take the cash value, which is roughly two-thirds of the face value after 25 to 30 years, or accept reduced coverage without further premiums. Or con-

Insurance-buying strategy

Whether you are buying major medical, homeowner's, or automobile liability insurance, a simple strategy can give you the most effective coverage and help protect you from being financially wiped out.

The strategy is to accept the highest deductible you think you can handle. Then, using the money you save, buy the highest coverage you can afford. In exchange for the temporary hardship that a high deductible may cause, you will be buying protection against a financial disaster that could impoverish you and your family for life.

For example, if you increased the deductible on your automobile insurance from $200 to $500, you would save about $80 a year. It would cost you only $30 additional to increase your automobile liability insurance from maximum coverage of $300,000 for all the people in one accident to $1,000,000 coverage.

vert to term insurance, with the same coverage for a limited time.

When you have built up cash value in a whole life policy, it is the most accessible source of funds for borrowing, short of a passbook loan. Insurance companies typically charge no more than 8 percent annual interest for loans against whole life policies. The interest is tax deductible, unless you choose not to pay it, in which case the insurance company simply adds the unpaid interest to your outstanding loan. Because there is no time limit on a policy loan—it is really your own money you are borrowing—there is a great temptation not to pay it back. Some investors deliberately do not pay it back because they do so much better by putting the funds elsewhere. If you do this, of course, there would be less coverage for your heirs, or less value for you if you decided to cash in the policy.

Term insurance. This is life insurance pure and simple, without any savings feature. It starts off in the early years with premiums as low as one-fifth of whole life. That is why insurance agents make lower commissions selling term and thus have far less enthusiasm for it than they do for whole life. Like whole life, term insurance can be bought without dividends, which makes the premiums even lower.

The early years of marriage, when you have children and your spouse may be dependent on you, are not only the years when you need a lot of coverage, they are also the years during which you are less able to pay high premiums; hence, the great appeal of term insurance. The most popular way to buy term is called "annual, renewable, and convertible." This means that the rates go up every year on a fixed schedule; you have the right to renew at the end of each term (generally five years) until you are in your sixties or older; you can convert without a physical examination to whole life whenever you choose. Future premiums are stated in the contract and cannot be changed. But term insurance has no cash value and coverage lasts only as long as you pay premiums.

Since term premiums rise sharply as you get older, you may wish to convert to whole life, with its fixed rates. The time to do this is before the age of 45 for men and 48 for women, after which rates go up significantly.

Universal life. A third basic type of life insurance, universal life, combines term insurance with savings that earn bond-market rates. You are told, moreover, how much of your premiums are going into savings, which is not the case with whole life. Because of administrative fees, universal life is not economical in policies of less than about $50,000.

Mail order life insurance. Some life insurance is sold by mail to members of associations or such groups as users of an oil company credit card. This is generally an economical way to buy insurance, provided the company is well rated by Best's and licensed in New York State, and you cannot be turned down when you apply. Bear in mind, however, that premium rates are not guaranteed and you lose the coverage if you happen to leave the group.

Health insurance. Every one needs three kinds of health insurance, and a wage-earner needs a fourth as well.

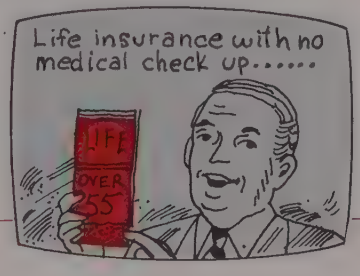
The three kinds are for hospitalization; other basic medical expenses, including surgery and doctors' fees; and major medical fees, in the event of a lengthy or catastrophic illness. The fourth kind, which most wage-earners tend to skimp on, is for disability coverage, to make up for loss of income if a breadwinner is disabled for a long time.

Some private companies offer comprehensive insurance, which combines the first three types. Such a policy is not necessarily the most economical. The National Insurance Consumer Organization, an independent group, estimates that the typical private company pays out about 60 cents of every dollar it takes in, while Blue Cross and Blue Shield, which are not-for-profit organizations with great economies of scale, pay out in the range of 85 to 90 cents on each dollar they take in.

The "Blues." Blue Cross, available through group plans at places of employment or on an individual basis, covers hospitalization. Blue Shield covers the other basic medical expenses. The "Blues" provide major medical coverage, however, only to groups, with minor exceptions.

Life insurance over 55?

Advertisements on TV may sound appealing: life insurance for people over 55 with no medical examination and a monthly premium of a few dollars. But "over 55" does not necessarily include applicants 65 and over. The premium is likely to be for $1000 of coverage. Multiply that by twelve months and the number of thousands you want, and the annual premium may not sound like much of a bargain. Finally, it makes no sense to buy life insurance unless someone is dependent on your earning power.



Have you thought of joining an HMO?

If your company has 25 or more employees and offers health benefits, you have the choice of joining a Health Maintenance Organization (HMO). You also can join on your own if you are not an employee.

Bringing the physician, the laboratory, and the clinic together, an HMO provides—for a flat fee paid in advance—virtually all the medical services you might need, except dental and long-term psychiatric care.

Compared with private health insurance and your out-of-pocket medical expenses, an HMO would be low in cost. Compared with Blue Cross/Blue Shield, it would cost more but provide more comprehensive service.

The Blues have different plans for different areas of the country, with rates based on where you live and how many people are covered, rather than on age, sex, or health. The family rate covers a family of any size, a particular attraction for large families. The hospital and the other providers of service are paid directly, saving you the need to have cash available. The policies are guaranteed renewable, and any one may sign up during the annual open enrollment period. The Blues may, however, exclude coverage for a preexisting condition for a certain period. As economical and dependable as Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage is, you may want to consider purchasing additional major medical coverage from a private company to supplement your coverage from the Blues.

When you purchase major medical coverage, accept a high deductible and buy maximum coverage. Ask whether the maximum applies to each illness or injury, or whether it is merely a lifetime total. The latter is clearly less desirable. Also find out whether the "internal limits" of coverage are adequate—the hospital day rate, for example.

When you purchase disability insurance, the amount of income it would pay should be enough to make up for your loss of wages until you are, say, 65. Make sure the policy is not cancelable and that there is no question about the company's definition of disability: you are unable to work at the occupation for which you have been trained. Premiums will be cheaper if you buy coverage that does not begin until a certain period, such as 90 days after you are disabled. Many wage-earners who buy life insurance have never seriously considered disability insurance, not realizing how much of a burden to a family a disabled person would be.

Home-owner's insurance. This is the insurance that covers damage to your home and belongings, and provides liability coverage for injury to others on your property. It also covers damage to other people's property accidentally caused by you or your family, or by accidents originating on your property, such as falling trees.

Two particular points to remember about this insurance are that it does not include damage from floods or earthquakes and that the coverage you buy should be at least 80 percent of the replacement cost—not the market value—of your house. Again, accept a high deductible and use the savings to buy liability coverage that will keep you from being wiped out. Awards by juries of a million dollars are not uncommon. "Umbrella liability" insurance to cover you up to that amount can be purchased as a wrap-around for adequate home-owner's and automobile policies for not much more than $100.

Home-owner's insurance comes in various packages. The most popular, called Home-Owner's 3 (HO-3), includes all-risk coverage on your dwelling—for everything except floods, earthquakes, wars, nuclear accidents, and anything else specified—plus "Broad Form" coverage on your personal belongings. Broad Form is not as complete as the most expensive form of coverage. It covers damage from broken pipes but not the pipes themselves, for example.

When you insure your house for 80 percent or more of its replacement cost, damage to any part of the house, such as a bathroom, will be covered at full replacement cost. If the entire house is destroyed, you will receive only 80 percent of the total replacement cost. If you can afford it, you should consider 100 percent coverage on the house.

Your belongings in the house are covered for 50 percent of the insured value of the house, which you may want to increase if you have unusually valuable possessions. Your home-owner's policy will also pay your additional temporary living expenses if your house is too damaged to live in, and it will cover losses away from home of belongings up to 10 percent of their value. The standard personal liability coverage is only $25,000, making it essential to purchase additional coverage.

Because replacement costs increase every year although the market value of a house may not, it is essential to keep your coverage in step with inflation. You can have an "inflation-guard" provision added to a new or existing policy. This will provide for automatic increases in coverage and save you from having to review your policy each year.

Flood and earthquake coverage

Flood and earthquake coverage, not included in home-owner's policies, can be obtained under separate policies.

For information about flood coverage, which is written by local insurance agents and guaranteed by the federal government, call the National Flood Insurance Program, 800-638-6620.

Automobile insurance. As with health and home-owner's insurance, accept a high deductible and buy extra liability coverage. A rule of thumb for a deductible on automobile insurance is slightly more than a week's take-home pay.

Automobile insurance includes five different kinds of coverage.

Liability. Typical coverage is called 50/100/10: $50,000 for injury to one person, $100,000 maximum for all the people in one accident, $10,000 for property damage. Even if you have umbrella coverage, you should consider increasing your liability coverage to 100/300/10 or even 300/500/10. The additional coverage costs only a little more.

Insurance planning worksheet: a checklist

To find out if you have enough insurance—or more than you need—it pays to look through your policies.

Life insurance

What is the total coverage you have (including group coverage by your employer)?

What is the value of each policy and what is the annual premium and dividend?

Do the policies have double indemnity (double payment in case of death by accident)?

What do you estimate to be the cash value? (Your agent can help you.)

What loans have you made against any of the policies?

What assets would your heirs receive in addition to Social Security survivors' benefits?

How long would you expect your survivors to need to adjust to the loss of your income?

Health and disability insurance

How much coverage do your various policies provide?

What is the cost to you?

How much could you afford to pay yourself in case of an extended illness?

How much disability insurance coverage do you have from your employer?

Home-owner's insurance

What do you estimate is the replacement cost of your home?

How much of that cost could you assume in the event the house was totally destroyed?

What is the value of your personal possessions?

If a valuable possession were lost, how much of the replacement cost would you be able to assume?

Automobile insurance

How much coverage does your policy provide for injury to one person?

What is the maximum for all the people in one accident?

How much coverage do you have for collision insurance? Could you afford a larger deductible?

When will your car be five years old and thus no longer worth covering with collision insurance?

Would your uninsured driver coverage be adequate if the breadwinner in your family were seriously injured?

Umbrella insurance

Do you have umbrella insurance to increase your protection against damage awards not adequately covered by home-owner's or automobile insurance? Is your umbrella coverage adequate in light of the million-dollar-or-more awards frequently granted?

Collision. The most expensive automobile insurance, this covers damage you yourself cause to your car. It should be dropped when a car is four to five years old.

Comprehensive. Also expensive, this covers damage other than that caused by collisions.

Uninsured driver. Cheap and highly desirable, this insurance covers injuries caused by an uninsured or insufficiently insured driver, or a hit-and-run driver.

Medical. This automobile insurance covers treatment for you and your passengers. It is included in your basic coverage except in certain states that have no-fault insurance.

It is worth shopping around for automobile insurance, since rates and quality of service vary widely. Some companies have lower rates for people over 65 no longer driving to work.

Putting your affairs in order

Your estate is what you leave when you die. It consists of all your property, including real estate, investments, bank accounts, life insurance proceeds, personal possessions, and any interests you might have in business ventures. From the total value of your estate are deducted funeral expenses, fees for executors and lawyers, state inheritance taxes, and any outstanding debts.

What is left is subject to federal estate taxes—not income taxes. As a result of changes in the tax laws in recent years, few estates are subject to federal taxes. For 1986, no return need be filed for a gross estate (before deductions) of less than $500,000. For 1987, the minimum rises to $600,000, where it will remain in subsequent years. It is estimated that 95 percent of estates will be exempt from federal tax in 1987. Moreover, you can leave any amount in any year to your spouse without incurring a federal estate tax.

After a person dies, his or her will is probated. Probate is the process of filing a will with the appropriate court and having it declared valid; this process can take several months. Certain property, however, passes directly to the beneficiaries without their having to wait for probate. This includes life insurance proceeds (which are paid directly by the insurance company when notified by your agent); pension benefits to a beneficiary named by the pensioner (although not all pension arrangements call for the survivor to receive benefits); U.S. Savings Bonds (if jointly held or if solely held with a designated beneficiary named on the face of the bond); property held in joint tenancy (that is, with the survivor having the right to receive the property); and joint bank accounts.

Your heirs do not have to pay any income taxes on life insurance proceeds or anything else they receive from your estate, whether written into the will or not.

In some states, joint bank accounts may be frozen and safe deposit vaults sealed until the state is satisfied that state taxes have been paid for the year in which the person died. That is why it is important for your survivors to have access to funds outside of joint bank accounts—and why your vault should not contain any document, such as a life insurance policy, that would be needed right after your death.

Funeral arrangements should be made clear in the instructions left for survivors. A recent federal law requires funeral directors to break down the costs of the various services they provide when quoting a price for a funeral.

There are certain facts a funeral director might not mention unless asked. No state requires embalming unless a body is to be shipped, but funeral directors do it routinely. Burial vaults required for caskets by certain cemeteries can be simpler and far less costly than the ones recommended by many funeral directors. Caskets usually are not required for cremation. Cremation costs far less than burial.

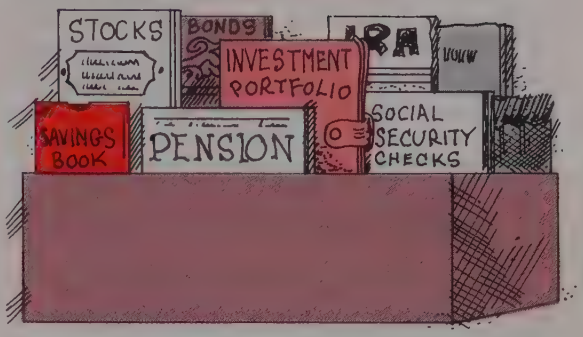
What to do when the head of the family dies

- Notify employer.
- Notify lawyer who drew up the will.
- Notify life insurance agent.
- Cancel all credit cards, or convert them to the name of the surviving spouse.
- Notify the local Social Security office, which will arrange for a funeral benefit of $255.
- Notify the nearest Veterans Administration (VA) office if the deceased was in the armed services. The VA will provide for a wartime veteran or any veteran who suffered a disability a $250 funeral allowance, a $150 allowance if the burial is not in a national cemetery, and a flag for the casket. (Burial in a national cemetery—Arlington is virtually out of the question—is free for any veteran, his spouse, and children in the same grave.)

Planning for retirement

The time to start planning for retirement is when you still have many paychecks ahead of you.

Social Security and, for those who have them, pensions are only a base on which to build a satisfactory retirement income. To achieve an income at the desirable level of two-thirds of your preretirement income, you clearly need your own savings and investments. The sooner you start setting aside a certain amount for retirement out of every paycheck, the smaller the monthly amount will have to be.



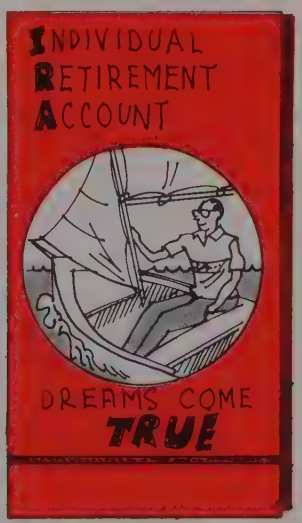
In planning your retirement income, consider a variety of investments because your Social Security and pension benefits may not be adequate.

Your retirement needs. Allowing for continued inflation, you can project how much income you are likely to need after you retire. Some of your needs, such as transportation, may end. Taxes will be lower. Some of your costs, such as your mortgage, will remain fixed and thus insulated from inflation. Your savings are likely to earn higher interest as inflation continues, and your Social Security benefits will be indexed for inflation.

On this page is a table that suggests how you can go about estimating your retirement living costs. If you are still many years away from retirement, it is too early to work out a close estimate of your income from Social Security; in addition, your local Social Security office will be reluctant to help you until you get much closer to retirement. Your pension would also be difficult to estimate many years ahead. But it is still worth trying to get some idea of your retirement needs so that you can plan your savings and investment program wisely.

How much retirement income will you need?

Item	*What each item costs you now per month	What it would cost you in retirement today (current dollars)	What it would cost you in future retirement (inflated dollars)
Food	_____	_____	_____
Shelter (including mortgage, maintenance, fuel, and utilities)	_____	_____	_____
Transportation	_____	_____	_____
Clothing	_____	_____	_____
Medical	_____	_____	_____
Insurance	_____	_____	_____
Vacation	_____	_____	_____
Entertainment	_____	_____	_____
Savings and investments	_____	_____	_____
Total	_____	_____	_____



To calculate for inflation, use a compound interest table from your local library to see how much one dollar of expense would increase over the number of years until you retire. For example, at 5 percent annual inflation for ten years, it would increase to $1.63. Multiply the current figure by that amount to get an inflation-adjusted total.

*For items that do not come up every month, such as a vacation, divide the total yearly cost by 12.

Social Security. Your Social Security benefits are based on the number of years you have been paying Social Security taxes and your earnings over certain of those years. No one has to work more than ten years, or 40 quarters, to qualify for retirement benefits, but the amount of your monthly check will depend on how much you earned over the years. Do not assume that you will get the highest benefits shown on various tables you may see because you always earned the maximum amount covered by Social Security taxes.

Every few years, you should make sure your Social Security account is being properly credited with your taxes. One way to do this is to copy the form shown on this page and mail it to: Social Security Administration, P.O. Box 57, Baltimore, MD 21203. Another way is to request a postcard from your local Social Security office and send it in.

Inequities in the system. Families with similar incomes often receive different benefits. For example, a family in which only the husband was a wage-earner will receive higher benefits than a family in which both husband and wife worked with a combined income equal to the husband's income in the first family.

This is one of various inequities embedded in a system that originated half a century ago, when attitudes and social conditions were different. With all the problems Social Security now faces, such inequities are unlikely to be removed. Contrary to what many people believe, Social Security is not a fund into which people make "contributions" that they withdraw after retirement. It is a pay-as-you-go system under which working people and their employers are taxed in order to provide benefits for retired people, survivors, and the disabled.

Figuring out approximately how much you will receive in retirement benefits under Social Security is not hard if your retirement is just a few years away. Visit or call your local Social Security office and ask for the leaflet, "Estimating Your Social Security Check."

Although you are eligible for full retirement benefits when you reach 65, you can, if you choose, begin receiving benefits as early as 62. Monthly benefits in that case will be 80 percent of regular benefits (or a prorated percentage for any age between 62 and 65) and will be fixed at that percentage for the rest of your life.

If you delay starting benefits until age 65 to 72, your monthly benefits will be higher than the basic full rate by 3 percent for each year you delay. This is hardly worth doing unless your self-employment income is so high that you receive almost no Social Security benefits.

When a married man is receiving Social Security benefits, his wife can begin receiving her benefits at 50 percent of his rate when she reaches 65. She never receives more than 50 percent of his benefits while he is alive. If she chooses to begin receiving benefits at any age between 62 and 65, she will get between 37½ per-

REQUEST FOR STATEMENT OF EARNINGS

ACCOUNT NUMBER: ___ ___ ___ / ___ ___ / ___ ___ ___ ___

DATE OF BIRTH: _____ / _____ / 19_____
Month Day Year

Please send me a Statement of Earnings recorded in my Social Security account.

PLEASE PRINT NAME & ADDRESS IN INK OR USE TYPEWRITER:

NAME: Mr/Mrs/Ms _____

STREET AND NUMBER _____

CITY, P.O. _____

STATE AND ZIP _____

SIGN YOUR NAME AS YOU USUALLY WRITE IT: _____

Sign your own name only. Under the law, information in your Social Security record is confidential, and anyone who signs someone else's name can be prosecuted.

If your name has been changed from that shown on your Social Security account number card, please copy your name exactly as it appears on that card below:

_____

cent and 50 percent of her husband's retirement check. This lower rate will continue until her husband dies, after which she would receive a survivor's benefit, explained below.

If the wife has been working and paying Social Security taxes herself, she can receive either a spouse's benefit or a benefit based on her own Social Security taxes, but she cannot receive both. In many cases, a working wife will receive no more from Social Security than if she had been a housewife all her life.

If the husband dies first, the wife can receive 100 percent of his benefit beginning at age 65, or 71.5 percent beginning at age 60 (with percentages in between for starting at any age from 60 to 65).

If the husband dies before the wife reaches 60, and after the youngest child reaches 16, the wife receives no benefits as a survivor until age 60. The child receives benefits until age 18.

All of these examples assume that the husband is the principal wage-earner.

Applying for benefits. To apply for benefits, you must visit your Social Security office three months before the date that you will become eligible, or the date when you choose to begin receiving your retirement checks, if that is later.

When the husband applies, it is not necessary for the wife to be there, unless she is also applying for her benefits. Take the following documents with you: Social Security card and proof of age (birth certificate or baptismal papers); marriage certificate (if applying as a spouse); copy of W-2 form showing the latest year's earnings, or a copy of the latest income tax return.

Medicare coverage. Apply for Medicare at the same time that you apply for retirement benefits. If you have already begun receiving Social Security payments before 65, you will automatically get your Medicare card in the mail by your 65th birthday, which is when Medicare coverage begins.

If you plan to delay the start of retirement checks past age 65, you and your spouse must each remember to apply for Medicare three months before each of you is 65.

Medicare consists of two parts—A and B. Part A, which costs you nothing, pays for your hospital bills. Part B, medical insurance, pays doctors' bills and a number of other items not covered by Part A. For Part B, you pay a monthly premium that covers your spouse and eligible dependents. This premium, which is deducted from your retirement check, is the same for everybody and increases every year on July 1.

Part B is optional. If you do not enroll for Part B within three years after your 65th birthday, you are no longer eligible for that coverage.

Part A helps pay for up to 90 days in each benefit period at any participating hospital. A benefit period runs from the first day of hospital treatment to the 60th day after release from a hospital or nursing home. Part B generally pays 80 percent of approved medical charges after an annual deductible that you pay.

If you decide to buy supplementary health insurance, which is widely advertised, make sure that the policy does not duplicate any part of Medicare, or that different policies you buy do not duplicate each other.

Questions about your pension

If your company has a pension plan, your employer is obligated to give you a description of it once a year. You should know the answers to these questions:

- Is your particular job covered by the plan?
- How long do you have to work before you are vested (before the pension is guaranteed)?
- How old do you have to be for regular or early retirement benefits?
- Is the pension federally insured?
- Is there a benefit for your spouse?

Your pension. For many employed people, a pension offers additional retirement income. Most pensions are based, to some extent, on Social Security benefits. The employer usually takes your Social Security benefits into account in deciding how much of a pension to provide for you.

If you die before early retirement age, benefits for your spouse are not likely unless you have contributed to the pension plan yourself.

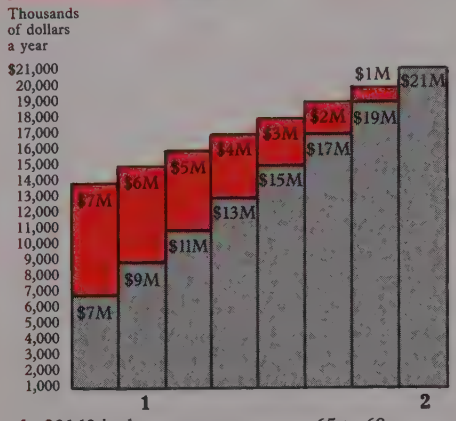
When you retire, you can choose to have your pension cover your spouse in the event that you die first. In that case, your own monthly payments are reduced while you are living. Depending on your spouse's age, benefits after your death could be as little as 50 percent of your own benefits.

Some pension plans give you a choice of receiving your benefits in monthly payments or in a lump sum. Monthly payments are guaranteed for life but are not adjusted for inflation, unless your employer volunteers to do so. A lump sum can be invested by you, most likely in a rollover Individual Retirement Account, into which you can deposit the entire sum without paying taxes at the time. Unlike a conventional IRA, there is no tax deduction for making the investment, but there are very large tax savings because the income from the investment is sheltered from tax until you make withdrawals, which must begin at age 70½. Assuming that you or your spouse do not draw out all the funds in the account, there would still be money left for your heirs, in contrast to a pension.

How post-retirement earnings affect Social Security benefits

Social Security benefits
(approximately $7000 maximum in this example)

Earned income



1. $8160 is the most a person age 65 to 69 can earn in 1987 without losing some part of Social Security benefits.
2. A person earning approximately this amount or more loses all Social Security benefits until age 70.

Working for yourself. In these inflationary times, many people augment their retirement income by continuing to work.

If you are self-employed and use part of your home as a business, you are allowed significant deductions on your income tax. Check with your local Internal Revenue Service office.

But you will be required to pay self-employment tax as long as you work to help support the Social Security system, even though you may already be drawing Social Security benefits. This tax, which has been slowly increasing year by year, leveled off at 12 percent of net self-employment income from 1986 to 1989. In 1990, a new formula will bring it into line with Social Security taxes paid by employees.

When self-employed people receive Social Security payments, any amount they earn over a certain level reduces their Social Security benefits by one dollar for every two earned. The deduction is made from Social Security benefits at the beginning of the calendar year. In 1986, a retired person age 65 to 69 could earn up to $7800 a year without losing any Social Security retirement benefits. This limit has been increasing every year. From age 70 on, under present regulations, you can earn as much as you want without losing any Social Security benefits.

Managing your shopping

Shopping is where management of the family's money begins. Planning what you are going to buy and following simple rules when you shop can mean the difference between just making ends meet and having money to save.

Going to the supermarket. At least once a week or so, someone in the family has to shop for food and other household needs. Here are some guidelines that can bring considerable savings.

- Do not shop more than once a week. Read the newspaper ads on Wednesdays and Thursdays and plan where you will shop and what you will buy each week. Jot down several menus featuring the specials advertised and note the staples on sale—unperishable items you can stock up on for weeks ahead. Clip coupons, but only for items you really need. Make a shopping list to take with you.
- Go to the supermarket shortly after you have eaten so that you will not have an appetite for expensive treats. Try to shop early in the morning, when stocks of produce and fresh meats and fish offer the greatest choice. Just before a long weekend, you might try shopping late in the day to take advantage of last-minute markdowns. Schedule your shopping trip without your children and, if you are a woman, without your husband. Their impulses can wipe out your economies.
- Do not overstock on produce, the most profitable line for most supermarkets. Do not buy the first of a new crop of fruit or vegetables; prices should come down later. Remember that frozen food prices also go up and down with the season, so try stocking up on a frozen vegetable when the same vegetable is as good a buy as fresh produce. Buy canned fruits and vegetables at the end of summer, when many prices are reduced before the fresh packs come in.
- Keep portions in mind when you are buying meat. Steaks and chops will serve for only one meal; a roast can last for several days.
- Read labels and note how much you are paying per ounce. The large size is not always the economy size.

- Try buying day-old bakery products. After you freeze and thaw them, most people cannot tell them from fresh.
- Remember that junk food is costly, apart from its lack of nourishment. A six-pack of supermarket-brand raisins costs no more than many snack items and less than some.
- Think hard about convenience foods. Instant coffee can be more economical than regular, but does it make sense to pay someone to make your iced tea for you?
- Soft drinks in cans and bottles are an expensive way to buy water—with tiny percentages of artificial flavor. For about the same cost as two 12-ounce cans of soft drink, you can make a sparkling genuine fruit drink by adding store-brand carbonated water to a 6-ounce can of frozen concentrated fruit juice.

Shopping in other stores. In your other shopping, it is important to time certain purchases according to the seasons and to take advantage of sales. Not all sales, however, are what they appear to be. Some, such as department store white sales, feature items that may have been especially manufactured for the sale. Certain goods ordered by mail are not manufactured until after your order has been received. When a sale is announced, look for words that mean the goods have been marked down from a quoted figure. If the ad uses terms like "special purchase" or "comparable value," the prices may not be genuine reductions.

When you purchase a big-ticket item such as a refrigerator or a television set, you will probably be urged to buy a service contract, which provides that repairs will be made at no additional cost for the life of the contract. What some stores do not tell you is that the service contract may partly duplicate the coverage already offered in the warranty, such as parts and repairs at no cost for a full year. Service contracts, moreover, are usually sold for the early years of the life of your purchase, when a problem is less likely to develop. A study at Cornell University concluded that most service contracts are not good buys.

Those glossy catalogs. Unsolicited catalogs that come in the mail have become a popular way to shop for clothes, gifts, and a broad range of unusual items. Catalogs offer convenience and, for people away from large cities, a wide choice of high-priced items.

Some catalogs do offer sales from time to time, but most catalog prices are not competitive, not even with other catalogs. If an item in a catalog catches your eye, watch for it in other catalogs and in your local stores, since prices vary widely. If you do order an item, be prepared to wait a few weeks. According to federal regulations, you have the right to receive any mail-order item within 30 days unless the seller has specified a longer delivery time. If the deadline is not met, you have the right to cancel and get all your money back.

Returns may be a problem unless your catalog is from a nearby department store.

Do you shop at the co-op?

If there is a co-op in your area, you might try it for dairy products, produce, meat, and various staples, on which big savings are possible.

Run by volunteer members, co-ops buy in large quantities, either from commercial wholesalers or wholesalers that are themselves cooperatives. Working members take orders from fellow members, compile the orders and telephone them in to the wholesaler, pick up the orders and break them down for the members, and calculate how much each member owes. Savings can be significant and quality is likely to be higher than in stores. People who have a choice of working for pay or contributing time to the cooperative, however, may find that they just about break even on the co-op.

If there is no co-op in your area and you would like to start one, write for information to:

National Cooperative Business Center
1401 New York Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20005

A shopper's calendar

The best times to buy what you need

January–February	Dress fabrics (except cotton)
February	Bedding Curtains
After Easter	Storewide clearance sales
June	Men's summer wear Cotton dress fabrics
After July 4	Storewide clearance sales
August	Children's clothing Camping equipment
October–November	Women's coats
November	Women's woolens
November–December	Men's suits and coats
After Christmas	Women's dressy clothes Lingerie Storewide clearance sales

Your shelter dollar

The American ideal of owning a one-family home has become difficult for many to achieve. Young families seeking a home for the first time find that they have to settle for far less space than they wanted at a cost that takes a disproportionate share of their income.

The principal question to be answered is how much home can you afford. The table that appears directly below shows how much income you should expect to have and how much your monthly mortgage payments would be for a typical single-family house of about 1500 square feet in two different cities. Real estate costs vary widely from region to region.

The figures that are shown here do not include closing costs, which are identified in the adjoining table. Closing costs for the examples below were estimated to be just over $4000 in Philadelphia but a little under $3000 in Los Angeles.

Total interest payments alone are 2.3 times the cost of the house itself in the Los Angeles example and 2.6 times in the Philadelphia example. If the 9.75 percent mortgage were for 15 years instead of 30, the total principal and interest payments would be only two-thirds as much.

Partly offsetting the high cost of interest payments is the tax advantage of owning your home, since interest as well as property taxes are deductible from federal income tax. On a 30-year $100,000 mortgage at 14 percent interest, over 95 percent of your payment in the first year is deductible interest. By the 15th year, interest on this mortgage would still be well over 80 percent of the monthly payments.

Lenders' smorgasbord. Lending institutions have come up with a smorgasbord of alternatives to the traditional fixed mortgage. When you select a lender—a bank, savings institution, mortgage banker, or credit union—find out first if mortgages are fairly easy to obtain at that institution. Do they charge a fee for originating the mortgage? (This consists of a one-time charge called "points," explained earlier.) Do they offer a choice of mortgage plans? Is there a prepayment penalty?

Traditional fixed rate. This type of mortgage, on which the figures in the table are based, appears at first glance to be the most expensive. That is because the interest rate is higher than starting rates for other kinds of mortgage now being offered. But this appearance is deceptive. The fixed rate mortgage is not only the most certain, it is likely to be the most economical in a time of rising interest rates.

Adjustable rate. The most common of the other types of mortgage available is the adjustable rate mortgage (ARM). Starting at a lower rate than the fixed rate mortgage, the ARM can be adjusted at any time, with 30 days' notice, to reflect changes in interest rates. The change could affect your monthly payment, or the outstanding principal, or the length of the mortgage. There is, however, no penalty for prepayment.

Mortgage costs

Real estate industry figures show wide ranges from city to city in typical prices of houses and, correspondingly, in the annual income required to purchase one. Here are typical 1986 figures, with payments for fixed mortgages at an interest rate of 9.75 percent for two cities. Philadelphia had the lowest cost among large cities and Los Angeles the second highest (after New York).

	Philadelphia	Los Angeles
Typical house price	$72,000	$150,000
Annual income required	30,000	49,000
Down payment	7,200	30,000
Monthly mortgage payment	700	1,225

Ask your bank or savings institution for figures based on local costs and mortgage rates.

Checklist of closing costs

When you buy the house, you will encounter a whole battery of additional costs, called closing costs. Buyers can expect to pay most or all of these charges, in addition to the purchase price of the house. Actual costs vary from locality to locality; get an estimate from your lawyer or a local real estate man.

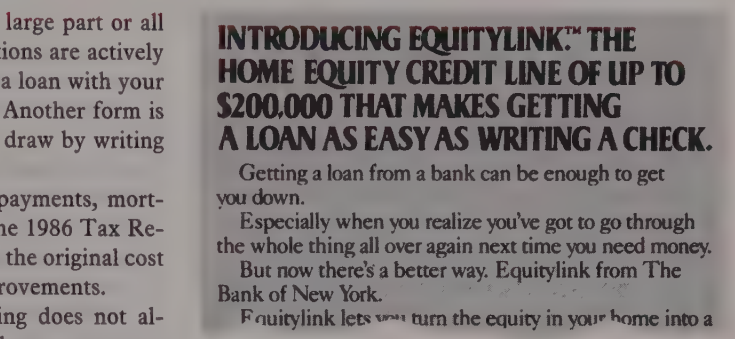
- Title search fees
- Judgment search fees
- Title insurance policy fee
- Survey costs
- Attorney's fee
- Loan origination fee for mortgage
- Credit report fee
- Fee for bank's lawyer
- Insurance premium
- Taxes, recording fees
- Adjustment for costs paid by seller (fuel, water, etc.)

Borrowing on your house

To home owners who have paid a large part or all of their mortgages, lending institutions are actively offering equity conversion. This is a loan with your equity in your house as collateral. Another form is a line of credit, on which you can draw by writing checks.

Unlike other kinds of interest payments, mortgage interest is deductible under the 1986 Tax Reform Act if the loans do not exceed the original cost of the house plus the cost of improvements.

But equity conversion advertising does not always make it clear that your monthly payments may be for interest only, with the original amount of the loan to be paid off in a "balloon" at the end of the term. Nor do the ads always tell you that you have to pay closing costs as well as interest.



INTRODUCING EQUITYLINK.™ THE HOME EQUITY CREDIT LINE OF UP TO $200,000 THAT MAKES GETTING A LOAN AS EASY AS WRITING A CHECK.
Getting a loan from a bank can be enough to get you down.
Especially when you realize you've got to go through the whole thing all over again next time you need money.
But now there's a better way. Equitylink from The Bank of New York.
Equitylink lets you turn the equity in your home into a

If the terms of an ARM include a cap on the monthly amount you pay, a rise in interest rates could result in negative amortization. If your payments are not sufficient to cover interest charges at current rates, the lender can make up the difference by increasing the principal—the amount of your loan. This is the opposite of building up equity under a conventional mortgage. To avoid negative amortization, the term of an ARM could be extended, but to no more than 40 years.

Graduated payment. In the Graduated Payment Mortgage (GPM), the rates begin low and build up on a fixed schedule, ending at a higher level than rates on a conventional fixed mortgage.

Buy-down. Still another choice is the buy-down, offered as an incentive to the buyer by house builders. The builder turns over to the lending institution part of the money he receives for the house. This money is used to reduce your interest payments for a limited number of years.

If you choose one of the new types of mortgage, do not expect the lending institution to judge your ability to meet higher payments in future years. Borrowers today are being accepted if it appears they can manage the low introductory rate, regardless of how much rates may go up later.

For any kind of mortgage, the lender is likely to urge you to take out mortgage insurance. Like other life insurance on credit purchases, this is more for the convenience and protection of the lender than for yours, since you could probably purchase term insurance more economically on your own. If you do find it convenient to take out mortgage insurance, make sure the policy is not made out to the lender; your family might prefer to keep the mortgage and invest the insurance proceeds.

Ways to save energy in your home

Everyone knows that you can save energy by insulating a home and turning off the lights, but here are some points you may not have thought about:

- In cold weather, use the sun's heat by opening blinds or curtains; in summer keep them closed as much as possible.
- When the outside temperature is 78° or cooler, turn off the air conditioner and open the windows.
- Run the dishwasher and clothes washer only with full loads. In the clothes washer, use warm or cold water cycles when you can.
- A shower uses about half as much hot water as a tub bath.
- Clean the condenser coils on the back or bottom of your refrigerator with a vacuum or brush at least once a year.
- Check the gasket on the refrigerator door by seeing if it will resist letting you pull out a slip of paper. Replace it if necessary.
- Do not open the refrigerator or oven doors more than necessary. Opening the oven door lowers the temperature about 25°.
- Check the refrigerator temperature to make sure the settings are correct. The refrigerator compartment should be about 40° and the freezer should be 0°.
- The refrigerator should have enough space around food to let air circulate, but the freezer should be solidly packed, even if it means filling a milk carton with water and freezing it to take up space.
- One 100-watt incandescent bulb gives more light with less energy than two 60-watt bulbs.

Managing your car

How long a car loan?

If you take out a loan for a period of more than three years, there could be a span of well over a year when the car is worth less than the loan still to be paid off. If you trade in the car during that period, or if it is stolen or wrecked, you will not receive enough to pay off the loan.

Best time to buy

If you decide to buy a new car, and you are thinking of a domestic make, plan to buy it just before the new models come out. The next best time is mid-December to late February—especially Christmas week—when salesmen spend a lot of time looking out of the showroom window.

The most economical way to own a car, according to a study made by the U.S. Department of Transportation, is to keep driving it until it cannot go anymore.

Most drivers would prefer not to put that proposition to the test, but there is no question that it is less expensive to keep running an old car that is in tolerably good condition than to buy a new one.

Nearly half the depreciation of a new car occurs in the first two years of ownership. In fact, a new car depreciates by as much as a third as soon as you drive it out of the showroom. Repairs and maintenance tend to be at their highest level in the fourth to seventh years, when the original parts begin to fail. That is why many people who could afford new cars used to trade them in after three years. More recently, as car prices have soared, drivers keep their new cars longer, which means fewer choices for used-car buyers.

Buying a new car. Before you go to the showroom, you can find out what the dealer paid for the car you have your eye on. The figure is shown as the base price in one of the guidebooks to new automobile prices available in paperback or at your public library. The sticker on a showroom model will tell you the charges for optional equipment, freight, and dealer preparation. Add those to the base price in the book and you will know how much leeway you have for bargaining on the dealer's price to you.

You should also know the value of the old car you are trading in. Ask your bank lending officer, to whom you will be returning after you buy the car, to let you see his Red Book of Official Used Car Market Values. Knowing the old-car value will alert you to a fairly common practice among dealers—"highballing," or offering a high trade-in to attract the customer while making the price of the new car correspondingly higher.

When the dealer offers you a package of options, remember that his profit margin on them is higher than on the car itself. The most expensive option is factory-installed air conditioning.

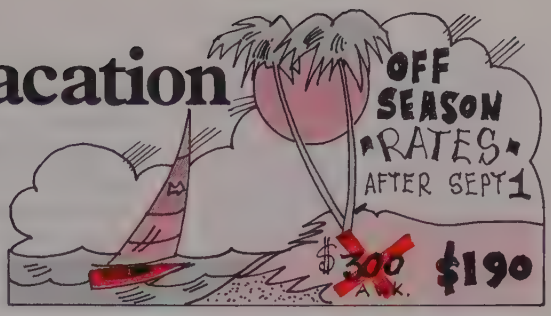
Your dealer will be more than happy to arrange financing for your car, because that is likely to be another source of profit for him. In many cases, you can probably get a better deal by financing through your bank.

Buying a used car. A used car is estimated, on an average, to be about 40 percent less expensive than a comparable new one. In selecting a dealer, it is usually wise to go to a well-regarded new car dealer; he has a reputation to protect and hopes to sell you a new car some day. Insist on being allowed to give the car a road test—more than just around the block. You might take it to an automobile diagnostic service listed in the yellow pages under that heading.

Tips for economical driving

- Do not leave the motor idling if you are stopping for more than a minute. It is more economical to turn off the engine and restart it later than to let it run.
- Speed kills economy. Remember that wind resistance cuts mileage above 50 mph, and the most economical speed is about 45 to 50. Tire treads wear twice as fast at 70 as they do at 45.
- Switch wheels every 5000 miles so that tires wear evenly.
- Maintain tire pressure, and check it only when the tires are cool.
- Check wheel alignment regularly.
- Avoid sudden stops as well as sudden starts. If you have to brake hard at a traffic light or a toll booth, you were using too much gasoline to get to that point.
- Do not try to maintain speed going up a long grade.

An economical vacation



Managing money properly should always include planning for your vacation, but it is not necessary to spend more than you can comfortably afford.

Camping. Certainly the most economical way to vacation and, in many ways, the most rewarding, is to take the family camping.

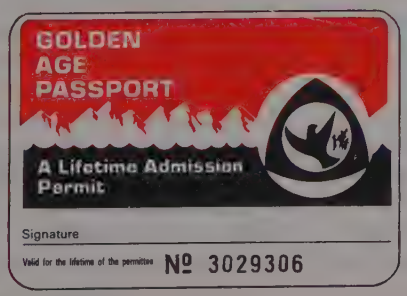
If camping is your choice and you are looking for out-of-the-way places, write to the Wilderness Society, Western Regional Office, 4260 Evans Avenue, Denver, CO 80222. They can provide information on wilderness area locations for hiking, backpacking, canoeing, and horseback riding. You can also write to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, DC 20402 for the publication "Camping in the National Park System," available at a small charge. For information about recreation areas run by a particular state, write to the Office of the Governor at the state capital.

If you plan to visit several places maintained by the federal government in one calendar year, send $10 for a Golden Eagle Passport to the National Park Service Headquarters, Room 1013, U.S. Department of the Interior, Washington, DC 20240. This will entitle you and your family to visit, in your private vehicle, any federal outdoor recreation area that charges an entrance fee, as well as historical houses and museums in federal areas. It does not cover fees such as those charged for camping, and it is good only for the calendar year when issued.

For senior citizens

People 62 and older may obtain free of charge from the National Park Service a lifetime permit that admits them, and anyone accompanying them in a private vehicle, to federal recreation areas that charge fees. It also provides a 50 percent discount on use fees in park areas, but not on prices charged by concessionaires.

The Golden Age Passport must be obtained in person with suitable identification (not a Medicare card) and is available at most federally operated recreation areas.



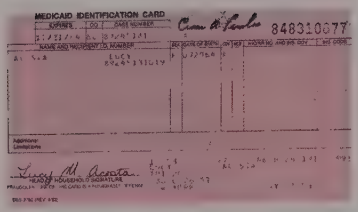
Sleeping indoors. If you prefer to sleep indoors on your vacation, there are still ways to hold down costs.

Two people traveling a considerable distance may find that a fly-and-drive trip can be more economical than driving the whole way. To take advantage of airfare bargains, however, you may not be able to leave and return at the time when you would most like to. Moreover, the economical car rental services are not as conveniently located at airports as the well-known ones. But the savings on gasoline and en route motel costs could make this kind of trip worthwhile.

Finally, plan your route carefully. Do not try to cover too many miles in one day; this would necessitate wasteful and tiring high-speed driving. Try also to avoid urban and resort areas, where prices are likely to be higher.

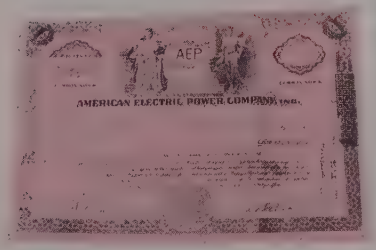
Trimming vacation expenses

- Schedule your trip just before or just after the busy season, generally from Memorial Day to Labor Day, when rates are likely to be lower in vacation-area motels.
- If you are in a hot climate, start driving quite early in the morning and stop around mid-afternoon. This will save on use of the air conditioner and give you a better choice of economical accommodations. (It also makes the driving more agreeable if you are heading west with the sun in your eyes.)
- Do not carry a container on the roof, where it will increase wind resistance.
- Take along a small heating coil so that you can make your own coffee or tea. With fruit juice and pastry picked up the day before, you can have breakfast in your room.
- Save on lunch as well by taking along a simple picnic kit. Buy fruit, cold cuts, and other easy-to-eat items in very small quantities along the way.
- Eating only one meal a day in a restaurant means considerable savings.



Medicaid identification card

Glossary



one share of common stock

Invest like a pro

- Get all the information you can—from books in your library, trade publications, newspapers, and TV programs on business-related topics.
- Talk to people who have done a lot of investing about what they have done right and what they have done wrong.
- Draw up a list of your investment objectives, and decide how much risk you can accept at your age.
- Do not get into collectibles unless you know a great deal about them.
- Do not agree to buy anything from a stranger who telephones you.

amortize. To reduce the principal of a loan by regular payments.

annual percentage rate (APR). The true interest cost of an installment payment, as distinct from simple interest; true interest takes into account the fact that the debt is being paid off during the time the interest is paid.

balance. The difference in an account between debits and credits.

balloon payment. The unpaid part of a mortgage that is due at one time (not typical of most mortgage arrangements).

bankruptcy. The condition of being insolvent and thus unable to meet one's obligations.

binder. A temporary contract issued by an insurance agent that covers the insured until the policy is prepared and executed; it is customary for fire insurance and other insurance protecting property.

blue chip stocks. Stocks issued by leading companies known for a continuing record of good earnings and dividend payments.

bond. An IOU or promissory note of a corporation or government, with a promise to pay a specified amount of interest for a specified length of time, and to repay the face value of the bond when it matures.

bottom line. The net income, which is the last line on an income statement.

bracket creep. A slang term referring to the way inflation pushes salaries and wages into higher tax brackets.

buy-down. Money offered by a builder as an inducement, which reduces monthly mortgage payments.

cash surrender value. Amount for which you can cash in your whole life insurance policy.

certificate of deposit (CD). A savings certificate with a fixed interest rate and a fixed maturity from 90 days to 10 years.

closing. The conclusion of a real estate transaction when all documents are signed and the deed is transferred to the new owner.

co-insurance. Condition, usually in major medical, in which you and the insurance company share costs; typically, the insurer pays 80 percent and you pay the rest.

collateral. Anything you own of value against which you can borrow money.

common stock. Securities that represent an ownership interest in a corporation.

compound interest. Interest that is computed on both the principal and the previously earned interest; in a savings account, interest left on deposit will itself earn interest.

condominium. Individually owned real estate consisting of a dwelling unit and an undivided interest in joint facilities and areas that serve the multi-unit complex.

consumer price index. A measure of the relative change in prices paid for a "market basket" of consumer goods by a typical wage-earner.

contractual plan. In mutual funds, a plan under which the total amount you intend to invest is stated, with a commitment to invest regular amounts monthly.

convertibles. Securities, such as bonds, that can be converted into other securities, such as stocks, at a certain price.

co-operative. Real estate ownership in which each person owns stock in a corporation, which owns and administers the residential units.

debenture. A debt certificate issued by a company that is not secured by a specific asset but by the company's credit in general.

deductible. In insurance, the sum you must pay before insurance coverage begins.

defined benefit pension. A type of pension in which a worker is guaranteed a certain amount of retirement income.

demand deposit. A bank deposit, such as in a passbook or checking account, that is payable to the depositor on demand (unlike a certificate of deposit).

discretionary income. The part of an individual's income that is left after paying taxes and buying necessities.

disposable income. The part of an individual's income that is left after paying taxes.

dividend. A payment made from earnings to the stockholders of a corporation; a payment made by an insurance company to holders of ordinary life or term insurance (if they choose a dividend-paying policy).

double indemnity. A policy rider that provides for double the face amount of the policy in the event of death by accident.

earnings per share. The after-tax earnings of a company divided by the number of shares outstanding.

effective annual interest rate. The total amount, expressed as a percentage, that one dollar will earn in one year; it is higher than the nominal rate when interest is compounded during the year.

equity. The residual value of a business or property beyond any remaining debt.

equity conversion. A loan for which your equity in your house serves as collateral.

escrow. Deposit of money with a neutral third party, as during the sale of a home.

estate tax. A tax imposed by the federal government and some state governments on the value of property transferred at death.

extended coverage. In insurance, extension of a policy to provide coverage against hazards not covered by the basic policy.

face value. In investing, the principal of a debt instrument, such as a bond or certificate of deposit, on which interest is computed and which is payable at maturity; in life insurance, the amount of the death benefit (as opposed to the cash value, which is less).

fee simple. Comprehensive ownership of real estate, with the right to pass it on to one's heirs.

float. In banking, the value of checks that have been written by you but not yet paid by the bank; in credit cards, the value of charges made to the account but not yet paid by the cardholder; in travelers' checks, the value of checks purchased but not yet cashed (in the second case, the cardholder benefits; in the third case, the bank benefits).

government bonds. Obligations of the U.S. government, considered the highest-grade bonds anywhere.

guaranty. A promise that merchandise will perform as claimed; differs from a warranty in that the latter is absolute assurance and failure to perform may void the basic contract; a guaranty merely provides that the guarantor will be liable (the two terms are often used interchangeably).

head of family. A person who maintains a family unit (not necessarily a father or husband).

Individual Retirement Account (IRA). A retirement program for anyone with earned income under which people can benefit from tax deductions and tax deferrals while investing funds for retirement.

insufficient funds. A statement stamped on a check by a bank when the account does not have enough funds to cover that check.

interest. Money paid for the use of borrowed money.

investment company. A company that invests in stocks or bonds of other companies and sells shares to the public.

joint tenancy. The holding of property by two or more persons in such a manner that, upon the death of one, the survivor or survivors take the entire property.

Keogh plan. A retirement program for self-employed people under which they can benefit from tax deductions and tax deferrals while investing funds for retirement.

lien. A claim against a person's property.

liquid assets. Cash, or assets that can readily be converted into cash without serious loss.

major medical. Protection against the expenses of a catastrophic or very lengthy illness.

market value. The value in a free market transaction agreed to by a willing seller and a willing buyer.

Medicaid. Combined federal-state program that pays for many medical expenses of the poor.

Medicare. The comprehensive federal health and medical insurance program that covers almost all people over 65.

money market account. An account offered by a bank with funds invested in short-term securities in the money market; the deposit is federally insured.

money market funds. Mutual funds that trade in short-term securities in the money market.

money markets. Financial markets where short-term debt securities are traded.

mutual fund. An investment managed by a company that pools the money of individual investors and buys a diversity of securities, such as stocks and bonds, to reduce risk.

net income. Also called net earnings or net profit, it is the difference between a company's sales and its expenses, before payment of dividends.

over the counter. Trading in securities that are not listed on major exchanges such as the New York Stock Exchange or the American Exchange.

payroll tax. The tax that an employee and employer each pay to support the Social Security program.

points. A one-time charge by a lending institution for originating a mortgage; one point equals 1 percent of the value of the loan.

price-earnings ratio. The market price of a company's common stock divided by its earnings per share.

prime rate. The interest rate that commercial banks charge their most creditworthy customers (lower than rates charged for loans to most individuals).

promissory note. A written promise to pay a debt.

rate of return. The annual percentage of an investment that is returned to the investor.

recipient. A person who receives public assistance or welfare payments, as distinguished from a "beneficiary," who works in covered employment and pays Social Security taxes.

rollover IRA. A special kind of Individual Retirement Account in which an employee deposits a lump-sum pension, paying no taxes on the lump sum or on the income it earns until starting to withdraw the money after age 59½.

simple interest. The interest earned by the principal only, and thus not compounded.

term life insurance. Insurance without any cash value that provides coverage for a limited term; it can be renewed at specified increasing rates; it is considerably cheaper than ordinary life in the early years but more expensive in later years.

treasury bill. A short-term obligation of the U.S. Treasury that is issued at a discount without interest.

treasury bond. A U.S. Treasury obligation that pays interest and matures in more than seven years.

treasury note. A U.S. Treasury obligation that pays interest, with a maturity of from one to seven years.

vesting. The acquisition by an employee of an interest in the contributions made by the employer to the pension fund, or to other employee-benefit funds.

warranty. A statement that merchandise is as represented; a false warranty is cause for legal action.

yield. Dividends on a stock or interest on a bond expressed as a percentage of current price.

For further reference

Annual Buying Guide Issue
Consumer Reports magazine

Boyer, Richard, and Savageau, David Places Rated Retirement Guide
Rand McNally

The Consumers Union Report on Life Insurance
Holt, Rinehart & Winston

Donoghue, William E.
No-Load Mutual Fund Guide
Bantam

Downs, Hugh, and Roll, Richard
The Best Years Guide: How to Plan for Fulfillment, Security and Happiness in the Retirement Years
Delacorte

Hallman, G. Victor, and Rosenbloom, Jerry Personal Financial Planning
McGraw-Hill

The Handbook for No-Load Fund Investors
McGraw-Hill

How to Live on Your Income
The Reader's Digest Association

J. K. Lasser Tax Institute
J. K. Lasser's Your Income Tax
Simon & Schuster

Jehle, Faustin F.
The Complete & Easy Guide to Social Security & Medicare Dell

Loeb, Marshall
Marshall Loeb's Money Guide
Little, Brown

Mobil Travel Guide (seven area editions)
Rand McNally

Porter, Sylvia
Sylvia Porter's New Money Book for the 80's
Doubleday

Quinn, Jane Bryant
Everyone's Money Book
Delacorte

Rugg, Donald D., and Hale, Norman B.
The Dow Jones-Irwin Guide to Mutual Funds
Dow Jones-Irwin

Sloan, Leonard
The New York Times Book of Personal Finance
Times Books

Unthank, L.L., and Behrendt, Harry M.
What You Should Know About Individual Retirement Accounts
Dow Jones-Irwin

Weinstein, Grace W.
The Lifetime Book of Money Management
New American Library

Booklets on request (free unless otherwise noted)

College

"Federal Student Aid Programs"
Department DEA—88
Pueblo, CO 81009

Investing

A directory of no-load mutual funds with information on their investment goals.

Investors Directory
P.O. Box 2004
New York, NY 10116

(send $2 check payable to
No-Load Mutual Fund Association

Income tax

"Your Federal Income Tax"

Write the I.R.S. Forms Distribution Center for your area (address is on the next-to-last page of Federal Income Tax Forms and Instructions).

Tax information publications and forms are available for reference and photocopying at your public library.

"Tax Benefits for Older Americans"
I.R.S. Publication 554
U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, DC 20402

Insurance

"Buyers' Guide to Insurance"
National Insurance Consumer Organization
121 North Payne Street
Alexandria, VA 22314

(send self-addressed envelope with $1)

Vacation

"Travel Tips for Senior Citizens"
Superintendent of Documents
U.S. Government Printing Office
Department 33
Washington, DC 20402

(send $1)

Retirement

"Your Social Security"
"Thinking About Retiring"
"How You Earn Social Security Credits"
"Estimating Your Social Security Retirement Check"
"How Work Affects Your Social Security Checks"
"Part of Your Benefits May be Taxable"
"A Brief Explanation of Medicare"

From your Social Security office.

Catalog of Publications and Materials (C-48)
American Association of Retired Persons
1909 K Street NW
Washington, DC 20049

Shopping

List of available publications of U.S. Department of Agriculture
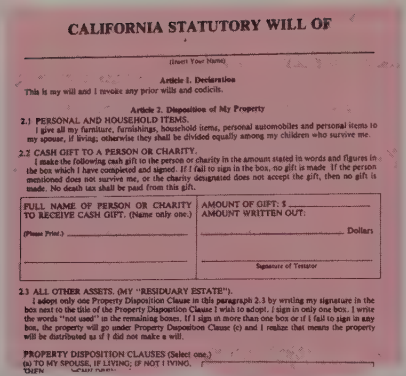
Office of Communication, Room 507A
U.S. Department of Agriculture
Washington, DC 20250

(includes titles of guides to buying and use of food)

"Consumer Information Catalog"
Consumer Information Center—Z
P.O. Box 100
Pueblo, CO 81002



CALIFORNIA STATUTORY WILL OF

(Insert Your Name)

Article 1. Declaration
This is my will and I revoke any prior wills and codicils.

Article 2. Disposition of My Property
2.1 PERSONAL AND HOUSEHOLD ITEMS.
I give all my furniture, furnishings, household items, personal automobiles and personal items to my spouse, if living; otherwise they shall be divided equally among my children who survive me.

2.2 CASH GIFT TO A PERSON OR CHARITY.
I make the following cash gift to the person or charity in the amount stated in words and figures in the box which I have completed and signed. If I fail to sign in the box, no gift is made. If the person mentioned does not survive me, or the charity designated does not accept the gift, then no gift is made. No death tax shall be paid from this gift.

FULL NAME OF PERSON OR CHARITY TO RECEIVE CASH GIFT. (Name only one.)	AMOUNT OF GIFT: $ _____ AMOUNT WRITTEN OUT:
(Please Print.) _____	_____ Dollars
_____	_____ Signature of Testator

2.3 ALL OTHER ASSETS. (My "RESIDUARY ESTATE").
I adopt only one Property Disposition Clause in this paragraph 2.3 by writing my signature in the box next to the title of the Property Disposition Clause I wish to adopt. I sign in only one box. I write the words "not used" in the remaining boxes. If I sign in more than one box or if I fail to sign in any box, the property will go under Property Disposition Clause (c) and I realize that means the property will be distributed as if I did not make a will.

PROPERTY DISPOSITION CLAUSES (Select one.)
(a) TO MY SPOUSE, IF LIVING; IF NOT I LIVING,
"DEFN

You and the Law

- Your family and the law 141
- Your home and the law 147
- Wills and estates 154
- Consumers' rights 156
- Personal property 159
- Injuries and damages 162
- Earning a living 164
- Criminal law and procedure 167
- How to find a lawyer 169
- Glossary 171

What is the law? Basically, the law is the set of rules that enables the members of a society to live and work together in reasonable harmony and to settle their disputes without violence. Some laws are in the form of written constitutions or statutes; others are legal principles that have arisen over the years from custom, experience, and common acceptance. Law is not confined to courts and legislatures. It pervades our day-to-day relationships with our families, our neighbors, the people we deal with on our jobs, and the members of our community.

When you pick up the phone and order something from a store, you make a contract governed by the law of sales. When you drive your car, you are subject to traffic laws and the laws of negligence and liability. Your wages and working conditions depend on your contract with your employer, perhaps a union contract, and federal and state labor laws. When a couple marries or a child is born, the law establishes the rights and duties of family members. When a person dies, the law determines who gets his or her property and who will care for the children. Even as you sleep at night, you are protected by laws against burglary and trespass—and perhaps by zoning laws that prevent a boiler factory from being built next door.

Most of the time we attend to our everyday affairs without running into any legal problems. Inevitably, though, conflicts arise. The goods we order fail to arrive, or they are unsatisfactory. Accidents happen and people are injured. Disputes arise between employers and employees, or between landlords and tenants. Families break up, or fight among themselves about inheritance or other rights. The person with no knowledge of the law may find that he has put himself in a weak legal position or incurred legal obligations that he never intended. Unscrupulous persons may take advantage of him, or he may simply not know what his rights are or what to do about them.

The purpose of this chapter is to help you deal with legal situations and, if possible, prepare for them. Reading the chapter will not make you a legal expert, but it may help you to recognize the problems most likely to arise in everyday situations, the pitfalls to look out for and errors to avoid, and the means by which you can protect and enforce your legal rights.

This chapter deals with general legal principles; but each state has its own special rules, which may differ from other states. Always check your own state and local law before making any important decisions.

The Glossary at the end of this chapter defines some technical terms you may come across in the newspaper or in other reading. For further reference lists a number of nontechnical books on law. Many more can be found at your local library, always a good source of information. For more technical information, try the courthouse library. If you are not familiar with using a law library, do not be afraid to ask the librarian for help.

Your family and the law

Marriage. Marriage is a contract, but not an ordinary one. Because of the importance of the family, society sets rules and imposes duties and obligations that usually do not apply to purely private agreements.

A marriage is valid everywhere if valid in the state where it takes place. Each state sets its own rules, which usually include a license, a blood test, a waiting period, and a ceremony performed by a clergyman or judge. Some marriages are prohibited because of blood relationship, age, prior marriage, or physical or mental incapacity.

Annulments. Marriages that do not conform to the rules are not automatically void. Unless incestuous or bigamous, a marriage will be valid unless one or both parties takes legal action and has it annulled within a reasonable time. (If an underage person marries, the child's parents can have the marriage annulled.) Annulments may also be obtained on grounds of fraud if, for example, one party expressed a desire for children knowing that he or she could not or would not have any.

Each state sets its own rules.

Common law marriage. Newspapers often use the term "common law marriage" to refer to the state of any couple living together; such use of the phrase is not accurate. A common law marriage is an agreement to marry and live together as man and wife without going through a ceremony. In states where they are permitted, common law marriages are exactly the same, legally, as any other marriage. The difficulty lies in proving the agreement and the intention of the parties, especially if one or both is dead and there is a dispute over inheritance.

Most states no longer recognize common law marriages. However, they will recognize a common law marriage that was valid at the time it was entered into, or one made in a state that does recognize them.

Changing your name

A married woman often wants to continue using her maiden name; she may, for example, have established a useful professional reputation under that name. Using a maiden name is perfectly legal. In fact, anyone can use any name he or she wants, so long as there is no intent to defraud. (You could not, for example, use the name of a well-known person in order to borrow money.) Getting a court order to change your name makes it official; but it is not necessary.

State laws. Some states do require women to use their married names on drivers' licenses or other documents. The state can do this, as it is responsible for public records. In these states, a woman must either comply or go to court and have her name officially changed.

Updating records. Most women do take their husbands' names. Those women should immediately notify the Social Security Administration to avoid any possible confusion in the records, as well as employers, insurance companies, department stores where they have charge accounts, and anyone else whose records should be changed.

Children. A child born to a married woman is presumed to be legitimate, even if the marriage turns out to be invalid. Illegitimate children become legitimate if their parents later marry each other.

Scientific developments, such as artificial insemination and "test-tube babies," pose new legal problems. Many states have passed laws requiring the consent of both husband and wife to these methods of conception or birth. If the law is complied with, the children are legitimate.

Illegitimate children. With respect to their mother, illegitimate children have full legal rights. They also have the right to support from their father; it may, however, take a lawsuit and a court order to establish paternity. Inheritance rights of illegitimate children from their fathers vary from state to state. Many states allow illegitimate children to inherit if the father has acknowledged the child in writing.

Abortion. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled it unconstitutional to forbid abortion during the first three months of pregnancy. In other situations, each state can set its own abortion laws, and they vary widely.

Adopted children. Adopted children have the same legal relationship to their parents as natural children. In some states, an adopted child may also inherit from his or her natural parents, but in no state can natural parents inherit from the child. The right of adopted children to inherit from the adopting parents' relatives (where there is no will) varies widely from state to state. The trend is toward allowing inheritance rights.

How to adopt a child

Learn your state's law and follow it to the letter. Consent must be obtained from the natural parents unless they have been legally deprived of custody. Consent may also be required from the child, if above a certain age.

The rules vary. Some states allow adoptions by single persons, but singles usually find it hard to get approval. Religious requirements are not absolute but the state may give preference to adoptive parents of the same religion as the child's natural parents.

The essential point. You must satisfy a court, at a hearing, that you are of good moral character, able to provide a good home, and financially responsible. The court usually accepts the recommendation of the social agency in charge, but if it is unfavorable, you can introduce evidence to overturn it. A deaf couple, for instance, overcame an unfavorable report by showing that they had successfully raised their own children, who had normal hearing.

Adults may be adopted. The practice is rare, but it has been done to establish inheritance rights or to make it easier for aliens to become citizens.

Legal status of minors

Contracts	Minors cannot be held to a contract or agreement while underage. Moreover, they can repudiate and cancel a contract at any time. (Exception: Real estate contracts cannot be repudiated while the minor is underage.) If the minor does not repudiate and cancel the contract before coming of age or within a reasonable time afterward, the contract will be valid. A minor can cancel a sale and get his money back. This rule does not apply to food, clothing, medical care, or other necessities. However, a minor who bought a car was able to get his money back, even though he had cracked it up. As a general rule, anyone who deals with a minor acts at his own risk, even if he does not know that the person is underage.
Liability for damages	Minors are responsible for injuries they cause to other people or to their property. They can be sued for damages; the damages can be paid from property owned or later acquired by the minor. Parents are usually not liable for the acts of their children, but some states have changed this rule.
Crimes	Under traditional law, a minor over seven could be tried as an adult. Today, children under 16 are charged with juvenile delinquency, not crime, to keep them from being encumbered by a criminal record. (The age may vary in some states.) Minors charged with juvenile delinquency have the right to a trial, a lawyer, and all constitutional safeguards.

Since an underage teenager can not be held to a contract, his father must cosign a car loan and become legally responsible for making the payments. But the son can be held responsible for the damage he does with his car.

Legal capacity

Children. Children do not have full legal rights and duties until they reach the age of majority. Traditionally, this age was 21, but many states have lowered it to 18, along with the voting age. Most states also have age limits for specific privileges, such as buying alcoholic beverages or obtaining a driver's license.

Incompetent adults. Adults are presumed to have full legal rights and capacities unless declared incompetent by a court after a full hearing. This procedure has severe drawbacks:

- It stigmatizes the person as mentally unsound.
- It is not appropriate for physical disabilities or mental difficulties, such as forgetfulness, that fall far short of mental unsoundness.
- The incompetent loses most of his or her legal rights, including the right to vote, make contracts, buy or sell, lend or borrow money, make gifts, marry, travel, or choose a place of residence. The incompetent may even be committed to a mental hospital.

Property	Minors can own property of all types, but it must be managed by a parent or guardian. A child's earnings legally belong to his father (or mother), unless the child is "emancipated"—no longer dependent upon his parents for support. Examples of emancipated minors are those in the armed forces, those who have married, and those whose parents will not support them.
Right to sue	Lawsuits may be brought on a child's behalf by a parent, guardian, or person appointed by a court. Children can sue parents for intentional injuries, but not for negligence (auto accidents, for example). Some states allow negligence suits against a parent who does not have custody.
School rights	Children have a right to an education, but parents cannot be compelled to send them to public schools. Many states recognize the right of handicapped or retarded children to special education; parents can participate in the decision to send or not send their children to special classes. Schools have the right to maintain reasonable discipline, but a child cannot be expelled or suspended without a hearing, except in emergencies. Parents have a right to see their children's records and correct any misinformation. The records cannot be shown to others without the parents' consent (except to school officials or to protect a child's health or safety).

A gift belongs legally to the person who receives it. But household furnishings usually belong to the husband, except in those states that have community property laws. A paycheck belongs to the person who earned it.

In some states it is possible to appoint a conservator to manage a person's property simply by showing that he is unable to handle it himself due to mental or physical disability. The usual proof is a doctor's statement. The person has the right to contest the proceeding, but is less likely to do so because he is not declared incompetent and does not lose his other legal rights.

Aliens. Resident aliens have the same rights as citizens, except that they cannot vote or hold elective office. They must register and must get a permit to work in the United States. In some states, they are ineligible for public employment. Illegal aliens may be deported.

Legal rights and duties. At one time, married women could not manage their own property; in fact, their legal status was almost that of children. These laws are a thing of the past. Husbands and wives have equal legal rights and powers.

Property. Except in community property states, wages and salaries belong to the person who earns them. Income from property belongs to the person who owns it. Property belongs to the person who bought it or in whose name it is placed. Household furnishings belong to the husband unless proven otherwise.

Gifts, including gifts between husband and wife, belong to the person who receives them. However, a man

Planning for old age, illness, or incapacity

Old age is not necessarily incapacity. Elderly people lose none of their legal rights, but the infirmities of age may make it difficult for some to handle their legal affairs. There are ways to plan against possible incapacity without the need for court proceedings; the same methods can be used by persons who simply want to be relieved of business responsibilities, and by people who wish to have someone else take care of their affairs.

Power of attorney — A power of attorney, which must be in writing, gives someone else the power to act on your behalf. It can be a general power to handle your affairs, or a special power, limited as you see fit. It can be revoked at any time and ends at your death. In some states, you may provide that the power of attorney is to take effect only if your physician certifies you are no longer able to handle your own affairs.

Trusts — You can put your money or property in a trust (see Glossary), and appoint a trustee to manage it for your benefit. The trust can be set up to take effect only on your doctor's certification that you are incapacitated; another way is to appoint yourself as trustee and name a co-trustee to take over automatically if you are incapacitated. You can put whatever you want into the trust, impose any limitations you want on the trustee, and reserve the right to cancel the trust at any time and take back the property.

Married couples — Do not keep everything in one spouse's name. If that spouse becomes incapacitated, the other will be in a financial bind. Legal proceedings to straighten things out may be time consuming. Each spouse should have at least enough money or separate property to provide for emergency situations.

who "gave" his wife money to save for his old age was able to get it back by proving no gift was intended. Contrary to popular belief, wedding gifts do not belong to the bride; they belong to both partners, unless clearly intended for just one (a necklace, for example).

Joint bank accounts and other joint property are owned equally by husband and wife; if one dies, the other gets the property. Some states recognize a special form of real estate ownership called "tenancy by the entireties." It is similar to joint ownership, but neither party can sell or mortgage his or her share without consent of the other. Also, creditors cannot get at the property except for debts owed jointly by husband and wife. This form of ownership ends if the parties are divorced; they become ordinary co-owners. See also "Community property laws," page 146.

Antenuptial agreements. Husband and wife can make a property agreement before marriage; each can give up any right to inherit from the other. Agreements are common among people with children from prior marriages; they assure that the children get their property free of any claims from a second spouse. These agreements are enforced by the courts unless grossly unfair. One was set aside because the husband, who had only a moderate income when he married, later became rich.

Husband and wife. Despite the trend toward equality, the husband is still "head of the family" in most states. He can decide where the family is to live. If his wife refuses to accompany him, she cannot charge him with desertion or abandonment. The husband also has the right to direct the children's education and religious upbringing.

Duty to support. A husband has a duty to support his wife and children, even if they have money of their own. If the husband is unable to support the family, the duty passes to the wife.

Support means the provision of "necessaries," but this includes more than the bare necessities of life. It means providing a standard of living in keeping with the father's financial condition. Some courts have held that a father must give his children a college education if he is financially able.

Purchases. A wife can buy necessities for the family and charge them to her husband; she is acting as his agent. A merchant can assume she is acting for the family unless the husband has notified him not to extend credit. A newspaper announcement, such as "I will not be responsible for debts incurred by my wife," is sufficient, but only if the merchant knows of it.

There are limits to the rule. It applies to purchases that are reasonable—not to sable coats or Rolls-Royces. If, however, the couple has a joint charge account or credit card, either is entitled to make purchases on it.

Indigent parents. Some states require adult children to support their parents if the parents cannot support themselves and would otherwise have to apply for public assistance.

Divorce and separation.

Traditionally, a divorce could be granted only for an offense committed by one spouse against the other. The "guilty party" was often barred from remarrying and from receiving alimony, which is why most divorce actions were brought by the wife.

Grounds for divorce include adultery, desertion, cruelty, conviction of crime, and habitual drunkenness or drug addiction. Defenses to a lawsuit for divorce include "condonation" (forgiveness of the offense), collusion, and justification (for instance, abandonment by the wife might be justified by the cruelty of the husband).

No-fault divorce. Most states now permit divorces for incompatibility, irreconcilable differences, or separation for a long period of time. No one need be at fault.

"Quickie" divorces. Most divorces, even those granted from foreign countries, will be recognized if both parties have appeared in court, either personally or through an attorney. But "mail-order" divorces and divorces where the defendant was not notified will be set aside if challenged.

Separation. A separated couple can make an agreement between themselves or go to court for a legal separation. The rules are similar to the rules in divorce cases, but a separation does not dissolve the marriage or change the parties' legal status as married persons.

A newspaper ad may not always protect a person from a spouse's debts. Consult a lawyer before placing an ad.

I, CHRISTOPHER SMARTS, also known professionally and publicly as CHRIS MILLS, do hereby declare that I am not responsible for any debts incurred by MISS BETTY WHITE or BETTY SMARTS as of June 15, 1985. I am in the process of challenging the legality of this marriage in Nevada and at no time did Miss White or myself establish residence in Boston or any other city in the United States.

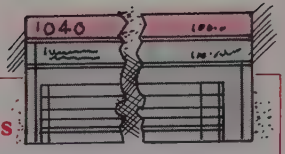
Alimony and property settlements. Courts today base their decisions on equity and fairness, not on set rules or formulas. For instance, wives have been awarded alimony for a period of time while attending college or taking training courses to enable them to support themselves. In a few cases, alimony has been awarded to the husband. If the parties can agree to a settlement between themselves, the court will usually accept it and make it a part of the court order.

Property settlements are permanent, but alimony or child support orders can be modified. Alimony normally ends if the wife remarries, but a father's duty to support his children is not ended by the remarriage. A support order may continue even after the child comes of age. For example, the court may find that the father is financially able to help the child through college or to help support a child who is incompetent. The amount, however, can always be modified to reflect changes in the parents' financial status.

Enforcement. A husband who fails to pay is guilty of contempt of court and can be punished by being sent to jail. This is done rarely, but the threat is always there.

Child custody. The welfare of the child is the primary consideration; but, in practice, the mother is almost always awarded custody (unless clearly unfit), with visitation rights for the husband. Recently, there has been a trend toward shared custody.

Custody fights are the bitterest of all lawsuits. One study showed that, even in uncontested divorces, over half the couples with children wound up in court later in custody battles. Couples would be well advised to settle their differences, perhaps with the help of a clergyman or social worker, before engaging in never-ending court battles. Such custody suits can do great harm to children.



Divorce and taxes

While uncontested divorces can be handled by a legal clinic at low fees—or even with a do-it-yourself divorce kit—you should be sure to talk with your tax adviser. There are some tricky income tax points that may depend on the wording of the divorce decree.

Alimony is deductible. Alimony payments are deductible from the husband's income; they are taxable income to the wife. Child support payments are not deductible, and are not income to the wife. Payments are considered alimony if they meet the following rules:

- They are made under a written agreement or court order.
- They are scheduled to continue for at least six years.
- They are to terminate at the death of the wife.
- They are not specifically designated as something other than alimony (such as child support).
- They do not depend on the status of a child (for example, if payments are scheduled to end when a child reaches 18, they are considered child support, not alimony).

Other payments. Property settlements are not taxable to either spouse, but later sales may be taxable. Payments under oral agreements are considered gifts and are not tax deductible.

Fees. Legal fees for getting a divorce are not deductible. Fees for tax advice are. Get separate bills.

Community property laws

Eight states—Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, and Washington—have community property laws for married couples. The laws vary, but the basic features of community property are these:

Anything owned before marriage remains the property of the person who owns it.

Gifts and inheritances, before or after marriage, are the property of the person who receives them.

All other property acquired after marriage (including wages, salaries, and other earnings) is community property shared equally by husband and wife, no matter how the property was acquired or whose name it is in.

If the couple is divorced, the property is split between them. If one dies, community property does not automatically go to the survivor. It goes to the person named in the deceased spouse's will, or to the next of kin if there is no will.

If you are moving into or out of a community property state, it may be a good idea to check on any problems that might arise. Talk to a lawyer in the community property state; lawyers in other states often know little about community property law.

Your home and the law

Buying a home. This may be the biggest financial deal of your life, and the one most important to the happiness of your family. Do not let yourself be rushed or pressured. You should probably consult a lawyer as early as possible, before you commit yourself to anything.

Land and buildings are called real property. All contracts for the sale of real property must be in writing, and cannot be changed except in writing. Never sign anything on the assurance that "It doesn't really mean anything" or "We'll change that later if you don't like it." You are legally bound by anything you sign, and an oral agreement to change it is worthless.

You are bound by anything you sign.

If you buy through a real estate broker, he or she may ask you to leave a deposit and sign a binder agreement to hold the property until you can get together with the seller. Do not sign unless you have spoken to a lawyer. And get a receipt for any deposit.

Down payments. When you sign the sales contract, or before, you will have to put down a deposit. Make sure

Questions to ask before signing a contract

About the property	Exactly what is included in the sale? Stoves, refrigerators, ovens? Carpets, shelves, Venetian blinds, storm windows, screens? Awnings? TV antennas? Is a survey needed? Who pays for it? Are there any old mortgages on the house, judgments against the seller, or payments due to contractors or repairmen?
About the sale	When will the sale be completed? When can I take possession? Are any delays likely? Are there penalties for delays? Who is to pay escrow fees, taxes, insurance, etc.? Are there any hidden fees?
About the mortgage	Can I cancel the contract if I cannot get the kind of mortgage I want? Under what conditions? How much time do I have?
About inspection	Do I have the right to inspect? What if the inspection shows damage from termites or other causes? Suppose the house needs repair? Who pays for it? Can I cancel the contract if the inspection shows the house is unsatisfactory?
About restrictions	Are there any restrictions on building or on the use of the property? What are the zoning regulations? Does the town have a building code? Can I build a tennis court? Put in a swimming pool? Keep a horse? Other pets? Store my old car in the backyard? Practice with my band? Can I run a business out of my home? What kind?
About the neighborhood	What kind of neighborhood is the house in? Who are my neighbors? What school will my children go to? Where can I do my shopping? Is the neighborhood entirely residential, or are there some businesses? What kind? Are there any plans to build a factory in the neighborhood, or run a highway through it?

the contract states when you are entitled to get it back. For example, the contract may take effect only if you can get a "satisfactory" mortgage. The bank offers a mortgage, but the interest rate is too high. The seller might argue that the mortgage was "satisfactory," in which case you would have to go to court to get your money back. You might not succeed. The contract should have defined exactly what, in this particular case, is meant by "satisfactory."

The sales contract. To be valid, the contract must contain all essential terms of the agreement, including enough information to identify the property, the buyer, the seller, the date of sale, the price, and how the money is to be paid.

Some tips to the buyer

- Make sure of the identity of the seller. Swindlers usually pass themselves off as someone else.
- Insist that the seller's spouse sign, in case he or she has any claim on the property.
- Beware of printed forms. They favor the seller.
- Do not sign without having the house and property inspected, unless the contract gives you the right to cancel if an inspection shows the place to be unsatisfactory.

Contract clauses of importance to buyers. Make sure your lawyer covers them.

Type of deed	A quitclaim deed simply releases all right, title, and interest that the seller has in the property. A warranty deed also guarantees that he actually does have the right, title, and interest that he claims to have. Buyers should insist on a warranty deed. If the contract does not specify, the seller only has to give a quitclaim deed.
Date of sale	If it is absolutely imperative that you have the house by a certain date (for example, you have to move from your old house), you can request a clause saying "time is of the essence." This makes the seller responsible for any financial loss you suffer from delay. If such a clause is too strict to be accepted, the seller may at least agree to a clause imposing monetary penalties for each day's delay.
Encumbrances	Property may be "encumbered" by unpaid taxes, old mortgages, court judgments against the seller, claims of third parties, etc. Such encumbrances are what the title insurance company looks for when searching the records. Until the search is made, do not sign any agreement to buy "subject to all encumbrances" unless they are listed specifically. (Title insurance protects you against any unknown or undiscovered encumbrances that turn up in the future.)
Fixtures	Items permanently affixed to the property, such as furnaces or plumbing, are part of the real property. Movables, such as tables or chairs, are not. Many other items, such as storm windows, are borderline. The contract should state exactly what goes with the house and what does not.
Risk of loss	Be sure to include a clause canceling the sale if the house is lost by fire or other disaster before the sale is completed.

How the contract is enforced. What if the seller refuses to go through with the deal? The buyer can sue for any damages and can also sue for "specific performance," which is a court order directing the seller to complete the sale. The seller has the same remedies if the buyer backs out. Most likely, though, he will just keep the down payment and sell the house to someone else.

Title closing. The sale is completed and the deed transferred at the closing. Usually, the buyer, the seller, their lawyers, a representative of the bank or other mortgage lender, and a lawyer from the title insurance company are present. Costs and fees are settled, including the buyer's share of costs already paid by the seller, such as taxes, insurance, fuel, etc.

Escrow. If there are encumbrances on the land, such as judgments or unpaid taxes, part of the purchase price may be put in escrow. This means that a neutral third party will hold the money until the seller removes the encumbrances.

When the sale is complete. Finally, the seller gets his money and the buyer gets his home. Besides the deed, the buyer should receive all insurance policies, tax receipts, and a bill of sale for any personal property, such as furniture, that has been purchased along with the house. The buyer will also receive a title insurance policy and a mortgage statement from the bank.

It is important to have the deed recorded immediately to protect your title. Dishonest persons sometimes sell property to more than one buyer. If the first buyer has not recorded his deed, a person who buys later but is first to record his deed may have a valid claim to the property.

Get it in writing.

Building a home. Contracts to build should be in writing, though it is not legally required. The best way to avoid legal disputes with contractors is to make the contract and specifications as exact and detailed as possible, including types and quality of materials and equipment, colors, and brand names. Any changes should require your written approval.

Method of payment. Partial payments are usually made at various stages of construction, with final payment due when the house is completed. If an architect drew the plans, you might hire him to supervise construction and make payment to the contractor subject to his approval. At the very least, you should have periodic inspections by someone who knows the construction business.

The contract may provide for penalties if the contractor does not finish on time, except in the case of causes beyond his control.

Liens. Serious problems can arise if the contractor does not pay his workmen, suppliers, or subcontractors. Even though you did not deal with them directly, they can file liens, or claims, against the property for the amount owed them. The legal status of these liens depends on your state's law, but they are encumbrances on the property and have roughly the same effect as unpaid mortgages. The contractor is liable for

The home owner should always exercise caution when coming to terms with a contractor. The slip shown below is an estimate, not a contract. It does not bind the contractor to do the work for the stated price.

PETER'S PAVING

2100 Green Street, Anytown, N.Y.

Driveways · Parking Lots · Walkways

NAME: Sam Brown
PRICE: $3150.
½ before starting ½ upon completion

satisfying these claims, but that will not help if he becomes bankrupt or cannot pay.

If you get notice of a lien, do not make any further payments to the contractor until he removes the lien by paying the claim.

One way to protect yourself. You might require the contractor to post a bond to guarantee payment of any claims. Bonds can be obtained from insurance companies; they are common in big commercial projects. There are drawbacks. The premium charged by the insurance company will probably add to the cost of the house, and the insurance company will have a voice in any changes you want to make in the plans or specifications.

Selling your home. Sellers have the same legal problems as buyers—but in reverse. If a sales contract is conditional on the buyer's obtaining a mortgage or having an inspection made, be sure to set a time limit, or the sale may be held up indefinitely. Also, stipulate that the buyer relies solely on the inspection, not on any promises or statements made by you.

If the buyer cannot get a mortgage, you may be willing to finance all or part of the price by a purchase money mortgage. This means you agree to be paid in installments and you retain a mortgage on the property, just like a bank, in case the buyer does not pay.

Real estate brokers. If you sell through a real estate broker, the broker is entitled to his commission if he produces a buyer who is "ready, willing, and able" to buy at your price. Even if the buyer backs out or cannot get a mortgage, the broker may be entitled to his commission unless you protect yourself by a clause in the contract with the broker.

How to save on taxes when you sell

If you sell your house, you normally have to pay capital gains tax on the profit. But you can postpone the tax by purchasing or building a new house within two years before or after you sell the old one. The postponed tax will become due if you sell the second house, but you can postpone again by buying still another house. There is no limit on the number of postponements. The tax may never become due.

Tax break for the elderly. If you have reached age 55, you can sell your home and pay no tax on up to $125,000 of profit. If spouses own the home jointly, the rule applies if either has reached age 55. This tax option is permitted only once in your lifetime.

Figuring your tax correctly. If you do not qualify for these tax breaks, you can keep taxes to a minimum by remembering to deduct the following costs from your profit:

- Costs of buying and selling, such as legal fees, brokers' commissions, and recording fees.
- Costs of any capital improvements, such as additional rooms, air-conditioning systems, swimming pools, and landscaping (but not ordinary repairs).
- "Fixing-up costs" to put the house in shape to sell.

Keep records. Be sure to keep all bills, records, and documents permanently. You can never tell when you might need them.

Types of real estate brokers' listings

Exclusive right to sell. The broker gets his commission, even if you sell the house yourself.

Exclusive listing. You list with one broker only, but you reserve the right to find a buyer on your own.

Open listing. You list with more than one broker but the one who makes the sale gets the commission. You also reserve the right to find your own buyer.

Which is best? At first glance, an open listing looks best for the seller, but that is not always the case. A broker will work much harder to sell your house if he is sure of getting a commission. Some brokers will not accept open listings. Some of those who do may not exert themselves very much because they would prefer to sell one of their exclusive listings. Your decision may depend on the state of the real estate market and the custom in your community.

PLEASANTVILLE, BY OWNER: Mother/daughter split. Separate entrances. EIK, DR/with deck, LR with wood burning stove. 5 bedrooms, 2 full baths. Principals only. Asking $179,900. Call days 555-2111.

★CUSTOM BUILT: 3 years young, immaculate 2,900 sq. ft. colonial. All room oversized. 3-4 BR's, 2½ bath, LR, DR, EIK w/separate breakfast area. FF w/fireplace, exclusive area. Excellent commute IBM. $176,900. Owner, broker, 555-1234.

SUNNYSIDE COMMUTE-DIST III SCHOOLS: Fantastic value, new 2-story contemporary. 3 Bedrooms, 2½ baths, family room with fireplace, full basement, 2-car garage. Many custom extras $169,900. Call now. Exclusive. King George. 555-4321

PUTNAM HILL $124,900
BRAND NEW 50' BI-LEVEL
ON 6 ACRES
This spacious home offers LR w/bow window, DR, EIK, 3 BRs & 2 baths. Many extras include W/W carpet throughout, range, dishwasher, deck, paved driveway, aluminum & [illegible] FP, laundry room, 6' slider in DR

Brokers' contracts. Contracts are normally in writing, and should have a time limit, such as six months. When the contract expires, get a list of persons to whom the broker has shown the property. Otherwise, one of those persons may come back later and buy the property. You would then owe the broker a commission because he first produced the buyer.

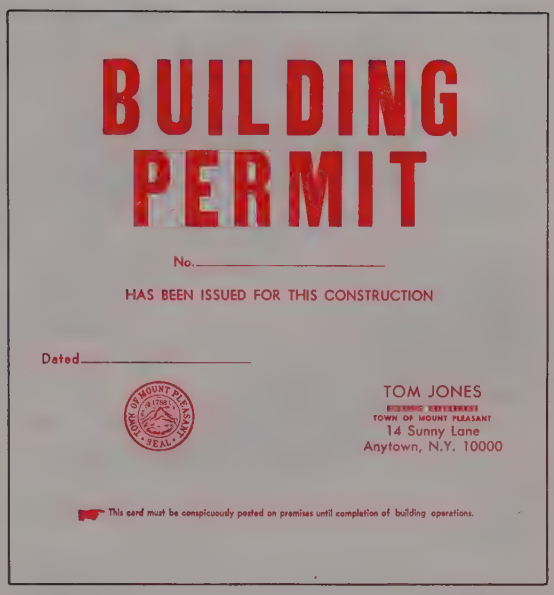
Look out for the fine print. As always, beware of printed contracts. They favor the broker.

Owners' rights and duties.

Your use of your property may be subject to restrictions for the benefit of other persons or the public in general. Here are some of the most common restrictions.

Covenants and conditions. Deeds often contain restrictions on property, such as a ban on commercial use or rules on the type and size of buildings. Developers often put these rules in deeds to maintain the character of the development. The restrictions are binding on future buyers. If the property has passed through several hands, a thorough search of the records may be needed to discover the restrictions.

If a restriction is made a condition of ownership, a violation could cost the owner the title to the property. Most restrictions, however, are covenants (promises); if they are violated, nothing happens automatically, but persons who are affected, such as neighbors, can get a court order (injunction) requiring the owner to comply with the covenant. Courts may refuse to enforce covenants if they make no sense because the neighborhood has changed. If in doubt, a landowner can ask for a court ruling in advance. Some covenants are illegal, such as restrictions based on race or religion.



BUILDING PERMIT

No._____

HAS BEEN ISSUED FOR THIS CONSTRUCTION

Dated_____

TOWN OF MOUNT PLEASANT SEAL

TOM JONES
TOWN OF MOUNT PLEASANT
14 Sunny Lane
Anytown, N.Y. 10000

This card must be conspicuously posted on premises until completion of building operations.

An "Application for Zoning & Building Permit" must be filed with the building department of your local government. The application usually requires specifications about the proposed renovation or new building and may require a survey or architectural drawings.

Public laws. Most communities have zoning laws restricting land use, but they normally do not apply to land or buildings already constructed or in use when the law is passed. Most towns also have building codes and require a permit before building. If you want an exception or variance from the zoning laws, you have to apply to the zoning board and show good cause. It is very important to show that your neighbors have no objection to the proposed use or construction.

Co-ownership of property

Ownership of property of any kind may be shared by two or more persons. Co-owners are either tenants in common or joint tenants. (Married couples may also be "tenants by the entirety" or share "community property"—see pages 144–145.

Do not be confused by the word "tenants." It usually refers to renters of property, but here it means owners.

Tenants in common. Each owns a fractional share in the entire property; no one owns any specific part. Each may sell or mortgage his share; creditors may reach it for payment of debt. When a tenant in common dies, his share does not go to the co-owners, but to the person named in his will, or to his next of kin.

Joint tenants. Each owns an equal share in the property. Each can sell or mortgage his share, and creditors can reach it. When a joint tenant dies, his share goes to the survivor or survivors. If a joint tenant sells his share, the survivorship feature ends, and the new owner is a tenant in common.

Is co-ownership desirable? Except possibly for married couples or business partners, co-ownership is usually not a good idea. The owners may disagree on what to do with the property. A sale may be missed if one co-owner holds out, as the buyer may be unwilling to take less than full ownership. Even if owners agree on managing the property, one may die or sell out, in which case there would be a new owner to deal with. If the new owner is a minor, the property can be tied up for years.

If the owners are deadlocked, the only solution may be a court order of "partition," which will physically divide the property among the owners.

Neighbors have duties to each other. One cannot create a nuisance to the other, such as by polluting a stream or continuously making a loud noise. Local laws vary, so be careful about taking action on your own. Consult a lawyer.

Easements. Other persons may have the right to use your property or pass through it. Such easements and rights of way may be purchased, or they may arise from continuous use over a long period of time. If one neighbor has an easement or right of way in the property of another, it will continue even if either or both properties are sold.

Condemnation. The government has the power (eminent domain) to take all or part of your property for public purposes, such as for highways or schools. The power may also be exercised on behalf of public utilities; for example, an electric company may need to run power lines over the land. Landowners are entitled to reasonable compensation, which is decided at a condemnation proceeding, where there is presented evidence from appraisers and experts. You may also be entitled to compensation if the use of your land is interfered with, even if it is not actually taken; for example, low-flying planes from a nearby airport may lessen the value of the property.

Mortgages. If you fail to make mortgage payments, the bank cannot just take your home; it must go to court in a foreclosure proceeding. In every state, you are given a period of time (usually a year or more) to make the payments and redeem your house—or else work out a new arrangement with the bank, such as smaller payments over a longer period of time.

If you are unable to pay and the mortgage is foreclosed, the property will be sold at auction. If the price does not cover the mortgage, you still owe the balance. If the price is higher than the mortgage, you are entitled to the difference.

Air, water, and mineral rights. You own the air over your land (subject to reasonable use by airplanes) and the minerals beneath it. Air and mineral rights can be sold separately from the land itself, and can be extremely valuable; if you get an offer, see a lawyer.

You own any body of water entirely on your property, such as a pond. But rivers and streams flowing through your land or next to it are subject to the rights of downstream owners. You may not pollute the river, dam it up, or divert it from its course. (Navigable bodies of water are under the jurisdiction of the federal government.)

Neighbors' rights. Neighbors owe each other a duty of lateral support; this means they cannot make excavations that would weaken the other's land. If their buildings share a party wall, neither can weaken the wall.

Neighbors may not use their land in such a way as to create a nuisance, such as loud noise or foul odors. The remedy is to get an injunction banning the nuisance. Overhanging branches from a neighbor's tree may constitute a nuisance, and a landowner has the right to cut them down, but check local laws first.

Insurance. If you have a mortgage, the bank will insist you have fire insurance, but the bank only requires enough insurance to cover the mortgage. You may want to buy more. The cost of replacing a home is likely to be more than the original price because of inflation.

Homeowners should also have liability insurance, in case anyone is injured on the premises. Property owners' liability for injuries is a complicated subject. If you buy insurance, the insurance company will take care of all claims. Some companies sell comprehensive policies, which cover most or all kinds of insurance a homeowner wants.

Renting a home.

A contract to rent is a lease. Most leases are in a writing, but an oral lease is valid. If no period of time is specified, either the landlord or the tenant can cancel at any time, usually by one giving a month's notice to the other.

Most written leases specify how long they are to last, usually a year or more. A tenant who stays on after the lease has run out is called a holdover tenant. The landlord has the choice of evicting him, or of regarding the lease as renewed for another term.

Unless the lease states otherwise, the tenant can sublet or assign (transfer) the lease. Most leases, however, ban or restrict the right to assign or sublet, except with the owner's consent.

Landlord's duties. The landlord is responsible for keeping the building structurally sound. The old rule held the tenant responsible for ordinary repairs, but in many states, the landlord is now considered responsible for repairs in residential property, unless otherwise provided in the lease. (In commercial property, the tenant usually makes repairs.) In apartment buildings, the landlord is responsible for maintaining hallways, staircases, driveways, laundry rooms, and other areas used by all the tenants.

A constructive eviction occurs if the landlord lets the building run down to the point where it is not fit for use. The tenant can move out, does not have to pay any more rent, and can sue the landlord.

Tenant's duties. The tenant's main obligation is to pay rent. If he moves before the lease expires, he must continue to pay rent until the end of the lease or until the landlord rents the property to someone else. Under traditional law, the tenant had to pay the rent even if the landlord violated his part of the agreement—or even if the house burned down. This rule has been modified in many states.

Some states recognize an "implied warranty of habitability," which means the landlord is regarded as promising that the property is fit for the tenant to live in, even if the lease contains no actual promise or guarantee. Tenants can sue for violation of the implied promise or withhold payment of the rent. How serious does a violation have to be to justify not paying the rent? That depends on the rules of the state. Check with a lawyer or with a tenants' group before trying it.

Tenants are liable for any damage they do to the property. Landlords usually require a security deposit when the lease is signed. The tenant gets the deposit back when he leaves, if he has not damaged the property and does not owe any rent. Sometimes the deposit serves in place of the final month's rent. Some states require the landlord to pay interest on the security deposit.

Government regulations. Many state and local governments have passed laws that extensively regulate the relationship between landlords and tenants, especially in communities with housing shortages; some have rent control. Landlords' associations and tenants' groups will provide members with information and, sometimes, legal counsel.

Co-operatives and condominiums

"Co-ops" and "condos" are the fastest growing type of housing in the United States.

Co-ops. A co-operative apartment house is owned by a corporation. The residents are the stockholders; they own shares in proportion to the value of their apartments. Each has the exclusive use of his own apartment and the right to use common areas: stairways, halls, basement, grounds, driveways. The mortgage covers the entire building; stockholders are not personally liable for payment, but must make up the difference if any stockholder defaults, or risk foreclosure of the mortgage. Anyone who wants to sell must get approval from the other stockholders, who rule on the desirability of the proposed new resident.

Condos. Each condominium resident actually owns his apartment and shares ownership of the common areas. Each separate apartment can be mortgaged. This sometimes makes condos easier to buy and sell than co-ops, as banks are more willing to lend money if they can get a mortgage on the owner's apartment. (Co-op owners have only their shares of stock to pledge as security for a loan; the primary mortgage is on the whole building.) Condos are also easier to sell because approval of the other owners is not required (though owners may reserve the right to buy the condo themselves if they do not like a proposed owner).

Both co-ops and condos are run by a committee of residents; often, they hire a professional manager. Residents pay a monthly fee, which often includes maintenance, taxes, mortgage payments, etc. The ground floor is sometimes rented to commercial tenants, but there are legal limitations on how much of the building can be rented.

Advantages of co-ops and condos over renting:

- The residents actually own property. They can sell it or raise money on it. Tenants own nothing.
- Owners usually take better care of property than tenants do.
- Property owners get valuable tax breaks that renters do not, including tax deductions for mortgage interest and real estate taxes.

Wills and estates

What is a will? A will is a way for a person (the testator) to direct who will get his property (estate) after his death. The will has no effect before death and can be changed or revoked at any time. A will is valid even if it does not dispose of all the testator's property; anything not mentioned in the will goes to the next of kin under state law. Normally, a will contains a "residuary clause" naming a person or persons to get everything not specifically left to someone else.

Why do you need a will? If you have no will, your property will be distributed according to state law, regardless of your wishes or your family's needs. The court will appoint an administrator (and a guardian if you leave children). They will have to post bond, which will be payable from your estate, along with their fees. If any money or property goes to minors, it will be tied up until they come of age. The guardian will not be able to touch it, even for education or medical costs, without getting a special court order.

If you have a will, you can be sure your property will go to the persons of your choice. You can appoint an executor to handle the estate, and guardians or trustees for the property of children. You can give the persons you appoint any powers that you see fit, or impose any limitations. You can direct what is to happen if you and your spouse (or other heirs) should die at the same time —in an auto accident, for example.

You can also appoint a personal guardian for your minor children; the appointment is not binding, but the court will usually follow your wishes.

How to make a will. The testator must be at least 18 years old and of sound mind. The will must be in writing and signed in the presence of two witnesses (three, in some states); the witnesses should also sign. Witnesses cannot inherit under a will, so do not pick as a witness anyone you are leaving anything to.

If you die without a will . . .

- If you leave a spouse and children, they get your estate. In some states, it is divided half and half; in others the children take two-thirds and the spouse one-third. If you leave no spouse, the children get it all. If any of your children die before you, their children take what would have been their share. If you leave no children, the spouse either gets everything or, in some states, divides the estate with your parents, brothers, and sisters.
- If you leave no wife or descendants, your parents take the estate; if they are not alive, your brothers and sisters (or their children, if they are deceased) divide the estate.
- If you leave no close relatives, you can figure out who is your next of kin by counting generations to and from a common ancestor. For example, you and your first cousins have a common grandparent; so you count back two generations to the grandparent, and two generations down to your cousins. They are of the fourth degree of relationship. Their children would be of the fifth degree. Your estate will be split equally among all those of the nearest degree of relationship. Some states do not allow relatives beyond a specified degree to inherit.
- If you leave no next of kin, everything goes to the state.

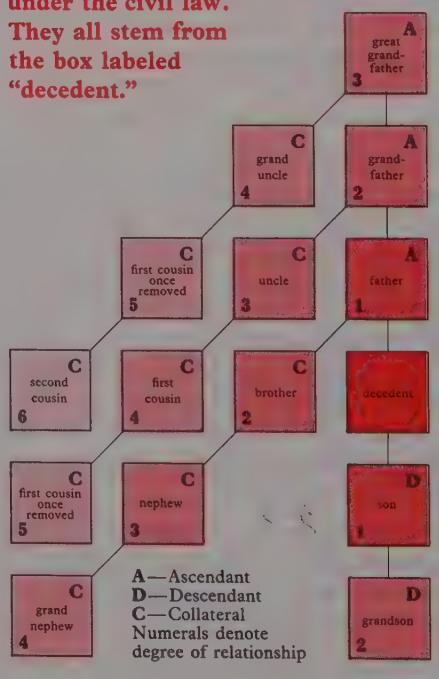
Degrees of blood relationships under the civil law. They all stem from the box labeled "decedent."



There are exceptions. Some states require no witnesses to a holographic will, one entirely in the testator's handwriting. Some states allow oral wills in special circumstances, such as on a deathbed or when a serviceman is going overseas. Holographic or oral wills should be used only in emergencies, and replaced by a regular will as soon as possible.

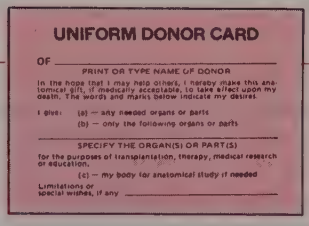
Changes to a will (codicils) must also be in writing, signed, and witnessed.

A will may be declared invalid if the testator was of such unsound mind that he did not understand what he was doing, or if the will was made because of force, duress, fraud, mistake, or undue influence.

Revoking a will. A will can be revoked by another will or written document, signed and witnessed. It can also be revoked by physical destruction, such as tearing it up or burning it; but this is not a good idea. If you die and your will is not found, no one will know whether it was destroyed or just lost. A lost will, however, can be given effect if there is a copy, or some other proof of what was in it.

A will may be revoked by a later marriage or the birth or adoption of a child. In some states, the revocation is only partial. The wife or child gets what he or she would have inherited if there were no will; the balance, if any, is distributed according to the will.

Your rights to your body



UNIFORM DONOR CARD

OF
PRINT OR TYPE NAME OF DONOR

In the hope that I may help others, I hereby make this anatomical gift, if medically acceptable, to take effect upon my death. The words and marks below indicate my desires.

I give: (a) — any needed organs or parts
(b) — only the following organs or parts

SPECIFY THE ORGAN(S) OR PART(S)
for the purposes of transplantation, therapy, medical research or education.

(c) — my body for anatomical study if needed

Limitations or special wishes, if any

You do not have an absolute right to decide where you will be buried or what service will be performed. The right belongs to the next of kin. Normally, however, your wishes will be respected.

You do have the right to leave your body to a hospital, college, or medical school for scientific purposes, or to donate any parts of your body for organ transplants. You can do this in your will or by using a special form; one common form is called a "Universal Donor Card." (Using a will may be too slow, especially in the case of transplants.)

Make your decision known. If you are donating your body, be sure to notify your family, your doctor, and any hospital you are in. You should also keep a copy of the donor card with you, in your wallet or purse, in case you die in an accident or away from home.

Sample will clauses

Specific bequests	I bequeath to my niece Jane Roberts, now residing at 4 Main Street, Centerville, IL, the sum of three thousand dollars ($3,000.00). I bequeath to my son John Jones, now residing at 2 Main Street, Centerville, IL, all my jewelry and any other personal effects and mementos which he may desire.
Residuary clause	I give, devise, and bequeath all of the rest, residue, and remainder of my estate to my wife Mary Jones if she survives me. If she fails to survive me, then I give the remainder of my estate to my friend William Brown, now residing at 10 Elm Street, Centerville, IL.
Common disaster clause	In the event that my wife Mary Jones and I die under circumstances where it cannot be established who died first, it shall be presumed that I survived my wife and this will and all dispositions contained herein shall be interpreted on the basis of that presumption.
Appointment of executor	I nominate my son John Jones as executor of my estate, to serve without bond. If my son predeceases me or is for any reason unable or unwilling to serve, then I appoint the First National Bank of Centerville, IL, as executor.
Appointment of guardian	Should my son John Jones be under the age of 18 years when I die, then I nominate my brother Thomas Jones and his wife Ann Jones, now residing at 12 Elm Street, Centerville, IL, to be guardians of his person. I appoint the First National Bank of Centerville to be guardian of all my son's property, subject to the following rules (enumerate powers and limitations on guardian).

Limitations on wills. You can disinherit any relative, including children, but you cannot totally disinherit a spouse. All states require that a certain minimum be left to the spouse. If it is not, the spouse can elect to get the share he or she would have received had the testator died without a will.

Some states limit the amount you can leave to charity if you are survived by a spouse, children, or other close relatives.

Mutual wills. Contracts to make wills or leave property to specific persons are enforceable. Sometimes, husbands and wives make mutual wills. Each leaves his or her property to the other, with the entire property to go to named beneficiaries (such as children) upon the death of the survivor. If the wills are made by agreement, the surviving spouse cannot change his or her will. But the agreement should be stated clearly in the will or in a separate written document. The mere fact that the two wills are the same does not prove that they were made by contractual agreement.

Probate and how to avoid it.

Court proceedings to establish your will and settle the estate (probate) are usually necessary, even if you die without a will. The court will appoint an administrator, usually your next of kin. Some property, however, need not go through court. Joint property goes directly to the joint owner. Insurance proceeds are paid directly to the beneficiary.

Some people want to avoid court proceedings to save costs and delay, and to maintain privacy (court records are open to the public). The best way is to put all your property in a trust (see Glossary), naming yourself as beneficiary for life and designating the persons you want to receive the property at your death, just as in a will. You should still have a will, however, as you may own property at your death without realizing it. For example, if you die in an accident, your estate may have a claim against the person responsible. Or you may have inherited property that has not yet been distributed.

Consumers' rights

You may have heard of the old legal rule Caveat emptor, Latin for "Let the buyer beware." If a buyer purchased shoddy goods, paid exorbitant prices, or failed to read the fine print in a contract, any problem was considered to be his own fault. This is still the law in the case of some business deals, but state and federal laws protect consumers in most transactions.

A consumer loan or transaction is for the purchase of goods or services for personal, family, or household purposes, and sometimes for agricultural purposes.

Getting out of bad deals. Federal and state laws ban false, fraudulent, and deceptive advertising. Not only outright falsehoods are banned, but also deceptive practices such as "bait and switch" advertising, in which a merchant advertises a bargain to get you into his store (the bait), then tells you the bargain item is sold out and talks you into buying something more expensive (the switch).

You may be able to cancel a sale or a contract on grounds of fraudulent advertising, but it is hard to prove. Mere sales talk or exaggeration about a product is not enough; and if a salesman does tell an outright lie, he will probably deny it. The best course is not to be taken in by tricky advertising in the first place. Many agencies have published pamphlets and booklets telling consumers what to look out for. Write your state consumer agency, or the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, CO 81009.

"Caveat emptor."
Let the buyer beware.

Mail-order sales. If you buy something by mail, you can cancel the order and get your money back if the goods are not shipped within 30 days.

You absolutely do not have to pay for unsolicited goods sent through the mail. You do not have to send them back either. Just treat them as a gift.

Door-to-door sales. If you sign a contract with a door-to-door salesman, you have three business days to think it over. Within this period, you can cancel the sale and get back any payments just by giving written notice to the seller. However, if you request immediate delivery, you lose this right.

Warranties. A warranty is a guarantee or promise about the quality or condition of goods and products; sometimes it includes a promise to repair. An express warranty is one actually made by the manufacturer or seller. Whether or not he makes an express warranty, the law regards him as making an implied warranty that the goods are fit for the purpose they are

LIMITED ONE-YEAR WARRANTY

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State ____ Zip code _____

Date purchased _____ Store name _____

Product name _____ Model number _____

A warranty gives you specific legal rights, but you may also have other rights that vary from state to state. Consult your lawyer.

being purchased for. The seller can avoid this, however, by specifically stating that he makes no warranties whatsoever; this statement is called a disclaimer.

If the goods do not live up to the warranty, the buyer can sue for damages or get his money back.

Federal law. A seller who makes a written warranty must designate the warranty as full or limited. Under a full warranty, if repeated attempts to repair a product fail, the consumer must be given the choice of a replacement or his money back.

Defective products. What redress is available if someone is injured by an exploding bottle, contaminated food, or an appliance that catches fire? The buyer can sue under the product warranty. But suppose someone else is hurt, or the seller has specifically disclaimed any warranties?

In the past, it was necessary to prove the injury was caused by negligent or improper manufacture or handling of the product. Sometimes negligence is obvious (a dead mouse is found in a bottle of soda). But in many cases it may be difficult to prove negligence in manufacture, or to determine just who was at fault.

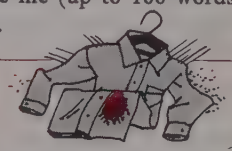
The modern trend. Today, many states impose strict liability on anyone who sells a consumer product, from the manufacturer to the retailer. The injured person need only prove that the product was defective and caused the injury. The rule of strict liability is applied in most cases involving food, drugs and medicines, clothing, cosmetics, and other products intended for bodily use, and products inherently dangerous, such as automobiles. In other cases, it may still be necessary to prove negligence in manufacturing. It depends on state law.

Credit. Anyone who makes a loan or extends credit for consumer purposes must disclose all terms and conditions in clear, understandable language, including the annual interest rate, any other charges, and what happens if there is a dispute or if the consumer fails to pay. Credit may not be denied because of race, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status, or receipt of public assistance. If you are denied credit (a loan, a charge account, a credit card) you must be told why—in writing.

Protecting your credit rating. If you are turned down because of an unfavorable report from a credit rating bureau or agency, you must be told which agency. Upon request, the agency must tell you the nature and source of the unfavorable information (but it does not have to show you its file). It must also disclose the names and addresses of all persons who have been given the information within the past six months (two years if the information was given for employment purposes).

If you disagree, you may insist that the agency reinvestigate. If you still disagree, you may put a brief statement of your own in the file (up to 100 words) telling your side of the story.

Small claims court



All states have small claims courts to handle cases involving less than a maximum amount set by state law. The federal Tax Court has a Small Case Division to handle tax disputes up to $10,000. Small claims courts provide a speedy, inexpensive way for people to assert their legal rights without the time, trouble, and cost of a major lawsuit.

Bringing a lawsuit. The court clerk will help you fill out the forms to start the case. There is a small fee, which the other side will pay if you win. The other party will be notified. Often, this will be enough to get him to settle. If not, you will be notified of the time and place of trial.

Caution: If the other party pays up, you can just drop the case. But if he only promises to pay, be sure to show up on the trial date and tell the judge. The case will then be held open, to make sure that you get paid.

Trials are informal. You can have a lawyer, but you do not need one. Here are some tips on how to behave:

- Dress well, but do not dress up.
- Stand when you talk to the judge. Call him or her "Your Honor."
- Describe your case in a general way before going into detail. Be sure to bring with you all documentary evidence, such as bills, canceled checks, letters, forms, etc.
- Testify yourself and call any witnesses.
- Do not fight or argue with the other party. Do not act like a lawyer. Do not ever argue with the judge.
- Do what the judge says. If he or she asks you a question, answer it. If he or she tells you not to say anything, be silent.

Credit cards. If your card is lost or stolen, you should notify the credit card company at once. But even if someone has used the card before you notify the company, you can be held liable for no more than $50.

If you find an error on your monthly statement, you must notify the company within 60 days, in writing, stating your name, address, card number, and the nature and amount of the mistake. A phone call is not sufficient, nor is a note written on the monthly bill. Write a separate letter. The company must investigate and give you a written answer within two billing periods, but not longer than 90 days.

Until then, the company may not try to collect the disputed amount; it may not revoke your card; and it may not report you as a delinquent payer to anyone, such as a credit rating bureau.

If the company, after investigation, still insists that you owe the money, it must furnish you with documentary evidence upon your request. If you still disagree, you should protect your credit rating by writing to the company again. If the company then reports you to anyone as delinquent, it must also report that the matter is in dispute and must notify you of the report.

Defective goods. If you buy merchandise that turns out to be defective or worthless, you do not have to pay the credit card company, provided:

- The transaction was for more than $50.
- It was made in your home state or within 100 miles of your home.
- You made an honest attempt to settle the dispute with the merchant.

The rule applies only to the unpaid balance. You cannot get back payments already made. Of course, you can try to get your money back from the merchant.

Bill collectors. Bill collection agencies operate under federal restrictions. The law does not apply, however, to persons or companies trying to collect their own debts. The following practices by collection agencies are forbidden:

- Telling anyone, including your employer, that you owe a debt (but they may ask for your address).
- Contacting you at unreasonable times or places (no middle-of-the-night phone calls).
- Using forms or envelopes that look official.
- Sending collection notices on postcards that other people might read.
- Using any abusive, deceptive, or unfair methods.

Moreover, the agency must stop all bill collection efforts if you notify them in writing to stop, or tell them you dispute the debt, or hire a lawyer.

If the agency violates the law, you can sue for actual damages, plus up to $1000 additional damages (if the court so decides), plus costs and attorneys' fees.

Are your debts too big?

Although you should always exercise care not to accumulate too many debts, it may happen that you become overwhelmed by the amount of money you owe. Declaring bankruptcy is the solution of last resort. Prudent management of your money will not only help you avoid bankruptcy, it can often get you out of your overwhelming debt. Read carefully "Managing the Family's Money," pages 110-139, for good advice on how not to overextend yourself. Sometimes it makes sense to consolidate your debts in order to avoid high monthly payments (see page 117 for more information). In order to get a fresh start, however, you may have to file for personal bankruptcy in a federal court.

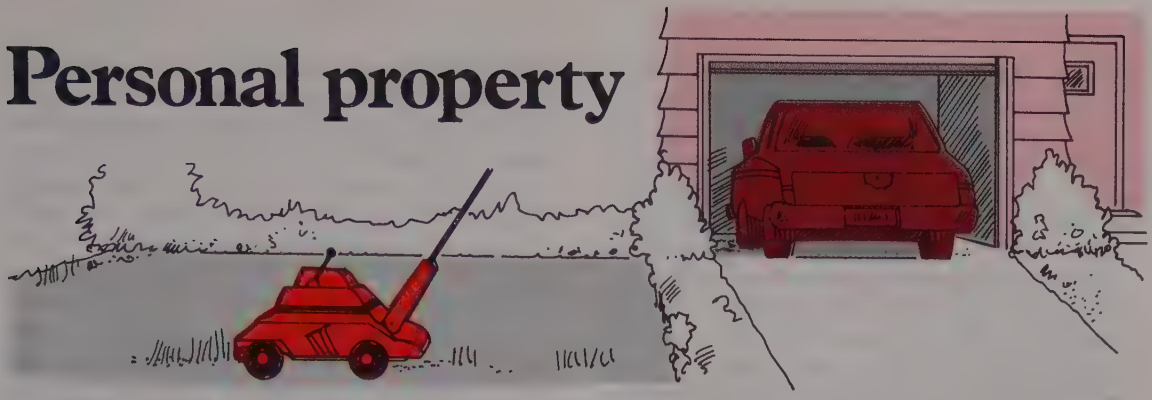
How it works. You give the court a list of everything you own, the debts you owe, and any debts owed to you. The court appoints a trustee to collect your assets and distribute them to creditors. Mortgaged property or property pledged as security (collateral) goes to the particular creditor involved; the rest is distributed proportionately to all. If you have not misrepresented or concealed anything, your debts will be canceled (discharged) except for taxes, alimony, and child support.

Caution: Judges have the power to deny discharges if they find that the debtor can pay his debts and is improperly trying to take advantage of the bankruptcy law.

What you keep. Not everything you own can be taken. You can keep personal belongings, most household goods, your car (up to $1200 in value), the tools of your trade, and a certain amount of cash. But if you own a home, you could be in danger of losing it. There is a "homestead exemption" of $7500, but if your house is worth more, it will be sold, and you will receive only the $7500.

Wage earner plans. The bankruptcy law provides another alternative, under which you submit to the court a plan to pay a specified amount each month, depending on your income, how much you owe, and the needs of your family. If the court approves the plan and you make the monthly payments, your creditors are not allowed to demand more. Eventually, you will be free of debt.

Personal property



Your neighbor is responsible for your lawnmower if he borrows it for his own use, but you are not responsible for his car if you let him park in your garage.

Land and buildings are real property. All other property is personal property, including cash, movable goods, stocks, bonds, and intangible legal rights.

Abandoned property belongs to the finder. Lost property belongs to the finder only if the real owner cannot be found. Many states require that anything over a certain value be turned over to the police; the finder gets it if the owner fails to turn up within a specified period. Stolen property continues to belong to the owner; he can get it back, even from people who bought it without knowing that it was stolen. The exception is cash. If cash is stolen, you can recover it only if it is still in the possession of the thief.

Owners and possessors

Bailments. Temporary transfers of possession, but not ownership, of property are called bailments. If someone borrows property for his own use (your neighbor borrows your lawnmower), he is normally required to return it or pay for any loss or damage. If the bailment is for the benefit of the owner (you let someone keep his car in your garage), you, the possessor, are responsible only for intentional damage or gross negligence.

Most bailments are business transactions for mutual benefit (you take your TV set to the repair shop, or leave your jewelry as security for a loan). The possessor must use reasonable care, and is responsible for loss or damage that results from his negligence.

Some special cases. Hotels and motels are usually protected by state laws limiting liability to a small amount—and then only if the property is put in the hotel safe. Common carriers, such as railroads or trucking companies, are held to a high standard of care. They are generally liable for all loss or damage, unless caused by improper packing or an act of God, such as lightning, a flood, or a hurricane.

Liens. Repairmen, hotelkeepers, and others have a lien on goods in their possession; they can keep them until their bill is paid. If you want your property back, you have no choice but to pay—or go to court. (If you are overcharged, consider suing in small claims court—see page 157.)

Ideas as property. You cannot "own" an idea. If you have a business idea you think is worth money, do not divulge it to anyone unless you get an agreement to pay for its use, or to keep it confidential.

Copyrights protect writing, music, works of art, and computer programs. What is protected is not the idea, but the form in which it is expressed. The copyright belongs to the producer of the work (or to his employer, if the work was done for hire). Copyrights can be registered, but need not be.

Patents are issued by the U.S. Patent Office to protect inventors. No one else may copy or manufacture the invention for a period of years. There is an exception, however. The inventor's employer may own the invention or have rights in it if it was invented during the course of employment.

Trademarks are names, designs, or slogans associated with a company or product; they may not be copied by competing companies. Trademarks may be registered or may simply arise from long use and association.

Installment sales. Sales of autos, furniture, and the like are often conditional sales. The buyer takes possession, but the seller remains legal owner until the goods are paid for. He can repossess the goods (if this can be accomplished without violence) or get them back from third parties if the buyer has sold or transferred them.

Watch out for this trap. An installment buyer usually signs a promissory note for the amount due. If a merchant sells the note to a finance company, the buyer will find himself in debt to the finance company even if the goods are defective or worthless. The finance company is a "holder in due course," not responsible for the condition of the goods. Many states have modified this rule. If you find yourself in this spot, talk to a lawyer or consumers' rights agency.

Your car. Legally, buying a car is no different from buying any other consumer product, but mistakes can be more costly. (For the law of conditional sales, see page 159; for the law of warranty, see page 156.) Be sure to read the warranty you get with your car. It tells you what rights you have if anything goes wrong.

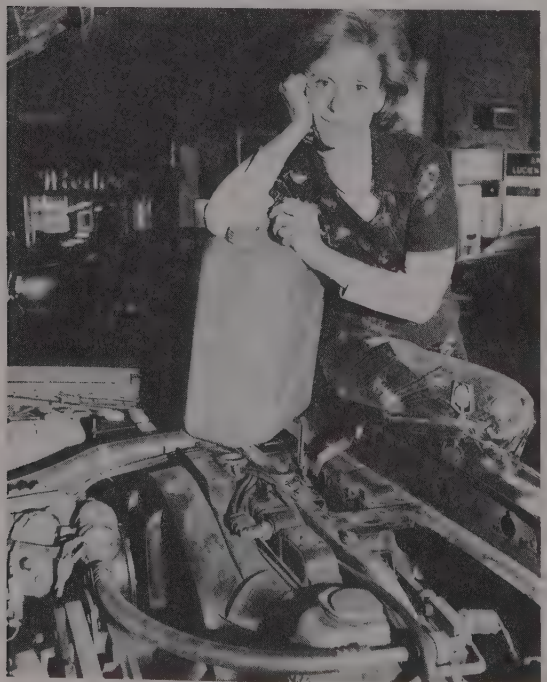
"Lemon" laws. Many states have laws, stronger than the federal law, protecting consumers who buy cars that turn sour. The laws vary, but most work like this: If, within a year (or the warranty period, if less than a year), the dealer or manufacturer has been unable to repair a defect after four tries, or if the car has been out of commission for 30 days or more, the buyer is entitled to a new car or his money back.

Used cars. If you buy from a used car dealer, you are probably buying at your own risk, except for whatever warranty the dealer may give you. This holds even more so when you buy from a private party, unless you can show that you were defrauded.

Registration. A dealer will probably handle the registration of the car. If you buy privately, you may have to handle it yourself, and you may have to pay a sales tax to get the car registered. Contact your local motor vehicle bureau.

Insurance. Most states require car owners to carry liability insurance to cover any claims arising from auto accidents. Other types of insurance, such as fire, theft, or collision, are not required. You can buy them or not, as you choose.

If your new car does not work properly, you may be able, under the laws of your state, to get another car or your money back.



Accidents. More lawsuits arise from auto accidents than from any other single cause. If you are involved in one, notify your insurance company immediately. The company will handle any claim against you, provide a lawyer if you are sued, and pay any judgment. If the judgment is for more than your insurance coverage, you are liable for the balance. You are required to cooperate with the insurance company in the defense of the case.

If you are injured. You may wish to make a claim for personal injuries or property damage. Write to the owner or driver of the other car, stating that you are making a claim, and asking him to turn it over to his insurance company, which will probably contact you. Do not give the opposing insurance company any written statement about the accident; it can be used against you. If you do not have a lawyer, you will have to communicate the nature of your claim and provide evidence, such as doctors' reports and repair bills. Do not give more evidence than is necessary, and never make any admissions. (If you have a lawyer, he will handle all this; it would be improper for the other side to contact you personally.)

Should you get a lawyer? A lawyer can probably get more than you can from the insurance company, but he will take part of it for his fee. Most accident cases are on a contingent fee basis. The lawyer gets nothing if you lose; but if you win he gets a percentage, which may run from a third to a half. It may even be more for small claims, as the lawyer may have to do as much paperwork in a small case as a large one. If the percentage seems too high, you might try to settle the claim yourself. You can call in a lawyer later, if necessary.

Evaluating a claim. You are entitled to be paid for actual losses, such as lost wages, repair bills, and medical costs (even if paid by insurance). These are called special damages. You are also entitled to damages for pain and suffering. As a general rule, a settlement should run from two to four times the amount of special damages. If there is doubt as to who was at fault in the accident, the settlement may be less. If there are permanent injuries, it will be much more, since future losses, expenses, and pain and suffering must be taken into account.

The law of negligence. Except in states with no-fault insurance, you can recover damages only from a person who has caused an accident through negligence (carelessness). Negligence means the failure to use the ordinary care that could be expected of a reasonable person. Violation of the traffic laws is evidence of negligence, but a driver may be negligent without violating any law.

Who may recover? In some states, the injured person may not recover damages if he has also been guilty of negligence, even in the slightest degree. This is called contributory negligence. Other states follow a rule of comparative negligence. The injured party can recover, but the amount he gets will be reduced in proportion to the extent he was at fault for the accident. A jury, for example, might find that the injured party was 20 percent responsible, and reduce his damages by that percentage.

Owner's liability. The driver is liable for his negligence. Under traditional law, the owner of the vehicle was liable only if the driver was his employee or was acting on the owner's behalf. In some states, it was presumed that any member of the owner's family was acting on his behalf (family purpose rule).

Many states now hold the owner responsible whenever the car is being driven with his consent.

Uninsured motorist laws. Many states have passed laws and established funds to pay persons injured by stolen cars, cars that do not carry insurance, and hit-and-run drivers who cannot be identified.

Who can sue? One spouse cannot sue the other for negligence. A minor child is usually not allowed to sue a parent for negligence. Some states allow a child to sue if the parent does not have custody.

Some states have "guest statutes" that ban a guest in an automobile from suing the owner. The guest can, of course, sue the driver of the other car.

No-fault insurance

A growing number of states are adopting no-fault insurance laws, under which persons injured in auto accidents are paid for their economic losses no matter who was at fault, including lost wages and out-of-pocket medical expenses (not covered by medical insurance). Under this system, you apply to your own insurance company for payment instead of suing the other driver. Passengers in your car also apply to your company. Injured pedestrians apply to the company carrying insurance on the car that hit them.

Lawsuits are still possible. In serious cases, you can also sue the other driver for damages, including pain and suffering. A serious case is one involving death or permanent injury, or medical expenses above a threshold amount, which is set by state law.

A good idea? Advocates of no-fault insurance claim that it speeds payments, avoids lawsuits, and cuts the cost of insurance. Some claimants receive smaller amounts than under the old system, but they save the cost of a lawyer.

What to do if you are involved in an accident

1. Get help	First of all, get medical help for anyone who is injured. If the accident is at all serious, call the police.
2. Exchange information	Exchange information with the other driver. Get his name, address, phone number, license number, and the make and license number of his car. If the driver does not own the car, get the owner's name, address, and phone number. Do not admit you were at fault. Do not get into any argument about who was at fault. Stay calm and simply exchange information.
3. Get evidence	Get names, addresses, and phone numbers of passengers and witnesses. If the police come to the scene, get the officers' names and badge numbers, and the address and phone number of their station. If you have a camera with you, take pictures of the scene. Otherwise, get photographs as soon after the accident as possible. Write down the details of the accident as soon as you get the chance, while you still remember them clearly. Include all details, such as the weather, time of day, and visibility.
4. Give notice	All states require a report to the police if anyone was injured. It is also required for property damage beyond a certain amount, set by state law. If in doubt, play it safe and file a report. Notify your insurance company as soon as you possibly can. Failure to report, or unnecessary delay, could jeopardize your insurance coverage.

Injuries and damages

Property owners must exercise reasonable care that customers or guests are not injured on their property.

A wrongful act that injures another person or his property is called a tort. Torts are classified as intentional or negligent. Auto accidents are the most common examples of negligent tort; another is malpractice by doctors, lawyers, or other professionals.

Property owners' liability. Many lawsuits arise over injuries on someone else's property; for example, someone trips and falls. Whether the property owner is liable may depend on who is injured. Here are the rules:

- Invitees are invited on the premises for business purposes; an example is customers in a store. The owner owes them a duty of reasonable care and is liable for any negligence.
- Licensees are persons allowed on the premises who are not business invitees. Social guests generally fall into this category. Licensees are on the premises at their own risk, but owners are under a duty to warn of hidden dangers, such as a loose floorboard.
- Trespassers have no right on the premises, and owners owe them no duty except to refrain from intentional harm. However, if the trespassers are children, and the owner knows that some building, structure, condition, or object on the property is likely to attract children, he may be held liable for any failure to exercise reasonable care.

Intentional torts. The word "intentional" does not necessarily imply an intention to hurt anyone. For example, if you slap someone on the back, thinking he is an old friend, and he turns out to be a stranger with a heart condition, you are liable for any damage.

Intention to harm (malice) is necessary to recover punitive damages. Punitive damages, over and above any actual damages, may be awarded to punish the wrongdoer and deter him (and others) from repeating the wrongful act.

Assault and battery. Assault is a threat of violence that puts someone in fear of bodily harm. Battery is the actual physical contact. Either (or both) is grounds for a lawsuit.

Self-defense is the only legal excuse. Insults or provocative language do not excuse assault and battery; but the jury may consider them in awarding damages.

Illegal confinement. This term includes any interference with personal liberty, including false arrest, false imprisonment, or any detention by physical barriers, force, or the threat of force. Normally, no one may be detained against his will. But most states permit shopkeepers and others to detain persons suspected of theft, provided they have reasonable grounds for suspicion and do not use excessive force or make unnecessary false public accusations.

Private citizens who make citizen's arrests do so at their own risk. If the arrested person is released or acquitted, he may sue. (For police arrests, see pages 167-168.)

Defamation of character. Defamation is the communication of false statements that injure the reputation of a living person. False statements about the dead, or about groups in general, are not defamation, no matter how offensive.

Libel is written defamation; slander is spoken defamation. Traditionally, libel was more serious, as the written word can be more widely circulated. Radio and TV have made the distinction less important. Pictures or other communications may be defamatory, as well as words.

A statement is automatically defamatory if it accuses a person of crime, immoral or unethical conduct, loathsome disease, unfitness for one's trade or profession, or unchastity (if female). Even if there is no financial damage, a person may sue to vindicate his reputation. For other statements, a person must show in what way they were defamatory and what damages were suffered.

Publication. To be defamatory, a statement must be communicated to a third person; private insults do not count. But communication to even one other person is enough to constitute publication. Anyone who repeats or republishes a defamation also commits defamation.

Defenses. If you are sued for defamation, there are several ways to defend yourself.

- By showing the statement was true.
- By proving the person gave consent to the statement.
- By showing the statement was fair comment on a matter of public interest. (A fair comment is one based on fact, or an honest expression of belief or opinion, and not made from malice or dishonorable motives.)
- By showing you had a privilege to make the statement. Any statement is absolutely privileged if made between husband and wife, or if made in court, legislative, or other government proceedings.

There is also a qualified privilege for statements by an employer who is asked about an employee, and for statements by newspapers or other media about public figures. But the privilege is lost if the statement was made with malice and with either a knowledge of its falsity or a reckless disregard for the truth.

Invasion of privacy. No one may use your name or picture for commercial or advertising purposes without your consent. You can sue for damages and can also get a court order stopping such use.

There has been much discussion of the right of privacy and the danger of computerized data banks that hold information about private lives and personal affairs. So far, however, there are few laws on the subject, except for laws prohibiting government employees from disclosing confidential information.

Trespass. Anybody who goes on someone else's land (or enters their buildings) without permission, or places or throws anything on the property, is a trespasser and can be sued for any damage to the property. Even if no damage is done, the owner may want to sue, to establish his right to keep the person off the property.

Conversion. Trespass applies to real property; the term conversion applies to personal property. Anyone who takes another's personal property or uses it without permission, or obtains it by fraud or trickery, or destroys or damages it, or disposes of it without permission by sale, gift, lease, or other means, has committed a conversion (meaning he "converted" the property to his own purposes). Even if someone has legal possession of another's property, he commits conversion if he damages it, loses it, gives it to someone else, or refuses to return it to its owner. The owner can sue for any damage to the property, or the full value, if it is lost or destroyed.

A lawsuit for conversion is a lawsuit for money. If the owner wants the actual property back, he may file a lawsuit known as replevin. This is appropriate for property that is unique in some way—such as a work of art or a family heirloom.

Jacqueline Onassis charged that her civil rights were violated when this photo, used in an ad, showed her look-alike in the background.

Emotional damages

Courts are reluctant to award damages when the only injury is emotional. There is too much chance of fraud or of exaggerated claims for hurt feelings. But where there has been actual physical injury, the court or jury may award additional damages for emotional harm. The physical injury proves the claim is not a fraud and that it involves more than hurt feelings.

Recent trends. Recently, there has been a trend toward allowing damages solely for emotional harm where it is obvious that the harm is real. For instance, a mother who watched her child run down by a car recovered emotional damages from the driver. Damages will also be awarded if they result from some illegal act.

There has also been a trend toward allowing damages for intentional infliction of emotional harm. Examples would include vicious harassment by bill collectors, and obscene phone calls.

A special case. Common carriers, such as railroads and bus lines, are obligated to provide passengers with courteous service. Therefore, they can be sued for insulting behavior on the part of their employees.

Earning a living

Your job. At one time, employers could hire, fire, and set the terms and conditions of work almost at will. About all an employee could do was quit or accept the conditions. Today, employees' rights are protected by federal and state laws, enforced by government agencies. Some laws give employees the right to sue on their own, but it is usually better to go to an agency and take advantage of its services. Some important laws and agencies are in the chart below.

Who are employees? If your boss has the right to control the manner and means by which you do your job, you are an employee. If not, you are an independent contractor. A good example of an independent contractor is your doctor; you hire him to cure your illness, but you do not tell him how to examine you or what medicine to prescribe. Some occupations are borderline cases; some commission salesmen are employees, some are not.

PLACEMENT SUPERVISOR: (Work-site) to provide vocational training to handicapped adults for job placement in area business & industry. Community work-site position working with handicapped people. Related Bachelor's Degree required. Prior experience in rehabilitation desirable. Reply Box 204 EOE, M/F.

An Equal Opportunity Employer will not discriminate when hiring on the grounds of race, age, sex, religion, or national origin.

Persons working at home may be employees: an example would be women hired by clothing manufacturers to do sewing. Some office workers now work at home, with a computer tie-in to the office.

Officers of a corporation are employees, but partners are not employees of the partnership.

Laws protecting employees rights and the agencies that enforce them

Union activity	Protected and regulated for nonsupervisory employees by National Labor Relations Act. Contact: National Labor Relations Board.
Racial, ethnic, or religious discrimination	Banned by Civil Rights Act of 1964. Contact: Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC).
Sex discrimination	Banned by Civil Rights Act of 1964. Contact: EEOC. Wage discrimination banned by Equal Pay Act. Contact: U.S. Labor Department, Wage and Hour Division.
Age discrimination	Banned, for persons aged 40 to 69, by the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Contact: U.S. Labor Department, Wage and Hour Division.
Safety and health	Occupational Safety and Health Administration sets workplace and industry standards and conducts inspections. Special laws apply for coal miners and other hazardous occupations.
Wages and salaries	Fair Labor Standards Act guarantees a minimum wage and time and a half for hours worked over 40 a week to most nonsupervisory employees. Contact: U.S. Labor Department, Wage and Hour Division. Consumer Credit Protection Act limits the amount of wages and salaries a creditor can seize for payment of a debt.
Veterans	Right to reemployment at previous job. Contact: Veterans Administration.
Child labor	Limited and restricted by Fair Labor Standards Act. Contact: U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division.
Miscellaneous	Some states provide stronger protection than federal laws. State laws also ban any discrimination against employees serving on jury duty. Many states ban or restrict the use of lie detector tests by employers. Contact: State Labor Department or Commission on Human Rights.

Employment is a contract. Except in union plants, the contract is usually oral, and either employer or employee can end it at will, with or without notice. But as long as the contract lasts, both parties must comply with its terms. Your employer, for example, cannot cut your salary for work already done.

Some courts have ruled that company manuals, employee handbooks, and the like are to be considered part of the contract; employees are entitled to all benefits described in them. Many companies, however, now put a specific statement in company publications reserving the right to make changes at any time.

Unlawful discharge. Traditionally, employers had an absolute right to fire at will, subject only to antidiscrimination laws and union contracts. Recent court decisions cast doubt on the old rule. Courts have awarded damages to employees dismissed for refusing to give false testimony at a hearing, and to employees dismissed for filing workers' compensation claims. Employees have sued when fired for opposing company practices or products they considered unethical or against public policy—such as products harmful to the environment. Some won, some lost. The law is changing in the direction of greater employee rights; but no one knows how far the change will go.

Union contracts. Employers must deal with unions representing a majority of workers in a bargaining unit, which may be the whole company, a division, or some group of employees. The National Labor Relations Board (or a state board) decides the proper bargaining unit and holds elections, if necessary. In a union shop, you must join the union or, at least, pay dues (except in a minority of states, which have right-to-work laws).

Wages and conditions of employment are set by a written collective bargaining agreement between company and union. Most contain grievance or arbitration procedures for resolving disputes. If you have a grievance or dispute with your employer, you must go through the union; if it decides not to press your claim, you have no remedy. There is an exception. The union owes a "duty of fair representation" to its members and cannot discriminate against any of them. If the union violates this duty, a member may be able to sue.

Union members have the right to run for union office, vote in union elections, and express their opinions on union matters—subject to reasonable regulations.

Employee benefits. Some benefits are required by law:

Social Security pays benefits to retired or disabled workers and their families, and families of deceased workers. It includes Medicare. (For details, see pages 95 and 128-130.)

Unemployment insurance pays benefits to workers laid off or unemployed through no fault of their own. They must be ready, willing, and able to work.

Disability insurance is required by a few states (including California, New York, and New Jersey). It is similar to unemployment insurance, but applies to those unable to work because of illness, not unemployment. Some companies carry disability insurance even when not required.

Workers' compensation pays medical bills and sick benefits to workers injured on the job.

Pensions are not required by law. But if an employer does have a pension system, it must comply with federal pension law, which sets minimum standards for eligibility, length of service, etc. It also requires that participants be given a summary of the plan, written in language the average man can understand, explaining all the rules and provisions of the plan. It is important to read the summary; if you have any questions, ask the company personnel people for an explanation.

Other benefits. Many companies and union contracts provide other fringe benefits, including highly important ones, such as life insurance and medical insurance. Be sure to learn your rights to these benefits, and find out what will happen if you leave the company or are laid off. How long will the insurance continue? Can you renew it on your own? How much will it cost?

Starting your own business. If you have the money to set up or buy a full-scale business, you undoubtedly have a lawyer. Many people, though, start out on a small scale, often working from their homes, sometimes as a sideline to their regular jobs. Many housewives do typing at home or run small telephone answering services. Here are some legal problems that may arise with a new business.

How to save on taxes. If you operate from your home, reserve part of the home exclusively for business. You can take a percentage of household costs as a home office business deduction, including heat, repairs, maintenance, utilities, depreciation, and rent.

Hobbies, such as photography or woodworking, can often be turned into profitable businesses. But the Internal Revenue Service will be suspicious, especially if you show a loss (as many new business do, at first). If you are just pursuing a hobby, you cannot deduct any losses or home office expenses. To prove you are really in business, you should operate in a businesslike fashion. Keep records of income and expenses. Get business cards. Put out a sign, or advertise. Comply with any licensing or registration laws. You do not have to be making a profit, but you must show that you are trying to. (Note: If you make a profit in two years out of five, the law presumes you are in business for profit.)

There may be tax advantages in hiring your spouse and children. Check with your accountant.

Hiring employees. You must comply with all labor laws. You must also withhold taxes and send them in to the government, including Social Security and unemployment. You must buy workers' compensation insurance.

If you need only part-time or occasional help, you can avoid these problems by using free-lance workers or independent contractors, such as public stenographers who do clerical work. Another way is to get your help from a temporary agency. The agency is the legal employer of the employees. You pay a fee to the agency, and the agency pays the employees.

Government regulations. You need a license for some occupations, especially those affecting public health or safety. If your business has anything to do with food or drink, you will certainly be subject to regulation and inspection. If you use a business name (Acme Plumbing Co.), you may have to register it somewhere. For information, contact local authorities or any business group.

Partnerships. Each partner acts as agent for the others. Each is personally liable for all debts of the business; this means that creditors can get at a partner's home, bank account, or other property—not just the property of the partnership. Partners share profits (or losses) in any way they agree on. It is best to have a written agreement, specifying what each partner is entitled to, how much money he is to invest, how much time he is to put in, and any other agreements between the partners.

Every partnership must have at least one general partner. It may also have limited partners, who put money in the partnership and are entitled to share in the profits, but who have no say in running the business. Limited partners are personally liable for partnership debts only to the extent of their investment.

Buying a franchise. A franchise is the right to use a name or trademark, or to manufacture or sell a product. Fast food chains like McDonald's are well-known examples. Local people own and operate the restau-

Should you form a corporation?

A corporation is a legal "person," separate and distinct from the stockholders who own it. Its great advantage is limited liability. Stockholders are not personally liable for corporate debts; they may lose their investment, but no more. (Small businesses, however, may find it difficult to get bank loans or credit unless officers or stockholders agree to be personally liable.)

Other advantages:

- Corporations can raise money by issuing stock; it is a lot easier to sell shares of stock than a percentage interest in a business.
- Corporations go on, even if individual stockholders die.
- Family corporations can be used to split income among family members to save on taxes.

A disadvantage is double taxation. Corporations pay income tax; then stockholders pay personal income tax when profits are distributed to them. On the other hand, if the corporation grows in value, so does the stock. And if a stockholder sells, he is taxed on only 40 percent of the profit.

Small corporations can avoid double taxation by electing to be taxed as if they were partnerships.

Forming a corporation is simple, legally. What you need more than a lawyer is a good accountant or businessman to advise you.

Doing business with relatives

Your brother has a great idea for a new business, so you stake him to the money to get started. A few months later, he dies in an auto accident. What happens now?

- If the money was a loan, you can get it back.
- If the money was a gift, you cannot get it back; you may even owe a gift tax.
- If the money was an investment, you might be considered your brother's partner, entitled to a share of any business profit. On the other hand, you might be liable for business debts.

You probably have nothing in writing, and you cannot remember exactly what was said. In fact, neither you nor your brother may even have thought about the possibilities. As a result, you may be faced with the trouble of a lawsuit, with no assurance of getting your money.

The moral is, when making a loan to a friend or relative, setting up a partnership, or doing anything with legal consequences, put it in writing, just as you would with a stranger. Aside from the possibility of a death, you never know when there may be a falling out in the family. Any lawyer can tell you that family disputes are more bitter than any other.

In addition, the Internal Revenue Service is always suspicious of family deals. If your taxes are ever audited, you may need proof of exactly what transpired.

rants, using the companies' names. Other common franchises are gas stations and automobile dealerships. The owner gets the benefit of the name, the advertising, and a lot of management and financial help. There is a drawback. The franchising company will retain a great deal of control.

Before signing any agreement, have it read by your lawyer. These are important questions to ask: How long will the franchise last? Is it permanent? Can I sell it? Can I lose it? If so, under what circumstances? Do I have to buy only from certain suppliers? What are the restrictions on my right to run the business?

Getting help. The U.S. Small Business Administration gives information, counseling, financial aid, and help in getting bank loans and government contracts. A special division aids minority businesses.

Criminal law and procedure

What is a crime? A felony is a serious crime, such as murder, manslaughter, rape, robbery, arson, burglary, or assault with a weapon. Lesser crimes are misdemeanors. Traffic violations or violations of local ordinances are not crimes. An attempt to commit a crime is itself a crime. An accessory (one who aids in a crime though not present when it is committed) is guilty of a crime.

No law may make an act a crime, if the act was not a crime when it was performed. Nor may penalties be increased retroactively.

Who can commit a crime? An insane person cannot commit a crime. Insane means "unable to understand the nature of his act, or unable to know right from wrong." Drunkenness or voluntary use of drugs is not insanity and is not a defense to crime; but a person whose mind is affected by drugs prescribed as medicine may be excused. Children under a specified age set by state law (usually 15 or 16) cannot commit a crime (juvenile delinquency is not a crime). Young people over that age may be treated as "youthful offenders," and their crime later expunged from the record if not repeated.

Defenses. Ignorance of the law is not a defense, but ignorance of the fact may be. For example, a person may take another's property believing it to be his own.

If a person reasonably believes himself to be in danger of death or bodily harm, he may use force and even kill another person in self-defense.

Arrests. A policeman may arrest a person who commits any crime in his presence. He may arrest on reasonable suspicion in cases of felony. Otherwise, he needs a warrant.

Searches. An officer may make a search in the course of a lawful arrest. He may search a person for weapons if he thinks it is necessary to ensure his own safety. He may search a vehicle if he has reasonable grounds to believe that it contains evidence of a crime and that it may be driven away before he can get a search warrant.

If your child is arrested

If you are ever unlucky enough to get a phone call informing you that your son or daughter has been arrested, what you do next can affect your child's whole future. So do not panic, however you may feel. Here is what to do:

- Get all the information you can, including the address of the police station, the names and badge numbers of the arresting officers and the desk sergeant, the district attorney's man in charge of the case, and when and where your child will be taken for arraignment (a court hearing to advise the defendant of the charges and set bail).
- Ask to talk to the desk sergeant and tell him you do not want your child questioned until you or your lawyer get there. Ask him to write this request down. If your child has medical or emotional problems requiring any special treatment, tell the desk sergeant. (As soon as you can, have the child's doctor call the police.)
- When you talk to the child, try to calm him down. If possible, one parent should keep the child on the phone while the other goes to the station. Tell the child to be courteous and polite to the police and not to antagonize them, but not to answer any questions.
- Do not argue or fight with the child at the station, no matter how you feel. It is important to show the police a good family relationship. Get the child out on bail; if there is any delay, try to have him held at the station house, not the county jail. Jails are not safe, and can be a harrowing experience for young people.
- Get a lawyer who is experienced at criminal law, and do what he says.

Answer no questions.
Get a lawyer.

In other cases, he must get a warrant. If a search is unlawful, nothing that is discovered can be admitted as evidence against the person searched.

Rights of accused persons. Anyone charged with a crime has the right to remain silent. He has the right to a lawyer and a speedy trial before a jury. He has the right to confront and cross-examine his accusers, and he is entitled to be considered innocent until proven guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt." Even if convicted, he may not be subjected to "cruel or unusual punishment."

When a person is arrested, he must be informed of his rights, including the right to a lawyer and the right to remain silent. Otherwise, any admission or confession may not be used as evidence against him. This rule applies only to arrests.

When the police are questioning witnesses or persons at the scene of a crime, they are not required to give any warning, and anything a person says at that time may be used against him.

What to do if you are arrested. There are two basic rules: (1) Do not answer questions, and (2) Get a lawyer. The more serious the charge, the more important these rules are. Most non-criminals have a strong urge to explain themselves. Resist the urge. You can always make a statement later after you have talked to your lawyer.

If you do say anything, tell the truth. Any lies will probably be found out, and no one will believe anything you say after that.

Criminal procedure

Crime committed, reported, investigated.

↓

Suspect arrested,

↓

Arraignment
(charges read, suspect pleads).

If "not guilty" → Bail is set.

- Suspect posts bail bond promising to appear for trial.
- Suspect does not post bail, is imprisoned awaiting trial.

→ Trial.

↓

Jury selected.
Prosecuting attorney outlines evidence, calls witnesses.
Defendant's attorney presents contrary evidence, calls witnesses.
Judge instructs jury on applicable law.
Jury brings in verdict.

- If "not guilty" → Suspect is released and may not be tried again on same evidence for same offense.
- If "guilty" → Suspect sentenced and held in custody.

How to find a lawyer

Do you need one? Many simple legal matters can be handled without a lawyer. Simple wills, uncontested divorces with no property or custody complications, personal bankruptcies, even settling simple estates often involve nothing more than filling out standard forms available at legal supply stores or from the courts. But be careful not to take legal advice from anyone who is not a lawyer.

Many books contain sample clauses for wills, contracts, leases, etc. You can find them at your library or the law library at the courthouse. Ask the librarian for help.

Here are other inexpensive ways to handle legal matters:

- Legal clinics handle routine matters for a small fee. Often the work is done by paralegals—nonlawyers trained in specific areas—under a lawyer's supervision.
- Prepaid legal services, a form of insurance like medical insurance, are provided by many employers and union contracts. If you need legal help, use a participating lawyer and the insurance pays the fee.
- Arbitration is used extensively in labor and commercial disputes, and now in consumer and housing disputes. Arbitration is like an informal court hearing, and the arbitrator's decision is binding. Usually, both sides must agree, in advance, to arbitrate the dispute.

Civil procedure

Plaintiff discovers or determines he has been injured or cheated by defendant; hires lawyer.

↓

Lawyer notifies defendant, discusses claim with defendant or his lawyer.

→ Out-of-court settlement.

↓ No settlement offered.

↓

Plaintiff files suit.

↓

Court calls hearing, issues summons to defendant.

→ If defendant does not appear or respond. → Default judgment in favor of plaintiff.

↓ Defendant responds.

→ Negotiates settlement before hearing.

↓ Asks judge to dismiss (for lack of legal remedy).

→ Judge dismisses case.

↓ Judge refuses to dismiss.

↓

Discovery: both parties investigate evidence.

↓

← Out-of-court settlement. ← Pretrial hearing: judge—lawyers.

↓

Identify areas of agreement.

↓

Case goes to trial before judge or judge and jury.

↓

Judge or jury find for plaintiff or defendant, sometimes determine penalties, damages. Court decision is enforceable by law.

If you do need a lawyer, look for someone with experience in your type of case. Many lawyers specialize, particularly in the fields of criminal law, accident and negligence law, domestic relations law, real estate law, tax law, and various kinds of business law. If you do not know any lawyers, here are some people to ask:

- Friends who have had a similar legal problem.
- Your boss, on business matters.
- Your union, on employment matters or questions of your entitlement to benefits.
- Your clergyman, or a social worker, on family matters, divorce, child custody, and so on.
- Your accountant or banker on financial, tax, or inheritance matters.
- Your doctor on injury cases. He has probably been called to testify, and may know a good lawyer.
- People who work at the courthouse. They see the lawyers in action.
- Civic or community groups, or groups like the American Association of Retired People, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, or women's groups.

Interviewing a lawyer. You do not have to hire the first lawyer you talk to; you can shop around. Never be reluctant to talk about fees; you are the one who pays them. There are various ways to set fees:

- Contingent fees, in accident cases (see page 160).
- Statutory fees may be set by law. For instance, workers' compensation laws may limit the lawyer's fee.
- Flat fees are suitable for cases where it is known in advance just what has to be done. The drawback is that the lawyer is not likely to put in extra time.
- Hourly fees depend on how much time the lawyer puts in. That sounds fair, but there is a danger: the longer the case drags on, the higher the fee, so your lawyer may be in no hurry to get anything done. Put a limit, in advance, on how much you can afford to pay.

Other factors affecting fees are the difficulty of the case, the amount of money involved, the skill and experience of the lawyer, and the customary fee charged in your community. (Local bar associations used to set minimum fee schedules. No lawyer who was a member could charge less. The practice has been banned by the U.S. Supreme Court as illegal price-fixing. Unfortunately, it still goes on, though not openly.)

What is a retainer? When you hire a lawyer, you make a down payment on the fee, called a retainer, which binds the lawyer to act in your interests and to accept no business that conflicts with your interests. You should have a written payment schedule, and insist that all bills show just what services were performed, especially if you are paying by the hour.

Working with your lawyer. You are the boss. You make all final decisions, such as whether to settle, how much to offer or to accept, whether to appeal, etc. But it would be foolish to try to dictate strategy or day-to-day handling of the case. Your lawyer knows more about it than you do, and the best course, almost always, is to follow his advice. You should, however, insist on being kept informed on a regular basis. Lawyers, like everybody else, tend to put things off, and sometimes need prodding. Legal matters take a long time anyway; you do not want any additional unnecessary delays.

You can dismiss your lawyer at any time. Usually, it is not a good idea unless he totally mishandles the case.

Usually lawyers charge what is customary in their communities. But if you cannot afford a lawyer, consult a Legal Aid attorney.

LEGAL CLINIC

FEE SCHEDULE

Consultation	$ 20
Matrimonial (uncontested)
Divorce	150
Annulment	250
Separation Agreement (simple)	95
Adoption	210
Name Change	95
Service of Papers (if necessary)	25
All of the above if contested	35 per hour
Personal Bankruptcy (uncontested, limited assets)	195
Wills and Estates
Individual (simple)	60
Husband and Wife (separate wills)	90
Standard Trust for Children	65
Filing for Probate	150
Incorporation	175
Real Estate

You have to pay him for work already done, and you will have to pay a new lawyer as well. If a case is already on trial, changing lawyers can make a bad impression on a judge or jury.

Cooperate with your lawyer. Do not lie or conceal anything from him. The more damaging the information, the more the lawyer needs to know it. Anything you tell your lawyer is absolutely confidential. He is not allowed to tell anyone else, even if he wants to; the same rule applies to his employees.

Do not try to decide what is important and what is not. That is what you hire a lawyer for. There is no way that he can win a case if the other side comes up with evidence he knows nothing about. This advice is not limited to lawsuits. A lawyer who is drawing a will or a contract has to understand the entire situation. Most lawsuits about the meaning of legal documents arise because something has been left out, or some aspect of the situation has not been covered.

How to complain. You can file a complaint with the bar committee, which can take disciplinary action or even recommend disbarment. If your lawyer has actually stolen or misappropriated your money, you can file a criminal complaint. (Lawyers are supposed to keep clients' money separate from their own; it is entirely improper to mingle the funds.)

You can also sue for malpractice, which means failure to exercise the reasonable care expected of a professional. Making an error of judgment would not be malpractice; but failure to know the elementary principles of law would. So would a failure to file a lawsuit on time, thereby costing the client the right to sue.

Where to go if you cannot afford a lawyer

The Legal Aid Society gives free legal help to those who cannot afford to pay. It does not handle divorces or criminal cases.

Lawyers referral services of local bar associations do not offer free aid, but they may refer you to a lawyer who bases his charges on what the client can afford.

The Legal Services Corporation, federally funded, provides legal help to poor people. Neighborhood Justice Centers try to settle disputes without lawyers.

Government agencies, such as consumer agencies, human rights commissions, and labor departments, will bring legal actions on behalf of people who file complaints.

Law schools sometimes run legal clinics staffed by law students. If not, the school can give you information.

Civil rights groups, such as the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and the American Civil Liberties Union, may handle a case or refer you to someone who can help.

Private organizations, such as landlords' and tenants' groups, trade associations, business groups, and labor unions, may provide legal services for their members.

Questions to ask before hiring a lawyer

Do you handle cases like mine? Ask the lawyer about some of them. How did they come out? How long did they take? What were the costs? Were there any special problems?

Will you actually do the work? If the lawyer's secretary or staff does the work, will the bill be reduced? You do not want to pay high professional rates for a clerk filling out a standard form.

What are your fee arrangements and billing practices? Some lawyers, for instance, bill by the quarter-hour. If they make a two-minute phone call, they bill for the full quarter hour. A few phone calls and your bill starts to mount. You should also check on other costs that may be incurred: Xeroxing of documents, filing fees and other court costs, and the cost of taking depositions from witnesses.

About how long will the whole thing take? You want to know, first, what the total period of time will be, and second, how much time the lawyer will actually put in.

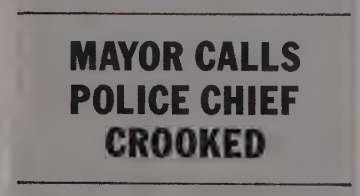
How closely do you work with clients? You want to be kept informed and have some say in what is being done.

What happens if something goes wrong or we disagree? Suppose you have a dispute over fees? If your lawyer mismanages, will he still expect to be paid? Will he agree to submit disputes to an impartial arbitrator other than the bar association? (Bar associations are notorious for favoring lawyers over clients.)

circumstantial evidence

Glossary

encroachment



libel

felony

ab initio. From the beginning.

abatement. Reduction or decrease.

accord and satisfaction. An agreement between two persons that settles a claim or lawsuit.

administrative law. The law regulating the procedure to be followed by government agencies.

adverse possession. Acquisition of ownership of land by continuous use for a long period of time, usually 20 years.

affidavit. A written statement made under oath.

agent. One who has authority to act for another (the principal). Acts or promises of the agent are binding on the principal.

alibi. Latin for "elsewhere." Alibi does not mean excuse. It means a person was somewhere else when a crime was committed.

alienate. To transfer ownership of property.

amicus curiae. Friend of the court. A person not a party in a case, but allowed to participate because of some indirect interest.

amortization. Payment of a debt over a period of time, usually a mortgage or bond.

appellant. A person who requests a higher court to review the decision of a lower court. The other party is called the appellee or respondent.

arraignment. Bringing a person charged with crime before a court to be advised of the charges against him.

assign. Transfer one's right or interest in something to another.

attachment. Seizure of property for payment of debt.

attestation. Witnessing the signature of a will or document.

attorney. One who has power to act for another.

bail. Money or property deposited in court to guarantee the appearance of a criminal defendant at his trial.

bailee. One in legal possession of another's property (has nothing to do with criminal bail; see page 159).

bench warrant. A court order for someone's arrest.

bequest. A gift of personal property in a will.

bill of exchange. A written order directing one person to pay a sum of money to another. The most common bill of exchange is a check, which directs a bank to pay a sum of money to the person named on the check.

bill of lading. A written contract for delivery of goods by freight.

bill of particulars. A written statement of the details of a claim in a lawsuit.

bill of sale. Written transfer of rights for personal property.

bona fide. In good faith; genuine.

breach of the peace. Disturbance of public order, usually by fighting.

brief. Written statement by a lawyer in support of his legal position in a case.

burden of proof. The obligation to produce evidence in support of allegations in a lawsuit. Whoever alleges a fact has the burden of proving it if it is disputed.

burglary. The crime of breaking into and entering property with intention to commit a felony.

capital. The money invested in a business, adjusted each year for the business's profits or losses.

capital crime. A crime punishable by death.

capital stock. The stock issued by a corporation.

causa mortis. "In contemplation of approaching death." Gifts made causa mortis are subject to special legal rules.

cause of action. The legal basis of a lawsuit, such as negligence, debt, breach of contract, or libel.

certiorari. A legal procedure by which a higher court reviews the decision of a lower one.

challenge. An objection to a juror. A juror may be challenged "for cause," if, for example, he is biased in favor of one side. In addition, each side has a certain number of peremptory challenges, for which no reason need be given.

chattel. An item or article of personal property.

chattel mortgage. A loan on which personal property is put up as security; for example, an auto loan or a loan on jewelry.

circumstantial evidence. Evidence from which a fact can be inferred; for example, a person's fingerprint is evidence of his presence at the place the fingerprint was found.

C.O.D. Cash on delivery. A type of sale in which the buyer pays when the goods are delivered to him.

codicil. An amendment to a will (see page 155).

collateral. Property pledged as security for a debt.

collateral relatives. Relatives other than direct ancestors or descendants.

common carrier. A transportation facility, such as a railroad or trucking company, in the business of transporting passengers or goods for a price.

common law. The body of law that has grown up over the centuries from custom and from the decisions of the courts—as opposed to statutory law, which is law passed by legislatures.

common law marriage. Marriage without a formal ceremony (see page 141).

commutation. Reduction in punishment, ordered by the governor or another authority.

complaint. A document in a lawsuit setting forth the claim that is being made.

condemnation. Taking of property by the government (see page 152).

condition. A provision in a contract which must be performed, or the contract loses its validity.

condonation. Forgiveness (see page 145).

consanguinity. Blood relationship.

consideration. See contract.

consortium. A person's right to the sex, services, and society of his or her spouse. Traditionally, a husband could sue for loss of consortium if his wife were injured. In many states today, a wife can sue for loss of consortium if her husband is injured.

conversion. Misappropriation or misuse of personal property.

convey. To transfer property in writing.

corpus delicti. Latin for "body of the crime." Proof that a crime was committed; it does not mean the body of the victim.

co-signer or co-maker. One who signs a note or other contract. An agreement by which one person promises to do something in return for the act or promise of another. Contracts usually arise from an offer by one person and acceptance by the other. An executory contract is one consisting of promises that have not yet been executed.

Contract

Consideration is the legal term for the act or promise of one side that induces the act or promise of the other. For example, I agree to sell you my watch for $100. My promise to sell the watch is the consideration for your promise to pay the $100, and vice versa.

A mere promise, without consideration, is not a contract and cannot be enforced. But a promise given for consideration is binding, even if the consideration is of no benefit to the promisor. Example: You promise to give your nephew $1000 if he does not smoke or drink until he is 21. If he performs his side of the bargain, you must give him the $1000 even though his act (not smoking or drinking) is of no material benefit to you.

Contracts may be written or oral, and may be implied from conduct or even silence. For example, if you go into a restaurant and eat a meal, you have to pay for it. If you let someone perform services for you knowing that he expects to be paid, you have to pay him. Implied contracts are sometimes called quasicontracts (quasi is Latin for "as if"). You accepted the benefit of another's action, so you must pay for it as if you had made a contract.

Some contracts, because of their importance, are required to be in writing or they will not be enforced by the courts. The most common are:

- Contracts for the sale of real property.
- Contracts which, by their terms, cannot be performed within one year.
- Contracts holding one responsible for the debt of another.
- Contracts to sell goods for more than a specified amount of money (the amount varies from state to state).

document and makes himself liable to pay if the original signer does not.

counterclaim. A claim made by the defendant in a lawsuit against the plaintiff.

covenant. A promise in a deed (see page 151).

curtesy. A widower's legal right to a share of the lands owned by his wife.

damages. Money awarded to compensate for injury to person or property.

decedent. A person who has died and whose estate is being settled.

decree. Written judgment of a court.

deed. A document transferring ownership of land.

defamation. A false statement that injures a person's reputation (see page 162).

default. Failure to appear for trial. The defaulting party loses unless he can show good reason for not appearing. Also refers to failure to perform a contract or failure to make payments when due—for example, defaulting on a mortgage.

defendant. The person who is being sued. In criminal cases, the person being tried for a crime.

demurrer. A denial by the defendant that there are any legal grounds for the lawsuit.

deposition. A written statement made under oath, generally for use in a lawsuit.

descent and distribution. The law governing the disposition of property of someone who dies without a will.

devise. To transfer real property by will.

dictum. A statement of law made by a judge, but not necessary to decide the case, and therefore not binding.

discovery. See pretrial procedure.

dishonor. To refuse to accept an obligation; for example, a bank dishonors a check, if it refuses to pay it.

dispossess. To evict a tenant from the premises he rents.

dividend. Money paid to stockholders of a corporation from the profits of the corporation.

domicile. A person's permanent place of residence.

donee. A person to whom a gift is made.

donor. A person who makes a gift.

double indemnity. A provision in an insurance policy under which the company must pay double the face amount if a person dies by accidental means.

double jeopardy. Trying a person more than once for the same crime; prohibited by the U.S. Constitution.

dower. The right of a widow to a share of her husband's lands.

draft. A written order directing one person to pay a sum of money to another. For example, a person may direct his bank to pay a sum of money to someone.

due process. The constitutional right not to be deprived of life, liberty, or property, except after fair legal proceedings.

duress. Force or threat of force to compel someone to do something against his will.

earnest money. A down payment to make a contract binding.

easement. A right to use the land of another (see page 152).

ejectment. A legal action to remove a person who is wrongfully occupying land.

embezzlement. The crime of misappropriating money by a person to whom it has been entrusted.

eminent domain. The right of the government to take private property for public purposes (see page 152).

encroachment. Something that extends on the land of another, such as part of a building or fence.

encumbrance. Any claim against property that diminishes its value, such as an unpaid mortgage or a lien.

endorsement. Writing one's name on the back of a check or promissory note to cash or transfer it. An endorser normally guarantees the check or note, and is liable if the original signer cannot pay.

enjoin. To direct someone to do something or refrain from doing something.

equity. Court action in a case where money damages are not enough. Examples of equity include a court order directing a person to stop the commission of a nuisance; and an order of specific performance directing a seller to go through with a contract to sell land.

equity of redemption. The right of a landowner to redeem his land by paying the mortgage at any time before it is foreclosed.

escheat. Return of property to the state when there is no one to inherit it.

escrow. Delivery of money or property to a neutral party, to be held until certain conditions are fulfilled.

estate. The property left by a person who has died. (The term may also refer to property in general or any interest in property.)

estoppel. Refusal to allow a person to change his statement or legal position if he has induced people to act on the basis of his previous statement or position.

ex parte. A legal action taken by one side without notice to the other.

ex post facto law. A law making an act a crime, although it was not a crime when it was done; prohibited by the U.S. Constitution.

executor. The person named in a will to handle and distribute an estate.

exemplary damages. Punitive damages.

extortion. The crime of obtaining money by threats.

extradition. Return of a fugitive from justice to the state in which he is wanted.

false arrest. Unlawful arrest (see page 162).

false imprisonment. Unlawful restraint (see page 162).

fee simple. Absolute ownership.

felony. A serious crime, usually one punishable by imprisonment in the state penitentiary.

fiduciary. One who holds or manages property for another and is held to a high standard of conduct because of his position of trust.

fixture. An item of personal property that becomes real property by being "affixed" to the realty, for example, a furnace.

F.O.B. Free on board. A type of sale in which the seller agrees to deliver the goods to a carrier, such as a railroad, for shipment to the buyer.

foreclosure. Court proceedings to take over property for failure to pay a mortgage.

forgery. The crime of fraudulently making or changing writing or a signature, with intent to deceive.

franchise. The right to vote. A form of business arrangement (see pages 166-167).

fraud. False statement or misrepresentation made to deceive someone into taking an action he would not have taken had he known the truth.

garnishment. Taking all or part of a person's salary in payment of a debt. The amount that can be taken is limited by law.

guaranty. A promise to perform some act or pay some debt on behalf of another if the other fails to perform or pay.

guardian. One legally entrusted with the duty of caring for the person or property of a minor or incompetent adult.

habeas corpus. Latin for "you have the body." A legal proceeding (called a "writ") commanding that a prisoner be brought before a court to decide whether he is legally being held.

hearsay evidence. Evidence of what someone else said, rather than what the witness knows.

heir. One who inherits the property of a person who dies.

holder in due course. A purchaser of a negotiable instrument in good faith without knowledge of any defect (see page 159).

holdover tenant. One who remains on the property after the lease has expired (see page 153).

holographic will. A will entirely in a person's own handwriting (see page 155).

homicide. The killing of one human being by another. "Justifiable" homicide is in self-defense.

impeach. Challenge the truthfulness of a witness. Bring charges against a public official to remove him from office.

implied. Understood from the circumstances, although not directly stated, as an implied promise or an implied contract.

indemnity. An insurance or other agreement guaranteeing payment if a person suffers a loss.

indenture. A formal written contract.

indictment. An accusation of crime made by a grand jury.

infant. A minor. In law, the term refers to any minor, not just a small child.

information. A written accusation of crime by a district attorney or prosecuting officer without a grand jury.

injunction. A court order directing a person to do something or to refrain from doing something.

inquest. Any inquiry by a court to determine a disputed fact. Most commonly, it refers to a coroner's inquest to discover the cause of death.

insolvency. Inability to meet one's debts as they come due.

interest. Any legal right or claim. The amount charged for the use of money.

interlocutory decree. A preliminary decree that does not become final until some further action is taken.

interrogatories. A set of written questions to be proposed to a witness in a pending lawsuit, or to the opposing party.

intestate. Without a will.

joint tenancy. A form of co-ownership (see page 151).

judgment. The decision of a court.

judicial notice. Recognition of certain facts by a court without the need for proof, such as historical events, scientific laws, or geographic facts.

jurisdiction. The authority of a court to decide a case. The jurisdiction of a court is generally set out in the law establishing the court.

jurisprudence. The study of law in general.

kidnapping. The crime of stealing and carrying away a human being.

laches. Excessive delay in asserting a legal right.

larceny. The crime of taking another's property.

leading question. A question that suggests the answer, such as, "Were you walking past Mr. Johnson's house at noon on January 12th?" The proper question would be, "Where were you at noon on January 12th?"

lease. A contract to rent.

legacy. A gift made in a will.

lessee. The tenant under a lease.

lessor. The owner or landlord under a lease.

letters of administration. A court document appointing someone to handle the estate of a person who died without a will.

letters testamentary. A court document authorizing the executor named in a will to take charge of the estate.

levy. A tax. A seizure of property by order of court to pay a judgment.

libel. Written defamation (see page 162).

lien. A claim or charge against property, such as an unpaid mortgage or other debt.

life estate. An interest in property during a person's lifetime ending upon the person's death. For example, a husband's will leaves his house to his wife for her lifetime, and then to his children.

life tenant. A person who owns a life estate in property.

liquidated damages. A specified sum of money agreed on beforehand as damages in case one party to a contract fails to perform.

lis pendens. A notice filed in a county office stating that a lawsuit is pending over a designated piece of real property. Anyone who purchases the property is bound by the result of the lawsuit.

living will. A document by which a person directs whether or not he is to be kept alive by artificial devices if he should fall into an irreversible coma. Living wills are not legally binding in most states, but people often prepare them to inform the family of their wishes.

majority. The age at which a person is considered an adult, with full legal rights and capacities.

malfeasance. Performing an act that is wrong; see also misfeasance.

malice. Intention to harm.

malicious mischief. Intentional destruction of property.

malicious prosecution. Knowingly bringing criminal charges that are false.

mandamus. A court order directing a public official to perform his official duty.

manslaughter. The crime of killing a human being without premeditation or malice aforethought.

mayhem. The crime of violently depriving a person of the use of a member, such as an arm, leg, or eye.

mechanic's lien. A claim against property by someone who has done work on it, as a repairman or a workman on a house.

misdemeanor. A crime less serious than a felony.

misfeasance. An act that is not wrong but is improperly performed; see also malfeasance.

mistrial. A trial that ends because of some procedural error, or because the jury cannot agree on a verdict.

moot question. A question that is undecided and subject to argument, but is not directly related to a case.

motion. An application to a court for a ruling, decision, or order, usually in connection with some pending case.

murder. The crime of killing a human being, with premeditation or malice aforethought.

naturalization. The process of becoming a citizen. Normally, an alien must reside in the United States for at least five years before he can apply for citizenship; but the period is shortened for aliens married to or adopted by American citizens. The alien must show that he is mentally and morally fit to become a citizen. Minor children of naturalized citizens also become citizens.

negligence. Failure to use reasonable care, thereby causing an injury to person or property (see pages 160-161).

negotiable instrument. A document, such as a check or promissory note, that can be endorsed and transferred from person to person, almost like cash. Whether an instrument is negotiable depends entirely on how it is worded.

nisi. Latin for "unless." A decree nisi is a court order to take effect on a specified date unless some action is taken in the meantime.

nolle pros. Short for nolle prosequi, a decision not to proceed with a prosecution or lawsuit.

nolo contendere. Latin for "I will not contest it." In criminal cases, a plea with the same effect as a plea of guilty, but without actually admitting guilt.

non compos mentis. Latin for "not of sound mind."

nonage. Underage; the period during which a person is a minor.

nonfeasance. Failure to perform an act required by law; for example, nonperformance of duties by a public official.

notary public. An official authorized to administer oaths, witness signatures, and certify to affidavits or other documents.

note. A written promise to pay.

novation. The making of a new contract or agreement to replace one that now exists.

nuncupative will. An oral will (see page 155).

oath. A promise to tell the truth, sworn on one's belief in a Supreme Being. An affirmation is a similar promise by those who have religious or other scruples against taking oaths.

obligee. A person to whom some contractual obligation is owed.

obligor. The person who owes an obligation.

option. The right to buy or sell property at a specified time for a specified price.

palimony. A term applied to lawsuits for payments similar to alimony, brought when an unmarried couple separates after living together. Courts have not recognized any right to such payments, but they have sometimes recognized a contractual right to payment for services rendered, as when a woman gives up her career and provides companionship, assistance, and business help to her male partner. (Note, however, that a contract to pay for sexual relations is against public policy and will not be enforced by a court.)

parol evidence. Oral evidence. The parol evidence rule is that a written document may not be changed or amended by oral testimony.

partition. A court order physically dividing property owned by co-owners who cannot agree on the use to be made of the property. Sometimes the property is sold and the proceeds divided among the owners.

party wall. A common wall shared by two adjoining buildings, providing support to both.

patent. The exclusive right to manufacture and sell an invention.

per capita. In the law of wills, equal division of property among all persons with the same relationship to the deceased. For example, if a will leaves property to grandchildren per capita, each grandchild gets an equal share.

per curiam. An opinion by the entire court, rather than an opinion written by one judge.

per stirpes. In the law of wills, division of property by groups rather than individuals. For example, if the deceased had a son who had two children, and a daughter who had three, the two children of the son would get half the property, and the three children of the daughter would get the other half.

perjury. The crime of making false statements under oath.

personal property. Any movable property; anything but land and buildings (see page 159).

petit jury. A jury that decides cases. A grand jury decides whether a person should be charged with a crime.

plaintiff. The person who brings a lawsuit.

plea bargaining. An agreement between a prosecutor and a criminal defendant by which the charge is reduced, or a lesser sentence agreed on, in return for the defendant's plea of guilty. Most plea bargaining is unavoidable, as it would be impossible to hold all the trials that would be necessary if most defendants did not plead guilty.

pleadings. The written documents in a lawsuit that state the position of the parties. The usual pleadings are a complaint by the plaintiff and an answer by the defendant. In some cases, further pleadings may be submitted by both sides.

pledge. Delivery of property to a creditor, as security for a debt.

polling the jury. Asking each juror individually for his verdict.

postmortem. Latin for "after death." Usually applied to the medical examination of a dead body to determine the cause of death.

power of attorney. A written authorization giving one person the power to act for another.

precedent. A previous court decision on a case similar to the one being tried.

prescription. A way of acquiring an interest in property by long and continuous use.

presumption. A rule requiring a judge or jury to draw certain conclusions from certain facts. For example, from the fact that a child is born to a married woman, the conclusion must be drawn that the child is legitimate. A conclusive presumption is one that cannot be disproven. Other presumptions can be overcome by evidence to the contrary.

pretrial procedure. The process, before a lawsuit comes to trial, of taking depositions, producing documents, conferring with the judge, etc. It is intended to help settle cases or, at least, to make sure that each party is aware of the issues.

prima facie case. Sufficient evidence to win a lawsuit, provided the other side cannot contradict or explain it.

privileged communication. A statement, made in private, which the other party is not allowed to divulge in court, and which cannot be used in evidence. The most common examples are communications between husband and wife, attorney and client, doctor and patient, priest and penitent.

probate. Proving a will. In a wider sense, all the proceedings relating to an estate (see page 156).

probation. In criminal law, a suspended sentence on condition of continued good behavior.

promissory note. A negotiable instrument consisting of a written, unconditional promise to pay a sum of money.

proof. Evidence that is believed by the judge or jury.

protest. A formal notice that a negotiable instrument, such as a check or promissory note, was presented for payment, and that payment was refused.

proximate cause. In the law of torts, an act that directly leads to and results in an injury.

proxy. One entitled to vote on behalf of another; usually applied to meetings of stockholders of a corporation. Proxy marriages were once recognized, but no longer.

public defender. A lawyer hired by the state to defend persons accused of crime who cannot afford their own lawyers.

publication. Making a statement public. In the law of defamation, telling one person constitutes publication.

punitive damages. Damages over and above actual damages, awarded to punish a wrongdoer and deter him from repeating the wrong (see page 162).

quantum meruit. Latin for "amount deserved." A sum of money awarded for services rendered when no specific sum is provided by contract.

quash. To annul or set aside.

quitclaim. A type of deed (see page 148).

quorum. The number of people who must be present at a meeting of a group in order to legally transact business.

rape. The crime of having sexual intercourse with a woman against her will. Statutory rape is the crime of having sexual intercourse with a minor below the age of consent.

ratification. Approval or confirmation of an act already done.

real property. Land and buildings.

rebuttal. Introduction of evidence to contradict a claim made in a lawsuit.

receiver. A person appointed by a court, in a lawsuit about property, to hold and manage the property at the court's direction.

recidivist. A repeater; an habitual criminal.

referee. A person appointed by a court to hear testimony, receive evidence, and report back to the court on his findings.

release. A document giving up a legal claim or right, usually when a case is settled. When an insurance company pays a claim, for example, it will require the claimant to sign a release.

remand. Send back a case from a higher court to a lower one for additional or corrective action.

replevin. A legal action for the return of property (see page 163).

reply. In a lawsuit, the plaintiff's written answer to a counterclaim by the defendant.

res ipsa loquitur. Latin for "the thing speaks for itself." A presumption of negligence, applied when there is no direct proof, but no other explanation makes sense. For example, if something falls from a window sill and injures a passerby, negligence will be presumed, even if it is impossible to prove what caused the accident.

res judicata. A legal or factual dispute that has already been decided by the judgment of a court, and that cannot be disputed any further.

respondent. See appellant.

restrictive endorsement. An endorsement when a check or other negotiable instrument is transferred for a specific purpose; for example, "for collection only," or "for deposit only."

retainer. A down payment to a lawyer to retain his services (see page 170).

retroactive. Relating backward in time, as a retroactive pay increase.

reversion. The return of property to its original owner after a trust or a gift for a period of years.

robbery. The crime of taking property by force or threat of force.

royalties. Payments (often a share of profits) to inventors, authors, songwriters, etc., or to owners of mineral or oil rights.

satisfaction piece. A document stating that a recorded mortgage has been paid.

seisin or seizin. The right to possession of real property.

service. Delivery of a summons to a defendant, informing him of a lawsuit against him.

setoff. A claim by the defendant against the plaintiff that reduces or eliminates the plaintiff's claim.

slander. Spoken defamation (see page 162).

specific performance. A court order to perform a contract for the sale of land (see page 149).

statute. A law passed by a legislative body, such as Congress.

statute of limitations. The time limit for bringing a lawsuit (or criminal prosecution). Different types of lawsuits have different limitation periods, but once the particular time limit has passed, no legal action may be taken.

stipulation. An agreement between parties to a lawsuit.

subornation of perjury. Persuading or bribing another to give false testimony.

subpoena. A document commanding a person to appear in court, either as a witness or as a party to a lawsuit.

subpoena duces tecum. A subpoena directing someone to produce documents or records in court.

substantive law. That part of the law that deals with legal rights rather than legal procedures; see also adjective law.

summary judgment. A court decision, made without a trial, when there are no facts in dispute.

summons. The first document in a lawsuit, advising the defendant that the lawsuit is being filed.

surety. One who promises to pay a debt if the original debtor fails to pay.

surrogate's court. A court that handles wills and estates.

tenancy by the entireties. A form of ownership by husband and wife (see pages 145, 151).

tenancy in common. A form of co-ownership (see page 151).

testament. A will.

testator. A person who has made a will or testament.

title. Evidence of one's right to property.

title search. A search of public records to trace the history of ownership of land.

tort. A wrongful act that injures another person (see page 162).

treason. The crime of waging war against the United States or aiding its enemies (treason is the only crime defined in the U.S. Constitution).

trespass. Any wrongful act affecting real property.

true bill. An indictment by a grand jury charging someone with a crime.

usury. Charging more than the legal rate of interest on a loan.

vendee. A purchaser.

vendor. A seller.

venue. The place where a trial is to be held.

verdict. The decision of a jury.

verification. An affidavit swearing that a writing or document is true.

voidable. Anything that can be made void; for example, a contract made by a minor is voidable at the option of the minor.

warrant. A legal document, signed by a judge, authorizing an arrest or a search.

Trust

trust. Money or property legally owned by one person (the trustee) for the benefit of another. The person who establishes the trust, and sets out its terms, conditions, and purposes, is called the grantor or settlor. The person entitled to the income is the income beneficiary. The person who gets the property when the trust comes to an end is the remainderman, except when the property is to be returned to the grantor.

A trust may be set up during the grantor's life (living trust) or by his will (testamentary trust). It may be revocable or irrevocable; in a revocable trust, the grantor reserves the right to cancel the trust and take back the property.

The trustee must manage the trust for the sole benefit of the beneficiaries. He may not make any profit for himself, directly or indirectly. He may, however, charge a fee for his services. Many financial institutions, such as banks, have special departments set up for the management of trusts.

Trusts may be set up for many purposes; here are some of the most common:

- To provide for minor children until they come of age.
- To provide for people who are not good at handling business or financial affairs.
- To provide a lifetime income for someone (such as yourself or your spouse) with the property eventually to revert to someone else (such as your children).
- To provide income to someone for a temporary period.
- To split income among family members in order to save on income taxes.
- To make gifts for charitable purposes.

For further reference

Ashley, Paul P.
You and Your Will McGraw-Hill

Brown, Robert N.
The Rights of Older Persons
Avon Books

Coughlin, George Gordon
Your Introduction to Law
Barnes & Noble Books

Kling, Samuel G.
The Complete Guide to Everyday Law
Jove Publications, Inc.

Lasson, Kenneth Representing Yourself
Farrar Straus Giroux

Ross, Martin J. and Steven, Jeffrey
Handbook of Everyday Law
Ballantine Books

Schimmerl, David and Fischer, Louis
Rights of Parents in the Education of Their Children
The National Committee for Citizens in Education

Schwartz, Robert
The Home Owner's Legal Guide
Collier Macmillan

Smith, Robert Ellis
Workrights
E.P. Dutton, Inc.

Improving Your Memory

- Observation 182
- Paying attention 183
- Getting organized 186
- Image formation 187
- Peg words 188
- Link method 190
- Everyday applications 192
- Names and faces 194
- Suggestions for students 196
- Appendix 198

When you learn something, you practice three skills: finding what you need to know, remembering what you find, and applying that information usefully and effectively. Everyone who attends school, from first grade through college, is drilled over and over in the skills of finding and applying useful information. But without the middle skill—remembering—the other two are short-lived at best. However, most schools do not teach memory skills; they teach you to learn by rote memory—by routine drill—without your necessarily understanding or thinking about the text material. And so, very soon, you tend to forget.

Good memory is not a trick, nor does it require great intellectual resources. It does require systematic mental organization, that is, concentration on what you need to remember. The rest is practice, and the rewards—remembering people, places, and things that you always used to forget—are self-sustaining.

Through the centuries, some of the world's greatest thinkers and philosophers have tried to promote systems of memory improvement. No one system ever caught on; each one turned out to be too personal for general application. In this century mnemonists—memory experts—have shied away from complicated personal systems in favor of simpler methods with everyday applications. You will learn such step-by-step methods in this chapter. "There is memory without learning," writes memory expert Harry Lorayne, "but there is no learning without memory."

Think about that for a moment. How can one say that he has learned something effectively if he cannot recall it when it is needed. This is true whether we are talking about a particular skill or a bit of knowledge or an entire procedure or a religion or a philosophy. True learning puts information, ideas, or systems of thought at one's fingertips, ready for immediate use when needed, ready for direct application, ready for explanation to others, in short, for whatever application is generally called for.

As a result, the process of learning can only be considered complete when you have stored in your memory the subject to be learned. It is for this reason that so much emphasis must be placed on training the memory, especially for those who customarily find difficulty in recalling things they think they have learned, in recalling tasks they must perform, in bringing to mind thoughts they seek to explain to others. The objective of memory training is to make complete the process of learning: finding, remembering, and applying knowledge.

Self-training. No one is born with a poor memory. As you grow up, you develop highly personal habits of awareness and observation. You choose to see and hear, touch and taste certain things, and you choose to ignore most others. Quite likely, you began as a child to organize your daily life around those things you needed most, or were pleased by, or had an interest in. Those meaningful things constitute your earliest memories. Happy childhoods tend to be remembered longer and more fully.

Normally, you pay attention to those things around you that are important, potentially rewarding, and potentially pleasurable, and you teach yourself to remember them. As a child, for instance, your mother may have given you a dime and made you memorize your own phone number ("Always call home if you get lost somewhere"). Now, as an adult, you probably have immediate recall of at least one phone number—your own—even though you may seldom use it. But the memory seed was planted long ago, and you trained yourself to always know your own phone number. It was a start.

Think of how effective your memory is. Besides recalling your telephone number whenever you wish—even though you may hardly ever use it—you also have stored within your memory an enormous number of other bits of information. But you cannot always remember everything you are sure you know. This chapter will help you overcome that problem and greatly improve your recall.

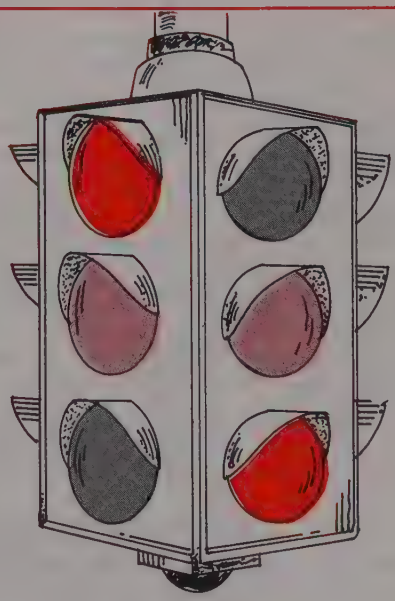
Because your memory is yours alone, you can profitably train yourself to improve what needs improvement. Check your memory out with this list of facts and numbers:

Wait a minute . . . it's on the tip of my tongue

(No peeking, please.
Answer everything from memory.)

1. What is your home phone number?
2. Your license plate number?
3. Your Social Security number?
4. Whose face is on the $20 bill?
5. What is your mother's birthday?
6. How many days are there in June?
7. How many pints are in a gallon?
8. Name the Great Lakes.
9. Name your U.S. congressman.
10. What is your father's birthday?
11. Name your first-grade teacher.
12. Diamond-shaped road signs always indicate what?
13. Top to bottom, name the three colors on a stop light.

A high-school diploma or a college degree cannot help you answer any of these questions. But the succeeding pages will help you remember all of them.



Observation

Memory—even short-term memory—can be affected by heightened emotions. A studio audience observing a staged struggle cannot be relied on to report just what happened.

How observant are you? How observant do you think you are? Most people assume they are competent eyewitnesses. The fact is, nearly everyone sees the same sequence of events differently.

Testing observation. TV talk show hosts once were fond of a stunt that included the studio audience in addition to the viewers at home. While the host chatted with his guest onstage, a scuffle would break out in the audience. Angry voices would be raised, stopping the onstage conversation. Members of the audience would look on. Suddenly, one of the combatants would whip out a handgun and shoot one or both of the other participants. Then all the troublemakers would scurry for the exits. Total elapsed time: about one minute.

Of course, the whole drama was staged, and there were no bullets. But the studio audience was taken by surprise. At this point, the TV host would choose four members of the audience and bring them onstage to describe what happened, who was involved, and what the perpetrators looked like. These eyewitness accounts turned out to be at odds. The audience members rarely agreed about anything—who started it, who shot whom, what they wore, what they said, even their sexes. Finally, the perpetrators—two or three actors—would reappear onstage and reenact the "crime," and the studio audience would see it all clearly for the first time.

The point of this exercise is that eyewitness testimony is too often distorted by shock and surprise. Every viewer at home, untouched by the heat of the moment, was a better witness to the crime than the studio audience that was part of it.

How well do we observe? For the most part, you see what you are accustomed to seeing. You glimpse something, and you have immediate recall of whatever you have trained yourself to expect to see. Your powers of observation, over the years, are restricted to self-imposed limits, to a field of vision that is relevant to your personal or professional life. The television audience was prepared to be entertained. When the unexpected happened, it was a blur.

Whenever there is a dramatic story on the TV news—a violent crime, a fire, or a natural disaster—you are likely to see an interview with a witness or a victim. "How do you feel?" the reporter asks. "Can you tell us what happened?"

The answer rarely makes any sense. The distraught victim may be in shock and is usually too confused to say anything coherent.

Then the same reporter interviews a fireman or a policeman who, with sirens wailing in the background, supplies a precise reconstruction of the tragedy without tears or emotion. The uniformed man is not hard-hearted or all-knowing. He is trained to make sense out of what seem to be chaotic events. You, too, can train yourself to observe with detachment what others might recoil from in horror or disgust. Better yet, you can learn to remember anything.

For a moment, think of something completely familiar—your wristwatch. Try to remember: Does it have a six on it? A Roman numeral VI? A dot? An empty space? If yours is a digital watch, how many lines are there in the number eight? Even if you answered correctly, chances are you had to double-check to make sure.

The tests and drills in these pages are designed to get you in the habit of memorizing by stages: observing, paying attention, organizing, forming images, and applying the methods of memory training. All these steps are part of the memory habit and, like most habits, this one can be maintained only through exercise.

Untrained memory is haphazard and unreliable. Trained memory brings all recollections to the surface. Try this. The following three exercises are designed to test your native, untrained memory. You may not do well at all, but take heart: in the pages that follow you will learn the techniques for memorizing lists, names, and numbers. And you can gauge your training progress. The tests will be repeated on pages 198-199.

Quick-recall tests

1. Study this 15-digit number for two minutes. Then try to duplicate it exactly on a piece of paper—without looking at the number here

238158649376914

2. Here are seven phone numbers, each corresponding to a local tradesman or professional. Study the list for six minutes, then copy the seven titles in any order. Finally, without looking, match the memorized numbers to the titles.

Doctor	762-5881	Lawyer	681-9558
Grocer	616-2053	Dentist	386-9156
Plumber	358-0854	Electrician	872-9647
Florist	784-3579

3. This is an apparently random list of twelve objects found in the home. Study it for just two minutes, then reconstruct the list from memory, in order.

couch, refrigerator, newspaper, clock, television, mirror, toaster, lamp, toilet, stove, carpet, window

Paying attention

There is nothing wrong with this story, but read it carefully:

> You are driving a bus that contains 50 passengers. At 57th Street, ten people get off and three get on. At 55th, seven get off and two get on. At 53rd and at 51st, four passengers get off each time; three get on at 53rd, no one at 51st. The bus breaks down at 51st, and eight passengers get crosstown transfers and leave. The bus starts up again and proceeds to 49th, where it breaks down once again. The remaining passengers ask for transfers and leave the bus.

Most of us, by paying strict attention, can probably answer several anticipated questions about this bus story (answers below). How many passengers finally got off? How many got transfers? How many stops did the bus make?

But hardly anyone can answer the most obvious question of all: What is the bus driver's name?

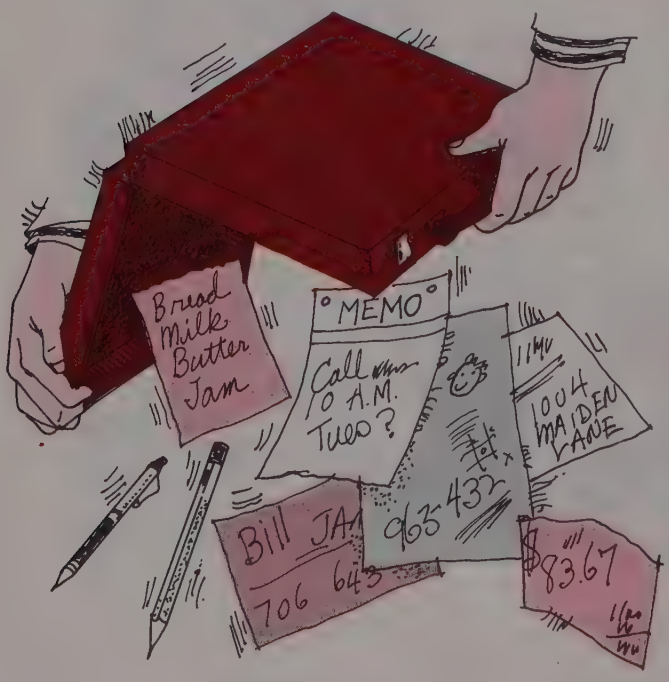
(Answers in order: 26, 34, 5)

Remember the very first word in the story? You. You drove the bus; your own name is the answer. Of course, this was a trick. By misdirection you were led to overlook that critical first word, and to pay close attention to everything else. More important, you tried hard to figure out that story; you were interested in all those bus riders, and you probably had a moving picture in your mind of that bus on its route. The building blocks of memory were all there: concentration plus attention plus image formation—minus misdirection.

Memory needs no notes. One early step in memory improvement is difficult: no more note-taking. If your interest is genuine, part of the drill is to throw away your pencil and paper. As you come to know new memory techniques, you must trust your ability to employ them. Constant list-making, note-taking, and memo-writing betray a lack of self-confidence in your memory and a lack of commitment to memory training. But once you start to remember names and numbers that you never remembered before, you will no longer need to stuff your wallet or pocketbook with little scraps of paper—half of whose messages and numbers make no sense to you when you finally read them.

Memory and high intelligence are not necessarily related. The absent-minded professor knows all there is to know about his academic specialty, but cannot remember to wear two socks of the same color. The professor focuses so hard on one thing that he forgets nearly everything else. At the other end of the spectrum, medical literature contains intriguing case histories of idiots savants—mentally defective people who can play classical piano instinctively, or immediately name the day of the week for any date in history. Like the professor, the idiot savant has a one-track mind: his concentration is perfectly focused and his interest is single-minded. And his memory is pure.

Paper slips—and our recollection of what they mean—are rapidly lost.



Most of us, in fact, possess a store of useless information that has come to be known as trivia. Boys often have a knack for memorizing the batting averages of hundreds of baseball players. Many women have an astonishing recall of what other women wore, or looked like, when last met. Gamblers stake huge sums on their memory of a single deck of cards. Whatever you are most interested in, you tend to remember best. Memory building, in large part, is a matter of broadening your interests.

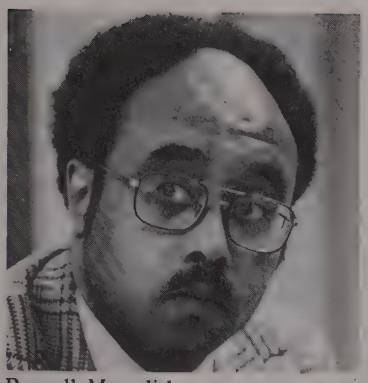
Names and faces. What do you want to remember better? Names and faces top the list for most people. Study the faces on the next page for a few minutes, then match them to the names. Cover up the names and see if you can put the right name to the right face. This is rote memorization; even if you can do the match-ups successfully, chances are that the achievement will be short-lived. As you learn better name/face memorization techniques, you may want to refer back to these names and faces and match the memorized names to the anonymous faces on page 195.

In a later section you will learn precise methods for memorizing names and faces. For now, as you study the page, try to isolate a single outstanding feature from each face. These are strangers, after all; trying to memorize an entire new countenance—plus eleven others—is too great a task. Focusing your attention on just one feature (nose, mouth, eyebrows, etc.) will serve your purpose best.

Some of the names may defy rote memorization. They may sound like nothing else you have ever heard, nor look like any word in English. But everyone's name—if you study it hard enough—can be manipulated in sound into something else that sticks in your mind. And the mental effort of that transformation has value in itself. When you take the time and trouble to turn O'Bradovich into Over the Bridge, you are not likely to forget that name soon.

For the time being, first names are less important than last names. Concentrate on a distinguishing facial feature, plus a last-name word association, and try to knit them together in your mind. (You can use the same technique later to remember first names, which usually are easier.) This exercise is really just a warm-up to test your capacity to memorize by rote. When you next come across these same names and faces on page 195, you will be much better equipped to remember them. No matter how good your rote memory powers may be, the gains from using them are fleeting. Trained memory lasts and lasts.

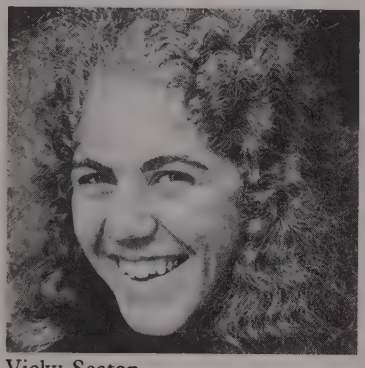
Vinnie Dodson



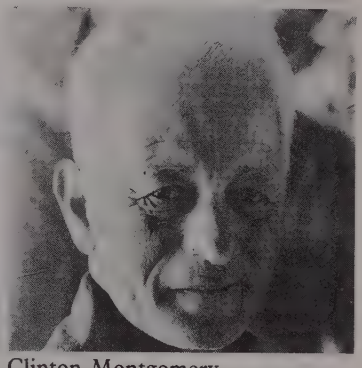
Russell Meredith

Eileen Murray

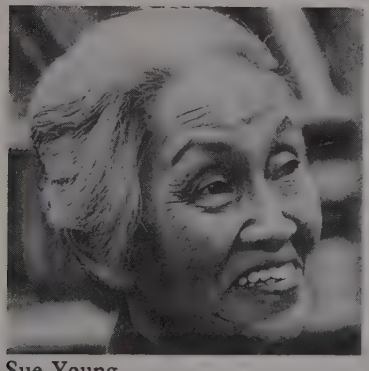
Samantha Kearns



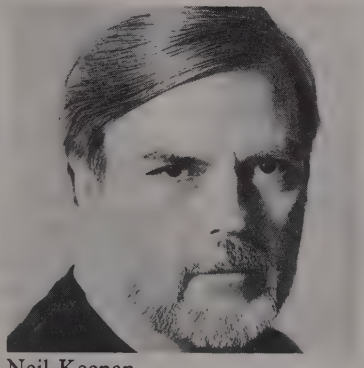
Vicky Seaton



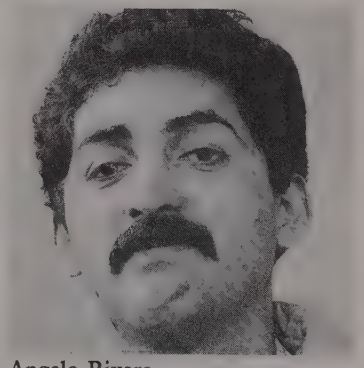
Clinton Montgomery



Sue Young



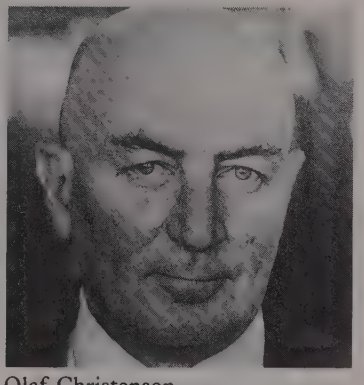
Neil Keenan



Angelo Rivera

Juan Sanchez

Judy Sommers



Olaf Christenson

Getting organized

Everyone has immediate memory, and almost anyone can get by with a functional short-term memory. But a good long-term memory requires conscious and systematic organizational skills. Foremost among these skills is a technique called chunking. Several items (or numbers) worth remembering are grouped together—chunked—for longer and easier recall. A list of nine seems unmanageable unless written down. But three chunks of three, properly organized, can be retained in your head.

Take a grocery shopping list, for instance. Say you need milk, cereal, coffee, lettuce, cheese, sugar, tomatoes, eggs, and celery. Now try to organize your list: three of the items are dairy products (milk, eggs, and cheese); three are dry foods (cereal, coffee, and sugar); and three are vegetables (lettuce, celery, and tomatoes).

Once in the supermarket, you really need only remember dairy (3), dry goods (3), and vegetables (3). Those cues will likely call to mind your specific items. (Similarly, the quantities you need do not have to clutter your mental list.) Of course, if you are thoroughly familiar with the store, you can chunk your purchases according to sections or aisles.

Chunking. Try the chunking principle on your next shopping expedition. Plan ahead in your mind. Group your purchases into categories, colors, things beginning with the same letter, or goods located in the same part of the store. Put them in chunks of three or four and they become infinitely more memorable—and manageable—than they were in one huge lump. Your list is organized, and so is your brain.

Chunking is made to order for numbers. Many numbers are too big to remember, and no wonder. Memory specialists say that the upper limit for long-term number retention is seven digits—and it is no coincidence that phone numbers are just that long. Nor is it coincidence that, when area codes came into everyday use, the extra three digits were traditionally separated from the original seven by parentheses. Three digits in parentheses happens to be a perfect example of a chunk, set neatly apart from the already memorized number.

Graphically, the memory advantage of chunking is quickly apparent. Consider a twelve-digit number:

4 9 2 3 5 7 1 6 8 2 4 7

Even in mathematical order—492 billion, and so on—it is too big to grasp, much less hold on to. But now try chunking it:

(492) (357) (168) (247).

Using acronyms

Suppose you are going to the store to buy peas, mustard, soda, artichokes, and tea. Reorder to s oda, t ea, a rtichokes, m ustard, and p eas:

STAMP

You have created a mnemonic.

Suddenly it becomes comprehensible: you may think of it as four area codes. If you need to know an absurdly long number—a charge account or bank account code, for instance—try using the chunking method. If the number does not break down into neat multiples of three, tack on a one- or two-digit prefix. With practice, and habit, chunking works.

Some useful facts have been imprinted on your memory bank in a peculiarly childish way, through rhymes and ditties that you learned in school or at home. They may be childish, but they save everyone a lot of time and trouble. You probably know these:

(calendar)	Thirty days hath September, April, June, and November . . .
(time change)	Spring forward, fall back
(spelling)	I before E, except after C, Or when sounded like A . . .
(treble clef)	*E*very *G*ood *B*oy *D*eserves *F*udge

Mnemonics. Each of these is an example of a mnemonic (nee-MON-ik): a learning aid, often a rhyme, that cues your conscious mind to recall some fact in your long-term memory bank. Some mnemonics are best left to serious memory experts, but many others (supplied in succeeding pages) are accessible to all learners. Each new technique represents a mnemonic progression from some previous level of memory training, and none involves parlor tricks or special intellectual gifts.

Every level of memory building will involve a sustained effort on your part: close observation, concentrated attention, and mental organization. Your progress may be shaky at first, slower than you like, but there will be nothing painful about it, and no one will grade your performance. Best of all, the reward will be considerable: never forgetting names and faces again, no more list-making and note-taking, and the sure self-knowledge that you are more fully aware of everything happening around you.

Image formation

Ridiculous associations can be an aid to memory. For example, you may visualize a dog-food sandwich to help remember dog food and bread.

Image formation, or imaging, is a cornerstone of memory building. You probably do it already, nearly every night, when you dream. Every time you dream, you indulge your natural capacity for forming images. In memory training you teach yourself to dream consciously, on purpose, with your eyes open, in order to make forgettable things memorable.

Any common object can be made memorable by mentally assigning three qualities to it: detail, color, and movement. Consider something you may frequently misplace. A key is a good example. It is small, dull and much like any other key. Now make your key special in your mind: gleaming, flashing gold in the light, with sharp teeth that might cut you if you are not careful. Next, imagine that this thing is alive and has a mind of its own—if you do not keep track of it, it is likely to jump up and lock you up. You might even give it a name. Once you see this key as somehow distinctive or dangerous, you will be unlikely to lose it again.

Paired images. Remembering two different things is much easier if you pair them in your mind, however improbably. Unpaired, they are readily forgotten. "Oh, and on the way back would you please pick up some dog food and some bread?" On your way home you may vaguely recall something—two things—you were supposed to get at the store, but you are unlikely to recall what they were. But if you had drawn this picture in your mind, you would not soon forget it: a dog-food sandwich, two slices of white bread enclosing three inches of golden brown canine chunks.

In making paired images, it is important to remember that logic, reality, even propriety must be discarded. The idea is to imprint on your mind a truly outrageous and colorful picture, one that takes imagination to come up with. At first this process, like learning to paint, will require time and thought, but soon enough the process will seem easy. In fact, most people find it fun. Image formation is a conscious investment in remembering. Having made that investment, you will be unlikely to give it up easily.

Most lists of things to remember contain more than two or three items. However, your mind picture can accommodate an extensive list, this one, for example:

1. culottes
2. tennis racket
3. rain hat
4. fur-topped boots
5. knee pads
6. bib overalls
7. swim goggles
8. windbreaker
9. ski gloves
10. duck-hunting whistle

Imagine yourself wearing or using all this gear at once, from top to bottom, from the inside out. Silly? Certainly, but not nearly as silly as it could have been—if half your list had been grocery items, for instance.

The primary trick in image formation is to gather everything together in one room, or hang everything on one person. Construct a situation in which each item belongs with another one, in which unrelated objects become related through the medium of your imagination. By seeing yourself equipped with all ten items in the list, you will be able to remember all ten. Imaging is a useful memory tool.

When trying to remember a long list of items, you might relate each to yourself. Find a way to wear or hold each item on your list.

Peg words

To prepare for the use of peg words in building memory, try to imagine that every number, 0 through 9, looks like a certain letter of the alphabet. Here is the version that memory experts use and memory students find most useful. It is sometimes called the number/consonant system or the letter-number alphabet:

Number	Letter/sound	Reason
0	z (or s)	zero begins with z
1	t (or d)	vertical stroke of a t looks like number 1
2	n	printed n has 2 downstrokes
3	m	printed m has 3 downstrokes
4	r	written-out 4 ends in r
5	l	your 5-fingered left hand, thumb out, forms an L
6	ch (j or g or sh)	turned-around j looks like a 6
7	k (or c)	European 7 looks like a k
8	f (or v)	written f looks like a skinny 8
9	p (or b)	mirror-image of p is a 9

Remember one phrase—TeN MoRe LoGiC FiBS—minus the vowels—and you will know 1 through 10. Now you are ready to work with peg words.

The letter-number alphabet, with its single-letter equivalent numbers, is not suitable for all numerical combinations, especially the long ones. The true memory pegs for all numbers are pictorial equivalents: 1 = t = a picture (in your mind) of a tie. Tie, of course, begins with t and can be tacked on to almost any word picture you can think up. Each effective pictorial equivalent, or peg, must be short, must begin with the correct letter, and must be readily transferable into picture form. You might think of 1 to 10 this way:

Tie (1) should be a loud necktie or bow tie.
Noah (2) is usually thought of as an old man in robes, with a flowing white beard.
Ma (3) can be your mind's-eye view of your own mother, or any other motherly person.
Rye (4) works well as a loaf of bread.
Law (5) is John Law, a policeman or sheriff.
Shoe (6) stands for a single shoe, preferably a large one.
Cow (7) is the dairy animal. (The hard c in cow is the same as phonetic k.)
Ivy (8) is the climbing vine, capable of growing on anything. (This is the only exception to the rule that peg words should begin with the correct letter, but ivy is easy to see in your mind and so is remembered easily.)
Bee (9) is the noisy insect.
Toes (10) combine 1 and 0—the t sound plus the z sound. They stand for your toes.

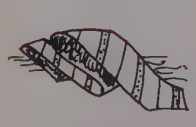
Peg words for 1–10: TeN MoRe LoGiC FiBS

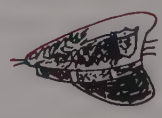


1 = Tie

2 = Noah

3 = Ma

4 = Rye



5 = Law

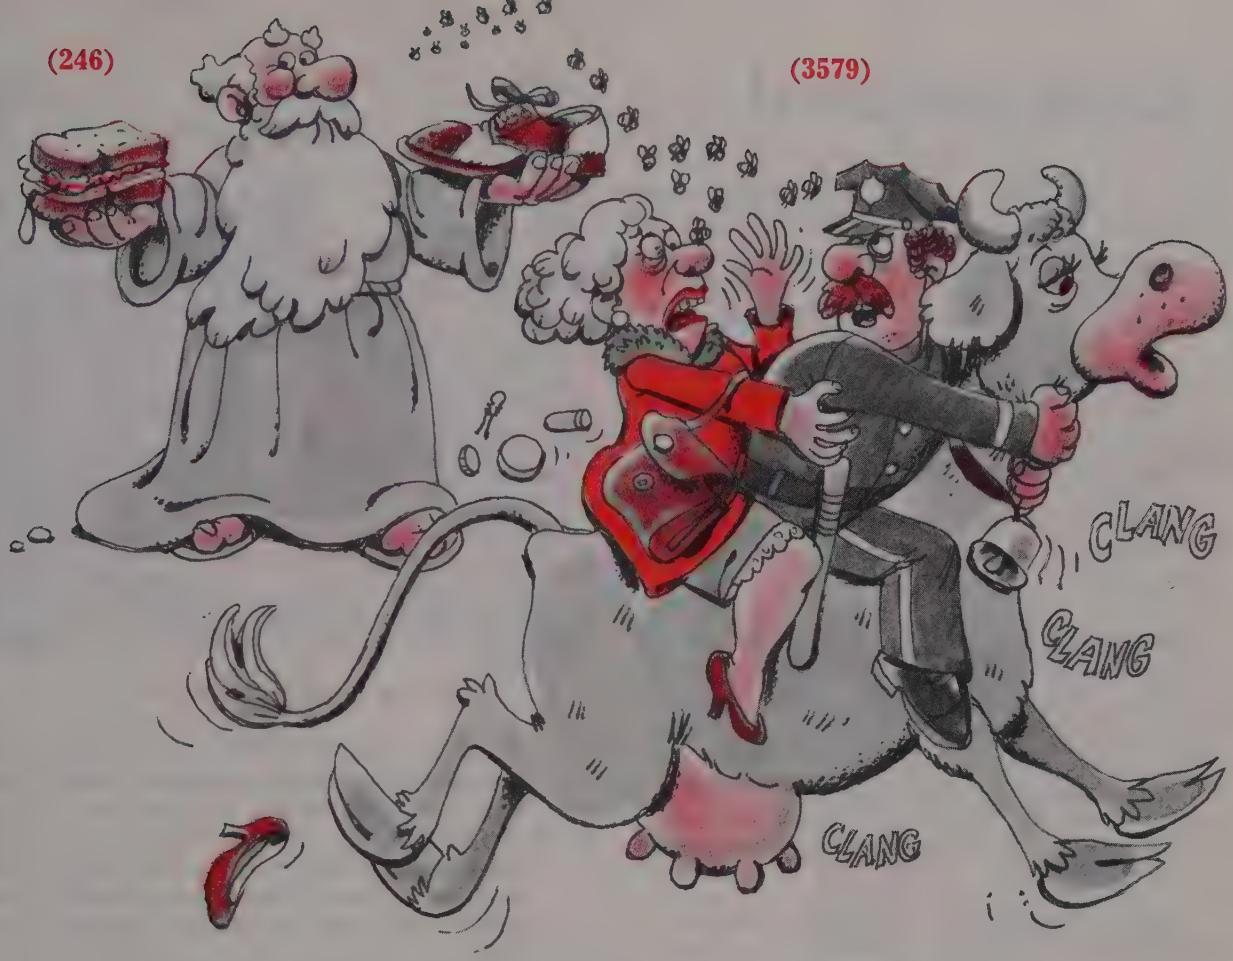
6 = Shoe

7 = Cow

8 = Ivy

9 = Bee

10 = Toes



It takes some doing to construct a picture such as this for a telephone number. But once it's done, you'll never forget the number.

The numbers 1 to 10 are enough to learn for now; they include all the basic peg sounds, peg words, and peg pictures. With them alone you can memorize any phone number and itemize any short list in your head. But first you need practice. At every reasonable opportunity, practice using these pegs with phone numbers and street addresses until every number you hear immediately sparks a picture in your mind. Then you can start stringing numbers together in multiples. Your word pictures will become murals. With them, you can start trying to memorize almost any complicated combination. But start modestly.

Peg words are substitutes for numbers. Because they are based on the letter-number alphabet, and because they are backed by pictorial equivalents, they are clearly superior to plain numbers as memory builders. (There are peg words for 11 to 100 also, listed in the Appendix, pages 198-199.) By using letter and picture substitutes for numbers, every new number takes on two- or three-dimensional significance in your mind's eye.

When you attempt to memorize a phone number, for example, 246-3579, using one-dimensional rote memory, you will usually forget it by the next day. This is because there is nothing memorable about that number. Its letter-number equivalent is a different story. The number 246-3579 becomes NoRwiCH MiLKuP, a country scene one can easily remember. Now consider one more version—the pictorial equivalent—of the same phone number:

(246) Picture old Noah (2), arms outstretched, with a ham on Rye (4) sandwich in one hand and a huge Shoe (6) in the other.

(3579) There goes your Ma (3) riding double with an Officer of the Law (5) on a Cow (7), galloping away from a swarm of Bees (9) in hot pursuit.

That is a picture. More importantly, it is a phone number you will not soon forget. Take your own phone number, fill in the right peg sounds and peg pictures, and see what you come up with. You will soon become good at using letter-number equivalents and peg words.

Link method

The hardest things to remember are those that lack logical association between the items. By contrast, for example, it is easy to remember the multiplication tables—the logic of 1 times 2, 1 times 3, etc. is apparent to all of us. When it comes to remembering to buy shoes, shirts, and soap, the association is missing.

Links are the mortar that holds individual memories together. Links make mental connections between unrelated objects, numbers, or items. Names of objects can be linked in two ways: by placing them one after another in a narrative, or by constructing new words from the first letters of those objects (using the initial method plus connecting vowels, as in NoRwiCH MiLKuP).

Initial method. For example, suppose you want to remember the sites of the last six Olympic Games. Beginning in 1964, they are Tokyo, Mexico City, Munich, Montreal, Moscow, and Los Angeles. You could invent a narrative—a travelogue—that took you to all those cities in order, but you need not do so. It would be better, because there are only six of them, to try the first-initial method. Here is how it might work:

Too (Tokyo)	MuCh (Mexico City)	M&MMs (Munich, Montreal, Moscow)	LAnguage (Los Angeles)

Many of us enjoy M & M candy, so now we can link together Too MuCh M&MMs LAnguage, not the greatest of thoughts but surely a fine story of someone enjoying candy. When you invent your own link phrase, you become the author of your own memory aid. The phrases are yours alone, and you will remember them.

Narrative method. The other kind of link association, the narrative method, requires all the imagination you can come up with. Nothing is too outrageous, if it helps you remember. As an example, take the nine-item grocery list used earlier (page 186):

milk, cheese, eggs, cereal, coffee, sugar, lettuce, tomatoes, celery

For the sake of demonstration, this is a short and easy list. With practice, the link narrative method will work equally well even for a much longer and more varied shopping list. First, put yourself in the center of the picture: everything that happens will be made to happen by you.

A trip to the supermarket

You are going—in your mind, of course—to the supermarket. You are on a mission of mercy. Some people, you have decided, need groceries more than you do. You commandeer nine shopping carts, tucked into one another, and make your way down the first aisle: Dairy. A young mother is trying to corral her two small youngsters who are sampling everything on the shelves.

"Need some milk?" you ask her. She nods. You hand each child a gallon jug of milk—nearly as big as they are—and lift the boys and the milk into the first of your shopping carts. The mother smiles and heads for the check-out counter.

Just then a burly young man comes by with about 15 packages of hamburger buns under each arm.

"*Cheese*burgers?" you ask. He nods, and you heap the second of your carts with dozens of prewrapped packages of assorted cheeses; the young man dumps his hamburger meat on top of it and is on his way, with thanks.

Across the aisle an old lady is painstakingly opening every cardboard egg carton in the display to check for breakage. "It would be easier to do that at home," you say pleasantly, and soon the old lady is pushing your third cart filled with 45 dozen eggs. You have made her day.

You come across a little girl in tears, vainly trying to rip open the bottom of a box of cereal to get at the prize. No problem: the young lady is packed off in your fourth cart with 24 boxes of cereal, calling out to her mother, "Mommy, I won!"

EGGS
EGGS
EGGS

Everyday applications

Even as a beginner in the use of memory systems, you can go a long way with the link method and your ten peg words. Links are used to memorize anything in sequence; pegs help you remember any kind of number, in or out of sequence. Pegs and links can be combined to memorize schedules and appointments.

Using links. Suppose one morning you have eight things to do: (1) phone the vet about your cat; (2) get the car washed; (3) make a deposit at the bank; (4) mail a package at the post office; (5) buy four items at the hardware store (light bulbs, extension cord, duplicate key, and catnip); (6) buy a watchband at the jeweler's; (7) pick up three food items at the convenience store; and (8) stop by a friend's house, where you left your umbrella.

Now for your links. Your movie for the day begins at breakfast, where you imagine yourself milking cows —one cow is sick, call the vet (1). As you get in your car, imagine that it is dripping wet and clean (2). See yourself driving up to the bank teller's drive-in window (3). Your bank deposit slip could be considered postage for your package, which it is time to mail (4). While you are at the post office, study the "Wanted" posters and imagine that you are pictured there as a burglar. You will need tools from the hardware store (5): light bulbs for bright ideas, an extension cord for second-story work, a skeleton key, and catnip. Right down the street from the hardware store is the jeweler's where you treat yourself to a new watchband (6). The rest is easy. You always pass the convenience store on your way home and you nearly always stop for something. Milk, bread, and eggs (7) are needed this time. So is your umbrella. It always rains when you do not have it. It is raining now—in your mental movie—so you stop at your friend's house to retrieve it (8). Eight errands and eight links, combining to fashion a chain of actions.

Using pegs. The other way to memorize this schedule/list is to peg each stop to its pictorial symbol. You might wear a Tie (1) to talk to the vet. Imagine your car being washed by Noah himself (2). Your Ma (3), wearing an eyeshade, might be the bank teller. Your parcel for mailing might be a loaf of Rye (4) bread. Your imaginary burglar's foray at the hardware store would be thwarted by the Law (5). Your Shoe (6) might be held together by a watchband. Your milk is custom-dispensed by a Cow (7). Finally, your umbrella is found to be upholstered with Ivy (8).

For a short list, the peg method permits a briefer scenario and seems to make more sense. But good sense and good memorability are not always the same. For most students of memory, the link method seems to yield more satisfaction.

Links and pegs

Two surefire ways to memorize the otherwise forgettable:

Link

Peg

Links and pegs in action

Phone numbers	Your task is, of course, very much simplified if you only want to memorize local numbers. You already know the prefix; just deal with the last four numbers. For simplicity, try to make a peg word from those final four numbers; 3819, for example, might become MuFf-Top, which prompts a picture of a fur-topped boot. Link the peg word to the face (or figure) of the person you want to call.
Historical dates	First get rid of the extraneous factors. Replace the names of months with their sequential numbers, 1 to 12. As for years, eliminate the first two century numbers; you already know what century you are dealing with. Thus Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, November 19, 1863, becomes 11 19 63, whose first (peg) initials form TaTTeD SHaM. Picture Mr. Lincoln tatting a sham—that is, stitching a pillowcase—while he tries to memorize the Gettysburg Address.
Playing cards	Think up your own peg words to represent all the cards in the deck, with 13 s words in the spade suit, 13 h words in hearts, 13 d words in diamonds, and 13 c words in clubs. Your own one-syllable pegs will be better than a ready-made set, because you will have to memorize them perfectly and practice thoroughly before applying your knowledge of unplayed cards in a game of chance.
Foreign words	This advice is limited to individual words, short expressions, and proper names. Memorization is no substitute for learning a foreign language, but it is a great help in learning useful words. Whatever word gives you trouble can be manipulated, somehow, to approximate an English substitute—a word or name that sounds like the foreign one. Whenever you see or hear the foreign version, a mind picture of your version will give you an instant translation. Pronunciation is not important in this aspect of the work involved in learning a foreign language.
Birthdays	Use the same method as for historical dates, but make a special birthday link between the peg date and the person. If one of your nephews was born on August 2, 1965, for instance, streamline the date—8 2 65—and make a first-letter peg substitution: INSoLe, your nephew's bare foot. The same principle applies to anniversaries, except that you have two people to keep in your mind picture.

Aging and absent-mindedness

Resistance to change is most noticeable when a grandparent or great-grandparent simply stops paying attention; the suspicion sets in that our beloved seniors are finally just too old to function, that senility is taking its toll.

Senility can easily be a misdiagnosis. Old-age mental infirmity, usually called senility, may be the natural product of two maladies of old age: inattention and inactivity. Usually, both are easily reversible, and neither is indicative of true memory loss, which is a clinical condition accompanying physical deterioration. Memory loss rarely shows itself as an isolated symptom.

A leading authority on adult education, Edward L. Thorndike, once stated that "age is no handicap to learning a new trade, profession, or anything you want to do at any time of life." Remember: anything you want to do. Your brain can always use exercise. A sedentary brain means a sedentary memory. Absent-mindedness may simply mean not caring.

By practicing the memory-building exercises in this chapter, older people are likely to tap reserves of vitality they thought they had outlived. Memory experts agree: the best memory students are often the oldest. The alertness and involvement you use in practicing a memory system not only sharpen memory but sharpen all your mental faculties as well. Every flex of a memory muscle strengthens it.

Names and faces

If you are like most people, you wish you could remember names and faces better. After all, any man or woman who remembers your name is likely to win your respect and attention; it is almost disrespectful if you fail to reply in kind. And when someone knows your name, and assumes you remember his, there is rarely a graceful way out if you do not. First a word of reassurance: do not assume that you are cursed with the inability to remember names. You simply have never gone about it in a systematic way.

Getting a name right. To begin with, you may have never listened to an introduction properly. On meeting someone—a perfect stranger—at some social function, attend to these ground rules:

- Hear his or her whole name clearly.
- If unclear, ask for the spelling.
- If odd, comment on it.
- Repeat the name during conversation.
- Say the name once more on parting.

Surnames fall into three categories for the purpose of memorization. The first two are easy:

1. Self-descriptive names (Baker, Cook, White, Day, Knight, Brown, Foote, Post, and so on) that in themselves have meaning or spark images.
2. Same-as or sound-like names that duplicate or approximate those of famous people, historical figures, or well-known brand names.

You should have no trouble associating these names with a pictorial equivalent, whether it be a celebrity, an occupation, or a color.

But the third category—meaning 90 percent of all surnames—will require some work. Except to linguists, most names mean nothing by themselves; they defy visualization or definition, perhaps even pronunciation, and they are meaningless as words. The solution: a substitute word or words to stand for the difficult name and to make a picture for deposit in your memory bank. Each syllable in a name will likely add a picture, and then the pictures must be linked. Below are some names, along with suggested pictorial equivalents, to get you started.

After you have practiced this substitution technique, no one's name should be meaningless anymore. But that is only half the battle. It is essential, of course, to memorize someone's name, but it is equally important to match that name to its owner's face. So there is one last association technique to learn. Match your outlandish mind picture (from the name) to one outstanding feature of that person's face.

Just as you take pains to get his or her name right, so you must look the other person straight in the face to get it right, too. Almost certainly something will strike you as distinctive—a scar, a hairline (or lack of it), a wide (or pursed) mouth, high cheekbones, a disproportionate nose, a drooping eyelid, a five o'clock shadow, a long chin, squinty eyes or prominent eyeglasses, a long (or dimpled) chin. Then take that one facial feature and combine (link) it with your mind picture of the person's last name. Never mind the ridiculousness of your finished portrait; its lack of logic is what makes it memorable.

Knowing what you have just read, try once more to truly memorize the names and faces on page 185. Then turn back to this page and note your improvement.

Making pictures of names

Name	Phrase	Picture
Cohen	ice cream cone
Olzcewski	old + chef + *ski*ing
Gordon	vegetable garden
Name	Phrase	Picture
Kassebaum	castle + bomb	Pottinger	pot + injure
Pfeiffer	fife player

Suggestions for students

Too many people go through high school and college and adult education courses stuffing themselves with information one day only to disgorge it all the next. They cram for an exam, take it, and emerge with little or no permanent knowledge. Why is all that information forgotten so quickly?

The scholastic method of memory building is rote repetition without regard for meaning. Thus, such students will read something over and over again until it sinks in—for a little while. To memorize something by rote is not really to learn it, and certainly not to understand it. Learning is not a one-shot recital of facts or ideas; it is the informed application of information and ideas. When you build true memory, you absorb facts and ideas in such a way that you store them away, ready to be employed profitably for the rest of your life.

So far you have learned the fundamentals of the peg and link methods of memory, both unsurpassed for the recollection of tangible objects and numbers, and both suitable for translation into mind pictures.

Pegs and links will not work, however, in certain fields of academic study. There is no practical way to conjure up a picture of a French verb, a mathematical equation, or a scientific term. Something else is needed to aid the memory.

Memory techniques for students

English vocabulary

Some words do not look at all like what they mean. In such cases, break the word into separate syllables and give each part a new meaning in a new linkage.

Execrate—to hate, detest. Imagine having to put eggs in a crate all the time. You would detest such a chore.

Hirsute—hairy. Look at that woman in the woolen suit—her suit is all covered with hair.

Litany—a kind of prayer. Think of yourself praying on one knee—praying for mercy because you just lit your other knee with the votive candle.

English spelling

There is no magical way to become a better speller. The most practical solution is to seize on a habitually misspelled word like "calendar" and write it down five times wrong—c-a-l-e-n-d-e-r—and then cross out the second e. Then write it five times correctly and circle the second a. Or you might make associations between words you know already and troublesome words you want to know. See all lines as par*all*el, iron as part of the env*iron*ment, a *guar*d as *guar*anteeing safety, and loss as being co*loss*al.

Mathematics

Your knowledge of peg sounds 1 to 10 (and 1 to 100, on pages 198-199) can be put to good use for learning fractions, formulas, equations, measurements, ratios, and theorems. Use the first-initial link method for individual numbers, then tie them together in a mind picture. The pictures thus formed may be ridiculous in the extreme, but they are intended only to make you familiar with a mathematical concept. When you truly learn it, you will have memorized the concept, not the funny picture.

Biology

Unlike most sciences, biology is well adapted to memory building because most of its terms have direct application to something you can visualize—a human body, an animal, a neural network. Take what you need to know, shorten it to pegs and links, and picture it right on or in the body part to which it belongs.

Chemistry

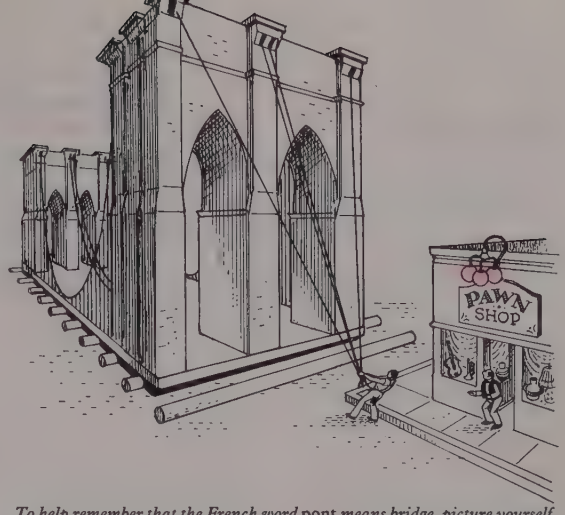
The language of chemistry is made up of symbols, and symbols are made to order for changing into pegs and links. You can, for instance, treat a subscript—the 2 in H_2O, for example—as its peg sound equivalent. The task is to make something from a chemical formula that illustrates the substance.

H_2SO_4 is sulfuric acid. Using pegs, H_2SO_4 might become HeN SORe. Why is the hen sore? Because it was doused in sulfuric acid.

Substitution. The something else is the substitution method. If you are faced with an intangible or abstract nugget of information, find a sound-alike English substitute for it, something you can picture in your mind. Here is how substitution works with two French words:

Pont means bridge. In pronunciation it is similar to the English word pawn. You might remember both the word and its pronunciation if you make a mind picture of yourself dragging a bridge—the Brooklyn Bridge or the Golden Gate—to a pawnshop.

Pamplemousse means grapefruit. Imagine a big *moose*head on the wall with an enormous dimple on its cheek. The dimple is so large that you are able to balance a grapefruit in it.



To help remember that the French word pont means bridge, picture yourself dragging a bridge into a pawnshop.

Lectures

Your goal is to stop taking lecture notes altogether. In lectures you are supposed to be listening and understanding. Remember the memory virtues: close observation, strict attention, and systematic organization. Practice doing these in your head, not your notebook. Lecturers are as eager to make sense to you as you are to make sense of them, so pay attention. In their opening remarks, lecturers will tell you what they will talk about. The lecturers then will talk about their subjects at length. Finally they will usually summarize what they have just said. The middle part—the mental note-taking part—is the most difficult part of a lecture for the audience. The opening remarks and the conclusion, which may last a combined total of five minutes, contain most of what must be retained. Most people, however, are not listening at those times. They are still settling in with note-taking paraphernalia at the start, and they are packing up to leave at the conclusion. A practiced listener should know in advance what the lecture subject is, and write that down. At first, you may need to take minimal notes on paper, as if they were chapter headings. Eventually, with practice, you will be able to take mental notes only.

Reading

As you become more fluent in the construction and use of word pictures, using substitute word pegs, you are likely to find yourself visualizing peculiar mind's-eye views of things you read. Do not be alarmed. This is a sign that pegs, links, and substitutes are becoming part of your conscious memorization process. Without those mind pictures, the reading material might never be recalled at all.

The substitution method is most useful for memorizing quotations and lines of poetry. If the line or passage is a philosophical thought, or simply beautiful language, then make sound-alike substitutions to fix it in your mind. Never forget that it is difficult to memorize anything unless you invest it with detail, color, and movement. Your aim should be to simplify whatever you read to its memorable essence, and then, through substitutions, to fix it in your mind.

Maps

First consult a map of the United States. From the western border, draw approximately vertical lines southward from the borders of the northernmost states. The West Coast grid, or zone, will take in Washington, Oregon, and California plus Alaska and Hawaii. The East Coast grid, by far the largest, may encompass as many as 17 states under Maine. Try to place all the states within six or eight zones. Then figure out your own substitute word for each state, form a link word picture for each zone, and you will have a six- or eight-chapter mind picture of the map of America.

Appendix

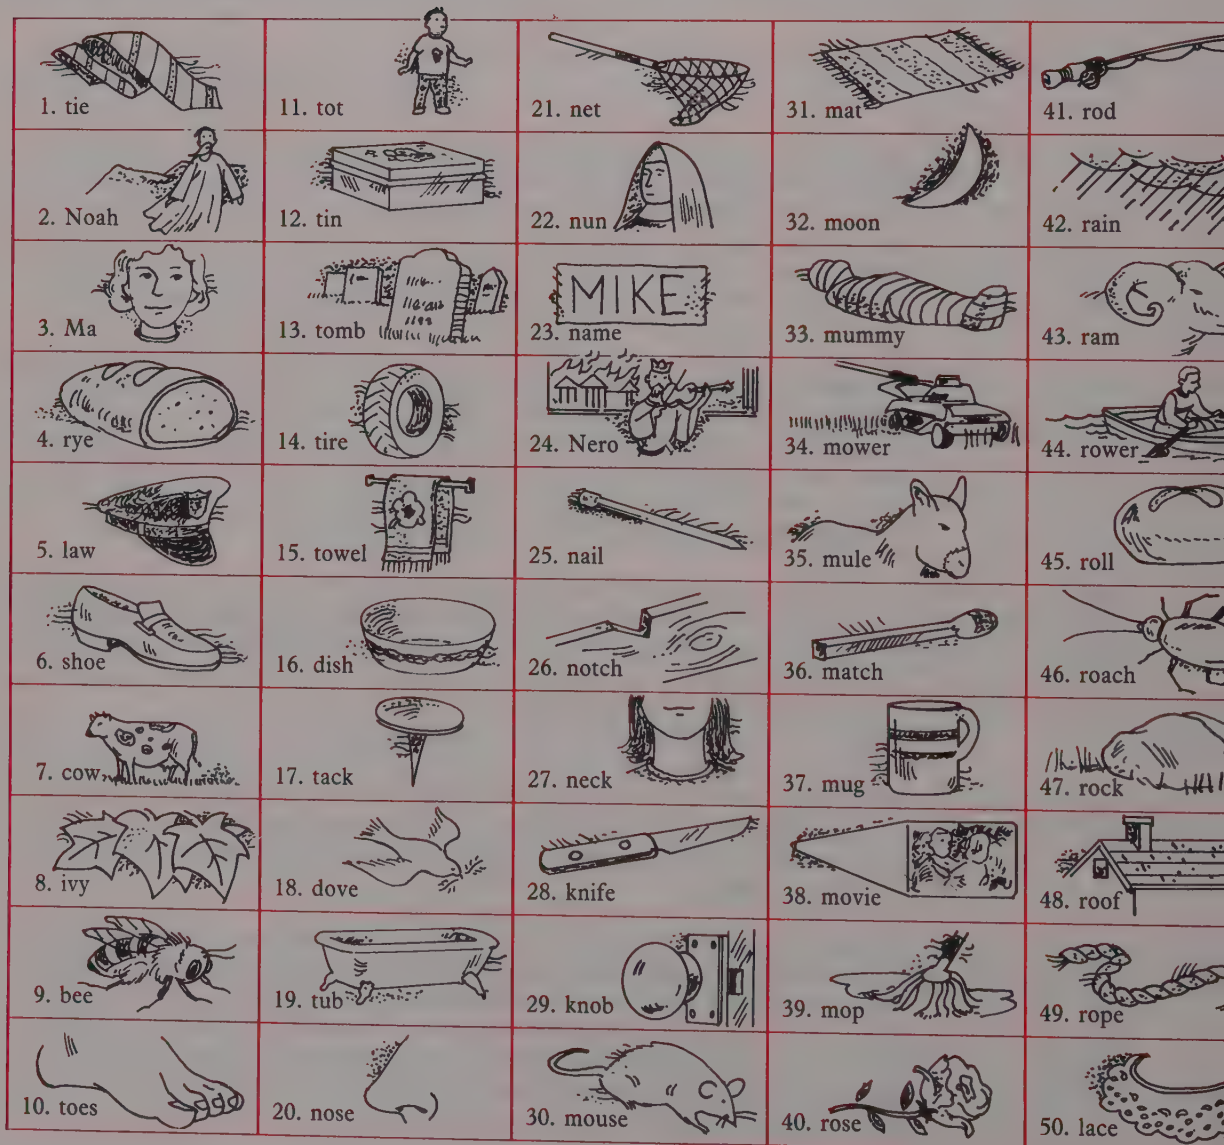
Quick-recall tests

For those readers who had little or no success the first time (page 183), try this test again.

1. Study this 15-digit number for two minutes. Then try to duplicate it exactly on a piece of paper.

   238158649376914

Peg words 1–100

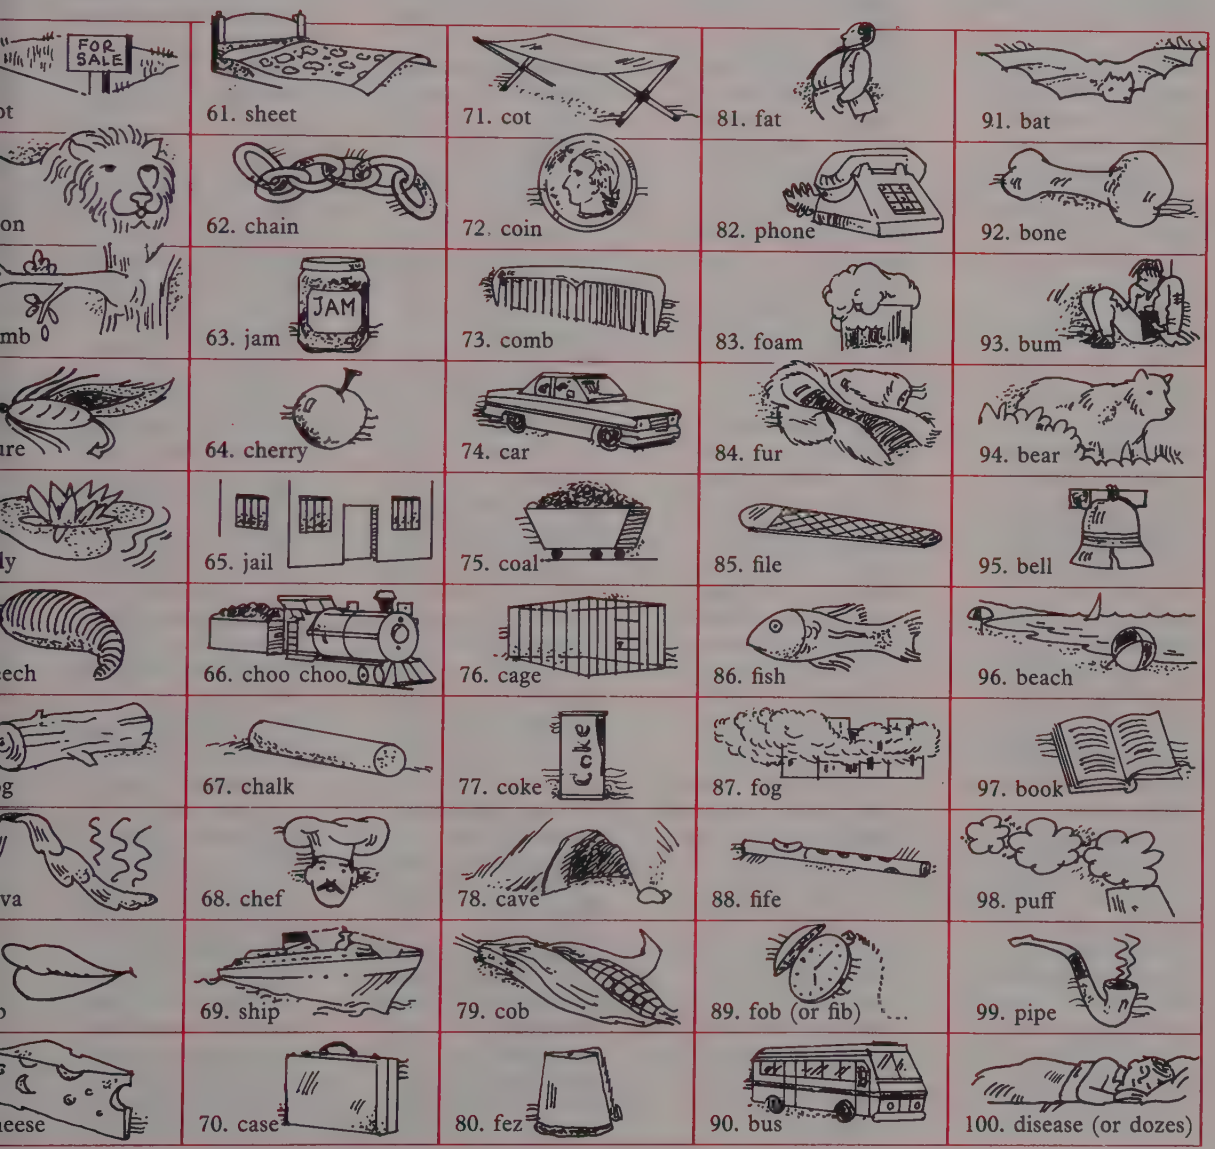


2. Here are seven phone numbers, each corresponding to a local tradesman or professional. Study the list for six minutes, then copy the seven titles in any order. Finally, without looking, match the memorized numbers to the titles.

Doctor	762-5881	Lawyer	681-9558
Grocer	616-2053	Dentist	386-3579
Plumber	358-0864	Florist	784-3579
Electrician	872-9647

3. This is a list of twelve objects found in the home. Study it for just two minutes, then reconstruct the list from memory, in order.

couch, refrigerator, newspaper, clock, mirror, toaster, lamp, toilet, stove, television, carpet, window



Feminine

Abby: abbey, a bee
Abigail: a big ale
Ada: aid her
Addy: add E
Adelaide: a dell aid, addle aid
Adele: a dell
Adeline: add a line
Agatha: agate tore
Agnes: egg nest
Alberta: Al bought her Alexandra: lick sand raw Alexis: all ex's, all legs
Alice: blue gown
Alicia: a leash
Aline: lean
Alvira: I'll wire her
Amanda: a man there, amend, a mender
Amelia: a meal yeah
Amy: aim me, hey me
Andrea: hand dryer, angrier
Angela: angel, and Jell-o
Angelina: angel leaner
Anita: anteater, an eater
Annabel: a new bell
Annette: a net
Antoinette: ant turn net
Arlene: I lean
Audrey: all dry, aw dry
Augusta: gust her Avis: a whiz
Babette: bad bet
Babs: bobs, blabs
Barbara: barber
Becky: bad key, peck E
Bernadette: burn a debt
Bernice: burn niece, burnoose
Bess: best, bass
Beth: bet bath
Beverly: beef early Bobbie: pin, bob E
Bonnie: bony, bone knee, bonnet
Brenda: bran there
Candace: canned ace, candy
Candy: candy
Carla: car law
Carmen: car men
Caroline: carry line
Carrie: carry
Cecile: says seal
Cecilia: steal ya
Celeste: see less, see last Celia: seal ya
Charlene: char lean Cheryl: chair ill
Chrissie: cross E Christine: pristine, grist in Cicely: Sicily, sees a lea Cindy: cinder, sin D
Clara: clearer, clarify
Clarissa: clear as air
Claudia: claw D, clawed ya
Clementine: clam on time
Colleen: call in, coal lean Conchita: conch eater
Constance: con stands, cons dance
Consuelo: con swallow
Cora: core, corer
Cordelia: core deal ya
Corinne: chlorine, core in Cornelia: corn kneel
Crystal: crystal, cross tall
Cynthia: send to ya, sin tear
Daphne: deaf knee
Darleen: darling, door lean Deborah: the borer
Deirdre: deer draw
Delia: deal ya
Denise: the niece, dentist
Diana: piano, die on her, dye Anna Dinah: diner
Dixie: south, dig sea
Dolly: doll
Dolores: the law is Dora: door, adore her Doreen: tureen, door in Dorothy: adore a tea, door tea
Dot: dot
Eden: eatin', E den
Edith: edict
Edwina: head winner
Eileen: I lean, eye lean Eleanor: a lean oar
Elena: a loner, a leaner
Elise: a lease, release
Eliza: L icer, he lies t'her
Elizabeth: he lifts a bed
Ellie: alley, a lea
Eloise: hello ease, yellow E's
Elsa: L saw, else
Elsie: L sea, el see Elva: elf, L where?
Elvira: elf higher, L wirer
Emily: a mill E, M in lea Emma: hey Ma, hemmer
Enid: he knit, in it
Erica: error car
Ernestine: earnest in, a nest in Essie: ess sea, S see, I see, icy Estelle: S tell
Esther: yester(day), yes dear, ess tear
Etta: eater, editor
Eugenia: ewe genius, ewe jeans
Evangeline: evangelist
Eve: eve, heave
Evelyn: evil in, a violin
Faith: faith
Fay: fade, fail
Felicia: full leash
Flo: flow
Flora: flower, floor
Florence: floor ants
Flossie: floor see Frances: France is Francesca: France's car
Francine: France seen, ran scene
Freda: freed her Fritzie: ritzy, frisky
Gabrielle: horn, gabby L
Gail: gale
Genevieve: gem verve
Georgia: gorga ya, gorgeous, gorge
Geraldine: chair old dine Germaine: German, germane
Gertrude: protrude, go through Gilda: gill there, gild, guild
Gina: china, gee no
Ginny: gin knee
Gisele: gazelle
Glenda: lender, glen deer
Grace: grace, race
Greta: get her, (re)gretter
Gretchen: retchin', great chin
Griselda: grows older
Gussie: gassy, gust sea
Gwen: when, goin'
Gwendolyn: mandolin, wend all in Hannah: hand her Harriet: hurry it, harried
Hattie: had tea, hat tea
Hazel: nut, haze, hassle
Heather: heather, feather
Hedda: header, head her Hedy: heady
Heidi: hide E, hide
Helen: hellin', hailin'
Helena: hill leaner
Helga: held car
Henrietta: hen reader
Hermione: her my own knee
Hester: S tore, has tear
Hettie: heady
Hilary: hilarious, hill airy
Hilda: builder, hill there Hildegarde: hill the guard Holly: holly, holy Honey: honey
Hope: hope
Hortense: horse sense
Ida: cider
Ilka: ilk, elk, ill car
Ilse: ills, else
Imogene: emergin', in motion
Ina: iron, eye no, I know
Inez: iron S, inn Ess Ingrid: in grid, ink rid Irene: eye ran, iron in Irma: I'm a, her Ma
Isabel: is a bell
Isadora: is a door, adorer
Jackie: jack key
Jacqueline: jackal in, jack line
Jane: jay hen, chain
Janet: chain it, chain net
Janice: chain ice, chain ease
Jean: jeans
Jeannette: gem net, shine it
Jeannie: jean knee, chain knee
Jennifer: chain off her, gem fur
Jenny: jay knee, chain knee
Jessica: sick car, chase a car
Jessie: chase E
Jewel: jewel, chew L
Jill: chill, jail
Jo: show, (G.I.) Joe
Joan: showin', own
Joanna: show Anna, showin' her Jocelyn: jostlin'
Jody: show D, show tea
Josephine: show sip fine
Joyce: juice, (re)joice, choice
Juanita: one eater, war neater
Judith: showed it, chewed it Judy: chew D
Julia: jewel, jewel yeah
Juliana: shoe lea Anna
Julie: jewel E
Juliet: balcony, jewel ye
June: chewin'
Justine(ina): just in, just tea
Karen: carryin', carin'
Kate: gate
Katherine: cat run, cat tore in Kathleen: cat lean Kathy: cat see
Katie: katydid, K tea
Katrina: cat runner
Kay: K, cake, key Kim: come, grim
Kirsten: curse tin
Kit: kit, cat
Kitty: kitty, kit E
Laura: lurer
Lauren: lurin', lowerin'
Laurette: lower it, lorgnette
Laurie: lower E, lorry

Laverne: love urn
Lavinia: love in here
Leah: lea ah, leader
Lee: lea, lee (shelter)
Lena: leaner
Leonora: lea and aura, lee and oar
Leslie: less lea
Letitia: the teacher
Letty: let E
Lila: lie low
Lillian: lily in Linda: lender, lint
Lisa: leaser, lease her Liza: lies here
Lois: loose
Lola: loller, low lair
Lolita: low lighter, low leader
Loretta: lure a tire, lower it
Lorna: law no, (for)lorn, lawn
Lorraine: low rain
Lottie: lottery, lot tea
Louisa: low icer
Louise: low ice, low ease
Lucia: lose ya'
Lucille: loose sail, low sill
Lucinda: lose cinder, loose in there Lucy: loose E, low sea
Lulu: tutu, (that's a) lulu, lullaby
Lydia: lid here, lady, lid ya'
Lynne: lin(iment), lean Mabel: may bell, may bull
Madeleine: mad lean Madge: mad G, badge
Mae: may(pole)
Magda: make door, nagged her Magdalena: make door leaner
Maggie: magpie, my key Maisie: maize, maze E, may see Malvina: mail wiener
Mamie: maim me
Mandy: mandolin, man D, man handy
Marcella: Ma cellar
Marcy: Ma see
Margie: march E
Margot: Ma go
Marguerite(ta): Ma car eat
Maria: mare here
Marian: marryin'
Marie: marry, mare E
Marietta: marry Etta
Marilyn: merrily, marry lin(iment)
Marion: marryin', carry on Marjorie: Ma jury
Marsha: marsh, marcher
Mary: marry
Mathilda: mat ill there
Mattie: mat E
Maureen: more in, tureen
Mavis: may whiz
Maxine: Macks(trucks) in Mehitabel: me hit a bell
Melanie: melody, melon knee
Melissa: me listen, mail a saw Mercedes: Benz, me say D's, mercy
Meredith: married it, merry dish
Mildred: mill dread
Millicent: mill sent, mini cent
Millie: mill, mill E
Mimi: me me, mime me
Minerva: my nerve
Minnie: my knee
Miranda: veranda, mirror and door
Miriam: mirror him, merry ham
Mitzi: mitt sea
Molly: tropical fish, Ma lea
Mona: moaner
Monica: money car, Monaco
Morna: more no, mourner
Muriel: mural
Myra: my rah, mirer
Myrtle: me tell, more till Nadine: neigh dine
Nan: nun
Nancy: nun see
Nanette: nun net, no net
Naomi: neigh owe me
Natalie: not tell E, gnat toll E, naturally Nell: knell, kneel
Nellie: knell E
Nettie: net E, net eel
Nicole: nickel, nick hole
Nicolette: nickel let Nina: knee no
Nita: neater
Noel: Christmas, no el
Nona: no no
Nora: gnaw her Noreen: gnaw in, no rain
Norma: no Ma, normal
Octavia: hocked a view
Odette: owed debt
Olga: old car, ogre
Olive: olive Olivia: oh liver
Opal: opal, old pal
Pam: bam, P ham
Pamela: pummel her
Pandora: box, pan door, panda
Pansy: pansy, pan sea
Pat: pat
Patricia: pat richer
Patty: (meat)patty, pat E
Paula: pull her Pauline: pull in, poor line
Pearl: pearl
Peg: peg
Peggy: peg E, piggy
Penelope: pen elope
Penny: penny
Philippa: full lip
Philomena: fill meaner
Phoebe: fee bee
Phyllis: fill us
Polly: parrot, pulley
Priscilla: press cellar
Prudence: prude ants
Prue: true, rue, rude
Rachel: ray chill
Ramona: ray moaner, ram owner
Rebecca: ray
Regina: reach in, reachin' her Rena: rain her
Renee: run hay, grenade
Renni: wren E, runny
Rhoda: road
Rita: reader
Roberta: robe hurt her
Robin: robbin', robin (red breast)
Rochelle: row shell
Rosa: rose
Rosalie: rose lea
Rosaline: rose land
Rosalyn: rose lin(iment)
Rosamund: rose mount Rose: rose
Rosemarie: rose marry
Rosita: rose eater
Rowena: row wiener
Roxanne: rocks in Ruby: ruby, rude bee
Ruth: Babe(Ruth), ruth(less)
Sabina: soapin' her, sap eye now
Sadie: say D, lady
Sally: sail E, sally Salome: veil, salami
Samantha: saw man there
Sandra: sander, sand draw
Sandy: sandy
Sarah: say rah, sharer
Sasha: sash
Saundra: sauna, sundry Selma: sell Ma
Shari: share E, chair ease
Sharon: chair on Shawn: shorn
Sheila: shield
Sherry: sherry, cherry
Sheryl: chair ill, share ill
Shirley: surely, surly
Sibyl: see bill
Sidney: sit knee
Sigrid: sea grid, secret
Simone: sea moan
Sonia: sewin' ya', sun ya', sun
Sophia: sew fire, sew fee
Sophie: sew fee
Stacy: stay see
Stella: stellar, cella
Stephanie: staff a knee
Sue: sue
Sue Ann: sue ant
Susan: sues Ann, snoozin', (lazy) Susan Susannah: sues Anna
Susie: sue sea
Sylvia: silver
Tammy: tan me
Terry: terry(cloth) towel
Tess: toss, test
Tessie: toss E, dressy
Thelma: tell Ma
Theodora: see a door
Theresa: tear easy, terrace
Tilda: tell door
Tillie: till E, dilly
Tina: teeny
Toby: toe bee
Toni: toe knee
Tracey: trace E
Tricia: tree share
Trixie: trick see
Trudy: true D, threw D
Una: owner
Ursula: ice cellar
Valerie: valet read
Vanessa: van a saw
Velma: well Ma
Vera: veer, fear
Verna: firmer
Vicky: icky, V key
Victoria: victory
Vida: feed her Viola: viola
Violet: violet, file it, violent
Vivian: we win, vivid inn
Wanda: wander
Wendy: wend windy
Wilhelmina: will helm inn
Wilma: will Ma
Winifred: when if red, win if red Winnie: whinny, win knee
Yetta: yeah tar
Yolanda: you launder
Yvette: he wet, E vet
Yvonne: he won, heave on Zelda: sell there, seldom Zoe: sew E

Masculine

Aaron: air run
Abe: hey bee, ape
Abel: able, a bell
Abner: abnor(mal), nab knee
Abraham: ape ram, a bear ham
Abram: ape ram, a broom, bram(ble)
Adam: atom, at 'em
Adolph: a dolph(in)
Adrian: aid dream, a dream
Alan: a lens, a land
Albert: Prince (Albert)
Alden: all den
Alec: a lick
Alex: all eggs, legs
Alexander: leg sander
Alfred: half red
Algernon: all jaw nun
Alonzo: alone sew
Aloysius: all wishes
Alvin: all win
Ambrose: ham browse
Amos: hey miss
André: hand ray
Andrew: hand drew
Andy: handy
Angelo: angel low
Archibald: arch bald
Archie: archer
Armand: almond
Arnold: arm old Arthur: author
Ashley: ash lea
Aubrey: orb ray
August: gust
Augustine: gustin'
Augustus: gust us
Austin: awes tin, oars tin
Avery: aviary
Axel: axle
Baldwin: bald one Barnaby: barn a bee
Barney: bar knee, barn E
Barry: bury
Bart: bought, bart(er)
Bartholomew: bottle anew
Basil: bay sill
Bayard: bay yard
Benedict: benedict(ion)
Benjamin: bend a man
Bennett: bend net
Benny: bend E
Bentley: bent lea
Bernard: burn hard
Bernie: burn knee
Bert: bird
Bertram: bought ram
Bertrand: bird ran Bobby: bob E
Boris: bore us
Boyd: bird
Bradford: bread ford
Bradley: bread lea
Brandon: brandin'
Brian: brine, buyin'
Bruce: bruise
Bruno: burn O
Burton: buy ton
Byron: buy run
Calvin: cave in Cameron: camera on Carlos: car loose
Carter: carter, car tear, cart her Cary: carry
Casper: cast pear
Cecil: cease ill, see sill
Chad: charred, chat
Charles: quarrels, chars
Charlie: char lea
Charlton: quarrel ton, char ton
Chester: chest, jester
Chet: jet
Chris: cross, kiss, grist
Christian: cross tin
Christopher: grist fur, kissed a fur
Clarence: clearance
Clark: clock
Claude: clawed
Clayton: clay ton
Clement: cement, (in)clement
Clifford: cliff oared, cliff awed
Clifton: cliff ton
Clint: lint
Clinton: clean ton
Clive: alive
Clyde: slide, lied, clod
Cole: coal
Colin: coal in, callin'
Connie: con D, con knee
Conrad: con rat, comrade
Corey: core E
Craig: crack
Curtis: caught us, curt Cyril: see reel, cereal Cyrus: sires
Damon: demon
Dana: deign, day, dinner
Daniel: den yell
Danny: den knee
Darren: darin'
Darryl: barrel, dare ill
Dave: dive, gave
David: gave it, save it, slingshot
Davy: day V
Dennis: tennis
Derek: derrick
De Witt: the wit, do it
Dexter: deck stir
Dick: tick, detective
Dirk: dark, dirk, Turk
Dominick: down my neck
Donald: duck, darn old
Douglas: dug glass
Duane: D wane
Dudley: dud lea, deadly
Duke: duke, duck
Duncan: dunkin'
Dustin: dustin'
Dwight: white, D white
Earl: oil
Eddie: eddy, a D, heady
Edgar: headgear
Edmund: head mount
Edward: head ward
Edwin: head win, head wind
Egbert: egg butt
Elbert: el butt
Eldred: el dread
Eli: eel eye
Elias: eel highest
Eliot: L E yacht, eel yacht Ellery: celery
Elmer: el Ma, el more Emanuel: manual, he man
Emil: a mill, hem ill
Emmett: hem met, aim it
Enoch: he knock
Ephraim: half ram, F rim Erasmus: erase most Erastus: erased us, he razzed us
Eric: a rick(shaw), air egg
Ernest: earnest, her nest, honest
Ernie: earn knee
Errol: error
Ervin: I win, urban Erwin: her win
Eugene: you jean, ewe jean, huge E
Eustace: used us
Evan: a van, heaven
Everett: ever et (ate), over it
Ezekiel: a Z kill L, seek L
Ezra: S roar, ess raw Felix: feel eggs
Ferdinand: bull, fur in hand
Fletcher: lecher, fetcher
Floyd: flood
Foster: forced her
Francis: fan sis
Frank: frank(furter)
Franklin: Benjamin (Franklin)
Fred: red, fret
Freddy: ready
Frederick: red rick(shaw)
Fritz: freeze
Gabriel: horn, gave reel
Garrett: garret, carry it
Gary: carry, gory
Gaston: gas ton
Gavin: gave in Gaylord: gay lord
Gene: jean
George: gorge, judge
Gerald: chair old
Gerard: chair hard Gideon: Bible, giddy on Gifford: give Ford
Gil: gill, kill
Gilbert: gill butt
Giles: guiles
Gino: gee no
Godfrey: got free
Godwin: God win, good win
Gordie: gaudy
Graham: cracker, gray ham
Grant: grant, granite Greg: grog, crack, dreg
Gregory: grog airy, crack gory Griff: gruff, grip
Griffin: grippin', grip fin
Grover: grove
Gunther: gun tore
Gus: gas, gust
Gustave: gas stove
Hadley: head lea, heady
Hal: hall, hail
Hank: hanky, yank
Hans: hands, hens
Harold: hair old
Harry: hairy
Harvey: hard V
Hector: hick tore
Henry: hen, hen ray
Herb: herb
Herbert: her boot
Herman: her man, ermine
Hilary: hilarious, hill airy
Hiram: hire 'im, eye ram
Homer: homer
Horace: her ace
Horatio: ratio, her ratio
Howard: how ward, coward
Hoyt: hurt
Hubert: you bet, ewe bet
Hugh: you, ewe, hue
Hugo: ewe go, you go
Humphrey: home free
Hy: high
Hyman: high man
Ian: eon, ion
Ignace: egg nice, egg nuts
Ignatius: egg nauseous
Ingram: ink ram
Ira: eye rah, irate
Irving: nerve ink, serving Irwin: I win
Isaac: eye sack, I sick
Isadore: is a door
Israel: his rail, is real

Ivan: eye van
Ivor: I wore, ivy ore
Jacob: Jacob('s ladder), shake up Jake: shake
James: aims
Jamie: aim me
Jarvis: jar whiz
Jason: jay son
Jasper: just pair, gasp pear
Jay: jay(bird), jail
Jed: shed
Jeff: shave, shove, chaff, chef Jeffrey: shove free, chef free
Jeremiah: chair mire
Jeremy: chair on me
Jerome: d'ya' roam?, chair room
Jerry: cherry
Jess: jazz
Jesse: James, d'ya see?, let's see Jim: gym
Jimmy: jimmy (a door), gimme
Joel: jewel, jowl
Joey: showy, chewy
Johnny: on knee, john Jonah: whale, show new Jonas: showin' us
Jonathan: john thin
Jordan: Jordan (River), jaw down
José: oh say, hose
Joseph: shows off
Joshua: josh shoe, josh shower
Juan: one, won, wan
Jud: jut
Jude: chewed
Judson: jut son
Jules: jewels
Julian: jewel in Julie: jewel, July
Justin: just in, justice
Keith: keys
Kenneth: can it
Kent: can't, canned Kevin: cave in Kimball: come bull
Kirk: kick
Lance: lance, lands
Lancelot: lance a lot
Larry: lair E, leery
Lawrence: lower ants
Lemuel: lamb mule
Lenny: lend knee
Leo: lion, lea O
Leon: lean on, lea on Leonard: lean hard
Leopold: leap old, leap pole
Leroy: lea roil
Leslie: less lea
Lester: less tear
Lionel: lion el, lion L
Lloyd: lewd
Lonny: low knee
Louis: loose
Lowell: low el, lower, loll
Lucas: luke kiss
Ludwig: load wig Luther: looser
Malcolm: mail come
Manny: many, man E, manly
Marcus: mark us
Mario: marry O
Marmaduke: Mom a duke
Marshall: marshal, marsh ill
Marty: Ma tea
Marvin: Ma win, move in Mason: mason, my son
Matthew: mat ewe
Maurice: more rice
Maury: more E
Maximilian: makes a million
Maxwell: mix well
Maynard: main yard
Melvin: melt win, delve in Meredith: married it
Mervin: movin'
Meyer: mire
Michael: my call, mike ill
Mickey: my key Milton: melt on Mitchell: mitt shell
Monroe: man row
Montague: mount glue Montgomery: mount gum airy
Monty: mount tea, mountie
Morgan: more can
Mortimer: morti(fy) Ma, more tea Ma
Morton: more ton
Morty: more tea
Moses: Moseys, Ma says
Murray: more ray
Myron: my run, mire on Nathan: nay sun
Nathaniel: neigh tan yell
Neil: kneel
Nelson: half nelson
Nero: fiddler, knee row
Neville: never, never ill
Nicholas: nick alas
Niles: miles, Niles (rivers)
Noah: ark, no air
Noel: Christmas, no el
Norbert: no berth
Norman: no man, Norseman
Norton: no ton
Ogden: egg den
Olaf: oh laugh, O laugh
Oliver: olive Orson: oar sun
Oscar: Academy Award
Otis: elevator
Owen: owin'
Ozzie: ah see, I see
Patrick: pat rick(shaw)
Pattie: (meat) patty Pedro: pet row
Percy: per se, purse see
Perry: bury, pear E, pair eel
Peter: eater, pea eater
Philip: full lip, fill up Pierce: pierce
Pierre: pea air
Prescott: press cot
Preston: press ton
Quentin: went in Quincy: win sea
Ralph: rough
Randall: ran doll
Randolph: ran dolph(in)
Randy: ran D
Raoul: rah oil, roll
Raphael: rah fail
Raymond: ray mount
Reggie: red G
Reginald: red G old Reuben: ruby in Rex: king (Latin), wrecks
Reynold: ran old
Richard: rich hard Richie: rich E
Robbie: rob bee
Robert: robber
Robin: robin (red breast), robbin'
Roddy: ruddy, ready Roderick: ruddy rick(shaw)
Rodney: rod knee
Roland: row land, rollin'
Rolph: roll off
Ronald: run old
Ronnie: run knee, runny
Rory: roar E
Roscoe: rescue
Ross: roars
Rudolph: rude dolph(in), rude doll off
Rufus: roof us
Rupert: rude pat
Russell: rustle
Sammy: ham me, hammy
Samson: biblical strong man
Samuel: some mule
Sandy: sandy
Schuyler: scholar
Scott: Scott(ish kilt)
Sean: shorn, sh yawn
Sebastian: sea bashed in Seymour: see more
Shelley: shell E, shell ease
Sherman: sure man, German
Sidney: sit knee
Silas: silence, silo
Silvester: silver vest, investor
Simeon: see me on Simon: says, sigh man
Sinclair: sin clear, sink lair
Solomon: wise man, solo man
Spence: dispense, pens
Spencer: spend sore
Stanley: stand lea
Stephen: steep hen
Stewart: steward
Teddy: ready, dead E
Terence: tear ants
Terry: terry(-cloth towel)
Theo: see O
Theodore: see a door
Thomas: tom-tom, the miss Timmy: tinny, dim E
Timothy: dim tea
Titus: tied us
Tobias: toe buy us, bias
Toby: toe bee
Tod: toddy, toward Tommy: tummy
Tonio: tone E O
Tony: toe knee
Tracy: trace E
Tristan: twistin'
Tyrone: throne, tie rowin'
Upton: uptown
Uriah: you're higher
Valentine: heart, valley dine
Vance: vans
Vergil: verge L
Verne: V earn, fern
Vernon: fur nun
Victor: victor
Vince: wince
Vincent: win cent
Vinnie: fini, V knee
Wade: wade
Waldo: wall dough
Wallace: wall lace, walrus
Wally: wall E
Walter: wall tear
Wayne: wane
Wendell: wend L
Wesley: west lea
Whitney: white knee
Wilbur: will burr, will bear
Wilfred: wolf red
Willard: will lard
William: will yam
Willis: will lace
Willy: willy(-nilly), will E
Winston: wins ton
Winthrop: win troop
Wyatt: Y hat, white
Zachary: sack airy, sack hairy Zeke: seek

Surnames

Abbott: abbott, I bought Abelson: a bell son
Abrams: rams, ape rams
Acheson: hatch a son
Ackerman: hacker man
Addison: add a son
Adler: add law, paddler
Alcott: old cot
Alexander: lick sand, lick sander
Altman: old man
Ambrose: ham browse
Anderson: hand and son
Andrews: Ann draws
Arnold: arm old, darn old Ashburn: ash burn
Atkins: hat kin
Atkinson: hat kin son
Atwater: at water
Austin: awes tin
Bailey: bale E, bay leaf
Baldwin: bald one, bald win
Ballinger: ball injure Bankhead: bank head
Barnett: bar net, barn hat
Bartlett: bottle it
Baxter: back stir, backs tear Begley: beg lea
Benham: bend ham
Benson: bend son
Bentley: band lay, English car
Bergman: (ice)berg man Bernstein: burn stein
Blum: plum
Borden: milk, boarding Braddock: bad dock
Bradley: brad lay
Bradshaw: bad shore
Brandt: brand
Brennan: burnin', bran nun
Brent: rent, bent
Brewster: brew stir, rooster
Brock: rock, broke Brody: broad E
Brophy: trophy
Bryant: buy ant, buoyant Buchanan: blue cannon
Buckley: buckle
Burgess: purchase
Burke: (ice)berg, perk
Byron: buy run
Cabot: cab butt
Cahill: gay hill
Caldwell: cold well, called well
Callahan: call a hand
Cameron: camera on Campbell: soup, camp bell
Carlson: call son
Carmichael: car mike call Carson: car son
Carter: car tear, cart her Cassidy: cast tea
Cates: gates
Cavanaugh: cave in oar
Chamberlain: chamber lain
Chandler: chandelier
Channing: chaining
Chester: chest tear, jester
Chilton: chill ton
Christenson: Christian son
Clark: clock, clerk
Clinton: clean ton
Colby: cold bee
Coleman: cold man, coal man
Collins: collie, (Tom) Collins
Compton: camped on
Cooper: (chicken) coop, coo pair, barrel maker
Cosgrove: cost grove
Costello: cost hello
Coughlin: coughin'
Cowen: cow in Crandall: ran doll
Crawford: crawl Ford
Crosby: Bing Crosby
Cunningham: cunning ham
Curtis: curt, caught us
Cushing: cushion
Custer: custard
Dalton: dull ton
Davenport: havin' port
Davis: Davis Cup
Dawson: door son
Delaney: delay knee
Denham: den ham
Denton: dent ton
Devlin: devil in Diaz: dais
Dillon: tillin', dill on Dixon: ticks on Dodson: dud son
Donahue: don a hue (color)
Donaldson: darn old son
Donovan: don a van Dooley: duel lea
Dougherty: dough in tea
Douglas: dug glass, dug less Dowling: dowel ink, toweling
Driscoll: drizzle
Drummond: drummin'
Duffy: the fee, toughy
Dugan: do again, due again
Duncan: dunkin'
Dunlap: down lap, down lip
Durant: the rent, tour ant
Durham: door ham
Dutton: button, the ton
Dwyer: wire, dryer
Easley: easy, ease lea, easily
Eastman: yeast man
Eberhardt: ever hard Eldridge: held ridge
Elliott: yacht, lot, L E hot Ellsworth: el's worth
Endicott: end a cot
Ericson: a rig son
Ettinger: head injure
Everett: ever et (ate), over it
Farley: far lea
Farrell: far rail, barrel
Faulkner: fork near Ferguson: fur go son
Findlay: find lea, finned lee
Finney: fishy, fini
Fitzgerald: fits chair old Fitzpatrick: fits pat rick(shaw)
Flanagan: fan again
Fletcher: fetch her, lecher
Foley: fall E, foal
Forrester: forest, forest tear
Foster: forced her
Fowler: foul law, fouler
Frazer: freezer, raise her
Frederick: red rick(shaw)
Freund: friend, frond
Fuller: full, brush
Fulton: full ton
Galbraith: gal breath
Gaynor: gain her
Geller: gala, gal law, kill her Gibbons: ribbons
Gilbert: kill bed, gill butt
Gillespie: kills pea Giordano: jawed an O
Gladstone: glad stone
Gleason: glee son, grease on Gonzales: guns are less Gordon: garden
Gorman: gore man
Gould: gold, cooled
Graham: cracker, gray ham
Granger: ranger
Gregory: grog airy
Gulliver: giant, gull over Gunther: gun tore
Haber: hay bear
Haggerty: haggard tea
Halpern: help urn
Hamilton: hammer ton
Hammond: ham mount Hanrahan: hen ran Hansen: hansom (cab), handsome Harrington: herring ton
Harrison: hairy son
Hartley: heart lea, hardly Hastings: haste inks Hathaway: hat away
Hawkins: hawk inns Hayden: hay den
Haynes: hay nose
Hecht: hacked
Hellman: held man
Henderson: hen son
Hendricks: hen tricks
Herbert: her boot
Hernandez: hurryin' ant is Higgins: he gains
Hobart: whole bar, hope bard
Hobbs: hops
Hodges: hedges
Hoffman: huff man, half man
Hogan: hoe can, whole can Holden: hold in, hold den
Hooper: hoop
Hopkins: hop kin
Horton: her ton, hurtin'
Houlihan: hold a hand
Houston: house ton, use ton
Howard: how hard, coward
Hubbard: cupboard
Humphrey: home free
Hutchinson: hutch in son
Hyatt: high hat
Hyman: high man
Ingersoll: anger soul
Ingram: ink ram
Irving: serving
Isaacs: eye sacks, ice axe
Jackson: jack son
Jacobs: cobs, Jacob's (ladder)
Jacobson: shake off son
Jacoby: jack cold bee
Jamison: aim at son
Jarrett: jar it
Jeffers: chef airs
Jeffries: chef freeze
Jenkins: chain cans
Johanson: show hand son
Jonas: showin' us
Jordan: jaw down
Joseph: shows off
Josephson: hose off son
Joyce: juice, choice, joyous Kaiser: geyser, guy sore
Kaufman: cough man
Kearns: coins
Keenan: keen nun
Keith: keys
Kelleher: killer her Kelly: call E, kill E
Kemp: camp
Kenny: can knee, penny
Keogh: keyhole
Kessler: cast law, wrestler
Kimball: gamble, come ball
Kingsley: kings lea
Knapp: nap, knap(sack)
Knowles: Noels, knolls
Koenig: king, coin nick Krakauer: crack hour
Kramer: creamer, gray Ma

Kroger: crow gore
Kruger: crew gore, cruder
Lafferty: laugh tea
Lambert: lamb butt
Landau: land dough
Langer: longer, linger
Larson: larceny, arson
Lawrence: law ants, lower ants
Lawson: law son
Lazarus: lather us
Lederman: leader man, letter man
Lehman: layman
Leonard: lean hard
Leopold: leap old, leap pole
Lester: less tear, jester
Leventhal: lovin' tall
Levinson: level son
Levitt: love it, leave it Lewis: lose, loose, who is Lieberman: labor man
Lindsey: lint sea, lindy (hop)
Lindstrom: lint strum
Livingston: living stone
Logan: low again
Loring: low ring, lowering Loughran: lock ran Lovell: love el
Lovett: love it
Lowell: low el Lowenthal: low and tall
Lubin: low bin
McCarthy: Mack cart tea
McCormick: Mack core mike
McDonald: Mack darn old McGraw: Mack raw MacGregor: Mack rigor
McKay: Mack hay, my key McMann: Mack man
Mahoney: Ma hold knee
Maloney: alone knee, baloney
Manning: man ink, manning
Marcus: mark us
Marshall: marshal, Ma shall Martin: Ma tin, mar tin
Martinez: martinets
Martinson: Ma tin son
Matheson: matter son
Matthew(s): mat ewe(s)
Maxwell: makes well, mix well
Maynard: mane hard Mercer: mercy
Meredith: married it
Metcalf: met calf
Michaelson: mike call son
Middleton: middle ton
Mitchell: shell, mitt shell
Montgomery: mount gum airy
Morales: morals, more or less Morgan: more can
Morrison: marry son
Morse: moss
Morton: mutton, more ton
Moynihan: mind a hand
Murray: more ray
Nash: gnash
Nathanson: no tan son
Nichols: nickels
Nicholson: nickel son
Noonan: new nun
Norman: no man, Norseman
Norris: no risk
Norton: no ton, gnaw ton
Nugent: new gent
O'Brien: oh burn, brine
O'Connor: O con her O'Donnell: ode down hill
Ogden: egg den, egged on O'Malley: home alley
Oppenheim: open home
O'Reilly: oar oily
O'Rourke: O roar
Ortiz: oared ease
Osborne: is born
Osgood: is good
Otis: elevator
Owen: owin'
Padgett: patch it, page it
Palmer: palm, palm Ma
Papadopoulos: Papa topple us
Patterson: pat a son
Pawley: pulley
Pearce: pierce
Pearson: pierce son
Pendleton: peddle ton
Perlman: pearl man
Peterson: eater son
Phelps: helps
Phillips: full lips
Platt: plate
Poindexter: point egg stir
Pollock: pole lock Prentiss: parent is, parenthesis
Proctor: doctor
Quentin: went in Quinn: win
Raleigh: roll lea, raw lea, roll E
Ramirez: ram ear ess (curve)
Randall: ran doll
Randolph: ran dolph(in)
Raymond: ray mount Reeves: reefs
Reinhard: rain hard Reynolds: ran old
Richardson: rich son, rich yard son
Rigney: rig knee
Riley: rye lea, rile E
Riordan: rear down, reared on Rivera: river
Robeson: robe son
Robinson: robbin' son
Romero: roam arrow
Rooney: ruin knee
Rossiter: rose sitter
Rudolph: rude dolph(in)
Rutherford: rode a Ford
Ryan: cryin', rind, Rhine (River)
Samuelson: some mules on Sanchez: send chest
Sanders: sand, senders
Saunders: sanders, sun doors Saxon: sacks on Schultz: shields, shoots
Seaton: see ton, sit on Sedgwick: search wick
Seiden: side in, sigh den
Seward: steward, seaward
Seymour: see more Schaeffer: shave four Shannon: shine on, chainin'
Sheehan: sheen
Shelton: shell ton, shelter
Sheridan: share a den
Sherman: show man, sure man
Simpson: simple son, simper son Sinclair: sin clear
Slater: slayed her Sommers: summers
Spaulding: sprawled ink
Spenser: expense her Stafford: staff ford
Stoddard: stood hard Sutherland: other land
Sweeney: sweet knee, sweety
Tate: tight, tea ate
Thatcher: that chair, thatcher
Thompson: tom-tom son
Thorpe: tore up
Tompkins: thump kin
Travers: traverse
Tucker: tuck'er
Ullmann: old man
Unger: hunger, hung her
Vance: vans
Vaughn: warn
Vincent: win cent
Wallace: wall lace, wall is, wall ace
Walsh: waltz
Warner: warn her Warrington: warring ton
Watson: what son
Waverly: wave early, waver lea
Welch: grape juice, welsh
Wesley: west lea
Whalen: whalin', whale, wailing
Whitney: white knee
Whittaker: wit taker, with a car
Wilkinson: milkin' son
Williamson: will yam son
Winston: Churchill
Winthrop: win troop
Woolsey: wool see
Wrightson: write son
York: cork
Young: baby
Zachary: sack airy

For further reference

Cermak, Laird S.
Improving Your Memory
McGraw-Hill

Gallant, Roy A.
Memory: How It Works and How to Improve It Four Winds Press

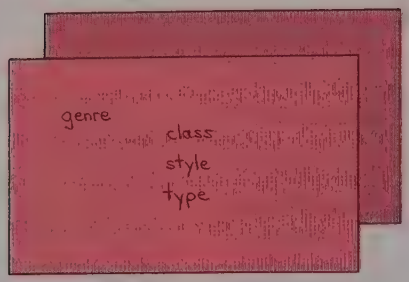
Lorayne, Harry
How to Develop a Super-Power Memory
Frederick Fell

Lorayne, Harry
Remembering People
Stein and Day

Lorayne, Harry, and Lucas, Jerry
The Memory Book
Stein and Day



Building Your Vocabulary

- Your word power file 207
- A permanent memory system 209
- How words are used 210
- Natural settings for words 215
- 15 days to a forceful vocabulary 224
- Preparing for vocabulary tests 232
- American English 234
- Puzzles and word games 236
- Words you should know 238

"There is a weird power in a spoken word . . . And a word carries far—very far—deals destruction through time as the bullets go flying through space."

Joseph Conrad, 1857–1924

The world recognizes Joseph Conrad as one of the great English novelists. Yet he knew little of the language before he was twenty. A Polish orphan, the teenage Conrad sailed on British ships, where he learned English from his fellow seamen. Conrad was awed by the power of words, and set about becoming a writer. The quotation above is from his masterpiece, Lord Jim.

"A powerful agent is the right word. Whenever we come upon one of those intensely right words in a book or a newspaper the resulting effect is physical as well as spiritual, and electrically prompt."

Mark Twain, 1835–1910

Starting his career as a twelve-year-old apprentice newspaper printer, Mark Twain never lost his ambition to be a Mississippi riverboat pilot. Twain, whose real name was Samuel Clemens, used life along the river as background for The Adventures of Tom Sawyer and Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. Like Joseph Conrad, he was self-taught. Both writers respected the power of words and used them with extreme precision.

A key to success. Those women and men who possess a large vocabulary usually advance more rapidly in their careers and ultimately attain more responsible positions than those whose vocabularies are limited. The Human Engineering Laboratory has studied thousands of successful executives pursuing a wide variety of careers. It found that the only trait the executives held in common was their command of large vocabularies.

What does "to command a large vocabulary" mean? Knowing the meanings of words is part of it; but another part is knowing how to use those words effectively. Other sections in this volume help you learn how to write and speak well. See "Writing Effective Letters," pages 266-301, "Improving Your Reading," pages 302-327, and "Improving Your Speech," pages 244-265. You will also want to consult volume 1, pages 30-62, and volume 2, pages 254-283.

Do not assume that because you know the jargon of your own field, as in accounting, say, or nursing, law, or medicine, that you can communicate successfully. Just think of your own doctor, whom you, as a lay person, may not understand because he uses only incomprehensible medical words. For most people, a vocabulary rich in depth and wide in scope is more useful than one limited to the confines of a particular field. A famous professor at Columbia University once said that graduates from the English department generally ended their careers earning more money and having more responsible positions than graduates from any other field.

So you will gain considerably from the mastery of a large vocabulary. When you are interviewed for a job, or are talking to a manager at your current place of employment, the words you use are an important part of the impression you make.

Even before you are interviewed for a job or a promotion, you may be asked to take a vocabulary test. A passing grade is a necessity. To gain that passing grade, you will want to know the meanings of hundreds of new words. You will learn, and remember, 300 to 400 interesting new words as you read the next three dozen pages. But more than that, you will find three full pages of hints and techniques for passing verbal/vocabulary tests, together with questions similar to the ones you can expect to find in examination booklets.

Memorizing lists of new words and their definitions is not a recommended method for improving your vocabulary. There are several more effective ways to acquire a larger stock of words and the ability to use them correctly.

Those paths to a more powerful vocabulary are explored on the pages of this section. Whichever method you choose to follow, it will work best when you have begun building your own Word Power file.

Your Word Power file. Keep a file card or small notebook in your pocket or handbag. During the day, jot down unknown or puzzling words that you read in newspapers, magazines, or on signs, or hear in conversations or on radio broadcasts. You might even overhear an unknown term as two strangers are talking together near you on a crowded bus.

Wherever you come across it, write the word on your card. If possible, try to include a portion of the way it was used in conversation or a portion of the sentence in which you read it. A typical day's entries might look like the cards at the right.

Using one of the new techniques you have mastered, there is a good chance you will have an approximate idea of the meanings of these new words. But your aim is to use more words with greater accuracy, so approximate meanings are not good enough.

The solution: At the end of each day, write each word on a separate 3×5 card. Put into your own words a dictionary's definition of the word, and enter that on the card. Also add a synonym or two if the dictionary lists them. (A synonym is a word that has the same meaning as the original word. Grand and magnificent are synonyms, as are punish and discipline.)

Keep the cards in alphabetical order. When you add new entries in your Word Power file, select a handful of the existing cards at random. Glance at the words but not their meanings. Test yourself. Reinforce the power of your burgeoning vocabulary. (There's a good one to start with: burgeoning.)

Keep a notebook in your pocket or purse so you can jot down immediately those new, unknown words you meet in your daily activities.

NOTES
June 6
extant – "Only 46 of the eagles are known to be extant."
nondescript – "She wore a nondescript costume, more gypsy than extant
Still in existence.
Not wiped out or destroyed.
" Only 46 of the eagles are extant."

How do you rate?

How much larger will your vocabulary be when you have mastered most of the techniques in this section? That depends on the effort you expend, beginning today. The percentage of your gain can be measured by taking this simple test, recording your score, and a month from now comparing it with your score on the test that appears on page 237.

For each of the questions, select the one term that most nearly defines the meaning of the word in dark print. Other readers will be using this book, so please do not write in it; mark your selections on a separate sheet of paper.

1. acrimony a) agility; b) court-ordered payments; c) bitterness; d) dryness
2. adulation a) growing up; b) adding water; c) hero worship; d) mixture
3. appellation a) name; b) maintain; c) small bullet; d) country
4. capillary a) form of butterfly; b) slender tube; c) large quantity; d) head, or top
5. cobalt a) metallic element; b) African antelope; c) partner; d) garden tool
6. covert a) secret; b) ditch, or gutter; c) lid; d) quarrelsome
7. destitute a) illegal; b) wicked; c) poverty-stricken; d) enhanced
8. diffident a) unlike; b) shy; c) argumentative; d) shining
9. diurnal a) under water; b) easily fooled; c) selfish; d) daily
10. effigy a) easy task; b) image; c) degree; d) ratio of output to input
11. exude a) put away; b) clear out; c) investigate; d) ooze
12. famished a) done, completed; b) starved; c) mixed up; d) related, as a cousin or aunt
13. florid a) warm; b) ornate; c) damp; d) southern
14. glean a) gather bit by bit; b) tilt dangerously; c) flash of light; d) smooth
15. grotesque a) bizarre; b) cavelike; c) comical; d) hyacinth
16. martial a) art; b) judo; c) general; d) warlike
17. mendicant a) remedy; b) ointment; c) beggar; d) prescription
18. migrant a) traveler; b) move to another country; c) severe headache; d) worker
19. natal a) Asian; b) living under water; c) birth; d) federal
20. phobia a) small bird; b) fear; c) drowning; d) falling
21. pinnacle a) peak; b) card game; c) evergreen tree; d) sail
22. sallow a) empty; b) yellow; c) not deep; d) filled with salt water
23. tactile a) crawling; b) touchable; c) pointy; d) cottonlike material
24. troll a) streetcar; b) mischievous dwarf; c) drumbeat; d) three of a kind
25. usury a) putting on makeup; b) illegal interest rate; c) impersonation; d) counterfeiting

Answers. Score one point for each correct answer. 1, c; 2, c; 3, a; 4, b; 5, a; 6, a; 7, c; 8, b; 9, d; 10, b; 11, d; 12, b; 13, b; 14, a; 15, a; 16, d; 17, c; 18, a; 19, c; 20, b; 21, a; 22, b; 23, b; 24, b; 25, b.

Analyze your score. A score of 25 is perfect (and quite rare), 22 to 24 very good, 18 to 21 above average, and 15 to 18 the score that most adults achieve. With Word Power you will gain during the next few weeks. It should be interesting to see how much better you do when you test yourself again.

A permanent memory system

Suppose you are reading a news magazine and come across this sentence: "She attributed the superiority of her tomatoes to the humus in which she grew them." You think humus has something to do with the amount of moisture in the gardener's backyard, but you are not sure. You look up the word in your dictionary and learn that it means "organic matter; decayed plants that provide nutriments to soil."

If you merely read a definition in a dictionary, make a mental note of it, and go on with your reading, your chances of retaining the meaning are slim. If you write the new word down, however, you greatly increase the probability that you will remember the meaning of humus. Experts in educational psychology say that the act of writing increases a person's ability to remember by as much as 100 percent.

But you are not an ordinary reader who wants to learn the meaning of an occasional new word. You are actively engaged in a campaign to radically increase your Word Power. To reinforce your learning process, you require additional techniques to make the new words you encounter every day a part of your working vocabulary.

Review the four-step system that follows.

Four steps to a larger vocabulary

1. Understand what the word means, in your own terms. If the dictionary tells you that perfidy means "a calculated breach of faith," do not try to add the word and that meaning to your active vocabulary in that form. Instead, read the entire dictionary entry and rephrase it, perhaps as "acts of a traitor; deliberate breaking of trust; spies engage in perfidious activities."

2. Write the meaning on a card. It requires some discipline to make a habit of the daily transference of words from your pocket notes to a permanent file card. You may be tempted to let it go for the weekend, but weekends often are more crammed with activities than we thought they would be, and file-building may be postponed yet again. The way to guarantee success is to establish a routine: fill out your file cards before you settle down for an evening's television watching or magazine reading. And keep your pocket card with you during those two activities so that any new words you hear or read will be included in the next day's entries.

   If a newspaper or magazine is the source of a word, you may want to clip the sentence from the page; then you can tape the printed sentence right on your Word Power card.

3. Add the new card to your file. An empty box, any shoebox-sized container, makes a fine storage space for your Word Power cards. If you have a special interest or two, you may want to color-code the cards that pertain to it for extra review. Words from the world of law and order, for example, could have green dots in the cards' upper right corners.

   Do you own a home computer? If you do, it will be easy to program a cumulative list of words, definitions, and examples of their use. Prepared software packages for vocabulary building are available, but you will find them less effective than the Word Power file you build for yourself.

4. Systematically use your file. During your first week of file-building, you may accumulate 20 or more Word Power cards. Once you have that many, you are ready to establish a routine that will reinforce your familiarity with the words' meanings.

   All that is required is to take out a handful of cards. Do not shuffle them, or they will have to be repositioned in alphabetical order later. Just lift one card from the pack, glance at the main word, and define it without looking at the printed definition. Then read the definition to see if you remember it correctly. If you do, replace the card and select another word. If you get it wrong, jot down the word on a list you keep for this purpose. A day or two later, look at the list and try to recall the word's meaning. If you remember a new word correctly for several days, in all probability you will remember it for many years.

   By reaching into the box and randomly choosing eight or ten words to test yourself on each day, you are certain to repeat many of the cards. Do not abandon the system. Repetitive practice, as with an athlete's training, brings superior performance.

How words are used

Words, like bricks or shingles, do not have much value when standing alone—a single brick on a patch of bare ground, or a solitary word on a page, is not of much use. But when a number are arranged in a purposeful pattern, both words and bricks are extremely useful.

When you read a newspaper and notice an unfamiliar word, you are seeing it in context. That is, you are seeing it in use, among other words. Context can give you clues to an unknown word's meaning. Often, the clues are so strong that you will be able to define the word without recourse to a dictionary.

The sense of a sentence. The way in which recourse was used in the previous sentence gives you a strong clue as to its meaning. "Without recourse to a dictionary" might mean without returning to a dictionary, or perhaps, without the heaviness of a dictionary. But neither of those possibilities makes much sense. What does make sense is being able to understand the word's meaning without turning to or consulting a dictionary. And that is exactly what recourse means in the context of that sentence.

Echo words. At times, the context of an unfamiliar word includes another word that closely duplicates its meaning. "She had never before seen on a tray so many beautiful glasses as she saw on Mrs. March's large salver." In this sentence, it is easily understood that the glasses are, at the same time, on a tray and on a salver. The two words have the same meaning; they are synonyms.

Easy opposites. Just as echo words, or synonyms, are strong context clues, so are opposites, or antonyms. "Carl's blueprint specified rigid sheets of plastic, but the ones he brought were malleable." The key clues here are "rigid" and "but." In the context, malleable refers to a kind of plastic that is the opposite of rigid. It is correct to assume that the target word means pliable or easily bent.

Read on a bit further. The last of the more common contextual techniques takes you beyond the sentence in which the unknown word appears. If there is no clue to the word's meaning in that sentence—read on. The definition may become clear a sentence or two later. Here is an example: "We recognized those sagging jowls. No one else ever had such baggy jaws." There you have a clear definition of the wanted word, right in the next sentence.

On this page and the following pages are paragraphs, each containing several unfamiliar words. Examine those words in the context of their sentences and paragraphs. Then check your conclusions against the explanations printed right below the paragraphs. Of course, you will want to add to your Word Power file all words that are new or that you never have used in conversation.

The six-story edifice symbolized the values of bourgeois, bustling prewar Chicago. The building's solid facade, though granite and limestone, had a certain warmth. Built as the abode of bankers, it still was accessible by trolley car and other public transportation.

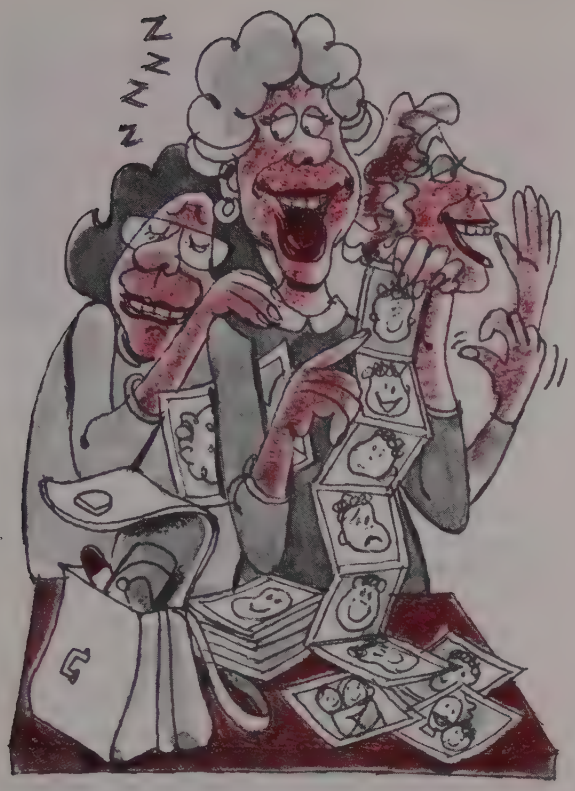
In the first two sentences, we learn that the paragraph describes a six-story building. Edifice, therefore, means building. Bourgeois and bustling are harder; you might guess the pair of words refers to busy or businesslike values of prewar Chicago. The precise definition of bourgeois is respectable, middle-class, property-owning. Bustling means busy, hurrying, or active.

Facade, a form of the word "face," refers to the front of a building. "The abode of bankers" can be understood to mean, loosely, their home. And if the building is accessible by public transportation, those trolleys have access to it; they can reach it easily.

Though the reason can't be pinned down, Mackey strikes some viewers as a vaguely unprofessional anchorman. It might be his slight speech impediment (trouble with "r's") or his wry, dry sense of humor. Yet, among each night's welter of disturbing facts and new worries, Mackey brings comfort to a large audience.

Vaguely tells us something about how or why some viewers think Mackey is unprofessional. Studying the sentence, we see that vaguely echoes the "can't be pinned down" quality of their feelings. Vaguely means indistinct, or no definite reason. If Mackey has trouble pronouncing "r's," something is standing in the way of clear speech; that is exactly what impediment means: an obstacle.

Wry and dry, when applied to sense of humor, are synonyms. The two words have the same meaning. Welter is not surrounded by enough clues to provide an accurate definition, but it clearly refers to a number of "facts and worries." Later, when you look it up, you will find it means a miscellaneous, hodge-podge grouping; a jumble.



Try to visualize the situation, or context, in which new words appear and you may be able to guess their meanings and remember them better.

Her friends at work twitted Elaine about her obsession with her new grandchild. She was a caricature of an adoring grandma, incessantly recounting examples of the baby's brilliance. And, of course, she carried myriad photographs of the infant.

Her friends probably would not be mean or cruel to Elaine, but they would tease her and make fun of her constant bragging about her granddaughter. Twitted means teased. Elaine's mind is occupied with thoughts of the infant: she is obsessed with those thoughts. Drawings or actors' portrayals of easily recognizable characters, done in an exaggerated manner, are caricatures.

To recount a story is to tell it over again, and to do it continually, or without ceasing, is to do it incessantly. (Sometimes a story or anecdote is called an "account." Telling it again is to recount it.) If you did not know the meaning of myriad, you might guess that Elaine would carry very many photographs of the baby. Myriad does mean a very large number.

I wondered about Joanne's interest in exotic Peruvian shawls. The ancient woolens were harsh and too rough for comfort. The designs were childlike and rudimentary, almost primitive. Later, when her husband confided that Joanne was a curator at the Field Museum, I understood.

It would be difficult, from the context in which it is used, to know exactly what is meant by exotic. But the flavor, the general sense, of "exotic Peruvian shawls" indicates that the shawls are strange or foreign in appearance. And that is very close to the exact meaning of exotic: unusual, from another part of the world.

Rudimentary designs are described as "childlike" and "primitive." It is clear that the word means basic, elementary, or an early form. You may recognize confided as a form of the word confidential (secret). When "Joanne's husband confided," he made a private, almost secret, statement.

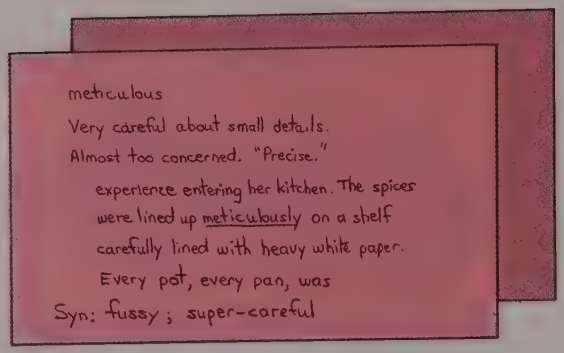
We can associate Joanne's interest in Peruvian weavings, and also the word curator, with her work at the museum. Actually, a curator is a person who is in charge of a department in a museum, library, or art gallery.

A soccer superstar for a dozen years, Ivor remained an enigma to his fans. They could not understand his childlike, stubborn petulance and his sudden temper tantrums. At the same time, they puzzled over his equally sudden bursts of altruism. Within moments, Ivor could be as generous as he had been irascible and mean.

If Ivor's fans could not understand his behavior, even after twelve years, enigma must refer to his puzzling habits. An enigma is a puzzle. Clues to the meaning of petulance are the echo words "childlike, stubborn." Ivor is grumpy, with flashes of quick, unreasonable anger. You can assume that his tantrums are fits of bad temper. He might kick the ball up into the stands, or shout rude remarks to the fans.

If Ivor has all those unpleasant traits, and altruism is strangely different, it might be related to "generous," mentioned in the last sentence. That is exactly right; altruism means unselfish help to others. Now, with all we know about Ivor, irascible becomes quite clear. It is a form of irate, and it means easily angered.

Now that you have seen how the context method works when assessing the meanings of words, you may be ready to use it with some harder examples. (Did assessing stump you? Or did you recognize that it means estimating; forming an opinion of something?) The sample sentences on this page use less of the echo words technique, described on page 210, than the sentences you have worked on so far. But the other techniques for using context clues still obtain. (Note the unusual use of obtain. Very likely you are familiar only with the meaning to get, or gain possession of. In this instance, obtain completes the thought that other techniques exist or are accepted.)



meticulous
Very careful about small details.
Almost too concerned. "Precise." experience entering her kitchen. The spices were lined up meticulously on a shelf carefully lined with heavy white paper.
Every pot, every pan, was Syn: fussy ; super-careful

Make sure your Word Power file grows every day. In a short time you will learn many new words. Use them in your conversation and writing.

Anyone who owns a cat knows that domestic felines have certain behavior patterns. They are unremitting in their care of their fur. All cats' tails undulate gently when cats hunt. And they are discriminating eaters, refusing new or suspicious kinds of food.

This short article is about felines, the family of animals that includes lions, tigers, and "domestic felines" —the ones that live with people. Cats. Unremitting has few context clues. You may have guessed, though, that it means unstopping or ceaseless.

If you have ever seen a cat creeping toward an unsuspecting bird, you know its tail waves gently. It undulates. Discrimination, as we most commonly use it, means to select or choose certain people, for unfair reasons. But discriminating can refer to the careful selection of certain objects. Cats are quite particular— or discriminating— about the food they will accept.

The Milwaukee-based sporting goods company is known for its innovation. It was the first to develop a safe, incombustible tent, and it pioneered an unsinkable, one-hulled catamaran. The company's sales are the cynosure of the industry.

If the company is first to develop one product and "pioneered" another, it is known for its new ideas. That is what innovative means: creative. A safe tent might be one of several kinds, including one that will not blow over. But an incombustible tent is one that cannot burn. Catamarans almost always are boats with two bottoms, or hulls, so a reference to an innovative, unsinkable item of sporting goods with one hull provides a strong context clue to catamaran's meaning. Cynosure refers to sales that are the envy of the industry; other companies admire and look up to that company's record.

Denizens of towns and cities never encounter deer in their natural habitats. The visualize Bambi or Rudolph, lovable big-eyed creatures. Farmers and exurbanites, often plagued by deer, see them as voracious animals that devour crops and shrubbery. Moreover, the marauders never travel alone, but in herds.

Reading all four sentences of the paragraph and then coming back to the target words will make the words' meanings clearer. Denizens must be people who are in towns and cities; actually, it means residents or inhabitants—people who live there. Encounter, in this context, obviously means to meet or see deer. The exact meaning is to meet unexpectedly. What could be a deer's natural habitat? Not towns or cities, but the woods and fields where deer live. (Their habitation is their home, or where they are most likely to be found.) You know that audiovisual is something you hear and see, and that invisible means cannot be seen. Visualize is related to those words; it means to see in your mind, or to imagine. City people imagine that deer are big-eyed, lovable creatures.

Urbanites are people who live in cities. Exurbanites, together with farmers, live far out from cities. You know that a plague is a disaster, generally an epidemic of serious sickness or disease. The word has come to mean any severe annoyance or nuisance. "Animals that devour crops and shrubbery" is a strong clue to the meaning of voracious— a huge appetite; greedy; eats great amounts of food.

Marauders is more difficult; you may have seen an athletic team with that name, and recall them using a pirate as their symbol. Like pirates, marauders roam around, raiding and stealing others' property. They never travel alone, but in bands.

Test questions. There are two kinds of test questions that often appear in civil service, employment, and college entrance examinations. Both kinds ask you to define words in the context of a sentence.

Supply a synonym.

Their lawyer, unfortunately, avoided the salient issues.

scrupulous prominent foreign childish

You are asked to select the word among the four choices that most closely duplicates the meaning of salient.

Starting with scrupulous, which means conscientious, or very careful, we see it makes no sense in that sentence. Prominent, if we recognize it as meaning standing out or important, does make sense. Foreign? Not likely that it would be unfortunate if the lawyer avoided the foreign issues. And the last choice, childish, makes no sense in the context of the sentence.

In most questions of this kind, the possibilities narrow down to two choices, as the other two words are unlikely or obviously unsuitable. When all four, or three of the four, choices are difficult new words, selecting the right answer becomes considerably harder. You will find some of those difficult questions in the samples on this page. All the words you do not know should be added to your Word Power file.

Learning synonyms

1. The Red Cross set up emergency tents in the devastated areas of the valley.
remote wasted elevated largest

1. Devastated means wasted. Think about the Red Cross's mission. Few people live in remote, or far away, sections of the valley. There is no obvious reason to set up tents in elevated, high regions, nor in the largest areas of the valley.

2. After failing two inspections, the diner's license was revoked.
revised released reissued recalled

2. Revoked means recalled. It is clear that the diner lost its license, so revised is inappropriate; it means fixed, or made over. Released, a commonly used word, does not fit either. And the license would not be reissued, or given out again, if the diner failed to pass inspections.

3. Sharks were seen in the vicinity, but all three divers continued their work.
nearby area deeper water emptiness undersea wreck

3. Vicinity means nearby area. Deeper water and undersea wreck might make sense, but vicinity is used in everyday language, and should be recognized. Emptiness is totally out of place in the context of the sentence.

4. Outraged parents and dog lovers sent irate letters to the school board.
legal lengthy angry questioning

4. Irate means angry. "Outraged" is the clue to the tone of the parents' letters. The letters might have been legal, lengthy, or questioning, but angry is the word called for by the context of the sentence.

5. Is the association a vestige of times past, when streets were dusty and unpaved?
trace memory religion raiment

5. Vestige means trace, or remnant, of something that has disappeared over the years. Religion and raiment (clothing) do not make sense. Memory comes close, but it would be awkward referring to an association as a memory of times past.

6. $700,000 was granted to a consortium of four states, to form a defense against tax evaders.
legislatures association treasury police

6. A consortium is an association or grouping together of people or organizations, for a specific purpose. Several churches might form a consortium calling for stricter laws against drunk drivers. Legislatures, a plural word, should not follow the singular article 'a.' One treasury cannot belong to four states. It would be unusual for police to deal with tax evaders.

Fill in the blank. The second type of context-based examination question is like the first kind in that you are offered a choice of four words. But it has a slightly different format. Instead of supplying a synonym for the target word as it is used in a sentence, you are asked to fill in the word—from among the four choices—that best completes the sentence.

Your procedure will be much like the one you followed in answering type 1 questions. Try each of the four words. Think how it relates to the central thought of the sentence. Eliminate the one or two impossible selections. Does either of the remaining words conflict with any of the adjectives (describing words)? Even if you are unfamiliar with a new word's meaning, does it give you a feeling of belonging—of not destroying the sentence's logic?

Choose the right word

1. It was the same _____ whose advice Julius Caesar had ignored.
criminal gesture soothsayer cravat

1. A soothsayer reads such signs as cloud formation or tea leaves, and gives advice. He is a fortune teller. (An old term for truth was sooth; a soothsayer 'says the truth.') Julius Caesar ignored a fortune teller's advice, not a criminal or a gesture. A cravat is a kind of necktie or scarf.

2. We hear about adolescent _____, yet most teenagers in this town are pleasant and likable.
translucence alienation allegory viability

2. Alienation is the right word. Aliens are foreign; they do not belong to the society in which they find themselves. Adolescents sometimes feel out of place, or isolated: alienated. The clue here is knowing that this town's adolescents behave in a manner opposite to alienation; they are pleasant and likable.

3. Imagine Joan's _____ after she prepared that marvelous barbecue and only three guests showed up.
frustration cuisine perception hallucination

3. Frustration is what Joan felt. It means discouragement; a sense of being unable to accomplish one's goal. Cuisine is the French word for kitchen; it is an awkward, improper fit. Perception means vision or seeing. Hallucinations are imaginary sights, nightmares, or the visions of unstable persons.

4. Maria's family was _____, in their sorrow, by a visit from the bishop.
rewarded cosseted controlled consoled

4. Maria's family was comforted in their sorrow; they were consoled by the bishop's visit. He brought them consolation, or sympathy, as well as comfort. There is no reason he would try to reward or control the family. The fourth choice, cosseted, means pampered, petted, or made a great fuss of.

5. When a modern shopping mall opened, the downtown merchants were forced to use strong _____ against it.
textiles tactics statutes covenants

5. The merchants used strong tactics against their competitor, the shopping mall. Those were maneuvers or actions. Two others of the four choices, statutes and covenants, are on the right track. They refer to laws. Textiles is entirely wrong; it means fabrics or materials, like woven cotton in a dress.

6. Secrecy surrounded the ambassador's plans, and his _____ chef was transferred to another post.
rustic perceptive garrulous esteemed

6. The ambassador's chef was garrulous, or talkative. Rustic refers to country life; rough and simple furniture is called rustic furniture. One who sees meanings is called perceptive. And though the chef might have been esteemed—thought well of, or honored—that would have been no reason for the ambassador to transfer him to another post.

Natural settings for words

A powerful aid to remembering the meanings of new words is to discover them in settings that hold interest for you: in the pages of a magazine or book, or on a television or radio broadcast. Here, where your aim is to come into contact with as many new words as possible, the grouping of target words serves as an effective substitute for those "natural" settings.

On the next few pages you will find such headings as Health and medicine, Films and theater, and Sports. For each category, there will be a list of six words, followed by six sentences, each containing one blank space. Select the one word from the list that best completes the thought expressed in each sentence. Below the sentences you will find the correct solutions; often, there also will be a brief explanation for the choice.

Note that you will not be able to use the context method for defining all the words in this section, but it can be applied to many of them. Every word here, though, is a perfect one to add to your growing Word Power file. Make out a card for each and you will add more than six dozen new words to your vocabulary.

Try creating natural settings of your own and provide new words to fit them. Be sure to make your Word Power file grow every day.

Storing your data. One fact of computer life that people often forget (with sometimes tragic results), is that when you turn off the computer, or the power fails, you lose any information that was stored only in the internal electronic memory of the computer. If you want to keep records, balance the checkbook, plan the budget, keep recipe files, or organize your record collection, then you want your computer to remember what you did the last time you used it. This requires a storage device. With inexpensive learning or entertainment computers, the storage device is a cassette recorder. The computer remembers your information by recording it on cassette tapes.

Cassette tapes are the least expensive of the storage devices. Running them is like running a tape recorder: you put the tape in the recorder and push the "play" button. Tapes are slow to use and are not available with a full range of software programs. The advantage is that they are inexpensive and easy to use.

Disks and disk drives. The next step up in computer storage is the floppy disk, which runs on a disk drive. You can upgrade some, but not all, home entertainment computers with a disk drive that will expand the amount of material you can manipulate and store. For a computer and disk drive, you should anticipate spending at least $1000, and should intend using your computer for serious applications, such as running a business from your home.

Disk drives are used by more expensive personal, desk-top, or business computers to store data on disks, either floppy or hard. Disk drives are similar in purpose to a tape recorder that records data on cassette tapes, but the drives are much faster. Unlike a tape recorder, disk drives can "read" data anywhere on a disk without playing through all the recorded material sequentially.

Both floppy disk drives and hard disk drives are usually a physical part of the main computer housing. The essential difference between them is that a floppy disk can be removed from its drive, while a hard disk is permanently fixed in its drive.

Floppy disks may be single- or double-sided, and single- or double-density. Just as a double-sided disk will hold twice as much information as a single-sided disk, a double-density disk holds twice as much information as a single-density disk. A double-sided, double-density disk will hold from 320K to 400K depending on the operating system. Hard disks are available in the 5-, 10- or 20-megabyte (millions of bytes) capacity range.

The storage capacity that you need will be determined for the most part by the applications you intend using the computer for. Some applications programs are very large and can only be stored on one of the higher capacity disks. If you intend to use your computer to create a very large database, you might need a hard disk. Discuss this with a salesman.

Computers and Education

Why are computers good for learning new things? Computers can entertain as they educate, with engaging graphics, colors, sounds, movement, and simulations. Computer learning can be fun.

Computers can force one-to-one attention (one person, teacher, or computer to one student), which is known to speed learning.

Unlike a textbook, computers can encourage you when you have grasped the material. By making a sound or by flashing a message on the screen ("GREAT WORK!"), they can congratulate you on a job well done.

Computers are endlessly patient when you are wrong, going over and over the material until you get it right. No harsh words, no lost tempers.

Young children are especially good candidates for computer education because they are fascinated with how a computer works. Early education software takes advantage of a child's natural delight with games, and combines games with learning to produce a painless teaching environment.

Educational software. A wide variety of educational software is now available for use on home computers. For the most part, they come packaged in one of two ways.

WHAT ABOUT THOSE EXPENSIVE ADD-ONS?

The following are extra features that can be bought as add-on peripheral (ədel) devices or can be built into the computer. They are nonessential, and in some cases quite expensive.

Touch screens	Some computers allow you to tell them what to do by touching the video display screen instead of the keyboard.
Voice	Some computers recognize voice commands. Speech recognition is rudimentary right now, but it is an important feature for those who cannot use a keyboard.
Mice	Using a mouse is another way of telling the computer what to do. Instead of using a typewriter-like keyboard, you use a hand-held controller or mouse, which you move over a rectangular pad. The upper left-hand corner of the pad corresponds to what you see on the upper left-hand corner of the video display screen.
Hard disks	These are storage devices for sophisticated business-type uses of personal computers. They have a storage capacity in the 10-megabyte (millions of bytes) range, as compared with the 180- or 360- kilo byte (thousands of bits) range of floppy disks commonly found on home computers. The disks are sealed inside a disk drive. They can come as part of the computer or they can be bought as extras.
Modems	These devices let a computer talk over telephone lines to other computers. Sometimes a modem is built-in, most common in portable or transportable computers. More often, however, you have to buy the modem. You need a modem to tap into the information services that carry stock quotes, airline guides, and user bulletin boards. If you do not want your computer to communicate with other computers, you do not need a modem.

New words in natural settings

Health and medicine

insomnia intermittently epidemiology anatomical chronic sedentary

1. _____ liver disease is diagnosed without much difficulty using techniques easily available to most doctors.
2. A _____ person has much lower resistance to muscular strains than one who is active.
3. The symptoms were not present constantly, but appeared _____.
4. Determining rates of disease in population groups, and studying the causes, is what _____ is all about.
5. The amount of sleep necessary for good health varies from person to person, and _____ can cause serious discomfort.
6. Through endless study of the body, Galen, who died in 203 A.D., became known as the father of _____ research.

1. chronic: lasting for a long time; continual. It refers to time, as in chronometer, a precise clock or watch. 2. sedentary: too much sitting; too little exercise. An active person is exactly the opposite of one who is sedentary. 3. intermittently: stopped and started. The symptoms appeared and disappeared, or were intermittent, which is why they were not present constantly. 4. epidemiology: the sentence itself is a definition of the word. It is related to epidemic, a widespread incidence of disease in a community or territory. 5. insomnia: inability to sleep; unhealthy wakefulness. A somnolent person is a sleepy one; insomnia is the opposite condition. 6. anatomical: the structure of the body, or any of its parts. Anatomy sometimes is used in its wider sense, meaning a general structure: She understood the anatomy of company management, and was well paid for her knowledge.

New words in natural settings

Buying a home

prospectus amortize condominium panorama amenities modular

1. We decided to buy the house when we stood on the front steps and saw the _____ of autumn leaves.
2. Did you know that your neighbors were musicians before you bought the _____?
3. The description in the _____ was far different from the building we saw when we drove out to the lake.
4. "Are you prepared to _____ this debt in 20 years?" asked the banker.
5. It was a wonderful day for the Kroeger family, for their _____ home was finally delivered from the factory.
6. The _____, including the carpeting, were attractive, but they brought the price up beyond our reach.

1. panorama: unlimited view over a wide area. 2. condominium: apartment or portion of a building owned by its occupants, while the rest of the building, and the grounds around it, are owned in common with other owners. 3. prospectus: a brochure (booklet) that describes a property offered for sale. A prospect is an expectation; a prospectus tells what you can expect from your purchase of this property. 4. amortize: to pay off a debt in a specified amount of time—in this instance, 20 years. 5. modular: made in parts that are later assembled. A child's building blocks are modular toys. A modular home, like a block construction, is composed of separate parts that fit together. 6. amenities: things that increase an object's value or comfort. A swimming pool, sun deck, and wall-to-wall carpeting are amenities. Another use of the word refers to social courtesies or pleasantries: Charlie overlooked the amenities, and Martha never forgave him for his rudeness.

Design and fashion

nonchalant pretentious beguiling intricately repertoire hybrid

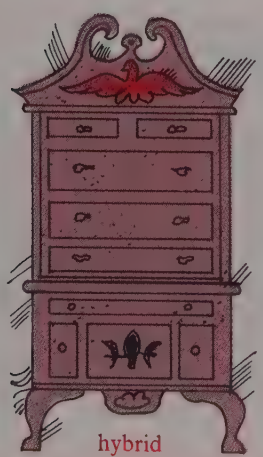
1. The furniture seemed a _____ of two styles, French provincial and early American.
2. We admired Robert's _____ appearance as he strolled along the boulevard with his fiancée.
3. Doris selected a _____ version of a modern classic, the coatdress.
4. Above the mantel was a mirror with an _____ carved wooden frame.
5. Kate decided not to buy the bracelet, calling it "_____ and showy."
6. After she had attended four sessions of the sewing class, Beverly's _____ of techniques had tripled.



hybrid

1. hybrid: mixture. The word's origin is in the natural sciences, where selected strains of plants and animals are bred to produce hybrids with mixed characteristics. 2. nonchalant: a word borrowed from the French, meaning casual, cool, unworried. Robert's carefree appearance could also be described as debonair. 3. beguiling: demanding attention, or distracting. At the same time, it means charming or delightful. Bewitching is sometimes used as a synonym for beguiling. 4. intricately: the frame has many carefully carved details; intricate means elaborate, or done with a great deal of skill and effort. 5. pretentious: demanding attention that is not justified. Showy is an echo word with almost the same meaning and tone; so is ostentatious, which can be added to your Word Power file. 6. repertoire: a person's, or group's, range of skills and accomplishments. This word, like nonchalant and many others in the world of fashion and design, is borrowed from the French. It originally referred to the songs, plays, or compositions that dramatic or musical groups were able to perform. An English version of the word, used in that theatrical sense, is repertory.

Sports

foiled caliber interim regimen grimaced spate

regimen

1. When Dr. Newbold retired, Chris Stanley was named as _____ head coach of the Blue Devils.
2. Josephine had unusual natural ability, but was unwilling to stick to the training _____ demanded of professional athletes.
3. He fell on the field and _____ in intense pain after colliding with Parrish.
4. A _____ of matches against weak opponents gave Miss Yerby a strong boost in the tournament standings.
5. An eighth-inning triple by Hunt _____ pitcher Ken Leslie's attempt at a no-hitter.
6. Reporters agreed Miss Bryant was a superior player, but not quite Olympic _____.

1. interim: temporary, or the time between. Chris Stanley's appointment is not permanent. He will act as head coach only between the time that Dr. Newbold resigned and a new coach is appointed. 2. regimen: a system or process; routine procedures. Governments, or regimes, control the way many things are done, and regimen is formed from that word. 3. grimaced: made a distorted or "scrunched-up" facial expression. A grimace usually indicates pain, though sometimes it expresses anger or displeasure. 4. spate: a sudden rush. Miss Yerby had a flood of tennis matches, all during a short time. Spate's original meaning was a sudden downpour of heavy rain. 5. foiled: upset, or prevented from being successful. A synonym is thwarted. 6. caliber: a measure of worth or quality. The inside of a gun barrel is measured as .22, .38, or some other specific caliber. From that single meaning, the measure of a bullet's size, the word has come to mean a measure of any kind.

More sports

climactic peripheral disparity conceded soared snared

peripheral

1. "Most of my shots from mid-court are lucky to hit the rim," Anna _____.
2. Jerry Lloyd caught a seemingly impossible pass and trotted away with the _____ six points.
3. The crowd rose to its feet when Thompson _____ a line drive in the third inning.
4. A split second after the ball met her bat, it _____ into the left-field stands.
5. Crowley was paid a star's salary, but was kept in a _____ position all season.
6. Marge acknowledged the _____ in their national rankings, but insisted on first-class travel accommodations.

1. conceded: gave, admitted, yielded; acknowledged as true. Anna admitted that most of her shots from mid-court fell short. 2. climactic: refers to a climax, the final and most important part of an action. 3. snared: trapped, or caught. A snare is a trap for catching animals or birds, but the word has come to have a broader meaning. 4. soared: flew through the air. Hawks soar above valleys, and baseballs soar when a batter hits a high fly. 5. peripheral: off to one side; not in the center of things. 6. disparity: inequality. Marge may have ranked 34th, but she insisted on the same accommodations (airplane seats and hotel rooms) as the top-ranking players.

New words in natural settings

Films and theater

antagonist documentary choreographer improvise interlude genre

1. The city council budgeted $500,000 to make a _____ film about its new mental health center.
2. After a brief musical _____, the curtain rose on the second act of Shakespeare's comedy.
3. "I'm particularly proud to be awarded this Oscar," she said, "because romances are my favorite _____ of film."
4. In those early James Cagney movies, it was usually a G-man or detective who was Jimmy's _____.
5. The brilliant young team of comics rarely work from a script; they _____ nearly every sketch they perform.
6. By the time she had grown too old for an active career as a dancer, she had begun to win notice as a _____.

1. documentary: factual. Most documentary films explain a social, historical, or natural event as accurately as possible, using a narrator's (announcer's) voice rather than actors' speeches. 2. interlude: something that comes between the acts of a theatrical entertainment. The word's meaning extends beyond the theater to indicate any in-between period or activity, such as an interlude between wars. 3. genre: type, class, or style. The actress may have felt comfortable acting in comedies and mysteries, too, but romances were her favorite type of movie. 4. antagonist: a person who is opposed to another one; an adversary. The opposite of antagonist is protagonist, a person who is friendly—a hero. 5. improvise: invent, or make up as one goes along. 6. choreographer: a person who creates dances or ballets.

Food

piquant cholesterol mandatory ramekin complement entails

DIET SODA
USE OF THIS PRODUCT MAY BE HAZ
ARDOUS TO YOUR HEALTH. THIS PRODUCT CONTAINS SACCHARIN WHICH HAS BEEN DETERMINED TO CAUSE CANCER IN LABORATORY
mandatory

1. Excess amounts of _____, a substance present in dairy products and animal fats, should be avoided.
2. More and more consumers are taking time to read the _____ information printed on food package labels.
3. Following her aunt's recipes, Molly made some of the most _____ sauces we ever had tasted.
4. Ron has become a popular host ever since he has learned that barbecuing _____ constant, extremely high heat.
5. They ended the meal with a _____ of custard for each guest.
6. In some Near Eastern recipes, raisins are used as a tasty _____ to rice.

1. cholesterol is defined in the sentence. A doctor or nurse can advise you about diets that contain normal and excessive amounts of cholesterol. 2. mandatory: required by regulations. Laws require food manufacturers to list the ingredients of their products on the packages. Mandates are regulations that must be obeyed. 3. piquant: spicy; pleasantly sharp taste. The word is an uncommon one, but would make a fine addition to anyone's vocabulary. 4. entails: is a necessary part of an action or thing. Cooking over extremely high heat is a necessary part of barbecuing. In legal matters, to entail has a totally different meaning—to prevent the transfer of property or real estate: The building's title was entailed, so the owner was not allowed to sell it. 5. ramekin: a small dish, used for both baking and serving individual portions. 6. complement: something that completes a whole, or goes with another thing. To avoid confusing this word with compliment (making pleasant or flattering comments), remember that complement and complete both begin with comple.

Law and courtroom procedure ordinance warrant jeopardy precedent jurisdiction

arraignment

1. The court issued a search _____, and Sgt. Mellon made the arrest.
2. Within a week, he appeared at his _____ and entered a plea of "not guilty."
3. Mary had never heard of the antinoise _____, but still was ordered to pay the fine.
4. "This court has no _____ over matters in Jefferson County," the judge explained.
5. The Constitution prohibits trials that would put a defendant in double _____.
6. "This may set a _____ for families with similar problems," she told the judge.

1. warrant: a certificate authorizing an officer to make an arrest or search or seize property. 2. arraignment: a time at which an accused person is called before a court. Arraignments take place before trials are scheduled. 3. ordinance: a law or regulation. A similar word, lacking an "i," is ordnance; it has an entirely different meaning—military weapons and ammunition. 4. jurisdiction: the right and power to apply the law; or the territory in which a law is applied. Words that begin with jur refer to law —among them are juror, jury, and jursiprudence (formal study of the law). 5. jeopardy: risk or danger. In courtrooms, jeopardy refers to the danger of being found guilty and convicted. The Constitution states that a person can be tried only once for any crime; he cannot be put at risk twice for the same crime. 6. precedent: an action or legal decision that sets an example for similar cases that follow.

Books and reading creed

squibs narrative paraphrase appendix
prose

1. "To _____ Gertrude Stein," he wrote, "a dog is a dog is a dog."
2. Berryman had gained his reputation as a poet, but _____ seemed beyond his reach.
3. We looked carefully through the _____, but could not find the source of the statistics in chapter 4.
4. The author said that this is her _____: "Never take your writing too seriously—or too lightly."
5. It was a lively _____, but far too long to finish reading in one evening.
6. Young E. B. White got his start writing _____ that were published in newspapers of the day.

1. paraphrase: put someone else's writings or thoughts in your own language, or change them somewhat. Gertrude Stein, a noted author of the 1920's, had written ". . . a rose is a rose is a rose." 2. prose: ordinary speech or writing, not poetry. Novels and newspapers are written in prose. 3. appendix: additional material that "hangs" at the end of a book. 4. creed: a statement of belief or opinion. 5. narrative: story. A reporter might narrate a true story, while a comedian might narrate a series of jokes that he made up on his way to the studio. 6. squibs: short, usually humorous, items in a newspaper or magazine. Squibs are used by editors to fill the space at the bottom of a column of print.

creed

"I believe in the supreme worth of the individual and in his right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

—JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

New words in natural settings

Music

libretto uninhibited syncopated searing idiom ovation

1. Until we got to New Orleans, we had never heard the wonderful tones of rhythmic, _____ riverboat music.
2. Her _____ high notes won Miss Larcher a Golden Recording award.
3. The audience rose to its feet in a wild, frenzied _____.
4. Ray Charles's vocal style was strongly influenced by a modern gospel _____.
5. Once he had the idea for an opera's music, Mozart searched for a poet who could write a suitable _____.
6. Her boisterous, _____ approach to country music made her a great favorite on the West Coast.

1. syncopated: music played with a strong beat where it might normally be expected to have a weaker beat. Dixieland music has a toe-tapping, syncopated quality. 2. searing: literally means scorching or burning. In music, searing refers to extremely high notes, sung or played on an instrument. 3. ovation: continued, enthusiastic applause. We often hear the phrase standing ovation to describe a wildly cheering audience that has risen to its feet in tribute to a performer. (Are you sure about the meaning of "frenzied" in sentence 3? Check it in the dictionary if you have any doubt.) 4. idiom: a special style of artistic expression. Singers might be influenced by a gospel idiom, an operatic idiom, or any of many other schools of singing. The word more often refers to spoken or written language that is not easily understood by anyone who is a foreigner to that language. "Up to snuff" is an idiomatic expression. 5. libretto: the words that are sung in an opera. 6. uninhibited: unrestrained; not held back. A singer who lets herself go is uninhibited.

Personalities

contagious tenacity affability skylarking boisterous sarcastic

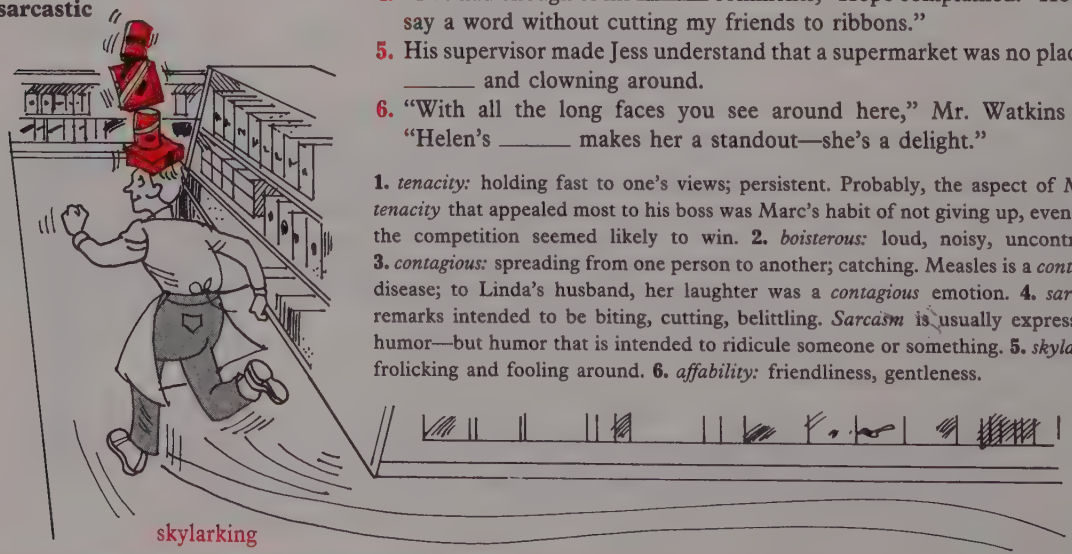
1. Marc's reputation for _____ helped when the vice president was deciding whom to make sales manager.
2. Not everyone appreciated Linda's _____ laughter, but her husband never failed to enjoy it.
3. When Linda laughed, Harry found it _____; it broke him up and left him gasping.
4. "I've had enough of his _____ comments," Hope complained. "He can't say a word without cutting my friends to ribbons."
5. His supervisor made Jess understand that a supermarket was no place for _____ and clowning around.
6. "With all the long faces you see around here," Mr. Watkins said, "Helen's _____ makes her a standout—she's a delight."



skylarking

1. tenacity: holding fast to one's views; persistent. Probably, the aspect of Marc's tenacity that appealed most to his boss was Marc's habit of not giving up, even when the competition seemed likely to win. 2. boisterous: loud, noisy, uncontrolled. 3. contagious: spreading from one person to another; catching. Measles is a contagious disease; to Linda's husband, her laughter was a contagious emotion. 4. sarcastic: remarks intended to be biting, cutting, belittling. Sarcasm is usually expressed as humor—but humor that is intended to ridicule someone or something. 5. skylarking: frolicking and fooling around. 6. affability: friendliness, gentleness.

Gardening

herbicide lobes defoliate prostrate dormant variegated

defoliate

1. It was an uncommon type of ivy, with a streaked, _____ leaf.
2. Don paid no attention to the warning on the _____ label, so he killed all the grass in his front yard.
3. "Don't worry," she told me, "these bushes aren't dead. They are _____ in the winter."
4. The rounded _____ of the leaf were the size of half dollars.
5. It resembled a moss, lying low along the soil, but we learned it was a healthy _____ shrub.
6. It took the beetles only four days to completely _____ our entire crop of peas.

1. variegated: patches of different color. Streaked is an echo word that gives a strong clue to the meaning of variegated. 2. herbicide: a substance that kills plants. Words ending in icide refer to death—suicide, killing oneself; matricide, killing one's mother; fungicide, killing fungi (mushroomlike plants). 3. dormant: inactive, resting, seemingly asleep. Dormant plants grow leaves and become active in the spring. A related word, dormitory, means place where people sleep. 4. lobes: rounded parts. You will recall that the rounded, lower part of your ear is called an earlobe. 5. prostrate: in plants, growing flat along the ground. People who prostrate themselves bow or kneel down before a superior person; sometimes they throw themselves flat on the ground. 6. defoliate: to remove all the leaves from a plant or tree. Leaves are referred to as foliage; to remove them is to defoliate them, as to remove frost from frozen food is to defrost it.

Television

indispensable vernacular ennui eclipsed absorbed chide

1. In surveys among American families, television has _____ radio in listener-hours per household.
2. It is the one medium _____ by all ages: small children, adolescents, young adults, and the elderly.
3. Politicians find television _____ for getting their messages into voters' households.
4. On newscasts, political candidates gain the opportunity to _____ their opponents and be seen by huge audiences.
5. "We ran my comedy series for five years, and then dropped it before _____ set in," she explained.
6. The newscaster's popularity was due, in part, to his use of the _____.

1. eclipsed: we know that as television has become more important over the years, radio has become less so. Eclipse originally referred to one star or planet being hidden behind another. It now means any person's or thing's giving way to a more popular one. 2. absorbed: taken up. All ages are totally interested in watching television. A synonym is engrossed. 3. indispensable: cannot do without; necessary. 4. chide: scold, reprimand, or express disapproval. 5. ennui: boredom, general dissatisfaction. (A French word, pronounced ahn-we'.) 6. vernacular: commonly used language, as opposed to the more formal, literary language used in some books and newspapers.

Pairs, pears

Our language is laced with sets of words that sound alike—or enough alike to confuse many people—yet have entirely different meanings. On these pages we offer some of the most confusing of those pairs of words and their definitions. Be on the lookout, as you read and listen during the coming months, for additional pairs of "confusers." Adding these pairs to your Word Power file is a diverting way to build your vocabulary.

A military colonel and a seed or grain called a kernel are pronounced the same but spelled very differently.

annal, annual. An annal is a written chronicle or record of events. The annals of baseball. Annual means yearly. We payed our annual taxes.

arc, ark. An arc is a curved or arched shape resembling a rainbow. An ark is a boat. In the Old Testament, the ark was Noah's boat during the Flood.

ardorous, arduous. A person who is ardorous has strong emotions, enthusiasms, or love. An arduous task is a difficult one, filled with hardship.

bazaar, bizarre. Bazaar refers to one shop, or a street of shops, selling various items. Bizarre means odd or extraordinary. A bizarre costume.

carat, carrot. A carat (also spelled karat) is a unit of weight for gems and jewels. A half-carat diamond. Carrots are common, orange-colored vegetables.

cite, site. To cite is to mention or quote as proof. Their record was cited in the World Almanac. A site is a place, or the location of a building or group of buildings. The mayor conducted an on-site inspection.

colonel, kernel. A military colonel (ker'-nell) is an officer ranking above a lieutenant colonel and below a brigadier general. A kernel is a grain or seed, usually one that can be eaten.

deceased, diseased. A deceased person is a dead person. One who is diseased is sick, infected, cannot function normally.

decent, descent. A decent appearance or person is modest, not shocking, meeting accepted standards. A decent rate of pay. Descent is the act of moving downward. Sometimes it means following from. She traced the descent of jazz from early 20th-century New Orleans to today.

demean, demeanor. To demean oneself is to act in a way that causes a loss of dignity and respect. Demeanor is the manner in which a person conducts himself; a synonym is deportment.

flounder, founder. A flounder is a flat saltwater fish. To flounder means to flop around clumsily, like a fish out of water; to be off balance. To founder is to sink. John quit the foundering company means that John quit because the company was going under.

flout, flaunt. To flout means to disobey openly and scornfully. He flouted the law. To flaunt, on the other hand, means to display proudly or in a showy way. She flaunted her new red dress. A man who flaunts his disrespect for women flouts the common courtesies of civilization.

gauge, gouge. A gauge (gayj) is a meter or dial for measuring an activity or amount. It is also the act of measuring or estimating. A gouge (gowj) is a chisel-like tool, or the scooping-out action of such a tool.

hawk, hock. A hawk is a falcon, or eaglelike, bird. To hawk is slang for to sell by calling out. He hawked programs in the theater lobby. To hock is slang for to pawn—to pledge personal property in return for a cash loan.

impromptu, improper. An impromptu speech is one given without preparation or rehearsal. An improper action is one that is irregular, not suitable, offensive.

language, languish. Language is the spoken words and written symbols that humans use to communicate thoughts. To languish is to lose strength, to become feeble and weak; to lie around doing nothing; to be neglected.

lop, lope. To cut off, or trim, part of a bush or tree is to lop it off. To lope is to run, or to ride a horse, at a steady, even rate.

lucid, ludicrous. Lucid writing is easily understood; its meaning is clear. A person who is lucid is sane and can make himself understood. Ludicrous statements or actions are laughable, ridiculous, or absurd.

lumbar, lumber. Lumbar refers to the lower back. She had a pinched nerve in her lumbar vertebrae. Lumber is wood in the form of boards or planks.

miller, milliner. A miller mills, or grinds, grain into flour or meal. A milliner makes or sells women's hats.

morning, mourning. Morning is the early part of the day, from sunrise to noon. Mourning is grieving for the dead. Bereavement is a synonym for mourning.

noisome, noisy. A noisome odor is one that is foul or disgusting, or giving off dangerous fumes. Noisy means making sounds, usually loud and unwanted.

occult, oculist. Occult happenings are supernatural, unexplained, ghostly. An oculist is an eye doctor—sometimes called an optometrist.

pampas, pamper. The pampas is a huge grassy area of South America, principally in Argentina, much like our Western prairies. To pamper is to pay too much attention to one's own, or another's, desires. Indulge and spoil are synonyms for pamper.

pitfall, pitiful. Pitfalls are traps made by digging deep holes, then covering them over lightly. Pitfall also means a danger that is not easily seen. Pitiful means pathetic; arousing sorrow. Less charitably, it can mean inferior.

quarry. Quarry has two entirely different meanings: 1) an open mine or pit, as a gravel quarry; 2) a hunted animal, or a person who is pursued.

quota, quote. A quota is a number of persons or things. The number is calculated to make the quota become a certain share of the whole. To quote is to repeat or copy another's words. It also means to state a price.

rouse, ruse. To rouse (rhymes with how's) someone is to wake him from sleep, or excite him into activity. A ruse is a trick, or ploy, meant to mislead someone.

scarce, scares. A scarce item is one that is seldom seen or found; it is rare. A dog that scares the neighbors is one that frightens them.

several, severance. Several means more than two or three, but not many. She drew several flowers in a bowl. Severance is the act of cutting off or separating. The company gave Ruth a large amount of severance pay.

sheik, chic. A sheik is the leader of an Arab family or tribe. Chic (sheek) is a French word meaning stylish; sophisticated and classy.

slew. Slew has two entirely different meanings: 1) killed (the past form of slay); 2) a large amount of things or people. We watched a whole slew of actors perform.

stake, steak. A wooden or metal stake is sharp at one end, which is hammered into the ground. A steak is the familiar cut of beef or other meat.

tracked, tract. Tracked is the past form of to track, to follow footprints or other traces or also to observe. The police tracked her on their radar. Tract has two meanings: 1) a piece of property or land; 2) a booklet or paper stating a special point of view, such as a political tract.

vanish, varnish. To vanish is to disappear; to be no longer able to be seen. Varnish is a paintlike coating for surfaces, usually wooden. It leaves a hard, smooth finish.

Groups of word parts

In classrooms and textbooks, it has long been the custom to teach vocabulary lessons through word parts. This method is also called derivations, because many of our English words are derived from (came from, or arrived from) Latin and Greek terms.

In all likelihood, you are not a student of Latin or Greek, so you will benefit from the more practical nonderivative techniques for building Word Power in this section of your handbook. Yet, you should still know just a few word-source facts.

> ben, the first part of benefit, is called a prefix. Ben means good, and the whole word means good deed or advantage. Other words starting with ben are benediction, good speech or blessing; and benevolent, kindly, or one who is charitable.

Here are four of the hundreds of word parts that form our modern English language.

aud—hear

- audience—people gathered to hear an event
- audition—hear actors or musicians demonstrate their skills
- audiophile—person extremely interested in hearing sounds, particularly electronic reproduction

locut, loqu—to talk, speak

- loquacious—talkative; garrulous
- colloquy—conversation; talking together
- ventriloquist—person who makes his voice "come from his stomach"
- interlocutor—person who speaks between, or interrupts.
- soliloquy—one person's thoughts; a speech by one person in a play

nav—ship

- naval—pertaining to ships or a navy
- navigable—water deep enough to sail on
- navigate—to control the course of a ship or an airplane

pend—to hang, or be inclined toward

- pendulum—hangs from a clock's works
- depend—to hang on, or need, someone or something
- impending—hanging on, or waiting, for an event to take place
- appendage—a connected part, perhaps hanging from the main part

15 days to a forceful vocabulary

Studies have shown that the average American uses relatively few words—about 2000—for normal conversation. That same person may recognize another 12,000 to 13,000 words when he hears or sees them. But he hesitates to try them; he feels uncomfortable because he is not certain of the meanings of the words.

If you have been adding 40 or more words a week to your working vocabulary, you are moving far ahead of the average. Here is a way to boost your rate even higher. In just 15 days, you can add approximately 125 new terms to your working stock. Spend only 15 minutes a day beyond your regular Word Power activities and you will have accomplished that gain in less than three weeks!

Each day's activity is designed to be stimulating and enjoyable. Yet, before you start, keep in mind that there is nothing magical about the number "15." If an unexpected drain on your time prevents you from working the plan suggested for day six on the day following day five, do not be concerned. As long as you eventually get back to the routine, and maintain your Word Power file at the same time, the plan will work.

DAY 1: A few cents' worth

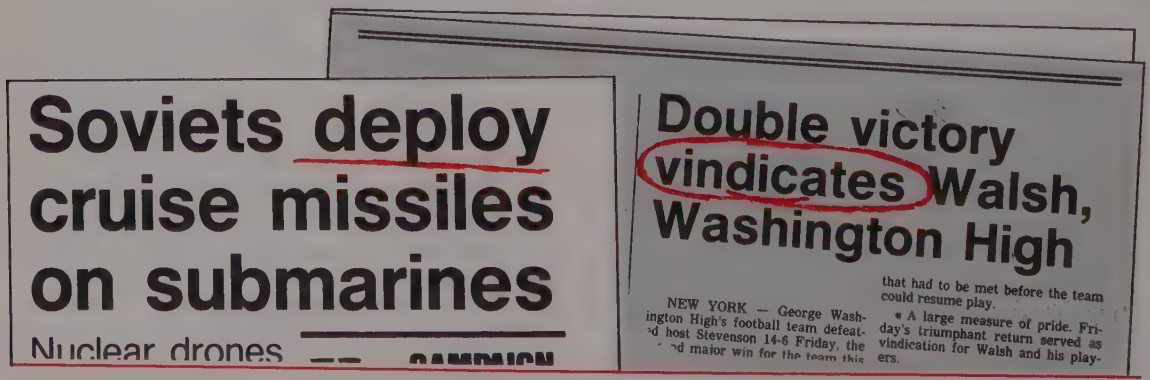
A daily newspaper is the easiest and least expensive source of new words. For variety and added challenge, get a copy of an out-of-town paper: one from the largest city in your state or a neighboring state. Or get a Washington, D.C., Houston, or New York daily, or The Wall Street Journal.

Make a list of eight or ten words that you are not sure about, and the sentences in which you find them. Using your dictionary, add them to your Word Power file.

Here are eight sentences, slightly paraphrased, from papers published on the same day in Illinois, Florida, and California.

1. Hungary was the first Soviet bloc nation to question the agricultural policy.
2. As he has during much of his tenure, Mr. Richards took issue with the district attorney.
3. "We cannot continue to operate on this level, at only half of our full sales potential."
4. All except one commander agreed to a phased withdrawal of the land forces.
5. Eight more terrorists were seen on the outskirts of the city.
6. His manager demanded an aplogy, saying, "They cannot call Sam a demagogue and get away with it."
7. The state of Colorado argued that it had not delegated that authority to Boulder.
8. "They never actually said we lied, but I do believe the word prevaricate was heard."

1. bloc: a group of organizations, nations, or persons united for a common purpose. 2. tenure: the time during which a person holds an office or a job. 3. potential: capability for growth that has not yet been realized. 4. phased: done in stages. In phase one they pulled out the tanks, in phase two the artillery. 5. outskirts: parts away from the central area; the periphery. 6. demagogue: an unprincipled political leader who appeals to the emotions of citizens. 7. delegated: a person or organization authorized to act for, or represent, another. 8. prevaricate: to avoid the truth, or twist it to one's purposes.



Soviets deploy cruise missiles on submarines
Nuclear drones
Double victory vindicates Walsh, Washington High NEW YORK — George Washington High's football team defeated host Stevenson 14-6 Friday, the that had to be met before the team could resume play.
• A large measure of pride. Friday's triumphant return served as vindication for Walsh and his players.

DAY 2: Upping the price slightly

Move upward, in price and degree of specialization, from newspapers to magazines. The periodicals that are most widely read—People, Time, Cosmopolitan, and Reader's Digest, among others—are good sources of vocabulary-stretching words.

Any single issue is almost sure to provide several useful additions to your Word Power file. The sentences to the right were gathered from just three magazines.

1. Reservation services often are biased in an airline's favor.
2. Pain caused by bursitis can become excruciating with the slightest movement.
3. A mix of traditional English and American styles produced the rich patina of years.
4. It was a premise stated with authority, but one we had great difficulty accepting.
5. I had become adept at using the smaller keyboard.
6. Pat's high school ring had something resembling an amethyst at the center.
7. Trend-conscious designers abandoned the "layered look."

1. biased: prefers one person or thing; prejudiced. 2. excruciating: intensely, agonizingly painful. 3. patina: appearance of aging. Originally, a thin coating of brown or green on bronze or other metals. 4. premise: an underlying or basic statement that can be assumed to be true. 5. adept: skillful. 6. amethyst: a purple semiprecious stone. 7. trend: movement toward a new fashion or style.

DAY 3: Name-words

Late in the 19th century, all across the United States people watched for news of the completion of the Brooklyn Bridge. Knowing it was the focus of so much attention, a publicity-seeking young man called the newspapers, climbed one of the towers, and dived into the East River. He survived the dive, and his name survives in the language as a synonym for "high dive" or "publicity stunt." He was Steve Brody, the originator of "taking a Brody."

Once you know the stories behind some of the names that have become often-used words in our language, it becomes easier to remember their meanings and how they are used. Here is a group of such words—some of them derived from names, others from places.

gerrymander

Annie Oakley: a free pass to a show or concert is called an Annie Oakley. Annie was a star of Buffalo Bill Cody's Wild West Show in the 1890's; she shot holes in playing cards and other small targets. A free ticket, punched full of holes, reminded people of her act.

bowdlerize: to take out from, or change, portions of a book that are thought to be offensive. In 1818 an Englishman, Thomas Bowdler, published an edition of Shakespeare's plays "suitable for reading aloud to a family." Bowdlerized versions of stories or plays often are weaker and less effective than the originals.

boycott: to refuse to have anything to do with a person or thing. Captain Boycott was a land agent in Ireland who was shunned by everyone because he bought up the property of evicted farmers.

billingsgate: rude, abusive, often foul language. A fishmarket has been located for centuries near the ancient London tower of Billingsgate. The language used there by fish merchants gave rise to the word.

donnybrook: a brawl or free-for-all commotion. Yearly, in Donnybrook, Ireland, a fair was held. Every year there were said to be blackened eyes, bloodied noses, and many arrests.

Draconian: extremely harsh. Draco was a Greek lawmaker who ruled that death must be the punishment for all crimes, even small ones. A Draconian measure is a severe ruling.

gerrymander: to divide a voting district into parts that give an unfair advantage to one party. Elbridge Gerry, 1744–1814, was a governor of Massachusetts who created an odd-shaped election district that looked like a salamander.

malapropism: a comical confusion of words, especially those that sound alike ("a shrewed (for rude) awakening"). The word comes from Mrs. Malaprop in a famous comedy, The Rivals, by Richard Sheridan.

DAY 4: Time-words

Hundreds of words in our language have prefixes, or parts placed in front of a main stem, that give a special meaning to the word. Some of the most commonly used prefixes indicate time; that is, one action's occurrence in relation to another's. Looking at a few examples of the way these prefixes work is the easiest way to understand prefixes that indicate time.

ante (Latin): before antebellum before the Civil War (bellum = war).
antedate at a time before the time mentioned.

archa (Greek): old archaeology the study of old (ancient) life and culture.
archaic belonging to a much earlier time.

neo (Greek): new neoclassicism revival of classical form in arts.
neologism a recently invented word or phrase.
neonate a newborn infant.

post (Latin): after postdate to use a date, as on a check, later than the actual date.
postmeridian afternoon (meridian is the highest part of the sun's course across the sky).

pre (Latin): before preadolescence a child's age, ten to twelve, before adolescence.
predict to say, or make known, before an act happens.
premature growing or existing before the customary time.

re (Latin): again rebound bounce back again.
recognize know something or someone again.
rehearse practice in preparation for a performance (originally, hear again).

DAY 5: Your lucky number

As a change from yesterday's word-gathering based on formations and derivations from classical languages, try this relaxer. Write down any seven numbers from one to one thousand—roughly, the number of pages in your dictionary. Then turn to each of those numbered pages. Select any unknown words on those pages that come to your notice. Make a Word Power card for them, and put the cards in your file.

Here are ten "lucky number words" chosen by one word-collector on a recent evening.

deride (p. 204 in his dictionary): to speak with scorn, laughter, or contempt; to ridicule.

astral (p. 45): of or about the stars; star-shaped.

nectar (p. 501): the drink of the mythic gods; any sweet or delicious drink.

polyp (p. 579): a growth in the lining of the stomach, nose, or other body part.

extort (p. 267): to gain something by forcing it from another person, often by threats or intimidation.

compunction (p. 155): a sense of guilt; uneasiness.

legume (p. 428): a plant, eaten as a vegetable, that bears seeds in a pod (as peas or beans).

sobriquet (p. 709): a nickname; an alias or assumed name.

triturate (p. 800): to grind or crush into a very fine powder; to chew thoroughly.

quadruped (p. 609): any animal with four feet.

legroom 428 leprechaun

of mutton: said of a sleeve that puffs out toward the shoulder, etc.
leg·room (leg′ro͞om′) n. adequate space for the legs while seated, as in a car leg·ume (leg′yo͞om, li gyo͞om′) n. [< Fr. < L. legumen < legere, to gather] 1. any of a large family of plants, including the peas, beans, clovers, etc., with fruit that is a pod splitting along two sutures: many legumes are nitrogen-fixing 2. the pod or seed of some members of this family, used for food le·gu·mi·nous (li gyo͞o′min əs) adj. 1. of, having the nature of, or bearing legumes 2. of the family of plants to length·en (-'n) vt., vi. to make or become longer —length′·en·er n.
length·wise (-wīz′) adv., adj. in the direction of the length: also length′ways′ (-wāz′) length·y (-ē) adj. length′i·er, length′i·est long; esp., too long —length′i·ly adv. —length′i·ness n.
le·ni·ent (lē′ni ənt, lēn′yənt) adj. [< L. prp. of lenire, to soften < lenis, soft] not harsh or severe in disciplining, judging, etc.; mild; merciful —le′ni·en·cy, pl. -cies, le′ni·ence n. —le′ni·ent·ly adv.
Len·in (len′in; Russ. lye′nyin), V(ladimir) I(lyich) (orig. surname Ulyanov; also called Nikolai Lenin) 1870–1924; Russ. Communist revolutionary leader; premier of the DAY 6: The study of studies

Any word that ends in ology refers to the study of, or the science of, the subject named in the first part of the word. Since that hard-to-know first part is sometimes a Greek or Latin word, your job is not easy. Dermatology, for example, is the study of the skin—and a dermatologist is a doctor who specializes in that study.

As your working vocabulary widens, you will find many basic word parts appearing again and again. You will recognize derm as part of hypodermic—under the skin—and the meaning of dermatologist will be reinforced.

For now, here are 14 study of words. They will form the nucleus (core; center) of this part of your vocabulary.

anthropology: the study of the biologic history and habits of mankind.
archaeology: the study of ancient civilizations through buildings, pottery, and other traces that remain.
biology: the study of life processes and living organisms.
chronology: time-connected studies. The word has come to mean a sequence of events, as they took place in time.
entomology: the study of insects.
etymology: the study of words—how they originated and how they took their present form. (Do not confuse this word with the previous one. There is an "n" in insect—and none in etymology.) geology: the study of the structure and development of Earth's crust and its strata.
ichthyology: the study of fish.
meteorology: the study of the atmosphere.
oenology: the study of wine making.
ornithology: the study of birds.
philology: the study of languages and their development.
psychology: the study of the mind, mental processes, and the way humans respond to events around them.
theology: the study of religion.

DAY 7: Words that are before

We have already seen two word parts that mean before in the sense of time, or when an event happened. One is ante; the other is pre. Both come to us from Latin and are in common use. Another Latin word part that we use frequently also means before, but in the sense of in front of, concerned with space rather than time. It is pro, the first syllable of the following nine words.

proboscis: a long, flexible nose, as of an elephant. Also, an insect's noselike feeding tube. A human nose, if large, is sometimes called a proboscis.
proceed: to go before.
prodigal: wasteful, reckless, extravagant. The word's origin is not easily recognized in English, but in Latin it means driving recklessly ahead.
produce: to bring forth, make, or give rise to. Its roots are in to lead forward.
profile: the outline of a human head or other object. Also, an essay, graph, or table summarizing an idea or thing; it goes before a full, extended description.
program: a listing of events. It is writing that comes before the event.
progress: movement forward, or toward a goal.
prologue: a short speech or dramatic action presented before a play begins.
promontory: a high ridge of land extending out into the sea.

DAY 8: Words that are against, and some that are with

It is possible that this sudden immersion (dunking; a teabag is immersed in hot water) into the ancient roots of words has proved confusing. So day eight will be used to clarify a few of the ideas that may have bewildered you.

Take ante, for example. We saw that it is Latin and that it means before, or earlier, as in antedate. But how about antifreeze? The answer lies in the spelling. Ante with an "e" means before—anti with an "i" means against, or opposing. Some of the opposing words are antibacterial, antibody, anticlimax, anticlockwise, antidepressant, antimagnetic, antipoverty, and antitrust.

You may have wondered where, among all those pro words, was con—as in "they argued pro and con the new rent laws." Con is short for the Latin contra, meaning against. The full contra is used in such English words as contrary, contraband, and contravene.

When you do see con at the beginning an English word, it nearly always means together, or with. These are some typical uses of con as the first syllable of a word:

concentrate: to direct or bring together toward a common center.
concert: to work (or produce music) together.
conclave: a secret meeting.
concrete: real, existing things. A table is a concrete object. Also, a construction material of mortar or cement mixed together with pebbles or stones.
confabulate: to talk informally, or chat, together.
confederate: an ally, accomplice, or fellow member in a conspiracy.
congest: to overfill; bring together too many.
connect: to unite, join, or fasten together.

DAY 9: Culling the classroom

Does a neighbor, or a friend, have a son who is in junior high school? Or does your cousin's daughter go to high school or college not far from where you live? If you know someone who regularly attends school, enlist his or her help in your Word Power campaign.

Just ask your helping student to be on the lookout, in the books he reads and the assignments he does, for words he does not recognize. Instead of passing them by, ask him to note them on a piece of paper.

You will notice that the heading for day nine reads "Culling the classroom." Is culling an unfamiliar term? To cull is to select, or gather, from a place; here, to collect new words from the classroom. Here is a typical day's catch.

savant: one who knows many answers; a wise person. (A French word that means knowing.) perfunctory: done in a routine, uninspired manner; careless; merely getting the job done.
levity: a joking, light manner; frivolity.
matrix: the surrounding environment in which an object is found. Her ambition must be viewed within the matrix of her family's poverty.
exacting: making severe demands. Joan objected to her employer's exacting requirements.
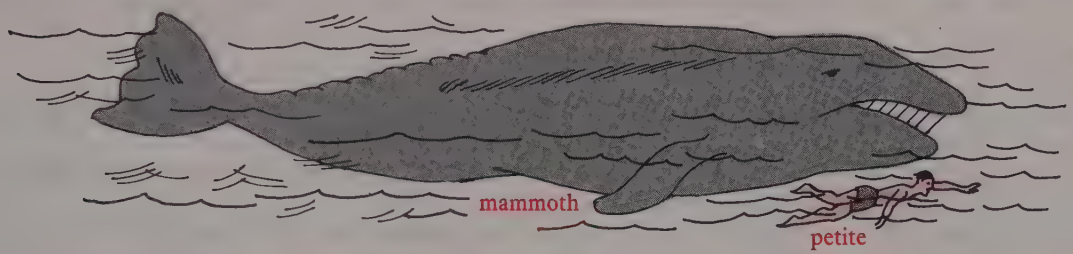
corpulent: fat; obese.
grapple: to hold or seize something or someone; to struggle, wrestle. A grappling iron is a large hook, dragged along a river bottom to seize submerged objects or drowned persons.
jetty: a large pier or wharf that protects a harbor or coastline from damage by the tide.
correlate: to compare or connect in a systematic way.
riposte: a quick retort or counterattack.
fatuous: foolish, silly.
propitious: favorable.
marauding: going in search of plunder or prey.
perverse: obstinately doing something different from what is reasonable or expected.
recondite: refers to an obscure subject, or to writing about an obscure subject.

DAY 10: Largeness

Think about those times when you have tried to describe to someone something you have seen earlier in the day. It was a big accident, or a big crowd, or something else much larger than ordinary. You probably had to hesitate to find exactly the right word—and settled for "huge" or "very big."

That need not happen again. There are dozens of easily used words for expressing bigness, and each of them has a distinct, separate meaning. Learn most of them on this list, and you will have made an imposing gain in your Word Power.

vast: very great area, space, or number of things. A vast acreage of forest.
immense: extremely large; so vast it cannot be measured.
substantial: a large number or size; large enough to be worthy of notice.
expansive: open and wide; capable of growing larger or stretching. We saw an expansive stretch of beach.
mammoth: huge. Mammoths were prehistoric forms of elephants; the word often describes giant animals or people.
monster: actually means "a frightening creature." Has come to mean an abnormally large person or object.
massive: bulky; a very large organism or undertaking. The Girl Scouts undertook a massive charity drive.
monumental: outstanding; enduring; remembered; amazing. She displayed monumental ability to overcome disease.
towering: higher than all surrounding objects; outstanding in its group or class.
tremendous: extremely large; enormous. Actually means "so large it makes one tremble."
enormous: immense; tremendous. Actually means "so large it is abnormal."



DAY 11: Smallness

When it is not the idea of largeness that makes us pause and search for just the right word, it is often the very opposite concept (idea)—smallness.

It is not hard to come up with, say, tiny when we want to express extreme smallness: The doll's house contained the tiniest table and chair I've ever seen.

Sometimes, though, tiny and very small do not seem exactly right. For those times, here is a collection of words expressing smallness. Some may be ones you know, others may be unfamiliar. All will add strength to your Word Power abilities.

diminutive: of very small size. Also, a name that indicates smallness, as booklet for "a small book."
minute (min-oot′): exceptionally small; too small for ordinary notice. The Latin min in a word almost always indicates smallness, as in miniature and diminish.
pygmy: an individual or object of unusually small stature (height). Called after a race of African or Asian people who are about 4 feet tall.
infinitesimal: an amount or thing so small it cannot be measured.
insignificant: an amount or thing too small to matter; easily ignored or overlooked.
trace: a barely visible amount.
speck: a very small bit, or spot, or mark.
petite (peh-teet′): dainty, fragile. From the French word for little.
bantam: diminuitive, miniature. From a small, domestic fowl.
microscopic: too small to be seen.
midget: extremely small. From midge, a very small, gnatlike insect.
grain: a small particle, such as a grain of sand.
mite: a very small quantity, such as a mite of sympathy.

DAY 12: Words about words

As you learn more words, you will find it interesting to learn more about words. There is, in fact, a whole body of terms that describes specific aspects of word study. Some of those terms you already have added to your Word Power file: etymology and neologism are two. You will rediscover two more in this list.

The word acronym is a good one to learn. Here MADD stands for "Mothers Against Drunken Driving."

lexicography: the work of putting together a dictionary. A person who does this work is a lexicographer, and the dictionary itself is a lexicon. Lexicon also refers to the special terms used in a trade or profession. The word "quit" was not in the ballplayers' lexicon.

linguistic: relating to language, or a person who speaks several languages.

locution: a style of speaking; words and phrases used in a style of speaking.

acronym: a word formed by the initial letters of an organization or name, as EPA for Environmental Protection Agency.

provincial: an unsophisticated, heavily rustic word or term, as taters instead of potatoes.

homonym: a word that sounds like another word: pail and pale, or shear and sheer. (You already know the other two terms of the nym trio—antonym and synonym.) interjection: a word that stands alone and expresses sudden thoughts or emotions. Darn! and Oops! are interjections. They often come between (inter) other thoughts.

usage: the way that a word expresses a thought in a language. See volume 1, pages 272-283 for explanations of correct modern English usage.

DAY 13: Free—on the shelves

The fullest, most "official" dictionary—the Oxford English Dictionary (O.E.D.)—gives the meanings of more than 500,000 words. Several million words are devoted to those definitions; the complete, multivolume O.E.D. is too heavy for an average man or woman to lift.

Yet right on the nearest shelf of your local library is nearly as good a source of Word Power—and easily lifted, too. It is any book that you pick out, skim through—or read fully, if the subject interests you—and from which you select unknown words. Why nearly as good as the OED? Because you see the words in context, actually being used by a writer.

Here, from a book about a scandal in New York City's Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity (A Percentage of the Take, by Walter Goodman) are a handful of words as they appear, together with their meanings. (The sentences have been shortened for inclusion here.)

That story was diligently reported in the city's newspapers. Carefully; conscientiously; done with unsparing effort.

What is striking is the passivity of the press. Accepting without argument, inquiry, or objection.

Marcus's comments about toughness comprised a great deal of the conversation. Filled.

He was a man whose profession required that a grudge not be lightly relinquished. Given up; abandoned; put aside.

This version contains an inherent implausibility. Inherent: an essential part; without it, the whole could not exist. Implausibility: difficulty in believing. (An important part of this version is difficult to believe, so it is difficult to believe the entire story.)

The newspaper commented on Albano's "adroit footwork." Nimble, agile.

The lawyer had appeals of his own for the neophyte politician, whose hold was faltering. Neophyte: beginner or novice. Faltering: slipping, missing one's step; beginning to make mistakes.

His stock began a precipitous drop. Steep; dropping sharply, as when falling off a precipice (cliff).

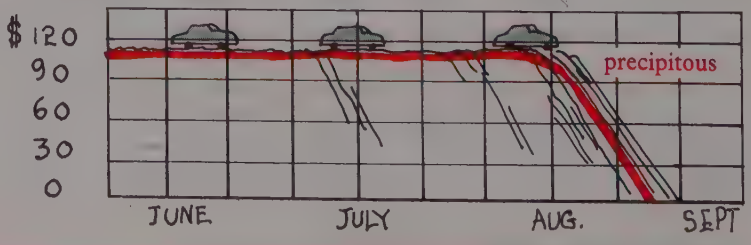
Observers regarded the electric company as highly paternal to its employees. Like a father. (Providing many of the needs of the employees beyond their salaries.)



DAY 14: Sending out scouts

Your campaign to improve your vocabulary need not be a solitary one (done by one person only—you). It will make your project considerably more interesting if you let others participate in it.

If you have a neighbor who works in an auto showroom, for example, have him or her bring you ten words that are used in the trade. Or your cousin may work for the phone company. What are some new words that he has heard? Here is a sampling of what you might expect from two kinds of "word scouts."

Sheriff's assistant deterrent: something that prevents or discourages an action. Increasing the police force would be a deterrent to crime.

larceny: theft or robbery.

recidivism: slipping back into criminal behavior after being released from prison.

subpoena (suh-peen'-a): an order requiring the receiver to appear in court.

Carpenter/housing contractor

ferrule: a metal ring near the end of a wooden pole or tool handle, to prevent splitting.

shim: a thin wedge of wood or metal, used to level parts or fill spaces.

miter: cutting each of two surfaces at a 45° angle, to form a right angle when they are joined.

rabbet: a groove cut into a piece of wood, in which another piece of wood will be glued or screwed.

DAY 15: Tripling your list accord

abutter 199
aby remain 141 endure 821, 826
abysm 198
abysmal deep 208
abyss space 180 interval 198
depth 208
pitfall 667
hell 982 acacia 367
academic theory 514
teaching 537, 542
academical style 578
academician 492
Royal–559 academy 542 acanaceous 253
acanthophorous 253
acanthus 847
acariâtre 901
acarpous 169
acatalectic 597
acatastasia 139
acaudal 38
acaudate 38
accede assent 488 submit 725
consent 762
accelerate early 132 stimulate 173
velocity 274
hasten 684
accelerometer 490a accension 384
accent sound 402
tone of voice 580 rhythm 597
accentuate 642 accentuated 581
accentuation 580 accept assent 488 consent 762
receive 785

additive 37 adjunct 39
accompanying 88
aid 707
auxiliary 711
acciaccatura 413
accidence 567
accident event 151 chance 156
disaster 619 misfortune 735
–of an accident 156 fatal–361 accidental extrinsic 6 irrelative 10 occasional 134 fortuitous 156
undesigned 621
accidentalism 156
Accipitres 739 acclamation assent 488
approba– 931
acclam–
acclimat– domest– inure acclivit– accloy accolad– accom–
adjus–
aid reco– give lend
–one con acco– kit acc–
(s sy
–t

5. Intrinsicality

[L.] etc. (luminary) 423; "such stuff as dreams are made on" [Tempest]; air, thin air; bubble etc. 353; mockery.

blank; void etc. (absence) 187; hollowness.

inanity, fatuity, fool's paradise.

v. vanish, evaporate, fade, fleet, sink, fly, dissolve, melt away; die, die away, die out; disappear etc. 449.

adj. unsubstantial; baseless, groundless; ungrounded; without foundation, having no foundation.

visionary etc. (imaginary) 515; immaterial etc. 317; spectral etc. 980; dreamy; shadowy; ethereal, airy, gaseous, imponderable, tenuous, vague, vaporous, dreamlike, mushroom; cloud–

8. Circumstance

characteristic etc. (special) 79, (indicative) 550; invariable, incurable, ineradicable, fixed.

adv. intrinsically etc. adj.; at bottom, in the main, in effect, practically, virtually, substantially, au fond [F.]; fairly.

6. Extrinsicality

n. extrinsicality, objectiveness, non ego [L.]; extraneousness etc. 57; accident.

adj. extrinsic, extrinsical; derived from without; objective; extraneous etc. (foreign) 57; modal, adventitious; ascititious; adscititious; incidental, accidental, nonessential, unessential, accessory; contingent, fortuitous, casual, subsidiary.

During the past 14 days you have added more than 125 new words to your working vocabulary. No need for you to be modest about it—that is an extraordinary leap beyond the average person's rate of word accretion (gradual growth by adding or including new material) and you deserve congratulations.

Better yet, you can triple—or at least double—your number of new words by going back over the 14 formulas and reworking them. Use them to produce two or three sets of all-new words.

Be flexible. If you are not too sure about day six techniques, or if you feel uncomfortable with day eight, skip them. Try to concentrate on those days' plans that interest you the most.

You probably will find a thesaurus extremely helpful, if not essential. Turn now to the Roget's University Thesaurus at the back of this book. Study it carefully. Look up some general subjects and add the words you do not know to your Word Power file.

Or working at a library—at least in the planning stage of your tripling-up project—may give you just the help you need. You will find the librarian, who works with words all day, a knowledgeable, helpful collaborator.

Preparing for vocabulary tests

Any time you are applying for some step upward—admission to college, or a new job, or a promotion—there seems to be a vocabulary test involved.

That is because a broad vocabulary is recognized as a reliable indicator of intelligence (and, often, education). Also, vocabulary tests are easy to administer and to score: they are right or wrong, pass or fail, with no maybes or gray areas.

Now that you have a significantly improved vocabulary, be sure you know the ins and outs of testing.

Confidence. For most of us, an attitude of I'm going to win goes a long way toward making us actually win. Salesmen who know they are going to make that sale, even before they walk in the door, are much more likely to get the order.

This will hold true for you when you are faced with a vocabulary test. You have worked on the plans and strategies and projects in these pages. You have built an impressive Word Power file. So be confident.

Samples. Know beforehand, as exactly as possible, the kinds of questions you will be asked to answer. There are four commonly used forms of vocabulary questions. They are explained on these pages, and samples are provided for extra practice; see also pages

Four forms of questions

1. Select the appropriate word or term that is most nearly the same in meaning as the capitalized word.

Sample: ignite a) look away b) put out c) set fire d) sleep

There are no context clues, so it is necessary to know or recognize the words themselves in this type of test. Be aware that one or two wrong answers are designed to mislead you. Look away might make you think of ignore, which could be confused with ignite; and sleep might relate to the nite (night) sound in ignite. The right answer is c) set fire. Here are some practice questions.

joggle	a) shake slightly	b) run slowly	c) ankle	d) turn a corner
seance	a) after	b) rabbit	c) sofa	d) meeting buzzard	a) saw	b) fox	c) intestines	d) vulture evict	a) send to jail	b) put out	c) raise up	d) saying align	a) line up	b) marker	c) insult	d) press down

answers: joggle, a; seance, d; buzzard, d; evict, b; align, a.

2. For each statement, select the choice that best completes it or answers the question.

Sample: To be profuse with compliments means to

a) be obscene b) give them freely c) withhold them d) be vague

Your only clue is the prefix pro, which we have seen means forward or in front of. Among the four choices, all have a negative or backward implication, except b). To be profuse means to give freely, even extravagantly. There is no easy way to answer type 2 questions; the more words you know, the better you will do. Practice with these typical questions.

Farmland that is parched is

a) elevated b) dry c) flooded d) posted

A turquoise would most likely be found in a

a) zoo b) tunnel c) bracelet d) restaurant

A seamy neighborhood is

a) sordid b) morbid c) elegant d) hot

The barrage consisted of

a) wooden sheds b) gunfire c) tiles d) clear plastic

Who gave the compress to Jason?

a) a barber b) a carpenter c) a nurse d) a teacher answers: parched, b; turquoise, c; seamy, a; barrage, b; compress, c.

328-333 for more help on taking tests.

Usually, you can obtain copies of last year's test, or special review copies of tests similar to the one you will be taking. They are in review books and easily obtainable from a guidance counselor, library, or the testing organization itself.

Learn the rules. Should you guess at answers you are not quite sure of? Or are points taken off your score for wrong answers? And what about time? How many minutes will you be allowed?

When you practice for a particular vocabulary test, you will want to do it under conditions that are much like those under which the real test is administered. You should become accustomed to working within a time frame similar to the actual one. If there is no penalty for wrong answers, and there usually is not, you should practice guessing at every question.

The school, government office, or employer that will be testing you will answer your questions well in advance of test day. Phone or drop by in person. Make sure you are talking to someone who really knows the procedures, not a clerk who is only guessing.

Relax. Do not put unnecessary pressure on yourself as you prepare for the test. Cramming until late the night before the test guarantees that you will be groggy on the big day. There is no need for last-minute panic if you have been building Word Power day by day, week by week.

Know exactly how you will get to the test place, and plan to arrive ten or fifteen minutes early, with a pocket full of extra pens and pencils. Then relax and let your Word Power take over.

---

3. Each question consists of four pairs of words. In one pair among the four, both words have the same meaning: they are synonyms. Select that pair.

Sample: a) magnify-diminish b) section-partition c) capitulate-defy d) encrust-salvage

By looking closely at all four pairs, you may recall that diminish means "to make smaller," and is the opposite of magnify. Capitulate and defy are opposites, too; and though you may not be sure about d), you probably will recognize that in b) a section and a part are the same thing. Your answer is b). See how well you do with these practice questions.

1.	a) simile-quote	b) monastery-monograph	c) bisect-divide	d) create-basket
2.	a) deprecate-belittle	b) crass-cliff	c) ominous-many	d) biology-oculist
3.	a) captain-demagogue	b) curator-bishop	c) fiasco-failure	d) flagrant-tramp
4.	a) familiar-intimate	b) recognize-venal	c) proximity-distance	d) thermal-sunshine
5.	a) tripod-oyster	b) confide-trust	c) reveal-conceal	d) unite-sever answers: 1 c; 2 a; 3 c; 4 a; 5 b.

---

4. For each of the following statements, select T if the statement is true, F if is false.

Sample: A parable is a type of umbrella. T F

The question was designed to mislead you slightly. A sunshade, very much like an umbrella, is called a parasol. But a parable is a story illustrating a religious or moral lesson, so the correct answer is F. Decide if each of these examples is true or false.

1. A saga is a long story or report. T F
2. A terminal is the last car of a railroad train. T F
3. To mediate is to apply bandages to a wound or a rash. T F
4. Archives are written records. T F
5. Largesse is a large, generous gift. T F answers: 1. T; 2. F (a caboose is the last car; a terminal is a station at the end of the line, or the final portion of a thing); 3. F (to mediate is to come between two opposing parties, to resolve their differences); 4. T; 5. T.

American English

American English is made up, to a large extent, of borrowings from the many immigrants who arrived on U.S. shores, each speaking his native tongue. Even the American Indians were immigrants, arriving across a land bridge to Alaska from Asia that no longer exists. And they brought their language with them, too.

American Indian. Among the words that Indians have given to modern American English are tomahawk; moccasin; wigwam; tepee; and cayuse (horse). Probably, the Indians' most lasting contribution is place names. Consider the following states:

Arkansas: land of south wind people.
Idaho: light on the mountains.
Illinois: warriors (Chicago, for some reason, meant place that smells bad).
Iowa: the sleepy people, referring to a local tribe of the Dakota nation.
Kentucky: meadowland.
Minnesota: sky-blue water.
Mississippi: big river.

Spanish. The Indians of the Southwest mingled closely with the Spanish settlers of that territory. The area attracted pioneers from the settled eastern colonies, and the mingled westerners put their own stamp on the language. These cowboy terms are Spanish in origin: buffalo (explorer DeSoto's word for our native bison); chaps (short for chaparejos, a cowboy's leather leg protectors); cinch; corral; buckaroo (derived from Spanish vaquero); lariat; lasso; pinto (spotted horse); rodeo; pronto; canyon; loco; cabana; fiesta; hombre; siesta; tequila; tortilla; vamoose. We call a low island a key and a common insect pest a cockroach; both terms are based on similar Spanish words. If we want someone to leave in a hurry, we tell him to vamoose—one more Spanish borrowing.

African. When slaves were shipped to America in chains, they brought with them African words that were converted to the nation's growing language. Among them are banana; banjo; goober (peanut); juke (to misbehave, much later adapted to mean a tavern music player, or jukebox); tote (carry).

The various waves of settlers brought with them customs and words they used in their new homes. Dutch, French, English, German, Scandinavian, Italian, and many, many other ethnic groups contributed to the growing language. Here are a few borrowings.

Dutch

bedspread	cookie	sauerkraut
boss	hex	sleigh
bush	landscape	waffle
cole slaw	Santa Claus	Yankee

French

barrage	depot	music
castle	(railroad station)	pantry
chowder	détente	parlor
crime	(easing of tensions)	prairie
dance	manor	procession

Among French place names are Baton Rouge (LA), red stick; Des Moines (IA), the monks; Terre Haute (IN), high ground; Vermont, green mountain; and Louisiana, for King Louis XIV.

German

and how	dumb	klutz
bub	ecology	(clumsy person)
bum	frankfurter,	phooey
(loafer, tramp)	hamburger	pumpernickel
check	(styles of meat	vampire (restaurant bill)	served in	("to vamp," dachshund	Frankfurt and	bewitch)
delicatessen	Hamburg)

Italian. A nation of brilliant cooks and dedicated eaters, Italians changed forever the composition of American menus. Among the additions:

espresso	macaroni	spaghetti
lasagna	ravioli	tortoni

And, of course, pizza. Contrary to legend, the word does not mean pie. It refers to pinching or plucking the dough, as in the musical term pizzicato—to pluck a violin string.

Yiddish. The first large waves of Jewish immigrants from Central and Eastern Europe arrived in the late 1800's. By 1910, 3 million had settled in the United States, mostly in the North Atlantic states. Jews had been colonists in New York, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts since 1654, but their contributions to American English became most significant in the period before and after World War I.

Most American Jews do not speak Hebrew. Their original tongue was Yiddish, a German-based language used by Jews in Central and Eastern Europe. These Yiddish words are common in our language.

bagel: doughnut-shaped hard roll.
chutzpah: audacity; nerve; impudence.
ghetto: living area in which a minority is confined by the majority.
kibitz: give unwanted advice (kibitz at a card game).
kosher: proper, legitimate (derived from special dietary laws observed by Orthodox Jews).
lox: smoked salmon.
mavin: an expert, an authority.
schlemiel: a foolish, clumsy person.
schlep: to drag or carry.

Our evolving language.

Words you might overhear spoken in Springfield, Massachusetts, or any other American town or city, would be widely different from those you might hear in Peterborough or any other English city or town. We lift the hood on our car; they lift the bonnet. We might see a cop on his vacation; an Englishman would see a bobby on holiday.

Our two languages, of course, started as one. Over a 300-year span, the division has encompassed more than variations in common terms and their usages. Americans have coined their own words and phrases. These are some from various periods in American history:

The Revolutionary War

militia: a reserve force; a citizen army.
redcoats: British soldiers.
rifle: a musket with a spiraled inner barrel.
stockade: a fort protected by a wall of pointed stakes.

The Civil War

carpetbagger: an unscrupulous northerner who went south in 1868 for cheap land; an opportunist.
scalawag: southerner who accepted Reconstruction.

World War I

doughboy: infantry soldier; also used, to a lesser extent, in the Civil War.
goldbrick: to loaf or avoid work (Army term).
rookie: new recruit.

Prohibition

flapper: a "modern," unconventional young woman.
gang wars: battles for supremacy among rival groups of gangsters.
public enemy: notorious criminal, high on the FBI's most-wanted list.
scram: get out of here; leave.
speakeasy: illegal tavern or barroom.
teetotaler: one pledged to total abstinence from intoxicating beverages.

World War II

black market: trafficking in rationed, scarce goods.
Dear John: a letter to a soldier from his sweetheart, calling off their relationship.
GI: an ordinary soldier; based on the term government issue, applied to all military materials.
wild blue yonder: the sky, as it applied to the site of aerial battles.

The '50's, '60's, and '70's dove: one who advocates peaceful overtures, particularly to the Soviets.

game plan: strategy; used in business and politics.
hawk: one who advocates a hard line, particularly against the Soviets; the term was first used, in another context, in Jefferson's era.
leak: disclosure of government papers and plans.
stonewall: resist investigation, as during the Watergate episode of the Nixon Presidency

The '80's

burnout: exhaustion caused by intensive work over an extended period.
computerese: terms used by computer operators; examples are byte (unit of information stored in the computer's memory); glitch (error); user-friendly (program that is easy to operate).

Stud, draw, or deuces wild

Poker is the most American of card games. (Only basketball and baseball have stronger claims to being "the Great American game"—they were invented by Yankees. Poker is an old European card game, and its name is derived from the French poque.)

In all parts of the nation, daily, people who do not know a pair of eights from a royal flush use poker terms. A few that have become ingrained in our national speech follow.

poker face: a wooden, nonrevealing expression.
on the come, on the blind: hoping or acting as if an event will happen, without really knowing if it will.
go the limit: extend oneself as far as possible.
penny ante: insignificant, petty action or game.
bluff: overblown actions calculated to make an opponent think you are stronger than you are.
wild card: an unexpected factor; may change the outcome.
dead man's hand: two aces and two eights, said to be the hand Billy the Kid was holding when he was murdered.
stand pat: stay with what you have; do not budge.
playing with a short deck: not too bright; dimwitted.
four flusher: cheater; needs five, has only four.

Puzzles and word games

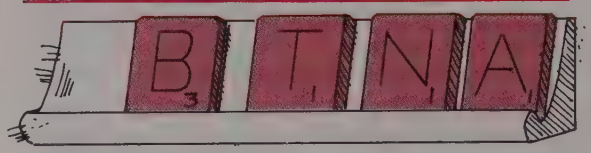
What is good for us is often bad tasting—but there are exceptions. You can enjoy yourself as you progress on several of the paths to a more powerful vocabulary. Word games and puzzles, whether played alone or in competition, are effective learning devices. They really do reinforce your knowledge of new words' meanings, and build considerably your ability to recall those words.

Crossword puzzles. Americans seem to be a nation of crossword puzzlers. Newspapers print daily puzzles; paperback and hardcover books of puzzle collections fill several shelves in most bookstores; crossword puzzle dictionaries and other specialized aids are widely available.

If you are new to the world of crosswords, consider these tips:

1. Search around, while you are still getting the hang of it, for a source of easy puzzles. Ones that are difficult are likely to discourage you.
2. Use pencil, write lightly, and do not hesitate to erase guesses that might be wrong.
3. For your first move, skim through the puzzle and insert words you are sure about: names of people or movies; places; facts about games, crafts, or instruments. Then you will have enough letters in place to give you hints for words you are less sure about.

Packaged word games



Any bookstore or toy store should be a good source for a half-dozen or more different word games, packaged and ready for spreading out on your table.

Examine the game; read the rules before purchasing it. You may decide it is too specialized or requires too extensive a vocabulary for the people who will be playing it.

Anagrams: the granddaddy of all "take-a-card" or "take-a-tile" word games. Players form their own words, capture opponents' words, and the whole family joins in.

Scrabble:® each player forms a word with any number of his seven randomly selected tiles. He lays the letters on the board's marked spaces. Some letters and spaces are good for bonus points. Players add on to, or branch out from, previously laid-down words.

Boggle:® 25 letters appear in a square. Players compose hidden lists of all possible words, using only letters that are touching one another. After three minutes, lists are compared and a winner declared.

Ghosts

This age-old game requires two or more players. Each player in turn calls out a letter. If, from the fourth letter on, a player completes a word, he loses that round, and must "carry" letter G.

A new round is begun. If there is a new loser, he too carries letter G. Losers of subsequent rounds must carry G, then H, then O, S, T, and S. When one player has all six letters, he loses. The others play on until one winner remains.

If it is Mary's turn and the letters VAL, for example, have been named, she might call letter I. If she had called E, the word VALE would have been spelled, and she would have lost that round. If the next player cannot think of a word starting VALI, he can challenge Mary, who will say VALISE or VALID. Mary proves she has a word in mind, so the challenger loses that round.

Hangman

This word game requires at least two players. One of the players, the leader, has a word in mind. He tells the other players the number of letters in the word. The other players try to guess the word by calling out letters. When a letter is guessed correctly, the leader tells the others at what position or positions in the word the letter falls.

However, for every letter that is called out that is not in the word, the leader draws a portion of a stick figure. Usually, the figure is made up of a head, eyes, nose, mouth, torso, arms, hands, legs, and feet. If the figure is completed before the word is guessed, then the figure is considered hanged, and the leader has won the game. If someone guesses the word, then that person becomes the next leader.

Rate yourself again

Some time ago, when you were setting out to build your Word Power, you tested yourself. ("How do you rate?" on page 208.) Now that you nearly have completed the program, it will be interesting to measure your gain over your earlier effort.

To make the comparison valid, you should test your facility with difficult words—ones that you have examined and added to your vocabulary. All of the target words in this self-exam appear and are defined in the preceding pages.

For each of the questions, select the one term that most nearly defines the meaning of the word in dark print. Score one point for each correct answer.

If you are determined to improve your vocabulary, but score 17 or under, start over. Work on your Word Power file daily. Be certain that you understand the meaning of each word before progressing to the next one. Go back over your new vocabulary. A daily review can go a long way toward cementing new words in your memory.

1. dubious a) twin; b) prejudiced; c) doubtful; d) double
2. humus a) amateur comedian; b) good feelings; c) bad reputation; d) decayed plants
3. perfidy a) smells good; b) large taxes; c) traitor's actions; d) risk
4. meticulous a) precise; b) fingernails; c) angry; d) foolish
5. impediment a) fooling; b) showing; c) statue; d) blocking
6. facade a) front; b) mimic; c) framework; d) mobility
7. accessible a) can be captured; b) must leave; c) can be reached; d) too much
8. curator a) doctor's assistant; b) museum director; c) bullfighter's sword; d) church official
9. enigma a) puzzle; b) birthmark; c) pride; d) energetic
10. petulance a) birdlike; b) grumpiness; c) shyness; d) holiday
11. altruism a) honesty; b) generosity; c) completion; d) conservatism
12. irascible a) held up; b) easily angered; c) ready for action; d) green
13. felines a) fish; b) snakes; c) criminals; d) cats
14. undulate a) wave; b) chew; c) blink; d) shout
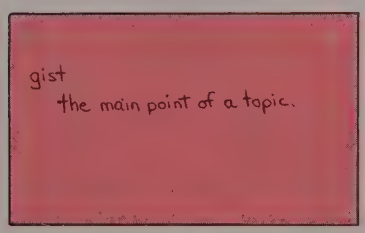
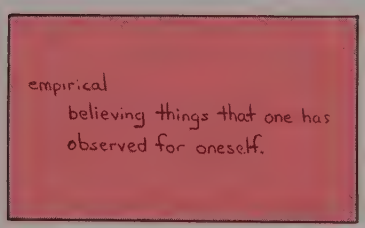
15. cynosure a) show; b) deterrent; c) detergent; d) swan
16. habitat a) farmyard; b) home; c) unpleasant; d) nun
17. voracious a) gets in front; b) eats huge amounts; c) frightening; d) never wins
18. incombustible a) untidy; b) unburnable; c) unbreakable; d) can't be equaled
19. marauders a) raiders; b) jumpers; c) winners; d) swimmers
20. gregarious a) religious; b) young; c) frightened; d) sociable
21. devastated a) exasperated; b) humbled; c) wasted; d) enlarged
22. vestige a) clothing; b) appropriate; c) persuasion; d) remnant
23. consoled a) comforted; b) entertained; c) controlled; d) welcomed
24. garrulous a) talkative; b) plump; c) foolish; d) proud
25. antagonist a) sufferer; b) opponent; c) follower; d) merchant

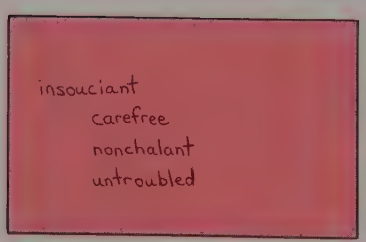
Answers. 1, c; 2, d; 3, c; 4, a; 5, d; 6, a; 7, c; 8, b; 9, a; 10, b; 11, b; 12, b; 13, d; 14, a; 15, a; 16, b; 17, b; 18, b; 19, a; 20, d; 21, c; 22, d; 23, a; 24, a; 25, b. A score of 25 is perfect, 22–24 very good, 18–21 above average.

askance

Words you should know







Word Power cards

absolve. To clear or pardon; to pronounce that no blame exists.

abstract. 1. Not concrete or definite (an abstract thought). 2. A portion reprinted from a larger book or article.

acerate. Sharpened; pointed at one end.

acquiesce. To agree; consent; to go along with a suggestion.

acrylic. A resin-based synthetic fiber.

acute. 1. Sharp, pointed. 2. Important. 3. Sensitive (an acute sense of hearing).

agitate. 1. To move suddenly or violently; to shake up. 2. To disturb. 3. To interest in a cause (agitated for higher pay).

albatross. 1. Large sea bird. 2. A burden, handicap, or curse (this meaning is derived from a poem, The Rime of the Ancient Mariner, by Coleridge).

alewife. Small, herringlike fish.

anemic. A disease in which too few red blood cells results in weakness and fatigue.

aorta. The largest of the arteries carrying blood from the heart.

apothecary. Druggist; pharmacist.

appalling. Frightening; upsetting (the filth was appalling).

askance (a-skans'). Disapproval or distrust; a sidewise glance indicating doubt.

aspect. 1. Appearance. 2. The direction something faces.

assert. To state positively or forcefully.

assuage (a-swaje'). To remedy; make easier, less painful.

badinage (bad-n-ahj'). Playful, joking talk; chitchat.

baste. 1. To sew loosely, temporarily. 2. To keep moist (as with sauce or melted butter) while cooking.

bastion. Fort or strongly held position (the league was a bastion of patriotism).

behoove. Necessary or proper (behooves us to pay attention).

bellow. To roar or shout; the roar of a large animal, as a buffalo.

benign. Harmless, kindly, mild.

bequeath. To pass on, or leave, as in a will.

bequest. That which has been bequeathed (Mary's aunt left her a bequest of $50,000).

bigamy. Being married to two persons at one time, a criminal offense.

blackguard (blag'-erd). An unprincipled rascal; a scoundrel.

blanch. To bleach or whiten; to remove the color from an object.

blather. Nonsensical or foolish talk.

blemish. A flaw or spot that spoils the appearance of an object or a person.

blunder. A mistake caused by stupidity or confusion.

bob. To move up and down (Jim bobbed alongside the boat).

bolster. 1. A pillow or cushion. 2. To support or prop up (contributions bolstered her campaign funds).

bountiful. Plentiful; generous.

Brahmin. Descendant of old, exclusive family (a New England Brahmin); derived from Hindu term for highest rank.

bravado. A show of false, swaggering bravery.

calligraphy. Handwriting; penmanship.

camber. 1. An arched surface. 2. The way in which automobile wheels are set slanting inward toward their tops.

caster. A small, swiveled wheel under furniture or another heavy object.

cherish. To treat with love and tenderness; to hold dear.

circa. Approximately, about (first used circa 1900).

cistern. A tank for holding rainwater.

constrict. To squeeze, compress, make smaller.

consummate. 1. To conclude or bring to perfection. 2. Perfect; highly skilled (a consummate baker of pastries).
cougar. A mountain lion.
covenant. An agreement or contract that binds two or more persons.
cringe. To move back in fear (synonym: cower).
croissant (kwoss-sahn'). A crescent-shaped roll of light, sweet dough.
damsel. A girl or maiden (used in ancient times, but rarely heard today).
decimate. To kill or destroy a large part of something; to kill one-tenth.
desecrate. To disturb something sacred; to profane.
detonate. To explode.
dire. Dreadful, terrible, extreme; having horrible consequences (a dire threat).
discord. Tension, strife, lack of agreement.
divan. A backless couch.
dominant. The highest; the one in control, with the most authority.
dominate. To rule or control; to be higher than others.
dub. To apply a nickname (they dubbed him "Mr. Careful").
dynasty. A group or family that keeps power for several generations.
edgy. Tense; nervous; anxious.
eject. To throw out; to evict (the noisy couple was ejected from the theater).
ember. A dying coal in a fire that is partially out.
embroil. To involve in an argument or contest; to entangle.
empirical. Believing ideas, actions, or things that one has observed for oneself (empirical evidence).
epicure. One who has uncommon, highly refined preferences in food and wine.
evince. To demonstrate clearly.
expire. 1. To end; to die; a last breath. 2. To breathe out.
expostulate. To present one's reasons; to argue intelligently.
extol. To praise highly.
extricate. To free or release from an entanglement.
farce. Far-fetched, humorous show; broad, exaggerated comedy.
fastidious. 1. Careful, exacting attention to detail. 2. Overly attentive to good manners.
fervent. Showing great emotional depth; highly enthusiastic.
fetish. 1. Something that is said to have mystic powers. 2. An excessively strong habit or attitude (Tim made a fetish of washing his hands).
fickle. Unpredictably changeable in regard to attitudes and affections.
figment. Something made up or invented (the whole story was a figment of his imagination).
forage. 1. To look for food. 2. Hay, grain, or other food for domestic animals.
forfeit (for'-fit). Something given up, in punishment for a crime or offense; that which is forfeited.
forlorn. Extreme sadness or loneliness; the appearance of a sad, lonely person.
furl. To roll up a flag.
gabardine. Cotton twill fabric.
gaggle. 1. A flock of geese. 2. A group of silly or cackling people.
gape. To stare, with mouth opened wide in wonderment.
garret. An attic.
genial. Friendly; pleasant; a kindly manner.
gird. 1. To prepare for action. 2. To put on a belt or band.
gist. The main point of a topic; the core, or essence, of a subject.
gnash (nash). To grind one's teeth together.
graphic. Relating to writing, drawing, painting, typesetting, and other representations on paper or a similarly flat surface (graphic arts).
grave. 1. Serious, important, dangerous (declaring war was a grave decision). 2. A burial place.
guffaw. Coarse, noisy laughter.
gustatory. Relating to the sense of taste (eating at Joe's was a gustatory experience).
gyrate. To circle or revolve around a point or axis.
hack. To chop, cut, or break up.
hagiology. Study of the lives of saints.
hale. To drag or pull; to compel someone to go somewhere (haled into court). 2. Healthy; not sickly.
hark. To listen carefully.
harridan. Unpleasant, complaining woman.
hearth. The floor of a fireplace, and that part of it extending into a room.
hepatitis (hep'-a-tie-tiss). A serious disease of the liver.
heretic. A person who disagrees with generally accepted opinions, or dissents from religious views.
hexagonal. Six-sided.
hindsight. Noticing the importance and cause of an event after it has happened.
hormone. A chemical substance formed in the body and carried in the bloodstream.
horticulture. The growing of fruits, vegetables, or plants; gardening.
hospice. 1. A place or program that cares for patients who are incurably ill. 2. A shelter for needy travelers.
huckster. 1. A peddler; one who sells merchandise in the street. 2. A writer of advertisements.
hydraulic. Related to water pressure (hydraulic pump; hydraulic engineer).
iconoclast. One who attacks and destroys popularly held, or traditional, values. (Ancient Greeks called religious statues icons. Iconoclasts were "breakers of statues," or breakers of ideas.)

ignominious. Disgraceful; shameful.

immune. Not affected; excepted from a general condition.

immutable. Unchangeable.

imperial. 1. Relating to an empire or emperor. 2. A nation that maintains control over colonies.

imperturbable. Calm; cannot be shaken or disturbed.

implicit (im-plis'-it). Understood, though stated only indirectly (an implicit understanding).

impunity. Will not be punished or harmed (state your opinions with impunity).

inception. The beginning; start.

incumbent. Currently holding an office or position (the incumbent governor).

inept. Clumsy; foolish; incompetent; not suitable.

influx. Flowing in (an influx of immigrants).

inordinate. More than could be expected; an unreasonable amount.

insouciant (in-soo'-see-ont). Carefree, nonchalant, untroubled.

interrogate. Ask questions.

iota. An extremely small amount (we did not care one iota what their opinion might be).

itinerant. One who travels from place to place, as part of his work; traveling in such a way.

jamb (jam). The vertical framework of a door or window.

jibe. To agree (your information jibes with ours).

jubilant. Joyful; happy enough to sing or laugh aloud.

juxtapose. To put one thing or idea next to another in order to compare them.

kamikaze (ka-me-kah'-zee). A suicidal crash attack (a tactic used by Japanese pilots in World War II).

keynote. Main theme (President Kennedy gave the keynote speech at the convention).

koala. An Australian animal, the model for teddy bears.

labyrinth (lab'-a-rinth). Mazelike series of connecting passages and tunnels.

lacerate. To tear, wound, rip, or cut.

laconic (la-kon'-ick). Using few words; short-spoken (Coolidge, who was laconic, was called "Silent Cal").

lacuna (la-koo'-nah). An empty space; missing part; gap.

laggard. Straggler; one who falls behind the others.

laity (lay'-ih-tee). People who are not members of a given profession; in churches, those who are not members of the clergy.

lament. To mourn or grieve; to express sorrow; a spoken or written expression of grief.

lapse. 1. To slip or drift backward; to neglect or overlook. 2. A missed opportunity or privilege; the amount of time during which the privilege expired.

late. In addition to the common meaning of coming after the expected time, late also means dead, or recently died (the late Mrs. Patterson).

lax. Not strict. Unfirm.

LED. The display of letters or numerals, as on a calculator, furnished by a semiconductor; LED is an acronym for Light Emitting Diode.

lenient (lee'-ne-yent). Not inclined to punish; forgiving.

levitate. To rise into the air with no apparent support; a mystical act or illusion that defies gravity.

libation. An alcoholic drink; a drink offered to a god.

limber. Moving easily; supple; working without effort (he sent a more limber player into the game).

linear. (linn'-ee-er). Relating to a straight line (a linear descendant of the Adams family).

locus. A place or location.

lozenge. A medicated tablet for relief from coughs and colds.

macadam. A type of road made of stone and asphalt or tar.

machination (mack'-in-ayshun). 1. The act of plotting or scheming, usually for an evil purpose; the plot itself.

maculate. Spotted or soiled; to spot or stain (immaculate means "without spots," or pure, clean, unstained).

magnate. Powerful person, usually a businessman or industrialist (a lumber magnate).

malcontent. Unhappy or discontented; also, a person in that condition (mal means bad, or generally negative, as in malformed and malodorous).

manacle. Handcuff.

mangle. 1. To ruin through clumsiness (Howard mangled his speech). 2. To cut, hack, or otherwise physically ruin.

mare's nest. 1. A tangled, complicated situation. 2. A fraud.

marginal. 1. Near the edge or border. 2. Of barely passable quality.

maroon. 1. A color, ranging from reddish brown to reddish purple. 2. To abandon a person; to put him off a boat with little hope of rescue.

martinet. A rigid military leader or taskmaster; one who demands total obedience.

mediate. To settle disputes by acting as a neutral party.

melange (may-lahnj'). A mixture.

menial (mean'-ee-al). 1. A servant. 2. Relating to a job or task that a servant might do.

metamorphosis. A change in shape, appearance, or function (a tadpole's metamorphosis into a frog).

metropolis. A large city.
microcomputer. A very small computer (micro means small or greatly reduced in size).
mien (mean). Facial expression or the way one carries oneself; appearance.
mildew. A fungus, similar to a mold, that grows on leather, plants, cloth, or paper under damp conditions.
minatory. Threatening; fearsome.
minutia (mi-noo′-sha). A very small, unimportant item (we cannot bother with the minutia of their complaints).
mode. A way of doing something; a style of action (an unusual mode of dress, or of speech).
molest. To harass, bother, or physically disturb.
monarch. A king, emperor, or ruler.
monogram. The initials of a person's name formed into a design.
moot. A matter that can be argued in any of several ways; not easily decided.
mucilage (myoo′-si-laj). Glue.
murky. Dark, gloomy; heavy mist or fog; thick, unclear waters (a murky atmosphere).
nape. The back of the neck.
nether. Lower or below (the nether regions).
niggling. Fussy; petty; too concerned with unimportant detail.
novel. 1. New, different (Bill's wagon had a novel design). 2. A book of fiction; prose narrative.
obfuscate. To hide slightly, or make obscure (he deliberately obfuscated the facts about the accident).
Occident. Europe and the western hemisphere (Asia and the Pacific islands are the Orient).
offing. Soon, or the near future (a large gift is in the offing).
oratory. The skill of public speaking; rhetorical style.
ossify. 1. To become bony. 2. To become set in an unchanging pattern.
ostracize. To shut out or exclude from a group; to banish.
palate. The roof of the mouth.
palette. 1. A hand-held board on which an artist mixes colors. 2. The range of colors used by an artist.
panacea (pan-a-see-a). A cure for all diseases or difficulties, the value of which is doubtful.
paradox. A statement, difficult to believe, that is true (paradoxically, the two opponents were brothers).
paragon. A model of excellence.
peccadillo. A small fault; a prank.
pewter. Silver-gray metal used for kitchen and cooking utensils.
pillage. To rob or plunder, as by invading armies in wartime.
poise. 1. To balance, or the state of being balanced. 2. Bearing oneself with dignity and composure (she exhibited poise and maturity).
ponder. To think carefully; to consider.
predator. One who preys on others for his own profit, as an animal preys on (kills and eats) weaker animals.
propinquity (pro-pin′-kwi-tee). Nearness (propinquity is at the root of most friendships).
quagmire. 1. Swampy, boggy land into which a walker might sink. 2. A predicament or difficult situation that might entrap a person.
quail. 1. To move backward in fear. 2. A small, chickenlike bird; a bobwhite.
quash. To put down; suppress; set aside (the judge quashed the motion for appeal).
quiver. 1. To tremble or shake. 2. A case in which an archer's arrows are carried.
radiate. 1. To spread out from a central point (spokes of a wheel radiate from the hub). 2. To issue energy—heat, light, or sound.
radical. Carried to an extreme; not moderate.
rail. To speak strongly against; to verbally abuse (Ken railed against the new tax collector).
rampart. A fort or defensive position higher than the surrounding ground.
rant. To shout in a violent manner; to rave.
rapport (ra-pour′). A good relationship, marked by mutual trust and admiration.
rationale (rash-a-nal′). A reason (sometimes used as an excuse) for doing something.
redundant. Unnecessarily repeated; not needed.
refute. To disprove; to argue against.
regress. To move backward, usually to a worsened condition (the opposite of progress).
reiterate. To say again; repeat.
relent. To soften an attitude; to give up a previously held, harder position.
remonstrate. To protest; object; argue.
repartee (re-par-tay′). Witty, clever conversation, particularly a witty reply.
replete. Plenty, or an oversupply. (a party replete with butlers and waitresses).
rife. Appears frequently; often occurs (his work was rife with errors).
rook. 1. A crow. 2. To cheat or swindle.
ruminate. 1. To think about something for a long time; to reflect on it. 2. For cattle, to chew and rechew.
Rx. A prescription for medicine or pharmaceutical drugs.
saccharine (sack′-a-rin). Too sweet (saccharin is the white, powdery substitute for sugar).
salutation. A greeting, especially at the start of a letter ("Dear Mr. Brenner," for example).

sanctum. A holy place; sacred part of a church or temple.
sarcophagus (sar-kof'-a-gus). A stone coffin.
savvy. (Slang) To understand; knowhow (he is savvy enough to make a good deal).
scale. Thin, flaky substance on the skins of animals, fishes, or plants. 2. Rate of pay, determined by union schedules, for musicians and other skilled technicians. 3. A device for weighing; a measure.
scant. Meager; a small degree less than a specified amount (a scant four miles).
scenario. 1. An outline of a play or book. 2. The probable way in which events will take place, if certain unpredictable circumstances govern the action (here is the scenario for our rescue operation, if all the bridges flood out).
scow. A large flat-bottomed boat.
scrawny. Skinny; bony.
scuffle. To grapple or fight with someone in an indeterminate, confused manner.
sealing wax. A soft substance when heated, it hardens to seal bottles and packages.
secondary school. High school.
seethe. 1. To be extremely excited; agitated. 2. To have a motion like that of boiling water.
semantics. The study of the meaning of language. seminary. 1. A school for the training of religious persons—ministers, priests, rabbis. 2. A school of higher education for young women.
sensor. A machine that receives or sends impulses, like light or heat, not otherwise detected by humans.
sentient. Conscious; able to experience thought and feelings.
sequester. To move away; set apart; place in seclusion (they chose to sequester themselves in a far valley).
serrated. Having an edge that is notched or saw-toothed.
servile. Subordinate or submissive in attitude, like a servant.
sham. False, fraudulent; a trick intended to pass off someone or something as other than as it really is.
shear. To remove hair or fleece from an animal (the farmer sheared his sheep; the barber sheared Don's hair too short).
shoal. Shallow water, sometimes unexpectedly so and a threat to navigators.
shoddy. Inferior; made of poor quality materials.
shortfall. A shortage; an amount below the expected, usually referring to money.
showboating. Showing off; attempting to attract attention.
showdown. An act that forces the outcome of an issue or event (the feud had gone on long enough, so the families arranged a showdown).
shrew. 1. A woman who nags and scolds; an unpleasant, constantly criticizing woman. 2. A small, mouselike animal with poor vision.
shrewd. Clever, sharp, cunning; quick-witted.
shrivel. To shrink and dry up, remaining in a wrinkled condition.
shun. To deliberately avoid (Carol walked across the street, shunning her nephew).
sickle. A tool with a long, curved blade used for cutting grain, grass, or other tall plants (the Communist flag is known as the hammer and sickle because those two tools are depicted on it).
sidereal. About, or relating to, the stars; stellar.
sidle. To step or move sideways; usually done when trying to avoid another person, or to remain unnoticed.
significant. Having a valuable or important meaning.
silent treatment. To totally ignore an unliked person, as a means of expressing contempt (everyone in the class gave Kim the silent treatment).
simper. A silly, childish smile.
simulate. 1. To imitate, or take on the manner and appearance of another person or thing. 2. To pretend (Carl simulated interest in Rose's career).
sketchy. Slight; incomplete; leaving out many of the details and finer points.
skimpy. Not enough; too small an amount for the purpose, often due to insufficient money having been spent.
slake. To satisfy; to lessen a condition that had existed (the announcement slaked Dan's rage; the water slaked Ann's thirst).
snide. Sarcastic; offensive in a rude, superior manner.
solar. Having to do with the sun. (solar heat; solar rays; solar blindness).
sonar. A technique of using sound waves, reflected off objects under water.
sordid. 1. Extremely dirty; filthy; vile. 2. Motivated solely by greed.
souvenir (soo'-va-neer). A memento; something that helps one remember a place or an event (we were given key rings as souvenirs of the party).
spectrum. A range of ideas, thoughts, or activities (the whole spectrum of medical science).
stalwart. Strong, determined.
stance. One's attitude or position; the way one stands; also, one's thoughts on a controversial issue.
stifle. 1. To smother; suffocate. 2. To cut off opposition.
stunt. To slow or stop the growth of a person or thing.
taboo. A strict rule or custom against an action, imposed by social or religious beliefs.

tactful. Sensitive, considerate; taking care not to offend.
taint. To infect; to stain someone's reputation (the taint of his dishonorable discharge).
tension. 1. The act of stretching or being stretched. 2. A condition of nervous strain.
thwart. To frustrate; to prevent an action or event desired by another person from taking place.
tirade. A long, angry speech, aimed at an enemy or an enemy's position.
topsy-turvy. Totally confused; upside-down.
torrid. 1. Very hot and dry, parched. 2. Passionate, intense.
touchy. 1. Quick to take offense; too sensitive. 2. A situation that requires delicate handling.
tranquil. Calm and undisturbed.
transitory. Existing only for a brief time; short-lived; an in-between period.
traverse. To move across or through; to travel up or down, or backward and forward, through a place or region.
trounce. To beat, as in a fight.
tumult. Noise and commotion caused by an unruly crowd.
tyrant. A harsh, cruel ruler.
unvailing. Useless.
uncouth. Clumsy, crude, impolite.
unflappable. Calm and unexcited.
ungainly. Awkward; lacking grace; moving clumsily.
unpalatable. Not easily swallowed or accepted; unpleasing; unpleasant.
valor. Bravery; courage (a valiant person is one who exhibits valor).
vandalism. Meaningless, criminal destruction of property.
veer. To turn in another direction; to move off one's course.
venerable. Honored and respected because of age, position, or reputation.
vicissitudes (vi-siss'-i-toods). Unexpected shifts and changes in one's life; commonly used to mean hardships (the vicissitudes of widowhood).
vivid. Bright; strongly experienced; distinct; described in a lifelike manner.
wane. To decline, come to an end, decrease.
wary. Watchful; cautious; on one's guard.
wistful. Vaguely, or sadly, wishful.
word processing. Producing reports, books, and other documents via the use of computers.
wrest. To forcefully pull or grab an object from another person.

For further reference

American language

Boatner, Maxine T. and Gates, J. E.
A Dictionary of American Idioms
Barron's. Four thousand commonly used expressions, including slang, proverbs, and clichés. For each entry, definitions and examples of use in sentences.

Mathews, Mitford M.
Americanisms
Phoenix. A dictionary of words that first came into use in the United States. Includes the earliest recorded use of each word.

Mencken, H. L.
The American Language
(one-volume abridged edition)
Knopf. The enduring classic study of our language: how it evolved and how it is used today. Still as fascinating as when written more than 60 years ago.

Vocabulary building

Davidson, Jessica
How to Improve Your Spelling and Vocabulary
Franklin Watts. Rules, tips, procedures, exercises, and games for students and young adults.

Evans, Bergen
Comfortable Words
Random House. Witty, brief analyses of the origins and accurate meanings of commonly used words and phrases.

Specialized interests

Barnhart, Clarence L., Steinmetz, Sol, and Barnhart, R.
The Second Barnhart Dictionary of New English
Harper & Row. Definitions of new words that appeared in print during the years 1973 to 1979.

Bernstein, Theodore M.
Reverse Dictionary
Quadrangle. Meanings are arranged alphabetically; the word that is defined follows its meaning (for example: "Rope or cable for mooring or towing: HAWSER").

Partridge, Eric
Origins
Macmillan. An etymological dictionary, providing information about the evolution of 12,000 commonly used words.

Pei, Mario
Language of the Specialists
Funk & Wagnalls. Specialists in 20 categories—astronomy, literature, and medicine are typical—each select and define a hundred or more terms.

Webster's New Dictionary of Synonyms
G. & C. Merriam Company. Helpful for finding the right word with precisely the meaning you require.

Games and puzzles

Brandreth, Gyles
The World's Best Indoor Games
Pantheon. Complete rules and explanations for dozens of word games from "Ghosts" to "Guggenheim."

Hill, Norman
How to Solve Crossword Puzzles
Funk & Wagnalls.

Kurzban, Stan and Rosen, Mel
The Compleat Cruciverbalist
Van Nostrand Reinhold. Subtitled "How to solve and compose crossword puzzles for fun and profit." (Cruciverbalist is a made-up word meaning "crossword.")

Improving Your Speech

- The five keys 245
- Correct speech 252
- Body language 254
- Preparing to speak 257
- Everyday uses of speech 261
- Robert's Rules of order 264

It is said that man is instinctively afraid of only two things: falling and speaking in public. Just a clever remark, you may think, and not one that applies to you. But think a moment longer. Do any of the following cause you anxiety?

- Making an important phone call.
- Being introduced to an important person.
- Trying to convince someone.

Many people are uneasy in such everyday situations, and they betray their anxiety by the way they speak. On the phone, an anxious person may stumble or mumble, and the other party may quickly stop listening. Meeting an influential stranger, an anxious person may launch into a self-promoting one-way conversation—and forget to introduce himself. During a good-natured exchange involving a difference of opinion, an anxious person may undermine his argument by unintentionally bullying or ridiculing his opponent.

What do these situations have to do with public speaking? Most phone calls, many two-way discussions, and all introductions take place between you and a stranger, between you and your "public." Whatever you say is going to leave an indelible first impression; how you speak to a stranger is as memorable to him as your face. For this reason, your private conversation may need improvement before you are ready to go public.

Broadly interpreted, public speaking is the art of communicating effectively. It is a learned skill, always starting at the level of one-to-one communication. By understanding the way people exchange information verbally and symbolically, you can learn to improve the way you speak—to friends, co-workers, and even strangers.

Formal speechmaking is, of course, the highest form of public speaking. But there are virtually no natural public speakers, born to the podium. The great spellbinders in history—politicians, preachers, and actors—were polished and well-rehearsed performers who knew precisely what they were doing. All of them practiced hundreds of times before hundreds of audiences. In fact, every great speaker is likely to remember at least one time when he was terrified: his first time.

Until the basics of speaking are mastered, the best-written speech on Earth will not be truly heard. On the next pages you will find the five keys to effective speech:

1. Pronunciation; 2. Pace; 3. Attention; 4. Eye contact; and 5. Pauses.

Take each key in order, then apply it to your own mannerisms. (Here as elsewhere in this chapter, access to a tape recorder will be highly useful.) The five keys might be called the tools of your private communications trade; all of them together, in order and ready to use, make up your public speaking tool kit. Each of the five is essential if you expect to be a fully effective speaker.

The five keys

Pronunciation. Beginning now, imagine that everything you say is for someone else's consumption. First, ask yourself if you are usually understood when you talk to anyone outside of your immediate family (families sometimes speak in code). Do you make an effort to enunciate each word? Or do you run the words together as if in a hurry to get the sentence over with? Among friends, face to face, you may get by with careless pronunciation. But do you notice any problem in being understood by people who do not know you? By older people? By people with different regional accents?

Your own regional accent or dialect need not concern you; it is part of your personality and may well be part of your charm. Three of the last six U.S. Presidents had pronounced regional accents, and they made no attempt to change them.

Many English words sound similar, but the slightest adjustment between tongue and lips can make the difference between one sound (or word) and another—between far and fire, for example. One self-test for pronunciation addresses itself to words beginning with d, t, and th. Try saying din, tin, thin, and then. Can you hear the difference clearly? If you cannot, perhaps a friend can. Ask other friends if they have any trouble understanding the way you pronounce words. When you read or hear a difficult word or name, write it down and practice saying it. Soon you will develop a highly desirable pronunciation habit: wanting to say things right.

Reading from a prepared text, you will have the time to look up the pronunciation of any word about which you feel uncertain—and the time will be well spent. Proper names, too, can be found phonetically notated in large dictionaries. A correctly pronounced proper name or place is always well received by an audience. A mispronounced name is, at best, unnecessary; at worst, it is insulting. Most common mispronunciations arise through constant misuse.

For best results with the following list, cover up the wrong and right columns and read the words aloud, using a tape recorder if possible. Some of the words on the list are routinely mispronounced by some of the most prominent people in the United States. But no matter who says new-cue-ler at a press conference, it is wrong.

Test your pronunciation

	Wrong	Right
accidentally	ak-si-dent-ly	ak-si-den-tal-ly
across	a-krost	a-kross
anyway	en-ee-wayz	en-ee-way anywhere	en-ee-wayrze	en-ee-ware
asked	axed	asked burst	bust	burst
drowned	drown-did	drownd
escape	ek-scape	es-cape
film	fill-um	film
government	guv-mint	guh-vern-ment
heartrending	hart-ren-der-ing	hart-ren-ding height	hite-th	hite
hold	a-hold	hold
hundred	hun-nert	hun-drid
incidentally	in-si-dent-ly	in-si-den-tal-ly interesting	in-nur-es-ting	in-tur-es-ting judgment	judg-uh-ment	judg-ment
nowhere	no-wayrze	no-ware
nuclear	new-cue-ler	new-clee-ur
often	off-ten	off-en
police	poh-leece	poh-leece
recur	re-o-cur	re-cur
regardless	ir-ri-gard-liss	ri-gard-liss scared	uh-scared	scared
toward	tuh-ward	tawrd
unaware	un-uh-wayrze	un-uh-ware
undoubtedly	un-dow-tuh-blee	un-dow-tid-lee

Pace. The initial requirement for effective speech is intelligibility. If you are not understood, your thoughts are not conveyed, and if you are to be understood, then you must speak at a pace that enables your listeners to get your message. Rapid-fire speech may be acceptable for comic effect, but it is unacceptable for the purpose of communication.

Most Americans harbor the prejudice that people who speak a foreign language talk too fast. Whatever is unfamiliar, in your own language or another, nearly always seems to be spoken too fast.

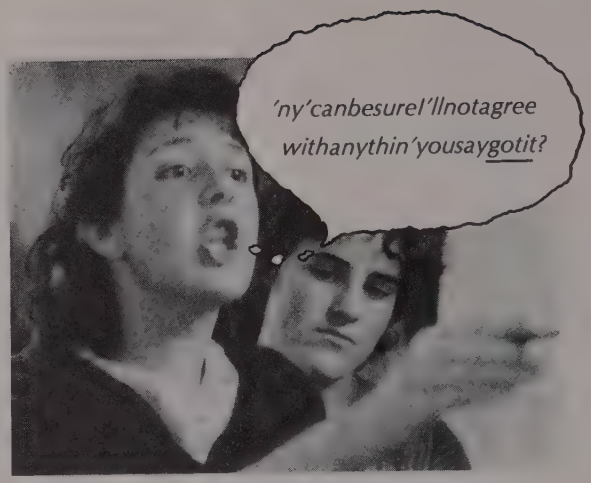
Perhaps you have been told that you speak too fast, or too slowly; or perhaps you suspect that your conversational speed is not quite right for public speaking. To test your speaking rate, choose a page from a favorite book and read it aloud, at your normal speed, for three minutes. Then count the number of words you have just read. Fewer than 400 is considered too slow; 450 is the comfortable spoken average; and 500 words or more is too fast.

Most people find after taking this test that they read faster than they thought. Reading aloud takes longer, of course, than normal conversation; your own words are spoken more easily than someone else's. As a starting point, assume that you should try to speak slower in public than in private.

An aid to slower speaking is louder speaking. Trying to talk louder will cause you to slow your pace. Think for a moment about how people respond to fast, soft speech. In a classroom, for example, a student who rattles off an answer in a whispery voice will neither be heard nor understood—even if his answer is correct. The student who speaks deliberately and clearly makes a better impression—even if his facts are not quite right. In terms of public speaking, slower and louder are usually better.

To be sure, you cannot learn effective speaking pace from a book. There are far too many variables in a speech: points of emphasis, pauses for effect, audience responses and interruptions, and catches of breath. Some novices are fearful that they will not have enough to say, or that what they do have to say will take up no more than five minutes. (They are often surprised to discover, once they have finished, that they have held forth for ten, even fifteen minutes.) Others are fearful that they will not cover all their points in the time allotted, and speak at a disconcertingly fast pace.

You will find that just a few prepared remarks, or notes for reference, can go a long way in your actual presentation. It is better to have a few well-chosen things to say, and to say them slowly and with conviction, than to overstay your welcome. Remember, once you get started, time goes by much faster for the speaker than for the audience.



This speaker has captured the attention of her audience, but will her message be understood?

For the present, try to get to know the sound of your own voice. Use a tape recorder if possible. Listen to your normal talking speed. Ask yourself if the pace seems unhurried, or slightly frantic. Practice will enable you to speak at a rate that is comfortable for you.

Attention. When speaking to others, your task is to get them to pay attention to you. Presumably, standing in front of an audience will give you their attention to begin with. Now you must keep it.

First you must cope with the fear of speaking in public. The best defense against stage fright is an offense. In public speaking, offense usually means loudness. Assuming that you will not use a microphone, you will need to speak louder in performance than you ever did in practice. Most speakers find the process helpful; by concentrating on talking louder than usual, you become less preoccupied with your fear of talking in the first place. Loudness, in its best sense, becomes outspokenness; outspokenness quickly breeds confidence.

Overcoming problems. The most common failing of inexperienced speakers is mumbling—talking too low, not saying things clearly, and sounding apologetic. Consider the way mumblers look when they talk: slouched shoulders, shuffling feet, downward head, eyes darting in every direction except that of the audience. This type of body language will undermine the effectiveness of any spoken language that accompanies it. Clearly the mumbler has no confidence in what he is saying; that message is plain to anyone who sees or hears him. The speaker who mumbles gets sympathy, not attention.

Attention is gotten by a speaker who talks loudly, who stands up straight and leans slightly forward, and who looks as though he believes what he is saying. A loud and forceful delivery also requires more time and energy, thus slowing you down. The extra effort makes you pay more attention to each word, improving your enunciation. If you are too loud, your audience will signal you quickly by the expressions on their faces. It is far easier to tone down your voice than to raise it.

A cigar clenched between one's teeth while talking is a surefire way to obscure one's words.

Before you speak in front of an audience, consider how effective you are—or are not—at holding attention when you speak. Among friends, for instance, do you find it difficult to make yourself heard? Are you accused of making short stories long? Do you have trouble remembering the punch line of a joke or the windup of a story? These are common shortcomings of inexperienced speakers; all are overcome through practice and preparation. When you are thoroughly familiar with what you want to say and how you are going to say it, you will stop worrying about making mistakes. You will speak up. An audience will feel your confidence. You will get—and hold—their attention.

Speech improvement tools. A tape recorder is an invaluable tool for getting to know your best voice level. Most people are surprised and dismayed when they hear themselves for the first time on tape. Both the tone and the volume of your voice sound like someone else's. "I hate the way I sound" is a common reaction. But take heart: the very playback that has dismayed you can help you make truly dramatic improvements. Listen to yourself again and again. Then rerecord your voice, making any adjustments in loudness that seem indicated. You may, for example, find that too many words are being emphasized with volume, creating a strident effect, such as the effect a writer creates who constantly uses italics. Whatever the problem, with loudness or any other aspect of your delivery, a few sessions with a tape recorder can be very revealing.

Another useful aid to self-improvement is the radio. Nearly all radio announcers are chosen for their quality of voice: tone, precise enunciation, and smoothness of delivery. It took years of practice for them to achieve a level of consistency and professionalism that sounds effortless and natural to the listener. Parrot the words of a newscaster as he reads his copy, using his pauses to supply your own version a split second after his. Compare your sound with the newscaster's. Make adjustments and repeat the process. If you do this exercise often enough, improvement will take place on a subconscious as well as a conscious level.

Going a step further, try this experiment. Turn on a baseball game, a football game, or a tennis match, and turn off the sound on the TV. "Broadcast" the whole game, using a tape recorder. Most top sportscasters have used just such radio/TV exercises to learn their trade. They also started out just like you: unsure of themselves (and their voices) and quite anxious about speaking in public. They conquered their uncertainty and anxiety, and so can you.

How your voice comes across

Many people make value judgments based on the way your voice comes across to them. Using a tape of your normal, conversational speaking voice, monitor yourself for the following:

- Crispness. If you slur your words, even unintentionally, your listener is likely to think you are in no condition to talk.
- Rapidity. Talking too fast in a conversation gives the listener—particularly a stranger—the idea that he or she will be given no chance to speak at all.
- Harshness. A listener or an audience will be put off by harsh, strident tones, which are the verbal equivalent of shaking someone by the arm.
- Rising inflection. The habit of ending phrases and sentences on an upward note makes declarations sound like questions. Listeners will question your self-assurance.
- Falling inflection. Phrases or sentences that trail off make you sound as if you changed your mind (or lost your conviction) in mid-sentence.
- Shrillness. Speaking at too high and sharp a pitch will alienate most listeners. It comes across as overemotionalism, immaturity, or poor argument.
- Tenseness. A slight amount of tension showing up in the voice of a public speaker is quite common and need not concern you. The best cure for a noticeably tense voice, which makes a speaker sound nervous, is practice.
- Whispering. Low, "sexy," or whispery tones should be avoided. A whispery voice is hard to hear, and will keep listeners from taking you seriously.

How to get attention and control of an audience

We all admire speakers who can hold an audience from the time they begin to speak until the moment they finish. No one is born with this talent; experience and the following good practices can build it.

1. Find out how many people will be in your audience. (You can speak less formally in front of a small group.)
2. Determine how many are friends and how many are strangers. (Strangers warrant a different approach than friends.)
3. Decide on what sort of message the audience is likely to appreciate. (Never offend the audience's self-interest.)
4. Keep your ideas and remarks to the intellectual level of the audience.
5. Learn the age level of the audience. (Young people may be unfamiliar with historical references.)
6. Learn how many men and how many women will be in attendance. (Avoid language and examples that are sex-biased.)
7. Find out, approximately, the racial and ethnic composition of the audience. (Giving offense to part of an audience usually affects the whole audience.)
8. Determine beforehand the probable reaction of your audience to your subject. (If you invite controversy, be ready to defend your position.)
9. Eliminate all irrelevant material. (A knowledgeable audience will be uninterested in hearing what it knows already, and not at all impressed that you know it, too.)
10. Find out beforehand how well the audience knows you. If not at all, take some time at the beginning to introduce yourself, personally and professionally.

Tips for using a microphone

A microphone can frighten even an experienced speaker who has never used one. These tips will help:

- Remember that the microphone will make it possible for for your normal speaking voice to be heard easily by everyone in the room—even a large room. Think of it as a friend.
- If possible, arrive early when you know you will be using a microphone. This will give you time to make sure it is in working order and to test your voice level without an audience.
- Check the height of a stationary microphone before you say anything. If it is uncomfortably high or low, you can adjust the height.
- When you reach the podium, stand at a comfortable speaking distance from the microphone and ask, "Can you hear me?" If your voice is underamplified, the audience will let you know. If it is overamplified, you will know. Someone in charge will adjust the mike, or you can take care of the problem yourself by taking a step or two backward or forward.
- Do not lean forward over the microphone. It will be able to pick up your voice from a close but comfortable distance without your bending over.
- Do not touch a stationary microphone, or the head of a hand-held microphone. Your lightest touch can produce a resounding thump or a high, piercing whine.
- If you are given a hand-held microphone, hold it about 6 inches from your mouth and ask, "Can you hear me?" Make any adjustments necessary, moving the mike farther away from or closer to your mouth.
- Stay put behind a podium with a microphone. If you move, you will be moving away from the mike, and you will no longer be heard at the same voice level.

Eye contact. If you use your voice to get attention, you use your eyes to hold attention. People tend to believe you, trust you, and listen to what you say if you are looking at them. "Shifty-eyed" and "cross-eyed" are not negative adjectives by chance. Direct eye contact is not just preferable; it is essential to effective private conversations and public addresses.

As a tool for public speaking, your eyes are second only to your voice. While you are speaking, you judge your audience to determine how they are reacting to your words. Their eyes, mirrored by the expressions on their faces, tell the story. Even at a distance you can gauge whether your listeners are attentive.

Why look away from someone you are greeting? Lack of eye contact (top) says, "I do not mean what I'm saying." Good eye contact (above) with your audience says, "I mean every word I'm saying."

Never forget for a moment that your listeners watch your eyes just as intently. How you look at them will determine to a great extent how faithfully they will listen to you. If your eyes never stray from your prepared text, never acknowledge the presence of your live audience, then you might as well hand out copies of your speech instead of delivering it. Without eye contact, you seem to dismiss your audience. Why should they listen if you do not seem to care whether or not you are heard? But when you take pains to establish eye contact with your listeners, they know you mean what you say.

There are three basic ways to use eye contact to your advantage:

Look your listener straight in the eye. Looking someone in the eye while you speak has a similar effect to that of shining your car headlights on a deer: he is transfixed, your captive audience so long as you maintain the beam. The eyes are the meaningful target—foreheads, lips, and chins are not good enough—and the other person's eyes can tell the difference. Direct eye contact assures your listener that you are sincere, that you care about what you are saying. Direct eye contact enables direct communication to take place.

For contrast, imagine the consequences of these examples of indirect eye contact:

- At a party, you follow the progress of other guests with your eyes while you chat with a friend.
- Standing with a shorter friend, you direct your remarks to the top of his head.
- Making a deal with a business acquaintance, you shake on it—while staring at his shoes.

Look the whole audience straight in the eye. Maintaining eye contact is a simple enough matter when you are face to face with one other person. But what if you are addressing two people? Ten people? Scores of people in a large room?

The answer lies in the target method. For each sentence you speak, zero in on the eyes of a different (target) member of the audience. Use an orderly right-left-center pattern, fixing your gaze on one particular man or woman for each phrase or sentence. The method may sound simplistic, but professional speakers adhere to it with excellent results. The whole audience feels included, cared for, spoken to. Targeting takes some effort to master, but it is worth the effort.

Let your eyes talk for you. Your eyes are the best indicator of your emotions. If you talk about courage and perseverance while your eyes show fear and indecision, your listeners will probably stop listening, and will certainly stop believing you.

Pauses. Everyone pauses from time to time in the course of giving a talk. There are good pauses, for an intended effect, and there are bad ones. The bad ones leave you sounding unprepared. There are constructive ways to fill speaking space. First, however, learn to avoid the destructive ways.

An almost universal space filler is hemming and hawing: the all-purpose uh and its cousin um. These syllables find their way into nearly every phone conversation, where they are simply an irritant if noticed at all by either party. But they can destroy the effectiveness of anyone speaking in public.

Listen again to yourself speaking (not reading) on tape. Just as you may not have realized that you talk too fast, you may be surprised at how many ums and uhs show up in your speech. You do not hear yourself using them, and it is unlikely that anyone else will point them out. Fortunately, the habit is easily broken.

The best cure for such space fillers is the simplest: breathing space. If you find yourself bogging down in mid-sentence, just stop. Pause for a few seconds and collect your thoughts. Once you resume your sentence, it is likely to end up better than it started out. It will certainly sound better, uncluttered by uhs or ums—which tend to make your audience forget what preceded them. Best of all, mid-sentence pauses lend any speaker an aura of thoughtfulness, gravity, and maturity that a space-filling hem or haw cannot match. So take your time. You, the speaker, have the floor.

A particularly irksome space filler is "y'know?" It is not even logical. If your audience already knows, there is no point in telling them. If you already know, then "y'know?" cues the audience that you lack the verbal equipment to say what you know. In either case, "y'know?" has no place in good speaking. It may not bother you, and it may not bother your friends, but the average audience reacts to this space filler very poorly indeed. Avoid it.

Grammar counts too. Proper grammar is an essential part of correct speech, particularly since an audience is likely to judge you as much on how you say things as on what you say. The following list consists of common errors in American diction. Do any of them apply to you?

25 words and phrases to watch for

Incorrect	Correct
a criteria	a criterion
a phenomena	a phenomenon
Can I go now?	May I go now? (if asking permission) finalize	complete; finish up
for free	free; for nothing
hardly nothing	hardly anything; almost nothing
hisself	himself
I ain't; it ain't	I am not; it is not
I been	I have been
I can't help but feel	I can't help feeling
I can't hardly	I cannot; I can hardly
I done	I did; I have done it don't	it does not
off of	off
out loud	aloud
over with	over; finished; done with quote (as noun)	quotation reason is because	reason is snuck	sneaked
supposing I am	suppose I am theirselves	themselves
the media	the press; a medium
this here	this
this point in time	now; then thusly	thus

Help yourself

Pronunciation, pace, attention, eye contact, pauses; each of the five keys is an integral part of successful speechmaking; none can be overlooked. To check your progress, try these three self-help exercises:

- Talk to yourself in front of a mirror, with strict emphasis on making eye contact.
- Tape-record yourself—reading from a text and talking extemporaneously—to check your pronunciation, pace, and voice level.
- Listen carefully to the tape playbacks to see how poised you are during pauses.

Tape recorder checklist

You are your own worst judge of your own voice. You simply do not hear yourself accurately. Your ears are misplaced for the purpose, and you need an outside, objective opinion. A tape recorder is the obvious solution, and it makes no judgments at all.

With a tape recorder, you have plenty of time to make adjustments and refinements. Start simply. Talk conversationally into the machine, merely recounting what is on your mind or what you might like to say to somebody else if he were present. Sessions like these teach you what your "normal" voice level is.

As you get more comfortable with self-recording, you can record emotional flare-ups, perhaps, or tiny tantrums. With diligence and patience, you can learn from your tapes just how you sound to everyone else at your best and your worst. Then you can begin to change what you do not like. Remember, this vocal self-improvement is a strictly private matter, between you and your machine.

Here are some tape-playback questions to ask yourself:

1. Do you pronounce each word clearly?
2. Does any of the pronunciation sound uncertain?
3. Do you sometimes run two or more words together?
4. Do you talk too fast to be understood easily?
5. Do you sound tired or bored?
6. Do you speak loudly enough for each word to be heard clearly?
7. Does your speech sound too soft to reach a large audience?
8. Do you sound timid or uncertain?
9. Do you sound angry or belligerent?
10. Is your tone monotonous?
11. Within sentences, do you emphasize certain words?
12. Do you put emphasis on the wrong words?
13. Do you start sentences with the word "well"?
14. Does "y'know?" creep into your speech?
15. Do you handle pauses silently, without hemming or hawing?
16. Are there any grammatical mistakes? Incorrect words?
17. Is your speech marred by slang or profanity?
18. If you were in the audience, would you trust this speaker?
19. Do you sound as if you mean what you are saying?
20. Could you say what you have said on tape to an audience?
21. Do you sound better now than you did when you began taping?

Usually, it is best to listen for one or two speech habits at a time. If you prefer, listen to the tape several times in a row, making notes about whatever you observe. Make adjustments and rerecord. In a surprisingly short time, your answer to Number 21 will be "yes."

Correct speech

Speaking correctly means using the English language correctly. That, necessarily, means paying attention to grammar and word usage. You may have a great deal to say, but if you do not say it right—according to the rules—your listeners will not take you seriously. Sloppy grammar and mispronunciation often go together; the speaker who uses words incorrectly will often mispronounce them as well.

Your basic diction—the way you use and apply words—is probably well grounded as the result of reading, writing, and hearing others talk. But you may be unaware of some common misuses and misapplications of everyday speech. Check your own diction against the following examples. Some of these words are used mistakenly all the time in informal speech.

You may wonder why you should be so careful about your diction. Your friends understand you anyway, and you want to sound like your normal self when you speak in public. But your friends have learned to read between the lines of what you say; you do the same thing when you listen to them. Sometimes, among friends and spouses, almost no words are needed.

This is not so in public speaking. In public, among strangers, the rules of grammar and correct speech are universal. A public speaker wants and needs to be understood the first time—which may be his only time. By learning and using proper diction, you increase your chances of expressing yourself clearly, whoever your audience. However unsophisticated an audience may be, it will understand and respect good diction.

Words commonly confused affect, effect. Affect is a verb meaning to influence. Effect, though it can be a verb, usually is a noun meaning result.

compare, contrast. Use compare for pointing out similarities and differences between things. Use contrast only to show differences.

compare to, compare with. Use compare to when drawing a comparison between two things that are not really similar: "Compared to a glacier, you move quickly." Use compare with when drawing a comparison between two things that are similar: "Compared with her, you are a fast runner."

each. In formal prose and speech, treat each as meaning each one (singular): "Each of the soldiers did his duty."

either. Always a singular pronoun, meaning either one: "Either of the teams is capable of winning."

exhausting, exhaustive. Use exhausting to mean using up completely, especially using up energy, that is, becoming fatigued: "Exhausting exercise is not recommended for me." Use exhaustive to mean thorough: "My physician gave me an exhaustive examination and declared me fit as a fiddle."

farther, further. Farther means measurable distance; further means intangible distance: "There is no point in talking any further if you keep moving farther away."

flaunt, flout. Use flaunt to mean display conspicuously: "She flaunted her new car before all of us." Use flout to mean treat with contempt. "Some people flout traffic laws."

imply, infer. Imply is what the speaker does; infer is what the listener does: "The professor implied that he was not through yet. I inferred that he had yet to conclude his lecture."

it is I, it is me. In strictly formal speech, "It is I" is preferred.

kind of, sort of. Use kind of and kinds of to refer to definite things and commodities. Sort of and sorts of should be saved for indefinite, imprecise types and categories: "The kind of speaker who says he's kind of sorry will not be taken seriously." (Note: never use kind of a or sort of a in formal discourse.)

lay, lie. These are among the most misused verbs in the language. Lay (laid, lain) is a transitive verb; it takes an object. Lie (lay, lain) is an intransitive verb; it does not take an object: "Are you tired? Why not lay down your suitcase." "Thanks, but I need to lie down for a while."

learn, teach. Learn is intransitive, teach is transitive: "I learned so much French in a year abroad that I ended up teaching it to my classmates this year."

less, few. Less refers to amounts measured, and few refers to things counted: "We have less gas than I thought we had, but just a few more miles to go."

like, as. Like is a preposition, used for comparisons, and as is a conjunction, used to link phrases: "We picked up the suspect just as he left the premises. We're sticking to him like glue."

slow, slowly. Slow is an adjective, slowly an adverb: "Can you believe it? Danny ran slowly again. I'm afraid he's just a slow runner."

ALWAYS be yourself.
NEVER address your audience as less intelligent than yourself.

Word choice. The best advice to inexperienced speakers is also the oldest: be yourself. Only a trained actor should stand in front of people he does not know and pretend to be Mark Twain, or Emily Dickinson, or Clarence Darrow. Most likely you will be speaking words that you wrote, so you had better use ones that you are comfortable with. Think about the way you would normally use persuasion on another person, or marshal your forces for an argument with that person. Those words are precisely the kind you should choose for a talk before a group. Only this time, your argument will be unopposed. Public speakers have that luxury.

A great deal of specialized jargon has crept into American speech, thanks to television, the press, and rock music. Public speakers who use this jargon—often in an attempt to sound "in"—usually end up sounding phony, presumptuous, or condescending.

Anyone can aspire to be a plain speaker. The chief requirements are telling the truth as you see and know it, telling it simply, and treating your audience as intellectual equals. All of these are healthy underpinnings for any public speaking appearance.

Choosing the right words is often complicated by changing times and fashions. Yesterday's "in" word or phrase is today's cliche. At the right is a list of overworked words. Many of them may remind you of others that you may have fallen into the habit of using. Get rid of them, too.

Choosing the right word

Fad words and phrases. Coming from politics, business, and the social sciences, these words sound pretentious in conversational speech. Some examples are:

bottom line, in context, time frame, viable

Pet words. Most of these words are legacies from adolescence. They say (vaguely) what you feel, but never what you think. They make you sound dated. A small sampling:

fabulous, cute, far out, right on, awesome

Extra words. More eloquent than um or uh (but no more meaningful), these extra words are creatures of habit. A thoughtful pause would be more eloquent than:

you know, frankly, so to speak, well

Slang words. Formal language is always acceptable, colloquial language is generally permissible, but slang usage is risky. When in doubt, use your dictionary. Misused slang sounds vulgar or tasteless.

Exaggeration. Most superlatives should be avoided; they are so overused that they have lost their meaning. Personalize your feelings and value judgments with, I think . . . , In my opinion . . . , etc. Meaningless superlatives include:

great, fantastic, terrific, incredible, the most Pejorative words. Racial slurs and epithets—you know them all. Avoid them.

Adding -wise. Adding -wise to nouns is as unnecessary as it is ill-advised. Try the constructions as to or speaking of.

Profanity. Despite what you see in current movies, read in novels, and hear from comedians, profanity still has no place at all in formal speech or polite society. Swearing is generally offensive to people who know better ways to express themselves.

Overworked words to avoid alienated	operative articulate (as a verb)	oppressed

awesome	overreact
concept	paranoid
credibility	posture (for attitude)
depersonalization	prioritize dynamic	rhetoric
elegant	ripoff
enrichment	scenario
holistic	structure (as a verb)
involved	substantive
manic	superlative
obscene	veritable

Clichés to avoid

When you say . . .	Do you mean?
advance planning	planning
as far as	as for; as to
as you know	as you may know; let me remind you
at this/that point in time	now or then beautiful	good, kind, cooperative be that as it may	nonetheless; but bleep out	censor
by the same token	also charisma	appeal
confrontation	meeting consciousness-raising	educational consensus of opinion	consensus; agreement
curiously enough	curiously dialogue	conversation; meeting disadvantaged	poor
due to the fact	because encounter	meet escalate	rise; raise
expertise	knowledge; skill
fabulous/ fantastic/ far out	good; excellent; acceptable for free	free
frame of reference	background
game plan	strategy
guesstimate	rough guess
head tripping	thinking
impact (as a verb)	affect in my opinion	I think in point of fact	in fact insightful	perceptive
learning experience	experience
love	like; approve; admire meaningful dialogue	discussion
meaningful experience	experience
more unique	singular
my personal opinion	my opinion
needless to say	obviously out of sight	impressive
out of this world	impressive
personal friend	friend
presently	now
prior to	before
relationship	friendship; acquaintance
underprivileged	poor
valid	true; genuine validate	confirm
with reference to	as to; about

Body language

Your eyes are the most obvious indicator of your attitudes and emotions, but your facial expressions, posture, and gestures—singly or together—can just as surely cue an attentive observer to your state of mind. Your most eloquent words cannot dispel the mistrust that is invited by negative body language.

Just as you can train your eyes to make contact with a single listener as well as an entire audience, you can learn to control the attentiveness of the rest of your body—if you become aware of your body language.

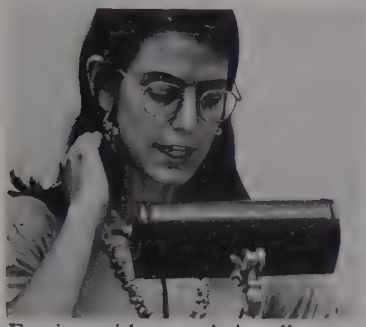
Facial expression. Variety is important. If you smile all the time, you may be considered insincere, perhaps even frivolous. By contrast, an unvarying solemn expression may be interpreted as insensitive, even dangerous. Look at photographs of yourself. Are you characteristically gloomy, grinning, frowning, close-mouthed? Are you noticeably out of step with the occasion? An appropriate variety of facial expressions will encourage an audience to trust you.

Posture. Sitting or standing, you want to look poised. Whether you are sitting behind a table or not, sit up straight. If you are on your feet, do not stand at military attention; it is clearly uncomfortable for most speakers. At the same time, slouching is uncomfortable for most audiences—it signals the speaker's lack of interest or his disrespect. Try to find an intermediate posture, with both feet balanced on the floor, in which you lean slightly toward your audience. That alone will focus the audience's attention on your eyes and mouth, which is where you want it.

Gestures. The best advice for novice speakers is to do nothing with your hands—rest them on the podium or clasp them behind your back. Do not fold your arms across your chest; that means, in body language, that you are challenging the audience. Hand gestures to emphasize your words can be highly effective, but they must be learned, usually in performance and often in response to the mood of the moment. Furthermore, hand language must be nearly perfectly synchronized to your spoken words or it will look foolish. Practice before a mirror may be helpful here, but audience feedback—time and time again—is the only sure test.

Body language checklist

Here are some suggestions about silent communication for public and nonpublic speaking occasions:

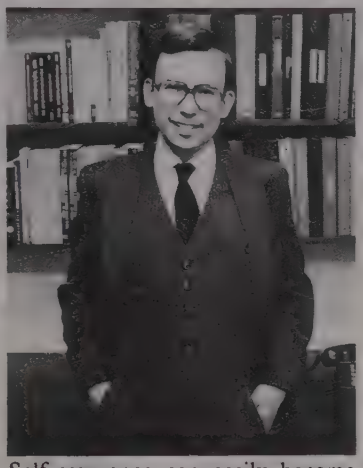


Fussing with your hair tells your audience your mind is elsewhere.

A sidewise glance says you surely distrust the speaker.

Your eyes and posture can say I do not take you seriously.

Your hands can say I worry about what you are telling me.

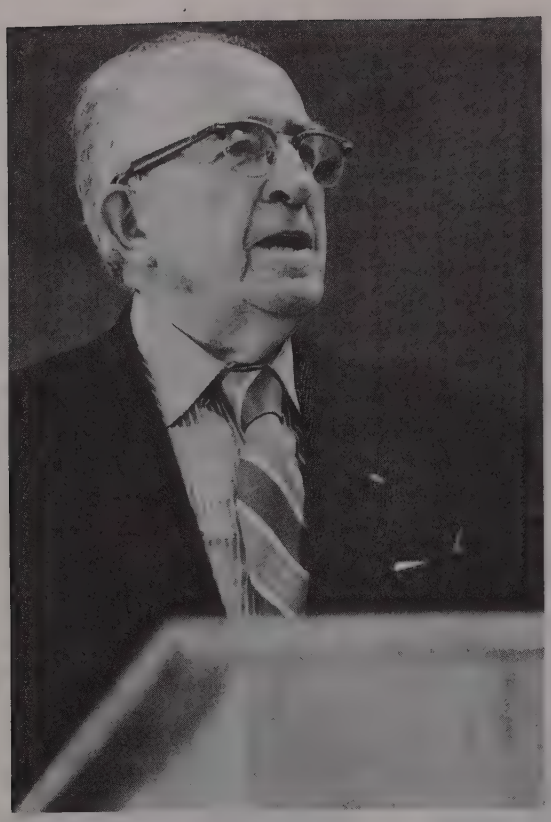


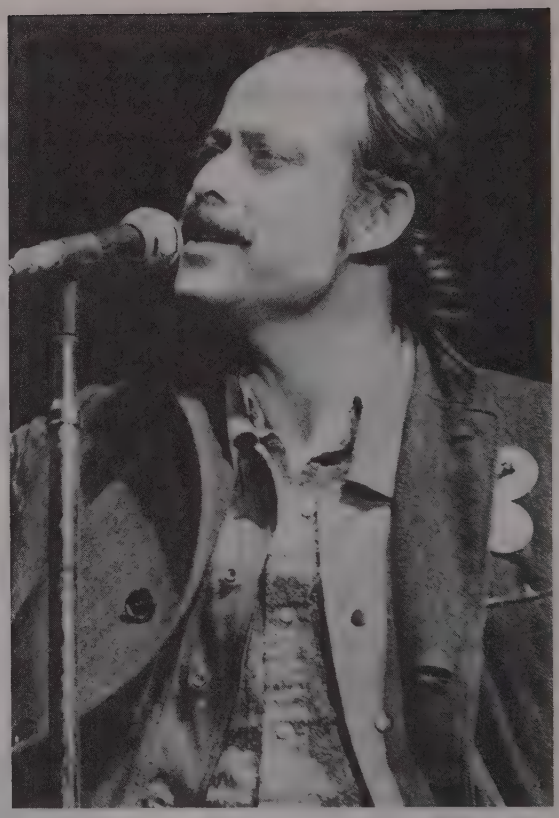
Self-assurance can easily become oppressive self-importance.

When neither person looks the other in the eye, who trusts whom?

Close attention is apparent in eyes that stay on the speaker.

Eye contact plus legs crossed toward one another equal rapt attention.





Members of a mature audience are more likely to listen receptively to a speaker whose dress and grooming resemble their own. A younger audience might prefer a speaker less carefully groomed.

Personal appearance. A speaker needs more than voice plus message to make a good impression. There are silent factors, too, that contribute to your listeners' acceptance or rejection of what you have to say. Your good looks or lack of them are not a factor, but your clothes and grooming definitely are. Before you speak a word, they show your opinion of yourself and affect other people's opinion of you—for good or ill.

Department store salespeople know this well. They do significantly more business when they dress up fully for work, even if the weather is hot and the air conditioning inadequate. Customers, they find, are reluctant to buy from salesmen in shirtsleeves or saleswomen in pants. Experienced job seekers know this, too. Applicants who show up for an interview in business clothes increase their chances of being hired, even for blue collar jobs.

For public speaking or for important personal engagements, the rules are the same: dress to show yourself to best advantage. For men, this usually means a pressed suit, shined shoes, a tasteful tie, and a freshly pressed shirt with an unfrayed collar. Good grooming is important, too. The absence of a shave will reflect poorly on any speaker, as will unruly hair or a long-overdue haircut.

Women speakers should take care to avoid being too elaborately dressed, coiffed, or made up. A simple, becoming dress or suit, neatly styled hair, and carefully applied tasteful makeup will increase the speaker's confidence and prevent her audience from being distracted by her appearance. As for accessories, leave attention-drawing jewelry, scarves, etc., at home, and make sure that the shoes you choose are shined or cleaned and not run down at the heels.

If you know the audience you will be addressing, then you can predict with reasonable accuracy how they will be dressed and then dress yourself accordingly. You probably own at least one outfit in which you know you look well. Wear it. You will feel most comfortable in the clothes you like best—which, with very few exceptions, are your best choice for a speaking engagement.

You want to look like your best self, not like someone else. After all, you are the one who has been invited to speak. If you pay careful attention to clothes and grooming, you will increase the audience's confidence in you right along with your confidence in yourself.

Preparing to speak

What is needed for a successful outline? A central idea. A clear understanding of the audience that will be addressed. A beginning, middle, and end—all connected and all headed in the same direction.

Why do people make speeches? There are three reasons for speechmaking that will probably never change: the speaker has something special to say; he believes he has an audience receptive to his ideas; and he is confident he can make his case in the allotted time and place. With those reasons in mind, here is a speaker's three-part blueprint for a talk:

1. A receptive audience.
2. A central idea.
3. A beginning, middle, and end.

Unless all three of these fundamentals are present, a speaker probably cannot deliver a successful speech. Why?

—Without a receptive audience, one's points cannot be made.

—Without a central idea, a speech is pointless.

—Without a beginning-to-end structure, very few in the audience will get the point.

These basics of public speaking have not been improved upon in the 2400 years since Aristotle explained them in his great book, Rhetoric. Every successful speech, from a three-minute talk to a thirty-minute oration, will adhere to the time-tested formula that states, before you say anything, know your audience and organize your thoughts.

A receptive audience. Who will be in the audience? In most cases, you will know your listeners or at least be known to them (fellow students, townspeople, club or union members, kindred political spirits, etc.). If this is not the case, find out who will be there, or check with someone likely to know. If you find that your listeners will be older or younger than you expected, better educated or less well informed, all male or all female, then tailor your remarks accordingly. A clear idea of who your audience will be gives you the best possible chance of getting through to them in your speech.

A central idea. Ask yourself why you are motivated to speak in the first place. What is your point? A central idea is easier to arrive at than you might think. The problem is to distill it, to break it down to one or two sentences at the most. That brevity is what will make your central idea memorable. Whenever you can make your point memorably, you know you have succeeded.

A beginning, middle, and end. Briefly, the beginning of your talk should do two things: get your listeners' attention and introduce your central idea. The middle portion (the longest by far) will support your central idea and expand on it, with examples or evidence, in some depth. The end will restate the central idea, summing up with supporting evidence. Ideally, you will come up with a quotable line, perhaps the central idea itself, that members of the audience can take home with them.

When composing your talk, begin in the middle. The bulk of your research and the meat of your argument will be found in the middle portion. No doubt your best ideas will stem from there, too. Try to hold off on composing the beginning of your speech—setting forth your central idea—until you have explored the fertile territory in the middle ground.

Because so many professional speakers do it, you may be tempted to begin or end your talk with a humorous anecdote, a topical or local joke. Resist the temptation. The pros know how to get laughs because they do it all the time. A novice speaker should not risk

FORGET the jokes.
FORGET the big fancy words.

not getting a laugh, which can undermine the effectiveness of a speech at the very beginning.

If you stick to the three basics and honor the beginning–middle–end framework, you will not embarrass yourself—even if you are a first-time speaker. The rest of your preparation will consist of researching your subject matter, writing out your speech (one draft is not enough), and reading it aloud.

The best written speech does not always translate from the page to the podium, just as certain great novels do not read well aloud. Plan to read your text aloud before giving it the final touches. You are likely to make minor alterations that will significantly improve the way your speech "plays."

As in most things, skill is achieved through experience. The first time is the worst by far. Because novice speakers are so apprehensive, they tend to remember, vividly, all their mistakes. Knowing those mistakes, they usually do not repeat them. Members of such organizations as Toastmasters, or Dale Carnegie, or the self-help anonymous groups usually find, after they speak the first time, that they enjoy talking in public. It was only that first time that frightened them, like a plunge into cold water.

You will soon be ready to take that plunge.

Writing a speech. Speechwriting differs from ordinary prose writing in one crucial respect: speeches are read aloud. Prose is meant to be read silently; it is designed solely for transfer from the printed page directly into the reader's mind. Speechwriting is consciously designed to be transferred by a speaker to a listener; the effect of the spoken word must be emotional as well as intellectual.

Even though you take great pains to write it, a good speech should sound as much like normal conversation as possible, using unadorned language that people can understand. A speech that you write should also conform to the way you normally talk—your tone of voice, choice of words, and cadence. Here is how to begin:

1. Using just one page of a yellow legal pad, outline your talk vertically under the three-part basic framework:
   appeal to audience central idea
   beginning–middle–end
   (Allow 80 percent of the page for the last grouping, and most of that for the middle.)
2. Make short notes to "set" each of the three themes above: your informed appeal to a particular audience; a short statement of your central idea; and your beginning–middle–end structure (starting with the middle).

So far your written preparations for speaking will not have taken up more than a page. But you may already have saved hours in wasted time. You now have a clear idea of whom to convince, your intention, and how to hold your argument together.

A first draft of a speech should be written in longhand or typed quickly. Many writers need to use a typewriter or word processor because they need execution that keeps up with their thoughts. It is helpful to get your spontaneous thoughts down, before you start writing like a writer rather than a talker. Here are some time-tested ingredients of an effective speech that should be of help whatever your subject matter:

- Beginning. Start by thanking your host or your sponsoring organization. Then introduce your central idea.
- Middle. Drawing on your knowledge of the audience, compliment your listeners. If appropriate, suggest ways in which your central idea coincides with certain goals they have or values they believe in.
- End. Work toward what salesmen call the close, in which the audience becomes persuaded that your central idea, once a hypothesis, is now a given.

When you write your final draft, remember that a typewritten page takes considerably longer to read aloud than you may think. A ten-minute talk translates to five typewritten pages or less. Try to retain most of the unrehearsed scribbled or hastily typed language of your first draft: that is how you really talk. Given a choice between a big fancy word and a short plain one, take the little one. Keep your sentences short, too. Long sentences may be artful on paper, but they are deadly when read aloud. Last of all, never fail to thank the audience for their attention.

To illustrate a well-written speech, it might be useful to study one of the very best: Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

For all its deserved fame, for all its renowned eloquence, Lincoln's address was only 280 words long and required only three minutes to deliver. As an accomplished speaker he knew intuitively the appropriate message to deliver at Gettysburg. How would Lincoln have sketched out the Gettysburg Address?

Abraham Lincoln, when he wrote out the Gettysburg Address (supposedly on the back of an envelope), came up with some phrases that will live forever in American prose. He may have memorized the whole speech; he may have read it. But what if he had restricted himself to one small index card for prompting purposes? The card on the next page shows what it might have looked like.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

How the speech was planned

1. Audience —survivors and mourners of the casualties of Gettysburg. (The occasion is the consecration of the battlefield.)

2. Central idea —Civil war is a dreadful, wasteful undertaking, but in the course of history a noble ideal—an indissoluble union—must on occasion be tested by fire.

3. Rhetorical structure
   a. Beginning— the framers of the Constitution foresaw a nation conceived in liberty, in which all men are created equal.
   b. Middle— thousands of Americans, from North and South, died at Gettysburg to test the proposition that the nation can endure, at whatever price.
   c. End— everyone here today must now profit from the awful witness of Gettysburg: none of these soldiers shall have died in vain; a new nation shall rise from these ashes; the spirit of the Founding Fathers shall somehow transcend the tragic waste and sacrifice of this battlefield.

A card Lincoln might have used

(beginning) Fourscore and seven years ago...
nation conceived in liberty...
all men equal

(middle) world will forget us... but not men who died here

(end) new birth of freedom... government of, by, and for people last forever

Reading a speech. Mark Twain once said, "It usually takes me more than three weeks to prepare a good impromptu speech." He meant it, too. The best speakers, like the best actors, have to practice hard in order to appear natural.

There are three methods for speaking in public: (1) from a written text; (2) extemporaneously (from minimal notes); and (3) impromptu (from no notes at all). At first the alternatives may seem progressively less difficult. But in fact, number three is always the riskiest and often the hardest. A novice speaker should never consider "winging it" in front of a group until he is thoroughly familiar with his own voice, his own style, and his own words—written out. In order, here is how each method works:

Delivery from a written text. Written, as used here, refers to remarks or to a speech that you have written yourself. The first rule is not to read your speech at all—that is, never appear to be reading it word for word. This would necessitate your staring at your text, as if it were an unfamiliar book, and rarely coming up for air. Your audience might conclude that their presence does not matter at all. It would also appear that you have no familiarity with your own words. The only situation in which it is not a mistake to read aloud to a live audience is when broadcasting on the radio. And people who read scripts on the radio are usually professional actors or newscasters. In person you must do more than read; you must communicate.

Never forget that your listeners crave eye contact. You cannot begin to establish whole-room eye contact if your head is buried in your text most of the time. The remedy is twofold. First, practice reading your speech over and over again until the beginning of each section or paragraph is a memory cue to the rest. When you know your material well enough, type your final draft in capital letters, with extra space between words so that you can make it out easily from a distance. Next, underline the crucial first words and phrases of paragraphs and sections—or highlight them in yellow, or type them in red—so that you can be a glancer, not a reader. Glancing is a natural thing to do while speaking; reading is patronizing.

Extemporaneous delivery. When you become sufficiently adept at cuing yourself from first words and phrases, you are but a short step away from making seemingly offhand talks—with careful preparation, but no written-out text. For this method it is best to compose a single-page master note (see the Lincoln sample on the previous page). This will include, in digest form, the same information as an outline for a written address: appeal to audience, central idea, and beginning–middle–end linkage.

Impromptu delivery. This method is appropriate for speakers who address audiences frequently and are very sure of themselves and their subject matter. Impromptu speaking, in fact, requires more expertise and self-confidence than many experienced speakers are likely to possess. Nonprofessionals are well advised to opt for delivery from a written text, or for extemporaneous delivery.

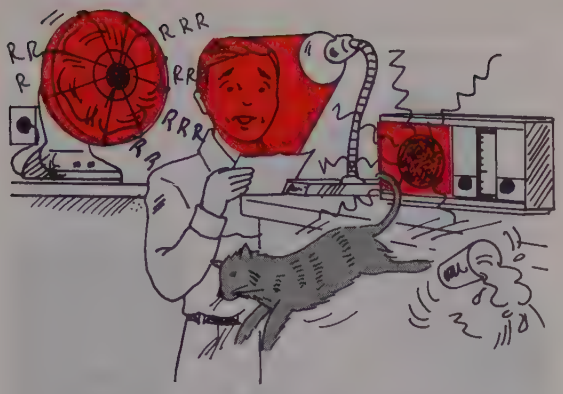
NEVER read your entire speech.

If proper preparation for speaking involves so much rehearsal and homework, why not simply memorize your remarks? Unless you are a trained actor, this method almost never works. At some time you may have been compelled to memorize stanzas of poetry, or lines from plays, or famous historical orations. Were you pleased with the way you sounded in recitation? Most likely, your version of those great words sounded monotonous, or painfully self-conscious, or both. An entire speech, minus an actor's intonation and dramatic embroidery, would probably sound more awkward still. The moment you memorize something, your delivery stops being spontaneous and genuine. Without spontaneity and sincerity, you cannot persuade anyone of anything.

Practicing a speech. Most of your speech preparation can be done all by yourself. One crucial part, however, will require the cooperation of another person and the use of a tape recorder, as discussed earlier.

Record a normal conversation with your cooperating friend. When you play the conversation back, note how he or she reacts to whatever you say. Pay even closer attention to your own "performance." Can you be clearly understood? Is your speaking tone monotonous, tired-sounding, markedly accented, or too excitable? Imagine yourself listening to this voice on the tape for the first time. Does the tone make you feel anxious? Bored? Angry?

Practicing for a specific talk, try to simulate difficult conditions for yourself. Turn on a portable fan or a noisy air conditioner; play a radio in the background; train a lamp or two on your face—whatever might disturb your concentration, because something probably will when you actually speak in front of an audience. As you start the tape recorder, make note of the time; however quickly you get through your trial run, your actual speech will almost surely run longer. Do not talk too loudly—only loud enough to overcome your distractions. Wherever you think an audience reaction (laughter, murmurs, applause) is likely or appropriate, pause until the floor is yours again.



RRR
RRR
RRR

Telephone pointers

- Voice. Unless someone happens to tell you, you may have no idea of how you sound on the phone—too loud perhaps, or too soft, or too fast. Find out. Ask a friend about it or record yourself on tape.
- Attitude. When a nervous, inexperienced salesman or fund-raiser calls you, you can tell almost instantly what the call is about. To counteract a bad first impression, try to start every phone conversation as if you really care, as if this call is just the one you were expecting. If it is not, it will not take long to end the conversation.
- Courtesy. Before you dial, ask yourself a few questions. Is this an inconvenient time? Is the other person likely to be too busy to talk? Should you call back later? Most of these questions can be answered early in your conversation, before inconsideration sets in. If you reach an answering machine, either hang up or leave a short, straightforward message.

Emotions show through even when you are using a telephone. Bear this in mind when you talk.

If your quarry is "in conference," it means he or she cannot or will not talk to you now. No matter. Leave your number and call back an hour later if your call is not returned. Call back a second time, even a third, if necessary. Your man or woman's secretary will have dropped the conference excuse by this time, and your courteous persistence cannot fail to make an impression. Your name will go to the top of the call-back list. Courtesy, persistence, and patience all have an important place in telephone business transactions.

Every time you talk to a stranger on the phone you are practicing the same arts of persuasion that you use when speaking in public. On-the-phone training is a daily refresher course. Make the most of it, and try your best to be pleasant.

Salesmanship. The art of salesmanship is primarily a one-to-one test of wits between you, the seller, and your listener, the buyer. (See the Careers chapter for a discussion of speaking in a job interview.) Before the buyer orders anything, he must be convinced that the salesman means what he says, that his word is his bond regardless of his product. Effective public speaking operates on the same principle. The listener must be persuaded that you, the speaker, are worthy of belief and trust. Persuasiveness, in both selling and speaking, rests on four fundamental precepts:

1. Knowledge. Speakers, like salesmen, must know their subjects—particularly their central ideas or selling points—better than their listeners. You may need to anticipate tricky (even mean-spirited) questions and have a ready answer for anything, which is where research and practice come in. The best salesmen always have tailor-made reasons why anybody can use their product. The best speakers, especially debaters, always seem capable of summoning a convincing argument on the spot.
2. Empathy. Not to be confused with sympathy (feeling for the other person), empathy is the ability to step into the other person's shoes, to feel with him or her. In terms of public speaking, empathy is the learned talent for saying the right thing in the right words to markedly different listeners. A skilled speaker delivers the same basic message time and time again, simply altering his tone and his style so as not to offend his present audience, and even to flatter them a bit. Top salesmen must do this constantly, of course, trying to convince a housewife, a teenager, and a grandfather that the same car is the right choice for each of them.
3. Sincerity. Presumably, you would not choose to talk, publicly, about something you did not believe in. But the moment you decide to stand up and sound off about a subject, your own faith and belief in it is not enough. You must demonstrate, through your delivery technique, that you truly mean what you say. If anything undermines that sincerity—a monotonous tone of voice, shifty eyes, sloppy posture—your credibility will be damaged and may even disappear.

4. Enthusiasm. You may not be able to define enthusiasm, but you know it when you see it: excitement, energy, contagious self-confidence. Those who know how to transfer that feeling to others are usually outstanding in their field: successful coaches, teachers, businesspeople, politicians, and religious leaders. Such a talent is too easily passed off as speaking ability. What it really is, when practiced and sustained, is inspirational leadership.

Knowledge, empathy, sincerity, and enthusiasm. All are essential to both selling and speaking in public. Knowledge and enthusiasm are largely a matter of thorough preparation and vigorous delivery; empathy and sincerity are largely determined by your listener's perception of your intentions. Salesmen have a harder time with listeners' misconceptions than speakers do—but not much harder.

Another technique shared by salesmen and speakers is the use of the "grabber" in the first paragraph. In sales, the grabber is the unique selling point; in speaking it is the central idea. Whichever form it takes, it should be mentioned early and often. As a public speaker you must never forget that you are selling yourself to whomever you address, just as a politician sells himself in painstakingly crafted 30-second spots on television. You, however, will be "live," not taped. Your only product is yourself. It is important to mean what you say about that product—with your words, your eyes, your body language, and your attitude.

Parliamentary procedure. There are thousands of community organizations and service groups in the United States. Very few of them would accomplish much of anything unless they depended on Robert's Rules for order, decorum, and proper parliamentary procedure. Although every conceivable point of order is covered in Robert's, the group chairman is responsible for invoking, enforcing, and interpreting each parliamentary dispute. (A condensed table of Robert's Rules may be found on pages 264-265.)

Even in an informal meeting, a chairman has the responsibility of conducting proceedings fairly.

If you know your rules of procedure, local meetings can provide excellent on-the-floor training for self-assertiveness and for making your points aloud and under pressure. If you become disruptive or obstructionist, the chairperson of the meeting will let you know soon enough. When you learn such a lesson in a crowd, you tend to remember it. Here are some examples of ways—within Robert's Rules—to influence the course of a public meeting:

Important procedural rules

Adjournment	The chairperson can hold off a hurry-up vote on adjournment until proper consideration is given to the entire scheduled agenda.
Obstructionism	A chairperson is empowered to tell a troublemaker that he will not be recognized to speak—that he is out of order—until he agrees to behave in accordance with the rules.
Recess	As in a courtroom, the chairperson may declare a short recess at a time when feelings are running too high—or when it looks as if an ill-advised vote is in the offing.
Brokering	The chairperson is entitled to interrupt debate and propose a vote whenever he pleases, or to advise postponement of a vote if he does not like the probable outcome.
Quorum	Organizations establish the requirements for a quorum, the minimum number of people that must be present at a meeting before its proceedings can be regarded as valid. If the quorum criterion is not met, the meeting is invalid.

Robert's Rules of order

Table of precedence of parliamentary motions, points of order, and procedural questions

Type of motion		May be debated	May be amended
Privileged category	Fix time of next meeting	yes[1]	yes
	Adjourn	no	no
	Take a recess	yes[1]	no[2]
	Point of privilege (e.g., group comfort)	no	no
	Point of order (refer, agenda)	no	no
Incidental category	Point of order (refer, ruling)	no	no
	Appeal ruling of the chair	yes[4]	no
	Parliamentary inquiry	no	no
	Withdraw motion[6]	no	no
	Suspend the rules (temporary)	no	no
	Object to consideration	no	no
Subsidiary category	Lay on the table (postpone)	no	no
	Close debate (vote previous question)	no	no
	Limit debate	no	yes
	Postpone (to specific time)	yes	yes
	Refer to committee	yes	yes
	Make amendment	no[8]	yes
	Postpone indefinitely	yes	no
Main or unclassified category	Primary motion	yes	yes
	Take up from the table	no	no
	Reconsider[9]	no[8]	no
	Rescind	yes	yes

Type of vote	Needs second	May interrupt speaker
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority[3]	no	yes
no vote	no	yes
majority[3]	no	yes
majority[5]	yes	yes
no vote	no	yes
no vote[7]	no	no
2/3	yes	no
2/3	no	yes
majority	yes	no
2/3	yes	no
2/3	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	no
majority	yes	yes
2/3[10]	yes	no

Explanatory footnotes

[1] May be debated except when another motion is already on the table.
[2] Only the length of the recess may be amended.
[3] The chair decides—but a majority may overrule.
[4] May be debated except when it pertains to a rules violation or to indecorum.
[5] A tie vote upholds the chair's ruling.
[6] Only the person who made the motion may withdraw it.
[7] No objection, no vote. If there is an objection, a majority vote is required.
[8] May be debated only if the original motion was ruled debatable.
[9] This is complicated. Only a person who voted on the prevailing side may move to reconsider—and that only on the same day that the original vote was taken (or the next day of the same session). The following motions may not be reconsidered: adjourn, point of order (agenda), lay on the table (postpone), point of order (ruling), point of privilege, recess, refer to committee, suspend the rules, and take up from the table.
[10] If notice was given at a previous meeting that a vote to rescind would take place, then a majority vote would suffice. Without such notice, a two-thirds vote is required.

For further reference

Braden, Waldo Warder
Public Speaking: The Essentials
Harper & Row

Ehrlich, Eugene and Hawes, Gene R.
Speak for Success
Bantam Books

Newman, Edwin Strictly Speaking
Bobbs Merrill

Prochnow, Herbert V. and Herbert V., Jr.
The Toastmaster's Treasure Chest
Harper & Row

Rogers, Natalie
Talk-Power
Dodd, Mead

Stedman, Raymond William
A Guide to Public Speaking
Prentice-Hall

Strunk, William, Jr., and White, E.B.
The Elements of Style
Macmillan

Writing Effective Letters

- Social letters 266
- Business letters 276
- Clubs and organizations 290
- Tips for retired people 292
- Postal information 298
- Forms of address 300

Letters are an important part of life. They can bring you closer to friends and family. They can bring comfort and cheer and inspire affection and love. The right letter can get you a job, sell your products or services, influence others, initiate action, and build goodwill. Knowing how to write the right letter for the right occasion can be a powerful asset in your social and business life, and it is a skill that anyone can learn.

The secret of writing a successful letter is knowing what you want to say and how to say it. Although neither is necessarily difficult, when confronted by a blank piece of paper, you may go blank—because, you think, you do not know what to say. In fact, this is rarely the case. You always have at least one reason for writing a letter and need only ask yourself what it is.

More often, the problem is that you do not know how to express yourself. The solution to this problem lies in knowing the kind of letter that you wish to write, whether it is a social or a business letter, and, if it is social, whether it is formal or informal and personal. There are specific techniques for each type of letter. Formal letters, such as announcements, invitations, and responses, have a standard form and wording that are simple to follow. Informal or personal letters to friends and relations are like a "visit" on paper; the trick in writing them is to write as you ordinarily talk. Business letters are written with a specific goal in mind, and usually require some advance preparation. You must decide on your goal and organize your supporting material, facts, arguments, requests, or questions before you start writing. In this chapter you will find the ways and means of doing this—techniques for organizing your thoughts, correct forms, and samples that you can use as models for the many occasions in your social and business life when you want to say the right thing in the right way.

Social letters

Your personal letters to friends and family can be relaxed and original in form and content. This is not the case, however, for the "letters of etiquette," the communications of social life that have a specific purpose (invitations, announcements, acceptances and regrets, thank yous, notes of congratulation or condolence). For these, it is important to be correct, to follow the standard social conventions in appearance and content. This section gives valuable help on writing both informal and formal social letters.

Parts of a letter. This five-part form is standard for all informal letters:

Heading. This is simply your address and the date or, if you have a printed letterhead, just the date. It goes at least an inch from the top, with at least a ¾-inch margin (larger, if you have a short letter) on the right. Cities and street names should be spelled out, but you can abbreviate the states. You will notice that the date and return address have been omitted from most of the sample letters in this chapter. This was done to save space, but you should always include them in your letters.

Salutation. This is the greeting. It goes on the left, at least half an inch below the heading, with the left margin equal to the right margin. The standard form is "Dear Sally" or "Dear Mrs. Thomson," depending on how well you know the person you are writing to. In the United States, "My Dear Mr. Jones" is considered more formal, but in England it is less formal. Salutations such as "Dear Friend," "Dear Sir," or "Dear Madam" are impolite for social letters.

Body. This is the message and there is no special form.

Complimentary closing. How you say "goodby" depends on how well you know the person you are writing to. In the past, closings were elaborate, but today's style is short and simple, such as "Yours sincerely" "Sincerely yours." Closing with just "Yours" sounds abrupt; but "Cordially" and "Sincerely" do not. "Respectfully" is usually reserved for writing to employers or customers.

Signature. This goes below the closing, a little to the right, in ink. The social convention is that you never use a title, such as Dr., Mr., Miss, or Mrs. when signing. A married woman would sign Betty Jordan, but she could, and would for business correspondence, add Mrs. Donald Jordan underneath her signature in parentheses. A divorced woman, but not a widow, would add Mrs. Betty Jordan.

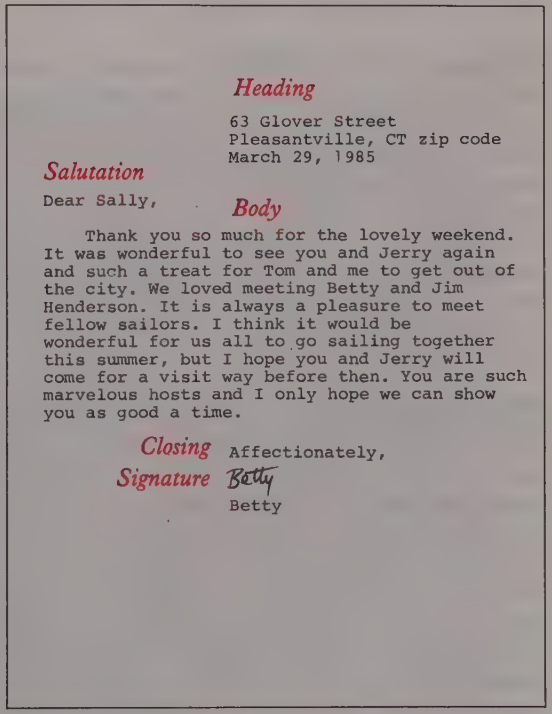
Addressing the envelope. Use either the block form or indented form. The return address goes in the upper left. The convention is that women use Miss, Mrs., or Ms., but men do not use Mr. A boy under twelve is addressed as Master (that is, Master John Smith). Boys are not addressed as Mister until they are 18 or girls as Miss until they are 16. Use just the boy's full name when he is between the ages of 13 and 17, and the girl's full name when she is under 16. When addressing a husband and wife, the man's name comes first. You may write Mr. and Mrs. John Smith or John and Mary Smith. The address should be complete. Do not abbreviate people's names (unless they always do) or words like Street, Road, or Parkway, and do not forget the zip code. This can go on the same line as the town or city and state or on a separate line after the state.

You may add in the lower left corner:

PERSONAL—when you are sending a purely social and confidential letter to someone's office.

PLEASE FORWARD—when you know only the former address.

OPENED BY MISTAKE—when you mistakenly receive and open another person's mail. If you reseal the envelope, write "Opened by Mistake," sign your name, and mail it for the post office to redeliver, you will not be legally liable if the letter is lost.



Heading
63 Glover Street
Pleasantville, CT zip code
March 29, 1985
Salutation
Dear Sally,
Body
Thank you so much for the lovely weekend. It was wonderful to see you and Jerry again and such a treat for Tom and me to get out of the city. We loved meeting Betty and Jim Henderson. It is always a pleasure to meet fellow sailors. I think it would be wonderful for us all to go sailing together this summer, but I hope you and Jerry will come for a visit way before then. You are such marvelous hosts and I only hope we can show you as good a time.
Closing
Affectionately,
Signature
Betty
Betty

Stationery. Choose the best quality paper you can afford. Paper comes in different weights: the heavier the weight, the better the quality. A good choice is a 20-pound rag bond.

For formal correspondence (see page 270) that is not printed, the rule is to use plain white paper, a double sheet that folds once into its matching envelope.

For general informal correspondence (everything but personal letters), you have a wide choice, but you will always be in good taste if you stay with subdued shades. The rule used to be, a large sheet of paper, 8 × 10 or 7½ × 10, with matching envelopes in white, cream, or gray for men; and a folded sheet of blue, 5½ × 6½ or 6 × 8, that folds once again into a matching envelope, for women. Today, the larger sizes and a variety of colors are considered suitable for both men and women. For personal letters bright colors are popular and correct now for men and women.

Monograms and letterheads. Stationery printed with your monogram or letterhead costs more but it makes an excellent impression. A monogram is fine for personal letters, but a letterhead (including your telephone number, if you wish) is better for general-purpose letters.

Women have traditionally used the "informal," a folded card of white or off-white with the name engraved in black on the front (Mrs. John Jones, or Harriet Jones if unmarried) for social notes. While this is still correct, today informals can have both the husband's and wife's names, include the address, and be in any color. with printing or engraving in a contrasting color.

Typing vs. writing. It was once considered bad taste to type personal letters, but this is no longer true. Go ahead and type them, especially if your handwriting is hard to read, but remember to always sign your letters by hand, in ink. Formal invitations and replies, however, are never typed. Although there is no firm rule, it is usually considered more polite, more personal, and more sincere to write short thank-you notes or notes of congratulation or sympathy by hand. (When you type, use larger sheets and do not type on the back of the page.)

Page sequence and folding. For folded sheets, social notes should be short enough to go on the first page. Longer personal notes are written on pages one and three. A long letter simply follows the natural sequence.

The main point in having matching envelopes is to have as few folds as possible. A double sheet is folded once and put in the envelope fold first, as is a small single sheet. A larger single sheet is folded in three equal sections and inserted with the closed end first in such a way that the letter will be opened right side up.

How to be yourself

- Visualize the person you are writing to. Imagine you are face to face. What would you say? What questions would you ask? What questions would the person ask you?
- Ask, "What would I say to this person?" You would not talk the same way to your dearest friend as you would to a casual acquaintance, your child's school principal, or your boss.
- Write the way you speak. Keep thinking about what you want to say and do not edit. Your first thought is usually your best. Use the words you normally would in speaking. Most people use contractions (I can't, rather than I cannot) and short, simple words (I went to a movie, not I attended a movie). Try not to make a special effort to be correct; the result may sound forced and insincere.
- Use conversational techniques. You emphasize certain words in conversation by changing your inflection or tone; you can do the same in writing by underlining (Your dinner was terrific!), but do not overdo it. You can also occasionally mention the name of the person you are writing to (I wish I could see you, Betty).

Personal letters. These letters to friends and family can be the most fun to write because they are like a friendly visit. Their purpose is to share experiences and feelings and to give pleasure. Of all the different kinds of letters you write, personal letters give you the best chance to be yourself—which is also the key to writing them well.

Lord Chesterfield, the 18th-century English essayist and social critic, put it very well in this advice to his son: "Write as you speak! Write as though you were seated in a room with me, talking in plain, simple language about the things you have seen and done and thought and experienced since you wrote to me last."

Being yourself or finding your own "voice" is something all good writers must learn. You can tell when you have found your voice because your writing will sound relaxed and easy. Your thoughts and words flow, though this is not always easy to achieve. "Writer's block" can be experienced by letter writers, too. You become tongue-tied, freeze, and feel as though you have nothing to say. That blank piece of paper is intimidating you. The trick to overcoming this, as Lord Chesterfield knew, is to relax and imagine that you are having a conversation with the person you are writing to. Some hints to help you do that are above.

Letters to friends and relatives

Get well

Dear Uncle Bob,
I spoke to Margaret last night and she told me about your kidney stone and that you were much better and would be home from the hospital today. Hurrah! I'm sure you'll be just fine again in no time. In the meantime, here's a new book by our favorite, Guy Murtchie, that I hope you'll like. Get well soon!

Cordially,
Hank

Travel

Dearest Sandy,

I'm in Fez at the famous Hotel Jamai, where I stayed 40 years ago when it was about one-sixth the size. In a week I'll be home and eager to see you. I know you'd love Morocco. I'm traveling with Gloria French. Gloria knows a lot about rugs, and we intend to visit all the museums.

There are really impressive Roman ruins of temples, much destroyed, but many stones are standing, one 10 feet high.

As for painting, I've been working—produced three pictures and I've done a lot of work on the book. I'm really on the last lap now. I think of you all the time, for your dear friendship and all of your help on my book.

Much love,
Anne

Christmas letter to a sister

Dearest Sis,

It's so good to be back in Jerome and to have all the children with us after the past few years of being all over the map. It has made it a wonderful Christmas, though we miss you and Jim and wish you could be here with us. Maybe next year!

Of course, there's lots of news. Wes has been working on the pipeline, as you know, and Mike has joined him. Mike is in love with a lovely girl. Her name is Tessie and it looks as though they will get married this summer and settle down in Alaska. Caroline took a job with an engineering firm in Nome—so except for Hank, we're all together again. Hank came up from San Diego in the most incredible van (about a block long). He's joined forces with a friend who manufactures water skis and they're going to promote them on a grand tour of European spas—thus, the van. But you'll see for yourself, as he's coming east in March to ship the van to France and, of course, he'll come and see you.

You can imagine what fun it's been in Jerome. We're staying in the hotel (our house is rented for another year yet). We've been spending lots of time downstairs in the Spirit Room, where Wes threw a gigantic party for our anniversary. Lots of people remember you and Jim from your visit three years ago. Tom and Shirley, Dr. Joe and Margaret, and Burt send their best regards, as do Wes and the kids. Let me hear form you! My love to you and Jim.

With love,
Sarah

When you do not know what to say

If, in spite of everything, you still draw a blank, you can simply say, "I don't know what to say," but say why. That's what Michael Faraday, the English physicist famous for his work on electricity, did in this letter written to Sarah Bernard in 1820. Sarah Bernard and Michael Faraday were married soon after this letter was written and had a long and happy life together, a tribute in part, perhaps, to the power of the written word.

My Dear Sarah,

It is astonishing how much the state of the body influences the powers of the mind. I have been thinking all the morning of the very delightful and interesting letter I would send you this evening, and now I am so tired, and yet have so much to do, that my thoughts are quite giddy, and run round your image without any power of themselves to stop and admire it. I want to say a thousand kind and, believe me, heartfelt things to you, but am not master of words fit for the purpose; and still, as I ponder and think on you, chlorides, trials, oil, steel, miscellanea, mercury, and fifty other professional fancies swim before and drive me further and further into the quandry of stupidness.

From your affectionate Michael

Invitations

Formal vs. informal. A formal event, such as a large church wedding or dinner-dance, requires a formal invitation. An informal invitation can be used for an informal event such as a small at-home wedding or country weekend. Informal invitations are simply handwritten notes in the first person. Formal invitations can be engraved or handwritten, but they have a specific form. They are written in the third person and are centered on the first page of folded white paper.

Acceptances and regrets. Any invitation should be answered right away. Formal invitations require a handwritten reply that follows the exact form of the invitation.

R.S.V.P. This means "Repondez si'il vous plait," French for "answer please." It can also be written R.s.v.p. and goes in the lower left with an address beneath on formal invitations, or with a phone number, if you wish, on informal ones. For informal events such as cocktail parties, where you need to know how many people are coming and also want to speed replies, you can write "Regrets only" and your phone number.

Please come to a party to celebrate the publication of Sam Jones's new mystery, A Death in the Afternoon, at the Little Tor Bookshop, 100 River Road, Grandview, NY.

Regrets only 555-1212

Formal dinner

John Gordon and Mary Gordon Green
the children of Henry and Elizabeth Gordon
request the pleasure of your company
at a dinner in honor of their parents' Golden Wedding Anniversary
on Saturday, the sixteenth of June
at eight o'clock
Tumblebrook Country Club

R.S.V.P.
Mrs. Robert Green
140 Old Mountain Road
West Hartford, CT zip code

Informal dinner

Dear Edith,

My brother John and I are giving a small dinner in honor of our parents' Golden Wedding Anniversary on Saturday, June 16th at eight o'clock at the Tumblebrook Country Club. The celebration wouldn't be complete without you and Harry. I do hope you can come.

Cordially,
Mary Green

Formal acceptance

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith
accept with pleasure
the kind invitation of John Gordon and Mary Gordon Green
to a dinner in honor of the Golden Wedding Anniversary
of their parents
Henry and Elizabeth Gordon
on Saturday, the sixteenth of June
at eight o'clock
at the Tumblebrook Country Club

Informal acceptance

Dear Mary,

Harry and I will be delighted to come on Saturday at eight to celebrate your parents' Golden Wedding Anniversary. What a wonderful occasion! Thank you so much for asking us.

Yours sincerely,
Edith Smith

Formal regret

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith regret that they are unable to accept the kind invitation of
John Gordon and Mary Gordon Green to a dinner in the honor of the Golden Wedding Anniversary
of their parents
Henry and Elizabeth Gordon
on Saturday, the sixteenth of June
at eight o'clock
at the Tumblebrook Country Club

Informal regret

Dear Mary,

I'm so sorry, but we can't come to what I know will be a wonderful party. We will be away that whole week in Montreal to meet Joe's fiancee and her family, but thank you so much for asking us. Harry and I both wish we could be there.

Yours sincerely,
Edith Smith

Formal wedding. An invitation to a formal church wedding may include another invitation to the reception afterward. If the reception is held before one o'clock, it is called a breakfast; after one, a reception. If space is limited in the church, guests are also sent an admission card or a card for reserved seating "within the ribbon." Invitations are enclosed in two envelopes. The inside envelope is not sealed. It holds the invitation and enclosures and is addressed with only the names of the guests.

Formal reply. Formal wedding invitations do not require a reply, but an invitation to the reception does. You can use the shorter form shown at right, or you can repeat the exact wording of the invitation.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Putnam
accept with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cameron's kind invitation for Saturday, the second of June
at twelve o'clock

If a husband and wife receive an invitation and only one can attend, the acceptance is stated first, then the regret.

Mrs. Thomas Putnam
accepts with pleasure etc.
Mr. Thomas Putnam
regrets exceedingly etc.

Formal wedding invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cameron request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Nancy Susan
to
Mr. Henry McQuiston
on Saturday morning, the second of June at ten o'clock
Grace Unitarian Church
Pleasantville, NY

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cameron
request the pleasure of your company
at breakfast
Saturday, the second of June
at twelve o'clock
Forty-five Riversville Road
Pleasantville, NY

The favor of a reply is requested

Please present this card
at Grace Unitarian Church Saturday, June second

Informal wedding invitation

Dear Sally,

Marlene is being married here at home to Ted Smith on Friday, May 25, at four o'clock. We do hope that you and Jack can come and that you will be able to stay for tea after the ceremony.

Love,
Helen

Informal reply

Dear Helen,

We are so happy about Marlene's forthcoming marriage and are delighted to be included. We look forward to seeing you on May 25, at four.

Love,
Sally

Formal acceptance

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Putnam
accept with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cameron's kind invitation to be present
at the marriage of their daughter Nancy Susan
to
Mr. Henry McQuiston
on Saturday, the second of June
at twelve o'clock
and afterward at the wedding breakfast

Recalling invitations. When a wedding must be postponed or canceled, guests can be notified by telephone, telegram, or, if there is time, by printed cards. The wording is formal, but the style does not have to be indented. Reasons are given for a postponement, but not for a cancellation.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brown regret that owing to their daughter's illness they are obliged to recall the invitations to her wedding on Sunday, the third of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brown announce that the marriage of their daughter Suzanne to Mr. Henry Harrison will not take place

Announcements

Wedding. A wedding is usually announced by calling the society editor of your local paper, but when a wedding is small and private (or when the couple has eloped), formal announcements can be sent out as soon as possible after the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Jerome announce the marriage of their daughter Charlotte
to Mr. Peter Gates
Captain United States Army
on Friday, the fifteenth of June Saratoga, New York

NOTE: When the bride or groom is an officer, it is customary to give the military title, but the title can be omitted for a noncommissioned officer or an enlisted person.

Birth. A traditional and formal way to announce a baby's birth is shown above. The baby's card is attached to the parents' joint card with a pink, blue, or white ribbon, or, an engraved card can be sent.

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Shaw announce with joy
the birth of their daughter Mary Ann
on the first of January, 1985

Requests and responses

Excuse for absence from school

Dear Mrs. Shepard,

Please excuse Peter's absence from school this past Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. He had a bad cold and I thought it would be best (and best for the other children) to keep him home. Could you please tell Peter, or send me a note, if there is any work to be made up?

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,
Ruth Jones

Excuse for lateness

Dear Mrs. Shepard,

Please excuse Peter's lateness this morning. During the storm last night, our electricity must have been off for an hour, as all our clocks and alarms were an hour off, and he missed the school bus. I'm driving him in myself and hope you will forgive his unavoidable lateness.

Sincerely,
Ruth Jones

Excuse for future absence

Dear Miss Costanza,

Sally will be absent from school next Thursday and Friday, October 4th and 5th, as this is an important religious holiday (Yom Kippur) and she will be attending services.

If it's possible to give Sally assignments to make up the class work she will miss, she'll do that over the weekend. Thank you.

Very truly yours,
Mary Green

Apologetic answer to a complaint about a child

Dear Mr. Johnson,

I can certainly understand your being upset about Tommy's hitting a baseball through your windshield. We've told the boys not to play baseball in the street and now they know why.

K & R Auto says the replacement cost would be $40. I've enclosed a check for that amount, which Tommy will make up out of his paper-route money. He is very sorry about what happened and will be over soon to tell you so himself. I am so sorry about the trouble this has caused you.

Yours sincerely,
Sally Smith

Nonapologetic answer to a complaint about a child

Dear Mrs. Henderson,

Billy has told us how upset you were about the noise the children made playing in the vacant lot next to your house over the weekend. I'm sorry that you were disturbed and Billy is, too.

As he explained it, he and his friends have been playing softball in that lot for several years now. The people who used to live in your house, the Jenkins, never objected and it didn't occur to any of the children that you would mind.

He's told me that he and his friends have talked it over and will play future games on the baseball diamond over at the grammar school.

Yours very truly,
Hattie Brown

Thank you notes. You are expected to send thank-you notes for wedding and shower gifts and for being entertained for the weekend, but there are many other times when they are appropriate—such as for birthday or Christmas presents or when someone has done you a favor or shown you or your family some particular kindness. Thank-you notes can be quite short, but they should be specific and personal. It is easier, and more polite, to write them right away, while the pleasure of receiving a present, or of having a lovely time, is still fresh in your mind.

For a retirement party and gift

Dear John,

This is just to tell you how much I have enjoyed working with you over the years, and also to thank you for your part in that fine farewell gift. I have always wanted a matched set of golf clubs and these are superb. Thanks again for making my last day at Acme so memorable.

Sincerely,
Henry Maxwell

For the weekend. When a couple is entertained for the weekend, the "bread and butter" letter is usually written by the wife to the hostess.

Dear Mary Ann,

Thank you so much for an absolutely wonderful weekend. It was such a treat to spend time with you and Jim. Tom hasn't stopped talking about your chocolate soufflé and what a fantastic cook you are. We were especially thrilled with the whale-watching boat trip. How thoughtful of you to know that would be just what we'd love and to arrange it! Thank you again for everything.

Love,
Sarah

For a Christmas gift

Dear Larry,

Thank you so much for the beautiful lamp. It is truly just what I needed. I've clipped it to my drawing board and it not only looks terrific (I love the red color), but it also eliminates the shadows, which is a big help in my work. I feel lucky to have such a wonderful, thoughtful cousin.

Much love,
Sally,

For a wedding gift

Dear Aunt Sarah,

Tom and I are thrilled with your wonderful wedding present. We have always admired Grace Steven's work, and to have an entire dinner set of her beautiful pottery is just fantastic!

I know it will look spendid on our table and I want you and uncle Joe to come for dinner and see for yourselves as soon as we get back from Bermuda. I will call you then to set a date.

Love,
Polly

For a baby gift

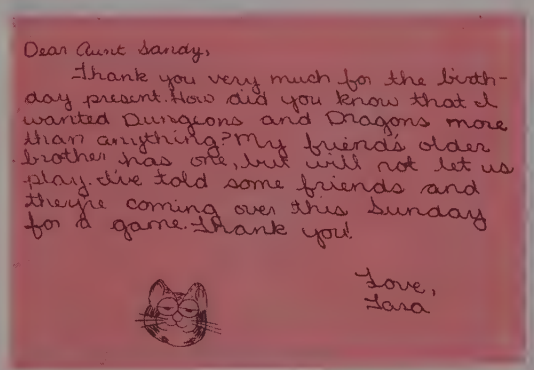
Dear Sally,

Angelo doesn't have any words yet, but if he did I know he would thank you for your beautiful present. The baby sack is just what he needed—just the right weight—and the rose and blue stripes make him look so handsome! Thank you so much.

Cordially,
Bianca

Thank you notes from children

For a gift



Dear Aunt Sandy,
Thank you very much for the birthday present. How did you know that I wanted Dungeons and Dragons more than anything? My friend's older brother has one, but will not let us play. We told some friends and they're coming over this Sunday for a game. Thank you!
Love,
Sara

For the weekend

Dear Margie,

Thank you very much for a wonderful time. Your birthday party was great. I loved the treasure hunt (and winning the prize) and I loved staying with you. It was just like old times.

Please thank your Mom for me and ask her to send my Mom her recipe for spaghetti. It's the best I ever tasted. Thanks for everything.

Love,
Tina

Sympathy and condolence. Writing to someone on the death of a spouse, relative, or friend is difficult for most people and yet there is probably no time when a letter can mean so much and be so deeply appreciated. Your natural feeling of sympathy for someone's loss is what matters here. Your letter can be short, but it should be tactful—not dwelling on the circumstances of the death—and it should be sincere and simple.

To a neighbor

Dear Rose,

I cannot tell you how shocked and sorry I am to learn of Bob's sudden death. He was such a wonderful man and I have such warm memories of his many kindnesses. I know that I will miss him very much and can only imagine what a terrible loss this is to you. Please accept my deepest sympathy.

Most sincerely,
Harriet Jones

To a friend

Dear Margaret,

I have just heard the very sad news that you lost your father and I want you to know how sorry I am. I know how much you loved him and how painful this loss must be for you and your mother.

I wish that words could help, but I know that only time does that. Please know that my loving thoughts and deepest sympathy are with you both.

Love,
Sarah

To an employee

Dear Harry,

I was sorry to hear of your wife's death and can only imagine how terrible this loss must be for you. Although words can do so little, I want you to know that you have my deepest sympathy.

If there is anything that I can do to help in any way, please do not hesitate to call on me.

Yours sincerely,
Franklin Rogers

Acknowledgments. It is considered correct to send a short thank-you note to everyone who sends a condolence letter. This does not have to be written as promptly as an ordinary thank-you letter, but it should, if possible, be sent within six weeks.

Dear Carol,

I cannot tell you how much your thoughtfulness when my father died meant to me. You are a true and dear friend and I thank you for all your kindness.

Love,
Nancy

Dear Mr. Brown,

Thank you for your very kind and thoughtful letter. It is wonderful to know how well thought of John was among the people he worked with, and I very much appreciate your telling me.

Yours sincerely,
Jane Smith

Lincoln's letter to Mrs. Bixby

One of the most famous letters in American history is Abraham Lincoln's to Mrs. Lydia Bixby after being told by the governor of Massachusetts that she had lost her five sons in the Civil War. That the information turned out to be wrong—that one son survived as a prisoner of war, one went to sea, and one deserted to the Confederate Army—changed the facts upon which the letter was based, but not its substance or its eloquence.

Executive Mansion
Washington, Nov. 21, 1864

To Mrs. Bixby, Boston, Mass.

Dear Madam,

I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tending you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn price that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

Yours very sincerely and respectfully,
A. Lincoln

Announcing a death. Often a member of the family of someone who has died will have to tell other family members or friends the sad news that someone close to them has died. This should be done as gently as possible, with an attempt to lessen the shock. It is hard to find a better example of this kind of letter than the one that Charles Dickens wrote to his wife, who was ill and away from home, to prepare her for finding out that their infant daughter had died. (See below.)

To a relative

Dear Uncle Ben,

I'm so sorry to be writing with some very sad news that I know will be a great shock to you: Uncle Harry passed away last night after having had a stroke two days ago. The funeral will be held at St. Agnes Church on Elm Street in New London, Thursday at two o'clock, and afterward family and friends will go to Aunt Mary's.

Affectionately,
Betty

To a friend of the deceased

Dear Mr. Jones,

I am writing to let you know that my father, Timothy Johnson, died in his sleep last night after a short illness. Father spoke of you so often as a friend that I felt you would want to know.

Yours sincerely,
Fred Johnson

Death and funeral notices

These are prepared by the person in charge of the funeral and are then phoned into the newspaper, either as news or as a paid advertisement. The paper will need the following information:

1. Name of deceased (and maiden name of a married woman)
2. Address
3. Date of death
4. Age
5. Names and relationships of survivors
6. Time and place of funeral and burial
7. Whether services are private or open to the public
8. Whether the family wishes no flowers to be sent or the organization and its address to which a memorial contribution can be sent.

Death notice

HENDERSON, MARY (née Bronson), of 27 Pine Street, Harrison, New York, died suddenly on May 12, in her 55th year, beloved wife of John Henderson. She is also survived by their son Howard Henderson, daughters Alice (Mrs. John Lagrange) and Mary (Mrs. Robert Johnson), and grandchildren Ramond and Susan Lagrange. Funeral services at Community Church, corner of Central and Lafayette Avenues, Harrison, NY, 11 AM Monday, May 14. Interment is private. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Community Care Society, Box 4000, Harrison, NY zip code.

Dickens' letter to his wife

Often family members or friends will have to be told that someone close to them has died. This should be done as gently as possible. It is hard to find a better example than this letter Charles Dickens wrote to his wife to prepare her for the news that their daughter had died.

Devonshire-terrace
Tuesday morning, 15th April, 1851

My dearest Kate,

Now observe you must read this letter very slowly and carefully. If you have hurried on thus without quite understanding (apprehending some bad news) I rely on your turning back and reading again.

Little Dora, without being in the least pain, is suddenly stricken ill. There is nothing in her appearance but perfect rest—you would suppose her quietly asleep, but I am sure she is very ill, and I cannot encourage myself with much hope of her recovery. I do not (and why should I say I do to you, my dear?) I do not think her recovery at all likely.

I do not like to leave home, I can do no good here, but I think it right to stay. You will not like to be away, I know, and I cannot reconcile it to myself to keep you away. Foster, with his usual affection for us, comes down to bring you this letter and to bring you home, but I cannot close it without putting the strongest entreaty and injunction upon you to come with perfect composure—To remember what I have often told you, that we never can expect to be exempt, as to our many children, from the afflictions of other parents, and that if—if when you come I should even have to say to you, "Our little baby is dead," you are to do your duty to the rest, and to show yourself worthy of the great trust you hold in them.

If you will only read this steadily I have a perfect confidence in your doing what is right.

Ever affectionately,
Charles Dickens

Business letters

A successful business letter is not only grammatically correct and neat, it is also friendly and courteous. It is simple, brief, easy to read, and gets right to the point. Such a letter creates a good impression. It makes your reader feel that you are the kind of person or firm that it is good to do business with. In short, a successful business letter looks good and sounds good. Here are some helpful hints.

Looking good. Business letters are almost always typed on a standard 8½″ × 11″ good quality paper. Most businesses use a letterhead with their name, address, and phone number. The standard formats are shown below. Although some businesses prefer the block form because it saves time for the typist, most use either the modified block or modified semiblock forms.

Basic rules for spacing. Follow these rules no matter which format you use.

1. Place the address two lines below the date, which is two lines below the heading.
2. Place the salutation two lines below the address.
3. Begin the opening sentence or paragraph two lines below the salutation.
4. Single space for the heading, address, and within paragraphs.
5. Double space between paragraphs.
6. Place the complimentary closing two lines below the last paragraph.
7. Place the typed signature four lines below the complimentary closing.
8. Put any additional data (such as enclosures or initials of the writer and typist) two lines below the typed signature, beginning at the left margin.

Styles

Block

ABC Company
100 Main Street
Anytown, Florida zip code
January 1, 1985

Mr. John Smith
12 Broadway
Apple City, New York zip code

Dear Mr. Smith:

This is an example of the block form of business letter. You will notice that the heading, inside address, closing, and signature all line up at the left and the paragraphs are not indented.

This style saves the typist time and that is why some businesses prefer it.

Yours sincerely,

Thomas Rider

Thomas Rider

Modified semiblock

ABC Company
100 Main Street
Anytown, Florida zip code
January 1, 1985

Mr. John Smith
12 Broadway
Apple City, New York zip code

Dear Mr. Smith:

Here is an example of the modified semiblock form. You will notice that the heading, closing, and signature are aligned vertically near the center of the page and that the paragraphs are indented. This last point is the only difference between this and the modified block form shown at the right.

Yours sincerely,

Thomas Rider

Thomas Rider

Parts of a business letter

Modified block format

Heading — Warner Widget Company
100 Marvin Gardins
Centerville, New Jersey zip code
March 10, 19—

Inside address — Mr. Mark Harris
M & H Manufacturing Company
Paradise, Rhode Island zip code

Salutation — Dear Mr. Harris:

Body — Thank you for your letter of February 24 and for your interest in our products. I am sending you our latest brochure describing our entire selection of widgets and particularly refer you to pages 8 and 9, where you will find some widgets well-suited to your needs.

Jack Armstrong, our New England sales representative, will be calling on you soon and will be happy to answer any further questions you may have. I hope that we may soon count you among our many satisfied customers.

Closing — Yours sincerely,

Signature — Frank Jones
Frank Jones, Manager
Product Information

Additional data — FJ/ms
Enclosure

Sounding good. You will be able to write successful business letters by following five basic rules:

1. Be friendly. Your letter will build goodwill and be more likely to accomplish its purpose if you maintain a friendly tone. Even if you are angry, avoid sarcasm or insults.
2. Be specific. Tell the reader exactly what he or she needs to know. If you have a complaint, say precisely what is wrong and what you want done about it. If you need information, note clearly what you need to know.
3. Be positive. Even a letter that must say no can do it in a positive way. Compare, for example, "We regret to inform you that the postal strike makes it impossible to ship your order until . . ." with "Thank you for your order. The merchandise will be shipped to you immediately after the postal strike is settled."
4. Keep your reader's point of view in mind. Try to see things from his or her vantage point, not yours. One way to tell whether you have done this is to count the "I's" and the "you's." You want lots of you's and few I's. You can usually get the right effect by rephrasing. Compare these examples:
   I: I want to express my sincere thanks for the kind words I received today from . . .
   You: Thank you for your very kind words.
   Or:
   I: We make four styles in all sizes.
   You: You may have your choice of four styles in all sizes.
5. Remember the golden rule. Write the kind of letter you would like to get if you were in the reader's position.

Anatomy of a letter. You will find it easier to write a clear, well-organized letter if you think of it as having a basic structure—a beginning, a middle, and an end.

The beginning. The purpose of the first sentence is to get the reader's attention and interest. This can often be done by asking a question. An insurance sales letter might ask: "Do you want to save 40 percent on your auto insurance?" Keep the first sentence short. The rest of the opening paragraph explains it.

The emphasis should be on what the reader needs, not what you need. This holds true even for a letter of complaint. You might, for example, begin such a letter with, "I know you want to maintain good relationships with your customers, but . . ."

The middle. This is where you state and explain your purpose. It is important to present your supporting facts or arguments in order of their importance.

It helps to make notes or an outline (see volume 2, page 262) before you start to write.

Often, you are trying to motivate your reader to take some action, or you may be explaining why you will or will not take some action. Give the facts first and then the conclusion. A tenant might say to an uncooperative landlord, "I have talked to my lawyer about your failure to have my water pipes repaired after my repeated requests and was told that under this jurisdiction I may withhold my rent until repairs are made. I plan to do so unless repairs are made this month."

The end. If the purpose of your letter is to get the reader to take some action, sum up at the end with a direct and positive statement. Sounding tentative or doubtful invites rejection. It is better to say, "Your cooperation in sending a check by return mail will be greatly appreciated," than to say, "We hope you will pay as soon as possible." "Our representative will call for an appointment next week" is better than, "May we send our representative to see you soon?" You should be clear (if you want some action taken), courteous (avoid a cold, curt ending), and complete (the reader should feel you have said everything you have to say).

What's wrong with this letter?

The letter below is a good example of what not to do in business writing.

Dear Sir:

We have the latest edition of your Readers' Complete Bookshelf. After reviewing it very thoroughly with my wife and children, the very best we can find to say about it is that we are completely disgusted with it. We have, however, found that it is very useful in teaching our children how the art of misinformation is being used to deceive Americans. We have found many examples in your book.

Please do not send Volume Three.

Howard Case

Howard Case

The tone of this letter could be improved, but the real problem is that the letter is vague. The writer does not give any concrete examples. A better letter would read,

I have gone over the latest volume of your Readers' Complete Bookshelf and am deeply disappointed with it—particularly in the chapter on the War Between the States. I felt you were unjustly critical of the South and not critical enough of what the North did during Reconstruction. There were also several historical inaccuracies. You have the wrong Confederate commander for the Battle . . .

Job applications. A letter written to apply for a job is really a sales letter. You are selling your own qualifications as a prospective employee. As in any sales letter, you want to get your reader's interest, stress what you can do for the reader, and persuade him or her to take an action—in this case, give you an interview. You would also include a résumé that lists your educational and work experience, but the letter of application has the advantage of being written for this particular job, as most résumés do not, and allows you to select and emphasize the experience and abilities that qualify you for that job. (For information on choosing a career and finding the job you want, see Advancing Your Career, page 22.)

A famous letter, written to the Duke of Milan in 1482, is hard to beat as an example of super-salesmanship, but then it was written by an extraordinary man who could do everything he said he could do and more. His name was Leonardo Da Vinci. Below are some excerpts from that letter. Leonardo got the job and he kept it for 16 years, until the French Army marched into Milan and took the Duke prisoner.

"Having, most illustrious lord, seen and considered the experiments of all those who pose as masters in the art of inventing instruments of war, and finding that their inventions differ in no way from those in common use, I am emboldened, without prejudice to anyone, to solicit an appointment of acquainting your Excellency with certain of my secrets.

1. I can construct bridges which are very light and strong and very portable, with which to pursue and defeat the enemy; and others more solid, which resist fire and assault, yet are easily removed and placed in position; and I can also burn and destroy those of the enemy.

2. In case of siege I can cut off water from the trenches and make pontoons and scaling ladders and other similar contrivances. . . .

4. I can also make a kind of cannon which is light and easy of transport, with which to hurl small stones like hail, and of which the smoke causes great terror to the enemy, so that they suffer heavy loss and confusion. . . .

10. In time of peace, I believe that I can give you as complete satisfaction as anyone else in the construction of buildings both public and private, and in conducting water from one place to another.

I can further execute sculpture in marble, bronze or clay, also in painting I can do as much as anyone else, whoever he may be.

And if any of the aforesaid things should seem to anyone impossible or impracticable, I offer myself as ready to make trial of them in your park or in whatever place shall please your Excellency. . . .

If you are looking for your first full-time job, you probably do not have much work experience, but you do have some "life experience." Your letter should emphasize your personal qualities and any relevant work, school, or extracurricular activities:

Letter from a college graduate

354 Hardscrabble Road
Anytown, N.Y. zip code
June 1, 1985

Dear Mr. Johnson:

With my college degree in Business and my strong interest in sales, I believe I could do an excellent job as a management trainee with your company. I have achieved high grades in marketing courses and am sure I could learn to market a product successfully.

I know how valuable successful communication is in business, and feel that being editor of our college newspaper has helped me develop communication skills. You will find a complete résumé of my educational experience and extracurricular activities enclosed. I will call on Monday, June 4th, to arrange an interview so that we may discuss my qualifications for your management-trainee program.

Yours sincerely,
Nancy Graham
Nancy Graham

From prospective high-school graduate

Mr. Harold Long
Personnel Director
Carter Paper Company
52 Broadway
Apple City, New York zip code

Dear Mr. Long:

I will graduate from Centerville High School this June and my guidance counselor, Mr. Herbert Jones, suggested that I write to you about a sales position with your company.

I have worked part-time as an ad salesman for the Centerville Bulletin for the past two years. As advertising manager of our high-school yearbook, I produced a $1500 profit—a first for Centerville High. I've also been manager of the track team for the past two years and organized the successful fund-raising campaign that sent the team to the national meet in Washington this year.

I like sales, think I am good at it and want to make it my career—if possible, with the Carter Paper Company. I will call next Monday for an appointment.

Yours sincerely,
Jack Hudson

Putting it the right way. Helpful sentences:

Salary

I would be happy to discuss salary with you when we meet. My range is—, — to —, —.

I will be glad to discuss the matter of salary with you at a personal interview.

Salary considerations are not as important as the career opportunity this position offers. I am sure we can arrive at a satisfactory arrangement.

References

The following people can tell you about my work from several different points of view:

I refer you specifically to the following people with whom I have worked over the past few years.

My former employers and clients will vouch for my integrity and good reputation in the trade. I refer you to the following:

Selling yourself

I would be happy to show you my proposal for increasing your next year's sales by at least 25 percent.

I would like to show you how I can save you money on your company's liability insurance and will call on Monday for an appointment.

I shall phone your secretary next week to arrange for a meeting at your convenience.

I would very much like to discuss my qualifications for your buyer–training program and will call on Monday to set up an appointment.

Experienced worker answering an advertisement

Box 000, Times
Centerville, NY zip code

Dear Sir:

In response to your advertisement in this morning's Times for an experienced secretary, I would like to apply for that position. I have been a secretary for the past ten years for three prominent executives who will vouch for my efficiency and dependability. They are:

Mr. Harry Ricer, ABC Company, Centerville, NY (Hospital Supplies) 19-- to 19--

Mr. John Kramer, Consolidated Products, Newton, NY (Building Materials) 19-- to 19--

Mr. Peter Kent, Hawkins, Smith & Barnes, Inc., Centerville, NY (Management Consultants) 19-- to 19--

I have worked for Mr. Kent for the past five years. He is being transferred to Minneapolis, and so I am looking for another position.

I would like to come in and talk to you personally, and have enclosed a self-addressed card for you to let me know the most convenient time for you. You can also call me at work. The number is Hudson 5-1212, extension 400.

Sincerely yours,
Susan Graham
Susan Graham

Follow-up letter. It is a very good idea to write again after an interview to thank the interviewer and remind him or her of your interest and abilities.

Dear Mr. Smith:

I very much enjoyed talking with you and meeting the members of your staff yesterday afternoon.

I am glad you mentioned the importance of budget constraints and feel that my record of cost-effectiveness as a project manager under government contracts would be a definite asset to your organization. I would be happy to discuss this further and will call again in a few days.

Yours sincerely,

Gerald Simms

Thank-you letter. After you get the job, it is a good idea to write thank-you notes to the people who helped you.

Dear Mr. Jones:

I am very happy to be able to tell you that I am now a project manager at Consolidated Technologies. Mr. Smith told me about the fine letter of recommendation you sent and I am sure that that had a lot to do with my getting the job. Thank you very much for your encouragement and help.

Yours sincerely,

Gerald Simms

Getting help. Asking for information or services, particularly from the government or corporate bureaucracy, can be frustrating and time-consuming. Yet you can do it easily by writing the right kind of letter. Here are some hints.

State your reason for writing in the first sentence. This saves your reader time and energy.

Include all reference numbers and dates. If you are writing about a bill, an order, or a missing shipment, you will need to include such things as the invoice number or date of purchase. If a company gives you a reference number to use in writing to them, be sure to use it.

Confine your inquiry or request to one point. Do not confuse your reader by covering several subjects. Write a different letter for each. Be short and specific.

Gentlemen:

Could you give me an explanation of line 30 of Commerce Department Form 638: Employer Liability. Specifically, does line 30 refer only to office workers or does it cover field representatives?

When you want action, request it clearly. Do this at the end of your letter. Some examples are:

Please send me a refund.
Please send me a corrected bill.

Be brief. Keep your letter to one page if possible. Write a draft first, put it aside for a while, then see what you can eliminate.

Write to an individual whenever possible. This will speed a reply. Although you can use just the person's title, a name—which you can usually find out by calling the company—is better. When in doubt, write to the president or department head, who will see that the right person gets it. (For help in finding the right person, see box at top right.)

To a drug company

Mr. Frank Jones, President
ABC Vitamin Company
Deercrossing, Colorado zip code

Dear Mr. Jones:

I am writing to ask about the safety of your special Vitamin x compound, Wondervite. I have been taking this vitamin for some time and have just read in the Health and Science section of the Portland Times that it does not lower cholesterol and that it can cause serious side effects.

I would appreciate your sending me a summary of your laboratory reports on the action and side effects of this vitamin as soon as possible.

Yours sincerely,

Angela Black

Finding the person to write to Consumer affairs. A pamphlet listing state, city, and county consumer protection offices, Better Business Bureaus, and names and addresses of corporate consumer contacts is available without charge by writing to:

Consumer Resource Handbook
Consumer Information Center
Pueblo, Colorado 81009

U.S. government officials. The United States Government Manual is updated regularly to tell you who's who in Congress and all government agencies. You can buy it from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, but you must write first for the price (which changes) and the correct order form. You may find it at the public library. Congressional Staff Directory is published by Congressional Staff Director, Ltd., Mt. Vernon, Va. 22121. It, too, may be found at the library.

To a company

John Smith, Sales Manager
Acme Office Supplies
Newton, Illinois zip code

Dear Mr. Smith:

Please send me samples and a price quotation for 100 metal paper clips, Product Number 2000 on page 36 of your catalog. I would also like to know the price for an order of 1 million clips.

I would appreciate your sending this information by the end of the week.

Yours sincerely,

Frank Davis

To the Food and Drug Administration

Gentlemen:

I need to know whether it is safe to use the anti-inflammatory drug, Cureall. The drug is produced by Universal Drug Company, Weaver, Illinois. The code number on the label is Y-8000.

I bought the drug about six months ago from my local druggist, Robert Morley, 200 Main Street, Centerville, New York. I have since heard that the drug has been declared unsafe. Could you let me know the current status of this product?

Yours sincerely,

Helen Smith

A request for aid

The Reverend Frank E. Roberts
Christ Church
Centerville, New York zip code

Dear Dr. Roberts:

Some of the employees at Consolidated Industries are repairing broken toys to be given as Christmas presents to children in the county. We hoped you might help us with this project by setting up a collection depot at the church and asking parishioners to contribute broken toys.

I have asked Sandra Smith, an employee who is one of your parishioners, to speak to you further about this. Let me just say that your help would be much appreciated.

Yours sincerely,

Thomas Brown

Thomas Brown

To a dress company

Manager, Customer Services
Jennie de Woolfe, Inc.
New York, NY zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I saw an advertisement for your silk shirtwaist dress on page 35 of the April Vogue magazine and would very much like to buy it.

Could you please tell me if any stores in Marblehead carry the dress or, if not, where I could buy it in Boston?

Yours sincerely,

Barbara Ann Blake

To the Veterans Administration

Dear Mr. (look up proper person):

Please tell me if you offer educational benefits to children of soldiers killed in action. My husband, Henry Greene, Serial number 000-000, died in Vietnam in 1970. He was a sergeant in the Marine Corps. My son Henry will be ready for college next year and I need to know whether he is eligible for benefits.

Please let me know as soon as possible.

Yours sincerely,

Ruth Greene

Letter of inquiry. The following letter follows the formula for a letter of inquiry: it gets the reader's attention; states what is wanted, who wants it, and why; motivates action; and expresses appreciation.

Dear Alumna or Alumnus,

Exciting news! The first Address Register of the Alumnae and Alumni of Evergreen College in ten years will be published in 1985. This new volume will contain an alphabetical listing of alumnae/i names and addresses, cross-referenced with name in college, plus class and geographical listings.

We need your help in completing the register. Please check your listing for accuracy, and return the questionnaire in the enclosed envelop by June 1. Please note that the register will be available only to alumnae/i, faculty, and officers of Evergreen College. Your address will not be given out for noncollege use.

An order blank for your copy of the 1985 AAEC Register is attached to the questionnaire. The register is available at the prepublication price of $10. (It will be $15 after June, 1985.)

We hope you will take the time to fill out all of the enclosed questionnaire. If you are one of the 8000 alumnae/i who have joined AAEC's ranks since 1975, do not miss your first chance to tell us about your activities since graduation. If you are one of the 31,000 who were listed in the 1975 directory, this is your chance to bring your record up to date. Information about your current interests and accomplishments helps us in developing our many programs—including our guided travel tours and summer seminars.

Many thanks for your cooperation in filling out this questionnaire. We hope to be flooded by completed answers from all of you!

Yours sincerely,

Annabel Kemp Smith
President, AAEC

Enclosures

Notification of address change

Dear Sir:

Please send all future compensation checks to my new address:

1400 Wharton Avenue
Centerville, New York zip code.

My former address was:

10 Henry Street
Hartsdale, New Jersey zip code.

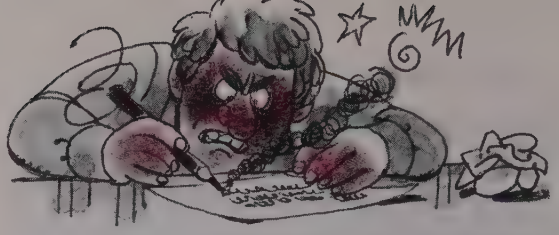
Yours truly,

Frank Dean

Complaints that get action. People often have a hard time writing an effective letter of complaint because they are angry and they let their anger take over. The anger becomes the important thing. However, what really matters is getting some action that will remedy the situation. This is much more likely if your tone is reasonable and calm. In some situations, it helps to use humor; in others, just to present the facts clearly and briefly. Sometimes it helps to go ahead and write your enraged letter and put it away. Then, with you mind clear, you can write the letter you will actually mail. Here are some hints to help you:

Write to the right person. Think carefully about who will be most likely to take action or get action on your complaint. If you are having a problem with the credit department of a store, for example, you will be more likely to get action if you write directly to the store's president, not to the credit department. In general, it is always best to write to the boss—you would be surprised how few people do this.

Keep copies of your letters. Knowing when you said what to whom and when may be important to solving the problem.



Do not lose your temper if you want to write a letter of complaint that gets results.

Do not get personal. Do not be sarcastic or insulting to your reader. You may be angry about the situation, but remember that the person and the situation are different. Try to put yourself in the other person's place and enlist his or her cooperation.

Organize your ideas. It is important to be clear about what you want, why you want it, and how you think you can get it before you start to write. A good way to do this is to make a list of your major points. A general list, with examples for a specific case, is given below.

Sending enclosures. You may want to support your complaint or argument by enclosing such items as bills, receipts, canceled checks, previous correspondence, invoices, and newspaper or magazine articles. If you do, be sure to keep the originals for your records and send a copy to the person you are writing to.

How to get organized

Here is how the master list of major points is applied to the specific case of writing a letter of complaint to a state senator about his position on the death penalty. The final letter appears at the right.

Major points	Examples
1. What you want the reader to do in order to remedy what you are complaining about.	1. I want Senator Green to change his mind regarding the death penalty.
2. Your reasons for wanting a remedy—that is, why it is important to you.	2. I believe it is morally wrong to take a life and that the government has no right to do this.
3. What information your reader needs in order to act.	3. There is a lot of evidence that the death penalty is not a deterrent to violent crime. Various presidential commissions on crime and violence have found that the real deterrents are social (doing something about such factors as poverty, unemployment, and family disorganization) and legal (having the court system react quickly so that criminals are tried, convicted, and sent to jail in a relatively short time).
4. What is likely to motivate your reader to take action. This includes appealing to your reader's self-interest and any pressure you can bring to bear.	4. I will not vote for Senator Green again unless he changes his position. I will support any opponent of his who is against the death penalty.

Complaint about fraud. The following letter could be sent to the Better Business Bureau and/or the Federal Trade Commission (note that the writer encloses a copy of his receipt, not the original).

Gentlemen:

I am making a complaint about fraudulent pricing. On December 10, I went to Snazzy Sam's Audio Outlet at 81 Spruce Street in Centerville, New York, to buy a CB radio. The salesman claimed that the Star Monitor CB, which he showed me and which I subsequently purchased, was being offered at a special discount price of $50—half the normal retail price. I have enclosed a copy of my receipt. A few days later, at Janes' Department Store in Centerville, I saw the same radio being sold for $35 and was told that this was its normal retail price.

I can only conclude that the salesman at Snazzy Sam's deliberately misrepresented the price of the radio. I am sure you will agree that this store should be investigated and am turning the matter over to you as it involves interstate commerce. Please let me know what action you plan to take.

Yours sincerely,

Arnold Smart

Letter to state senator

63 Sunnyside Avenue
Anytown, N.Y. zip code
May 15, 1985

Dear Senator Green:

I strongly oppose your position on the death penalty. I do not believe, as you do, that the death penalty is a deterrent to violent crime. I appreciate and support your strong stand against crime, but I think your remedy is wrong.

There is a great deal of evidence that the deterrents to violent crime are social and legal, that violent crime decreases where there are adequate opportunities for work, health care, and education, and a court system that functions efficiently and quickly so that criminals are invariably sentenced and sent to jail. I refer you to the various presidential commissions on crime and violence over the years—beginning with President Johnson's—all of which have come to the same conclusions.

I think your emphasis on the death penalty as a deterrent is not only useless, it also diverts attention from the real remedies. I urge you to change your position. If you do not, I will not be able to support your bid for reelection to the State Senate.

Yours very truly,

Lucy Fuller

Lucy Fuller
(Mrs. David Fuller)

Complaint about billing error

Gentlemen:

I have just received my July bill from Universal Utilities and feel that you must have made a mistake. The bill was not only much higher than usual for that month (I have enclosed copies of this and last year's July and August bills), but also our family was away for the entire month.

I always pay my bills promptly and shall continue to do so—as soon as I receive a corrected statement or an explanation of this discrepancy.

Yours sincerely,

Alice Jones
(Mrs. Sidney Jones)

Complaint about a warranty (note that the writer refers to a previous letter and gives the company's file number).

File #6000-B

Dear Mr. Brandt:

I believe you are wrong about the term of my warranty on the Gallactic Food Processor that I bought from your company in June of 1982. Your letter of March 1 says that my warranty expired last year. In fact, it is a five-year warranty and will not expire until 1987. I am therefore sending the Gallactic Food Processor back to you C.O.D., and trust that you will have it repaired and returned postage-paid as your warranty promises.

Yours sincerely,

Ruth Green

Letters to the editor. If you confine your letter to one issue, it will be more forceful.

To the Editor of the Centerville Times:

I strongly disagree with your March 1st editorial recommending that the north end of Wadsworth Park along Central Avenue be used as the site for the new middle school.

Your editorial quotes Mayor Barnes as saying that this use of the land will save the taxpayers' hard-earned money, which it will. But you do not say what this loss of parkland will mean to the citizens of Centerville.

The 40 acres of Wadsworth Park is the last remaining open, green space in Centerville, providing a retreat from our ever-encroaching urban area, a place for relaxation and quiet walks, and a sanctuary for birds and many small wild animals.

Removing even 10 acres of the park would represent a major loss to the city and would set a dangerous precedent. In the long run, it would be uneconomical to lose even a small part of our precious, irreplaceable parkland.

Yours sincerely,

Tom Jones

Answering inquiries.

Whether you are answering a personal inquiry or are answering on behalf of your company, your letter should include the following:

- An acknowledgment of the inquiry, mentioning the date and general subject of the letter to you.
- A detailed response to the questions, or an explanation of why you have to refuse.
- Additional information that may be helpful.
- An offer of further help where appropriate.

To an insurance company

Dear Mr. Smith:

Your letter of March 1 asks me to itemize our losses in the flood last month.

As the damage to furniture, carpets, and appliances was extensive, I have prepared the enclosed list with the approximate cost or value of each item. I hope this will be sufficient for your purposes. Please let me know if you need any further information.

Sincerely yours,

Jim Kiley

enc.

To a prospective customer

Dear Mrs. Blake:

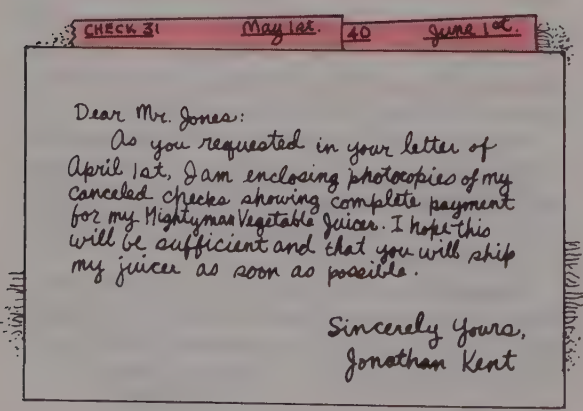
In response to your inquiry about the Jennie deWoolfe dress shown in the advertisement in the April Vogue, you can buy it in Marblehead at Design Research or, in Boston, at Kemp & Co., Market Fair, or Woman's Haberdasher. All these stories regularly carry our line.

Many thanks for your interest.

Yours sincerely,

Harry Ross
Customer Service

To a mail order company



CHECK 31 May 1st. 40 June 1st.

Dear Mr. Jones:
As you requested in your letter of April 1st, I am enclosing photocopies of my canceled checks showing complete payment for my Mightyman Vegetable Juicer. I hope this will be sufficient and that you will ship my juicer as soon as possible.

Sincerely Yours,
Jonathan Kent

Turning inquiries into sales.

Answering an inquiry provides a golden opportunity for a company to create goodwill and promote sales. A courteous and helpful reply can be and will be very good for business. See how this works in the following letter to a potential customer:

Dear Mr. Smith:

Many thanks for your inquiry, just received, about our Miracle Re-Circulating Wood Stoves.

As a builder, you know the importance of first-rate equipment. As heating suppliers, we welcome the chance to tell you more about our fine product.

First, it uses a revolutionary design. The curved ducts and chimney fan capture the heat ordinarily lost up the chimney and blow warm air out at floor level, which improves air circulation.

Second, it is efficient. It burns less wood because its airtight construction causes wood to burn slowly.

Third, it is practical. Its small size allows it to fit easily in most existing fireplaces. For new-home construction, it is unobtrusive and easily installed.

Finally, and perhaps most important, it is safe. Our Teflon-coated stovepipe reduces dangerous creosote build-up and does not need to be cleaned as frequently as ordinary stovepipes.

I have enclosed a brochure showing our complete line of stoves and direct your attention particularly to pages 6 and 7, showing models suitable for small summer homes. I would be happy to answer any further questions and arrange for a demonstration. Just call our toll-free number as soon as you are ready.

Yours sincerely,

Ted Jones

enc.

Answering complaints.

What if you need to respond to a complaint. How you respond depends on the particular situation and on whether or not you feel that you (or your company) is at fault. Whatever the case, it is best to be reasonable and courteous. It will help if you do the following things before you begin to write:

Organize your response

- Determine the real nature of the complaint. It is important to know exactly what the complainant thinks is wrong.
- Determine your position. Decide on what you want to accomplish with your letter—that is, if you want to apologize, defend your actions without an apology, or something in between.

Major points

As in writing most other kinds of letters, setting down the points you want to make in a clear and logical sequence is important in answering complaints effectively.

1. Summarize the complaint in your first sentence or your first paragraph.
2. Make your position clear in your next paragraph. Say whether you are sorry or think the person complaining has made a mistake.
3. Explain your position. Give the information that justifies or at least explains your actions.
4. State what action you plan to take or want your reader to take in your last paragraph.

Example

The following response includes the major points and has a cooperative tone that should gain time until the facts have been determined.

Dear Mr. Jones:

1. You believe that we have put our driveway across your property line.
2. We are having our lawyer check the deed, since we thought we put in the driveway entirely within our own property.
3. We realize that many of the old markers are unclear, so we would like to do more research before we come to any conclusions.
4. We know you are concerned about this and will be in touch with you as soon as we hear from our lawyer.

Yours truly,

Harry Green

Responding to customer complaints. In answering complaints, particularly when you have to refuse a request for an adjustment, a company or an individual businessperson wants to keep the goodwill of the customer without acting against the best interests of his or her business. The best way to do this is to avoid an accusatory tone and to present your facts courteously, simply, and clearly so that the customer will find it hard to argue with your conclusion. This is the case in the following letter, in which the service manager refuses to honor his company's warantee because the damage to the company's product was caused by the owner's misuse.

Dear Mr. Jones:

We do agree with you that your new Easywriter should not have broken down after three months and we were concerned to find out why it did.

That is why we sent it to our laboratory for a thorough examination as soon as we received it. It appears that the machine had been dropped several times and that it must have been left uncovered—a great deal of dust was found inside the motor. Unfortunately, no typewriter can withstand such treatment. If you think it over, we are sure you will agree and will understand why we cannot repair or replace it under the terms of our warranty.

If you have any questions please do not hesitate to call me.

Yours truly,

Howard Smith
Service Manager

When to apologize. This depends on whether you think the complaint has merit. Here are two different responses to slightly different situations:

Apologetic

Dear Mrs. Ashley:

I am very sorry to learn that you are unhappy about the work I did on your house. I want you to be completely satisfied with the job.

I would be glad to come back and touch up the woodwork and window frames as soon as I am available—which should be in about a week. I will call you then to arrange for my completing the work.

Yours truly,

Bob Adams

Nonapologetic

Dear Mrs. Ashley:

I am very sorry that you are unhappy about the completed paint job on your house, particularly the color of the living room and hall.

I would be happy to make any changes you would like, but will have to charge you for the additional time and paint to redo the living room and hall. Under our original agreement, my payment constituted your acceptance of the job.

If you would call me, I would be glad to give you an estimate and arrange for doing the additional work.

Yours truly,

Bob Adams

Collection letters. Letters asking for money owed are sent after the first bill has not been paid. They include the following points:

- How much is owed (a bill may be enclosed).
- Arguments for payment, including any action you plan (where appropriate).
- Request for payment by a certain date.

A delicate situation. Requests for overdue payments may put you in a somewhat delicate position. You want to get the money owed without antagonizing and losing your customer. You want to convey understanding and tact while remaining firm. Here are some techniques to help you do that.

1. Put yourself in the other person's place. Try to see that in most cases the person who owes you money would like to be able to pay on time and is sensitive about being unable. You can make this sensitivity work for you by appealing to his or her self-interest and sense of pride.
2. Avoid unwarranted threats. Be careful, you can be held legally liable for threats or insults. Do not accuse your debtor of dishonest behavior or intentions and do not threaten legal action without consulting a lawyer.
3. Fit the letter to the situation. Try to think why the payment may be late and use an appropriate approach. It is possible, for example, that the bill was lost or mislaid, that your customer did not understand the terms of sale or credit, or that he or she normally lets small bills accumulate. In such cases, all that is usually needed is a gentle reminder. Here are some examples:

When you opened this letter, I am sure it reminded you of something you meant to do, but forgot—to send us your check. Why not do it now? The amount due is $22.30. Please accept our apologies and thanks if you have already paid.

Perhaps we did not make it clear that our policy is to extend credit for a two-week period only, following the date of purchase.

Your payment of $135.62 was due last week on May 7. We would very much appreciate your sending us your check by return mail.

You may not have noticed that your past-due account with us now totals $236.14. We are trying to clear our books before December 31 and would appreciate your settling your account within the next few days.

Letters in a series. Often collection letters are written in a series, each successive letter getting stronger in tone. It is wise to make sure that your last collection letter reaches the person who owes you money. Send it certified mail, return receipt.

1.

Dear Mrs. Kent:
We find in checking our accounts that you have an unpaid balance for September of $62.42.
I thought that you would want us to bring it to your attention. If your check is already in the mail, just disregard this letter.
Yours truly,

2.

Dear Mrs. Kent:
As you usually pay your bills on time, we wonder why you have overlooked your September bill. The amount, $62.42, is now more than three months overdue. If there is some reason why you are not paying it, I trust you will let us know.
If I do not hear from you, I will look forward to getting your check within a few days.
Yours truly,

3.

Dear Mrs. Kent:
As you know, we do not usually extend credit for more than a month unless some agreement for partial payment has been made. Your bill for $62.42 is now four months overdue.
I urge you, therefore, to send us your check right away. If you cannot pay right now or can make only a partial payment, I am sure we could come to some arrangement. Do let me hear from you about this right away.
Yours truly,

4.

Dear Mrs. Kent:
I am extremely sorry that you have not responded to any of my letters about your overdue bill of $62.42.
I am afraid that unless I get your check in a few days, I will have to turn the matter over to our lawyers, Smith, French and Block, for legal action.
Yours truly,

Family business. Opening charge accounts, ordering merchandise, paying bills, planning vacations, contracting for work done to the house or yard—there are many occasions in a family's day-to-day life that require the writing of business letters. It is better to write than to telephone because you will not only have a record of your request, but the recipient will have a constant reminder before him. Here are a few examples:

Request for a delay in paying bills

Gentlemen:

Thank you for your recent letter reminding me that my account is long past due and inquiring as to when you can expect to receive payment.

I am enclosing a check for $50 toward the sum of $250, which is currently owed on my account.

Please accept my apologies for being in arrears. Recent medical expenses have placed a severe financial burden on me that I did not expect when I made the purchases at your store last spring.

I can manage to pay you $50 a month and if I do not hear otherwise from you, I will assume that this schedule is satisfactory. Thank you for your patience about this.

Yours truly,

Mary Snow
(Mrs. Richard Snow)

enc.

Opening a charge account

Gentlemen:

I would like to open a charge account at your store. I currently have charge accounts at Lord & Taylor, B. Altman, and Saks Fifth Avenue.

If you require further information or references, please let me know.

Yours truly,

Alice McCoy
(Mrs. Robert McCoy)

Making a hotel reservation

Gentlemen:

Please reserve a double room with bath for my husband and myself for the week of July 9th through July 15th. We would prefer a room overlooking the lake and, if possible, twin beds.

We will be arriving by train about noon on the 9th and will take a taxi directly to the hotel. Since we will rent a car during our stay, please send us a list of rental fees.

Please confirm and send your rate schedule.

Yours sincerely,

Harriet Brownly
(Mrs. John Brownly)

To report a lost credit card

10 Overlook Drive
Essex, CT, zip code

May 5, 19--

Galaxy Gas, USA
Credit Card Center
P O Box 1000
Houston, TX, zip code

Gentlemen:

I wish to make a formal report of the loss of my Galaxy Credit Card, Number 600-200-000-4 on May 4 in New York City. I called your 800 number immediately to report its loss and understand that I am not liable for any amount over $50 charged to my card.

Please send me a new card with a new charge number. Thank you.

Yours truly,

Robert Brown

Contract in a letter

Dr. Raymond Brown
1 Rolls Plaza
Centerville, New York zip code

Dear Dr. Brown:

This is to confirm our financial arrangement for Nancy's orthodontic treatment as explained by you in your office last week.

The cost of the treatment is $2080. I agree to make an initial payment of $400 at the beginning of the treatment and to pay the balance of $1680 in 24 monthly payments of $70 each. I understand that there is no finance charge or interest on the balance due.

I also understand that the treatment does not include x-rays, but does include any necessary fillings or extractions.

If these arrangements are agreeable to you, please sign the enclosed copies of this letter and return one to me.

I am very pleased that you are going to treat Nancy and am sure the treatment will be successful.

Yours truly,

Henry Graham

enc.

Letters that sell

The basic formula. The formula for a successful sales letter, according to an expert on direct mail, is:

INTEREST—DESIRE—CONVICTION—ACTION.

If you can stimulate each of these in your reader, you have made your sale.

An important point that all good salesmen know is this: people are more interested in the "secondary gains" of what the product or service will do for them than they are in the product or service itself. As one advertising professional puts it, "You don't sell the steak, you sell the sizzle."

What people want. Experts have compiled lists of the basic reasons why people buy anything from a magazine subscription to a car. The main ones are:

1. Better Health
2. To make money
3. To save money
4. Popularity
5. To look better
6. Security in old age
7. Praise from others
8. Sexual attractiveness
9. Comfort
10. Increased enjoyment
11. Leisure
12. Business advancement
13. Social advancement
14. Cleanliness
15. To escape physical pain
16. To save time

These basic human desires are the "sizzle."

Seven steps that sell the sizzle

1. Capture attention. Pique your reader's interest and get his or her attention with your first sentence. This is the first thing a good business letter does—often by asking a question, such as, "Do you want to improve your memory 100 percent?"
2. Make an offer. Promise something important that your product can do for the reader and make him or her want to find out more about it.
3. Appeal to some human need (see checklist).
4. Find at least one way that your product is different from similar ones and show how this difference is important.
5. Back up claims with facts. Prove the value of what you are selling. Make your reader agree.
6. Persuade your reader to take advantage of the opportunity you are offering.
7. Close with a request for action. Give your reader something specific to do right away, such as telephoning or filling out an enclosed order form.

Sample sales letter using the 7 steps

Dear Mr. Jones:

1. How would you like to improve your reading speed by 400 percent and remember everything you have read? How would you like to give your children the chance to improve their reading skills and comprehension in the vital early years?

2. We have developed a foolproof programmed course of instruction that will enable the entire Jones family to develop and perfect these essential skills in only four short months.

3. There is no better investment you could make in your own career or your wife's, or in your children's future.

4. Easyreader is different from any other speed-reading program you may have read or heard about because we give you two complete programs—one for adults and one for children. The children's program goes from grades 1 through 12. The adults' begins with short stories and ends with market analyses and international relations.

5. The Howard Smith family of Brocton, Illinois, wrote us that the Easyreader Program was responsible for their son Tom's getting all A's in his last year of high school. Tom Green from Hanover, New Hampshire, said, "My performance on the job was so improved that I got two raises in one year."

6. Do not deprive yourself or your family of this wonderful opportunity to increase your learning and earning power and to enrich your lives. The cost is only $15 a month.

7. So act now. Phone us toll-free (800-100-1000) or fill out the enclosed form. It will be one of the best and most rewarding decisions you ever made!

Yours truly,

Fred Little

enc.

Magazine subscription renewal. Humor can be an important ingredient in a sales letter. It is a good way to get attention and build goodwill, especially when it is likely that a routine letter would be ignored. This is a common problem for the people who write letters soliciting magazine subscriptions and renewals. The following letter uses humor for a "soft sell" approach.

Dear Reader:

This is to tell you that your future issues of Motor Boat Monthly are being held captive in the guts of a computer.

You will never know about the incredible new designs for speed and power, or get a chance to win a family vacation on the Inland Waterway, or read about the amazing race down the Mississippi— unless you send us your check or money order at our special $10 renewal rate, now!

This is no time to hesitate. Act now or you will never see your beloved Motor Boat Monthly again.

Yours anonymously,

MBM Subscription Gang

Letter to boss. Here the writer has a new idea that he thinks would be good for business and he wants to "sell" his boss on it. He uses a slightly different approach and does not specifically include steps 3, 4, or 6. But step 5 is particularly important: he backs up his proposal with facts based on a recognized authority.

Milkman's letter for holiday products

Dear Customer:

The holiday season is coming and I'm sure you won't want to run out of all the things you'll need for entertaining friends and family.

Neilson's Dairy is offering two new holiday products this season, which I'm sure you'll enjoy—frozen strawberry cream and frozen lemon soufflé.

Why not use the enclosed form and order everything you'll need in advance?

With best wishes for the holiday season,

George Wilson

Letter promoting winterizing service

Dear Prospective Winter Driver:

Winter is coming. There's a chill in the air that could spell future trouble for your car. Don't wait for signs of trouble. Come in and give your car the attention and cold-weather servicing it needs—right now!

We have the expert mechanics and up-to-date equipment to give your car a thorough inspection and locate any possible difficulties, and repair them. And we are having early-bird specials on replacing coolant, changing oil and oil filters, and putting on snow tires.

Don't put winterizing off and be sorry later. Come in now. You and your car will be glad you did!

Yours truly,

enc. Tom Benton

MEMO

TO: Mr. Thomas Grant
FROM: Tony Newman
DATE: August 1, 19—
SUBJECT: Establishing Hang-gliding Training Programs

I believe Grant's Glorious Gliders could take advantage of the current surge of interest in hang-gliding to promote our product and build goodwill among a growing group of prospective buyers.

I propose that we initiate a series of hang-gliding training programs and charge an appropriate fee to those who enroll. This would teach many of the inexperienced people who are buying hang-gliders how to use them safely and responsibly, and would enhance our reputation as a company that cares about its products and its customers.

Our expenses in setting up the course would, I believe, represent a sound financial investment in view of the rate at which the sport is growing. Our own sales, as you know, are up 25 percent over the last three months. According to this month's Hang-gliding News, not only is the sport growing nationwide, but enthusiasts are spending up to $2000 on the average for first-time purchases and from $300 to $1000 per year on maintenance and replacement parts. The article goes go on to say that enthusiasts are becoming more aware and concerned about good proceedure and safety.

If you approve of this proposal, I would like to discuss with you my ideas for putting it into practice. I can meet with you whenever it is convenient.

T.N.

Tony Newman

Clubs and organizations

Letters from clubs and organizations can include anything from announcing a meeting to thanking a speaker.

Announcement of meetings. Include the names, time, date, and place. For a regular meeting, a simple postcard will be quicker and less expensive than a letter.

Monthly Meeting
South Hampton Garden Club
Saturday, May 26
10:00 A.M.
at the home of Mrs. John Jones
32 Job Lane, South Hampton

Judy Greer, Sec.
Tel. 555-1212

A special business meeting would require a letter:

Notice of the 25th Annual Meeting of the John and Marian Macy Charity Fund

The annual meeting of the trustees of the John and Marian Macy Charity Fund will be held in the Palisades Community Center on March 1, 1985, at 2:00 P.M. for the purpose of considering and acting on the following:

1. Report of the Secretary
2. Report of the Treasurer
3. Report of the Committee on Disbursements
4. Distribution of Income
5. Election of Trustees

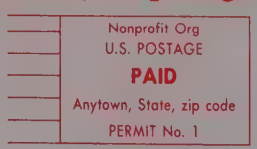
Harriet Drew
Secretary

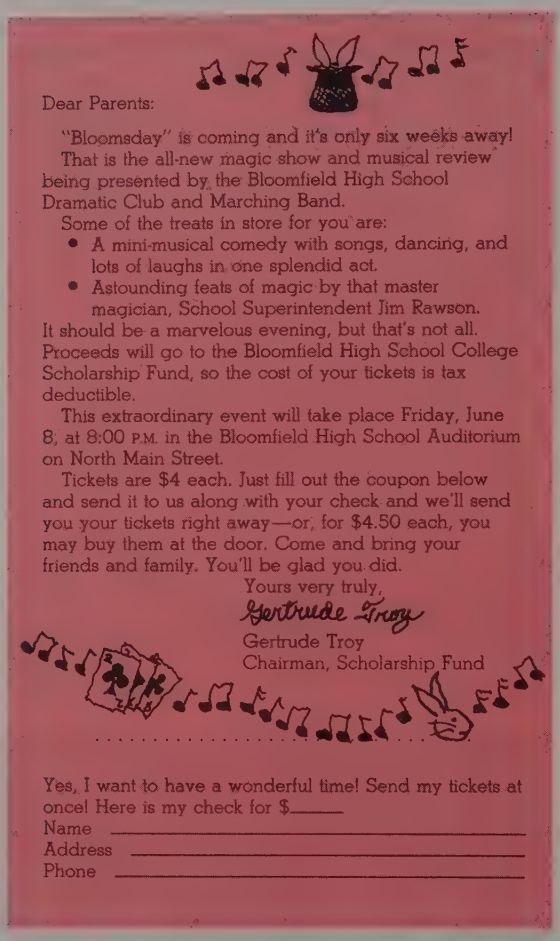
January 15, 1985

Saving money on postage



Your club or organization may be able to save money by applying to the post office for a third-class mailing permit. If yours is a nonprofit organization, the savings compared with first-class postage can be 75 percent. Even a commercial third-class bulk rate saves about 50 percent. Though there are fees for a permit, the savings can be large on frequent mailings.

Announcement of a special event



Dear Parents:

"Bloomsday" is coming and it's only six weeks away! That is the all-new magic show and musical review being presented by the Bloomfield High School Dramatic Club and Marching Band.

Some of the treats in store for you are:

- A mini-musical comedy with songs, dancing, and lots of laughs in one splendid act.
- Astounding feats of magic by that master magician, School Superintendent Jim Rawson.

It should be a marvelous evening, but that's not all. Proceeds will go to the Bloomfield High School College Scholarship Fund, so the cost of your tickets is tax deductible.

This extraordinary event will take place Friday, June 8, at 8:00 P.M. in the Bloomfield High School Auditorium on North Main Street.

Tickets are $4 each. Just fill out the coupon below and send it to us along with your check and we'll send you your tickets right away—or, for $4.50 each, you may buy them at the door. Come and bring your friends and family. You'll be glad you did.

Yours very truly,
Gertrude Troy
Gertrude Troy
Chairman, Scholarship Fund

Yes, I want to have a wonderful time! Send my tickets at once! Here is my check for $_____ Name _____
Address _____
Phone _____

Note the selling techniques of this letter. Its purpose is to convince the reader to buy a product, which is the ticket, and further, to spend money for the good cause of the scholarship fund. The letter accomplishes its purpose by using the following specific techniques:

- It gets attention and creates interest by giving the event an intriguing name.
- It describes a part of the event to develop the interest further.
- It gives two reasons for buying tickets: the event itself and the scholarship fund, and says that the ticket money is tax deductible.
- It does not give the date, time, and place until near the end, after the event has been described in an exciting way.
- It suggests an action the reader can take (buying tickets). It provides an easy way to do it (the coupon at the bottom) and an incentive for doing it (lower price).

- It ends with a final encouragement to come.

Fund raising. In today's tight economy, many clubs and organizations have to raise funds, either for their own needs or for civic purposes. The following letters might be part of an annual drive.

Fund drive letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Centerville Memorial Hospital needs your help. Some 25,000 new people have come to our town in the past ten years and our hospital has to grow to keep up. We urgently need a new wing with at least 50 beds, additional operating rooms, and diagnostic equipment. This will cost some $3 million and the Centerville Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a drive for funds.

Very soon you will be receiving letters asking for pledges and contributions. You will see announcements of special sporting events, concerts, and dinners—all to help us reach our $3 million goal. But you can help us get off to a flying start right now by sending your check made out to "Centerville Memorial Hospital Fund." Send it to me today, at the Centerville Chamber of Commerce, 100 Main Street, Centerville, Ohio, zip code. No contribution is too small. All contributions are tax deductible.

Yours sincerely,

Frank Ross, President
Centerville Chamber
of Commerce

To the general public

Dear _____ (to be filled in):

Did you know that the population of Centerville has grown by some 25,000 over the past ten years? The people at Centerville Memorial Hospital know this only too well, because the hospital must grow to keep up. An additional 50 beds are badly needed, as are more operating rooms and diagnostic facilities.

This is why the Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a campaign to raise $3 million for a new wing. Only your dollars will make this possible. Your contribution of $100 or more can buy bricks or a bed or a new piece of equipment. It can be dedicated to whomever you wish, and a memorial plaque will be placed in the lobby upon your request. So please send your check or pledge today in the enclosed return envelope. No amount is too small (or too large) and all contributions are tax deductible.

Yours sincerely,

Frank Ross, President
Centerville Chamber
of Commerce

Thanks to a company for their contribution

Dear Mr. Smith:

Your company's generous contribution to the Centerville Memorial Hospital Fund has enabled the hospital to purchase a CAT scanner, which will give it the most modern diagnostic facilities of any hospital in the area. We are deeply grateful.

Yours sincerely,

Frank Ross, President
Centerville Chamber

Invitation to speak

Dear Mr. Hunt:

The American Association of Railroads is going to hold its annual convention this year at the Palmer House in Minneapolis from Monday, May 8 through Friday, May 11. We would very much like to have you speak at the May 10 session.

This session is devoted to safety problems in freight handling, an area in which your own contributions are well known throughout the industry. I have enclosed our tentative schedule of speakers and a short list of suggested topics.

The association will, of course, pay your travel expenses to Minneapolis and hotel expenses for two nights. We are happy we can also offer you an honorarium.

I hope you will be able to accept, as your views on solving current safety problems would be of great interest to our membership.

Very truly yours,

George Brant, Chairman
Organizing Committee

Acceptance

Dear Mr. Brant:

I would be happy to speak at the May 10 session of the American Association of Railroads' annual convention. Your list of speakers is impressive and I am honored to be included. The suggested topic—the application of systems engineering—is fine. I will send you an outline next week.

Yours sincerely,

Robert Hunt

Thanking a speaker

Dear Mr. Hunt:

This year's convention was a big success, due in no small part to your contribution. Many of the people who attended your session told me what a fine and interesting presentation you made. Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

George Brant

Tips for retired people

Power in numbers. Today more than 26 million Americans are over 65 years old. This group has grown by some 31 percent since the 1970 census and is expected to reach 29 million by the year 2000.

This means that older Americans are an important interest group as consumers and as voters, and a group whose importance can only increase as their numbers grow. So if you have an opinion or complaint, if you need information or assistance—it matters. There are people out there ready to hear from you and ready to help: write to them.

Government agencies. Almost every department of the federal government has policies that affect older people. Special programs on state and local levels were set up by the Older Americans Act and the Older Americans Comprehensive Services Amendments, in such areas as employment, nutrition, recreation, health care, and care of the frail elderly (75 and over).

Finding one's way through the bureaucratic welter can be difficult, but there is a central clearinghouse for information—The Office for the Aging—which also acts as an advocate and mediator between the elderly and various government agencies. There is at least one office in every state. These offices are an invaluable source of information.

Organizations. The number of voluntary organizations of older people who address themselves to a variety of issues on both national and local levels is also growing rapidly. A list of national organizations appears at the end of this section.

You are entitled. If you need help or information in such areas as housing, finance, health, education, travel, recreation, or employment—you are entitled to it. Do not hesitate to ask for it. You can use the telephone, but it is usually better to write a letter. In this section we give you some hints and sample letters to help you do that.

Housing

To a state office for the aging about tax relief

Dear Sir or Madam:

My wife and I are both over 65 and own our own home. I would like to know whether we are eligible for tax abatements, and if so, how we apply.

Yours truly,

John Harris

About eligibility for rent subsidy

New York State Office for the Aging
Empire State Plaza
Albany, NY 12230

Gentlemen:

I would like to know whether I am eligible for a rent subsidy under any federal, state, or local program.

My wife and I are both over 65 and have been renting the same apartment for 25 years. We are now living on my pension as a retired postman and on my wife's Social Security benefits. It is sometimes very hard to make ends meet. Accordingly, I am eager to know whether any financial aid is available to us. I would appreciate your answer as soon as possible.

Yours truly,

Frank Smith

Frank Smith

About moving to another state

South Carolina Commission on Aging
915 Main Street
Columbia, SC 29201

Dear Sir or Madam:

I plan to retire next year and am very interested in South Carolina as a possible place to live. I need some general information to help me focus on specific towns. I would like to know about the locations of available housing, cost of living and taxes, health care, and special facilities for seniors, including tax exemptions.

My wife and I anticipate a joint income from pensions and Social Security of about $15,000 per year. We plan to sell our house and purchase a small, easily maintained house or apartment for retirement.

I would appreciate any information you can send me on the suitability of South Carolina for retirement, including a list of local Chambers of Commerce to which I can write for more detailed information. Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

Henry Crawford

Finances. Finances are of concern to everyone, but never more than to people who are living, or who are about to begin living, on the reduced income that is a fact of life for so many retirees. If you are planning to retire, finding out before you retire about what is likely to be your future financial situation is an excellent idea. The best way to get started is by writing letters.

Some people will be enrolled in private or company pension plans. Some will be entitled to veterans' benefits or survivor benefits. Some will be eligible for food stamps; most for Social Security benefits. Find out about these as soon as possible. There are several ways to go about it:

Send for the Social Security Handbook. You get it without charge by writing to:

Social Security Handbook
U.S. Government Printing Office
Washington, DC 20402

Visit or write to your local Social Security office. Make an appointment to come in and discuss your situation and options.

Get an accounting. There is a credit system for Social Security benefits measured in quarter years, which do not have to be consecutive. What you get depends on your average wages, when you start to collect, and how much you are earning when you put in a claim. If you want to find out where you stand, you can get an accounting of your Social Security earnings at any age, at any time, by writing to:

The Social Security Administration
P.O. Box 57
Baltimore, MD 21203

To make an appointment

Social Security Administration
410 Nanuet Mall
Anytown, N Y zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am 64 years old and plan to retire next year. I want to plan for my retirement and need to know what my benefits will be. May I come in and discuss this with you? I can take time off from work any morning, provided I give advance notice. Please let me know when I can come in. I'd appreciate your answer as soon as possible.

Yours truly,

Margaret Green

To request an accounting. Requests should be made on either of two forms which you can get from the Social Security Administration. They are (1) Social Security Request for Detailed Earnings Information, which will provide a year-by-year breakdown, and (2) Request for Statement of Earnings, which will cover a group of years. You should sign your form exactly as you signed your original card. See page 128 for more information.

The Social Security Administration
P.O. Box 57
Baltimore, Md. 21203

Dear Sir or Madam:

Would you please send me your form, Social Security Request for Detailed Earnings Information, as soon as possible? Thank you.

Yours truly,
Robert Stone

To a local utility

Town Gas and Electric Co.
Town, State zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am writing to inquire about your special rates for senior citizens, and want to know what your eligibility requirements are. I am also interested in any help you could give me on energy conservation and weatherization. I am 70 years old, a widow, and live on a small pension.

Yours truly,

Harriet James

To inquire about food stamps

Department of Social Services
County, State zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I would like to find out if my husband and I are eligible for food stamps. I am 65 and my husband is 72. As it is very hard for us to get to your offices, I wonder if it is possible to conduct an interview in our home or over the telephone. Also, please tell me what material you will need from us to decide whether we are eligible.

Sincerely yours,
Jane Duffy
Jane Duffy
(Mrs. Thomas Duffy)

Health

Health insurance. Information on Medicare, the health insurance program that covers everyone over 65, and on Medicaid, the financial assistance program for needy people of all ages who meet their state's requirements, is available from any Social Security office.

Assistance. Your state or county Office for the Aging can also tell you how to arrange for home care, day care, home meals, and medical transportation.

To request information

Office for the Aging
Rockland County Health Center
Pomona, NY zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I need transportation from my home to my doctor's office in Pearl River every other month. I am 75 years old and am confined to a wheelchair. Can you provide this service for me on a regular basis?

Yours truly,

Ruth Daley

To apply for Medicaid. You must apply in person, or send a representative if you are unable to come yourself. When you make an appointment, be sure to ask for an application form with its checklist of required information and documents.

Department of Social Services
Medicaid Unit
Sanatorium Road
Pomona, NY zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I wish an interview in order to apply for Medicaid. Please send me an application form and a list of what I will need to prove eligibility. I can come in any morning.

Yours truly,

Ruth Daley

Ruth Daley

Education.

One of the wonderful things you can do with more time is go back to school. You can finish or further your education and explore new interests, taking courses for credit toward a degree.

Write for information about the many programs available for adult and continuing education from your local school district or community college and from state and private colleges. For summer studies in the United States, Canada, and abroad, investigate ELDERHOSTEL. This program also offers limited fall/winter and winter/spring courses. Write for a catalog (see address on sample letter below).

To a community college

The Institution for Senior Education
Rockland County Community College
Suffern, NY zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I have recently retired and would now very much like to finish my college education. Please send me information about your program and about how to apply. I would like to enroll this fall as a sophomore, if that is possible. Please let me hear from you as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

Jane Baker

To inquire about a summer program. There are many special programs open only to retired or elderly people. Here is an example of one:

ELDERHOSTEL
100 Boyston Street
Boston, MA 02116

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am very interested in finding out about the ELDERHOSTEL program. Please send me your summer catalog and any other information you have about the program.

I do have some special questions:
1) Are there are facilities for the hearing-impaired?
2) Can you provide any financial assistance? If so, can you send me the necessary application forms?
3) Must students make their own travel arrangements?

I look forward to hearing from you in regard to these questions and to receiving your catalog.

Yours truly,

Harry Smith

Harry Smith

Travel and transportation

Special services. Many municipalities offer transportation to senior centers, doctors and dentists, and grocery stores, but appointments must usually be made well in advance. For information, contact your state or county Office for the Aging.

To request transportation

County Office for the Aging County Road
City, State zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

Can you provide transportation from my home to my local senior center and back on Mondays, Thursdays, and Fridays for the next three months? A recent hip operation has confined me to a wheelchair for that period. Thank you.

Yours truly,

John Rudd

To obtain a senior I.D. pass

Rockland County Office for the Aging
Rockland County Health Center
Sanatorium Road
Pomona, NY zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I obtained my senior I.D. pass from your office last year and have found it very helpful for my half-fare bus service, and many other discounts. However, I have lost it. Can you send me another or is it necessary for me to come in to your office? Please let me know about this as soon as possible.

Yours truly,

Alice Jones

To a travel agency

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am interested in finding out about group tours on behalf of my Senior Citizens Club. We are interested in spending a week in the White Mountains in New Hampshire. We would need a congenial place that is wheel-chair accessible, with interesting walks (we have quite a few bird watchers), swimming, and golf. There are ten women and eight men in our group.

Could you recommend some hotels that would be appropriate for our needs and send me brochures and rate schedules? We would like to go by chartered bus and would need information on this, as well. I look forward to hearing from you. Thank you.

Yours truly,

Albert Mills

A Directory of Senior Centers in the U.S. is available for $2 from The Government Printing Office
Superintendent of Documents
Washington, DC 20402

Recreation. One of the pleasures retired people have is more leisure time. They also have the pleasure of figuring out what to do with it. Local senior centers, which you can find out about from the State or County Office for the Aging, are a valuable source of information.

Inquiry about a senior center

New York State Office for the Aging
Empire State Plaza
Albany, NY 12230

Dear Sir or Madam:

I would like to know which senior center is nearest to my home. Also, please tell me whether noon meals are available at this center, what special programs they offer, and whether transportation is available.

Yours truly,

Frank Parker

To get a recreational pass

National Park Service
Room 1013
U.S. Department of the Interior
18th & C Streets, NW
Washington, DC 20240

Dear Sir or Madam:

Please send me your list of the federal recreational areas where I can obtain a Golden Age Pass. I understand this will provide me with free entrance and a 50 percent discount on fees for all park facilities. Thank you.

Yours truly,

Roger Williams

Requesting a catalog

Sam's Art Supplies
10 Main Street
Centerville, New York zip code

Dear Sir or Madam:

I see from your advertisement that you offer a 10 percent senior citizens discount. Could you please send me your catalog of art supplies? It would be a great convenience to me to be able to order through the mail.

Yours truly,

Harriet Jackson

Employment

Finding work again. The Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1969 prohibits discrimination against people between the ages of 40 and 65. Nonetheless, finding employment can be difficult for older people.

Remember that you have a lot to offer a prospective employer—the invaluable experience and skills learned over the years, plus the generally excellent record in terms of productivity and dependability that older people have on the job. You need to tell people what you can do, and a very good way to do this is through letters. It usually takes a lot of letters to get a response, but do not get discouraged. You have nothing to lose by trying.

Start a letter campaign. Select a number of companies in the field where you have experience and write directly to them. Explain the type of job you want and that you are not interested in joining a pension plan.

People starting service businesses, such as landscaping and lawn care, catering or real estate, can also use a letter campaign to good advantage. In addition, you can investigate the various government-funded employment programs by writing to the appropriate agency (see table below).

Write to friends and former business associates. Many jobs are found through personal contacts and here, as someone who has been in the business world for many years, you have a definite advantage. Use it.

To a former business associate

15 India Street
Scotch Plains, NJ zip code
September 3, 1985

Mr. James Morris
Morris and Burgess, Inc.
120 Main Street
Pleasant Valley, NJ zip code

Dear Jim:

As you know, I retired from McKinsey and Otis last spring when Janet and I moved to Scotch Plains. I find now that I really miss my work as an architectural draftsman (Janet and I miss the income, too) and would very much like to go back to work again.

I wondered, specifically, whether you need additional drafting services in your new office—either full-time or on a free-lance basis. If you don't need anyone right now, do you know of any openings with other architectural firms in our area?

I know you were always pleased with the work I did for you at McKinsey and Otis and I would very much appreciate any help or suggestions you can give me about job possibilities. Again, I would like to work full-time, but would be happy to take on free-lance assignments until I can find something permanent.

I hope to hear from you soon.

Yours truly,
Henry Scott
Henry Scott

Write to people that you think might know, or know someone who knows, about job possibilities.

Government employment programs

Action programs. For information about the following programs, write to ACTION, 806 Connecticut Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20525.

Peace Corps. This international program has no upper age limit. You can also write directly to Senior Citizens Liaison Office of the Peace Corps, Specialized Recruiting, Washington, DC 20525

VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America). This is a domestic Peace Corps which also provides a stipend and living allowance for workers in poor urban and rural areas.

Foster Grandparents. This program pays an hourly wage to low-income people over 60 who care for hospitalized or institutionalized children. Training is provided.

Senior Companion Program. This program is similar to Foster Grandparents, but serves adults with special needs. You visit people who are unable to leave their homes or who are in nursing homes or hospitals.

Department of Labor Programs. This is only a partial listing. Check with the State or County Office for the Aging for other local federally funded programs.

Operation Mainstream. For low-income, unemployed people in about 20 states. Write to U.S.D.A. Forest Service, Manpower Program, P.O. Box 2417, Washington, DC 20013.

Green Thumb. For low-income men over 55. Outdoor work improving public areas. Write to Green Thumb, Inc., National Farmers Union, 1012 14th Street, NW, Washington, DC 20005.

Senior Community Service Aide. Part-time work in Social Security and state employment offices and a variety of service programs. Write to the National Council on Aging, 600 Maryland Avenue, SW, West Wing 100, Washington, DC 20024.

Senior Aides. Part-time work performing a variety of local services such as child care and home health. Write to your State or County Office on the Aging for information.

Senior citizens

American Association of Retired Persons (AARP)
1909 K Street, NW
Washington, DC 20006

Open to anyone over 55, AARP offers world tours, bimonthly news bulletins, a hospitality house, out-of-hospital major medical insurance (for members 65 and over), life insurance, reduced prices on prescription and nonprescription drugs, a nursing home in California, and Institutes of Lifetime Learning in Long Beach, California, and Washington, D.C. There are almost 500 local chapters.

National Association of Retired Civil Employees (NARCE)
1909 Que Street, NW
Washington, DC 20009

Organized in 1921, NARCE has more than a thousand chapters in the 50 states. NARCE is active in promoting needed legislation and also has separately administered subsidiaries that provide favorable rates in life, casualty, hospital, fire, and automobile insurance. The annual dues include the monthly magazine Retirement Life.

National Council of Senior Citizens (NCSC)
1627 K Street, NW
Washington, DC 20006

Established in 1961, NCSC reports a membership of more than 2 million with more than 2000 affiliated clubs in all the states. NCSC is primarily concerned with promoting the general welfare of older people through public understanding and legislation. It also provides low-cost travel, medical, and other services for its members. Its monthly publication is Senior Citizen News.

National Council of the Aging (NCOA)
600 Maryland Avenue, SW
West Wing 100
Washington, DC 20024

NCOA is a central, national resource. General services include professional consultation, gathering and dissemination of information, a special lending library (largest of its kind), conferences, institutes and seminars, special studies and projects, general liaison with government, and the development and design of funded demonstrations.

National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA)

NRTA was founded in 1947 as a separate organization, but now functions as part of AARP, sharing headquarters, staff, and executive director. It has over 800 local associations in all the states. Annual membership dues include the bimonthly NRTA Journal and News Bulletin.

Retired Offices Association (ROA)
1625 Eye Street, NW
Washington, DC 20006

ROA was established in 1929 and reports a membership of more than 92,000 officers from all the services. It encourages legislation that benefits retired military personnel, and provides employment, travel, insurance, and other services for its members. Annual dues include the magazine The Retired Officer.

Senior Citizens of America (SCA)
4109 17th Street, NW
Washington, DC 20011

This is an educational organization, founded in 1954, to help older persons become more effective in community service and personal growth and to bring about a better understanding of aspects of the aging process. SCA serves as a clearinghouse and offers general information services, publications, correspondence, and special counseling service to firms and agencies to prepare employees for retirement.

Gray Panthers
3700 Chestnut Street
Philadelphia, PA 19104

This group was originally called the Coalition of Older and Younger Adults—which is what it is, a loosely knit network of social activists working for change in all areas affecting older people.

Minority groups

National Association for the Spanish Speaking Elderly 3875 Wilshire Boulevard, Suite 401
Los Angeles, CA 90010

National Caucus and Center on Black Age, Inc.
1424 K Street, NW
Washington, DC 20005

You and your post office

The U.S. Postal Service has a lot more to offer than stamps, including many special products and services they would like you to know about. Ask for information at your local post office, or write to:

Consumer Advocate
U.S. Postal Service
Washington, DC 20260-3620

Here is a brief overview:

Classes of mail

Designation	Type of mail	Restrictions	Delivery	Rates
1st class	Letters, documents, postcards	At least 3″ × 5″ and at least .007″ thick. Must not weigh more than 12 oz.	Usually 2 days, but depends on destination. All 1st-class mail going over 500 miles is delivered by air	22 cents for 1st oz., 17 cents each additional oz.
Priority mail (1st-class mail over 12 oz.)	Letters, documents, etc.	Same as above, weighing over 12 oz.	Same as above	Rates for priority mail are determined by zone. Check with your post office.
2nd class	Newspapers, periodicals		Varies	Ask post office for single and bulk rates
3rd class	Commercial (advertising); parcels	Must weigh under 16 oz.	Varies	Single and bulk rates for advertising mail. Rates for parcels are the same as for 1st class up to 4 oz. Over 4 oz., check with post office
4th class	Parcels, printed matter	Weighing over 1 lb.	8–10 days	Rates for most 4th-class mail are determined by zone (ask at your post office). "Book rate" is a special rate available for 24 or more bound pages of material: 69 cents for 1st lb., 25 cents up to 7 lbs., 15 cents thereafter

Mailing valuables

Registered mail	Anything of value to you (jewelry, documents, etc.)	Valued over $400	Delivery is according to class of mail. May be insured for up to $10,000 for domestic. Optional insurance up to $25,000 against loss or damage. Return receipt	$3.55 without postal insurance; $3.60 with postal insurance (up to $100) included
Insured mail	Same as above	Under $500	Reimbursement up to $400	Varies for different classes of mail
Money orders	Alternative to sending cash	Up to $700	1st class	75 cents up to $25; $1 up to $700
Express mail	See "Fast delivery" section for insurance coverage

For fast delivery

Designation	Type of mail	Restrictions	Delivery	Rates
Express mail	Letters, parcels	Check with post office for areas serviced and for daily deadline	Overnight to areas serviced (most zip codes and some foreign countries). Guaranteed (money back) and insured (up to $500 reimbursement for merchandise and up to $50,000 for loss or damages). Includes weekends and holidays	$10.75 up to 2 lbs.; over 2 lbs. depends on zone
Airmail	Letters, packages	Up to 70 lbs. Maximum size: 100 sq. in. Mark "Airmail"	Depends on destination; check with post office	Domestic: 1st-class rates if going over 500 miles. International: 44 cents per half oz. up to 2 oz. for foreign countries other than Colombia, Venezuela, and Caribbean countries, which are 39 cents per half oz. up to 2 oz.
Aerogram	Lightweight self-mailer	Must have an overseas destination. Self-mailer is single sheet	Depends on destination; check with post office	36 cents to all destinations
Special delivery	Letters, parcels	No bulk 3rd class	Includes evenings, Sundays, and holidays	$2.95 plus postage for 1st class, $3.10 for all others
Mailgrams (night letters)	Letters	None	Overnight via Western Union or Office Telex or TWX	$7.50 for 1st 50 words, $2.25 thereafter for each additional group of 50 words
INTEL POST service	Documents	Service only between U.S. and designated foreign countries	Documents are scanned by a facsimile reader and transmitted via satellite, printed in destination country, and delivered by regular mail (1st class)	$5 per page

Proof of mailing

Certificate of mailing	Letters, parcels	Items of no intrinsic value	According to class of mail. Sender gets a mailing receipt, but post office keeps no record	40-cent fee plus postage according to weight and class of mail
Certified mail	Letters, parcels	1st-class mail only, for items of no intrinsic value	Sender gets a mailing receipt, and post office keeps a record	75-cent fee plus postage
Return receipt	Letters, parcels	Given for Certified, Registered, C.O.D., and Express mail, and for any mail insured over $20	According to class/ designation of mail. Receipt, returned to sender, constitutes proof of delivery	70 cents plus postage

Correct forms of address

Government officials

Person	Address	Salutation
The President	The President The White House Washington, DC 20510	Dear Mr. President or Madam President
The Vice President	The Vice President United States Senate Washington, DC 20510	Dear Mr. Vice President or Madam Vice President
Cabinet Officers	The Honorable John Smith Secretary of the Interior Washington, DC zip code	Dear Mr. Secretary or Madam Secretary
The Attorney General	The Honorable John Smith Attorney General Washington, DC zip code	Dear Mr. Attorney General or Madam Attorney General
Chief Justice of the United States (same applies for a State Supreme Court)	The Chief Justice of the United States The Supreme Court Washington, DC 20543	Dear Mr. Chief Justice or Madam Chief Justice
Associate Justice	Mr. Justice Smith The Supreme Court Washington, DC 20543	Dear Mr. Justice or Madam Justice
U.S. Senator	The Honorable John Smith United States Senate Washington, DC 20510	Dear Senator Smith
U.S. Representative	The Honorable John Smith The United States House of Representatives Washington, DC zip code	Dear Mr. Smith
Governor	The Honorable John Smith Governor of (State) State Capital	Dear Governor Smith
Lieutenant Governor	The Honorable John Smith Lt. Governor of (State) State Capital	Dear Mr. Smith
State Senator	The Honorable John Smith The State Senate State Capital	Dear Senator Smith
State Assemblyman or Representative	The Honorable John Smith State House of Representatives (or Assembly) State Capital	Dear Mr. Smith
Mayors	The Honorable Jane Smith Mayor of (City or Town) Address	Dear Mayor Smith or Dear Madam Mayor
Lawyers	John Smith, Esq. Address	Dear Mr. Smith
Federal Judge	The Honorable John Smith United States District Judge	Dear Judge Smith

For further reference

Adler, Joan
The Retirement Book
William Morrow

Amy Vanderbilt's Etiquette
Doubleday and Company

Blumenthal, Lassor A.
The Art of Letter Writing
Grosset & Dunlap

Buckley, Earle C.
How to Write Better Business Letters
McGraw-Hill

Mager, N.H. and S.K.
The Complete Letter Writer
Pocket Books

Paxson, William C.
The Business Writing Handbook
Bantam Books

Schuster, M. Lincoln (ed.)
A Treasury of the World's Great Letters
Simon & Schuster

Silverstone, Barbara and Hyman, Helen Kandel
You and Your Aging Parent Pantheon Books

Watson, Lilian Eichler
The Bantam Book of Correct Letter Writing
Bantam Books

Members of the clergy

Person	Address	Salutation
Catholic clergy
The Pope	His Holiness, the Pope Vatican City Rome, Italy	Your Holiness
Cardinals	His Eminence, John Cardinal Smith	Dear Cardinal Smith
Archbishops and Bishops	The Most Reverend John Smith	Dear Archbishop (Bishop)
Abbot	The Right Reverend John Smith Abbot of (abbey)	Dear Father Abbot
Canon	The Very Reverend Canon John Smith	Dear Canon Smith
Monsignors	The Right (Very or Most)* Reverend Msgr. John Smith	Dear Monsignor Smith
Priest	The Reverend John Smith	Dear Father Smith
Brothers	Brother John Smith Name of Community	Dear Brother John
Sisters	Sister (full religious name) Name of Convent	Dear Sister
*The form of address depends on rank. When in doubt, consult the Official Catholic Directory.
Protestant clergy
Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, U.S.A.	The Most Reverend John Smith, D.D.	Dear Bishop Smith
Episcopal Bishops	The Right Reverend John Smith, D.D. Bishop of (area)	Dear Bishop Smith
Dean	The Very Reverend John Smith Dean of (cathedral or seminary)	Dear Dean Smith
Minister or Priest	The Reverend John Smith	Dear Mr. Smith (or, if the person has a doctorate, Dear Dr. Smith)
Jewish clergy
Rabbi	Rabbi John Smith	Dear Rabbi Smith (or, as above, Dear Dr. Smith)
Cantor	Cantor John Smith	Dear Cantor Smith

Members of the armed forces

The convention for addressing Army, Navy, Air Force, Coast Guard, and Marine officers and enlisted personnel is: full rank followed by the full name, a comma, and the abbreviation for the branch of service.

The abbreviations for the branches of service are: Army—U.S.A.; Army Reserve—U.S.A.R.; Air Force—U.S.A.F.; Air Force Reserve—U.S.A.F.R.; Navy—U.S.N.; Navy Reserve—U.S.N.R.; Coast Guard—U.S.C.G.; Coast Guard Reserve—U.S.C.G.R.; Marine Corps—U.S.M.C.; Marine Corps Reserve—U.S.M.C.R.

Retired generals and admirals keep their military titles in civilian life. The abbreviation (Ret.) is added after the service initials. Inactive reserve officers or retired officers of lower rank do not keep their titles. A retired brigadier general in the Army Reserve would be addressed as Brigadier General John Smith, U.S.A.R. (Ret.). The salutation would be Dear General Smith.
Ensigns, petty officers, and warrant officers would be addressed according to the formula, but the salutation would be written Dear Mr. Smith.

Improving Your Reading

- Enjoy the benefits of reading 302
- What is good reading? 306
- Efficient reading 310
- Special types of reading 318
- Continuing to improve 322
- Reading lists 324

In the world we live in, our everyday actions depend to a great extent on our ability to read. We are always reading, often without even being aware of it: we read traffic signs, recipes, words on a television screen, and billboard advertisements. Surrounded by the printed word, many of us often take reading for granted. We come to think of our reading habits and skills as fixed, unchangeable parts of ourselves.

But good readers have one thing in common—they have made themselves good readers, often at a late age. One of the most famous books on reading is Mortimer Adler's How to Read a Book; in it he wrote: "I did not discover I could not read until after I had left college." Of course he could read newspapers, magazines, and books. But he discovered that he was not a good reader because he was not getting everything possible out of the things he read, nor was he reading with speed, pleasure, and satisfaction.

This chapter will help any reader become a better one, and it will help make reading more enjoyable. Most people want to improve their reading ability but do not know how. Here you will discover exactly how to improve your reading skills through an effective reading improvement program that will meet your own needs. You will also learn of the many benefits of good reading skills.

Enjoying the benefits of reading

The best reason for improving your reading is one of the most neglected. Reading gives pleasure. Good reading skills make reading even more pleasurable. Most of the books offered by a library or bookstore are for leisure reading, because reading is one of the most stimulating ways people can spend free time. Yet many people avoid reading because they think of it as a kind of chore or a kind of homework that they outgrew when they left school. But think of this: as a reader you have a world of entertainment at your fingertips. You can enjoy reading wherever you find yourself and whenever you wish, without depending on others or on the schedules that control movies and television.

The pleasures of reading are not limited to novels or stories. Good readers enjoy the personal satisfaction of learning more about their fields of interest, such as history or biography or sports, and also the satisfaction of developing new interests. People who enjoy reading usually become engrossed in current events. This gives them the satisfaction of understanding in depth the news of the day that is only skimmed by radio or television. Reading does not prevent activity. It makes people more active. Good readers of all ages use "how to" books on home improvement or hobbies for ideas on improving and broadening their leisure activities. Readers do not dislike parties or sports. In fact, they have more enthusiasm for these activities because they are stimulated by reading to seek more exciting ways to live.

In addition to these personal benefits, good reading skills help promote career advancement. Reading lists of required and recommended books are the heart of any formal education, and the ability to master these books fully and quickly is essential for the success of those planning for college, now in college, or returning to college. Independent reading can also open the doors to occupational advancement or to career changes. Because good readers enjoy reading and do more of it, they are more likely to find the books that will help them to obtain promotions or inspire new job ideas. Reading skills are also closely related to important occupational skills, such as writing and public speaking.

Finally, the benefits of good reading habits are felt by the entire family. Children are more likely to read well if they come from homes where books are valued. Reading is not necessarily a solitary activity. It lends itself to group activities, such as reading aloud or discussing the contents of mutually shared books. Children brought up by people who care about reading benefit from the ideas and discussions stimulated by books. Adults, in turn, can better understand their own reading habits by observing their children and by becoming involved with required school reading. Good reading habits can be learned and relearned by all members of the family together.

Evaluating your reading. To improve your reading, you should first find out where you now stand as a reader. This self-evaluation will enable you to concentrate on areas that need attention. It will also make it possible for you to judge your overall improvement as you work on your reading.

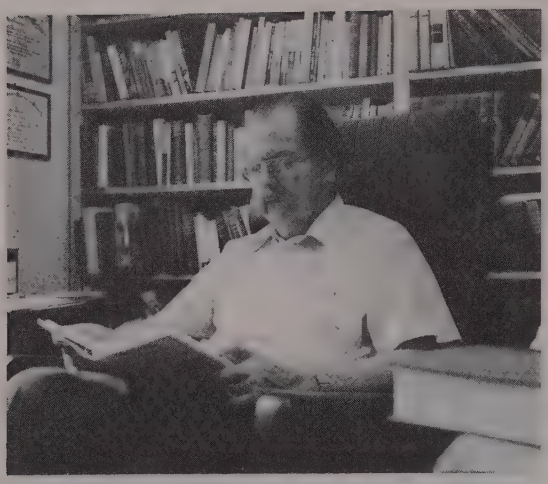
Thus, to benefit from the program in reading improvement described in this chapter, your first task is to examine your reading performance for symptoms of a possible problem. Then you will examine individual habits to isolate the ones that can hold you back. Even if your reading performance is acceptable, you can set new, higher goals and achieve them by continuing to work on fundamental habits with the techniques described here.

"He that loves reading, has everything within his reach. He has but to desire, and he may possess himself of every species of wisdom to judge and power to perform."

—William Godwin

The most obvious symptom of a reading problem is boredom. No author tries to bore a reader. Rather, most authors spend considerable effort trying to interest their readers. Without knowing it, people who find themselves bored with books and magazines are working against the benefits of reading. In adults, this is usually because their reading habits have deteriorated since their school years.

The enjoyment of reading is limitless. Reading is not restricted to a particular time or place.



Executives and professionals read for many hours each day to keep up with new developments and advance in their careers.

The personal benefits of reading for pleasure and information are easily undone by neglecting to keep up with reading as a regular activity. People who pick up a book only when they are bored can hardly hope to be anything but bored while reading it. Good readers plan to read regularly, and they keep material at hand that they look forward to reading.

Similarly, the professional and educational benefits of reading are undone by reading without a purpose. People who have trouble getting started in reading, and who find themselves with only a vague understanding of isolated facts when they have finished, have failed to keep up with reading as a purposeful activity. They need to renew their sense of reading for specific information, whether to pass a school course, secure a job promotion, or obtain a personal benefit.

Finally, the family benefits of reading are lost by people who make no attempt to master what they read. People who find it difficult to retain what they read can regain this ability by discussing their reading with friends, family members, people who are familiar with the same book, or people who may be interested in hearing about a book.

Boredom, failure to comprehend material, and failure to retain information are only the most general symptoms of reading problems. But these symptoms can help you identify specific reading habits that should be corrected or improved in order to better your overall reading performance. The checklist provided here will help you analyze specific reading habits. These habits are discussed later in this chapter.

Essential steps to good reading.

If you are dissatisfied with your present reading ability, if you are unsure of how to improve your reading skills, or if you wish to enjoy reading more, this chapter will give you the practical advice you need. You, in turn, must have the willingness to follow a program of regular practice in special reading skills. You may be asked to break habits caused by years of little or no contact with books. You may also find yourself asked to develop new habits, many of which may seem difficult to adopt. But if you accept the fact that reading is an acquired skill rather than a natural talent, and if you agree that all skills can be sharpened by practice, then you are in an excellent position to begin your own program for reading improvement.

Checklist of reading habits

Answer all questions in this checklist for an inventory of your reading habits.

1. Do you suffer from eyestrain or headaches as you read?
2. Do you find yourself distracted as you read?
3. Do you point at words as you read?
4. Do you audibly or silently say words as you read?
5. Do you frequently reread words or phrases?
6. Do you read everything at a single speed?
7. Do you skip over new words without understanding them?
8. Do you quickly forget what you have read?
9. Do you lack a sense of purpose before you begin reading?
10. Do you find certain kinds of reading especially difficult?
11. Do you go many days without reading at all?
12. Do you read only a single kind of book?
13. Do you lack ideas on what new things you might read?

The questions that you answer "yes" identify your reading habits that need improvement. This chapter provides advice on each of them. Questions 1 through 4 are discussed in the section "What is good reading?"; questions 5 through 8 in the sections on "Reading for speed" and "Reading for comprehension"; 9 and 10 in "Special types of reading"; and 11 through 13 in "Continuing to improve."

Setting realistic goals. We all know of highly advertised schemes for miraculous accomplishments in reading improvement. Most of them concentrate only on reading speed. They advertise success as the ability to skim a novel such as Leo Tolstoy's massive War and Peace in a few hours. Such schemes may indeed be able to teach people to turn all 1200 pages of that novel in a short amount of time. But the schemes are flawed on two counts: first, no one can understand that novel in a few hours; second, no one can enjoy that novel in a few hours. A further problem with such promises is the proven fact that superspeed reading ability does not last.

The primary goals of this program are to help you enjoy reading more; to allow you to learn the satisfactions of reading well; and to encourage you to want to read more often for pleasure and self-improvement. You will certainly enjoy reading more if you read faster; this program will help you to double your normal reading speed and beyond. But to increase your enjoyment of books, you must also read better; this program will help you to improve your comprehension so you can enjoy stimulating and challenging books. Both of these goals can be achieved by most people in about eight weeks of daily reading practice for about one hour at a time. This is not an overnight key to superspeed reading. It is a responsible program for achieving long-lasting benefits in reading with only 50 to 60 hours of practice.

To begin, read every day for about one hour. If possible, this reading session should be scheduled at the same time each day, but make certain that you avoid a time when you are too tired or too distracted to concentrate. For the first two weeks, read any easy material you find enjoyable. Read at your present natural reading speed. As the days go by, work to improve that reading speed by following the advice on "Reading for speed" given in this chapter. Your goal is to double your natural reading speed within two weeks. Then you will be prepared to develop a repertoire of reading speeds for material of different levels of difficulty. This skill is described in the section of this chapter called "Developing three speeds." From week three to week eight, vary the difficulty of your reading material each day. In this stage you will be taking advantage of the advice in the section on "Reading for comprehension." You will also concentrate on special reading skills, and on reading for special purposes. In this way, you will be developing your ability to read different sorts of books and articles with proficiency. At the end of eight weeks of these daily one-hour reading sessions, compare your initial speed and comprehension with your final speeds and comprehension.

Charting your progress. You will need a record of your daily reading to chart your progress through the eight weeks. The best record is a diary of brief entries recorded after each day's reading. You can keep such a diary in any pad or notebook. The box on this page shows the items of information to record as you complete the program. In the first two weeks, you will be concerned only with the first five items. In later weeks, as you work on special skills, you will want to keep track of all ten questions for a thorough evaluation of your improving skills.

Your reading program

This outline of a good program for reading improvement requires only a single hour each day for a period of eight weeks.

Weeks 1–2: Measure beginning reading speed.
Read one hour a day.
Read easy material.
Check reading speed daily.
Work to double beginning reading speed.

Weeks 3–8: Measure three reading speeds: rapid, normal, and study.
Read one hour a day.
Alternate readings of easy, average, and difficult levels of complexity.
Check one reading speed daily.
Review what has been read.
Keep notes on aspects of reading that need work.

A reader's diary

To keep track of your reading, make brief, daily notes in a diary or notebook. The diary sample shown here supplies all the important questions affecting reading plus answers given by one reader.

When you start your diary, only the first questions will be answered in the first weeks. In later weeks, you will answer all these questions.

Date: 4-6-85
Words read: 5500
Reading speed: 360 wpm
Level of difficulty: average
Level of speed: normal
Summary completed: clear presentation of personnel evaluation process
Special difficulties: none

What is good reading?

Being a competent reader means having a sufficient knowledge of the fundamental habits necessary for success. Poor readers never examine their habits, so they never discover the wasted movements or persistent distractions that prevent them from increasing their speed and comprehension. Good readers scrutinize their basic habits to find ways to improve. Thus, moving toward competent reading begins with self-examination.

Before you read. The eyes are the most important physical tools for reading. Schools regularly check the vision of children, so many minor eye problems are identified early in life. The most common of these are nearsightedness, which is clear focus only on close objects, and farsightedness, which is clear focus only on more distant ones. Another common problem is astigmatism, a blurred perception in one eye that causes eyestrain. All these problems are easily corrected by prescription eyeglasses.

After youth, however, the eyes continue to change, and so adults have as much need as children for regular eye examinations. Because of natural changes in the way the eyes focus, adults may require prescription lenses for the first time or new prescriptions to replace old ones. Adults must also be concerned with diseases of the eyes associated with aging. These include cataracts, which cause a clouding of the lens of the eye, and glaucoma, which is an increase in the pressure within the eye.

Any weakness in eyesight can lead to eyestrain, headaches, fatigue, and restlessness. But correctly prescribed lenses can correct vision, insuring that reading is both more effective and more pleasant. It is a good habit to have your eyes examined at least once every two years.

Congenial surroundings are another fundamental consideration. Good readers make a habit of reading in an environment conducive to concentration. Poor readers often complain of boredom with books when improper surroundings have made concentration impossible.

First, reading requires proper light. Poor lighting can strain the best of eyes. Reading lamps should throw sufficient light on the printed page without causing glare. Ideally, the light should come from behind the reader—usually over the left shoulder—and be shaded from the reader's eyes. Single bright lights in otherwise dark rooms also cause eyestrain, so make certain that your reading room is also lit by a background lamp.

Second, reading requires the quiet essential for concentration. Many people find some background noise, such as a radio, more conducive to concentration than complete silence. That is because the noise remains in the background, is unobtrusive, and has a soothing effect. Other kinds of noise, however, are specifically designed to attract attention. Television commercials, for example, are designed to draw attention from whatever anyone is doing, including reading. It is important, therefore, to test your tolerance for noise while reading. No one needs a private study or library in order to read well, but readers must control their surroundings in order to eliminate distractions that make concentration difficult.

Finally, reading requires an appropriate seating arrangement. This, too, is largely a matter of personal preference. It may seem too obvious a point to bear repeating, but reading in bed is more conducive to sleeping than to reading effectiveness. Everyone enjoys reading as relaxation, but good readers are aware of their physical posture and choose the one best for a particular reading purpose. A comfortable armchair is best for becoming absorbed in a favorite novel or magazine, but a chair and desk or table are necessary for study. While seated before a desk or table, good readers are able to take notes or reach for a handy dictionary or other reference work without the distraction of moving elsewhere to find the necessary book. Your daily reading for this program should be done at a well lighted desk or table in a quiet room. This promotes alertness and concentration on the reading material itself and the particular reading skill you may be practicing that day.

The act of reading. Reading is primarily a mental activity, requiring only turning pages and moving the eyes. Any other actions are distractions and impediments to understanding. By indulging in bad habits, poor readers often make reading hard for themselves, but good readers free their minds for speedy absorption of written material. To improve your reading, it is important to identify and eliminate physical habits that slow you down while reading.

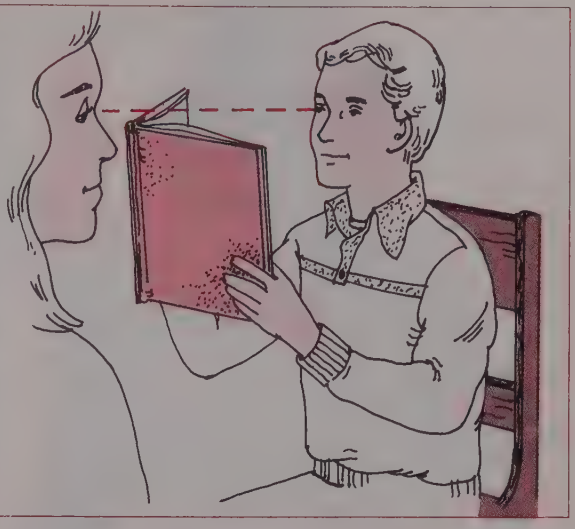
Eye movements. In reading, the eyes make small, split-second movements across the lines of the page. Only when the eyes stop is vision possible. Thus, only when the eyes stop can reading taking place.

The first person to connect this physical fact with the reading process was the French ophthalmologist Emile Javal. In 1878 he gave the name saccades to the jerky jumps of the eye moving across the printed page

Observing eye movements

Most people are unaware of the physical eye movements of reading. Observe the eye movements of another person while reading in order to better understand your own.

1. Have a friend sit in a straight-backed chair.
2. Have the friend hold a book at eye level about 12 inches from the face.
3. As the friend reads, look just over the top of the book at the eyes in motion.
4. Note the movements and pauses of the eyes while reading. Look for regressions and for return eye sweeps from the end of one line to the beginning of the next.



from left to right. He called the pauses between the jumps fixations. We are not aware of it as we read, but each line of print is crossed by the eye in a series of these jumps and pauses. For obvious reasons, we cannot observe our own eye movements. But we can observe the eye movements of other people who are reading, and this is a helpful exercise because it demonstrates how our own eyes behave as we read.

During reading, most people fixate on the beginning of a word because their eyes are drawn by the spaces between words. Everyone's reading is a sequence of these fixations. Good readers are able to keep the time of fixation to a minimum, thus speeding the eye along the printed line and on to the next. This increases their interest in the material and their mastery of ideas. Good readers are also able to eliminate regressions, the name given to backtracking to words already read. This ensures that they encounter the author's ideas as written and not as a confusing jumble of rearranged and reread words and phrases. As you observe the eye movements of other readers, you can expect to see different numbers of fixations and regressions.

It is important to observe and understand reading eye movement because you can control it. Among the most common bad habits of poor readers are slow or sloppy eye movements and frequent regressions. Both make it harder, not easier, to understand an author's ideas. Both are unnecessary, and both are easy to correct. Prove this to yourself by reading a single page at a slightly faster than normal rate and without any regressions at all. Move your eyes rapidly along the line and do not regress. It takes time to make this a habit, but you will soon notice that the effort increases reading speed and efficiency without any loss in comprehension. (More information on eye movements is provided in the section on "Reading for speed.")

Hand movements. Many young children are instructed to point at words while they are learning to read. Usually these words are in a list, and the exercise is designed to increase vocabulary. Unfortunately, many adult readers are held back because they fail to shed this habit. They read by pointing at words with a finger or a pencil, or even at a whole line of words with a ruler.

The problem with using hand movements is that they not only limit but actually distort reading. Fingers, pencils, and rulers introduce an unnecessary physical act into the reading process—complicating it, slowing it down, and distracting the eye. Habitual hand motions are usually performed at a single speed, making it difficult to achieve the flexibility of speed necessary for efficient reading. Finally, pointers distort reading comprehension because they locate places on a page rather than ideas in a sentence.

Good readers concentrate on ideas by eliminating the physical distraction of pointing.

Hand movements are a bad reading habit that is easy to correct. Simply refuse to let yourself touch the page when you read. Unless you are taking notes or underlining, place your book on a reading stand or hold it with both hands. A single hour of reading like this will demonstrate that pointing is simply unnecessary. Because a physical hindrance to understanding has been removed, later practice sessions will show improved comprehension.

Lip movements. Although reading is a mental process, many poor readers limit themselves by pronouncing the words they read. This habit is known to specialists as vocalization, and it can take several forms. Some people may actually read aloud. Others murmur to themselves. Most vocalizers silently mouth words as they read. These physical actions are the simplest forms of vocalization. More often, people have the habit of subvocalization, or mentally reproducing the sound of written words without any apparent physical action. These readers are listening to an interior voice rather than seeing words on a page.

One can tell that this reader is reading efficiently. She does not distract herself by pointing at the words as she reads, nor does she move her lips. The silent reading she practices is truly silent. Her attention is on the ideas and information she seeks, not on individual words.

Vocalization and subvocalization are not found among good readers because these habits interfere with both comprehension and speed. As in the case of hand movements, these physical or mental actions are a distraction from the ideas of a written work. These habits also substitute sound for meaning, causing a delay or even a loss in understanding. Since good readers focus on ideas, they are not hindered by vocal distractions.

It is easy to prove to yourself how seriously vocalization and subvocalization can slow your reading. Most speakers are able to read a passage aloud at about 125 words per minute. Mentally listening to the sound of printed words produces a reading rate only insignificantly faster. But even slow readers free from vocalizing habits proceed at close to twice this speed. Open any book or magazine you have handy and select two pages with approximately the same number of words. Time yourself while reading the first page aloud. Then time yourself while reading the second page as quickly as you can without any vocalization at all. Do not be surprised if you find you have read the second page a hundred words a minute faster than the first.

Many good readers have cured themselves of the habit of vocalizing. Some have done this merely by resisting the temptation to speak or hear the words they read; they insist, "I will not vocalize," and overcome the habit by willpower. But there is another method. You used it already if you did the exercise just described. Simply force yourself to read faster. If you work at reading fast, your vocal or subvocal voice will not be able to keep up with your eyes. Continued practice at reading faster with your eyes alone will break the vocalization habit and also improve your ability to read for speed.

How we read. One of the most frequent complaints of poor readers is that they get lost when they begin to read. They get a few pages or paragraphs into a book or article and then find themselves confused. The author seems to be saying something they cannot understand, or the author does not seem to be saying anything at all. The result? Boredom and frustration.

These readers have the bad habit of beginning with the first word of a book or article and treating all the words as if they were of equal importance. These readers have failed to use the signposts provided by writers to help guide readers to the points being made. Good readers make a habit of using these pointers to focus on key ideas.

Prereading. You can preview anything you wish to read, thus locating these pointers before you begin to work your way carefully through the text. This is often called skimming or scanning the written work. It is a good habit because it helps you to read faster and with better understanding. But it is no substitute for careful reading, and so it is useful to think of this process as prereading. You will not want to preread casual leisure reading; few readers of mystery novels, for example, enjoy knowing the outcome of the story in advance. But for all difficult or scholarly reading, you will want to preread the text as a technique that will help you understand the text more completely and more quickly.

Published books and articles include many signposts to help the reader. Some of these signposts are part of the format of the work, for example, chapter titles and subheadings within chapters. Others are part of the organization of the work, such as introductory and summary paragraphs. All are intended to help you get a sense of an author's ideas before you begin to read. Good readers take advantage of these signposts and are not likely to get lost while reading. They already know where they are going.

The first step in prereading is to study titles. Books and magazine articles usually have main titles and subtitles. These indicate both the general subject and the author's special approach to it. When you are reading a book, study the chapter titles in the table of contents. Chapter titles can give you an idea of what to expect in the book. If you are reading a magazine, look for subheadings within articles. These break up the text just as chapter titles in longer works do. Subheadings provide clues to the ideas in sections of the article and an outline of the contents of each article.

Depending on the kind of material you are reading, you may be given other signposts. Textbooks often include study questions. They should be consulted before you read so you know in advance what to look for and concentrate on. Many books also include important illustrations, diagrams, charts, or graphs. These are visual aids to be consulted in prereading for a quick hint about important concepts. Finally, many books and magazines use boxes to set off important quotations, definitions, and key ideas.

In the second stage of prereading, skim the text itself to understand its organization. This can be done with an entire magazine article, but in books you will want to skim each chapter as you come to it. First, examine the opening and closing paragraphs. Opening paragraphs often introduce you to the material, arouse interest, or identify important ideas. Closing paragraphs often restate conclusions or recapitulate the information presented. Then briefly check the interior paragraphs. This can be done by reading only the opening sentences of the paragraphs. These are called topic sentences when they announce the point of the paragraph.

What to preread

Reading material is full of signposts to check before you read. These are the kinds of places you can find pointers to the main ideas in any work.

Full titles	Main titles on opening page
Chapter titles	Found in table of contents
Subheadings	Breaks in text
Study questions	At the ends of some chapters
Illustrations	Visual examples with captions
Boxed text	Words in enlarged type
Opening paragraphs	Introduction for all readers
Closing paragraphs	Conclusion in its plainest form
Topic sentences	Informative openings of paragraphs

Prereading, of course, will not answer all of your questions about a work. That can be done only by careful reading according to the principles described later in this chapter. But prereading is a good reading habit because it shows you what writers call the shape of the material. This will help you decide what to read, how fast to read it, and what to look for in it.

Prereading

Prereading alerts you to signposts directing attention to important points. Among these signposts are the topic sentences of paragraphs. Scan the passage below by reading only topic sentences, which are printed in boldface. Then read the passage from beginning to end. You will see that your first prereading scan gives you an excellent preliminary idea of the content of the entire passage.

THE SAN FRANCISCO EARTHQUAKE

by Jack London

Within an hour after the earthquake shock, the smoke of San Francisco's burning was a lurid tower visible a hundred miles away. And for three days and nights this lurid tower swayed in the sky, reddening the sun, darkening the day, and filling the land with smoke.

On Wednesday morning at quarter past five came the earthquake. A minute later the flames were leaping upward. In a dozen different quarters south of Market Street, in the working class ghetto and in the factories, fires started. There was no opposing the flames. There was no organization, no communication. All the cunning adjustments of a twentieth-century city had been smashed by the earthquake. The streets were humped into ridges and depressions, and piled with the debris of fallen walls. The steel rails were twisted into perpendicular and horizontal angles. The telephone and telegraph systems were disrupted. And the great water mains had burst. All the shrewd contrivances and safeguards of man had been thrown out of gear by thirty seconds' twitching of the earth-crust.

By Wednesday afternoon, inside of twelve hours, half the heart of the city was gone. At that time I watched the vast conflagration from out on the bay. It was dead calm. Not a flicker of wind stirred. Yet from every side wind was pouring in upon the city. East, west, north, and south, strong winds were blowing upon the doomed city. The heated air rising made an enormous suck. Thus did the fire of itself build its own colossal chimney through the atmosphere. Day and night this dead calm continued, and yet, near to the flames, the wind was often half a gale, so mighty was the suck.

Wednesday night saw the destruction of the very heart of the city. Dynamite was lavishly used, and many of San Francisco's proudest structures were crumbled by man himself into ruins, but there was no withstanding the onrush of the flames.

Efficient reading

Efficiency in any operation is getting the best results with minimum effort. An efficient machine produces quality work quickly. Should it be too slow, goods cannot be produced economically. But should it be too fast, the loss of quality offsets any gain by speed.

The same can be said of reading, an operation that should produce maximum understanding with minimum time and effort. Read too fast, and you will not understand what you read. Read too slowly, and you risk losing interest.

Good readers are efficient because they balance these dual concerns of speed and comprehension. In this section you will be given instructions on how to read for speed and how to read for comprehension. First you will concentrate on speed, learning how you can double your reading speed with only a few days of practice. Then you will work on comprehension, learning special skills to help you master even difficult study material.

Reading for speed. Most poor readers proceed at about 150 to 200 words a minute. Average readers read about 250 to 300 words a minute. Good readers read from 400 to 500 and even more words a minute. But the most important skill of good readers is that they read at more than a single speed. They have a repertoire of speeds, an assortment of speeds for easy, average, and difficult material. Like the physical mannerisms discussed earlier, reading speeds are habits that can be corrected and improved. With a little practice, you can increase your average reading speed and develop a repertoire for special occasions

Measure your reading speed. The first step in your program for improvement is to measure your present reading speed. This establishes your beginning point; later, you can check your improvement against this original speed.

For this self-assessment you will need a quiet place, a book you consider easy to read, a watch or clock with a second hand, and paper and pencil. Make sure you will be free from interruptions or distractions. Also make sure you choose reading material you like, so you get an accurate measurement of your speed. Time yourself with the watch, and keep a permanent record of the results on paper.

Reading speed is always measured in words per minute. So the first step is to calculate the words on an average page of the book you will use for the test. The simplest way to do this is to count the words on single lines of text. Count the words in each of five full lines of text. Add the total number of words and divide by five. Now you know the average number of words in each line. You can now count the number of lines on a page. All full pages of text in your book will have

How to measure your reading speed

To find your average reading speed, first calculate the words on a page of the book you are going to use. When doing this, count both parts of hyphenated words as separate words. Then calculate your reading speed in words per minute (WPM) on a test. To arrive at an accurate figure, you should complete at least five brief tests and combine the results of each to reach your personal average reading speed.

Calculating words per page

Words in first line =____
Words in second line =____
Words in third line =____
Words in fourth line =____
\+ Words in fifth line =____
Total =____
Divided by 5
Average words per line =____
Multiplied by lines per page ×____
Average words per page =____

Calculating words per minute (WPM)

$$\frac{\text{Total words read}}{\text{Time in seconds}} \times 60 = \text{\_\_\_\_WPM}$$

Calculating average reading speed

First test WPM =____
Second test WPM =____
Third test WPM =____
Fourth test WPM =____
Fifth test WPM =____
Total =____
Divided by 5
Average WPM =____

about the same number of lines. You can now multiply the average number of words in a line by the number of lines on a page, thereby obtaining a quick estimate of words per page. Make notes on these counts for later reference. What is the average number of words in a line? What is the average number of lines on a page? What is the average number of words on a page?

Using the same book, test your reading speed. After noting the time, read five pages. Read at your normal speed, making sure you understand the material. Do not rush; you are testing yourself. After five pages, stop and note the elapsed time. You can now calculate your reading speed in words per minute by following the directions in the box on this page.

In this test it is important that you understand what you have read. Rushing to beat the clock is pointless: it makes reading unpleasant and comprehension impossible, and it produces a false estimate of your normal reading speed. After you have finished reading, take a moment to review the main ideas or facts in the pages you have read. If your recall seems poor, you may have read too fast. Another good test is to try to describe what you have read to a family member or friend. If he or she cannot understand the passage from your description of it, then you may not have understood it either. If you do not understand the material, slow down in the next tests and read more carefully.

You will need to conduct five tests in all, for each reading five pages, in order to have an accurate measurement of your average reading speed. After each test, carefully record your speed in words per minute. Relax for a few minutes between tests. It is not necessary to complete all five tests in a single sitting.

After five tests on passages you have understood, average your reading rates for a reliable estimate of your normal reading speed. This is the beginning point for your program to improve your reading speed.

Increasing your reading speed. Your beginning reading speed reflects habits you have developed over a period of years. This means that you cannot expect to increase it dramatically overnight. But it also means that reading speed can be improved by developing new habits.

First, you must focus on the problem of regressions, the backtracking habit you observed while watching the eye movements of another reader. Regression is going back to reread a word or, more often, a group of words. For example, suppose a 200-word-per-minute reader regressed five times in a minute to reread five groups of ten words each. In a minute this reader reread 50 words. This reader is actually reading at least 250 words per minute, but all the eye motion is not forward. Eliminating regressions would immediately improve this reader's speed at least 25 percent.

Of course, not all regressions can or even should be eliminated instantly. There are two types of regressions, and it is helpful to distinguish between them. Voluntary regressions are necessary searches for key ideas. To read with good comprehension, you must be prepared to reverse occasionally to review information, even at a loss of speed. Remember that speed itself is worthless if it means rushing blindly forward without full understanding. Good readers read for ideas, even if it means some backtracking. If you concentrate and control possible distractions, these voluntary regressions should be infrequent. Involuntary regressions are unnecessary. Many poor readers have the bad habit of regressing many times on a page without even being aware that they are doing so.

To correct habitual, unnecessary regressions, do your best to read with concentration and read forward. If you feel you are about to go back, ask yourself if it is absolutely necessary. If you have been concentrating, the answer most often will be "no," and you can proceed forward without loss of comprehension. After a few sessions of this exercise, you will find yourself regressing much less often, and so increasing your reading speed.

Another consideration is the eye return, the movement of the eye from the end of one line to the beginning of the next. Any typist knows that carriage returns, or the return of the paper for a new line, occupy a surprisingly large portion of typing time. Similarly, eye returns can occupy a large portion of reading time. Lazy eye returns are a bad reading habit, because they also invite distraction and loss of concentration.

To increase your reading speed, you should concentrate on eye returns. Force yourself to move quickly from one line to the next in a swift sweep from right to left without any opportunity for distracting thoughts or daydreams. This is an easily learned good reading habit, one that simultaneously improves both speed and comprehension. Work on eye returns by sweeping from the ends to the beginnings of lines on a page without reading the page at all. Make sure you always sweep to the next line. Readers who do not concentrate may often sweep to the wrong line. Practice demonstrates how fast the return can be if you are conscious of it and its importance.

The key to improved reading speed is practice. Set aside one hour each day. Practice on reading material that is easy and pleasant. Be sure to practice at a well-lit desk in a room free of distractions. As you read, concentrate on eliminating regressions and on speedy return sweeps. This is the way to increase reading speed permanently: practice and force yourself to go faster. Set your goals at a level higher than your present reading speed, and work at achieving them. Push yourself to read faster, eliminate regressions, and concentrate on speedy eye returns. As you achieve one

Regressions

Regressions make reading slower and harder to understand. The two passages printed here are identical except that one shows what a reader sees in making five regressions. You can see that these regressions make the passage longer and far more confusing.

If put to guess his calling and livelihood, I should have taken him for a country schoolmaster as soon as taken him for a country schoolmaster as soon as anything else. He was dressed in a rusty black frock coat and pantaloons, unbrushed, and worn so faithfully that the suit had faithfully that the suit had adapted itself to the curves and angularities of his figure and angularities of his figure, and had grown to be an outer skin of the man. His hair was black, still unmixed with gray, stiff, somewhat bushy, and had apparently been acquainted had apparently been acquainted with neither brush nor comb that morning, after neither brush nor comb that morning, after the disarrangement of the pillow; and as to a nightcap, Uncle Abe probably knows nothing of such effeminacies.

—Nathaniel Hawthorne, "Abraham Lincoln"

If put to guess his calling and livelihood, I should have taken him for a country schoolmaster as soon as anything else. He was dressed in a rusty black frock coat and pantaloons, unbrushed, and worn so faithfully that the suit had adapted itself to the curves and angularities of his figure, and had grown to be an outer skin of the man: His hair was black, still unmixed with gray, stiff, somewhat bushy, and had apparently been acquainted with neither brush nor comb that morning, after the disarrangement of the pillow; and as to a nightcap, Uncle Abe probably knows nothing of such effeminacies.

—Nathaniel Hawthorne, "Abraham Lincoln"

If put to guess his calling and livelihood, I should have taken him for a country schoolmaster as soon as anything else. He was dressed in a rusty black frock coat and pantaloons, unbrushed, and worn so faithfully that the suit had adapted itself to the curves and angularities of his figure, and had grown to be an outer skin of the man. His hair was black, still unmixed with gray, stiff, somewhat bushy, and had apparently been acquainted with neither brush nor comb that morning, after the disarrangement of the pillow; and as to a nightcap, Uncle Abe probably knows nothing of such effeminacies.

WPM (words per minute) goal, it becomes your natural speed. Then you may work on achieving still greater speed.

No matter what your beginning reading speed, you can double it, at least, in only a few days. Continue this daily practice for two weeks. Record your reading speed for each day in your reading diary. Small dips in your reading speed are inevitable because of outside forces such as interruptions or fatigue. With regular practice over two weeks, however, you will soon be reading at your new, faster speed without any special effort or need to slow down.

Developing three reading speeds. As you have already learned, one characteristic of good readers is that they have more than one reading speed. They can shift reading speeds much as a car shifts gears. A car needs different gears for going uphill, downhill, or cruising. Good readers use different speeds for similar reasons. You can prove this to yourself by reading a few pages in a favorite novel and then trying to read a legal document, for example, a mortgage or a lease. One is much less difficult and complex than the other, and so it is neither possible nor desirable to read both at the same speed.

For efficient reading, you should have three speeds. Such a repertoire enables you to get the most out of any material you read and to do so with minimum time and effort. No matter what you read, shifting gears will keep you from reading so slowly that you become bored or reading so quickly that you lose comprehension. The three speeds are study reading, normal reading, and rapid reading.

Study reading is the slowest speed. It is used, for example, for textbooks and work manuals, which require you to retain facts and master concepts. Naturally, this takes care and concentration, and it would be foolish to rush headlong through such material. In studying, therefore, you should slow down so that you absorb the material in a single reading. For that reason, good readers study at a rate of about 200 words per minute, or even less.

Normal reading is the middle speed for works of average complexity. It is used for books and magazine articles that require close attention, but not intense study. This speed is suitable for books and articles that present facts without demanding an analysis of concepts, and for novels and general nonfiction read for relaxation. Normal reading speed can also be useful for reviewing difficult material that has already been studied once. Most good readers have a normal reading speed close to twice as fast as their study speed. A good normal reading speed would be anywhere from 300 to 400 words per minute.

Rapid reading is used for easy reading material or for sampling material to find out whether you want to read it completely. Rapid reading is used for magazines, newspapers, and other quick reading for general information. The rapid reading speed is the one you will find it easiest to improve quickly. Good rapid reading proceeds at speeds up to 500 words per minute and sometimes even beyond. The maximum reading speed attainable in easy reading without skipping is about 800 words per minute.

Two considerations will help you choose the speed for any reading material. First ask yourself, what is the level of difficulty? Using your prereading skills, check the material for vocabulary, subject matter, amount of important facts, and complexity of important concepts. Grade the work on a scale from difficult to easy and choose the appropriate reading speed. Then ask yourself, why are you reading it? Decide if your purpose is to study, to be generally informed, or to relax. The answers to these questions usually point to a choice of study, normal, or rapid reading.

After working on your average reading speed for at least two weeks, begin to practice the three reading speeds by varying the kind of material you read. Your first practice was on easy material, at a speed closest to your rapid rate. But in your third week of daily reading, begin to practice with difficult and average as well as easy reading matter. You will quickly find your own beginning speed for each; then work to improve it.

You can now begin to add the level of difficulty to your reading diary and to keep track of three reading speeds. Once you have calculated your beginning speed at all three paces, set personal goals for all three speeds. As always, push yourself to go faster, to eliminate regressions, and to make speedy eye returns. After reading, record your speed and review the passage in your mind to check for comprehension. If you have not understood what you have read, you will have to slow down. But if you continue to practice and to vary your reading material, you will find your words per minute scores at all three speeds beginning to improve.

Reading speeds

Good readers have three reading speeds. They are efficient readers because they can choose the proper speed for any kind of reading material. Here is the basic repertoire of a good reader, illustrating the uses of each speed and the rates attainable with practice. The youth shown here is reading a manual on entomology. Because his purpose is careful analysis, he reads at a slow rate.

Speed	Materials	Purposes	Complexity	WPM
Study	Textbooks Work manuals	Careful analysis Memorization Test preparation	Difficult	200 or less
Normal	Novels Nonfiction	Leisure reading General information	Average	300–400
Rapid	Newspapers Magazines	Locating facts Prereading Sampling	Easy	500 or more

Test your speed and comprehension

Time yourself on this passage. Read at your normal speed. When finished, calculate your reading speed using the information provided at the end of the passage. Then test your comprehension with the questions provided. If you cannot answer most of the questions, you need to slow down and work on comprehension. If you can answer most of them, you are ready to practice reading faster.

Most of us have grown up with unfair stereotypes of those Puritan forefathers we heard so much about in high school. We imagine very joyless people, dressed in black, with little taste for experimentation in life.

In fact, the Puritans were among the most innovative people of all times, and certainly among the most adventurous and daring of any people who came to America in the early days of its colonial history. The very name "Puritan" was once synonymous with experimentation, and those who came to Massachusetts in the 17th century were as contentious a bunch as ever sat in the bistros popularized by the poets of Paris. The origins of the movement can be located in the Protestant Reformation launched in England by Henry VIII, who differed from the Pope on matters of divorce law. Henry founded the Church of England, but some thought that his own church needed to be purified even further of some old traditions, and that is why they became known as Puritans.

The first group to land in the new world were bound, aboard the Mayflower, for a place around New York bay. But blown off course, they landed in Massachusetts on December 21, 1620, according to tradition, at Plymouth Rock, near Boston. A group of 103 had left on the voyage that took 64 days; by the time they landed at Plymouth in a snowstorm, two had died and one had been born. Unsure of how to govern themselves, they invented a method: it was called the Mayflower Compact, and it is considered one of the forerunners of the United States Constitution.

Landing in winter was a dreadful mistake. By April of 1621 only 50 of the landing 102 had survived "the great sickness," a combination of scurvy contracted aboard ship and starvation through the winter. As their leader, William Bradford, described it, they arrived in a "howling wilderness" of previously unimaginable proportions. Actually, one key problem on Bradford's mind was the extent of the jungle before him. He imagined a "hideous and desolate wilderness" extending forever, or perhaps to some theoretical "South Sea," or Pacific Ocean, limit, populated only by "savage barbarians ready to fill our sides full of arrows." The Puritans knew this as they huddled in their tents—not log cabins—through that first winter. But when the Mayflower, with its shipload of skeptical sailors, left North America for home on April 5, 1621, not one of the surviving Puritans chose to return with the ship.

The Puritans, whom we still think of as rigid and impersonal, made the best of their situation. Three thousand miles by sailing ship from any civilized place, they made what friends they could. They met with Indians—the very people the popular stereotype suggests would most horrify the straight-laced Puritans. Miles Standish, Priscilla Mullins, and the rest of these true pioneers readily sat down and ate with visitors whose names have been recorded, no doubt inaccurately, as Samoset and Squanto. Their Thanksgiving probably never happened on November 24, but the Puritans were open-minded and adventurous enough to celebrate, in the fall of 1621, their own survival with a people completely opposite in culture and personal habit. It was this flexibility, this ability to deal honestly with people whose beliefs were light-years away from their own, that enabled the Puritans, in Bradford's words: "To fit up their houses and dwellings against winter, being all well recovered in health and strength and with all things."

$$\frac{\text{Total words} = 580}{\text{Reading time in seconds} =} \times 60 = \_\_\_\_ \text{ WPM}$$

1. The author's major point is:
   - a. The Puritans have little to do with modern life.
   - b. The Puritans are poorly understood by us.
   - c. The Puritans should have emigrated to Virginia.

2. The author appreciates the Puritans for their:
   - a. Ability to relate to strangers.
   - b. Religious piety.
   - c. Political activism.

3. Puritans got their name because they:
   - a. Hoped to purify the Church of England.
   - b. Hoped to purify the Roman Catholic Church.
   - c. Hoped to purify the Presbyterian Church.

4. The Puritans came to Massachusetts in the:
   - a. 16th century.
   - b. 17th century.
   - c. 18th century.

5. This passage to tells us:
   - a. Whom the Puritan fought against.
   - b. The importance of enduring hardship.
   - c. Why the Puritans deserve attention.

Answers: 1 (b); 2 (a); 3 (a); 4 (b); 5 (c).
Being able to answer most of these questions means correct responses to 3 or more. If you answered 2 or less correctly, you may have read too fast.

Reading for comprehension.

Reading faster is a physical skill. For the most efficient reading, this physical skill must be matched by an intellectual one. Thus, speed must be based on the ability to comprehend written material quickly. Complete comprehension is easier to manage at slow reading speeds, but efficient readers are able to absorb ideas even when pushing to move through a book at rapid reading speed.

Four basic habits are essential to good comprehension: locating key ideas, marking a book while reading, using reference books, and reviewing what has been read.

Locating key ideas. As you have already learned, prereading is possible because all words on a page are not of equal importance. Prereading establishes this fact. The process of prereading is one of locating key ideas embodied in important words and phrases. Even in difficult material, many words may be read quickly —think of "as," "an," and "the," for example. The important words, however, are crucial terms. They carry specific definitions in any written work, such as the term "prereading" in this chapter. Important words also include words or phrases of transition. They signal the direction of ideas. The word "however" is a good example. Efficient readers are able to comprehend material as they read quickly because they are alert to such important words as they push ahead.

Crucial terms are the heart of any written work, because they contain in single words the focused ideas of the author. For example, government spokesmen in both the Soviet Union and the United States are likely to use the word "propaganda" as a crucial term in their statements. One accepted meaning of propaganda is "promotion of ideas," and the spokesmen of both countries mean this when they use the word in reference to political policies. But by this term the spokesman of one country may mean "important and necessary ideas," while the spokesman from the other may mean "false and misleading ideas." For this reason, recognizing uses of this crucial term is essential to comprehending fully the statements made by spokesmen from competing nations.

Good readers spot a crucial term when they read at any speed, and if necessary they pause to consider the term, to locate its definition in the work, or to check its accepted definition in a dictionary. A crucial term can be located by its frequent recurrence in a work. The appearance of a crucial term may be signaled to the reader through the use of italics or the use of the word in chapter titles or subheadings. Any book on American history, for example, can be expected to use the word "Reconstruction" to refer to the post-Civil War era. Good readers recognize this as a crucial term that the author must define. Having met it for the first time in a chapter title or important topic sentence to a paragraph, they then look for the definition the author will attach to it—what years are included in "Reconstruction" and what gives the era its significance. This may take a moment, but the pause helps both comprehension and speed because the term can be read confidently and quickly when met again.

Transition words and phrases are another class of important words that indicate key ideas. Transition words and phrases indicate directions and relationships. We are all familiar with the basics of this concept. We all know that the word "and" signals a second action, idea, or fact similar in kind to a first one: "Ulysses S. Grant was a Civil War general and a United States President." We know that the word "but" signals a second action or idea different from a first one: "Ulysses S. Grant was an effective Civil War general but an ineffective United States President." We also know that the word "then" signals a sequence of ideas or actions: "Ulysses S. Grant was a Civil War general and then a United States President." We all know these word indicators of direction, but good readers use this knowledge to their advantage as they read for speed. Good readers look for transition words and phrases that show relationships of ideas.

The transition words and phrases you can look for in your reading all fall into three groups. Some, such as "and," signal similarity. Others, such as "but," signal difference. The last group, such as "then," signals sequence. The table of transition terms shown here provides further examples of the words and phrases that fall into each of these three groups. By looking for

Transition words and phrases

Good readers identify relationships between ideas by spotting transition words and phrases. Pivotal terms, such as those listed here, indicate similarity, difference, or sequence. Paying attention to them helps comprehension at any reading speed.

Similarity	Difference	Sequence
and	but	then
as well as	although	first, second
also	however	earlier
furthermore	nevertheless	later
likewise	despite	before similarly	yet	after
in addition	on the other hand	last another	on the contrary	finally moreover	instead	as a result
so	though	next transition terms, you can more easily and completely comprehend the relationships between key ideas in your reading.

Marking books. By consciously searching for crucial terms and for transition words or phrases, good readers keep themselves alert and so improve both their speed and comprehension. Another habit they use to make reading an active, conscious process is annotating, or marking, their books. Obviously, you cannot mark up a book that does not belong to you, whether it comes from a library or from a friend. Nor will you want to bother with careful annotations on easy material intended to be read at your rapid speed. But for all difficult material that is read at your study speed, and some average material that is read at your normal speed, you will find your comprehension improved if you pause to mark the key ideas in the book. Some people are reluctant to mark up a book because they mistakenly believe that this destroys it. But most books, usually relatively inexpensive, easily replaceable, and salable after use even if marked, are not often heirloom possessions to be preserved in mint condition. Rather, they are objects to be used to acquire knowledge, and good use implies some wear and tear. By marking a book, you make it your own.

Marking books is a good reading habit because it increases concentration and alertness. It also improves your reading ability by reminding you that you are searching for the key ideas that deserve annotation. Marking books also improves your ability to retain what you have read because the physical act of underlining or circling words or phrases on a page impresses them on your memory. Finally, having the marks on the page makes it easier to review books later on for study purposes or for personal interest.

Many adults still own books they marked up in school. A quick examination of one of them will prove how useful annotations are when studying or reviewing reading material. Many people who mark up their books limit themselves to underlining or coloring over lines of text with a soft-tipped marker. Because good reading distinguishes between ideas, and because you are free to mark books in any way you wish, do not limit yourself to a single kind of marking. Good readers develop a variety of markings to use for different purposes when studying difficult material. While working to improve your reading, develop your own markings, remembering that it is essential to have various marks for a variety of purposes. A typical system might mix circles for crucial terms with underlining for their definitions. It could also use marginal numbers for ideas in a sequence, and stars for important facts.

Using reference books. Good readers often are ambitious. They read for pleasure and relaxation, but they also read to broaden their understanding of various fields of knowledge. In books they discover new interests, and they pursue these new interests in other books. Like any rewarding enterprise, this sort of ambitious reading is a challenge. In pursuing interests through books, you will inevitably encounter works that present challenges in ideas and vocabulary.

No one should make reading an unpleasant chore. If

How to mark a book

Marking your books can help you to understand and review what you are reading. It is helpful, therefore, to develop a system of marking you find useful. The passage below shows how one reader marked it, using circles for crucial terms, underlining for definitions, using numbers for ideas in a sequence and stars for important facts.

Historians undertake to arrange sequences—called stories, or histories—assuming in silence a relation of cause and effect. These assumptions, hidden in the depths of dusty libraries, have been astounding, but commonly unconscious and childlike; so much so, that if any captious critic were to drag them to light, historians would probably reply, with one voice, that they had never supposed themselves required to know what they were talking about. Adams, for one, had toiled in vain to find out what he meant. He had even published a dozen volumes of American history for no other purpose than to satisfy himself whether, by the severest process of stating, with the least possible comment, such facts as seemed sure, in such order as seemed rigorously consequent, he could fix for a familiar moment a necessary sequence of human movement. The result had satisfied him as little as at Harvard College. Where he saw sequence, other men saw something quite different, and no one saw the same unit of measure. He cared little about his experiments and less about his statesmen, who seemed to him quite as ignorant as himself and, as a rule, no more honest; but he insisted on a relation of sequence, and if he could not reach it by one method, he would try as many methods as science knew. Satisfied that the sequence of men led to nothing and that the sequence of their society could lead no further, while the mere sequence of time was artificial, and the sequence of thought was chaos, he turned at last to the sequence of force; and thus it happened that, after ten years' pursuit, he found himself lying in the Gallery of Machines at the Great Exposition of 1900, with his historical neck broken by the sudden eruption of forces totally new.

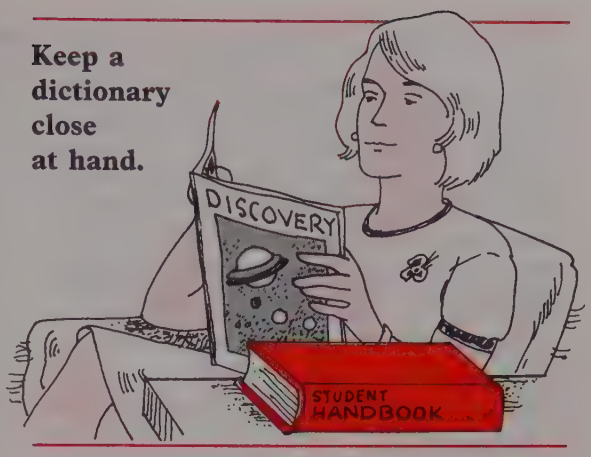
a book seems impenetrable, feel free to abandon it. Choose another on the same subject, or switch to another of your interests. However, many good readers get special satisfaction from mastering difficult works. This is because they have the good reading habit of using reference books, most often dictionaries and encyclopedias. Many of the advertised methods to quadruple your reading speed overnight actually advise against using reference books. They do this because they are interested only in how fast something is read, not in how well it is read. Speed is part of good reading, as this section on efficient reading has stressed, but to read something well at any speed, to gain the satisfaction of mastering demanding works, you will surely have to pause occasionally to consult dictionaries and encyclopedias.

Reference works are used because different authors envision different audiences for their books. For example, authors of high-school textbooks on economics write for an audience that is different from that intended by authors of advanced books on United States economy. The difference is that authors of the advanced books assume that the reader will be familiar with certain words and concepts, so there are fewer explanations in advanced books than in textbooks. The authors of textbooks will, for example, provide a complete definition of "capitalism," while authors of advanced works will assume that their readers already understand the definition.

The meanings of words are the domain of the dictionary. Many people mistakenly think that using a dictionary is childish. In fact, most scholars work with a dictionary close at hand. They do this because the dictionary provides precise definitions of its terms. In addition, dictionaries provide information on the pronunciation, derivation, and multiple meanings of a word. With this knowledge, the precise meaning of a word as it is used in context becomes clear.

Facts and ideas are the domain of the encyclopedia. Most encyclopedia entries open with a brief, precise identification of a person, place, or idea, and then move into more detailed explanation. Thus, a quick look at the opening of an encyclopedia entry may be all you need to return to your book confident that you understand a general concept. Also, many encyclopedia entries are pleasurable and informative reading. If you understand a concept mentioned in your reading but want to go deeper into it, you might make a note to consult an encyclopedia when you have finished reading or before you resume again. A final great advantage of consulting an encyclopedia is that it can lead you to other books of interest on the same subject. Many attach bibliographies to their substantial entries.

There are two sorts of reference works. The most common are general encyclopedias and dictionaries.



These are all-purpose reference works that cover all fields of knowledge. Southwestern's Volume Library and the dictionaries in its Student Handbooks are general reference works. The second type of reference works comprises specialized dictionaries and encyclopedias. These cover single fields of knowledge, such as medicine, art, literature, or history. All homes should have general reference works available for use by readers of all ages. Specialized reference works, which are consulted less often, can be used in any local library.

Reviewing what you read. A final consideration in reading for comprehension is the ability to retain information obtained from books. Reading and understanding are not the same thing as memorization. No one is expected to retain everything read in a book. In fact, because reading is a process of understanding and assimilating information, no one should even desire complete recall. Good readers concentrate on ideas, intending to retain the main concepts and facts from whatever they are reading. They help themselves retain this information by developing the habit of reviewing what they have read before going on to another activity. In reviewing material that is difficult, average, or easy, repeat the key ideas to yourself and create a double impression of them in your memory, once in reading and once in reviewing. You should be able to review mentally all reading you do, even leisure reading of easy material. However, reviewing is most important for material that is complex enough to require your normal or study speeds. Reviewing is an important part of any overall program to improve your reading speed and comprehension. If your review suggests lack of comprehension, you will have to slow down and read more carefully.

Good readers review material immediately on finishing their reading. In this way they create that double impression on their memory before the information can slip away.

Questions and sample answers for reviewing what you read

Many readers have only a vague recollection of books they have read. Your comprehension and retention of books and articles can be improved by briefly reviewing what you read soon after finishing it. With a series of general questions, you can focus your reactions. This process will improve both your understanding of books and your ability to remember their content. These five general questions can be asked of any reading material:

The general questions for review can help you to form a memorable impression of the ideas in your reading. Here is the way a reader might answer those questions, mentally or on paper, for the reading about the Puritans given as a speed test on page 314.

1. What was the author's general point?	1. The author's general point was to make us interested in what we have to learn from the Puritans.
2. What individual ideas did the author use to support his point?	2. The individual idea used to suggest this was the way the Puritans made friends with the Indians.
3. What were the crucial terms discussed by the author?	3. The name "Puritan" reflects the fact that Puritans hoped to purify their church even more than the English Protestants had already done.
4. What important facts were cited by the author?	4. The Puritans came to America in 1620. They landed in Massachusetts even though they intended to go to New York.
5. What did you like or dislike in this work?	5. The Puritans may be more interesting than I had thought. I think I will read more about them.

The first step in reviewing is to ask yourself fundamental questions about what you have read. What were the important ideas? What were the important facts? If you have concentrated on locating key ideas by spotting crucial terms and transitions, you should be able to remember these in their proper sequence. If you have taken the time to mark your book, you can use this brief review period to leaf back over the pages you have read, glancing at the key ideas identified by your markings.

The second step in the review process is to summarize the key ideas in your own words. For easy reading material, this can be done mentally. But for difficult material, especially if you have read for study purposes, take the time to summarize on paper what you have read. This can be done in the form of brief notes. You will find such notes handy for later reference.

Now begin to add this consideration to your reading diary. As described early in this chapter, the diary has space for these new notes on review. First, note whether you have summarized your reading in your mind or on paper. Summarizing readings is always a good habit, but you need not always do so, especially on days when you practice easy reading. Then honestly describe your own sense of your level of comprehension simply by describing your effort at summary as excellent, mediocre, or poor. As your reading diary grows, you will be able to correlate this information on comprehension against your entries on reading speed. Then you can determine whether you are achieving a balance between speed and comprehension; that is, whether you are progressing toward efficient reading.

Special types of reading

To become a proficient reader, you must learn to vary your reading speed to suit different sorts of reading material. But complete proficiency requires the additional skill of learning how to suit reading methods to reading purposes. If an adult seeking relaxation picks up a classic modern novel, for example, that reader has a reading purpose different from that of a college student reading the same novel for a course in literature.

You should formulate your purposes and expectations before beginning to read. The checklist on this page provides some key questions that can help you do so.

Reading for self-improvement.

Reading for self-improvement requires interest in accumulating general knowledge about a subject. Once you have begun to pursue this interest, your reading purpose should be to add to your fund of knowledge by testing the persuasiveness of different opinions on the subject. An interest in British history, for example, logically begins with some general surveys of events in that long history. But from that point on, you will encounter contradictory accounts and interpretations of the significant movements and periods in British history. Thus, in reading for self-improvement, you should eventually begin to read against your fund of background knowledge, to consider new ideas in the light of older ones.

Reading for this purpose requires regular contact with your chosen subject and careful reading at normal reading speed. Reading for self-improvement also demands the frequent consultation of reference works, which can be counted on to provide relatively objective overviews and impartial summaries of long-standing disputes and differences of opinion. Because this sort of reading constitutes an informal course of study, you probably will not feel it necessary to keep notes on what you read. Another aid to interest and understanding in reading for self-improvement comes from sharing and debating books. That can be done in a reading discussion group, described in the "Continuing to improve" part of this chapter.

Reading for advancement.

No kind of reading provokes a clearer sense of interest and purpose than reading that is intended to develop occupational skills needed for career promotion or change. Here you have a personal interest more intensely felt than that generally found in purely intellectual or leisure pursuits.

Your interest in reading for professional advancement is especially well focused—you want to know what special skill any book or article can teach you. Your purpose in reading is twofold: to determine the relevance of the advice to your position and to master it completely for application to your job or career plans. These two purposes imply two reading strategies. The first demands especially careful prereading so you do not waste your time with irrelevant advice. Most occupational guides are designed to facilitate prereading. Pay close attention to the chapter titles, subtitles, summaries, and questions for review (these are standard features of this sort of reading material). Your second purpose demands that you closely read material of proven relevance at your study speed.

Occupational guides attach special importance to a vocabulary of crucial terms, and mastery of these terms is important in achieving a better job. For that reason, careful note-taking is essential to reading for professional advancement. Be sure to mark your books for later review, and be sure to keep written summaries of especially valuable information. For any occupation, there are likely to be a number of useful guides to advancement. Note-taking can be especially helpful because it makes it possible for you to gather notes on practical advice from many sources.

Reading for pleasure.

Reading for pleasure is the least formal sort of reading endeavor. Your interest in the material might derive from any of the full range of literary pleasures: enjoyment of stories, identification with dynamic characters, or delight in a particular narrative style. Your purpose in reading is a desire for the stimulating and unpredictable entertainment that only books can offer.

But even in reading for pleasure, your repertoire of reading skills is essential for preserving and continually satisfying your desire to read. Reading for enjoyment is best pursued with attention to consciously formulating your interest in the material. Your interest may stem from a particular author's style, the presence of the same interesting character in several novels, or the suspense of a particular kind of plot. Whatever the reason for your interest, you will be led logically to other, similar works that can provide the same enjoyment.

The method of reading for pleasure is as unstructured as the purpose. You should feel free to shift from normal to rapid reading speeds and back again as your interest dictates. Slowing down unnecessarily, however, invites the risk of flagging interest. Brisk reading of works chosen for no interest other than enjoyment can, in fact, intensify delight in them by more quickly and more frequently bringing to the reader the individual features cherished most. No note-taking should intrude on pleasure reading, but you will find it useful to keep some sort of record of your favorite works, either on a shelf that holds your personal library or in a diary of authors and titles.

Study or pleasure? Tailor your approach to your purpose.

Special kinds of reading. Different purposes can change your reading strategy, but differences in reading materials may require special strategies. Technical journals, for example, may rely on complicated charts, graphs, and diagrams to explain ideas discussed in the text or to introduce supplementary ideas. Literary magazines, on the other hand, are rarely broken by any such illustrative material. In the first case, your beginning strategy should be to master the charts, graphs, and diagrams. In the second case, you might begin by prereading titles, subtitles, and topic sentences.

Visual contrasts among kinds of reading materials represent differences of format, both in page arrangements and layouts. But format is indicative of fundamental differences in organization as well. Because a technical journal uses charts, graphs, and diagrams, it may adopt a particular kind of organization.

Kinds of reading

Newspapers. It has been said that no one reads newspapers, people just peruse them. There is some truth to this exaggeration. The sheer bulk of your daily newspaper may prohibit careful reading.

Most people read newspapers for quick information on recent events. Newspaper editors know this, and so their news stories feature essential information in the opening paragraphs. There is a journalism school maxim for how to open a news story: Who? What? Where? When? Why? and How? You can see how these important facts find their way into the opening of the sample newspaper story shown on this page. By concentrating only on the opening paragraphs of the news story, you can easily and quickly determine if your are interested enough to read further.

This is true only of news stories. Other parts of the newspaper, such as features and editorials, are organized more along the lines of a magazine article.

Where?
When?
Who?
What?
Why?
How?

MORRISON ELECTION VICTOR

New York City, March 18—Jennifer Morrison was elected president of the new American Federation of Teachers today in a stunning upset over the incumbent, Michael A. Conroy. The vote ended the union's national congress at the convention center here and convincingly demonstrated Ms. Morrison's ability to control the votes of union members disenchanted with the union's pension policies.

The new president made her acceptance speech after midnight from a dais strewn with confetti and streamers. Mr. Conroy, despite losing by a clear margin of 2 to 1, had issued no concession speech.

Magazines. Magazine articles, newspaper editorials, and newspaper features may differ from news stories in at least one important respect: they may be based on opinion rather than fact. For this reason, they are always signed by authors, or, in the case of editorials, they appear on the newspaper's editorial page. Because such articles are not primarily concerned with facts, they open with no recitation of who, what, where, when, why, and how.

Magazines, in particular, tend to pile up as they arrive in the mail. To keep abreast of your magazine reading, you can take advantage of this knowledge of their organization. Preread the table of contents to get an overview of the magazine's contents. Check the full titles and subheadings of individual articles for indications of their special focus. Then go through the opening paragraphs to reach the announcement of the article's purpose and content. If you are interested enough to want to read the entire article, go on. Few good readers ever bother to read all of a magazine.

Mid-Life Career Change: One Man's Story

by Robert Miller

His job had been "obsoleted," as the supervisor said, by new automation that churned out the product faster, better, and cheaper. His daughters, already enrolled in college by then, had been forced to withdraw in mid-semester. His home, carefully reworked for his family's needs over twenty years of amateur handyman projects, had been repossessed by the bank and shown to strangers. Then, hitting rock bottom, William Jameson found himself on an endless line in an overcrowded office filing for welfare benefits.

Last week Congress opened debate on the nation's chronic unemployment problem. The discussion in Washington has to do with hundreds of thousands of workers, but unemployment is also a personal catastrophe. . . .

Recognizing a format and understanding the organization it implies is a matter of knowing facts about the organization of different sorts of publications and of practicing the reading strategy best suited to each. The following pages give you practical facts about several kinds of reading material.

The reading diary you prepared included a final notation for "special difficulties." At this point in your program for reading improvement, you are ready to begin using that notation. Keep track of the single kinds of written material that seem most confusing. Because you are also already varying daily the difficulty of your reading, you should begin to see a pattern emerging. You will be able to recognize potential stumbling blocks in news articles, magazine stories, reference book entries, or visual aids. Then you can consult or review the relevant information given on these pages.

Reference books. Reference books are concise compilations of essential knowledge on a wide variety of subjects. They make this knowledge available in individual entries, organized topically or alphabetically. Each entry begins with a broad statement of the subject's significance. Only then does it proceed to a discussion of individual aspects of the subject.

In the sample biographical entry shown, you can see how a reference book gives easy access to essential information, such as dates and nationality.

In reference books you will also find keys to related articles, such as the cross-reference here to a separate entry on "stream of consciousness." If you were only interested in finding out who James Joyce was, you could have stopped reading this entry after the second paragraph. But if your interest went further, you would have continued to the end, where you would likely have found a bibliography.

JOYCE, JAMES A. (1882–1941). Irish novelist. Although he wrote some poetry (Chamber Music, 1907) and one play (Exiles, 1918), James Joyce's most important contributions to modern literature were the stories collected in Dubliners (1907) and the novels Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man (1916), Ulysses (1922), and Finnegans Wake (1939).

By almost any evaluation, James Joyce ranks as one of the most difficult and most important novelists of the twentieth century. His works have had enormous influence on all subsequent writers because they developed a technique of STREAM OF CONSCIOUSNESS for presentation of the disorganized flow of frequently commonplace thoughts through the minds of their characters.

James Joyce was born in Dublin on. . . .

Tables and graphs. Tables require close study. You should first note the title and the column and row identifications. In this table, for example, it is important to note that the figures are for five-year periods. Notes and explanations attached to tables are crucial. (Here the notes tell you that all figures except the first row are in billions of dollars; they also tell that the statistics have been obtained from the federal government). After acquainting yourself with a table, analyze the figures for trends.

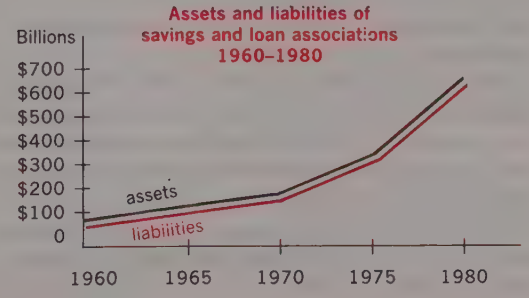
Balance sheet of savings and loan associations 1960–1980

All figures in billions of dollars except number of associations

	1960	1965	1970	1975	1980
Number of associations	6,320	6,185	5,669	4,931	4,613
Total assets	$ 71.5	$129.6	$176.2	$338.2	$630.0
Cash	7.9	12.1	16.5	30.9	57.6
Mortgages	60.1	110.3	150.3	278.6	502.8
Other	3.5	7.2	9.3	28.7	69.4
Liabilities	66.5	120.9	163.8	318.5	596.5
Net worth	$ 5.0	$ 8.7	$ 12.4	$ 19.7	$ 33.5

Source: U.S. Federal Home Loan Bank Board

A line graph like the one shown here is read like a grid. To interpret any point on the lines you must move from it to the vertical or horizontal reference points that explain its value. This graph clearly indicates the overall trend of increase in both liabilities and assets of savings and loan associations. It also shows how closely liabilities follow assets, a fact not as obvious in the table on the same subject. Graphs are limited, however, because they can provide only approximate values.



Continuing to improve

At the end of eight weeks of daily practice of the principles of good reading, as described in this chapter, you will see a marked improvement in your reading speed and comprehension. Even more important, you will have acquired a new set of reading habits that will make you a better reader and make your reading more enjoyable. You can verify your improvements in speed and comprehension over the eight weeks by comparing the first and the last entries in your reading diary. You can also verify your improvements in reading habits over the same period by answering once again the questions on the "Checklist of reading habits" on page 304.

These improvements will have made you a competent, efficient, and proficient reader by giving you a mastery of important particular skills. But once acquired, the skills must be maintained. People improve their golf or swimming abilities, for example, through a series of lessons. When the lessons are complete, they must practice continually to protect their new abilities at these sports. In the same way, you must practice to protect your new reading skills. This is easier and more enjoyable than learning new habits, because your improved ability will make the practice itself more satisfying and pleasurable.

The checklist for continued improvement shown on this page itemizes the key considerations for maintaining an ongoing reading program of your own. You should periodically review the entire list to protect your new reading skills.

Practice reading. Daily practice is essential for preserving reading speed and comprehension. You can help yourself with short readings for speed during work breaks. You can mentally summarize your recent reading at virtually any time. Ideally, though, you will continue to set aside a regular reading time each day. Most people find that in addition to keeping their reading skills sharp, regular reading periods become a positive influence on their daily lives, particularly when they choose books of inspirational value or intellectual interest.

Your interest in daily reading can be maintained by varying what you read. There is no need to alternate easy, average, and difficult reading material as rigorously as you did over the eight-week program, but switching from novels to occupational journals or from history books to popular magazines introduces a pleasant variety into your reading and also helps reinforce your repertoire of speeds and your comprehension skills. Even though you may stop thinking about study, normal, and rapid reading speeds, you will find yourself shifting automatically into these speeds if you vary the kinds of things you read.

As a final check on maintaining your new reading speeds and strategies, test yourself periodically. A quick calculation of your reading speed on different sorts of materials every few weeks will remind you of the need to continue to work on your new speeds. Periodic tests will also indicate particular aspects of your reading ability that may still require special attention, such as your high speed reading. A brief review of the advice in this chapter, on any aspect of your reading, along with a few refresher practice sessions, will ensure that you preserve your complete repertoire of reading skills.

Group reading. One of the best ways to continue your reading improvement is to read as a social activity. Sharing reading with friends has two good effects. It increases your interest in reading, because comments from others force you to think about what you have read and give you ideas for what you might read in the future. Sharing reading with others also helps keep you on a continuing program for improvement by encouraging you to finish books so that you can discuss them intelligently with others.

Reading as a family activity. Many people have fond memories of being read to in their childhood. But family reading is not just a memory from the past. Many families continue to read aloud regularly, and reading is often their only group recreational activity. Reading aloud to others is not just for parents with young children. Sharing readings with one's entire family is a gratifying experience; once introduced, such reading quickly proves its value. Family reading offers a refreshing alternative to television, so anyone seri-

My checklist for continuing to improve

1. I read daily.
2. I vary the kinds of things I read.
3. I vary my reading speeds.
4. I test my speed and comprehension regularly.
5. I follow the principles of good reading.
6. I am always conscious of my purpose in reading.
7. I keep interesting things to read at home.
8. I pursue my reading interests.
9. I visit bookstores and libraries.
10. I share my reading with friends and family.

The Oxford Illustrated Literary Guide to the United States by Eugene Ehrlich and Gorton Carruth (Oxford, 464 pages; $29.95). Hawaii? Rupert Brooke went to Oahu in 1913 and wrote the sonnet "Waikiki," which is reprinted in the guide. Whittier, Calif.? Maxwell Anderson became head of the Whittier College English department in 1917. And Samuel Clemens was everywhere. Richly illustrated with photographs and carefully organized by regions, this guide reveals, among other curiosities, the peculiar restlessness of American writers.

Reading is a family activity with lifelong benefits for all members, from the youngest to the most senior. Ideas for books on a wide variety of subjects can often be obtained from book reviews that appear in your local newspaper and in magazines you read.

ously interested in reading should begin to share this activity with the family.

Reading as a social activity. Reading discussion groups are a contagious kind of social activity that can become a regular part of one's life. These discussion groups offer an alternative means of getting together with friends for an evening. Many reading groups thrive for years. Often there is a revolving membership of people of many backgrounds who find that they have much to offer as well as much to learn.

To start a reading group, all you need are a few friends interested in reading the same book. Arrange a time to meet together after everyone has had a chance to finish the book. Most discussions of the book will begin by chatting casually about what the book says and what members of the group have found good or bad about it. Reactions will differ, of course, but different opinions of a book, an author, or a character's worth will enhance the discussion. There is no need to focus on purely intellectual problems, although these may finally become the focus of the discussion.

Reading groups generally vote on the next book to be read. They may also invite additional friends to join the next discussion. Whether the meetings are weekly or monthly, a large membership is useful because it ensures stimulating discussion despite the occasional absence of some regular members.

Keeping in touch with books.

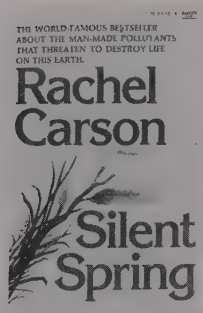
Your reading will be helped by making certain you have an ample supply of books you want to read. More than 40,000 new titles are published in the United States every year. Despite this abundance, many people do not value books highly. While the skill of reading can be acquired through conscious effort, the love of books develops through contact with them.

Bookstores stimulate reading through attractive displays of current books and standard titles that continue to attract readers. Bookstore managers know the books people enjoy reading at any time as well as other works that might match your current reading interests. In comparison with other ages, books in our time are relatively inexpensive. New, hardbound best-sellers may seem difficult to afford, but their worth should be considered in terms of the hours of pleasure or the practical benefits they offer. Almost any reading interest can also be served well by reliance on paperbacks.

Booksellers—often students working their way through college—who come to your door may also offer books of lasting value. Many families fill their bookshelves in this way, establishing reading resources that serve more than a single generation.

Local libraries acquire books they think may be of interest to the taxpayers who support them. A single visit to a library can produce a reading list that will serve for months, and the books may be borrowed at no cost. Libraries, even more than bookstores, keep on hand a variety of books for readers of all ages. Often their books are shelved by age group, so the reading interests of children, young adults, or adults can be fueled simply by browsing along the shelves. All libraries also stock extensive collections of books printed in oversized, especially legible typefaces. These are intended for readers who suffer from poor eyesight. In this way, books become accessible to those who might otherwise be denied.

With bookstores, booksellers, and libraries, you can always keep your home well stocked with books enjoyable to you and all members of your family. Well chosen books, plus attention to the principles of reading discussed in this chapter, can help anyone become and remain a better reader.

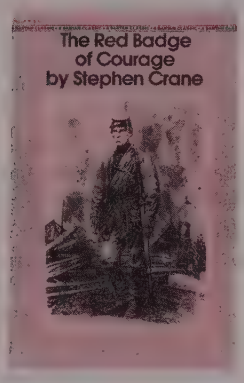


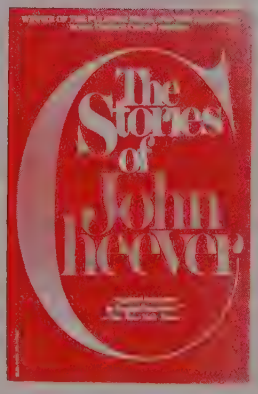
Making reading a lifelong activity. Books lead to books. This means that one book is likely to lead you to another on the same subject or by the same author. The connections are made in the books themselves, in the topical groupings of library shelves, or in shared displays in bookstores.

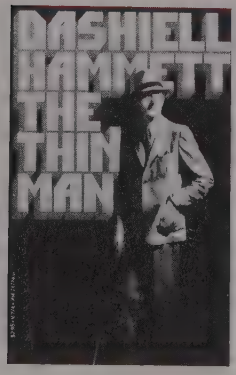
What follows is a list of worthwhile books in general fields of interest. Any one of these books can serve as the beginning point in a reading hobby that may travel far from these selections or subject areas, but part of the charm of regular reading is that it takes off in unpredictable directions.

Take full advantage of all available sources of interesting titles: friends who read, your local library, bookstores and booksellers, and the book review columns of magazines and newspapers.

Reading lists







Science and nature

Attenborough, David. Life on Earth (1981). Attractively illustrated introduction to natural history.

Bell, Eric. The Magic of Numbers (1946). Fascinating demonstrations of the power and allure of mathematics.

Bronowski, Jacob. The Ascent of Man (1974). The history of scientific advancement since primitive times.

Carson, Rachel. Silent Spring (1962). A classic and harrowing account of the dangers of pollution.

Commoner, Barry. Science and Survival (1966). The mixed virtues of science, plainly stated.

Crick, Francis. Of Molecules and Men (1966). Narrative account of the Nobelist's achievements in biology.

Eisley, Loren. The Immense Journey (1957). Philosophical thoughts on the history of human development.

Freud, Sigmund. General Introduction to Psychoanalysis (1920). A general overview of the subject.

Geertz, Clifford. The Interpretation of Cultures (1973). Academic introduction to social anthropology.

Jastrow, Robert. Red Giants and White Dwarfs (1979). A popular guide to new knowledge of astronomy.

Kidder, Tracy. The Soul of a New Machine (1981). Exciting story of the construction of a computer.

McPhee, John. Basin and Range (1981). An account of learning geology in the field.

Milgram, Stanley. Obedience to Authority (1974). Controversial experiment on our will to obey overwhelming our moral precepts.

Sagan, Carl. Broca's Brain (1979). A patient and persuasive refutation of pseudoscientific superstitions.

Sears, Paul B. The Living Landscape (1967). Elegantly written summation of ecological issues.

Thomas, Lewis. Lives of a Cell (1974). Enjoyable essays on the lessons drawn from biology.

Turnbull, Colin. The Mountain People (1972). A description of a field anthropologist's work.

Ulam, Stanislaw. Adventures of a Mathematician (1976). A scientist's story of his work on the atom bomb.

Watson, James D. The Double Helix (1967). Exciting narrative of the discovery of DNA.

Wiener, Norbert. Cybernetics (1961). A demanding, groundbreaking discussion of the computer age.

Wilson, Edmund O. Sociobiology (1975). Challenging behavioral theory of the dominance of genes over will.

History

Allen, Frederick L. Only Yesterday (1931). Engaging, novelistic portrait of the years after World War I.

Boorstin, Daniel. The Americans (1958–73). Three-volume popular epic by the librarian of Congress.

Braudel, Fernand. The Mediterranean (1972). One of the great modern social histories: life in the 16th century.

Carlyle, Thomas. The French Revolution (1832). Dramatic saga of heroes and villains of the uprising.

Catton, Bruce. The Centennial History of the Civil War (1961–63). Three eminently readable volumes.

Durant, Will and Ariel. The Story of Civilization (1935–75). Eleven volumes of enthusiastic history of ideas.

Fitzgerald, Frances. Fire on the Lake (1972). Early prize-winning account of the Vietnam War.

Fussell, Paul. The Great War and Modern Memory (1975). Literate and surprising discussion of the special significance of World War I.

Gibbon, Edward. The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire (1776–78). The work that created our image of Rome.

Halberstam, David. The Best and the Brightest (1972). How the Kennedy administration slipped toward war in Southeast Asia.

Hamilton, Edith. The Greek Way (1930). A persuasive and lucid paean to the merits of ancient Greece.

Hersey, John. Hiroshima (1946). The effects of the atomic bomb, focused on the stories of six survivors.

Morison, Samuel Eliot. The Great Explorers (1978). A sailor's history of early global navigation.

Plumb, J. H. The Italian Renaissance (1965). A beautifully written history of the great flowering.

Shirer, William. The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich (1960). A journalist's account of the Hitler years.

Stratton, Joanna L. Pioneer Women (1981). Edited diaries of frontier women on the American prairies.

Thomas, Hugh. A History of the World (1978). A contemporary overview for background.

Toynbee, Arnold. A Study of History (1934–61). A twelve-volume analysis for knowledgeable readers.

Trevor-Roper, H. R. The Rise of Christian Europe (1965). A masterly and witty survey for general readers.

Tuchman, Barbara. A Distant Mirror (1978). The story of the Middle Ages told through the life of one man.

Wills, Garry. Inventing America (1978). A journalist's investigation of the Declaration of Independence.

Wood, Gordon S. The Creation of the American Republic (1965). A sophisticated political analysis.

Woodham-Smith, Cecil. The Great Hunger (1962). Graphic description of the Irish potato famine in 1848.

Young, George W. Victorian England (1964). An academic survey of the pivotal 19th century in Britain.

Places

Abbey, Edward. Cactus County (1973). A naturalist's appreciation of the Sonora Desert, with photographs.

Barzini, Luigi. The Italians (1964). Native's discursive reflections on the distinctive features of his culture.

Belloc, Hillaire. The Path to Rome (1902). A literary critic travels on foot to the Italian capital.

Bellow, Saul. To Jerusalem and Back (1976). An American novelist's portrait of Israel.

Benedict, Ruth. The Chrysanthemum and the Sword (1946). Noted anthropologist's visit to Japan.

Dos Passos, John. Brazil on the Move (1963). Novelist's journalistic account of the South American nation.

Douglas, William O. My Wilderness (1960). A distinguished jurist's salute to the Pacific Northwest.

Fisher, M. F. K. Map of Another Town (1964). A noted writer on food describes southern France.

Frady, Marshall. Southerners (1980). Magazine writer's irreverent look at his native region.

Gornick, Vivian. In Search of Ali Mahmoud (1973). Jewish-American feminist meets modern Egypt.

Hoagland, Edward. Notes of a Century Before (1969). Compelling journal of frontier British Columbia.

Krutch, Joseph Wood. The Forgotten Peninsula (1961). A scholar and naturalist on the Mexican Baja.

Lavender, David. The Rocky Mountains (1980). History and lore tied to the modern state of the region.

McGinniss, Joe. Going to Extremes (1980). Desperate lives in the magnificent environment of Alaska.

Mehta, Ved. Portrait of India (1970). By an Indian blind since childhood.

Naipaul, V. S. Among the Believers (1981). Prominent novelist's exploration of Islamic nations.

Orwell, George. Burmese Days (1934). Author recalls his youth in what was a British colony.

Pritchett, V. S. The Spanish Temper (1955). An affectionate analysis by a noted English writer and critic.

Smith, Hedrick. The Russians (1976). A New York Times reporter reflects on his years in Moscow.

Snow, Edgar. Red Star over China (1968). One of the first American accounts of life in Communist China.

Steinbeck, John. Travels with Charley (1962). The novelist's celebrated cross-country drive, with dog.

Thoreau, Henry David. The Maine Woods (1865). Early explorations by the author of Walden Pond.

Warner, William W. Beautiful Swimmers (1976). Natural history of the Chesapeake.

West, Rebecca. Black Lamb and Grey Falcon (1941). A tour of the Balkans in the company of H. G. Wells.

People

Adams, Henry. The Education of Henry Adams (1906). Autobiography of a troubled member of a famous family.

Boswell, James. The Life of Samuel Johnson (1791). One of the first and finest detailed records of a life.

Coe, Urling C. Frontier Doctor (1939). A popular self-portrait of a general practitioner.

Curie, Eve. Madame Curie (1937). The life of the famous scientist, as told by her daughter.

Ellmann, Richard. James Joyce (1982). Revised edition of a great modern biography.

Erikson, Erik H. Gandhi's Truth (1969). Theory of identity crisis; portrait of a remarkable man.

Flexner, James Thomas. Washington: The Indispensable Man (1979). The author's own condensation of a longer work.

Franklin, Benjamin. The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin (1791). Common-sense and humor, for his son.

Fraser, Antonia. Cromwell: The Lord Protector (1973). Best of the author's works on British leaders.

Jones, Ernest. The Life and Work of Sigmund Freud (1961). Abridgment of a remarkable life, told by a disciple.

Josephson, Matthew. Edison (1963). The inventor's deeds made all the more fascinating by demystification.

Kaplan, Justin. Walt Whitman: A Life (1980). The poet in the context of 19th-century American society.

Mabee, Carlton T. The American Leonardo (1943). The life of Samuel Morse, painter and inventor.

Malcolm X. The Autobiography of Malcolm X (1964). Searing story of ghetto and political life.

Manchester, William. American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur (1978). Sumptuous life of the general.

Mizener, Arthur. The Far Side of Paradise (1951). The tragic career of F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Muir, John. Story of My Boyhood (1913). The naturalist's youth in Scotland and in America.

Murray, K. M. Elizabeth. Caught in the Web of Words (1977). Life of the editor of the Oxford English Dictionary.

Pais, Abraham. Subtle Is the Lord (1982). Portrait of Albert Einstein, physicist and humanist.

Royko, Mike. Boss: Richard J. Daley of Chicago (1971). The life of the mayor and his political machine.

Sandburg, Carl. Abraham Lincoln (1926). A stately study of the man and President.

Schoenbaum, Samuel. Shakespeare's Lives (1970). The facts and the fiction about the life of the bard.

Strachey, Lytton. Queen Victoria (1921). Portrait of the matriarch, by a noted biographer.

Sullivan, J. W. N. Beethoven (1927). Convincing links between the man's emotions and the composer's music.

Thurber, James. The Years with Ross (1959). Endearing, hilarious life of the first editor of The New Yorker.

Literature

Amis, Kingsley. Lucky Jim (1954). The most famous of comic novels about professors.

Anderson, Sherwood. Winesburg, Ohio (1919). Famous stories of small-town life in the Midwest.

Auchincloss, Louis. The Rector of Justin (1964). Mixed devotion and hatred of prep school headmaster.

Austen, Jane. Pride and Prejudice (1813). Among the wittiest of novels about marriageable ladies.

Baldwin, James. Go Tell It on the Mountain (1953). Tense story of black adolescent.

Bronte, Emily. Wuthering Heights (1847). The tempestuous romance of Cathy and Heathcliff.

Burgess, Anthony. A Clockwork Orange (1962). Horrific vision of violence in the future.

Caldwell, Erskine. God's Little Acre (1933). Folksy story of Georgia mountain families.

Camus, Albert. The Stranger (1946). Plainly written novel of modern man's disorientation and loss of self.

Chandler, Raymond. The Big Sleep (1939). Philip Marlowe, the archetype of hardboiled detectives.

Cheever, John. The Stories of John Cheever (1979). Suburban settings, unpredictable doings, comic tone.

Conrad, Joseph. Heart of Darkness (1902). Intricate, enigmatic tale of horrors of African colonization.

Crane, Stephen. The Red Badge of Courage (1895). The first, perhaps the best novel of inglorious war.

Dickens, Charles. David Copperfield (1850). Poverty and the journey to adulthood in Victorian England.

Donleavy, J. P. The Ginger Man (1955). Scandalous novel of literary bohemians in Dublin.

Dostoevski, Feodor. The Brothers Karamazov (1880). Murder, false accusations, moral implications.

Elkin, Stanley. The Dick Gibson Show (1971). Almost surreal tale of late-night radio host.

Ellison, Ralph. Invisible Man (1952). To many, the best novel ever of black American experience.

Farrell, James T. Studs Lonigan (1935). Best of a trilogy of novels about the Irish in Chicago.

Fitzgerald, F. Scott. The Great Gatsby (1925). Tragic undoing of a gloriously romantic hero.

Flaubert, Gustave. Madame Bovary (1857). Important modern novel of restless wife's petty ambitions.

Greene, Graham. Brighton Rock (1938). Suspenseful story of gang wars at a British resort.

Hammett, Dashiell. The Thin Man (1934). Classic American detective fiction.

Hardy, Thomas. The Mayor of Casterbridge (1886). A modern man doomed by fate and accident.

Heller, Joseph. Catch-22 (1961). Bleakly humorous novel of combat and red tape in World War II.

Hemingway, Ernest. A Farewell to Arms (1929). Terse, understated story of World War I desertion.

Huxley, Aldous. Brave New World (1932). Science fiction vision of an impersonal future.

James, Henry. The Ambassadors (1902). Complexly told story of American experience in Europe.

Jones, James. From Here to Eternity (1951). Military life in Hawaii at the time of Pearl Harbor.

Joyce, James. Dubliners (1914). Subtle, deceptive short stories, useful as introduction to his novels.

Kafka, Franz. The Castle (1926). Nightmarish vision of personal alienation and social bureaucracy.

Kennedy, William. Billy Phelan's Greatest Game (1978). Powerful tale of gambling in the 1930's.

Lawrence, D. H. Sons and Lovers (1913). Coming of age in the milieu of the English coal mines.

London, Jack. The Call of the Wild (1903). The classic animal story, good reading for all ages.

Melville, Herman. Moby Dick (1851). The epic sea story, with modernistic digressions on good and evil.

O'Connor, Flannery. A Good Man Is Hard to Find (1955). Short stories about the South.

O'Flaherty, Liam. The Informer (1926). Study of accidental betrayal during the Irish uprising.

Pasternak, Boris. Dr. Zhivago (1958). A man's struggle to preserve personal goals in the midst of the Russian revolution.

Percy, Walker. The Moviegoer (1961). Complicated story of film overwhelming reality in the South.

Poe, Edgar Allan. Tales of the Grotesque (1840). Unsurpassed stories of Gothic horrors.

Shelley, Mary. Frankenstein (1818). The original tale, more chilling than the movies or imitations.

Tolstoy, Leo. War and Peace (1866). Expansive panorama of Russian lives disrupted by Napoleonic invasions.

Twain, Mark. The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (1885). Social satire from a boy's perspective.

Updike, John. Rabbit Run (1960). Gritty view of small-town life in Pennsylvania.

Wolfe, Thomas. Look Homeward, Angel (1929). An American epic of families and coming of age.

Woolf, Virginia. To the Lighthouse (1927). Modern novel told in stream-of-consciousness technique.

For further reference

Adams, W. Royce
Increasing Reading Speed
Macmillan

Agardy, Franklin J.
How to Read Faster and Better
Simon & Schuster

Berger, Gilda
Learning Disabilities and Handicaps
Watts

Cohn, Marvin
Helping Your Teen-age Student: What Parents Can Do to Improve Reading and Study Skills Dutton & Co.

Ervin, Jane
Your Child Can Read and You Can Help
Doubleday

Lewis, Norman
How to Read Better and Faster
Harper & Row

Miller, William M.
Reading Faster and Understanding More Little, Brown

Osman, Betty B.
Learning Disabilities: A Family Affair
Random House

Taking Major Tests

- Improve your test taking 329
- How to take a test 330
- The GED 332
- The SAT 336
- The ACT 343
- The GRE 349

Nearly all people who want to advance their educations or careers must at some time take at least one of the major tests. These tests are designed to evaluate general knowledge, aptitude for college, or qualifications for graduate school. All of these tests are developed by nonprofit organizations, and their scores are generally accepted by employers and educators across the United States.

The achievement test called General Educational Development, or GED, is designed to assess whether a person knows as much as a typical high-school graduate. It is administered to people who dropped out of high school or who never entered high school. A passing grade on the GED is accepted by most employers and colleges as the equivalent of a high-school diploma.

Most colleges, however, want students who are better than the typical high-school graduate. They also want to be able to evaluate the best student in a poor high school against an ordinary student in a good high school. While the best students in poor high schools may be at least as good as ordinary students in good schools, they may actually be much better or much worse. By giving the same aptitude test to everyone who applies for admission, college administrators hope to obtain an objective evaluation. Of course, colleges do not rely on tests alone, but the scores provided by standardized tests may indicate whether a student with poor grades in school may have unrealized potential.

Colleges use one of two aptitude tests to acquire the information they need. (Some colleges will accept scores from either.) The test used most in the eastern United States is the Scholastic Aptitude Test, or SAT, prepared by the College Entrance Examination Board. The SAT is the grandfather of all the major aptitude tests and many tests have imitated it. Elsewhere in the United States, the American College Testing Program, or ACT, is used more than the SAT. It is important to remember, though, that around the country individual colleges have different requirements. The admissions offices of the colleges to which you are applying should be consulted as to whether you need to take an aptitude test and, if so, which test.

These tests are called aptitude tests because they are intended to measure ability, not knowledge. Some colleges also require achievement tests, which measure knowledge of specific subjects, such as French or calculus, rather than ability.

Just as college admissions offices want to have standards to judge applicants from different high schools, administrators of graduate schools want to have similar objective standards for college graduates. The Graduate Record Examination, or GRE, is designed to test the kinds of skills needed in graduate school. Not every graduate school requires the GRE, especially where there are programs that lead directly from a college into a specific course of graduate study. Nevertheless, the GRE is frequently required, and failure to pass it can keep a person out of a graduate program.

Improve your test-taking

Though everyone wants to do as well as possible on tests, some students know more than they are ever able to show because they are test-shy. These students often perform more poorly than students who know less than they do. Thus, good test-takers have an advantage over classmates who do not test well. For this reason, you should learn about various tests and try to become "test-wise," that is, comfortable when taking tests and capable of figuring out correct answers even when you do not have firm knowledge to guide you.

Most good test-takers follow a few simple rules that help them get better scores. Some of these rules apply to all tests. Others are specific for multiple-choice tests, or even more specific for a single test, such as the SAT. The first and most important rule, however, is that the better prepared you are, the easier you will find the test and the better your score will be.

Attitude. Perhaps the most important rule to help you improve your test-taking is to adopt the right attitude. You cannot do well on a test if your mind is blocked by worry. Remember, tests are designed to measure your mastery of a skill or your knowledge of a subject. They are not designed to embarrass you, fool you, or terrify you. In a sense, taking a test should be no harder for you than taking your temperature.

Forget about the students around you—what they do is of no concern. Forget about the teacher, about the plans you have for after the test, and about anything else that may be on your mind. Until the test is over, the only two things that matter are you and the test. With this single-minded attitude, you are ready to concentrate and do your very best. You may feel keyed up, like an athlete before a game. Being keyed up can make you more alert and ready, but you should not feel agitated or worried.

Preparation. Not less important than attitude is preparation for a test. There are two kinds of preparation for any test, whether it is an end-of-course achievement test or a general aptitude test. The first is study of the subject matter. Even in taking an aptitude test, knowing the subject matter will help you get a high score. If you do not know the subject matter, only your test-wiseness can help you.

Some students study hard but do not master the material. They may read a chapter over and over, desperately trying to memorize hundreds of facts, or they may run in circles, trying over and over again to master a new problem without first understanding it.

If the test is on subject matter from a book, try this approach. Instead of reading the material over and over, read it once. Then spend some time organizing it on paper. What are the major facts or themes of the material? What are the important names or dates or other facts—those necessary to understand the whole? Many of the names and dates may be less important—in fact, some of them can safely be forgotten.

If you are learning a skill, go back to an example, either in the book or in your notes, and follow it step by step, making sure that you see how the right answer was reached. Then take a new problem and follow exactly the same steps. If you still do not understand, ask for help from a classmate or teacher.

There are many aids available to you in preparing for these major tests. The sample items with explanations that are on pages 332–351 are a good place to begin. The box on page 330 lists some other options.

If you are having trouble, it is important that you begin preparing for the test early. Otherwise, there will not be time to ask for help. An early start is a good idea in any case, especially when learning the vocabulary of a foreign language or such basic facts as the multiplication table. The mind needs lots of time and much repetition to fix the information firmly. No amount of cramming on the night before the test is likely to make up for work not done ahead of time. Even if you do manage to remember part of the material for the test, you probably will forget it soon afterward; in that case, you will have to do extra studying for the next test.

Ten ways to improve your test scores

Though there are many kinds of tests, with some requiring different techniques from others, here are a few tips that apply to all major tests:

1. Take a course that will prepare you if you are unsure about your ability to deal with a test. Such courses are offered in most major cities. Some are available by mail or on computer programs. Such courses are particularly useful for achievement tests. Although some test-makers believe that such courses cannot improve aptitude test scores, other experts think these courses help. Books available in most bookstores contain more sample questions than those offered here. The testing organizations themselves publish free or inexpensive booklets that contain helpful information and sample questions.

2. Take at least one sample test. This book supplies a few sample questions, but you can obtain a complete sample test, often from your school library or local bookstore. Try to take the test in the same time limit set for the actual test. The experience should not only prepare you but relax you for the actual test. It also might show up weak areas that require more study.

3. Be prepared. Make sure you have whatever is required to take the test when you arrive at the testing place. Some tests require an admission ticket, personal identification (such as a driver's license or birth certificate), and Number 2 pencils. Be sure you know what is needed for your test so you do not forfeit your place.

4. Relax. More tests are fouled up because test-takers are too tense than because they are too calm. The time to stay up nights studying for a test is in the weeks preceding it, when you can use that excess energy for studying. You should be well-rested by the time the actual test starts. A good night's sleep is better than staying up late and cramming.

5. Take a moment to look through the whole test before you begin to answer any questions. Read the instructions or directions especially carefully. If you do not know exactly what is wanted, it is easy to make mistakes that reduce your score.

6. Try to estimate how much time you have for answering each question. Count quickly how many questions there are altogether, and estimate the time needed for each. If the test has several parts, jot down a rough timetable for handling each part.

7. Read each question carefully. If you misunderstand the question, you will probably answer it wrong, no matter how much you know about the subject. Some tests have questions with tricky wording just to test your understanding. Especially when a question is complicated, read it a second time to be sure you have it right.

8. Answer all the easy questions first and skip questions you are not sure about. Use the remaining time to consider carefully the hard-to-answer questions. Answering easy questions will warm you up and help keep you from getting a mental block, a temporary inability to remember something that you really know. Answering easy questions first also will ensure that you have answered everything you know best before time runs out.

9. Answer first questions from parts of the test that carry higher values than others do. Obviously, if you know which parts count most and the correct answers, it is better to answer those parts right away to be sure of getting the highest possible score.

10. If you have time left, do not turn in your test or stop working on it. Use the remaining minutes to read through all the questions and answers. You may find, for example, that you have failed to answer some items whose answers you know. In multiple choice tests with separate answer sheets, take the time to make sure that you have put your answers in the right spaces or columns. Take a moment to determine that each answer seems reasonable, especially in a mathematics test; if an answer is wrong, do not be too lazy to do your calculations again.

The second kind of preparation for any test has nothing at all to do with subject matter. It consists of making sure that you are physically and mentally ready to do well. One important factor is a good night's sleep. The day before a test, remember to take a few minutes now and then to relax. Finish your studying early so that you can get to bed and be ready for sleep at your regular bedtime. In the morning, eat a good breakfast. At the same time, train yourself to put aside any worries or excitement for a few hours, until the test is over. You need all your powers of concentration for the test.

Get a good night's sleep and eat a proper breakfast.

During the test. Arrive early and have with you the pencils or any other tools you will need. At this point you should be well enough prepared not to think about the test for a moment or two. Do something else if you can, such as chat with a friend.

When the test is handed out, read it through quickly before you answer any of the questions. Be sure you understand how you are to provide the answers. Do not, for example, write on the test booklet if a separate answer sheet is required. In fact, it is a good idea to read all the instructions twice—just to make sure. Getting a poor grade because you did not follow the rules is worse than getting a poor grade because you did not know the material. Once you have read through the whole test, do the easy items first. In that way, even if you are short of time, you will make sure you get credit for what you know. After the easy items are done, tackle the items you are not sure of.

Obviously, if you do not know the correct answer to a test item, you will have a more difficult time than if you do know the answer. But you still have many ways to improve your score. For one thing, your unconscious mind usually knows more than your conscious mind does. Although you skip over an item because you do not remember the answer, the answer may pop into your mind later. In addition, if you weed out answers that you know are wrong, you have a good chance of coming up with the correct answer. For example, if you eliminate two of four answers in a multiple choice item, you have a fifty-fifty chance of getting the right answer from the remaining two.

If you are really in trouble, there are other rules you can use for guessing. Be warned, however, that the people who write the tests know these rules also. For example, correct answers often have to be qualified extensively, which means that the right answer will normally be the longest one. Test-makers know this, of course, so they deliberately try to think of wrong answers that will be longer than the right ones. As a result, the second-longest answer is sometimes the right one. Similarly, absolute qualifiers, such as always, never, or none, generally apply to incorrect answers, since few things in this world are ever absolute. Test-makers know this also, and sometimes they add absolute qualifiers to incorrect answers in order to trap the unwary. Finally, the test-makers want there to be about equal numbers of answers labeled A, B, C, D, and E. Each letter should, in this case, get about 20 percent of the answers. While test-makers know that students might exploit this to improve their test scores, most are reluctant to let one answer predominate over the others. Thus, in a multiple choice test, you can use the number of answers for each letter among the items you are sure of as a rough guide to guessing the items of which you are not sure.

Scoring multiple-choice tests. Multiple-choice tests are used most often to test mastery of facts. Be sure to read each question and its possible answers carefully. Sometimes, more than one answer may seem correct; in that case, choose the one that you think is most accurate.

Short multiple-choice tests usually are graded on the number of right answers. This means that if you do not know the answer to a question, you can guess at answers without being penalized.

On long multiple-choice tests, such as standardized reading and mathematics tests, you are penalized for guessing. For this kind of test you should not guess at an answer if you have no idea what the answer is. You should guess if you can eliminate one or more of the possible answers as surely wrong.

Sample test questions

Sample questions from the four major tests follow. You will notice that the same kinds of questions often appear on more than one test. Each question is accompanied by a short explanation of why one of the answers is correct. Study these explanations carefully; they will reveal techniques of thinking you can use over and over. Note that in multiple-choice questions, the part that sets up the choices is sometimes called the stem.

GED

The General Educational Development examination has been developed by the American Council on Education to qualify students who have not finished high school or the equivalent of a secondary school diploma. It is rare for high-school dropouts to make a success of their lives without passing the GED. The GED consists of five parts: writing skills, social studies, science, reading, and mathematics. It generally takes about three and a half hours to complete. The writing skills section is a test of written English, including spelling, capitalization, punctuation, usage, sentence structure, and organization. There is no penalty for guessing, so you should complete all items even if you do not have the slightest idea of what the correct choices are.

Writing skills

Directions: The following sentences contain problems in capitalization and punctuation. If there is an error, select the one underlined part that must be changed to make the sentence correct. No sentence contains more than one error. If there is no error, mark answer space 5.

Until recently, almost all history book's ignored the (1) (2)
contributions and achievements of the various minor-(3)
ity cultures within the country. No error
(4) (5)

Part 2 contains the error, since book's has an apostrophe, indicating that it is in the possessive case. All that is needed here is a simple plural. The sentence refers to more than one book, not to a book that owns something. The correct form is books.

Directions: Beneath each sentence you will find five ways of writing the underlined part. Choose the answer that makes the best sentence and mark the number of that answer on your answer sheet. Answer (1) is always the same as the underlined part and is sometimes the right answer.

Representative Jones was first sent to Washington by a huge majority vote, who reelected her for three more terms.

(1) a huge majority vote
(2) a great majority of the voters
(3) a vote of large majority
(4) the larger part of voters
(5) more votes on her side

The key here is the word who, following the underlined part. Who must refer to a person or persons. Only choices (2) and (4) allow who to refer to the voters instead of the vote. Choice (2) has exactly the same meaning as the underlined part, so it is correct. "The larger part" in choice (4) does not carry the same meaning as "a huge majority" in the underlined part.

Directions: In each sentence find what is wrong, if anything. If there is an error, decide which underlined part must be changed to make the sentence correct; then blacken the space having the same number as the answer you have chosen. If there is no error, mark answer space 5. No sentence contains more than one error.

It is fortunate that waterpower has been so abundant (1)
in Quebec and Ontario, two areas that have hardly (2) (3)
no coal at all. No error
(4) (5)

The word hardly has the meaning of only just. It cannot precede no coal because no one would say, "The areas have only just no coal." The error, then, is in choice 4. The correct form would be hardly any coal.

Directions: Read the following passage before you answer the questions based on it. For each question, select the one best answer. Then blacken the corresponding space on your answer sheet.

[1]Skylab was a huge space station that was put into orbit around Earth in 1973. [2]It was to be used for scientific experiments by three teams of scientist–cosmonauts. [3]While Skylab was being launched unmanned, a protective shield was torn off. [4]Without the shield, the sun's rays heated the inside of Skylab to a temperature you couldn't stand.

In sentence 4, a temperature you couldn't stand should be

(1) left as it is
(2) changed to a really hot temperature
(3) changed to hotter than you would think
(4) changed to hot temperatures
(5) changed to unbearable temperatures

The underlined part needs to be changed, since you could not refer to the scientists–cosmonauts in Skylab. A temperature that the scientist–cosmonauts "couldn't stand" would be unbearable. Therefore, choice (5) is correct.

Social studies

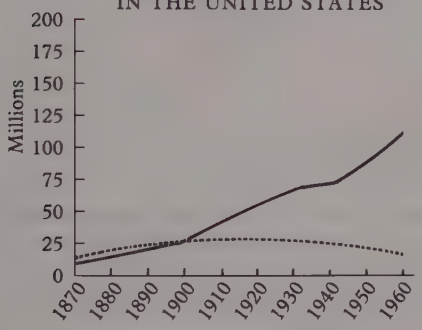
Directions: Choose the one best answer to each question.

In the United States, a governor of a state has the power to do all of the following EXCEPT

(1) prepare a budget for the next year
(2) veto a law passed by the state legislature
(3) send an ambassador to a foreign country
(4) campaign for the members of his or her political party
(5) suggest laws he or she would like to see passed

Choices (1), (2), and (5) describe activities that might be performed by the governor of a state. Choice (4) describes an activity common to most elected officials. The correct answer is choice (3). Only the federal government of the United States—the President with the advice and consent of the Senate—can send ambassadors to other countries.

DISTRIBUTION OF POPULATION IN THE UNITED STATES



According to the graph above, the year the population was evenly distributed between urban and rural areas was approximately

(1) 1880 (2) 1900 (3) 1920 (4) 1940 (5) 1960

First, it is important to understand that "evenly distributed between urban and rural areas" means that the two populations are equal. In a line graph such as the one given here, two quantities are equal when the lines for both quantities cross; that is, because the height of the line above the base represents the quantity, the lines will cross when the heights are the same. The lines for the urban and rural areas cross just once, above the time 1900. Therefore, the correct choice is (2).

Answer every question on the GED. There is no penalty for guessing.

The next two questions refer to the following map.

Which area is associated with the Gold Rush of 1849?

(1) 1 (2) 2 (3) 3 (4) 4 (5) 5

Many GED items rely on knowledge that the person taking the test is supposed to have. This is one of them, but you can also eliminate some choices even if you do not remember that the Gold Rush of 1849 brought many people to California. For example, the region east of the Mississippi was filled with people in the 1800's, so choice (5) (region 5) can be ruled out. With only four choices left, you have a better chance of guessing the correct choice, which is (1).

In the middle of the 19th century, American industry was most heavily concentrated in which area?

(1) 1 (2) 3 (3) 4 (4) 6 (5) 7

Make sure that you remember that the 19th century is the same as the 1800's, so this question centers about the years around 1850. As in the previous item, you can eliminate choices (1), (2), and (3) (regions 1, 3, and 4) because these regions did not have enough people to support heavy industry at that time. If you do not remember that heavy industry was concentrated mostly in New England at that time, which is choice (5) (region 7), you still have a fifty-fifty chance of guessing the correct choice.

All of the following are undesirable results of man's efforts to improve his standard of living EXCEPT

(1) erosion of soils
(2) desalination of seawater
(3) destruction of wildlife habitats
(4) exhaustion of mines
(5) pollution of air and water

In this kind of a question, there is a "hidden double negative" that can confuse the person taking the test. The "EXCEPT" in the stem means that you want to find a choice that is not undesirable. "Not undesirable" is not necessarily the same as desirable. It means that you need to reject four choices that are undesirable. Choices (1), (3), (4), and (5) all describe results that are undesirable. Choice 2 describes something that can be desirable, so it is correct.

Reading

Directions: Choose the best answer to each question.

What Is Poetry?

What is poetry? Who knows?
Not the rose, but the scent of the rose;

Not the sky, but the light of the sky;

Not the fly, but the gleam of the fly;

Not the sea, but the sound of the sea;

Not myself, but what makes me
See, hear, feel something that prose Cannot, and what it is, who knows?

Reprinted by permission of Harold Ober Associates Inc. © 1938 by Eleanor Farjeon, renewed. Copyright 1938, Eleanor Farjeon. Reprinted by permission of J.B. Lippincott Company.

According to the poem, poetry, unlike prose, does which of the following?

(1) relates to feelings rather than to objects
(2) explains things fully and logically
(3) deals with everyday life
(4) concerns itself with things, not people
(5) describes things in simple words

Choice (2) is not generally thought of as relating to poetry, so it can be rejected. The poem does not refer to everyday life (3) or simple words (5), so they can be eliminated. Choice (1) fits better than choice (2) because scent, light, gleam, and sound involve human feelings about the objects that are mentioned.

In a recent survey, three out of four people interviewed said that they liked Soothies better than the other leading pain reliever. Here's what some of those people had to say:

Ms. R. Jones: "Soothies really make me feel better fast. I've told my friends about them."
Mr. L. Smith: "Soothies taste better than the other leading pain reliever. My children chew Soothies like candy. And for the same price, you get more Soothies than pills of the other leading brand."
Dr. Q. Brown: "I recommend Soothies for fast relief. They work best for me."

Soothies cost less than the other leading pain reliever. So get the best for less! Try Soothies.

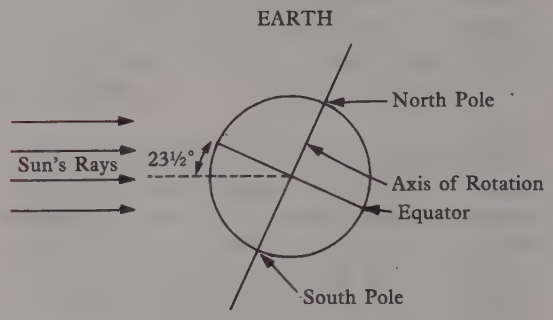
Dr. Brown recommends Soothies because they

(1) taste good to him (2) help most people
(3) are inexpensive (4) bring him relief
(5) are the leading brand

When asked for a specific detail in a reading passage, focus only on the part that contains the information asked for. In this case, you can go directly to what Dr. Brown has said. Choice (4) is the only one with this idea, so it is correct.

Science

Directions: Each of the questions or incomplete statements below is followed by five suggested answers or completions. Select the one that is best in each case and then blacken the corresponding space on the answer sheet.



In the diagram above, the sun's rays and the axis of rotation of Earth are both in the plane of the page. The diagram best represents the position of Earth nearest to

(1) March 21
(2) June 21
(3) July 1
(4) September 23
(5) December 21

This is the kind of question that asks you to see something in your mind's eye. As you look at the diagram, picture the time of the year when the northern hemisphere is tilted away from the warming rays of the sun: wintertime. This corresponds to choice (5), which is correct.

Evidence indicates that cigarette smoking results in

(1) cardiovascular stress
(2) hepatitis
(3) whooping cough
(4) pneumonia
(5) pleurisy

Most people think of lung cancer when they think of the effects of cigarette smoking, but lung cancer is not among the choices. Emphysema, another common disease associated with smoking, also is not present. You might think that choices (3), (4), or (5)—all associated with the lungs—might be correct, but this is one of those cases in which the test-maker has been deliberately misleading. If you recognize that choices (2), (3), (4), and (5) all are infectious diseases, then none of them can be caused by cigarette smoking. Therefore, the correct choice must be (1), cardiovascular stress. It is also helpful to know that cardiovascular relates to the heart and blood vessels, and smoking is often thought of as being damaging to the heart.

Mathematics

Directions: For all problems choose the one best answer.

During the month of July the Herbert family spent $32.28, $27.39, $37.54, $54.80, and $52.20 for food. How much did they spend on food for the month?

(1) $184.21 (2) $193.11 (3) $193.21
(4) $203.19 (5) $204.21

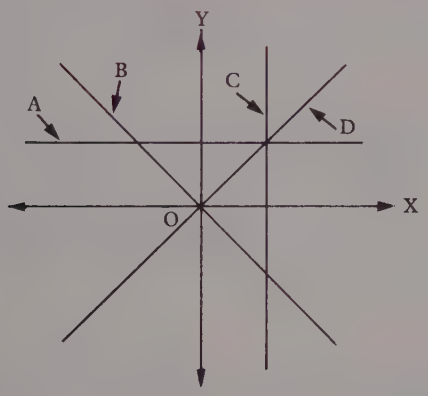
Speed helps in getting through a test. While this item can be answered by actually adding the amounts, you should notice at once that three of the choices end in 21 cents. Add just the cents: 0.28 + 0.39 + 0.54 + 0.80 + 0.20 = 2.21, so (as could be suspected) the correct choice has to be (1), (3), or (5). Now look at the dollars. Both (2) and (3) have $193. Since (3) is on the possibly correct list and (2) is not, the correct answer is most likely (3). Check by estimating the sum (round off the numbers to whole dollars): $32 + $27 + $38 + $55 + $52 = 204. The correct choice must be (5), not (3). The test-maker was trying to mislead you.

One statute mile is equal to 5280 feet. If one nautical mile is approximately 1.15 statute miles, then one nautical mile is equal to approximately how many feet?

(1) 4590 (2) 5165 (3) 5395
(4) 5545 (5) 6070

With a question such as this one, you may find it easy to perform the indicated multiplication: 1.15 × 5280 = 6072. If multiplication is not easy for you, you may find it easier to approach the problem the following way.

The statement that a nautical mile is 1.15 statute miles means that a nautical mile is 15 percent larger than a statute mile. Since a nautical mile is larger than a statute mile, you can eliminate choices (1) and (2) automatically. You also can note that 15 percent is halfway between 10 and 20 percent. It is easy to calculate that 10 percent of 5280 is 528 and that twice 528 is 1056, 20 percent of 5280. Therefore, a nautical mile must be about 700 or 800 feet larger than a statute mile. Only choice (5) is anywhere near correct. The method of estimation is especially good, since the actual product of 1.15 and 5280 is 6072.40, not 6070.



Which of the lines shown in the figure above has zero slope?

(1) A (2) B (3) C (4) D
(5) None of the above

If you have studied slope, it is essential to remember the difference between a slope of zero and no slope. Line A has a slope of zero, while line C has no slope (its slope is undefined). If you have not studied slope, you can still guess that slope refers to the degree of slantedness or steepness of a line. The line that is not slanted, or has zero steepness, is line A. The correct choice is (1).

For further information on the GED, contact your provincial or state department of education, or:

American Council on Education
One Dupont Circle
Washington, DC 20036

On the number line above, which lettered point could represent the number $-\frac{9}{8}$?

(1) A (2) B (3) C (4) D (5) E

From the labels below the number line, it is clear that all the negative numbers are to the left, so you can eliminate points D and E easily. It may help then to think of $-\frac{9}{8}$ as $-1\frac{1}{8}$. Just as $+1\frac{1}{8}$ is a number between +1 and +2, $-1\frac{1}{8}$ is between −1 and −2, so only A or B could be correct choices. Since $-1\frac{1}{8}$ must be closer to −1 than it is to −2, the correct choice is (2) (point B).

If x + y = 36 and x = 2y, then x =

(1) 9 (2) 12 (3) 18 (4) 24 (5) 27

This problem can be solved by a formal method, but it is probably easier, faster, and just as accurate to treat this as a problem in reasoning, not a problem in algebra. Since x = 2y, the value of x must be twice the value of y, or y must be one half of x. This rules out odd numbers for x, since the sum of x and y would then contain a fraction. Of the remaining choices (2), (3), and (4), choices (2) and (3) are easily seen to be too small, so the correct choice must be (4). Always check problems if you can. If x = 24, then y = 12, and 24 + 12 = 36. (Another approach is to use substitution. Since x = 2y, substitute 2y for x in x + y = 36. This produces 2y + y = 36, or 3y = 36. Therefore, y = $\frac{36}{3}$, or 12. Now go back to x = 2y to see that x is twice 12, or 24.)

SAT

The SAT requires about three hours to complete and consists of two sections, verbal and mathematics. Each section is made up of several subtests. The verbal and mathematics sections are scored individually on a scale of 200 to 800. Guessing is penalized on the SAT. The penalty is so slight, however, that you should guess if you can eliminate even one of the choices.

Verbal

The verbal sections of the SAT contain four types of questions:

- 25 antonyms,
- 20 analogies,
- 15 sentence completions, and
- 25 questions based on reading passages.

The antonyms usually take the least time per question, followed by analogies, sentence completion questions, and, finally, reading comprehension questions. Individual students spend varying amounts of time working on the different types of questions. Some students can answer two or three antonyms a minute, but the same students may take more than seven minutes to read a 400-word passage and answer five questions on it.

Antonyms (opposites). Antonym questions primarily test the extent of your vocabulary. The vocabulary used in the antonym questions includes words that you are likely to come across in your general reading, although some words may not be the kinds you use in everyday speech.

Among the five choices offered, you are looking for the word that means the opposite of the given word. Words that have exactly the same meaning as the given word are not included among the five choices.

You are looking for the best answer. Read all of the choices before deciding which one is best, even if you feel sure you know the answer.

Few words have exact opposites, that is, words that are opposite in all of their meanings. You should find the word that is most nearly opposite.

You need to be flexible. A word can have several meanings.

You will often recognize a word you have encountered in your reading but have never looked up in the dictionary. If you do not know the dictionary meaning of a word but have a feeling for how the word should be used, try to make up a short phrase or sentence using the word. This may give you a clue as to which choice is an opposite, even though you may not be able to define the word precisely.

Directions: Each question below consists of a word in capital letters, followed by five lettered words or phrases. Choose the word or phrase that is most nearly opposite in meaning to the word in capital letters. Since some of the questions require you to distinguish fine shades of meaning, consider all the choices before deciding which is best.

SUBSEQUENT: (A) primary (B) recent (C) contemporary (D) prior (E) simultaneous

Subsequent means "following in time or order; succeeding." Someone working quickly might choose (B) recent because it refers to a past action and subsequent refers to an action in the future. However, choice (D) prior is the best answer. It is more nearly the opposite of subsequent than is recent.

FERMENTING: (A) improvising (B) stagnating (C) wavering (D) plunging (E) dissolving

Even though fermenting is normally associated with chemical reactions, whereas stagnating is normally associated with water, fermenting means "being agitated" and stagnating means "being motionless." Therefore, choice (B) stagnating is the best of the five choices.

DEPRESS: (A) force (B) allow (C) clarify (D) elate (E) loosen

The word depress can mean "to push down." However, no word meaning "to lift up" is included among the choices. Therefore, you must consider another meaning of depress, to sadden or discourage. Option (D) elate means to fill with joy or pride. The best answer is (D) elate.

INCUMBENT: (A) conscious (B) effortless (C) optional (D) improper (E) irrelevant

You may remember incumbent used in a sentence such as "It is incumbent upon me to finish this." If you can think of such a phrase, you may be able to recognize that incumbent means "imposed as a duty" or "obligatory." Of the five choices, (A), (B), and (D) are in no way opposites of incumbent and you can easily eliminate them. Choice (E) means "not pertinent" and choice (C) means "not compulsory." Although choice (E) may look attractive, choice (C) optional is more nearly an exact opposite to incumbent. Choice (C), therefore, is the answer.

Analogies. Analogy questions test your ability to see a relationship in a pair of words, to understand the ideas expressed in the relationship, and to recognize a similar or parallel relationship.

For the analogy below, just state the relationship between the original pair of words and then decide which pair of words from choices (A)–(E) has the same relationship.

Remember that a pair of words can have more than one relationship.

Directions: Each question below consists of a related pair of words or phrases, followed by five lettered pairs of words or phrases. Select the lettered pair that best expresses a relationship similar to that expressed in the original pair.

SUBMISSIVE : LED :: (A) wealthy : employed
(B) intolerant : indulged (C) humble : humiliated
(D) incorrigible : taught
(E) inconspicuous : overlooked

The relationship between submissive and led can be expressed as "to be submissive is to be easily led." Only choice (E) has the same relationship: to be inconspicuous is to be easily overlooked.

To be intolerant is not to be easily indulged, to be humble is not to be easily humiliated, and to be incorrigible (or incapable of being reformed) is not to be easily taught. With regard to choice (A), although the wealthy may find it easier to get employment than do the poor, the statement "to be wealthy is to be easily employed" is an expression of opinion and not an expression of the relationship between the words according to their dictionary meanings.

SONG : REPERTOIRE :: (A) score : melody
(B) instrument : artist (C) solo : chorus
(D) benediction : church (E) suit : wardrobe

The best answer is choice (E). The relationship between the words can be expressed as "several (first word) make up a (second word)." Several (songs) make up a (repertoire) as several (suits) make up a (wardrobe).

REQUEST : ENTREAT :: (A) control : explode
(B) admire : idolize (C) borrow : steal
(D) repeat : plead (E) cancel : invalidate

The best answer is choice (B). Although both of the capitalized words have similar meanings, they express different degrees of feeling; to (entreat) is to (request) with strong feeling as to (idolize) is to (admire) with strong feeling.

To answer analogy questions, you must think carefully about the precise meanings of words. For instance, if you thought the word entreat meant only to ask instead of to ask urgently, you would have trouble establishing the correct relationship between request and entreat.

AMPLIFIER : HEAR :: (A) turntable : listen
(B) typewriter : spell (C) platter : eat
(D) camera : feel (E) microscope : see

The best answer is choice (E). An (amplifier) magnifies in order to help a person (hear) in the same way that a (microscope) magnifies in order to help a person (see). Note that, in (A), while a turntable is part of a larger mechanism that allows a person to listen, the choice is not as good an answer as (E) because a turntable does not magnify anything. Choice (D) is also wrong for a similar reason: a camera produces pictures that may make a person feel something, but a camera does not magnify in order to help a person to feel.

PRIDE : LION :: (A) snake : python
(B) pack : wolf (C) rat : mouse
(D) bird : starling (E) dog : canine

A possible relationship between pride and lion might be that the first word describes a characteristic of the second (especially in mythology). Using this reasoning, you might look for an answer such as wisdom : owl, but none of the given choices has that kind of relationship. Another relationship between pride and lion is "a group of lions is called a pride"; therefore, the answer is (B) pack : wolf, since a group of wolves is called a pack.

KNIFE : INCISION :: (A) bulldozer : excavation
(B) tool : operation (C) pencil : calculation
(D) hose : irrigation (E) plow : agriculture

On the most general level, the relationship between knife and incision is that the object indicated by the first word is used to perform the action indicated by the second word. Since a (knife) is used to make an (incision), a (bulldozer) is used to make an (excavation), and a (hose) is used for (irrigation), there appear to be two correct answers. You need to go back and state the relationship more precisely. Some aspect of the relationship between the original pair exists in only one of the choices. A more precise relationship between knife and incision could be expressed as: "a knife cuts into something to make an incision" and "a bulldozer cuts into something to make an excavation." This relationship eliminates hose : irrigation as a possible answer. The best answer is choice (A).

Publications containing current information about the SAT may be obtained from your high school guidance office, or from:

College Board ATP
CN 6200
Princeton, NJ 08541-6200

Sentence completion. Sentence completion questions test your ability to recognize relationships among parts of a sentence. Each question has a sentence with one or two words missing. You must choose the word or set of words that best fits with the other parts of the sentence. You will find that even if you are not familiar with the topic of a sentence, there is enough information in the sentence for you to find the correct answer from the context of the sentence itself.

For a better understanding of sentence completion questions, read the following sample questions and explanations.

Directions: Each sentence below has one or two blanks, each blank indicating that something has been omitted. Beneath the sentence are five lettered words or sets of words. Choose the word or set of words that best fits the meaning of the sentence as a whole.

Although its publicity has been ----, the film itself is intelligent, well-acted, handsomely produced, and altogether ----.

(A) tasteless . . respectable
(B) extensive . . moderate
(C) sophisticated . . amateur
(D) risqué . . crude
(E) perfect . . spectacular

● Ⓑ Ⓒ Ⓓ Ⓔ

The word although suggests that the publicity gave the wrong impression of the movie, so look for two words that are more or less opposite in meaning. Also, the second word has to fit in with "intelligent, well-acted, handsomely produced." Choices (D) and (E) are not opposites. The words in choice (B) are somewhat opposite in meaning, but do not logically fulfill the expectation set up by the word although. Choice (C) can't be the correct answer, even though sophisticated and amateur are nearly opposites, because an "intelligent, well-acted, handsomely produced" film isn't amateurish. Only choice (A), when inserted in the sentence, makes a logical statement.

She is a skeptic, ---- to believe that the accepted opinion of the majority is generally ----.

(A) prone . . infallible (B) afraid . . misleading
(C) inclined . . justifiable (D) quick . . significant
(E) disposed . . erroneous

The words to be inserted in the blank spaces in the question above must result in a statement that is consistent with the definition of a skeptic. Since a skeptic would hardly consider the accepted opinion of the majority as infallible, justifiable, or significant, you can eliminate choices (A), (C), and (D). A skeptic would not be afraid that the accepted opinion of the majority is misleading; a skeptic would believe that it was. Therefore, choice (B) is not correct. Only choice (E) disposed . . erroneous makes a logical sentence.

Nearly all the cultivated plants utilized by the Chinese have been of ---- origin; even rice, though known in China since Neolithic times, came from India.

(A) foreign (B) ancient (C) wild (D) obscure (E) common

To answer this question, you need to consider the entire sentence—the part that comes after the semicolon as well as the part that comes before it. If you only consider the first part of the question, all five choices seem plausible. The second part of the sentence adds a specific example—that rice came to China from India. This idea of origin supports and clarifies the "origin" mentioned in the first part of the sentence and eliminates (C), (D), and (E) as possible answers. The mention of Neolithic times makes (B) harder to eliminate, but the sentence is not logical when (B) is used to fill in the blank because the emphasis in the second part of the sentence—country of origin—is inconsistent with that in the first—age. Only choice (A) produces a sentence that is logical and consistent.

The excitement does not ---- but ---- his senses, giving him a keener perception of a thousand details.

(A) slow . . diverts
(B) blur . . sharpens
(C) overrule . . constricts
(D) heighten . . aggravates
(E) forewarn . . quickens

Since the sentence has two blanks to be filled, you must make sure that both words make sense in the sentence. If you look for grammatical clues within the sentence, you will see that the word but implies that the answer will involve two words that are more or less opposite in meaning. If you keep this in mind, you can eliminate all of the choices except for (B) blur . . sharpens. Only the words in choice (B) imply opposition. Also, "sharpens his senses" is consistent with the notion that he has a "keener perception of a thousand details."

They argue that the author was determined to ---- his own conclusion, so he ---- any information that did not support it.

(A) uphold . . ignored
(B) revise . . destroyed
(C) advance . . devised
(D) disprove . . distorted
(E) reverse . . confiscated

The logic of the sentence makes it fairly easy to eliminate choices (B), (D), and (E). The first word in choice (A), uphold, and the first word in (C), advance, seem all right. However, the second word in choice (C), devised, does not make sense in the sentence. Why would an author who wished to advance his theory devise information that did not support it? Only choice (A) makes a logically consistent sentence.

Reading comprehension. The reading comprehension questions on the SAT test your ability to read and understand a passage. Each passage contains the information you need for the questions that follow it.

Several types of questions are asked about the passage. Some ask about the main idea of a passage. Some questions ask about those ideas that are stated directly in the passage. Some ask you to recognize applications of the author's principles or opinions. In some questions you must make an inference from what you have read. In others you must evaluate the way the author develops and presents the passage.

Following are a sample passage, sample questions, and explanations of each of the questions.

Directions: The passage below is followed by questions based on its content. Answer all questions following the passage on the basis of what is stated or implied in that passage.

Between guilds and modern business firms there is a profound gulf. Unlike modern firms, the purpose of guilds was not first and foremost to make money. Rather, it was to preserve a certain orderly way of life —a way that envisaged a decent income for the master craftsmen but that was certainly not intended to allow any of them to become "big" businessmen. On the contrary, guilds were specifically designed to ward off any such outcome of an uninhibited struggle among their members. The terms of service and wages were fixed by custom. So, too, were the terms of sale: a guild member who cornered the supply of an item or bought wholesale to sell at retail was severely punished. Competition was strictly limited and profits were held to prescribed levels. Advertising was forbidden, and even technical progress in advance of one's fellow guildsmen was considered disloyal.

Surely the guilds represent a more "modern" aspect of feudal life than the manor, but the whole temper of guild life was still far removed from the goals and ideals of modern business enterprise. There was no free competition and no restless probing for advantage. Existing on the margin of a relatively moneyless society, the guilds were organizations that sought to take the risks out of their slender enterprises. As such, they were as drenched in the medieval atmosphere as the manors.

According to the passage, modern business enterprises, compared to the medieval guilds, are

(A) more concerned with increasing profits
(B) influenced more by craftsmen than by tradesmen
(C) more subordinate to the demands of consumers
(D) less progressive in financial dealings
(E) less interested in quantity than quality

SAT reading passages contain all the information you'll need to answer the questions.

Relax.

To answer this question, locate the parts of the passage that compare guilds and modern business—the beginnings of the first and second paragraphs. Lines 2–3 suggest that the foremost purpose of modern firms is to make money. Lines 21–22 indicate that "free competition" and "restless probing for advantage" are central to modern business enterprise. Choice (A) is the most appropriate answer among the choices given. There is no justification in the passage for any of the other choices. Some people might argue from their own experience or opinion that (C) is a possible answer. However, since the question says, "According to the passage . . . ," the answer must be based on what is stated in the passage.

It can be inferred that the guilds were organized as they were because

(A) life on the manors was boring and drab
(B) technical improvements were still improbable
(C) they stressed preservation and stability, not progress
(D) people in medieval times were interested in advancing individual liberty
(E) social status was determined by income

This question is not answered simply and directly in the passage itself, but the passage gives you information to draw on. In the first paragraph, the author notes that the purpose of guilds "was to preserve a certain orderly way of life" and that guilds were specifically designed "to ward off . . . uninhibited struggle among their members." In the second paragraph, the author states that the guilds "were organizations that sought to take the risks out of their slender enterprises." From these statements and the comparisons between guilds and modern business firms that the author makes elsewhere in the passage, choice (C) is the most reasonable conclusion to draw. Choice (A) is not related to the purpose of the organization of the guilds. The statement about technical progress made in lines 16–17 weakens the plausibility of the inference in (B). The passage does not provide enough information to justify the inferences made in (D) and (E). This is a fairly easy and straightforward inference question. You may be asked others that will require somewhat more sophisticated reasoning processes.

There is a slight penalty for guessing on the SAT. If you can eliminate a choice, you should guess.

Mathematics

Two types of multiple-choice questions are used in the mathematical sections of the SAT:

1. Standard multiple-choice questions (approximately two-thirds of the math questions)
2. Quantitative comparison questions (approximately one-third of the math questions)

Standard multiple-choice

Directions: In this section solve each problem, using any available space on the page for scratch work. Then decide which is the best of the choices given and blacken the corresponding space on the answer sheet.

If $2a + b = 5$, then $4a + 2b =$

(A) $\frac{5}{4}$ (B) $\frac{5}{2}$ (C) 10 (D) 20 (E) 25

This is an example of a problem that requires realizing that $4a + 2b = 2(2a + b)$. Therefore, $4a + 2b = 2(2a + b) = 2(5) = 10$. The correct answer is (C).

If $16 \cdot 16 \cdot 16 = 8 \cdot 8 \cdot P$, then $P =$

(A) 4 (B) 8 (C) 32 (D) 48 (E) 64

This question can be solved by several methods. A time-consuming method would be to multiply the three 16s and then divide the result by the product of 8 and 8. A quicker approach would be to find what additional factors are needed on the right side of the equation to match those on the left side. These additional factors are two 2's and a 16, the product of which is 64. The correct answer is (E).

If a car travels X kilometers of a trip in H hours, in how many hours can it travel the next Y kilometers at this rate?

(A) $\frac{XY}{H}$ (B) $\frac{HY}{X}$ (C) $\frac{HX}{Y}$ (D) $\frac{H + Y}{X}$

(E) $\frac{X + Y}{H}$

You can solve this problem by using ratios or by using the distance formula.

Using the ratio method, X kilometers is to H hours as Y kilometers is to ☐ hours, where ☐ represents the amount of time required to travel Y kilometers:

$$\frac{X}{H} = \frac{Y}{\square}$$

$$X \square = HY$$

$$\square = \frac{HY}{X}$$

The correct answer is (B).

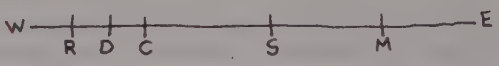
Do your scratch work right on the test paper.

The town of Mason is located on Eagle Lake. The town of Canton is west of Mason. Sinclair is east of Canton, but west of Mason. Dexter is east of Richmond, but west of Sinclair and Canton. Assuming all these towns are in the United States, which town is farthest west?

(A) Mason (B) Dexter (C) Canton
(D) Sinclair (E) Richmond

For this kind of problem, drawing a diagram may help. In this case, a line can be effectively used to locate the relative position of each town. Start with the statement "The town of Canton is west of Mason" and, using abbreviations, draw the following:

From the remaining information, place the other towns in their correct order:



The final sketch shows that the town farthest west is Richmond (R) and the correct answer is (E).

If the symbol $\triangledown$ between two expressions indicates that the expression on the right exceeds the expression on the left by 1, which of the following is (are) true for all real numbers x?

I. $x(x + 2) \triangledown (x + 1)^2$

II. $x^2 \triangledown (x + 1)^2$

III. $\frac{x}{y} \triangledown \frac{x + 1}{y + 1}$

(A) None (B) I only (C) II only
(D) III only (E) I and III

This kind of problem involves working with a newly defined symbol. One approach is to check the statements one at a time. Statement I reduces to $x^2 + 2x \triangledown x^2 + 2x + 1$, so the expression on the right does exceed the expression on the left by 1. Therefore, statement I is true. Statement II reduces to $x^2 \triangledown x^2 + 2x + 1$, so the right expression exceeds the left expression by $2x + 1$, which is not equal to 1 except when $x = 0$. This makes statement II false. Statement III is more difficult to check, but you can verify by subtraction, or by substituting numbers (for example, $x = 3, y = 5$), that the expression on the right does not exceed the expression on the left by 1. Therefore, statement III is false. The only true statement is I, so the correct answer is (B).

In a problem of this kind, if you are able to decide about only one or two statements, you can still eliminate some choices and guess among those remaining. For example, if you can conclude that I is true, then the correct answer is either (B) or (E) because these choices contain statement I.

A number is divisible by 9 if the sum of its digits is divisible by 9. Which of the following numbers is divisible by 45?

(A) 63,345 (B) 72,365
(C) 99,999 (D) 72,144
(E) 98,145

It would be very time-consuming to divide each choice by 45. In order for a number to be divisible by 45 it must be divisible by both 9 and 5. Choices (A), (B), and (E) are divisible by 5, but choices (C) and (D) are not, so you can eliminate choices (C) and (D) immediately. You are given that a number is divisible by 9 if the sum of its digits is divisible by 9. The sums of the digits in choices (A), (B), and (E) are 21, 23, and 27, respectively.

Of these choices only 27 is divisible by 9. The correct answer is (E). Your scratch work for this problem might appear as follows:

(A) 63,345 ~~21~~ (B) 72,365 ~~23~~
(C) ~~99,999~~ (D) ~~72,144~~
(E) 98,145 (27)

In the triangles above, if AB, CD, and EF are line segments, what is the sum of the measures of the six marked angles?

(A) 180° (B) 360° (C) 540° (D) 720°
(E) It cannot be determined from the information given.

This problem requires a creative problem-solving approach. One solution involves recognizing that the sum of the three unmarked angles in the triangles is 180°.

Because CD is a line segment, the sum of angles x, y, and z is 180°. Also, $y = w$ because they are vertical angles. Therefore, $x + w + z = 180$. Since the sum of the measures of all angles in the three triangles is 540° (3 · 180°) and the sum of the unmarked angles of the triangles in the original figure equals 180°, it follows that the sum of the marked angles is 540° − 180° = 360°. The correct answer is (B).

If the average of seven x's is 7, what is the average of fourteen x's?

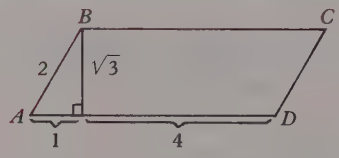
(A) $\frac{1}{7}$ (B) $\frac{1}{2}$ (C) 1 (D) 7 (E) 14

Do not get caught up in the wording of this problem, which might lead you to choose (E) 14. The average of any number of equal numbers such as x is always x. Since you are given that the average of seven x's is 7, it follows that $x = 7$ and that the average of 14 x's is also 7. The correct answer is (D).

If 90 percent of P is 30 percent of Q, then Q is what percent of P?

(A) 3% (B) 27% (C) 30% (D) 270%
(E) 300%

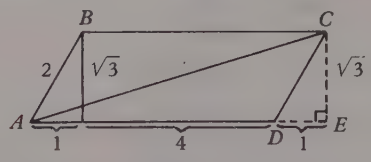
Writing an algebraic equation for this percent problem not only simplifies the work, it also helps you organize your thoughts. "90 percent of P is 30 percent of Q" can be written as $0.90P = 0.30Q$ (or $\frac{9}{10}P = \frac{3}{10}Q$). "$Q$ is what percent of P" tells you to find $\frac{Q}{P}$ and express it as a percent. $\frac{Q}{P} = 3$; therefore, Q is 300 percent of P and the correct answer is (E).



The figure above shows a piece of paper in the shape of a parallelogram with measurements as indicated. If the paper is tacked at its center to a flat surface and then rotated about its center, the points covered by the paper will be a circular region of diameter

(A) $\sqrt{3}$ (B) 2 (C) 5 (D) $\sqrt{28}$ (E) $\sqrt{39}$

The first step in solving the problem is to realize that the center of the parallelogram is the point of intersection of the two diagonals; thus, the diameter you are looking for is the length of the longer diagonal AC. One way to find AC is to think of the additional lines drawn as shown below.



The triangles at each end are congruent (equal in size and shape), so the lengths of DE and CE are 1 and $\sqrt{3}$, respectively. AEC is a right triangle; therefore, the Pythagorean theorem can be used in solving the problem:

$AC^2 = CE^2 + AE^2$

$AC^2 = (\sqrt{3})^2 + (6)^2 = 3 + 36 = 39$

The diameter AC is $\sqrt{39}$ and the correct answer is (E).

Quantitative comparison. Quantitative comparison questions emphasize the concepts of equalities, inequalities, and estimation. They generally involve less reading, take less time to answer, and require less computation than regular multiple-choice questions. Quantitative comparison questions may not be as familiar to you as other types of questions. Therefore, give special attention to the directions ahead of time. Be careful not to mark answer option E when responding to the four-choice quantitative comparison questions.

To solve a quantitative comparison problem, compare the quantities in the two columns and decide whether one quantity is greater than the other, whether the two quantities are equal, or whether the relationship cannot be determined from the information given.

Problems are clearly separated and the quantities to be compared are always on the same line as the number of the problem. Figures and additional information provided for some problems appear above the quantities to be compared. The following are some practice problems with explanations to help you understand this type of question.

Directions: Each of the following questions consists of two quantities, one in Column A and one in Column B. You are to compare the two quantities and on the answer sheet blacken space

A if the quantity in Column A is greater;
B if the quantity in Column B is greater;
C if the two quantities are equal;
D if the relationship cannot be determined from the information given.

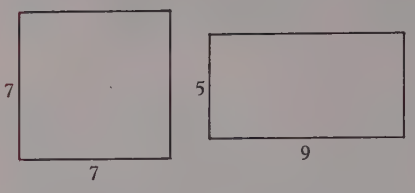
Notes: 1. In certain questions, information concerning one or both of the quantities to be compared is centered above the two columns.
2. In a given question, a symbol that appears in both columns represents the same thing in Column A as it does in Column B.
3. Letters such as x, n, and k stand for real numbers.

	Column A	Column B
1.	$(37)\left(\frac{1}{43}\right)(58)$	$(59)\left(\frac{1}{43}\right)(37)$

Because the numbers in this problem are fairly large, it may save time to study the multipliers first before attempting the calculations. Note that (37) and $(\frac{1}{43})$ appear in both quantities; thus, the only numbers left for you to compare are 58 and 59. Since $59 > 58$, the quantity on the right is greater and the correct answer is (B).

Answer the easy questions first.

Column A Column B

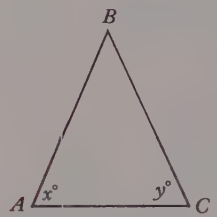


← Given information

2. The perimeter of the square | The perimeter of the rectangle ← Quantities to be compared

It can be assumed that the units used to indicate measures in a given problem are the same in all figures in that problem unless otherwise stated. The correct answer is (C) because the perimeter of the square is $4 \cdot 7 = 28$ units and the perimeter of the rectangle is $(2 \cdot 5) + (2 \cdot 9) = 28$ units.

Column A Column B



$AB = BC$

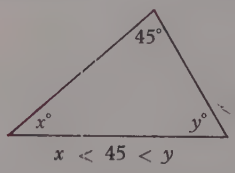
3. x | y

Since $AB = BC$, the angles opposite AB and BC are equal; therefore, $x = y$. The correct answer is (C).

	Column A	Column B
4.	$\sqrt{2} - 1$	$\sqrt{3} - 1$

For any positive number x, the symbol $\sqrt{x}$ denotes the positive square root of x. The fact that $\sqrt{3} > \sqrt{2}$ leads to the conclusion that $\sqrt{3} - 1 > \sqrt{2} - 1$. The correct answer is (B). Note that $x^2 = 9$ has two solutions, $x = 3$ or $x = -3$. However, $\sqrt{9} = 3$, not ± 3.

Column A Column B



$x < 45 < y$

Note: Figure not drawn to scale.

5. y | 90

Because the sum of the angles of a triangle is 180, $x + y + 45 = 180$ or $x + y = 135$. Since $x < 45$, it follows that $y > 90$. The answer is (A). In this problem, do not try to determine the answer from the appearance of the figure because the note indicates that the figure is not drawn to scale.

ACT

The ACT takes about three hours to complete. It consists of four sections: mathematics usage (commonly called mathematics reasoning), English usage, social studies reading, and natural sciences reading. The two reading tests involve items based on passages either in the social studies (largely history) or science sections. Specific content knowledge is not necessary for these items; however, other items do test content knowledge in social studies and science. Note that nothing is taken off for wrong answers, so guessing can help when you do not know an answer. Every item should be completed, even if you have no idea of what the right answer is. As the following explanations show, it is often possible to find a helpful clue to the correct answer.

English usage

Directions: In the passages that follow, certain words and phrases are underlined and numbered. In the right-hand column, you will find alternatives for each underlined part. You are to choose the one that best expresses the idea, makes the statement appropriate for standard written English, or is worded most consistently with the style and tone of the passage as a whole. If you think the original version is best, choose "NO CHANGE." Read each passage through once before you begin to answer the questions that accompany it. You cannot determine most answers without reading several sentences beyond the phrase in question. Be sure that you have read far enough ahead each time you choose an alternative.

As late as 1945, no baseball team in either the American nor National (1) League had accepted a black player. Some blacks were playing professional baseball, as a result. (2) A Negro league had managed to survive many and countless (3) difficulties. In this league, were (4) many fine players, including one named Jackie Robinson.

During Robinson's high school days in California, an outstanding athlete was developed, (5) excelling in several sports. After two years at UCLA and a stint in the army, he began playing baseball in the Negro league. Where (6) Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn

(continued)

1. A. NO CHANGE
   B. either the American or
   C. either the American and
   D. neither the American and

   Choice B is correct, since either must be paired with or, not nor or and (C). Neither cannot be paired with and (D).

2. F. NO CHANGE
   G. therefore.
   H. however.
   J. consequently.

   Choice H is correct, since however describes a logical relationship between the first and second sentences. The other choices do not.

3. A. NO CHANGE
   B. many countless
   C. many numerous
   D. countless

   Choice D is correct. Many and countless (A), many countless (B), and many numerous (C) are redundant.

4. F. NO CHANGE
   G. league are
   H. league were
   J. league,

   Choice H is correct, since a comma incorrectly separates the verb were from the rest of the predicate, in this league. Choice G, league are, is present tense and therefore wrong.

5. A. NO CHANGE
   B. he expanded into an outstanding athlete,
   C. he developed into an outstanding athlete,
   D. he was developed by becoming an outstanding athlete,

   Choice C is correct, since it supplies a subject, he, for the verb developed. Expanded (B) would be a poor choice of verb, and was developed by becoming is redundant (D).

6. F. NO CHANGE
   G. When
   H. There
   J. While

   Choice H is correct, since it explains that Rickey discovered him there, meaning in the Negro league. G and J refer to time, not place. F would be correct if the two sentences were joined.

Dodgers, now known as the Los Angeles Dodgers—discovered him. When Rickey announced plans to sign Robinson, a star player threatened to resign, but he proceeded. Thus, in 1947, Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in major league baseball.

Robinson's debut was unimpressive, however. He was undoubtedly apprehensive as he faced the packed stadium. In his three times at bat, he grounded out initially, struck out the second time, and his final out was a pop fly. His performance did not improve over the next several games.

Although taunted by spectators until he seriously considered quitting. He persevered and after the season was acclaimed Rookie of the Year.

By the time Jackie Robinson left baseball, he had become a legend. Six years after retirement, he was inducted, into baseball's Hall of Fame. In his induction speech, he spoke for himself and other black players when he praised Rickey for helping he and they overcome the racial injustice that had so long plagued major sports in America.

7. A. NO CHANGE
   B. Dodgers (now being the Los Angeles Dodgers)
   C. Dodgers—which is now the Los Angeles Dodgers
   D. Dodgers,

Choice D is correct. The phrase now known as the Los Angeles Dodgers must be enclosed in commas.

8. F. NO CHANGE
   G. he proceeded on his plans.
   H. Rickey proceeded on his plans.
   J. Rickey proceeded with his plans.

Choice J is correct. Rickey is needed in place of he, and the correct idiom is proceeded with, not on (H).

9. A. NO CHANGE
   B. apprehensive as the stadium was packed.
   C. apprehensive and facing the packed stadium.
   D. apprehensive, the stadium was packed.

Choice A is correct. The other choices make no sense whatever.

10. F. NO CHANGE
    G. hit a pop fly for his final out.
    H. hitting a pop fly for his final out.
    J. he hit a pop fly for his final out.

Choice G is correct, since there are three elements in parallel. J is also parallel with the first two elements, but mistakenly repeats the subject he, which is lacking in the second element.

11. A. NO CHANGE
    B. Although, taunted by spectators until he seriously considered quitting, he
    C. Although taunted by spectators until he seriously considered quitting, he
    D. Although taunted by spectators, until he seriously considered quitting. He Choice C is correct. The original (A) is a sentence fragment, as is D, so both are wrong. Choice B is wrong because Although followed by a comma would be incorrect.

12. F. NO CHANGE
    G. (Begin new paragraph) Now that
    H. (Begin new paragraph) In the time that
    J. (Do NOT begin new paragraph) Now that

Choice F is correct. G and J confuse a past action with the present, and H makes no sense.

13. A. NO CHANGE
    B. inducted into baseball's
    C. inducted, into baseballs'
    D. inducted into baseballs'

Choice B is correct. A comma after inducted interrupts the predicate, so A and C are wrong. D is wrong because the apostrophe is in the wrong place.

14. F. NO CHANGE
    G. he and them
    H. him and they
    J. him and them

Choice J is correct. The objects of helping must be in the objective case, so F, G, and H are incorrect.

Mathematics usage

Directions: Solve each problem, choose the correct answer, and then blacken the corresponding space on your answer sheet.

Do not linger over problems that take too much time. Solve as many as you can; then return to the others in the time you have left.

Note: Illustrative figures are not necessarily drawn to scale and are assumed to lie in a plane unless otherwise stated.

A company employs a total of 750 people in 3 departments. Department A employs 100 more people than department B and twice as many people as department C. How many people are employed in department A?

A. 340
B. 260
C. 250
D. 240
E. 170

Think of the other departments in terms of department A. Department B, then, is A − 100, and department C is 0.5 × A. You were told that A + B + C = 750. Substitute for B and C in the equation. A + (A − 100) + (0.5 × A) = 750. Add the terms with A in them. This gives 2.5 × A − 100 = 750, so 2.5 × A = 850. Divide 850 by 2.5 to get the correct answer, 340. Notice that it is easier to work this problem with decimals than with fractions.

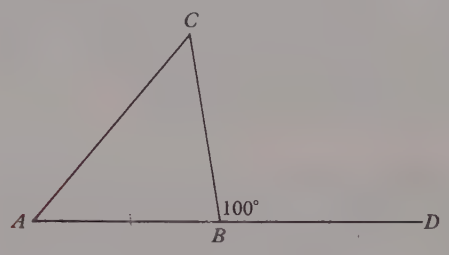
The product of 2 numbers is 1 less than the sum of the numbers. If one of the numbers is 5 and the other is x, which of the following equations could be used to find x?

F. $5x = (x + 5) - 1$
G. $5x = (x + 5) + 1$
H. $5x = (x - 5) - 1$
J. $5x = (x - 5) + 1$
K. $5x = (5 - x) - 1$

Substitute 5 and x for 2 numbers in the first sentence of the problem. The sentence becomes The product of 5 and x is 1 less than the sum of 5 and x. Now you can see that answer F is correct. People sometimes have trouble interpreting the meaning of 1 less than. It means subtract 1 from whatever follows. If you read carefully, you will have no trouble solving problems like this one.

Answer every question on the ACT. There is no penalty for wrong answers.

In the figure below, the lengths of $\overline{AB}$ and $\overline{BC}$ are equal, $\overline{AD}$ is a straight line, and the measure of exterior $\angle DBC$ is 100°. What is the measure of $\angle CAB$?



A. 25°
B. 40°
C. 50°
D. 80°
E. 100°

Since AD is a straight line, ∠CBA is the supplement of 100°. Thus, ∠CBA is 180° − 100°, or 80°. Since AB and BC are equal in length, the triangle is isosceles and the base angles (at A and C) are equal. Finally, since the sum of the angles in a triangle is 180°, the sum of the angles at A and C is 180° − 80°, or 100°. Since these angles are equal, each is 50°, answer C. (Remembering that the sum of the remote interior angles in a triangle is equal to the exterior angle would have saved a step.)

Last month an organization spent 30% of its income on postage and 10% of its income on the telephone bill. The postage costs were $240 more than the telephone bill. What was the organization's income last month?

F. $2,400
G. $1,200
H. $ 800
J. $ 600
K. $ 300

Let x = monthly income. Then .30x = the amount of the postage and .10x = the amount of the telephone bill. Since the postage is $240 more than the telephone bill, .30x = .10x + 240. Thus, .20x = 240, and solving the equation gives x = $1,200 (choice G).

For additional information about the ACT, inquire at your high school guidance office, or write:

American College Testing Program
P.O. Box 168
Iowa City, Iowa 52243

Social studies reading

Directions: Each passage in this test is followed by several questions. After reading a passage, choose the best answer to each question and blacken the corresponding space on your answer sheet. You may refer to the passage as often as necessary.

In 1896 the United States Supreme Court ruled in the case of Plessy v. Ferguson that separate rail facilities for blacks and whites were constitutional if the facilities were equal. The decision was used for years, especially in the South, to justify segregation in public accommodations such as restaurants, hotels, and theaters.

The Plessy ruling was also employed to justify the creation and perpetuation of segregation in the public schools of several states. Dual school systems were expanded confidently, also supported by the contention that public education is a state rather than federal responsibility under the constitutional theory of "separation of powers."

Despite the Court's mandating of equality, states made little effort to give black children the same opportunity as white children. After 1896 various state cases questioned whether segregation caused inequality, but not until 1954 did the Supreme Court fundamentally alter Plessy. In that year the Court ruled on a case involving Linda Brown, an eight-year-old student in the Topeka, Kansas, school system.

The Brown case, like Plessy, rested on an interpretation of the Fourteenth Amendment. Chief Justice Earl Warren spoke for a unanimous Court when he wrote: "To separate Negro children from others of similar age and qualification solely because of their race generates a feeling of inferiority as to their status in the community that may affect their hearts and minds in a way unlikely ever to be undone."

The Court held that segregation by race in public schools was unconstitutional. The separate-but-equal doctrine was finally repudiated. With the Brown decision providing a touchstone, civil rights activism and litigation began to reverse the pattern of segregation established by the Plessy case as they forced the legal integration of public accommodations.

Although in 1955 the Court ordered that public schools be integrated "with all deliberate speed," the process of integration has been slow. Objections over methods like busing and the problem of de facto segregation in housing patterns have delayed the full-scale implementation of the Court order. A quarter century after the Brown decision, racial segregation had not disappeared.

Which of the following statements is NOT constitutionally acceptable today?

F. There is a basic principle of separation of powers in our government.
G. Separation with equality in education may be established in state law.
H. A Supreme Court decision is the law of the land.
J. Public education is a state responsibility.

Choice G is correct, based on the first sentence of the fifth paragraph. Separation is another way of saying segregation when discussing the topic of segregation of students in public schools.

The Supreme Court's order to desegregate public schools was based upon its judicial power to:

A. enforce states' rights.
B. interpret the Constitution.
C. control public education.
D. review actions of the executive branch.

Choice B is correct, since the first sentence of the fourth paragraph states that the Brown case, like the Plessy case, rested on interpretation of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Interpretation of any part of the Constitution is interpretation of the Constitution.

In the Brown decision, the Supreme Court ruled that states could NOT:

F. decide on educational issues.
G. use federal money to integrate schools.
H. require segregated schools.
J. bus students to distant school districts.

Choice H is correct, since the first sentence of the fifth paragraph states that the Court held segregation by race in public schools unconstitutional. In other words, the Supreme Court ruled that states could not require segregated schools.

The author implies that incidents like the Montgomery, Alabama, bus boycott of 1956 would illustrate the:

A. failure of the civil rights movement.
B. impact of the Brown decision.
C. weakness of the NAACP.
D. determination of the federal government to implement integration.

Choice B is correct. This question deals with an implication, so the answer is not given directly. Surely, however, there is no implication of failure (A), weakness (C), or federal determination (D).

In the North, school segregation mainly stems from:

F. community housing patterns.
G. local school boards' refusal to obey the Supreme Court.
H. old state laws still in effect.
J. a continued belief in separate but equal facilities.

Choice F is correct, since the second sentence of the final paragraph cites de facto segregation in housing patterns as one reason for delay in full implementation of the Court order in the Brown case. It also mentions the problem of busing methods, but this topic does not appear in the questions.

Social studies

The following questions are not based on a reading passage. You are to answer these questions on the basis of your previous school work in the social studies.

Cases that are ruled upon by the Supreme Court often begin with:

A. bills that the President has vetoed.
B. bills that are reported favorably out of Senate committees.
C. cases decided in previous sessions of the Court in which the vote of the justices had been very close.
D. appeals of decisions rendered by lower state and federal courts.

Choice D is correct, since the Supreme Court has ultimate responsibility for deciding appeals of decisions made by lower state and federal courts. The Court plays no role in regard to bills vetoed by the President (A) or bills reported out of Senate committees (B). As for C, decisions by the Court, no matter how close, are not reviewed by it unless a new suit is first brought.

The Sioux taught the Cheyenne how to dress buffalo hides. This illustrates cultural:

F. invention.
G. diffusion.
H. generation.
J. parallelism.

Choice G is correct, since the question deals with how cultural achievements spread from one group to another. It does not deal with invention (F); generation, which refers to creation of a culture (H); or parallelism, which refers to similarities between cultures (J).

A family that consists of only the parents and their children is termed:

A. a nuclear family.
B. a patrilocal family.
C. a polygamous family.
D. an authoritarian family.

Choice A is correct, since nuclear family is defined as one consisting of a father, mother, and children. A patrilocal family (B) is one located with or near the husband's kinsmen. A polygamous family (C) is one that has additional husbands or wives, but usually additional wives. An authoritarian family (D) describes a family in which the father or mother exercises complete or almost complete control over the other members.

Read the directions twice.

Natural sciences

The following questions are not based on a reading passage. You are to answer these questions on the basis of your previous school work in the natural sciences.

Which factor determines whether moisture condensing out of the atmosphere will produce dew rather than frost?

A. Atmospheric pressure
B. Temperature
C. Relative humidity
D. Availability of condensation surfaces

The main difference between dew and frost is that dew remains liquid while frost freezes solid. Therefore, the correct response is B, temperature. Although relative humidity and the availability of condensation surfaces affect the formation of both dew and frost, the test item states that moisture is condensing out of the atmosphere. Therefore, humidity (C) and condensation surfaces (D) cannot be considered determining factors. Atmospheric pressure (A) has no effect on condensation.

Plants that have thick, waxy cuticles most likely also have:

F. desert environments.
G. long lifespans.
H. aerial roots.
J. no leaves.

A cuticle is a covering, the outer skin of something. A thick, waxy cuticle would help prevent passage of water through it. In a desert environment, this feature would help retain water within the plants that otherwise would be lost through evaporation. Therefore, the correct response is F, desert environments. Waxy cuticles are not necessarily associated with long lifespans (G), aerial roots (H), or absence of leaves (J).

Which of the time periods listed below is closest to the shortest time period in which one could observe every constellation that possibly could be observed directly overhead at midnight from a location on the equator of Earth?

A. 1 month
B. 1 year
C. 10 years
D. 100 years

As Earth travels in its orbit around the sun, the point directly opposite the sun changes each night. That point is always between the tropics of Cancer and Capricorn. Thus, in one year the entire circle of the night sky can be viewed by the observer, and the correct answer is B.

Natural sciences reading

Directions: Each passage in this test is followed by several questions. After reading a passage, choose the best answer to each question and blacken the corresponding space on your answer sheet. You may refer to the passage as often as necessary.

Earth's atmosphere was not always the same as the air we breathe today. Geologic evidence indicates that Earth's atmosphere at one time consisted mainly of water vapor, nitrogen, hydrogen, oxides of carbon and sulfur, and probably methane and ammonia.

Soon after the formation of the atmosphere, certain changes occurred. Some gases were added to it, certain gases were removed, and some gases were changed into others. Through outgassing—the release of gases locked up in rocks inside Earth's mantle and crust—volcanic activity added gases to the atmosphere. Eruptions today emit carbon dioxide, sulfur oxides, nitrogen, and chlorine. Prehistoric volcanoes probably also emitted these gases.

While volcanic activity was adding gases to the atmosphere, certain gases were also being removed. Small amounts of hydrogen escaped into space, and water-soluble gases, such as ammonia, were dissolved by rain water and removed from the atmosphere. These solutions eventually reacted with substances on land or went into solution in seawater.

As gases were added to and removed from the atmosphere, certain gaseous compounds were changed into others. Some gases reacted with each other to form new ones. Hydrogen and fluorine, for example, reacted to form hydrogen fluoride. Other gases were transformed by photodissociation—the splitting of molecules into their parts by radiant energy. The sun's ultraviolet rays broke apart small numbers of water molecules into hydrogen and oxygen. The oxygen released by photodissociation amounted to less than 0.1 percent of all atmospheric gases.

Although these inorganic processes had been working for a long time, the appearance of life had a much greater impact upon the nature of the atmosphere. Before life was formed, the atmosphere contained little carbon dioxide or free oxygen. Early life forms released carbon dioxide into the atmosphere. Somewhat later, photosynthetic organisms developed and began to process water and carbon dioxide, releasing oxygen as a metabolic byproduct. The buildup of oxygen was slow, and by half-a-billion years ago the activity of photosynthetic marine plants had raised the level of oxygen to about 1 percent of the atmosphere. Since then it has risen to its present level of 21 percent of all atmospheric gases. Oxygen and nitrogen are the two major constituents of the present-day atmosphere.

The most direct way to maintain the present level of atmospheric oxygen would be to:

F. screen out all ultraviolet rays from the sun.
G. evaporate large quantities of water.
H. increase volcanic activity.
J. ensure the survival of photosynthetic plants.

The level of oxygen in the atmosphere is quite high. Before photosynthetic plants developed, this level was low. Paragraphs 2 and 4 show that volcanoes did not emit oxygen and ultraviolet radiation acting on water produced little oxygen, so J is correct.

Some scientists believe our present atmosphere contains very little ammonia compared to the earliest atmosphere because ammonia:

A. is used by plants in large amounts.
B. is not emitted by volcanoes.
C. contains a form of nitrogen that decays radioactively.
D. readily goes into solution in water.

The only mention of ammonia removal is in paragraph 3, which states that ammonia is dissolved by rain water and removed from the atmosphere. Dissolved by rain water is equivalent to readily goes into solution in water, making D correct.

Which statement best describes the relationship between the atmosphere and seawater?

F. The ocean is the major source of atmospheric gases.
G. The ocean contains dissolved atmospheric gases.
H. The volume of the ocean is reduced by reactions with atmospheric gases.
J. Reactions triggered by atmospheric gases produce seawater.

Paragraph 3 says some gases went into solution in seawater, that is, dissolved in the ocean, so G is correct.

The earliest life forms on Earth must have been able to survive without taking in:

I. water.
II. free oxygen.
III. carbon dioxide.

A. III only
B. I and II only
C. II and III only
D. I, II, and III

Paragraph 5 states that the early atmosphere contained little carbon dioxide or free oxygen. Organisms that needed these gases could not have survived. On the other hand, the presence of water in the atmosphere is mentioned several times. Therefore, choice C is the correct answer.

If outgassing had been the only process in the formation of the atmosphere, the atmosphere would NOT contain:

A. chlorine.
B. nitrogen.
C. free oxygen.
D. carbon dioxide.

Paragraph 2 says outgassing produces chlorine, nitrogen, and carbon dioxide, so C, free oxygen, is correct. Free oxygen in the atmosphere is produced by photosynthesis.

GRE

The GRE takes three and a half hours of actual test time. It consists of seven general sections. In addition to the general sections, test-takers can elect to take one of the 17 special sections. We cover the general sections only. The seven general sections test verbal ability, quantitative ability, and analytical ability. The general sections do not penalize for guessing. Complete every item whether you are sure of an answer or not.

Antonyms

Although antonym questions test knowledge of vocabulary more directly than do any of the other verbal question types, the purpose of the antonym questions is to measure not merely the strength of one's vocabulary but also the ability to reason from a given concept to its opposite.

Directions: The question below consists of a word printed in capital letters followed by five lettered words or phrases. Choose the lettered word or phrase that is most nearly opposite in meaning to the word in capital letters. Since some of the questions require you to distinguish fine shades of meaning, be sure to consider all the choices before deciding which one is best.

PARSIMONIOUS : (A) initial (B) vegetative (C) prodigal (D) affluent (E) impromptu

The answer to this question is (C); parsimonious means "frugal to the point of stinginess," and prodigal, which means "extravagant to the point of wastefulness," is the only answer choice opposite in meaning. At first, answer choice (D), affluent, may seem plausible in that it may be thought that wealth is an opposite concept to frugality—but it is well known that not all wealthy persons are generous.

Analogies

Analogy questions test the ability to recognize relationships among words and the concepts they represent and to recognize when these relationships are parallel.

Directions: In each of the following questions, a related pair of words or phrases is followed by five lettered pairs of words or phrases. Select the lettered pair that best expresses a relationship similar to that expressed in the original pair.

COLOR : SPECTRUM :: (A) tone : scale (B) sound : waves (C) verse : poem (D) dimension : space (E) cell : organism

The relationship between color and spectrum is not merely that of part to whole, in which case (E) or even (C) might be defended as correct. A spectrum is made up of a progressive, graduated series of colors, as a scale is of a progressive, graduated sequence of tones. Thus, (A) is correct. Here, the best answer must be selected from a group of fairly close choices.

Sentence completions

The sentence completion questions measure the ability to recognize words or phrases that both logically and stylistically complete the meaning of a sentence.

Directions: The sentences below have two blanks, each blank indicating that something has been omitted. Beneath the sentence are five lettered words or sets of words. Choose the word or set of words for each blank that best fits the meaning of the sentence as a whole.

Early ------- of hearing loss is ------- by the fact that the other senses are able to compensate for moderate amounts of loss, so that people frequently do not know that their hearing is imperfect.

(A) discovery . . indicated
(B) development . . prevented
(C) detection . . complicated
(D) treatment . . facilitated
(E) incidence . . corrected

The statement that other senses compensate for partial loss of hearing indicates that hearing loss is not prevented or corrected, eliminating choices (B) and (E). The ability to compensate for hearing loss does not facilitate early treatment (D) or early discovery (A) of hearing loss. It is reasonable, however, that early detection of hearing loss is complicated by the ability to compensate for it. The correct answer is (C).

The ------- science of seismology has grown just enough so that the first overly bold theories have been -------.

(A) magnetic . . accepted
(B) fledgling . . refuted
(C) revolutionary . . analyzed
(D) predictive . . protected
(E) exploratory . . recalled

At first reading, there may appear to be several answer choices that make sense when substituted in the blanks of the sentence. (A) and (D).can be dismissed fairly readily when it is seen that accepted and protected are not compatible with overly bold in the sentence. The sentence yielded by (C) is logically more acceptable but not as strong as the sentences yielded by (B) and (E). Of these two latter choices, (B) is superior on stylistic grounds: theories are not recalled (E), and fledgling (B) reflects the idea of growth present in the sentence.

Quantitative comparison

The quantitative comparison questions test the ability to reason quickly and accurately about the relative sizes of two quantities or to perceive that not enough information is provided to make such a decision.

Directions: The following question consists of two quantities, one in Column A and one in Column B. You are to compare the two quantities and choose

A if the quantity in Column A is greater;
B if the quantity in Column B is greater;
C if the two quantities are equal;
D if the relationship cannot be determined from the information given.

Note: Since there are only four choices, NEVER MARK (E).

Common Information: In a question, information concerning one or both of the quantities to be compared is centered under the two columns. A symbol that appears in both columns represents the same thing in Column A as it does in Column B.

	Column A	Column B
	$(273 \times 87) + q = 29{,}235$
	$(273 \times 87) + p = 30{,}063$
1.	p	q

It is unnecessary to do much computation to solve this problem. The sum of a number and q is less than the sum of the same number and p. Therefore $q < p$, and the answer is A.

	Column A	Column B
	$x^2 = y^2 + 1$
2.	x	y

From the given equation, it can be determined that $x^2 > y^2$; however, the relative sizes of x and y cannot be determined. For example, if $y = 0$, x could be 1 or -1 and, since there is no way to tell which number x is, the answer is D.

	Column A	Column B
3.	$(-6)^4$	$(-6)^5$

Since $(-6)^4$ is the product of four negative factors and the product of an even number of negative numbers is positive, $(-6)^4$ is positive. Since the product of an odd number of negative numbers is negative, $(-6)^5$ is negative. Therefore $(-6)^4$ is greater than $(-6)^5$ since any positive number is greater than any negative number. The correct answer is A. Do not waste time determining that $(-6)^4 = 1{,}296$ and that $(-6)^5 = -7{,}776$. This information is not needed to make the comparison.

Discrete quantitative

Each question contains all information needed for answering it except for the basic mathematical knowledge assumed common to the backgrounds of examinees.

Directions: Each of the following questions has five answer choices. For each of these questions, select the best of the answer choices given.

The average of x and y is 20. If $z = 5$, what is the average of x, y, and z?

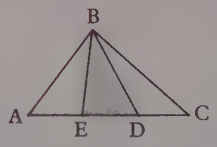
(A) $8\frac{1}{3}$ (B) 10 (C) $12\frac{1}{2}$ (D) 15 (E) $17\frac{1}{2}$

Since the average of x and y is 20, $\frac{x+y}{2} = 20$ or $x + y = 40$. Thus $x + y + z = x + y + 5 = 40 + 5 = 45$ and therefore $\frac{x+y+z}{3} = \frac{45}{3} = 15$. The correct answer is (D).

Several years ago, Minnesota produced $\frac{2}{3}$ and Michigan $\frac{1}{6}$ of all the iron ore produced in the United States. If all the other states combined produced 18 million tons in a year, how many million tons did Minnesota produce that year?

(A) 27 (B) 36 (C) 54 (D) 72 (E) 162

Since Minnesota produced $\frac{2}{3}$ and Michigan $\frac{1}{6}$ of all the iron ore produced in the United States, the two states together produced $\frac{5}{6}$ of the iron ore. Therefore, the 18 million tons produced by the rest of the United States was $\frac{1}{6}$ of the total production. Thus, total United States production was $6 \cdot 18 = 108$ million tons, and Minnesota produced $\frac{2}{3}(108) = 72$ million tons. The correct answer is (D).



In the figure above, if $AE = ED = DC$ and the area of the shaded region is 5, what is the area of $\triangle ABC$?

(A) 10 (B) 12.5 (C) 15 (D) 20 (E) 25

In this problem, the shaded triangular region has a base that is $\frac{1}{3}$ that of $\triangle ABC$ and has the same height as $\triangle ABC$. Therefore, the area of the shaded region is $\frac{1}{3}$ the area of $\triangle ABC$, and the area of $\triangle ABC = 3(5) = 15$. The answer is (C).

Publications containing current information about the GRE may be obtained from your school guidance office, or from:

Graduate Record Examinations
CN 6000
Princeton, NJ 08541-6000

Analytical reasoning

Analytical reasoning questions test the ability to understand a given structure of arbitrary relationships among fictitious persons, places, things, or events; to deduce new information from the relationships given; and to assess the conditions used to establish the structure of relationships.

To apply to college a student must see the school counselor, obtain a transcript at the transcript office, and obtain a recommendation from Teacher A or Teacher B.
A student must see the counselor before obtaining a transcript.
The counselor is available only Friday mornings and Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons.
The transcript office is open only Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, Thursday afternoons, and Friday mornings.
Teacher A is available only Monday and Wednesday mornings.
Teacher B is available only Monday afternoons and Friday mornings.

A student has already seen the counselor and does not care from which teacher she obtains her recommendation. Which of the following is a complete and accurate list of those days when she could possibly complete the application process in one day?

(A) Friday (B) Monday, Wednesday
(C) Monday, Friday (D) Wednesday, Friday
(E) Monday, Wednesday, Friday

To complete the application process in one day, the student has to obtain a transcript and a recommendation on the same day. This will be possible on Wednesdays, when both the transcript office and Teacher A are accessible, and on Fridays, when both the transcript office and Teacher B are accessible, and at no other time. The only other day a teacher recommendation can be obtained is Monday, but on Mondays no transcripts can be obtained. Thus, the correct answer is (D).

A student completed his application procedure in one day. Which of the following statements must be true?

I. He obtained his recommendation from Teacher A.
II. He obtained his recommendation from Teacher B.
III. He completed the procedure in the morning.

(A) I only (B) II only (C) III only
(D) I and III only (E) II and III only

If a student completed the entire application procedure in a single day, that day must have been a Friday. It could not have been a Monday, since on Mondays neither counselor nor transcript office is accessible. It could not have been either a Tuesday or a Thursday, because on neither of these days would a teacher have been available for a recommendation. And it could not have been a Wednesday because on Wednesdays one cannot see the counselor before obtaining a transcript. Now, given that the student in question must have done everything on a Friday, I must be false since Teacher A is not available on Fridays, II must be true since Teacher B is both available on Fridays and the only teacher to be so available, and III must also be true since on Fridays all of the relevant business can be conducted only in the morning. Therefore, the correct answer is (E).

Logical reasoning

Logical reasoning questions test the ability to understand, analyze, and evaluate arguments. Some of the abilities tested by specific questions include recognizing the point of an argument, recognizing assumptions on which an argument is based, drawing conclusions from given premises, inferring material missing from given passages, applying principles governing one argument to another, identifying methods of argument, evaluating arguments and counterarguments, and analyzing evidence.

There is no reason to rule out the possibility of life on Uranus. We must, then, undertake the exploration of that planet.

The argument above assumes that

(A) life exists on Uranus
(B) Uranus is the only other planet in the solar system capable of supporting life
(C) Uranian life would be readily recognizable as life
(D) the search for life is a sufficient motive for space exploration
(E) no one has previously proposed the exploration of Uranus

The argument is based on the weak claim that there is a possibility that life may exist on Uranus and not on the stronger claim that life on Uranus actually exists; since logically weak claims do not presuppose logically stronger claims, (A) is not an assumption. (B) is likewise readily eliminated since the author's argument is presented as independent of any comparison of Uranus with other planets. (E) is also clearly not the correct answer: There is no hint in the argument that its author takes it to be a novel one or takes its conclusion to be a novel one. (C) comes closer to being an assumption of the argument: If the mere possibility of the existence of life on Uranus is taken as an impetus for exploration, we can safely conclude that a major aim of any such exploration would be to ascertain whether or not there actually was life on Uranus. But this search for life does not presuppose that the techniques scientists on Earth have for detecting life will be adequate for recognizing possibly alien life forms in every case. Even less is it presupposed that this task will be relatively easy. So (C) cannot be an assumption of the argument. The correct answer is (D), for, if (D) is true, the mere possibility of there being life on Uranus is indeed a compelling reason for the exploration of the planet.

Review of French Grammar

- Articles 352
- Pronouns and adjectives 354
- Verbs 360
- Numbers, dates, time 368
- French-English dictionary 370
- English-French dictionary 375

French grammar shares certain characteristics with English grammar, as you may recall from the time when you first studied these languages. For the most part, the names of the parts of speech and the terms used to show how words function in a sentence are the same. If you have any difficulty in recalling the meanings of any words used in this chapter, consult the dictionary in volume 2 of the Student Handbook. No matter how long you have been away from the formal study of French, you will quickly find yourself recalling what you once knew.

Articles

Definite articles

Nouns normally are preceded by a definite or indefinite article or by another introductory word. The uses of the definite article (le, la, les, l') are shown in the following examples.

Before a noun used in a general or abstract sense.

L'argent ne fait pas le bonheur.
Money does not make for happiness.

Articles

	Singular		Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Both genders
Definite	le, l'	la, l'	les
Indefinite	un, de	une, de	des

With a title of office or profession followed by a name, except in direct address.

Le président Mitterrand. President Mitterrand.

With proper nouns that are modified.

La pauvre Louise. Poor Louise.

With the name of a language, except immediately after parler and after en.

Il apprend l'italien. He is learning Italian.
Il parle italien. He speaks Italian.
en italien in Italian

In the singular, with days of the week, to show regularly repeated action.

Il vient ici le mardi et le jeudi.
He comes here on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

With names of seasons and colors.

L'été est la plus chaude des saisons.
Summer is the hottest of the seasons.

Le rose ne vous va pas bien.
Pink does not suit you.

To express "in" with a part of the day.

Le matin je me lève de bonne heure.
In the morning I get up early.

With nouns of weight and measure to express "a," "an," or "per."

trente-cinq francs le kilo thirty-five francs a kilo

quinze francs la bouteille fifteen francs a bottle

Cette soie coûte cent francs le mètre.
This silk costs one hundred francs a meter.

To express frequency of occurrence, par is used.

deux fois par an twice a year

With place names, except names of cities.

le Japon, l'Amérique, l'Asie Japan, America, Asia

To express "in," "to," and "from" with names of countries and continents.

For all European countries (except Belgium, Luxembourg, and the Netherlands) and all countries and continents whose names are feminine singular.

For "to" and "in," use en and omit the article.

For "from," use de and omit the article.

J'ai voyagé en Espagne. I have traveled in Spain.

Je reviens d'Espagne. I am returning from Spain.

With countries whose names are plural and all countries outside of Europe whose names are masculine singular.

For "to" and "in," use à and the article (à le = au).

For "from," use de and the article (de le = du).

Nous allons au Canada, au Mexique, au Japon.
We are going to Canada, Mexico, and Japan.

Nous revenons du Canada, du Mexique, du Japon.
We are coming back from Canada, Mexico, and Japan.

With names of parts of the body, and often with articles of clothing, when the possessor is clear.

Elle m'a donné la main.
She gave me her hand.

Il avait le chapeau sur la tête.
He had his hat on his head.

Indefinite articles

The indefinite article (un, une, de, des) is omitted before an unmodified noun denoting nationality, profession, religion, etc.

Nationality.

Est-il américain? Is he an American?

Profession.

Il est étudiant et il voudrait devenir acteur.
He is a student and would like to become an actor.

Religion.

Êtes-vous protestant? Are you a Protestant?

Before nouns in apposition.

M. Durand, professeur de français
Mr. Durand, a French teacher

Before the numbers cent and mille.

cent fois a hundred times

mille baisers a thousand kisses

After an exclamatory adjective (quel, quelle, etc.).

Quelle fraise délicieuse!
What a delicious strawberry!

In numerical titles of monarchs.

Henri Quatre Henry the Fourth

If a noun is modified, the article must be used.

C'est un acteur célèbre.
He is a famous actor.

Partitives

A partitive (de, de la, de l', du, des) corresponds to "some" or "any," whether expressed or not. Des may express either the partitive plural or indefinite plural.

Singular.

Il a un crayon. He has a pencil.

La carotte est un légume. The carrot is a vegetable.

Plural.

Il a des crayons.
He has pencils.

On cultive des légumes de toutes sortes en France.
They grow vegetables of all kinds in France.

Partitive.

Donnez-lui du pain. Give him some bread.

Avez-vous du sucre? Do you have any sugar?

Il a acheté des légumes. He bought vegetables.

Uses of de

Without the article after a negative expression.

Elle ne fait pas de fautes.
She does not make mistakes.

When an adjective precedes the noun.

J'ai vu de beaux papillons.
I saw some beautiful butterflies.

After expressions of quantity.

Il a beaucoup de cousins. He has many cousins.

With adverbs of quantity

The following adverbs of quantity, with certain exceptions, take only de.

assez	enough
autant	as much, as many beaucoup	much, many, a lot combien	how much, how many moins	less
peu	little, few
plus	more
tant	so much, so many trop	too much, too many

The partitive is omitted after sans and ni . . . ni.

Il n'y a pas de rose sans épines.
There are no roses without thorns.

Il n'a ni frères ni soeurs.
He has neither brothers nor sisters.

The partitive is omitted after expressions that normally take de: avoir besoin de "to need," se passer de "to get along without," se servir de "to use," se souvenir de "to remember," s'approcher de "to approach," remplir de "to fill with," couvrir de "to cover with."

Elle ne peut pas se passer de sucre.
She cannot get along without sugar.

Elle a besoin de secours.
She needs help.

If the noun is omitted, the idea of "some" or "any" is expressed by the pronoun en.

Avez-vous des amis? Oui, j'en ai.
Have you any friends? Yes, I have some.

Avez-vous besoin de votre voiture? Oui, j'en ai besoin.
Do you need your car? Yes, I need it.

Pronouns and adjectives

Personal pronouns

Pronoun-verb order

Personal object pronouns directly precede the verb, except in affirmative commands. In the affirmative imperative, object pronouns are placed directly after the verb and are linked to it by hyphens. The pronouns me and te become moi and toi after the verb, but when followed by en, they become m' and t'.

Me réveillez-vous? Are you waking me up?
Ne les a-t-il pas réveillés? Didn't he wake them up?
Ne les réveillez pas. Do not wake them up.
Réveillons-la. Let's wake her up.
Réveillez-moi. Wake me up.

Double object pronouns, like single object pronouns, as well as y and en, directly precede the verb, except in the case of the affirmative imperative where they follow the verb.

Je compte la lui raconter. I propose to tell it to him.
Tu me la prêtes. You lend it to me.
Il les y a trouvés. He found them there.

Forms of personal pronouns

Conjunctive				Disjunctive
Subject	Direct object	Indirect object	Reflexive
je (j')	me (m')	me (m')	me (m')	moi
tu	te (t')	te (t')	te (t')	toi
il	le (l')	lui	se (s')	lui
elle	la (l')	lui	se (s')	elle
nous	nous	nous	nous	nous
vous	vous	vous	vous	vous
ils	les	leur	se (s')	eux
elles	les	leur	se (s')	elles

Order of personal pronouns

me / te / se / nous / vous before le / la / les before lui / leur before y before en before verb

Il n'en a pas besoin. He does not need any.
Il nous les a donnés. He gave them to us.
Donnez-le-moi. Give it to me.
Donnez-m'en. Give me some.

Uses of disjunctive pronouns

After a preposition.
avant toi before you sans lui without him derrière eux behind them pour elle for her

When there is no verb.
pas moi not I

Qui l'a dérangé? Elle.
Who disturbed him? She.

Il a plus d'argent qu'eux.
He has more money than they.

As a complement after être.
C'est lui. It is he. C'est moi. It is I.
C'est elle. It is she. Ce sont eux. It is they.

For emphasis.
Lui, il l'a fait. He did it.
Elles ne l'aiment pas, lui. They don't like him.

When a subject or object is separated from its verb.
Lui seul peut le dire. He alone can say it.
Il n'a vu ni lui ni elle. He saw neither him nor her.

With two subjects, objects, or indirect objects.
Lui et moi nous sommes partis hier.
He and I left yesterday.

Je vous ai vous, vous et elle.
I saw you and her.

With même or mêmes for emphasis.
Je l'ai fait moi-même.
I did it myself.

Ils y sont allés eux-mêmes.
They went there themselves.

Forms of relative pronouns

qui	as subject of the verb: who or which que	as direct object of the verb: whom, which, or that lequel, laquelle lesquels, lesquelles	as object of a preposition: whom or which qui quoi dont	whose, of whom, of which

Relative pronouns

Qui is used as subject of the verb of a relative clause.
C'est l'enfant qui a fait cela.
It is the child that did that.

C'est le livre qui est sur la table.
It is the book that is on the table.

Que is used as direct object of the verb of a relative clause.
C'est la femme que vous connaissez.
It is the woman you know.

Ce sont les livres que vous m'avez donnés.
These are the books you gave me.

Lequel, laquelle, lesquels, and lesquelles agree in gender and number with their antecedents. Lequel, lesquels, and lesquelles contract with the preposition à into auquel, auxquels, and auxquelles; with the preposition de into duquel, desquels, and desquelles. Laquelle does not combine.

For persons, qui is generally preferred to lequel, laquelle, etc.
Où sont les messieurs avec qui vous parliez?
Where are the gentlemen with whom you were talking?

For things, a form of lequel has to be used.
La voiture auprès de laquelle il était lui appartient.
The car he was near belongs to him.

The invariable dont combines the sense of de plus a relative pronoun (qui, lequel, quoi).
le garçon dont le père est médecin
the boy whose father is a doctor

le crayon dont je me sers
the pencil I am using

The order of words in a relative clause is dont (or duquel, de laquelle, etc.) + subject + verb + object. To avoid mistakes in translation of sentences with the relative "whose," replace "whose" with "of whom," "of which," "from which," "in which."
un livre dont j'ai oublié le titre
a book whose title I have forgotten

Où may serve as an adverb replacing à, en, dans, sur, plus lequel, when the antecedent is a noun of place.
la maison où j'habite
the house in which I live

le trottoir où la neige tombait
the sidewalk on which the snow was falling le village d'où je viens

the village from which I come

The words "which," "what," and "that" (= a thing which, the thing which, that which) may be translated as follows:

ce qui, subject of a verb
Ce qui est sur la table est à moi.
What is on the table belongs to me.

ce que, direct object of a verb
Ce que tu m'as dit est un secret.
What you told me is a secret.
ce dont, used with expressions taking de Comprends-tu ce dont il parle?
Do you understand what he is talking about?
ce à quoi, used with expressions taking à Personne ne pouvait deviner ce à quoi je pensais.
No one could guess what I was thinking of.

Interrogatives

Qui a cassé la tasse?
Qui est-ce qui a cassé la tasse?
Who broke the cup?

Qui regardez-vous?
Qui est-ce que vous regardez?
Whom are you looking at?

Avec qui parle-t-il?
Avec qui est-ce qu'il parle?
With whom is he talking?

De quoi est-ce qu'il parle?
A quoi pensez-vous?
What is he talking about?
What are you thinking of?

When à and de are used with forms of lequel, the usual contractions take place.
Laquelle de ces filles est la vôtre?
Which of these girls is yours?

Auquel de ces garçons avez-vous parlé?
To which one of these boys did you speak?

Quel (quelle, quels, quelles) is the interrogative adjective "which" or "what."
Quelle robe as-tu choisie?
Which dress did you choose?

Quel livre lisez-vous?
What book are you reading?

Possessives

Adjectives and pronouns agree in gender and number with the object possessed.
Il a pris mon livre et le sien.
He took his book and mine.

Il emmène sa fille et la mienne.
He is taking his daughter and mine.

Son père est plus sévère que le nôtre.
Her father is stricter than ours.

With parts of the body, the possessive adjective is often replaced by the definite article if the identity of the possessor is clear.
Elle s'est coupé le doigt.
She cut her finger.

Elles se sont lavé les mains.
They washed their hands.

The definite article preceding the possessive pronoun contracts after à and de.
Cette valise est-elle aux (not à les) enfants?
Is this suitcase the children's?

Non, elle est aux filles.
No, it's the girls'.

Idiomatic expressions with possessives.
un de mes voisins
a neighbor of mine

bonjour ma tante
good morning, aunt une de ses soeurs

one of his sisters

Dites-leur bonjour de ma part.
Say hello to them for me.

Serez-vous des nôtres?
Will you join us?

The word "own" is expressed by propre.
Il l'a écrit de sa propre main.
He wrote it with his own hand.

Forms of interrogative pronouns

	Subject	Direct object	Object of preposition persons	qui who qui est-ce qui who	qui whom qui est-ce que whom	qui whom things	qu'est-ce qui what	que what qu'est-ce que what	quoi what persons and things	lequel, etc. which and which one	lequel, etc. which and which one	lequel, etc. which and which one after prepositions	qui	quoi

Demonstratives

The following examples illustrate the uses of demonstrative adjectives.

cet avion	this or that	airplane
ce livre		book
cette robe		dress
ces avions	these or those	airplanes
ces livres		books
ces robes		dresses

Uses of -ci, -là, etc.

In principle -ci refers to the nearest object, -là to the farthest, but this distinction is not strictly observed unless objects are contrasted.

Comment trouvez-vous ces maisons?
How do you like these (those) houses?

Je préfère cette maison-ci, celle-là est trop grande.
I like this house better; that one is too big.

With demonstrative pronouns, -ci or -là must be added when the pronoun is not followed by a relative clause or by a prepositional complement. Celui, celle, ceux, and celles cannot be used alone.

Quelle route faut-il prendre?
What road must we take?

Celle-ci ou celle-là?
This one or that one?

Prenons celle de droite.
Let's take the one on the right.

Ceci, cela, ça, and ce are invariable demonstrative pronouns.

ceci	this, it	ça	this, that, it
cela	that, it	ce	it

Ne prenez pas ceci, prenez cela.
Do not take this; take that.

Ça ne fait rien.
It does not matter.

Ceci or cela must be used instead of ce when emphasis is desired and when "this" and "that" are contrasted and the pronoun is separated from the verb by any word other than ne.

Ceci est correct, cela ne l'est pas.
This is correct; that is not.

Cela n'est pas vrai.
That is not true.

The neuter demonstrative ce is used as the subject of être (or devoir or pouvoir être) only in four instances.

1. When être is followed by an adjective, ce designates something not previously named, or refers to a thought expressed or understood, or refers to a statement.
   Paris est une grande ville; c'est la plus belle du monde.
   Paris is a beautiful city; it is the most beautiful in the world.

   Ce devait être interressant.
   It must have been interesting.
2. When a noun or pronoun follows être.
   Ce doit être celle de mon frère.
   It must be my brother's.
3. When an antecedent is ceci or cela.
   Goûtez ceci. C'est très bon.
   Taste this. It is very good.
4. When être is followed by an adverb or complement.
   Ce n'est pas assez. It is not enough.

Forms of demonstratives

	Adjectives		Pronouns
	Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
Masc.	ce (before a consonant) cet (before a vowel)	ces	celui	ceux
Fem.	cette	ces	celle	celles

Forms of possessive adjectives

	Singular		Plural
	Masc.	Fem.
my	mon	ma	mes
your	ton	ta	tes
his, her, its	son	sa	ses
our	notre	notre	nos
your	votre	votre	vos
their	leur	leur	leurs

Note: Use mon, ton, son instead of ma, ta, sa before a word beginning with a vowel or a silent h.

Forms of possessive pronouns

	Singular		Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
mine	le mien	la mienne	les miens	les miennes
yours	le tien	la tienne	les tiens	les miennes
his, hers, its	le sien	la sienne	les siens	les siennes
ours	le nôtre	la nôtre	les nôtres	les nôtres
yours	le vôtre	la vôtre	les vôtres	les vôtres
theirs	le leur	la leur	les leurs	les leurs

Indefinites

Uses of on

To translate the indefinite "one," "we," "you," "they," or "people" when there is no definite antecedent.

On n'est pas toujours heureux.
One is not always happy.

On ne sait jamais.
You never know.

On ne fait pas cela ici.
People don't do that here.

If faut qu'on se dépêche.
We must hurry.

On ne doit pas toujours parler de soi.
One must not speak always about himself.

On répare notre voiture.
Our car is being repaired.

Ici on ne sera pas dérangés.
Here we will not be disturbed.

Uses of quelque

Quelque and quelques are adjectives. In using these words there is no agreement in gender or elision of the final -e in the singular. Quelque and quelques are slightly more specific than the partitive.

On va acheter quelques pommes.
We are going to buy some apples.

Quelqu'un, quelqu'une, quelques uns, and quelques unes are the corresponding pronouns.

Quelqu'un l'a cassé.
Someone broke it.

Donnez-moi quelques unes de vos fleurs.
Give me some of your flowers.

Quelque chose, a pronoun meaning "something" or "anything," is followed by de before an adjective. It does not require agreement in gender.

Y a-t-il quelque chose qui manque?
Is anything missing?

Oui, il y a quelque chose qui manque.
Yes, something is missing.

Similarly with pas grand'chose "little," autre chose "something else," and peu de chose "little," or "not much."

Common indefinite adjectives and pronouns

Plusieurs, plural adjective and pronoun meaning "several." It shows no agreement for gender.

Nous y sommes allés plusieurs fois.
We went there several times.

J'en ai vu plusieurs.
I saw several of them.

Chaque, singular pronoun meaning "each" or "every." It shows no agreement for gender, no elision.

Chaque artiste est orgueilleux de son oeuvre.
Every artist is proud of his work.

Chacun and chacune, singular pronouns meaning "each" or "each one."

Chacun a ses propres traditions.
Each one has its own traditions.

Tout, toute, tous, and toutes, pronouns and adjectives meaning "all," "entire," and "every." In the singular (tout, toute) without an article, these words mean "every"; with the article, "the whole." In the plural (tous, toutes), these words are always accompanied by an article or similar word. As adjectives they precede the noun and the article. These words are never followed by de.

Tout chemin mène à Rome.
Every road leads to Rome.

Toutes les bêtes s'étaient sauvées.
All the animals had escaped.

Tous les hommes avaient embarqué.
All the men had embarked.

Tous avaient embarqué.
All had embarked.

Tel, telle, tels, telles, adjectives and pronouns meaning "such," "similar," and "the like." Tel as an adjective agrees in gender and number with the noun it modifies. It is preceded by an indefinite article or partitive (un, une, de) when tel does not introduce a comparison.

Il ne s'attendait pas à une telle chance.
He did not expect such luck.

Tel père tel fils.
Like father like son.

Un and une are pronouns only in two constructions:

1. When followed by de as one of the objects or persons indicated.
   Une de ces tasses est cassée.
   One of these cups is broken.
2. In contrast with autre: l'un, l'autre; les uns, les autres.
   Nous avons besoin l'un de l'autre.
   We need each other.

Même and mêmes are used as adjectives meaning "same" before a noun, or "very" or "itself" after a noun; as an adverb meaning "even."

à l'heure même il arrivait à Paris at the very hour he was arriving in Paris

Ce n'est pas la même chose.
It is not the same thing.

Ce n'est même pas vrai.
It is not even true.

Quiconque, a pronoun meaning "anyone who" or "whoever."

Quiconque le fera sera récompensé.
Whoever does it will be rewarded.

Quelconque, an adjective meaning "any," "of whatever sort," and "no matter what," as an attributive or predicate adjective, meaning "ordinary."

Cette femme est quelconque.
This woman is common.

Donnez-moi un crayon quelconque.
Give me any pencil at all.

Qui que, quoi que, quel que, relative pronouns and adjectives combined with que and followed by the subjunctive have an all inclusive sense, and are translated as follows: qui que ce soit "whoever it may be," quoi que ce soit "whatever it may be," quel que soit "whatever," as in quel que soit l'heure, "whatever the time." These expressions are the most emphatic forms of quelque chose and quelqu'un.

Si vous dîtes quoi que ce soit à qui que ce soit, vous le regretterez.
If you say anything at all (whatever it may be) to anyone (without exception, whoever it may be), you will regret it.

Negation

Negation is expressed by ne before the verb plus the second part of a negative expression after it. The principal negative expressions are shown here in two groups.

Group A
ne . . . que	only, none but ne . . . ni . . . ni	neither . . . nor ne . . . personne	nobody ne . . . aucun	no, none, not any Group B
ne . . . pas	not
ne . . . point	not (less common than ne . . . pas)
ne . . . guère	hardly, scarcely ne . . . plus	no more, no longer
ne . . . jamais	never
ne . . . rien	nothing

Placement of the negative expression

In a declarative sentence with a verb in a simple tense, the two parts of the negative are placed before and after the verb.

Elle ne mange pas. She does not eat.
Il n'est pas ici. He is not here.

With compound tenses, the two parts of the negative of Group A expressions are placed before and after the auxiliary verb (avoir or être).

Je n'ai jamais fait cela. I have never done that.
Il n'a guère mangé. He scarcely ate.

With compound tenses, the two parts of the negative of Group B expressions are placed before and after the complete verb.

Il n'a lu aucun de ces livres.
He read none of these books.

Il n'a vu personne.
He saw no one.

Additional rules of negation

Only conjunctive and reflexive object pronouns (me, te, le, lui, nous, vous, les, leur, se, y, en) can come between ne and the verb.

Il ne lui parle pas. He does not speak to him.
Elle ne les a pas vus. She did not see them.

Ne . . . aucun!

Ne . . . jamais!

When the negative is used with an infinitive, both parts come before the infinitive and its pronoun objects, if any.

Il a promis de ne plus la voir.
He promised not to see her again.

The que of ne . . . que immediately precedes the word it modifies.

Je n'ai acheté que deux livres.
I bought only two books.

Je n'ai parlé qu'à lui seul.
I spoke only to him.

Personne, rien, and aucun may be used as subjects and as objects of verbs as well as objects of prepositions. Ne must not be omitted.

Personne ne peut faire cela. No one can do that.
Aucun n'est venu. No one came.
Je n'ai rien entendu. I heard nothing.

Ne may sometimes be used without pas with the verbs cesser, oser, savoir, and pouvoir, especially when followed by an infinitive and in some expressions that imply hesitancy rather than definite negation.

Je n'ose le dire. I hardly dare say it.
Je ne saurais vous le dire. I couldn't tell you.
Elle ne cesse de parler. She does not stop talking.

Si must be used instead of oui in answering a negative question affirmatively.

Ne l'avez-vous pas vu? Haven't you seen it?
Si, je l'ai vu. Yes, I have.

Jamais used without ne means "ever."

A-t-on jamais vû pareille chose?
Has anyone ever seen such a thing?

Rien used without ne means "anything."

Y a-t-il rien de plus beau?
Is there anything lovelier?

Verbs

Regular verbs

The infinitives of regular verbs end in -er, -ir, or -re. The examples shown here are donner, finir, and rompre.

Formation of tenses

The simple tenses of all regular verbs and most irregular verbs derive from four forms of the verb.

Conjugation of regular verbs

Formation of tenses

Use the infinitive to form:

Future

Infinitive plus -ai, -as, -a, -ons, -ez, -ont.
Example: *donner*ai

Conditional

Infinitive plus -ais, -ais, -ait, -ions, -iez, -aient
Example: *donner*ais
In the third conjugation the final e is dropped Example: *rompr*ai

Use the present participle to form:

Imperfect indicative

Change -ant to -ais, -ais, ait, -ions, -iez, -aient.
Example: *donn*ais

Present subjunctive

Change -ant to -e, -es, -e, -ions, -iez, -ent.
Example: *donn*e

Moods

Indicative

	Present I give, finish, break I do give, finish, break			Imperfect I was giving, finishing, breaking
je	donne	finis	romps	donnais	finissais	rompais
tu	donnes	finis	romps	donnais	finissais	rompais
il	donne	finit	romp	donnait	finissait	rompait
nous	donnons	finissons	rompons	donnions	finissions	rompions
vous	donnez	finissez	rompez	donniez	finissiez	rompiez
ils	donnent	finissent	rompent	donnaient	finissaient	rompaient

Conditional

	Present I should give, finish, break
je	donnerais	finirais	romprais
tu	donnerais	finirais	romprais
il	donnerait	finirait	romprait
nous	donnerions	finirions	romprions
vous	donneriez	finiriez	rompriez
ils	donneraient	finiraient	rompraient

Subjunctive

	Present that I give, finish, break que je	donne	finisse	rompe
que tu	donnes	finisses	rompes
qu'il	donne	finisses	rompe
que nous	donnions	finissions	rompions
que vous	donniez	finissiez	rompiez
qu'ils	donnent	finissent	rompent

Don't forget to write

le 5 septembre, 1

Mon cher Georges,
J'avais promis de vous mettre courant de tout ce qui m'arrive pendant mon séjour à New York. J sais que trop bien que j'ai manq de parole, car je serai de retou Paris bientôt. Cependant, je v prie de ne pas me tenir rigueur négligence. J'ai été tellement occupé que c'est à peine si j'a le temps d'écrire à mes parents À bientôt.

Ton ami,
Robert

the present indicative to form:
rative
pronoun subject is dropped from the second person singular from the first and second person plural. The -s of the first igation is dropped except before y and en.
mple: donne, donnons, donnez

the past definite to form:
rfect subjunctive ge the final -i or -s of the first person singular form to -sses, -t, -ssions, -ssiez, -ssent. A circumflex accent ced over the last vowel of the third person singular.
mple: donnât

definite e, finished, broke

Future
I shall give, finish, break

ai	finis	rompis	donnerai	finirai	romprai
as	finis	rompis	donneras	finiras	rompras
a	finit	rompit	donnera	finira	rompra
âmes	finîmes	rompîmes	donnerons	finirons	romprons
âtes	finîtes	rompîtes	donnerez	finirez	romprez
èrent	finirent	rompirent	donneront	finiront	rompront

Infinitive	-er	-ir	-re
	donner	finir	rompre
	to give	to finish	to break
Participles
Present	giving	finishing	breaking
	donnant	finissant	rompant
Past	given	finished	broken
	donné	fini	rompu
Imperative
Singular	give	finish	break
	donne	finis	romps
Plural	let's give	let's finish	let's break
	donnons	finissons	rompons
	give	finish	break
	donnez	finissez	rompez

September 5, 1985

Dear George,
I had promised to tell you all the things that happened to me during my visit to New York. I know too well that I have broken my promise, but I shall be back in Paris soon.
However, I hope you will not hold this against me. I have been so busy that I have not had time even to write to my parents.
See you soon.

Your friend,
Robert

Verbal spelling irregularities

Spelling changes often occur in regular verbs. These changes appear to be needed to retain the original sounds within the infinitive forms. As you will shortly see, for example, by adding a cedilla to c, the soft c of verbs ending in cer is retained before vowels that normally would make the c hard.

Spelling irregularities of regular verbs

Verb ending	Change	Example Present participle	Present indicative	Imperfect indicative	Past definite	Imperfect subjunctive
-cer avancer to advance	requires the soft c sound throughout the conjugation.	avançant	avance avançons	avançais avancions	avançai avançâmes	avançasse avançassions
-ger manger to eat	requires the soft g, so g followed by a or o becomes ge.	mangeant	mange mangeons	mangeais mangions	mangeai mangeâmes	mangeasse mangeassions
			Present indicative	Future	Conditional	Present subjunctive
-oyer -uyer netoyer to clean	y changes to i before e in conjugation, but not elsewhere.		nettoie, etc.	nettoierai	nettoierais	nettoie, etc.
-ayer -eyer payer to clean	may either retain y throughout, or change to i before e.		paye paie	payerai paierai	payerais paierais	paye paie
-er when unaccented and followed by a single consonant mener to lead	e changes to è when the ending begins with an unstressed e		mène mènes mène menons menez mènent	mènerai mèneras mènera mènerons mènerez mèneront	mènerais mènerais mènerait mènerions mèneriez mèneraient	mène mènes mène menions meniez mènent
-eter -eler (most verbs) appeler to call jeter to throw	the l or t is doubled to cause the first e to be stressed.		appelle appelles appelle appelons appelez appellent jette	appellerai appelleras appellera appellerons appellerez appelleront jetterai	appellerais appellerais appellerait appellerions appelleriez appelleraient jetterais	appelle appelles appelle appelions appeliez appellent jette
-eter -eler (some verbs) acheter to buy	follows the rule for unaccented e, as in mener above.		achète	achèterai	achèterais	achète

The auxiliary verbs

Avoir combines with the past participle to form the compound tenses of all transitive verbs and most intransitive verbs. Both avoir and être themselves are conjugated with avoir.

Il a eu besoin d'argent. He needed money.
Il a été malade. He was sick.
Il a acheté des fleurs. He bought some flowers.

Etre is used as the auxiliary to form

1. The compound tenses of all reflexive verbs.
   Elle s'est levée. She got up.
   Elles se sont assises. They sat down.
2. The passive voice.
   Elle est admirée de tous. She is admired by all.
3. The compound tenses of intransitive verbs and their derivatives that indicate motion or change of state:

aller	to go	venir	to come
arriver	to arrive	partir	to leave entrer	to go in	sortir	to go out monter	to go up	descendre	to go down
naître	to be born	mourir	to die
rester	to remain	retourner	to go back tomber	to fall	devenir	to become

Certain normally instransitive verbs may also be used transitively, with a corresponding change in meaning. They are conjugated with avoir when used transitively.

J'ai descendu ma valise. I took down my suitcase.
Il a sorti les chaises. He took out the chairs.
Il a rentré les chaises. He took in the chairs.

When a verb that is not reflexive is conjugated with être, the participle agrees in gender and number with the subject.

Elle est partie ce soir. She left tonight.

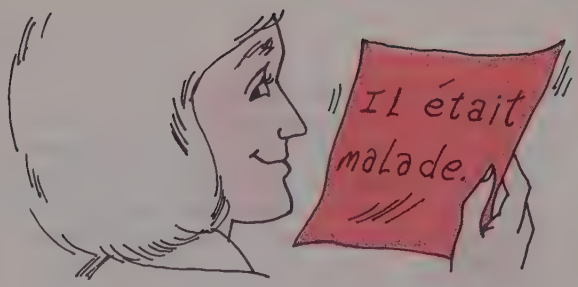
When a verb is conjugated with avoir, the past participle agrees in gender and number with the direct object, if the direct object precedes the verb.

Il a acheté des fleurs et il les a données à sa mère.
He bought some flowers and gave them to his mother.

Les fleurs qu'il a achetées sont belles.
The flowers he bought are beautiful.

All reflexive verbs are conjugated with être. It sometimes is hard to determine whether the reflexive pronoun is the direct object or the indirect object of the verb. In the sentence, Elle s'est coupée (she cut herself) the reflexive pronoun, se, representing "herself" is the direct object. For this reason there is agreement of the past participle with the direct object. But if the sentence reads Elle s'est coupé le doigt (she cut her finger) the direct object is doigt. The reflexive pronoun is indirect, merely indicating the possessor. The verb may have but one direct object, so the past participle will not agree with se.

As another example, consider the following:



Les chemises qu'il s'est achetées sont belles.
The shirts he bought for himself are pretty.

In this case the preceding direct object is que (referring to chemises, feminine plural) and se is an indirect object. The agreement is with que: achetées.

Reflexive verbs may express reciprocal action, that is action which the individuals that are the subject of the verb perform upon each other.

Ils se sont parlé. They spoke to each other.

Auxiliary verbs

Infinitives		avoir to have	être to be Participles	Present	ayant having	étant being
	Past	eu had	été been
Indicative	Present	j'ai	je suis
		tu as	tu es
		il a	il est
		nous avons	nous sommes
		vous avez	vous êtes
		ils ont	ils sont
	Imperfect	j'avais	j'étais
		tu avais	tu étais
		il avait	il était
		nous avions	nous étions
		vous aviez	vous étiez
		ils avaient	ils étaient
	Past definite	j'eus	je fus
		tu eus	tu fus
		il eut	il fut
		nous eûmes	nous fûmes
		vous eûtes	vous fûtes
		ils eurent	ils furent
	Future	j'aurai	je serai
		tu auras	tu seras
		il aura	il sera
		nous aurons	nous serons
		vous aurez	vous serez
		ils auront	ils seront

Uses of verb tenses

Use the past indefinite when expressing simple past tense and when the verb expresses successive actions.

J'ai frappé à la porte et il me l'a ouverte.
I knocked at the door and he opened it for me.

Use the imperfect for past time only when the verb expresses:

1. A mental state.
   Je savais bien que tu connaissais la vie.
   I knew well that you understood life.
2. A condition, continuing action, or an action occurring while another action occurred.
   Je déjeunais quand il est entré.
   I was having lunch when he came in.
3. A repeated or habitual action.
   Je faisais les courses tous les matins.
   I used to do errands every morning.
4. A permanent characteristic.
   Le jardin était plein de fleurs.
   The garden was full of flowers.

The imperfect is used with depuis when the verb conveys an action begun in the past and continuing into a later time.

J'étais là depuis trois jours quand il est arrivé.
I had been there for three days when he arrived.

When an action begun in the past is described as continuing up to the present, the present is used with depuis.

Elle est ici depuis deux jours.
She has been here for two days.

Conditional sentences

A conditional sentence consists of two parts: a clause expressing a condition, and a clause expressing a result. When the result clause is in the future, the condition clause is in the present.

Si j'étudie, je réussirai à mon examen.
If I study, I will pass my exam.

When the result clause is in the conditional, the condition clause is in the imperfect.

Important irregular verbs

aller — Present: vais, vas, va, allons, allez, vont; Imperfect: allais, allais, allait, allions, alliez, allaient; Present participle: allant; Past participle: allé

Infinitive	Present indicative	Future	Present participle	Past participle
asseoir	assieds	assierai	asseyant	assis
battre	bats	battrai	battant	battu
conduire	conduis	conduirai	conduisant	conduit
courir	cours	courrai	courant	couru
couvrir	couvre	couvrirai	couvrant	couvert
craindre	crains	craindrai	craignant	craignis
devoir	dois	devrai	devant	dû
dormir	dors	dormirai	dormant	dormi
écrire	écris	écrirai	écrivant	écrit
mentir	mens	mentirai	mentant	menti
mettre	mets	mettrai	mettant	mis
mourir	meurs	mourrai	mourant	mort
offrir	offre	offrirai	offrant	offert
partir	pars	partirai	partant	parti
recevoir	reçois	recevrai	recevant	reçu
sentir	sens	sentirai	sentant	senti
sortir	sors	sortirai	sortant	sorti
souffrir	souffre	souffrirai	souffrant	souffert
venir	viens	viendrai	venant	venu
vétir	vets	vétirai	vétant	vétu

Si j'étais riche, je voyagerais beaucoup.
If I were rich, I would travel a lot.

The same rule applies to the auxiliaries of compound tenses.

Si je n'étais pas sorti,
je n'aurais pas manqué mes amis.
If I had not gone out,
I would not have missed my friends.

Clauses with quand etc.

The future is used after quand, lorsque, dès que, aussitôt que, and tant que if the action takes place at a future time.

Dès que jaurai écrit cette lettre, je l'enverrai.
As soon as I have written this letter, I will send it.

Quand je parlerai français, j'irai en France.
When I speak French, I will go to France.

Uses of the infinitive

The infinitive may be used as the subject of a verb.

Réussir est très important.
To succeed is very important.

The infinitive may be used as a complement.

Tu n'arriveras pas à faire ce problème.
You will not succeed in working this problem.

The infinitive may be used after many prepositions to express the English present participle.

Il a passé deux jours sans dormir.
He spent two days without sleeping.

The preposition après is followed by a past infinitive. The past infinitive has two parts: an auxiliary (avoir or être) and the past participle of the verb.

Après avoir dîné, je suis allé au cinéma.
After eating, I went to the movies.

Most adjectives and nouns are followed by de before an infinitive, but a few common adjectives are followed by à before the infinitive: habile, lent, prêt, premier, dernier, and seul.

Il est prêt à partir.
He is ready to leave.

Elle est toujours la première à finir.
She is always the first one to finish.

When an infinitive is passive in meaning, it is preceded by à.

Elle avait encore tout son travail à faire.
She still had all her work to do.

Some verbs are followed directly by the infinitive without a preposition.

aimer mieux	to prefer	oser	to dare
aller	to go	paraître	to appear compter	to intend	pouvoir	to be able to croire	to believe	préférer	to prefer
désirer	to wish, want	regarder	to watch
devoir	to have to	savoir	to know entendre	to hear	sembler	to seem espérer	to hope	souhaiter	to wish faire	to do	venir	to come laisser	to allow, let	voir	to see

Some verbs require à before the infinitive, as in apprendre à conduire, learn to drive.

aider	to help	renoncer	to give up apprendre	to learn	réussir	to succeed
arriver	to succeed	s'amuser	to enjoy
avoir	to have	s'attendre	to expect chercher	to seek	se décider	to decide commencer	to begin	se mettre	to start enseigner	to teach	tarder	to delay
hésiter	to hesitate	tenir	to insist on inviter	to invite	venir	to happen

The infinitive preceded by à is used with certain nouns to express function or purpose.

une salle à manger a dining room une machine à laver a washing machine

Subjunctive

The subjunctive mood is used after certain verbs or expressions that indicate desire, doubt, emotion, necessity, or uncertainty. Verbs in the subjunctive are almost always used in dependent clauses. Such clauses are introduced usually by que but sometimes by a relative pronoun.

The present subjunctive is formed by dropping the -ent of the third person present indicative form and adding -e, -es, -e, -ions, -iez, -ent. These endings are the same for all verbs except avoir and être.

avoir j'aie, tu aies, il ait,
nous ayons, vous ayez, ils aient

être je sois, tu sois, il soit,
nous soyons, vous soyez, ils soient

A few irregular verbs use only one irregular stem for all forms.

faire: je fasse . . . pouvoir: je puisse . . . falloir: il faille . . . savoir: je sache . . .

Nous cherchons quelqu'un qui puisse faire le travail.
We are looking for someone who can do the work.

Some irregular verbs form the present subjunctive by using one stem for the nous and vous forms (from the imperfect indicative) and one for the other forms. The most common verbs of this type are as follows.

aller que j'aille, tu ailles, il aille,
nous allions, vous alliez, ils aillent

boire que je boive, tu boives, il boive, nous buvions, vous buviez, ils boivent

croire que je croie, tu croies, il croie,
nous croyions, vous croyiez, ils croient

devoir que je doive, tu doives, il doive, nous devions, vous deviez, ils doivent

prendre que je prenne, tu prennes, il prenne, nous prenions, vous preniez, ils prennent

venir que je vienne, tu viennes, il vienne, nous venions, vous veniez, ils viennent

vouloir que je veuille, tu veuilles, il veuille, nous voulions, vous vouliez, ils veuillent

The subjunctive is used in a dependent clause when the subject of the dependent clause is different from the subject of the main clause.

Je veux qu'elle fasse sa chambre.
I want her to clean her room.

Je veux faire ma chambre.
I want to clean my room.

The subjunctive is used after certain expressions.

Emotion.

avoir peur	to be afraid
craindre	to fear
être content	to be happy
être désolé	to be sorry
être enchanté	to be delighted être faché	to be angry
être heureux	to be happy
être surpris	to be surprised regretter	to be sorry
s'étonner	to be surprised

Il est faché qu'elle ne soit pas rentrée.
He is angry that she has not returned.

Verbs of wishing, asking, commanding, permitting, or prohibiting.

aimer mieux	to prefer	permettre	to permit
défendre	to forbid	préférer	to prefer demander	to ask	souhaiter	to wish exiger	to demand	vouloir	to want
ordonner	to demand

J'aime mieux qu'il fasse ses devoirs maintenant.
I prefer that he do his homework now.

Je ne crois pas qu'il puisse partir.
I do not think he can leave.

The subjunctive is used when the antecedent is modified by a superlative or by premier, dernier, or seul.

C'est le premier livre que nous ayons lu.
It is the first book we have read.

The subjunctive is used after certain conjunctions.

afin que	in order that à moins que	unless
avant que	before
bien que	although
jusqu'à ce que	until
pour que	in order that pourvu que	provided that quoique	although

The subjunctive is also used with all conjunctions of condition except si.

Pourvu qu'il soit là à temps, c'est tout ce que je veux.
All I want is for him to be on time.
(As long as he is on time, that is all I want.)

Interrogation

There are several ways of changing a declarative sentence to an interrogative sentence.

By prefixing est-ce que. No change in word order is needed.

Ce livre est intéressant.
This book is interesting.

Est-ce que ce livre est intéressant?
Is this book interesting?

By inversion of subject and verb.

When the subject is a personal pronoun or ce or on, it follows the verb and is joined to it by a hyphen.

Est-il chez lui?
Is he at home?

Est-ce vrai?
Is it true?

Parle-t-on toujours d'elle?
Do people still speak of her?

When the subject is a noun, demonstrative pronoun, possessive pronoun, or indefinite pronoun, the subject precedes the verb and is repeated after it in the form of a pronoun.

Votre ami est-il parti? Has your friend left?
Les vôtres sont-ils ici? Are yours here?
Cela est-il vrai? Is that true?
Quel livre choisit-il? What book does he choose?

The noun subject need not be repeated in pronoun form when three conditions are met: (1) the sentence must be introduced by an interrogative adverb (combien, comment, où, quand); (2) the verb must be in a simple tense: present, imperfect, future, conditional, or past definite; and (3) the verb must have neither an object nor a modifying phrase.

Combien coûte ce livre?
How much does this book cost?

Comment va votre soeur?
How is your sister?

When the verb is not a simple tense or has an object or adverbial phrase, subject and verb are inverted or est-ce que is used.

Pourquoi votre mère a-t-elle acheté ces fruits?
Why did your mother buy that fruit?

A quelle heure votre ami arrivera-t-il à la gare?
When will your friend arrive at the station?

Stores

la bijouterie	jewelry shop
la boucherie	butcher shop
la boulangerie	bakery
le bureau de tabac	tobacco shop
la charcuterie	delicatessen
le coiffeur pour dames	beauty parlor
le grand magasin	department store
la librairie	bookstore
la pâtisserie	pastry shop
la pharmacie	drugstore

English	French
Pardon me, sir, where is the tourist office?	Pardon, Monsieur, où est le bureau de tourisme?
It is there, to the right, next to door number 9.	Il est là-bas, à droite à côté de la porte numéro 9.
Thank you, sir. Goodbye.	Merci, Monsieur. Au revoir.
Good morning, miss. Could you please tell me if there is a good hotel, not very expensive, near here?	Bonjour Mademoiselle, pourriez-vous m'indiquer un bon hôtel, pas très chère, et près d'ici s'il vous plaît?
Do you speak English? I do not speak French.	Parlez-vous anglais? Je ne parle pas français.
I do not understand. Speak more slowly, please.	Je ne comprends pas. Parlez plus lentement s'il vous plaît.
What does that mean?	Qu'est-ce que ça veut dire?
A room for two, with bath.	Une chambre pour deux personnes, avec salle de bain.
It is expensive.	C'est très cher.
Is there a phone?	Y a-t-il un téléphone?
What time is breakfast?	A quelle heure est le petit déjeuner?
I would like to buy a summer dress.	Je voudrais acheter une robe d'été.
How much does it cost?	Elle coûte combien?
It is not expensive.	Elle n'est pas chère.
Taxi. Are you free? I want to go to the station.	Taxi. Vous êtes libre? Je veux aller à la gare.
Can you tell me where there is a good, inexpensive restaurant?	Pouvez-vous me dire où il y a un bon restaurant pas trop cher?
A table for two near the window please?	Une table pour deux, près de la fenêtre, s'il vous plaît.
Waiter. The menu, please.	Garçon. La carte, s'il vous plaît.
I will have antipasto, chicken, and French fries.	Je prendrais des hors-d'oeuvre variés et ensuite du poulet et des pommes frites.
The bill, please.	L'addition, s'il vous plaît.

Cardinal numbers

The word et is used in numbers only in 21, 31, 41, 51, 61, and 71. In all other compound numbers through 99, the hyphen is used.

Vingt and cent are made plural when multiplied and modifying a noun, but drop the s before another number.

quatre-vingts garçons eighty boys

quatre-vingt-deux garçons eighty-two boys

quatre cents mots
four hundred words

quatre cent cinquante mots
four hundred fifty words

Cent and mille are not preceded by the indefinite article. Numbers, except un and une, do not show gender.

cent bateaux a hundred boats six cents bateaux six hundred boats

Mille does not change in the plural.

mille fois a thousand times
six mille plantes six thousand plants

Periods, not commas, are used with numbers.

2.000.000 2,000,000

cardinal numbers

0	zero	45	quarante-cinq
1	un, une	50	cinquante
2	deux	51	cinquante et un
3	trois	53	cinquante-trois
4	quatre	60	soixante
5	cinq	61	soixante et un
6	six	64	soixante-quatre
7	sept	70	soixante-dix
8	huit	71	soixante et onze
9	neuf	75	soixante-quinze
10	dix	78	soixante-dix-huit
11	onze	80	quatre-vingts
12	douze	81	quatre-vingt-un
13	treize	87	quatre-vingt-sept
14	quatorze	90	quatre-vingt-dix
15	quinze	91	quatre-vingt-onze
16	seize	100	cent
17	dix-sept	101	cent un
18	dix-huit	122	cent vingt-deux
19	dix-neuf	200	deux cents
20	vingt	206	deux cent-six
21	vingt et un	1000	mille
22	vingt-deux	1001	mille un
30	trente	1100	mille cent
33	trente-trois	3000	trois mille
40	quarante	1,000,000	un million

Ordinal numbers

Ordinals are formed from cardinals by adding -ième. Silent e is dropped before -ième.

deuxième second quatrième fourth

Exceptions to this rule:

premier, première first second, seconde second cinquième (u inserted) fifth neuvième (f changes to v) ninth quatre-vingtième (s omitted) eightieth

Fractions are formed by combining cardinal and ordinal numbers. Quart, moitié, and tiers are irregular. Moitié is a noun and must have an article. Demi, generally used as an adjective, is connected by a hyphen when it precedes the noun and is invariable. When demi follows a noun it modifies, it agrees with it in gender.

la moitié de la bouteille half the bottle une demi-heure half an hour une heure et demie an hour and a half

Time

To express time, heure (hour) is used for "o'clock." To express time after the hour, the number of minutes is added. The word et is used only with quart and demie. Moins is used to express time before the hour.

In public announcements, such as timetables, the 24-hour system is used. Starting at midnight: neuf heures = 9 A.M. 14 heures = 2 P.M.

Quelle heure est-il?	What time is it?
Il est une heure.	It is one o'clock.
Il est deux heures.	It is two o'clock.
Il est dix heures dix.	It is ten past ten.
Il est huit heures et quart.	It is a quarter past eight.
Il est neuf heures et demie.	It is half-past nine.
Il est dix heures moins le quart.	It is quarter of ten.
Il est onze heures moins dix.	It is ten minutes of eleve
Il est midi.	It is noon.
Il est minuit.	It is midnight.

Dates

The cardinal numbers are used to express dates, except for the first day of a month, week, etc. The masculine definite article always precedes the date.

le premier avril April first le vingt-cinq décembre December 25th dix-neuf cent vingt-huit 1928 en dix-sept cent quatre-vingt-neuf in 1789

Months, days, seasons

janvier	January	lundi	Monday
février	February	mardi	Tuesday
mars	March	mercredi	Wednesday
avril	April	jeudi	Thursday
mai	May	vendredi	Friday
juin	June	samedi	Saturday
juillet	July	dimanche	Sunday
août	August
septembre	September	le printemps	spring
octobre	October	l'été	summer
novembre	November	l'automne	autumn
décembre	December	l'hiver	winter

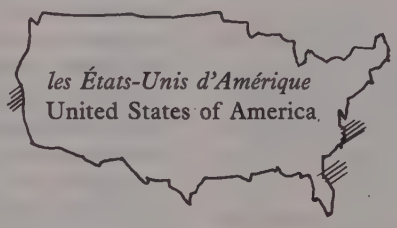
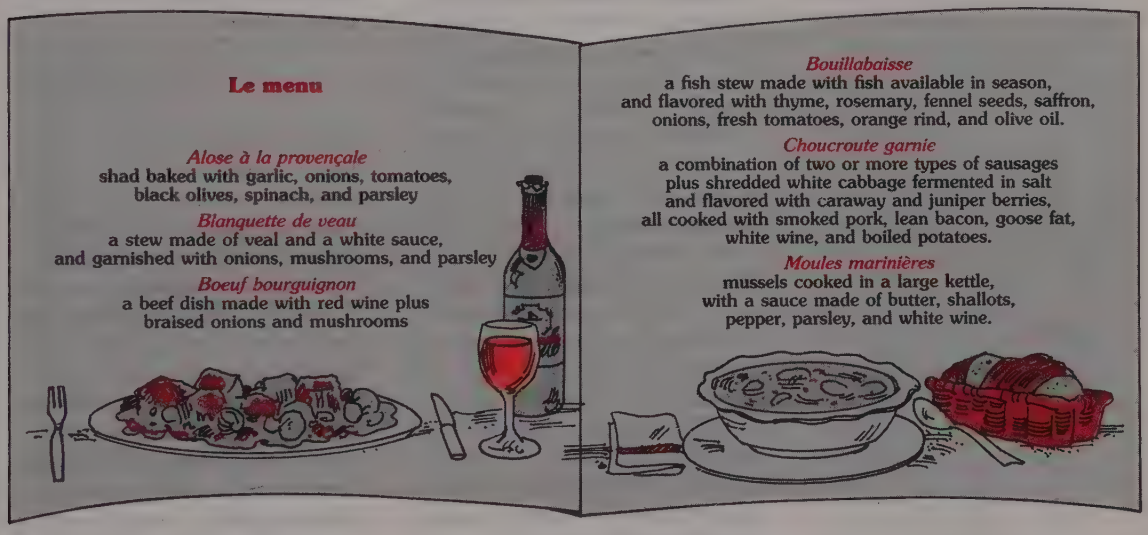
Countries

l'Allemagne	Germany
l'Angleterre	England
l'Autriche	Austria
la Belgique	Belgium
l'Espagne	Spain
la Hongrie	Hungary
l'Irlande	Ireland
l'Italie	Italy
les Pays Bas	Netherlands
la Pologne	Poland
le Portugal	Portugal
la Suisse	Switzerland





Le menu
Alose à la provençale
shad baked with garlic, onions, tomatoes, black olives, spinach, and parsley Blanquette de veau
a stew made of veal and a white sauce, and garnished with onions, mushrooms, and parsley Boeuf bourguignon
a beef dish made with red wine plus braised onions and mushrooms Bouillabaisse
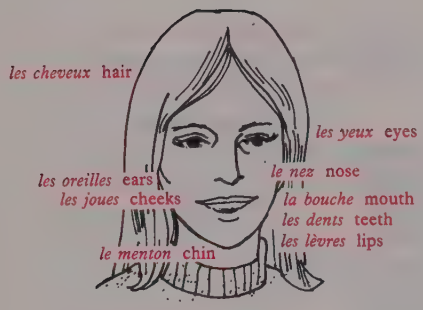
a fish stew made with fish available in season, and flavored with thyme, rosemary, fennel seeds, saffron, onions, fresh tomatoes, orange rind, and olive oil.
Choucroute garnie
a combination of two or more types of sausages plus shredded white cabbage fermented in salt and flavored with caraway and juniper berries, all cooked with smoked pork, lean bacon, goose fat, white wine, and boiled potatoes.
Moules marinières
mussels cooked in a large kettle, with a sauce made of butter, shallots, pepper, parsley, and white wine.

Talking with a waiter

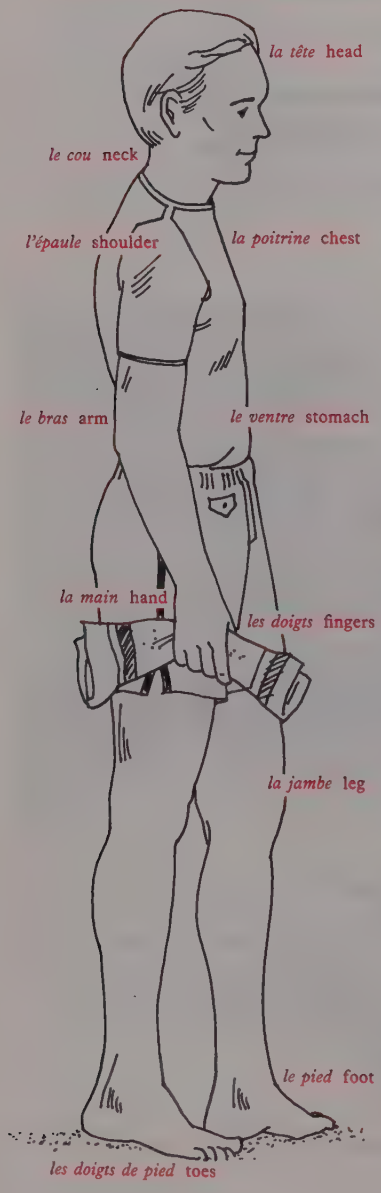
Une table pour quatre, s'il vous plaît. A table for four, please.
La carte, s'il vous plaît. The menu, please.
Une tasse de café avec du pain et du beurre, s'il vous plaît. A cup of coffee and bread and butter, please.
Je prendrais du boeuf bourguignon. I will have boeuf bourguignon.
Une bouteille de vin du pays, s'il vous plaît. A bottle of the local wine, please.
Donnez-moi du beurre, s'il vous plaît. Please give me some butter.
Avez-vous de la crème? Have you any cream?
L'addition, s'il vous plaît. The check, please.



La figure The face

Dictionary

Le corps humain The human body



Dictionary abbreviations. Nouns are identified as masculine (m) or feminine (f). Adjectives are identified as adj, adverbs as adv, conjunctions as conj, interjections as interj, prepositions as prep, pronouns as pron, and verbs as v. Plurals are identified as pl.

French-English

A

à prep at, in, to absence f absence accepter v accept accident m accident accourir v run up accueillir v welcome acheter v buy acquérir v acquire, get activité f activity affaire f matter, business afin de prep in order to afin que conj in order that agent m agent
agréable adj pleasing aider v help
aimable adj friendly, pleasant aimer v love, like aimer mieux v prefer aller v go amener v bring Américain adj and noun m American Amérique f America
ami m friend amie f friend
amuser v entertain an m year ancien adj old, ancient, former année f year appartenir v belong, pertain appeler v call apporter v bring apprendre v learn, teach approcher v bring near approuver v approve après adv afterward après prep after après que conj after arbre m tree
argent m money, silver arrêter v stop arriver v arrive, happen
asseoir v seat, s'asseoir sit down assez adv enough, assez de enough of attendre v wait for, expect aucun adj and pron none, no one, not one, not any auprès de prep near, beside aussi adv also, as, and so aussitôt adv immediately aussitôt que conj as soon as autant adv as much autant que conj as much as autre adj other autrefois adv formerly avancer v move, go forward avant adv and prep before avertir v warn, give notice avertissement m warning avion m plane avis m notice, opinion
avocat m lawyer
avoir v have

B

bain m bath
baiser m kiss
bataille f battle
bateau m boat
battre v beat, se battre fight beau, bel adj m, belle f beautiful, handsome, fine, fair beaucoup adv much, many bénéfice m profit besoin m need, avoir besoin v need bête f animal, beast, brute, fool beurre m butter bien adv well
bien que conj although bière f beer billet m ticket
blesser v wound, hurt boire v drink bois m wood, forest boisson f drink, beverage bon adj m, bonne f good bonheur m happiness bouteille f bottle
bruit m noise, rumor

brun adj brown, brunette bureau m desk, office but m purpose, aim, goal

C

cadeau m gift, present café m coffee
carte f card, map, chart casser v break causer v chat, cause céder v yield, give in célèbre adj famous cesser v stop, cease chaise f chair chance f luck
chanson f song
chanter v sing chapeau m hat chaque adj each charpentier m carpenter chaud adj hot chemin m road, path chemise f shirt
chercher v seek, look for chez prep at (the home, shop, etc. of . . .) choisir v choose chose f thing, object clef, clé f key client m customer
colère f anger, en colère angry colis m package combien adv how much, how many comme adv as, how, conj as, like commencer v begin, start comment adv how comprendre v understand compter v count, compter sur count on conduire v lead, take, drive conférence f lecture, conference connaissance f acquaintance, knowledge connaître v be acquainted with, know consentir v consent construire v build contenir v contain, restrain content adj content, glad corriger v correct costume m suit, costume coucher v put to bed, se coucher lie down coupable adj guilty couper v cut courage m courage
courir v run
course f race, errand couteau m knife
coûter v cost couvrir v cover
craindre v fear
crainte f fear crayon m pencil croire v believe cueillir v gather cuire v cook
cultiver v cultivate

D

dame f lady décider v decide déclarer v declare, affirm découvrir v discover décrire v describe défendre v defend, forbid déjeuner m lunch, petit déjeuner breakfast délicieux adj m, délicieuse f delicious demain adv tomorrow demander v ask for demeurer v dwell demi adj and noun m half départ m departure dépit m spite, en dépit de in spite of depuis adv and prep since déranger v disturb dernier adj m last dès prep since, dès que conj as soon as descendre v go down, come down désirer v desire, wish désoler v grieve
dessous m underside, audessous de, beneath dessus adv above devenir v become deviner v guess
devoir m duty, homework devoir v owe, have to, ought difficile adj difficult, hard dire v say, tell doigt m finger
domestique m and f servant dommage m damage, c'est dommage that's too bad donner v give dormir v sleep
douter v doubt droit m right, law
droit adj and adv right, fair droite f right, à droite to the right

E

eau f water
éblouir v dazzle
écarter v put aside échouer v fail écouter v listen écrire v write église f church
élève m or f pupil embarquer v embark emmener v take away, lead away empêcher v prevent, hinder encore adv again, still, yet encre f ink
endroit m place
enfant m or f child enfin adv at last, finally enseigner v teach entendre v hear entrer v enter, come in envie f envy, desire, avoir envie de feel like envoyer v send, envoyer chercher send for épine f thorn, spine éprouver v experience, feel erreur f error, mistake escalier m stairway espérer v hope, await essuyer v wipe et conj and été m summer
éteindre v extinguish étendre v extend, stretch out étonner v surprise étrange adj strange, curious étudiant m student étudier v study évident adj evident, obvious éviter v avoid, spare examen m examination, test exiger v require, demand exprimer v express

F

fable f fable, story
fabriquer v manufacture fâcher v anger, se fâcher become angry facile adj easy
faim f hunger faire v do, make falloir v be necessary famille f family fatigué adj tired
faute f fault, mistake femme f woman, wife fermer v close fête f celebration, holiday, party feuille f leaf, sheet fier adj proud figure f face
fille f daughter, girl
fils m son fin f end
finir v finish fleur f flower
fois f instance, time forcer v compel, force fraise f strawberry franc m franc, franc adj m frank, open franche adj f frank, open frapper v knock, strike frère m brother froid m and adj cold
fuir v flee, shun

G

gagner v acquire, gain, win gant m glove garçon m boy, waiter garder v keep, guard gare f station
gêner v hinder, bother goûter v taste
grand adj large, tall, great grange f barn guère adv hardly guerre f war

H

habile adj able, clever habiller v dress, s'habiller put on one's clothing habit m clothes, coat habiter v inhabit, dwell in habituer v accustom, familiarize haut adj high, à haute voix aloud, en haut upstairs hésiter v hesitate heure f hour, time, de bonne heure early heureux adj m, heureuse f happy, lucky hier adv yesterday histoire f history, story homme m man
honnête adj honest, upright horloge f clock
hôte m host, guest

I

ici adv here
informer v inform, s'informer make inquiries ingénieur m engineer intelligent adj bright, clever intéresser v interest, concern interrompre v interrupt inutile adj useless, unnecessary inviter v invite

J

jamais adv ever, never, à jamais forever jardin m garden
jaune adj yellow jeter v throw, cast jeune adj young joli adj pretty jouet m toy
jour m day
jus m juice
jusqu'à prep up to, as far as, until juste adj just, right, exact juste adv just, exactly

K

kilo m kilogram

L

lac m lake
lacet m shoelace laisser v allow lancer v throw langage m language langue f tongue, language larme f tear
laver v wash, se laver wash oneself leçon f lesson légume m vegetable lent adj slow
lettre f letter lever v raise ligne f line
lire v read lit m bed
livre m book, livre f pound longtemps adv longtime lorsque conj when louer v rent
loyer m rent
luire v gleam

M

magasin m store
main f hand
maintenant adv now mais conj but maison f house
malade adj ill
malle f trunk manger v eat manière f manner
manquer v miss, fail, lack marchand m merchant marier v marry matin m morning
mauvais adj bad
médecin m physician, doctor méfier v se méfier mistrust meilleur adj better, le meilleur the best même adj same mener v lead mentir v lie mère f mother
métier m trade, craft, loom mètre m meter mettre v put, set meuble m furniture midi m noon, midday
mieux adv better, best mille m mile, adj and noun m thousand minuit m midnight moins adv less, least mois m month

moitié f half monde m world, society
monter v go up, take up moquer v se moquer de make fun of, mock mourir v die

N

nager v swim, float naissance f birth naître v be born négliger v neglect neige f snow
nettoyer v clean neuf adj and noun m nine neuf adj m, neuve f new ni conj nor, ni . . . ni neither . . . nor nier v deny nom m name, noun
note f grade, note nouvelle f news
nuire v harm
nuit f night

O

obéir v obey observer v observe, notice
oeil m eye, pl yeux oeuvre f work, labor offrir v offer, present or m gold orage m storm
ordonner v order, command ordre m order orgueilleux adj m, orgueilleuse f proud, haughty oser v dare ou conj or où adv where, at, on oublier v forget
oui adv yes
ouvrir v open

P

page m pageboy page f page pain m bread
paix f peace
pâlir v become pale, fade panne f accident, lard papier m paper papillon m butterfly paraître v appear, seem pardessus m overcoat pardonner v pardon
pareil adj like parier v bet parler v speak, talk parmi prep among partager v divide, share partie f part, party partir v leave, go away passer v pass, go by patiner v skate
pauvre adj poor pavé m pavement
payer v pay pays m country
peine f pain, penalty pendant prep during pendant que conj while penser v think, penser à think of perdre v lose père m father péril m danger
périr v perish
permettre v allow, permit personne f person personne pron no one, nobody petit adj small, little, petty peu m little, few peur f fear
pièce f piece, coin, play pied m foot pierre f stone
plaindre v pity plaire v please plante f plant plein adj full pleurer v weep, cry, mourn pleuvoir v rain plier v fold
pluie f rain
plume f pen, feather plupart f majority, most plus adv more, most plusieurs adj and pron several poche f pocket
pomme f apple, pomme de terre potato porte f door
porter v carry, bear pourquoi adv why pourvu que conj provided that pouvoir v be able, can préférer v prefer premier adj first prendre v take près adv near, près de prep near présenter v introduce, present prêt adj ready prêter v lend projet m project, plan promener v take out walking promettre v promise propos m talk, subject, à propos de with regard to propre adj own, very, same, clean propriétaire m proprietor protester v protest provoquer v provoke puis adv then

Q

qualifier v qualify qualité f quality, nature quand conj when quart m quarter, fourth quelque adj some, any, quelque chose something quelquefois adv sometimes quelqu'un pron someone, anyone quitter v leave quoique conj although quotidien adj daily

R

raconter v tell, narrate rafraîchir v cool, refresh raison f reason, avoir raison be right ralentir v slow down, slacken ramasser v pick up ramener v bring back, take back rapide adj swift rappeler v remember ravi adj delighted recevoir v receive récompense f reward reconnaissance f gratitude, recognition reconnaître v recognize reculer v fall back, go back réfléchir v reflect, think regarder v look règle f rule
regretter v regret, be sorry for rejoindre v join relier v bind, connect remarquer v notice remplir v fill remuer v move, stir rencontrer v meet rendre v give back renoncer v renounce, give up rentrer v go home, go back repas m meal répondre v reply, answer reposer v rest résoudre v resolve rester v remain, stay retard m delay, en retard late retourner v return, turn around retrouver v find again réussir v succeed rêve m dream

réveiller v waken révéler v reveal revenir v come back, return riche adj rich
rien pron nothing rire v laugh robe f dress roman m novel
rompre v break
rond adj round route f road, en route under way rue f street

S

sable m sand sage adj wise saisir v seize saison f season sale adj dirty
salon m parlor sans prep without sauf prep except sauter v leap, jump sauver v save, se sauver run away savoir v know, know how savon m soap
secours m help selon prep according to semaine f week sembler v seem sentir v feel, smell serviette f napkin, towel servir v serve, se servir de use seul adj alone, only, single sévère adj strict, severe si conj if, whether si adv so, yes
soeur f sister
soie f silk
soif f thirst soigner v care for soir m evening
soleil m sun sommeil m sleep
sonner v sound, ring, strike sorte f kind sortir v go out, get out souffrir v suffer, bear souhaiter v wish soulager v relieve soulever v raise, lift up, arouse sourire v and n m smile souvenir m remembrance, se souvenir de remember souvent adv often sucre m sugar
suffire v suffice
suivre v follow
sur prep on, upon, over, about sûr adj sure surtout adv above all, especially

T

table f table
tableau m picture, blackboard
taire v keep quiet, se taire be silent tandis que conj while, whereas tant adv so many, so much, tant que as long as tante f aunt tard adv late tarder v delay, put off tasse f cup
tel adj such temps m time, weather
tenir v hold, possess tenter v attempt terre f earth, ground, land tête f head timbre m stamp tirer v draw, pull tomber v fall
tort m wrong, avoir tort be wrong tôt adv soon, early toucher v touch toujours adv always, yet tourner v turn tout adj all, each, every tout pron everything tranquille adj quiet travailler v work traverser v cross très adv very tromper v deceive, se tromper make a mistake, be wrong trop adv too much, too trottoir m sidewalk trouver v find

U

usage m use utile adj useful utiliser v use

V

vacances f pl vacation vague f wave
vaincre v conquer vaisselle f dishes valise f suitcase valoir v be worth vendre v sell verre m glass
vêtir v dress viande f meat
vide adj empty vie f life
vieillard m old man vieille adj f old, noun f old woman vieux adj m old village m village
ville f city, town
vin m wine vite adv quick vivre v live voici v here is, here are voilà v there is, there are voir v see voisin m neighbor
voiture f car, automobile voix f voice vouloir v wish, want voyager v travel vrai adj true, real

Y

y adv there, in it, to it

Dictionary abbreviations. Nouns are identified as masculine (nm) or feminine (nf). Adjectives are identified as adj, adverbs as adv, conjunctions as conj, interjections as interj, prepositions as prep, pronouns as pron, and verbs as v. Plurals are identified as pl.

English-French

A

able adj capable, be able v pouvoir about prep environ, à peu près above adv dessus, au dessus, par dessus absence n absence f accept v accepter accident n accident m
according to prep selon, d'après accustom v habituer acquaintance n connaissance f acquire v acquérir act v agir
activity n activité f
add v ajouter, additionner advise v conseiller afraid adj éffrayé
after adv après
after conj après que afternoon n après-midi m or f afterward adv après, ensuite, plus tard again adv encore agent n agent, représentant m ago adv il y a, two days ago il y a deux jours agreement n accord m aim n but m airplane n avion m all adj tout, tous, toute, toutes allow v laisser, permettre alone adj seul aloud adv à haute voix already adv déjà
also adv aussi
although conj bien que, quoique always adv toujours among prep parmi, entre amuse v amuser ancient adj ancien, antique and conj et anger n colère f
anger v fâcher, mettre en colère animal n bête f
answer v répondre
any pron en
anything pron quelque chose, not anything ne . . . rien, anything at all n'importe quoi anyone pron quelqu'un, not . . . personne anywhere adv quelque part, not . . . nulle part appear v paraître, sembler apple n pomme f
approach v s'approcher approve v approuver arrest v arrêter arrive v arriver
as adv comme, aussi, que
as conj comme, en tant que, tel que, as . . . as aussi . . . que ask v demander, ask a question poser une question at prep à attain v atteindre
aunt n tante f
automobile n automobile f, voiture f
avoid v éviter await v attendre, espérer away adv absent, loin, au loin

B

bachelor n célibataire m back n dos m, dossier m, derrière m back up v reculer bad adj mauvais badly adv mal
barely adv guère, à peine barn n grange f
bath v bain m
battle n bataille f
be v être bear v porter beast n bête f
beat v battre, vaincre, frapper beautiful adj beau and bel m, belle f
because conj parce que become v devenir bed n lit m
beer n bière f
before adv avant, devant begin v commencer, se mettre à behind adv derrière
believe v croire belong v appartenir
below prep sous, dessous, en bas bend v plier beside prep à côté de, auprès de besides adv d'ailleurs best adv mieux, adj le meilleur bet v parier, n pari m better adj meilleur, adv mieux between prep entre big adj grand, gros bird n oiseau m birth n naissance f bite v mordre blanket n couverture f
body n corps m
book n livre m
born (be) v naître borrow v emprunter
both adj and pron les deux bother v déranger, gêner bottle n bouteille f
box n boîte f
bread n pain m
break v casser, rompre, briser breakfast n petit déjeuner m bright adj brillant, clair, intelligent bring v amener, apporter bring back v ramener broad adj large brother n frère m build v construire business n affaires f pl busy adj occupé
but conj mais butter n beurre m butterfly n papillon m buy v acheter
by prep par, de, à, près de

C

café n café m
call v appeler can v pouvoir
car n voiture f

carpenter n charpentier m carry v porter cast v jeter cat n chat m cause n cause f cease v cesser, discontinuer celebration n fête f certain adj certain chair n chaise f chance n chance f, hasard m chart n carte marine f chat n causerie f, entretien m cheap adj bon marché child n enfant m or f
choose v choisir church n église f
city n ville f
class n classe f
clean adj propre, v nettoyer clear adj clair clever adj habile climb v grimper, monter clock n horloge f, pendule f close v fermer clothe v habiller, vêtir clothes n habits m pl, vêtements m pl cloud n nuage m
coat n habit m, manteau m
coffee n café m
cold adj froid
come v venir
command v commander, ordonner company n compagnie f compare v comparer compel v forcer complain v se plaindre complaint n plainte f concern v interesser conquer v vaincre consent v consentir consider v considérer consist v consister construct v construire, fabriquer contain v contenir
contents n contenu m continue v continuer
convince v convaincre cook v cuire
cool adj frais m, fraîche f
cool v rafraîchir correct v corriger cost v coûter costs n frais m pl
count v compter country n pays (nation) m, patrie (native country) f, campagne (rural area) f courage n courage m course n cours m cover v couvrir cross n croix f
cry v pleurer
cultivate v cultiver cup n tasse f
customer n client m
cut v couper

D

daily adj quotidien, tous les jours damage n dommage m, v endommager dance n danse f
dance v danser danger n danger m, péril m dangerous adj dangereux dare v oser
date n date f
daughter n fille f
day n jour m, journée f dazzle v éblouir dealer n marchant m deceive v tromper decide v décider declare v déclarer defeat v vaincre delay v tarder
delicious adj délicieux
delight n joie f, plaisir m delight v ravir delighted adj joyeux, ravi deny v nier depart v s'en aller, partir descend v descendre describe v décrire deserve v mériter desire v désirer, vouloir desk n bureau m despair v désespérer destroy v détruire die v mourir difficult adj difficile dine v dîner
dining room n salle à manger f
direct v diriger dirty adj sale dishes n vaiselle f displease v déplaire disturb v déranger, troubler dive v plonger divide v diviser, partager do v faire dog n chien m door n porte f
doubt n doute m
doubt v douter
draw v tirer (pull), dessiner (sketch) drawer n tiroir m
drawing room n salon m dress n robe f
dress v vêtir, habiller drink n boisson f
drink v boire drive v conduire during prep pendant dust n poussière f duty n devoir m dwell v demeurer, habiter

E

each adj chaque, tout
each one pron chacun ear n oreille f
early adv de bonne heure, tôt earn v gagner, mériter earth n terre f easy adj facile eat v manger effort n effort m
egg n oeuf m
either adv ou
else adv autrement, ou bien elsewhere adv ailleurs, autre part embark v embarquer employ v employer empty adj vide
encourage v encourager end n fin f
end v finir, terminer engineer n ingénieur m enjoy v jouir enough adv assez enter v entrer entire adj entier, complet evening n soir m equal adj égal error n erreur f, faute f especially adv surtout even adv même

event n événement m
ever adv jamais
every adj tout, chaque everybody pron tout le monde everything pron tout everywhere adv partout evident adj évident, clair exactly adv exactement examination n examen m example n exemple m except prep excepté, sauf expect v attendre, espérer expensive adj cher, coûteux experience v éprouver explain v expliquer express v exprimer, express adj exprès extend v étendre extinguish v éteindre eye n oeil m, yeux m pl

F

fable n fable f
face n figure f, face f
face v faire face à, affronter, donner sur fail v échouer, manquer fair adj juste fairly adv assez, pas mal, honnêtement faithful adj fidèle fall v tomber
false adj faux m, fausse f familiar adj familier family n famille f
far adv loin fast adv vite
father n père m fault n faute f
fear n crainte f, peur f fear v craindre, avoir peur feed v nourrir feel v sentir, tâter (touch) feel like v avoir envie de few adj peu de, quelques, pron peu, quelques-uns fill v remplir fight v se battre
finally adv enfin, à la fin find v trouver find out v découvrir finger n doigt m finish v finir fire n feu m
first adj premier, adv d'abord fish n poisson m
fish v pêcher fit v aller à, adj convenable, capable flee v se sauver, s'enfuir flower n fleur f fly v voler fold v plier
follow v suivre food n nourriture f
foot n pied m
for prep pour, conj car forbid v défendre force n force f, puissance f force v force, obliger forget v oublier former adj ancien
free adj libre freeze v geler friend n ami m, amie f from prep de, depuis (since) full adj plein fun n amusement, plaisanterie, make fun se moquer furniture n meubles m pl future n avenir m

G

gain n profit m, gain m, avantage m gain v gagner game n jeu m, gibier (hunting) m garden n jardin m
gate n porte f, portail m, barrière f gather v cueillir, ramasser, se réunir get v prendre, avoir, obtenir, gagner, go and get aller chercher gift n cadeau m, présent m girl n fille f
give v donner give up v renoncer à glad adj content glass n verre m glove n gant m
go v aller, se rendre, go out sortir, go down descendre goal n but m
gold n or m
good adj bon m, bonne f, for good pour de bon great adj grand, gros, a great deal beaucoup greet v saluer ground n terre f, on the ground par terre grow v grandir, pousser guard v garder guess v deviner guilty adj coupable

H

habit n habitude f
hair n cheveux m pl
half adj demi, n moitié f hall n vestibule (entrance) m, salle (large room) f hand n main m happen v arriver, se passer happy adj heureux, content hard adj dur hardly adv à peine, ne . . . guère harm v nuire hat n chapeau m
hate v détester, haïr haughty adj orgueilleux have v avoir hear v entendre
help n aide f, secours m, interj au secours!
help v aider
here adv ici hesitate v hésiter high adj haut hinder v gêner, empêcher history n histoire hit v frapper, battre hold v tenir holiday n fête
home n foyer m, maison f, chez soi, à la maison homework n devoir m honest adj honnête hope v espérer
hot adj chaud hour n heure f
house n maison f
how adv comment, comme (in exclamation), how much combien however adv cependant hunger n faim f hurt v blesser, faire mal husband n mari m, époux m

I

ice n glace f
idea n idée f ill adv mal, adj malade in prep dans, à, en incite v encourager, provoquer inform v informer, renseigner inhabitant n habitant m ink n encre f insist v insister, tenir à instance n fois f
instead of prep au lieu de intend v avoir l'intention de interest v intéresser interrupt v interrompre introduce v introduire, présenter invite v inviter

J

join v relier, joindre joke v plaisanter journey n voyage m jump v sauter
just adj juste, précis
just adv justement, donc, to have just venir de

K

keep v garder, tenir, keep from empêcher key n clef f
kill v tuer
kilogram n kilo m
kind adj aimable, n genre m, sorte f
knife n couteau m, pocketknife canif m knock v frapper
know v savoir, connaître knowledge n science f, connaissances f pl

L

lace n dentelle f, shoelace n lacet m land n terre f
land v débarquer (ship), atterrir (airplane) language n langage m, langue f large adj grand, gros last adj dernier, last night hier soir last v durer late adj tard, en retard later adj plus tard laugh v rire, laugh at se moquer law n droit m lawyer n avocat m, avoué m lead n plomb m
lead v mener, conduire leaf n feuille f leap v sauter
learn v apprendre least adv, adj, n m moins leave v quitter, partir, laisser lecture n conférence f leg n jambe f
lend v prêter
less adv moins, adj moindre, moins de lesson n leçon f
let v laisser, permettre letter n lettre f lie v se coucher lie n mensonge f, v mentir life n vie f, existence f light n lumière f light adj léger
like v aimer
like adj comme, pareil, semblable line n ligne f
listen v écouter
little adj petit, adv peu live v demeurer, vivre, habiter living room n salon m long adj long m, longue f, adv longtemps look n regard n
look v regarder
look for v chercher look like v avoir l'air de lose v perdre loud adv fort, haut
love v aimer luck n chance f, fortune f
lunch v déjeuner, n déjeuner m

M

machine n machine f maid n bonne à tout faire f
main adj principal majority n la plupart f make v faire, fabriquer man n homme m manner n manière f
many adv beaucoup de map n carte f
market n marchè m
marry v se marier, épouser matter n matière f, sujet m meal n repas m mean v vouloir dire, signifier mean adj méchant meat n viande f
meet v rencontrer, rejoindre midday n midi m midnight n minuit m mind n esprit m, intelligence f mirror n miroir m
miss v manquer mistake n erreur f, faute f mistrust v se méfier money n argent m month n mois m
more pron en . . . davantage, adj and adv plus, encore morning n matin m
most adv très, bien, adj la plupart, n le plus m mother n mère f mountain n montagne f
move v remuer, avancer much adv beaucoup, as much autant must v falloir, devoir

N

name n nom m
name v appeler
napkin n serviette f
narrate v raconter narrow adj étroit near adj proche, adv près, prep près de necessary adj nécessaire need n besoin m
need v avoir besoin neglect v négliger neighbor n voisin m
never adv jamais
new adj neuf m, nouveau m, neuve f, nouvelle f
news n nouvelles f pl newspaper n journal m
next adj prochain noise n bruit m
noon n midi m
note v noter, remarquer nothing pron rien

notice n avis m
notice v remarquer novel n roman m
novel adj nouveau m, nouvelle f
now adv maintenant, à present

O

obey v obéir observe v observer obvious adj évident, clair offend v offenser offer v offrir
office n bureau m
often adv souvent
old adj vieux m, vieil m, vieille f
once adv une fois, autrefois only adj seulement, seul open v ouvrir opinion n avis m
or conj ou
order v commander, ordonner order n ordre m other adj autre out adv dehors outside adv au dehors overcoat n pardessus m owe v devoir own v posséder

P

package n colis m
pageboy n page m
pail n seau m
pain n peine f
paper n papier m pardon v pardonner, faire grâce part n partie f part v se séparer pass v passer, réussir past adj passé path n chemin m
pay v payer
peace n paix f
pen n plume f, stylo m pencil n crayon m
people n gens m, monde m perish v périr permit v permettre person n personne f
physician n médecin m, docteur m pick v ceuillir
pick out v choisir picture n tableau m pity v plaindre place endroit m, lieu m place v placer, mettre plane n avion m
play n pièce f, comédie f play v jouer pleasant adj agréable please v plaire pleasure n plaisir m pocket n poche f
pocketknife n canif m
pond n étang m poor adj pauvre, mauvais possess v posséder potato n pomme de terre f pound n livre f predict v deviner prefer v préférer, aimer mieux prepare v préparer pretty adj joli prevent v empêcher
professor n professeur m profit n bénéfice m, profit m project n projet m promise v promettre proud adj fier provided that conj pourvu que pull v tirer punish v punir
pupil n élève m and f
put v mettre, poser, put out éteindre

Q

qualify v qualifier quality n qualité f quantity n quantité f quarter n quart m question v questionner, interroger quick adj rapide, vite quiet adj tranquille, calme quit v quitter quite adv tout à fait, complètement
quiz n petit examen m

R

race n course f
rain v pleuvoir rain n pluie f, rain v pleuvoir raise v lever, soulever reach v atteindre
read v lire ready adj prêt
real adj vrai realize v se rendre compte really adv réellement reason n raison f receive v recevoir recognize v reconnaître reflect v réfléchir refresh v rafraîchir regard v considérer regret v regretter relative n parent m, adj relatif remain v rester remark n remarque f, propos m remember v se rappeler, se souvenir renounce v renoncer rent n loyer m rent v louer repair v réparer reply v répondre, répliquer require v exiger, demander resolve v résoudre rest n repos m rest v se reposer retain v garder, retenir return v revenir reward n récompense f
rich adj riche right adj juste, correct, be right avoir raison ring v sonner road n route f
room n place f, chambre f, salle f round adj rond
rule n règlement m, règle f rumor n bruit m run v courir

S

sadden v désoler, attrister safe adj sûr, en sûreté salary n salaire m same adj même, pareil sand n sable m
satisfied adj satisfait, content save v sauver (rescue), épargner (economize) say v dire scarcely adv à peine, guère school n école f season n saison f seat v asseoir

see v voir seek v chercher seem v paraître, sembler sell v vendre send v envoyer, send for envoyer chercher sentence n phrase f
servant n servante f, valet m, domestique m and f, bonne f serve v servir
set n serie f
set v mettre, set up monter, dresser several adj plusieurs share v partager shine v briller, luire shirt n chemise f show n spectacle m
show v montrer, faire voir sidewalk n trottoir m sign v signer silk n soie f
silver n argent m
similar adj pareil, semblable since conj depuis que, puisque, since adv and prep depuis sing v chanter
sister n soeur f
sit v s'asseoir, be seated être assis skate v patiner slacken v ralentir sleep n sommeil m
sleep v dormir
slow adj lent, tardif, en retard slow down v ralentir small adj petit smell v sentir smile n sourire m, v sourire smoke v fumer
so adv si, de telle manière, ainsi some adj quelque, quelques-uns someone pron quelqu'un something n quelque chose m sometimes adv quelque fois, parfois somewhere adv quelque part son n fils m
song n chanson f
soon adv bientôt
sorrow n peine f
sorry adj fâché, be sorry être fâché, regretter sound v sonner spare v épargner, ménager, céder, éviter speak v parler speech n discours m
speed n vitesse f, rapidité f spend v dépenser (money), passer (time) stairs n escalier m stamp n timbre m
start v partir, se mettre en route, commencer station n gare f, station f stay n séjour m
stay v demeurer, rester still adv encore, toujours, adj tranquille, conj cependant stir v remuer stone n pierre f
stop v arrêter, cesser store n magasin m, boutique f storm n orage m
story n histoire f, récit m, conte m, étage (floor) m straight adj droit strange adj étrange strawberry n fraise f street n rue f
stretch v tendre, étendre strict adj sévère, étroit, strict strike v frapper, sonner study n étude f study v étudier succeed v réussir
such adj tel pareil, semblable suffer v souffrir, subir, endurer suffice v suffire, satisfaire sugar n sucre m
suit n complet m, procès (law) m suitcase n valise f summer n été m
sun n soleil m
sure adj sûr surprise v surprendre, étonner swift adj rapide swim v nager

T

table n table f
take v prendre, porter, emporter, conduire tale n conte m talk v parler, causer tall adj grand, haut task n tâche f, besogne f taste n goût m
tea n thé m
teach v enseigner, apprendre teacher n professeur m, maître m, instituteur m tear n larme f
tear v déchirer
tell v raconter, dire, annoncer test n épreuve f, examen m
thank v remercier
then adv alors, ensuite, puis
there adv là, there is il y a, voilà thing n chose f, affaire f think v penser, croire thirst n soif f thorn n épine f
throw v jeter ticket n billet m
tie v lier, attacher till v cultiver time n temps m, fois f, époque f tired adj fatigué today adv aujourd'hui together adv ensemble tomorrow adv demain tongue n langue f touch v toucher toward prep vers, envers towel n serviette f town n ville f
trade n marché m, commerce m travel v voyager tree n arbre m trouble v déranger, gêner true adj vrai trunk n malle f
trust v avoir confiance, se fier à truth n vérité f
try v tâcher, essayer turn n tour m turn v tourner
twice adv deux fois

U

under prep sous, adv au-dessous underneath adv en dessous understand v comprendre unless conj à moins que unnecessary adj inutile unpleasant adj désagréable until prep jusqu'à, conj jusqu'à ce que up adj en haut, go up v monter up to prep jusqu'à use n emploi m use v se servir de, employer useful adj utile useless adj inutile usually adv ordinairement utensil n ustensile m utilize v utiliser

V

vacation n vacances f pl
vaccinate v vacciner vaccine n vaccin m valiant adj vaillant valley n vallée f
vanilla n vanille f vanish v s'évanouir variety n variété f
various adj divers vary v varier vault n voûte f
vegetable n légume m vehicle n véhicule m veil n voile m
vein n veine f
very adv très, bien, fort, beaucoup village n village m visit n visite f
visit v faire visite à voice n voix f

W

wager v parier wait v attendre
waiter n garçon m
walk n promenade f, walk v marcher, se promener wall n mur m want v vouloir, avoir envie de war n guerre f
warm adj chaud warm v chauffer warn v avertir
wash v laver
watch n montre f
watch v regarder, surveiller water n eau f
way n route f, voie f, chemin m, moyen (means) m wear v porter
weather n temps m week n semaine f
weep v pleurer
welcome v accueillir
well adv bien, as well as aussi bien que when conj quand
where adv où
whether conj si
while conj pendant que, tandis que whole adj tout, entier wide adj large will v vouloir win v gagner
wine n vin m
wipe v essuyer wise adj sage wish v vouloir, désirer, souhaiter with prep avec withdraw v se retirer within prep dedans without prep sans woman n femme f
wonder v se demander wood n bois m
word n mot m, parole f
work n travail m, besogne f, ouvrage m, tâche f oeuvre work v travailler, marcher world n monde m
worry n ennui m, souci m, v préoccuper worst adj pire, adv pis worth n valeur m, prix m
write v écrire wrong adj faux, be wrong v avoir tort

Y

year n an m, année f
yellow adj jaune yesterday adv hier
yet conj pourtant, cependant, adv encore, déjà yield v céder
young adj jeune

For further reference

Grammars

Barson, John
La Grammaire à l'oeuvre
Holt, Rinehart and Winston

Comeau, Raymond F., Bustin Normand, Francine L., and Lamoureux, L.
Ensemble: Grammaire
Holt, Rinehart and Winston

Daudon, René
French in Review
Harcourt Brace Jovanovich

Dubois, J., Jouannon, G., and Lagane, R.
La Grammaire Française
Librairie Larousse

Fraser, Ian Forbes
French Reviewed
Holt, Rinehart and Winston

Grevisse, Maurice
Grammaire Française
Librairie A. Hatier

Grevisse, Maurice
Précis de Grammaire Française Editions J. Duculot

Jenkins, E. S.
French Grammar
David McKay Company

Dictionaries

Deak, Etienne
Dictionnaire d'américanismes Edition du Dauphin

Hanse, Joseph
Dictionnaire des difficultés grammaticales et lexicologiques
Les Editions Scientifiques et Littéraires

Levieux, Michel and Eleanor Beyond the Dictionary in French
Cassell

Mansion, J.E.
Harrap's New Standard French and English Dictionary
Charles Scribner's Sons

Micro Robert
Le Robert

Thomas, Adolphe V. and Toro, Michel de Dictionnaire de Poche des difficultés
Librairie Larousse

Review of German Grammar

- Articles 382
- Nouns 383
- Pronouns 384
- Prepositions 386
- Adjectives and adverbs 387
- Verbs 388
- Conjunctions 391
- Numbers, dates, time 392
- German-English dictionary 396
- English-German dictionary 402

The grammar of German is closely related to the grammar of English. This is because English, to a large extent, is Germanic in origin, as is obvious from the large number of English words that derive from Germanic sources. Consider Vater and father, Mutter and mother, Sohn and son, to name just a few examples of the many cognates the two languages exhibit.

As you can expect, therefore, German phrases, clauses, and sentences are constructed in somewhat the same way in both languages. The greatest exceptions appear in the relative absence of gender in English nouns, compared with the German noun genders. Another aspect of gender that is missing in English, in contrast with German, is the agreement of adjectives with the gender of the nouns they modify.

To cite an additional difference, German nouns (as well as the adjectives used to modify them) are declined to show their functions in sentences. This means that a noun will change in form to show that it is being used, for example, as the subject of a verb, the object of a verb, or the indirect object of a verb. Yet another form of this linguistic process of declension is the genitive, which we know as the possessive. In English, nouns rarely decline to show function. Instead we show subject, object, and indirect object by placement of the noun within the phrase, clause, or sentence. We do, however, use an apostrophe and the letter s to show possession with certain nouns.

Articles

Definite articles

Definite articles agree in gender and number with the nouns they modify: der for the masculine singular, die for the feminine singular, and das for the neuter singular. All three genders have die in the plural.

der Mann the man	die Männer the men
die Frau the woman	die Frauen the women
das Kind the child	die Kinder the children

The case of the noun determines the case of the article:

Das Kind sieht den Mann. The child sees the man.

die Frau des Mannes the man's wife

Der Mann gibt dem Kind. The man gives the child.

The dative and the accusative singular of the definite article are often contracted with a preposition. For example, am is used instead of an dem, at the. Other

Declension of articles: Definite Indefinite

Case	Singular			Plural	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter		Masc.	Fem.	Neuter
Nominative	der	die	das	die	ein	eine	ein	einige
Genitive	des	der	des	der	eines	einer	eines	einiger
Dative	dem	der	dem	den	einem	einer	einem	einigen
Accusative	den	die	das	die	einen	eine	ein	einige contractions for prepositions with articles are:

ans = an das beside the beim = bei dem at the im = in dem in the ins = in das into the zum = zu dem to the
The definite article is used before abstract nouns.
Es lebe die Demokratie! Long live democracy!
Diminutives formed with the endings chen and lein are always neuter:
das Mädchen the girl das Fräulein the miss das Kindchen the little child

Indefinite articles

Indefinite articles agree in gender with the nouns they modify: ein for the masculine singular, eine for the feminine singular, and ein for the neuter singular. There is no plural for the indefinite article. The word einige, some, is used for more than one person or thing.
ein Vater a father einige Väter some fathers eine Mutter a mother einige Mütter some mothers ein Kind a child einige Kinder some children
The case of the noun determines the case of the indefinite article:
ein Kind eines Vaters
a child of a father einer Mutter Kinder children of a mother
Eine Mutter hat einige Kinder.
A mother has some children.
die Kinder eines Mannes
a man's children

Nouns

Declining singular nouns

Nouns are either masculine, feminine, or neuter. Nouns are declined. In the genitive singular form, for example, most masculine and neuter nouns add s to the nominative singular form.
Nominative der Bruder the brother
Genitive des Bruders of the brother
Nominative das Wetter the weather
Genitive des Wetters of the weather

If a noun is monosyllabic, es is added in the genitive singular.
Nominative der Sohn the son
Genitive des Sohnes of the son
Nominative das Haus the house
Genitive des Hauses of the house
Some nouns ending in e add n in the genitive singular.
Nominative der Verwandte the relative Genitive des Verwandten of the relative

Der Sohn des Bruders ist der Neffe.
The brother's son is the nephew.

Der Vater des Kindes ist alt.
The child's father is old.

The dative and accusative forms of a masculine or neuter singular noun are usually the same as those of the nominative. If the nominative ends in e, however, n is added.

Dative	dem Bruder	to the brother
Accusative	den Bruder	the brother

Dative	dem Haus	to the house
Accusative	das Haus	the house

Feminine singular nouns remain unchanged in all cases.

Die Tochter der Mutter ist schön.
The mother's daughter is beautiful.

Die Frau gibt der Tochter die Birne.
The woman gives the daughter the pear.

Declining plural nouns

The plural of all genders is formed in four ways.

Adding an umlaut to the singular form.

der Bruder the brother die Brüder the brothers

Adding er plus an umlaut to the singular form.

der Mann the man die Männer the men

Adding e plus an umlaut to the singular form.

die Nacht the night die Nächte the nights

Adding en to the singular form.

die Frau the woman die Frauen the women

The nominative, genitive, and accusative of plural nouns are all spelled identically. The dative adds n to all plural forms, with the exception of plurals formed by adding en to the singular.

	men	brothers	women
Nominative	die Männer	die Brüder	die Frauen
Genitive	der Männer	der Brüder	der Frauen
Dative	den Männern	den Brüdern	den Frauen
Accusative	die Männer	die Brüder	die Frauen

All nouns are capitalized.

Forms of the noun

Certain nouns have two forms, one for masculine gender, the other for feminine gender. For such nouns, the feminine form adds in to the masculine form.

Masc.	Fem.
der Anwalt	die Anwältin	the lawyer
der Arzt	die Ärztin	the physician
der Künstler	die Künstlerin	the artist
der Lehrer	die Lehrerin	the teacher
der Wirt	die Wirtin	the host, the hostess

Compound nouns take the gender and declension of the last noun.

das Haus + die Tür = die Haustür
the house + the door = the door to the house

der Schlaf + das Zimmer = das Schlafzimmer
the sleep + the room = the bedroom die Tasche + das Tuch = das Taschentuch

the pocket + the cloth = the handkerchief

Pronouns

Personal pronouns

Personal pronouns agree in number and gender with their antecedents.

	Nominative singular	Nominative plural
1st person	ich I	wir we
2nd person	du you (informal)	ihr you (informal)
3rd person	er, sie, es he, she, it	sie they Sie you (formal)

The pronoun ich is capitalized only when it is the first word of a sentence. The formal pronoun Sie is always capitalized.

Ich sehe dich.
I see you.

Der Tisch ist gross; er ist braun.
The table is big; it is brown.

Die Kinder spielen in dem Haus; sie singen in ihm.
The children play in the house; they sing in it.

Er gibt uns das Brot; er gibt es uns.
He gives us the bread; he gives it to us.

Reflexive pronouns

A reflexive pronoun functions as a direct or indirect object referring to the subject of a verb. It agrees in number and gender with the subject of the verb.

Dieter zieht sich an. Dieter dresses himself.
Wir waschen uns. We wash ourselves.

Ich wasche mir die Hände. I myself wash my hands.

Ihr ärgert euch. You are angry.

Some verbs that are reflexive in German are not reflexive in English.

sich anziehen to dress sich erinnern to remember sich freuen to be glad sich fürchten to be afraid sich hüten to be careful sich trennen to separate sich verbergen to hide sich verlassen to rely sich vorsehen to be careful

Declension of pronouns

Personal pronouns

	Singular			Plural
	First person	Second person	Third person	First person	Second person	Third person
Nominative	ich I	du you	er he, sie she, es it	wir we	ihr you	sie they
Genitive	meiner of me	deiner of you	seiner his, ihrer her, seiner its	unser of us	euer of you	ihrer of them
Dative	mir to me	dir to you	ihm to him, ihr to her, ihm to it	uns to us	euch to you	ihnen to them
Accusative	mich me	dich you	ihn him, sie her, es it	uns us	euch you	sie them Sie you (formal)

Reflexive pronouns

Subject	Direct object	Indirect object
ich I	mich myself	mir (to) myself
du you	dich yourself	dir (to) yourself
er, sie, es he, she, it	sich himself, herself, itself	sich (to) himself etc.
wir we	uns ourselves	uns (to) ourselves
ihr you	euch yourselves	euch (to) yourselves
sie they	sich themselves	sich (to) themselves
Sie you (formal)	sich yourselves	sich (to) yourselves

Relative pronouns

der who, which, that

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter	All genders
Nominative	der	die	das	die
Genitive	dessen	deren	dessen	deren
Dative	dem	der	dem	denen
Accusative	den	die	das	die

welcher who, which, that

Nominative	welcher	welche	welches	welche
Genitive	dessen	deren	dessen	deren
Dative	welchem	welcher	welchem	welchem
Accusative	welchen	welche	welches	welche

Demonstrative pronouns

dieser this

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter	All genders
Nominative	dieser	diese	dieses	diese
Genitive	dieses	dieser	dieses	dieser
Dative	diesem	dieser	diesem	diesen
Accusative	diesen	diese	dieses	diese

jener that

Nominative	jener	jene	jenes	jene
Genitive	jenes	jener	jenes	jener
Dative	jenem	jener	jenem	jenen
Accusative	jenen	jene	jedes	jede

Interrogative pronouns

	wer who	was what Nominative	wer	was
Genitive	wessen	(no form)
Dative	wem	(no form)
Accusative	wen	was

Demonstrative pronouns

Demonstrative pronouns agree in number and gender with their antecedents. The demonstrative pronouns are dieser this, and jener that.

Dieses Buch ist besser als jenes.
This book is better than that.

Relative pronouns

Relative pronouns agree with their antecedents in number and gender. The masculine is der, who, that, or which; the feminine is die, who, that, or which; and the neuter is das, who, that, or which.

Der Eimer, der in der Küche ist, ist voll.
The pail that is in the kitchen is full.

Die Tante, die im Garten arbeitet, ist hübsch.
The aunt who is working in the garden is pretty.

Welcher, welche, welches are relative pronouns, with the same meanings as der, die, and das. They are usually found in the written language.

Dem Schüler, welchem ich das Buch gab, traue ich.
I trust the student to whom I gave the book.

Interrogative pronouns

The interrogative pronouns are wer for persons; was for things. Welcher, welche, and welches are used for "which one." There is no plural for wer or was.

Wer ist das? Who is this?
Was gebt ihr? What are you giving?

English questions introduced by "with what," "from what," etc. are expressed in German by wo "where," plus a preposition.

Wovon spricht er? What is he talking about?
Womit schreibt ihr? What do you write with?
Wofür gibt er Geld? What is he giving money for?

Wo becomes wor before a vowel.

Woran denkst du?
What do you think about?

Worin liegt die Tugend?
Where is the virtue?

Worüber liegen die Bücher?
What are the books above?

Possessive pronouns

Possessive pronouns are formed in the following ways. By adding er, e, or es to the possessive adjective. For example, meiner, meine, meines.

Wessen Tasse ist das? Es ist meine.
Whose cup is this? It is mine.

By adding e to the possessive adjective and employing the definite article. For example, der deine, die deine, das deine.

Wessen Glas ist das? Es ist das deine.
Whose glass is this? It is yours.

By adding ige to the possessive adjective and employing the definite article. For example, der seinige, die seinige, das seinige.

Ist das dein Papier? Nein, es ist das seinige.
Is this your paper? No, it is his.

Prepositions

Prepositions are followed by words in the genitive, dative, or accusative case.

Prepositions taking the genitive

anstatt instead of	trotz in spite of ausserhalb outside of	während during innerhalb inside of	wegen on account of oberhalb above

wegen des Wetters because of the weather
trotz der Musik in spite of the music

Prepositions taking the dative

aus out of	nach after ausser besides	seit since bei at	von from, of gegenüber opposite of	zu at, to mit with

Bei mir spricht man deutsch.
At my house everyone speaks German.

Nach der Schule gehe ich nach Hause.
After school I go home.

Prepositions taking the accusative

durch through	ohne without für for	um around, about gegen against, toward

Ich stimme für den Kandidaten.
I vote for the candidate.

Prepositions taking the dative or the accusative

The following prepositions take the dative case when they answer the question Where? They take the accusative when they answer the question Where to?

an on	über over, above
auf on, upon	unter under, among hinter behind	vor before in in, into	zwischen between neben near, beside

Ich stehe vor der Tür.
I am standing in front of the door.

Ich lege das Buch auf den Tisch.
I put the book on the table.

Adjectives and adverbs

Forms of adjectives

Predicative adjectives never change form.

Der Tiger ist zahm. The tiger is tame.

Das Kind ist frech. The child is impudent.

Attributive adjectives add e when they modify a noun preceded by a definite article. They add er for the masculine, e for the feminine, and es for the neuter when they modify a noun preceded by an indefinite article.

der grosse Baum the big tree das kleine Brot the small bread ein kleiner Baum a small tree

ein kleines Brot a small bread

The plural adds en in all genders and cases.

die schweren Bücher the heavy books

There is no plural form for adjectives used with indefinite articles.

Possessive adjectives

Possessive adjectives agree in number and gender with the nouns they modify and are declined like them.

meine Katze my cat

seines Hundes of his dog

The plural here refers to the number of the noun modified.

deine Bücher your books

ihre Brüder her brothers

Declension of adjectives

with definite article

	Singular
	Masc.		Fem.	Neuter
Nominative	grosse	the big	grosse	grosse
Genitive	grossen	of the big	grossen	grossen
Dative	grossen	to the big	grossen	grossen
Accusative	grossen	the big	grosse	grosse

with indefinite article

Nominative	grosser	a big	grosse	grosses
Genitive	grossen	of a big	grossen	grossen
Dative	grossen	to a big	grossen	grossen
Accusative	grossen	a big	grosse	grosses

Forms of possessive adjectives

	Singular			Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Neuter	All genders
my	mein	meine	mein	meine
your	dein	deine	dein	deine
his	sein	seine	sein	seine
her	ihr	ihre	ihr	ihre
its	sein	seine	sein	seine
our	unser	unsere	unser	unsere
your	euer	eure	euer	eure
their	ihr	ihre	ihr	ihre

Declension of possessive adjectives

Nominative	mein	meine	mein	meine
Genitive	meines	meiner	meines	meiner
Dative	meinem	meiner	meinem	meinen
Accusative	meinen	meine	mein	meine
Nominative	dein	deine	dein	deine
Genitive	deines	deiner	deines	deiner
Dative	deinem	deiner	deinem	deinen
Accusative	deinen	deine	dein	deine
Nominative	sein	seine	sein	seine
Genitive	seines	seiner	seines	seiner
Dative	seinem	seiner	seinem	seinen
Accusative	seinen	seine	sein	seine
Nominative	ihr	ihre	ihr	ihre
Genitive	ihres	ihrer	ihres	ihrer
Dative	ihrem	ihrer	ihrem	ihren
Accusative	ihren	ihre	ihr	ihre
Nominative	sein	seine	sein	seine
Genitive	seines	seiner	seines	seiner
Dative	seinem	seiner	seinem	seinen
Accusative	seinen	seine	sein	seine
Nominative	unser	unsere	unser	unsere
Genitive	unseres	unserer	unseres	unserer
Dative	unserem	unserer	unserem	unseren
Accusative	unseren	unsere	unser	unsere
Nominative	euer	eure	euer	eure
Genitive	eures	eurer	eures	eurer
Dative	eurem	eurer	eurem	euren
Accusative	euren	eure	euer	eure
Nominative	ihr	ihre	ihr	ihre
Genitive	ihres	ihrer	ihres	ihrer
Dative	ihrem	ihrer	ihrem	ihren
Accusative	ihren	ihre	ihr	ihre

Adverbs

Adverbs are identical with adjectives but are not declined.

Er geht langsam. He goes slowly.

Comparative forms

The comparative form usually adds er to the adjective.

schnell fast schneller faster

Sometimes an umlaut is added before the er.

arm poor ärmer poorer

The comparatives of certain adjectives and adverbs are not formed in the conventional way.

gut good besser better viel much mehr more gern gladly lieber rather

Ich lese viel aber er liest mehr.
I read much but he reads more.

Superlatives

The superlative is formed by adding ste or este to the adjective. An umlaut is sometimes added to the vowel preceding the ste or este.

der ärmste the poorest die kleinste the smallest das dümmste the least intelligent der älteste the oldest

Adjectives with irregular comparative forms also have irregular superlatives.

viel, mehr, am meisten much, more, most gut, besser, am besten, good, better, best

Verbs

Conjugation of auxiliary verbs

The verbs sein to be, haben to have, and werden to become, are used in the compound tenses of other verbs.

Rules for using verbs

There is only one present tense, but it translates in three ways into English.

Ich gehe zur Schule.
I go to school. I am going to school.
I do go to school.

To form a question, subject and verb are reversed.

Du spielst. You are playing.
Spielst du? Are you playing?

In a negative sentence nicht is placed after the verb:

Wir lesen nicht. We do not read.

Conjugation of auxiliary verbs

Infinitive	sein to be	haben to have	werden to become
Indicative	Present			Imperfect
ich	bin	habe	werde	war	hatte	wurde
du	bist	hast	wirst	warst	hattest	wurdest
er, sie, es	ist	hat	wird	war	hatte	wurde
wir	sind	haben	werden	waren	hatten	wurden
ihr	seid	habt	werdet	wart	hattet	wurdet
sie	sind	haben	werden	waren	hatten	wurden
(formal) Sie	sind	haben	werden	waren	hatten	wurden
	Perfect			Future
ich	bin gewesen	habe gehabt	bin geworden	werde sein	werde haben	werde werden
du	bist gewesen	hast gehabt	bist geworden	wirst sein	wirst haben	wirst werden
er, sie, es	ist gewesen	hat gehabt	ist geworden	wird sein	wird haben	wird werden
wir	sind gewesen	haben gehabt	sind geworden	werden sein	werden haben	werden werden
ihr	seid gewesen	habt gehabt	seid geworden	werdet sein	werdet haben	werdet werden
sie	sind gewesen	haben gehabt	sind geworden	werden sein	werden haben	werden werden
(formal) Sie	sind gewesen	haben gehabt	sind geworden	werden sein	werden haben	werden werden

Formation of tenses

To form the perfect tense of any verb, the present tense of haben or sein is used together with the past participle of the verb.

Er hat gehabt. He has had.

Sie sind gewesen. They have been.

To form the future tense of any verb, the present tense of werden is used with the infinitive of the verb.

Du wirst essen. You will eat.

Wir werden tanzen. We shall dance.

Weak and strong verbs

Weak verbs are known in English as regular verbs. The infinitive, past tense, and past participle are shown here for the weak verb zahlen.

zahlen, zahlte, gezahlt (to) pay, paid, paid

Strong verbs are known in English as irregular verbs. The infinitive, past tense, and past participle are shown here for the strong verb singen.

singen, sang, gesungen (to) sing, sang, sung

Whether weak or strong, all infinitives end in en.

machen (to) make gehen (to) go

Dropping the en yields the stem of the verb, for example, mach for machen, geh for gehen. The endings for the various tenses can then be added to the stem.

Present tense

To form the present tense, the same endings are used for weak verbs and strong verbs: e, st, t, en, t, en, en.

Imperfect tense of weak verbs

The imperfect tense of weak verbs is formed by adding the endings te, test, te, ten, tet, ten to the stem of the verb.

If the infinitive stem of a verb ends in d or t, an e precedes the endings. In the verb warten, for example, the stem is wart. The imperfect of warten, therefore, is as follows.

ich wartete I waited	wir warteten we waited du wartetest you waited	ihr wartetet you waited er wartete he waited	sie warteten they waited

Past participle of weak verbs

The past participle of weak verbs is formed by putting ge before the third person singular of the present tense of the verb.

(er) spielt he plays, gespielt played

(er) dankt he thanks, gedankt thanked Conjugation of weak and strong verbs

Infinitive	weak	strong
	machen	gehen
	to make	to go

Indicative	Present		Imperfect
	I make	I go	I made	I went
	I do make	I do go	I did make	I did go
	I am making	I am going	I was making	I was going ich	mache	gehe	machte	ging
du	machst	gehst	machtest	gingst
er, sie, es	macht	geht	machte	ging
wir	machen	gehen	machten	gingen
ihr	macht	geht	machtet	gingt
sie	machen	gehen	machten	gingen
(formal) Sie	machen	gehen	machten	gingen

Imperative
(fam. sing.)	mache
(fam. pl.)	macht
(formal)	machen Sie
(fam. sing.)	gehe
(fam. pl.)	geht
(formal)	gehen Sie

	Perfect		Future
	I have made	I have gone	I shall make	I shall go
ich	habe gemacht	bin gegangen	werde machen	werde gehen
du	hast gemacht	bist gegangen	wirst machen	wirst gehen
er, sie, es	hat gemacht	ist gegangen	wird machen	wird gehen
wir	haben gemacht	sind gegangen	werden machen	werden gehen
ihr	habt gemacht	seid gegangen	werdet machen	werdet gehen
sie	haben gemacht	sind gegangen	werden machen	werden gehen
(formal) Sie	haben gemacht	sind gegangen	werden machen	werden gehen

Participles
Past	gemacht
Present	machend
Past	ist gegangen
Present	gehend

Perfect tense of weak verbs

The perfect tense of weak verbs is formed by conjugating sein to be, or haben to have, plus the past participle. Among the verbs forming the perfect with sein are verbs of motion.

Ich bin gegangen. I have gone.
Er ist ihm gefolgt. He has followed him.

All reflexive verbs form the perfect with haben and the past participle. This is true both for weak and strong verbs.

Sie hat sich gewaschen. She has washed herself.
Wir haben uns gestritten. We have quarreled.
Er hat sich gefreut. He was glad.

Note that past participles are placed at the end of the sentence or independent clause.

Du hast das Buch gelesen. You have read the book.

Imperfect and past participle of strong verbs

Strong verbs form their own imperfect and past participle. Some examples of strong verbs are shown here.

Infinitive	Imperfect	Past participle
fliegen (to) fly	flog	geflogen
kommen (to) come	kam	gekommen
lassen (to) let	liess	gelassen
leiden (to) suffer	litt	gelitten
rufen (to) call	rief	gerufen
schlafen (to) sleep	schlief	geschlafen

Future tense

The future tense of all verbs, whether weak or strong, is formed by conjugating werden in the present tense plus the infinitive of the verb.

ich werde halten I shall hold du wirst halten you will hold er wird halten he will hold wir werden halten we will hold ihr werdet halten you will hold sie werden halten they will hold

Imperative mood

The imperative with the polite Sie is formed by using the infinitive of a verb, followed by Sie. To be very polite, the word bitte (please) may be added:

Schreiben Sie bitte. Please write.
Gehen Sie bitte. Please go.

The imperative with the du form is expressed by deleting the en of the infinitive.

Infinitive	Imperative
spielen (to) play	spiel play
singen (to) sing	sing sing

The imperative for the ihr, you plural, form uses the present tense ihr form of the verb without the pronoun ihr.

ihr geht you go — geht go ihr nehmt you take — nehmt take

The imperative of the first person plural is expressed by the infinitive followed by wir we.

helfen wir let us help — geben wir let us give Forming the passive voice

To form the passive, the auxiliary verb werden (to become) is conjugated and followed by the past participle of the main verb:

Sie wird getragen.
She is being carried.

Er wurde gehört.
He was heard.

Wir werden gelobt werden.
We are going to be praised.

Impersonal verbs

Many verbs are used only in the third person singular with the pronoun es it. They are used in all tenses. Some examples follow.

es regnet it is raining es schneit it is snowing es klopft there is a knock es gelingt mir I succeed es gibt there is, there are wie geht es dir? how are you?
es geht mir gut I am fine
es tut mir leid I am sorry

Verbal prefixes

There are two types of verbal prefixes: inseparable and separable. Although these prefixes may change the meaning of a verb, they do not affect conjugation. Some examples of inseparable verbal prefixes follow.

be as in besuchen (to) visit ent as in entspannen (to) relax er as in erlangen (to) get ge as in gelingen (to) succeed miss as in misstrauen (to) mistrust ver as in vertrauen (to) trust zer as in zerbrechen (to) break

Separable verbal prefixes are prefixes that also function as prepositions. Some examples follow.

anhören (to) listen	an at, on, to aufstehen (to) get up	auf on, onto untergehen (to) perish	unter under, among vorstellen (to) introduce	vor before

In the simple tenses, the verbal prefix separates from the verb and is placed at the end of the sentence. Consider this example, which uses the verb untergehen.

Die Sonne geht unter. The sun sets.

In compound tenses, the verbal prefix does not separate. The ge of the past participle appears between the prefix and the verb.

Er hat zugehört. He has listened.
Wir wurden angestellt. We were hired.

Modal auxiliary verbs

Six verbs expressing certain modes of action have a conjugation of their own.

dürfen (to) be allowed to, expressing permission können (to) be able to, expressing ability mögen (to) like to, expressing desire müssen (to) have to, expressing obligation sollen (to) be obliged to or to be said to, expressing obligation wollen (to) want, expressing intent

The principal forms of the modal auxiliaries follow.

Infinitive	Imperfect	Past participle
dürfen	durfte	gedurft
können	konnte	gekonnt
mögen	mochte	gemocht
müssen	musste	gemusst
sollen	sollte	gesollt
wollen	wollte	gewollt

The following sentences show typical uses of the modal auxiliary verbs. (Modal auxiliaries are used frequently, since they express thoughts commonly needed in situations that arise in the everyday lives of people of all types.)

Willst du nach Hause gehen?
Do you want to go home?

Er darf nicht spielen.
He is not allowed to play.

Wir konnten rennen.
We were able to run.

Sie mag keine Milch.
She does not like milk.

Er hat sprechen gekonnt.
He was able to speak.

Sie muss üben.
She must exercise.

Present tense of modal auxiliary verbs

	dürfen	können	mögen	müssen	sollen	wollen
	I may	I can	I may, I like	I must	I should	I want
ich	darf	kann	mag	muss	soll	will
du	darfst	kannst	magst	musst	sollst	willst
er, sie, es	darf	kann	mag	muss	soll	will wir	dürfen	können	mögen	müssen	sollen	wollen
ihr	dürft	könnt	mögt	müsst	sollt	wollt
sie	dürfen	können	mögen	müssen	sollen	wollen

Conjunctions

There are two types of conjunctions: coordinating conjunctions and subordinating conjunctions.

Coordinating conjunctions

Coordinating conjunctions connect principal clauses and do not affect word order.

Ich trinke Wein, aber Dieter trinkt Bier.
I drink wine but Dieter drinks beer.

Er liest nicht, sondern schläft.
He does not read but sleeps.

Common coordinating conjunctions follow.

aber but denn for entweder . . . oder either . . . or oder or sondern but (on the contrary) und and

Subordinating conjunctions

Subordinating conjunctions introduce a dependent clause. Subordinating conjunctions affect the word order.

Er geht langsam, weil er müde ist.
He goes slowly because he is tired.

Sie spielte, obgleich sie müde war.
She was playing although she was tired.

In sentences containing an independent clause and a dependent clause, the auxiliary verb comes last and is preceded by the past participle or an infinitive.

Ich schrieb, nachdem ich angekommen war.
I wrote after I had arrived.

Er trank, weil er durstig gewesen ist.
He drank because he was thirsty.

Common subordinating conjunctions follow.

als when, then als ob as if bevor before bis until da since, when damit in order that dass so that obgleich although seit, seitdem since sobald as soon as weil because

Cardinal numbers

Cardinal numbers are not declined.

Zehn is added to the numbers three to nine to form thirteen to nineteen. Note the difference in spelling:

sechs 6, sechzehn 16; sieben 7, siebzehn 17.

Zig is added to the numbers three to nine to form thirty, etc. Note the differences in spelling:

zwei 2, zwanzig 20;
drei 3, dreissig 30;
sechs 6, sechzig 60
sieben 7, siebzig 70.

The numbers from twenty to thirty and so on up to 99 are formed by using the single numbers first and adding und and.

Ordinal numbers

Ordinal numbers are declined as adjectives. They are usually formed by adding te to the cardinal numbers. With ordinal numbers beginning with zwanzig 20, add ste to form the cardinal number.

Time of day

The time of day is expressed in two ways.

Es ist drei Uhr. It is three o'clock.
um drei Uhr at three o'clock

The progression of time is expressed in two ways. For example, ten-fifteen can be expressed as follows.

ein Viertel nach zehn a quarter after ten ein Viertel elf a quarter past ten

Ten-thirty is halb elf. Ten-forty-five is drei Viertel elf.

The progression of time can also be expressed by employing minutes.

zehn Minuten vor sieben ten minutes before seven zehn Minuten nach sieben ten minutes after seven

In timetables time is expressed on a twenty-four hour basis. From 12 noon to midnight, the hours are 13 to 24 o'clock.

acht Uhr fünfundzwanzig 8:25 A.M.
zwanzig Uhr zehn 8:10 P.M.

Cardinal numbers		Ordinal numbers
1	eins	(der, die, das) erste	first
2	zwei	zweite	second
3	drei	dritte	third
4	vier	vierte	fourth
5	fünf	fünfte	fifth
6	sechs	sechste	sixth
7	sieben	siebente	seventh
8	acht	achte	eighth
9	neun	neunte	ninth
10	zehn	zehnte	tenth
11	elf	hundertste	hundredth
12	zwölf	tausendste	thousandth
13	dreizehn	millionste	millionth
14	vierzehn
15	fünfzehn
16	sechzehn
17	siebzehn
18	achtzehn
19	neunzehn
20	zwanzig
21	einundzwanzig
22	zweiundzwanzig
30	dreissig
40	vierzig
50	fünfzig
60	sechzig
70	siebzig
80	achtzig
90	neunzig
100	hundert
101	hunderteins
200	zweihundert
1000	tausend
2000	zweitausend
2300	zweitausenddreihundert
4002	viertausendzwei
10900	zehntausendneunhundert
1000000	eine Million

Dates

When numbers are used in expressing dates, they generally are not written out. Instead, a numeral is used and followed by a period.

am 18. Dezember 1983 December 18, 1983 der 19. Mai May 19th

Days

Montag	Monday
Dienstag	Tuesday
Mittwoch	Wednesday
Donnerstag	Thursday
Freitag	Friday
Sonnabend	Saturday
Sonntag	Sunday

Seasons

Frühling	spring
Sommer	summer
Herbst	autumn
Winter	winter

Months

Januar	January
Februar	February
März	March
April	April
Mai	May
Juni	June
Juli	July
August	August
September	September
Oktober	October
November	November
Dezember	December

Arithmetical expressions

Vier und vier ist acht. Four and four are eight.
Instead of und, plus can be used.

Acht weniger sechs ist zwei. Eight minus six is two.
Instead of weniger, minus can be used.

Drei mal sieben ist einundzwanzig.
Three times seven is twenty-one.

Zehn geteilt durch zwei ist fünf.
Ten divided by two is five.

To indicate a fraction, tel is added to the cardinal number.

viertel ¼ fünftel ⅕ sechstel ⅙

An exception is ein halb ½, which is an adjective and is declined.

Er isst einen halben Kuchen. He eats a half a cake.

Another exception is ein drittel, which derives from drei three.

Indefinite numbers and amounts are not declined.

ein bisschen a little etwas some ein paar a few genug enough ein wenig a little mehr more

Note that ein Paar means a pair.

Countries

With few exceptions, the names of countries are not preceded by an article. The exceptions follow.

die Niederlande the Netherlands die Schweiz Switzerland die Türkei Turkey

Adjectives describing a country or its people are not capitalized.

der deutsche Wein German wine

die amerikanische Bevölkerung
the American population

die Vereinigten Staaten von Amerika United States of America

Country	People	Language
Belgien Belgium	Belgier Belgian	Französisch French
Dänemark Denmark	Däne Dane	Dänisch Danish
Deutschland Germany	Deutsche German	Deutsch German
England England	Engländer Englishman	Englisch English
Frankreich France	Franzose Frenchman	Französisch French
Polen Poland	Pole Pole	Polnisch Polish
Russland Russia	Russe Russian	Russisch Russian
Schweden Sweden	Schwede Swede	Schwedisch Swedish
Spanien Spain	Spanier Spaniard	Spanisch Spanish

Word order

Normal word order

As a rule the word order within a sentence is subject, verb, object.

Der Bruder liest das Buch.
The brother reads the book.

If a sentence contains a direct and an indirect object, the indirect object precedes the direct object.

Der Bruder gibt dem Vater das Buch.
The brother gives the father the book.

If the direct object is a pronoun, the direct object precedes the indirect object.

Der Bruder gibt es ihm.
The brother gives it to him.

Der Bruder gibt's dem Vater.
The brother gives it to the father.

Inverted word order

Inverted word order is used in forming questions.

Kann er lesen? Does he know how to read?

Inverted word order is used in expressing commands.

Kommen Sie her! Come here!

Inverted word order is used in sentences beginning with expressions of time or place.

Heute schlafe ich nicht.
Today I do not sleep.

In der Stadt gibt es viele Theater.
There are many theaters in the city.

In the future tense and with a modal auxiliary verb, an infinitive is placed at the end of the sentence.

Sie werden heute spielen. They will play today.
Sie können heute spielen. They can play today.

A past participle is placed at the end of a sentence.

Sie sind angekommen. They have arrived.

This highway sign illustrates typical German word order: STOPPT (stop) includes the subject "you" understood; the object AUSPUFF-PEST (exhaust pest) follows. Above this message appear the words Unsere Luft (our air).

Participles

A separable prefix becomes inseparable in the past participle.

A past participle precedes the auxiliary verb in sentences containing an independent clause and a dependent clause.

Wir wissen, dass er gehört hat.
We know that he has heard.

Writing letters

Date

14. August 1984 August 14, 1984

Inside address

The destination is supplied after the name of the addressee. The house number follows the street.

Herrn Max Schulz	Mr. Max Schulz
Düsseldorf	8 Hauptstrasse
Hauptstrasse 8	Düsseldorf

Salutation

(informal)
Lieber Herr Schulz Dear Mr. Schulz

(formal)
Sehr geehrter Herr Schulz Dear Mr. Schulz

Complimentary close

(informal) Mit freundlichen Grüssen
With kindest regards

(formal)
Hochachtungsvoll Very truly yours

A letter to friends or family may close in three ways.

Mit vielen Grüssen
With many regards

Mit den besten Grüssen
With best regards

Viele Grüsse und Küsse
With many regards and kisses

Basic expressions and idioms

auf alle Fälle	at any rate danke danke sehr
danke vielmals	thank you besten Dank vielen Dank
es tut mir leid	I am sorry
gestern abend	last night
Glück haben	to be lucky
glückliche Reise	have a good trip
herzlichen Glückwunsch	congratulations
heute in acht Tagen	a week from now
Hunger (Durst) haben	to be hungry (thirsty)
ich heisse	my name is nehmen Sie Platz	please sit down
schönen Gruss an	remember me to was ist los?	What is going on?
zu Fuss gehen	to walk
zu Hause	at home

A street in West Berlin with many attractions for German shoppers as well as tourists from abroad.

Reading a menu in a German restaurant

Breakfast Frühstück

rolls	Brötchen	pancakes	Pfannkuchen	coffee	Kaffee
crescent rolls	Hörnchen	scrambled eggs	Rühreier	cocoa	Kakao
dry toast	Zwieback	fried eggs	Spiegeleier	tea	Tee
		soft-boiled eggs	weichgekochte Eier

Lunch and dinner Mittagessen und Abendessen

cold cuts	Aufschnitt	roast beef	Rinderbraten	potato dumplings	Kartoffelklösse
sandwich	belegtes Brot	roast chicken	Brathuhn	mashed potatoes	Kartoffelpüree
cheese	Käse	roast goose	Gänsebraten	boiled potatoes	Salzkartoffeln
sausage	Wurst	roast veal	Kalbsbraten
frankfurters	Würstchen	roast pork	Schweinebraten	dessert	Nachtisch
		meatballs	Klopse	ice cream	Eis
consommé	Brühe			stewed fruit	Kompott
noodle soup	Brühe mit Nudeln	fish	Fisch	tarts	Törtchen
soup	Suppe	codfish	Cabeljau	fruit	Obst
		flounder	Flunder
salad	Salat	halibut	Heilbut
cucumber salad	Gurkensalat
tomato salad	Tomatensalat	vegetables	Gemüse
mixed salad	Gemischter Salat	mushrooms	Champignons
		peas	Erbsen
		vegetable plate	Gemüseplatte
		green beans	grüne Bohnen
		cabbage	Kohl
		carrots	Mohrrüben

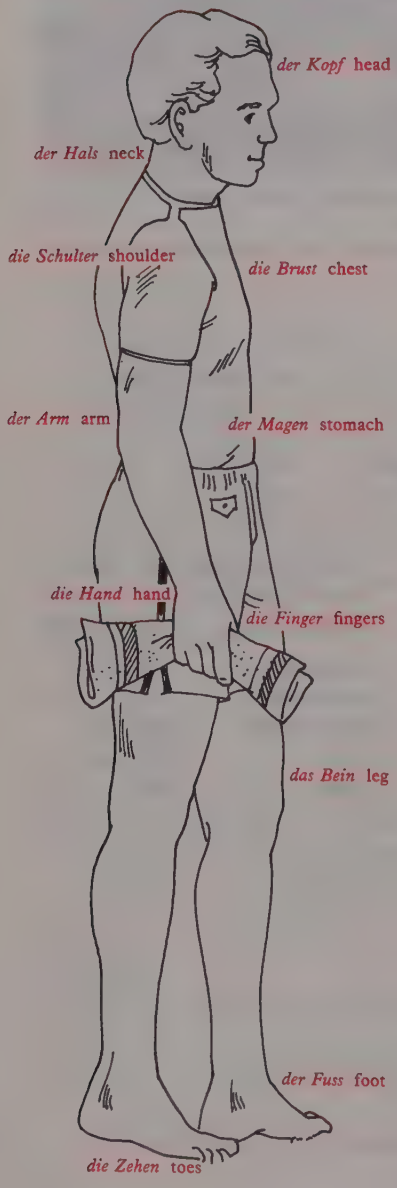
das Gesicht The face

Dictionary

der Körper The human body



Dictionary abbreviations. Nouns are identified as masculine (m), feminine (f), or neuter (nt). Adjectives are identified as adj, adverbs as adv, conjunctions as conj, interjections as interj, prepositions as prep, pronouns as pron, and verbs as v. Plurals are identified as pl.

German-English

A

Abend m evening
Abenteur nt adventure aber conj but ablehnen v decline ähnlich adj similar also conj therefore, so alt adj old alt werden v age
Angina f sore throat
Angst f fear
Anleihe f loan Ansprache f speech anständig adj decent Antwort f reply, answer antworten v answer
Anzug m suit Arbeit f work
arbeiten v work Arm m arm
arm adj poor
Armbanduhr f wristwatch Arzt m medical doctor atmen v breathe auch conj also Aufgabe f task
aufpassen v watch aufstehen v get up, rise aufwachen v wake up auf Wiedersehen interj goodbye
aufziehen v (watch) wind
Auge nt eye
Ausflug m excursion, outing Ausgang m exit ausrotten v eradicate ausser prep except Autobahn f highway
Autofahrer m driver

B

backen v bake Bahnhof m station
bald adv soon
Ball m ball
Bank f bench
Bart m beard
bauen v build, construct Baum m tree
bedeuten v mean beeindrucken v impress behalten v keep Bein nt leg
beinahe adv almost bekannt werden v become acquainted Belagerung f siege belasten v burden
bellen v bark Belohnung f reward
benutzen v use beobachten v observe bequem adj comfortable bereit adj ready, prepared berühmt adj famous bescheiden adj modest Bescheidenheit f modesty beschreiben v describe Beschwerde f complaint, burden Besen m broom besonders adv particularly bestechen v bribe Bestechung f bribery, graft bestimmen v determine bestrafen v punish Besuch m visit besuchen v visit
beten v pray
Bett nt bed
Bevölkerung f population bezahlen v pay billig adj cheap
bitte adv please blass adj pale blau adj blue bleiben v stay Bleistift m pencil blind adj blind
Blinddarm m appendix
Blitz m lightning
Blume f flower borgen v borrow Brandstiftung f arson

brauchen v need braun adj brown
Braut f bride
Bräutigam m bridegroom
Bremse f brake
Brief m letter
Briefmarke f stamp
Briefumschlag m envelope
Brot nt bread
Brücke f bridge
Bruder m brother
Buch nt book
Bürger m citizen

C

Charakter m character
Chef m boss
Chemie f chemistry
Chirurg m surgeon christlich adj Christian

D

Dame f lady
Dampf m steam
Dank m gratitude, thanks danken v thank Daumen m thumb denken v think deswegen conj therefore dichten v write poetry Dichter m poet
dick adj thick
Dieb m thief
Ding nt thing
diskutieren v discuss Donner m thunder
Draht m wire
draussen adv outside dringend adj urgent Druck m pressure
dumm adj stupid
dunkel adj dark Durst m thirst
durstig adj thirsty

E

Ecke f corner
Efeu m ivy
Egoismus m egotism
Ehefrau f wife
Ehemann m husband
Ei nt egg
Eid m oath
Eigentum nt property
einbrechen v burglarize Einbrecher m burglar Eindruck m impression Einfuhr f import einführen v introduce Eingang m entrance Einkommen nt income einladen v invite Einladung f invitation
Einschnitt m incision Einwanderer m immigrant Ellbogen m elbow
Eltern pl parents
Ende nt end
endlich adv finally Engel m angel
Enkel m grandchild
entlassen v dismiss Entlassung f dismissal entwickeln v develop erbärmlich adj miserable erforderlich adj necessary Ergebnis nt result erhalten v receive erinnern v remind erklären v explain erleichtern v facilitate, lighten ernst adj earnest erschöpfen v exhaust ertragen v tolerate essen v eat
Europa nt Europe
exponieren v expose

F

fähig adj capable, able fahren v drive, ride
Fahrer m driver
Fahrplan m timetable
falsch adj wrong, false
Familie f family
Farbaufnahme f color photo
Farbe f color
fegen v sweep Fehler m mistake
feiern v celebrate Feiertag m holiday
Feind m enemy
Ferien pl vacation
Ferne f distance
feucht adj damp
Feuchtigkeit f dampness Feuer nt fire
finden v find Finger m finger
Flasche f bottle, flask fleissig adj diligent Flugzeug nt airplane
fordern v request Forderung f request fortfahren v continue Frage f question
Frankreich nt France
französisch adj French
Frau f woman, wife
Fräulein nt miss
Freiheit f liberty Freund m friend
freundlich adj kind, friendly frieren v freeze
fröhlich adj merry, cheerful Frucht f fruit
früh adv early Frühling m spring
Frühstück nt breakfast
Fuchs m fox
Führerschein m driver's license Funke m spark funkeln v spark funktionieren v function, work für prep for fürchten v fear
Fuss m foot
Fussboden m floor

G

Gabel f fork
Gans f goose garantieren v vouch for garnieren v adorn Gast m guest
Gastarbeiter m foreign worker Gastgeber m host geben v give Gebirge nt mountain range
Gebühr f fee
Geburt f birth
Geburtstag m birthday
Gedächtnis nt memory
Gedanke m thought, idea
Gedicht nt poem
Geduld f patience
geduldig adj patient Gefahr f danger
gefährlich adj dangerous gegen prep against, toward

Gegend f area
Gegenwart f presence Gegner m adversary
geheim adj secret Geheimnis nt secret gehen v go, walk gehören v belong gehorsam adj obedient Gehorsamkeit f obedience
gelb adj yellow
Geld nt money
Gelegenheit f occasion
genau adv precisely genug adj enough geräumig adj spacious Geräusch nt noise
Gerüst nt scaffolding
Geschenk nt present
Gesetz nt law
Gesicht nt face
Gespenst nt ghost Geständnis nt confession gestehen v confess gestern adv yesterday
gesund adj healthy gewaltsam adj violent Gewalttätigkeit f violence gewiss adv certainly Gewissen nt conscience Gewissensbisse m remorse gewissenhaft adj conscientious gewissermassen adv so to speak Gewitter nt thunderstorm Glas nt glass
glatt adj slippery Glatze f baldness
gleichzeitig adv simultaneously
Glocke f bell
Glück nt luck
Gott m god
göttlich adj divine gottlos adj godless
Grab nt tomb
Graben m ditch graben v dig gratulieren v congratulate Grippe f flu gross adj big, tall
grün adj green Grundlage f basis gründlich adj profound Gruppe f group grüssen v greet gültig adj valid gut adj good

H

Haar nt hair
Hafen m harbor
Hagel m hail
Hals m neck
Hand f hand
Handlung f action
Handschuh m glove
Handtuch nt towel
hauptsächlich adv chiefly, adj principal Hauptstadt f capital
Hauptstrasse f main street
Haus nt house
Hauswirt m landlord
Haut f skin
Heide f heath
heilen v cure, heal Heiligabend m Christmas eve heiraten v marry helfen v help, assist Hemd nt shirt
Herausgeber m publisher Herbst m fall, autumn herrlich adj splendid Herz nt heart
herzlich adj affectionate heute adv today
heute abend adv tonight
hier adv here
Hilfe f help
hilflos adj helpless Himmel m sky, heaven
hinter prep behind, beyond Hintergrund m background hinzufügen v add hoch adj high, tall Hochzeit f wedding hoffen v hope hoffentlich adv I hope Hoffnung f hope höflich adj polite
Hölle f hell
Holz nt wood hören v hear Hose f pants
hübsch adj pretty, handsome Hunger m hunger
hungern v starve
hungrig adj hungry Husten m cough
husten v cough
Hut m hat
Hütte f cabin

I

immer adv always impfen v inoculate
Ingenieur m engineer Inhaltsverzeichnis nt table of contents interessant adj interesting Irrtum m error

J

Jagd f chase
jagen v chase jedoch conj nevertheless jemand pron somebody jenseits adv beyond jetzt adv now Jugend f youth jugendlich adj youthful jung adj young

K

kahl adj bold
kalt adj cold
Kammermusik f chamber music Kampf m fight
kämpfen v fight
Kapitel nt chapter
Karfreitag m Good Friday
Kartoffel f potato
Käse m cheese
Kassier m bank teller
kauen v chew kaufen v buy kaum adv hardly Kehle f throat
Keim m germ
kennenlernen v get acquainted, meet Kern m pit
Kind nt child
Kirche f church
Kissen nt pillow
Klasse f class
Klatsch m gossip
Klavier nt piano
Kleid nt dress klein adj little, small klingeln v ring
klug adj clever Knie nt knee
kochen v cook, boil
Koffer m suitcase

kommen v come Konditorei f coffee shop
Konkurs m bankruptcy
Konzept nt plan, draft
Kopf m head
Kopfschmerz m headache
krank adj sick, ill
Krankenhaus n hospital
Krebs m cancer
Krieg m war
krumm adj crooked
Krüppel m cripple
Küche f kitchen
Kuchen m cake
Kunde m customer
Kunst f art
Künstler m artist künstlich adj artificial kürzlich adv recently Kusine f female cousin
Kuss m kiss

L

lächeln v smile
lachen v laugh
Lachs m salmon
Laken nt sheet
langsam adj slow
Last f burden
lästig adj burdensome Leben nt life
leben v live
ledig adj unmarried
leer adj empty
Lehrer m teacher
Lehrling m apprentice leicht adj easy leider adv unfortunately leihen v lend leise adv softly, adj soft lernen v learn lesen v read
Leute pl people
Licht nt light
Liebe f love
lieben v love lieber adv rather lieber haben v prefer Literatur f literature
Locke f curl
Löffel m spoon
Luft f air
lügen v lie
Lust haben v like to

M

machen v make Mädchen nt girl
Mahlzeit f meal
manchmal adv sometimes Mann m man, husband
Mantel m overcoat
Märchen nt fairy tale
Markt m market
Maschine f machine
Maus f mouse
Mehl nt flour
mehrere adj several Mensch m human being merken v notice
Merkmal nt identification mark messen v measure
Messer nt knife
Milch f milk
mit prep with Mitglied nt member Mittag m noon
Mitte f middle Mitternacht f midnight
möglich adj possible
Monat m month
Mord m murder
Mörder m murderer
morgen adv tomorrow
Morgen m morning
Motor m engine, motor Muschel f shell
Musik f music
Mutter f mother

N

Nachfolge f succession
Nachname m last name
Nachricht f news
Nacht f night
Nachteil m disadvantage
Nachtisch m dessert Nadel f needle
nahe adj near, close nähren v nurse
Nahrung f food
Name m name
Nase f nose
nass adj wet
Nässe f wetness
Natur f nature
natürlich adj natural, adv of course neben prep next to, beside Neffe m nephew nehmen v take Neid m envy
neiden v envy Nichte f niece
nichts pron nothing
nieder prep down Niedergang m decline niedrig adj low niemand pron nobody Nummer f number

O

ob prep whether Ober m waiter
obgleich conj although oder conj or Ofen m stove
öffnen v open oft adv often ohne prep without ohnegleichen adv unequaled ohnehin adv in any case
Ohr nt ear
Ohrfeige f slap in the face
Onkel m uncle
Oper f opera
Opfer nt sacrifice, victim
Ort m spot

P

packen v pack
Paket nt package
Panne f breakdown
Papagei m parrot
Papier nt paper
Papierkorb m wastepaper basket
Park m park
Pass m passport
Passagier m passenger passieren v happen
Person f person
Pfeife f pipe
Pferd nt horse
Platz m place
Polizei f police
Polizeiwache f police station
Priester m priest Programm nt program prüfen v examine Prüfung f examination
pünktlich adj punctual

Q

Qual f torture
quälen v torture
Qualitat f quality

R

Rabe m raven
Rad nt wheel
Rauch m smoke
rauchen v smoke
rechnen v calculate, count Recht nt right
recht adj right
recht haben v be right rechtzeitig adv on time
Regen m rain
Regenmantel m raincoat
Regenschirm m umbrella Regierung f government
regnen v rain
Reifen m tire
reinigen v clean reisen v travel
reissen v tear
rennen v run
Reservereifen m spare tire
Rock m skirt
Roman m novel
rot adj red Rücken m back
Rucksack m knapsack Ruderboot nt rowboat rufen v call ruhig adj quiet, calm

S

sammeln v collect Sammlung f collection
Sand m sand
Satz m sentence
schaffen v create Schaffner m conductor Schaffung f creation
scharf adj sharp
Scheibenwischer m windshield wiper
Schere f scissors
Schiff nt ship
Schinken m ham
schlafen v sleep
Schlagsahne f whipped cream schlecht adj bad schliessen v close Schlips m necktie Schloss nt castle
schmeicheln v flatter schmutzig adj dirty Schnee m snow schneiden v cut schnell adj fast, quick Schokolade f chocolate
schön adj beautiful Schornstein m chimney
schreiben v write Schuh m shoe
Schule f school
Schurke m villain
schwach adj feeble, weak schwarz adj black Schwein nt pig schwer adj heavy Schwester f sister
Schwiegermutter f mother-in-law Schwiegervater m father-in-law sehen v to see sehr adv much seit prep since Seite f page seltsam adj strange senden v send Serviette f napkin sich sorgen v worry sich setzen v sit down singen v sing
sitzen v sit sogar adv even Sohn m son
Sommer m summer
Sonne f sun
Sorge f worry
sparen v save Speisekarte f menu
Spiegel m mirror
Spinne f spider
spinnen v spin Sprache f language
sprechen v speak
Sprecher m speaker
Stadt f city, town stark adj strong Staub m dust
Stein m stone
sterben v die
steuern v conduct, steer Steuerrad nt steering wheel
Stimme f voice, vote
Strand m beach Strasse f street
streiten v quarrel, fight studieren v study
Studium nt study
Stuhl m chair
Stunde f hour
suchen v seek, look for Suppe f soup
surren v buzz
suspendieren v suspend
Szene f scene

T

Tag m day
Tankstelle f gas station
Tante f aunt Tanz m dance
tanzen v dance
Tasse f cup
taub adj deaf
Tee m tea
teilnehmen v take part, participate Telefon nt telephone telefonieren v telephone telegraphieren v telegraph Teller m plate
teuer adj expensive Theater nt theater
tief adj deep, low Tier nt animal
Tierarzt m veterinarian
Tinte f ink
Tisch m table
Tochter f daughter
Topf m pot
Torte f fancy cake
tot adj dead, n Tot m totmüde adj dead tired tragen v carry trauern v mourn
Traum m dream
träumen v dream
traurig adj sad Treppe f staircase
treu adj faithful trinken v drink
Trinkgeld nt tip
trocken adj dry Trost m consolation
trösten v comfort
Tür f door
Turm m tower

U

über prep above, over überraschen v surprise Überraschung f surprise übertreiben v exaggerate Übertreibung f exaggeration
Übung f exercise
Uhr f clock, watch ungeduldig adj impatient ungefähr adv approximately ungesund adj unhealthy ungewöhnlich adj uncommon unglücklich adj unhappy Universität f university unter prep underneath unterbrechen v interrupt Unterbrechung f interruption
Unterhaltung f conversation Unterricht m instruction unterschreiben v sign unverschämt adj impudent unvollendet adj unfinished unzufrieden adj dissatisfied Ursache f cause ursprünglich adv originally

V

Vater m father verbessern v improve verbrennen v burn vereinen v unite vergessen v forget verkaufen v sell
Verkehr m traffic
Verkehrsampel f traffic light verlangen v demand verlieren v lose vermehren v increase veröffentlichen v publish verrückt adj crazy verschwinden v disappear versenden v ship
Versicherung f insurance Verspätung f delay
verstehen v understand Versuch m attempt verteidigen v defend vertraut adj familiar verwunden v wound verzeihen v pardon, forgive Vetter m cousin
viel adv much Vogel m bird
Volkslied nt folk song Volksstamm m tribe voll adj full Vorbereitung f preparation vorgestern adv day before yesterday vorhaben v plan vorher adv before Vorhersage f prediction vorhersagen v predict vorhersehen v anticipate Vorname m first name Vorschlag m proposal vorschlagen v propose vorsichtig adj careful Vorstadt f suburb
Vorstellung f performance
Vorteil m advantage

W

Waage f scale
wachsen v grow wagen v risk
Wahl f election
wählen v choose während prep during Wahrheit f truth
wandern v wander
warm adj warm
warnen v warn Warnung f warning
warten v wait
warum adv and conj why Wasser nt water
wechseln v change
Weg m path
weich adj soft weil conj because weinen v cry
weiss adj white weit adj far weitergehen v go on Welt f world wenig adj little wetten v bet Wetter nt weather
wichtig adj important wieder adv again wiederholen v repeat wiegen v weigh wild adj wild Windel f diaper
windig adj windy
Windschutzscheibe f windshield
Winter m winter
Winterfrische f winter resort Wintergarten m conservatory winterlich adj wintry winzig adj tiny wir pron we wirbeln v whirl
wirken v work
wirklich adj actual, real Wirtshaus nt inn
wissen v know
Wissenschaft f science, learning Woche f week
wöchentlich adv weekly
Wolkenkratzer m skyscraper
Wörterbuch n dictionary Wunder nt miracle
wunderbar adj wonderful Wunderkind n prodigy Wunsch m desire, wish wünschen v want

Z

zahlen v pay
Zahn m tooth
Zahnarzt m dentist Zahnbürste f toothbrush
zährtlich adj tender Zehe f toe
zeigen v show
Zeitalter nt age
Zeitung f newspaper Zentrum nt center zerbrechen v break ziehen v pull Ziel nt aim ziemlich adv rather Zimmer nt room
zittern v tremble
zögernd adv reluctantly
Zorn m anger
Zucker m sugar
Zufall m accident
Zug m train
zuhören v listen
zumachen v close Zündung f ignition Zunge f tongue
zurück adv back, behind zurückkommen v return zusammen adj together zwingen v force Zwinger m kennel
zwischen prep between

Dictionary abbreviations. Nouns are identified as masculine (nm), feminine (nf), or neuter (nt). Adjectives are identified as adj, adverbs as adv, conjunctions as conj, interjections as interj, prepositions as prep, pronouns as pron, and verbs as v. Plurals are identified as pl.

English-German

A

above prep über action n Handlung f
add v hinzufügen adorn v garnieren advantage n Vorteil m adventure n Abenteuer nt adversary n Gegner m again adv wieder against prep gegen age n Zeitalter nt
age v altern
air n Luft f airplane n Flugzeug nt alleviate v erleichtern almost adv fast already adv schon
although conj obgleich always adv immer angel n Engel m animal n Tier nt answer n Antwort f, v antworten anticipate v vorhersehen appendix n (medical) Blinddarm m apprentice n Lehrling m approximately adv ungefähr arm n Arm m arrive v ankommen arson n Brandstiftung f
art n Kunst f artist n Künstler m attempt n Versuch m attempt v versuchen
aunt n Tante f
autumn n Herbst m award n Belohnung f

B

back adv zurück background n Hintergrund m bad adj schlecht
bake v backen ball n Ball m ban v verbannen
bark v bellen beach n Strand m
beard n Bart m beautiful adj schön
because adv weil bed n Bett nt
before adv vorher behind prep hinter bell n Glocke f belong v gehören beside prep neben bet v wetten
between prep zwischen beyond adv jenseits big adj gross birth n Geburt f birthday n Geburtstag m bite v beissen black adj schwarz
blind adj blind
bloom v blühen
blue adj blau book n Buch nt
borrow v borgen boss n Chef m bottle n Flasche f brake n Bremse f bread n Brot nt breakdown n Panne f
breakfast n Frühstück nt breath n Atem m breathe v atmen
bribe n Bestechung f
bribe v bestechen bride n Braut f bridegroom n Bräutigam m bridge n Brücke f broom n Besen m
brother n Bruder m brown adj braun build v bauen burden n Last f burden v belasten burglar n Einbrecher m burn v brennen but conj aber
buy v kaufen

C

cabin n Hütte f
cake n Kuchen m cancer n Krebs m capable adj fähig capital n Hauptstadt f careful adj vorsichtig carry v tragen castle n Schloss nt cause n Ursache f
cautious adj vorsichtig certainly adv gewiss chair n Stuhl m chamber music n Kammermusik f change v wechseln, n Kleingeld nt character n Charakter m chase v jagen cheese n Käse m chemistry n Chemie f
chew v kauen chiefly adv hauptsächlich child n Kind nt chimney n Schornstein m chocolate n Schokolade f
choose v wählen
Christian adj christlich
Christmas eve n Heiligabend m church n Kirche f citizen n Bürger m city n Stadt f class n Klasse f clean v reinigen clever adj klug
close v schliessen coat n Mantel m
coffee shop n Konditorei f cold adj kalt collect v sammeln collection n Sammlung f color n Farbe f
color picture n Farbaufnahme f
come v kommen comfortable adj bequem compassion n Mitleid nt compassionate adj mitleidig complain v sich beschweren complaint n Beschwerde f conductor n (train) Schaffner m confess v gestehen confession n Geständnis nt congratulate v gratulieren conscience n Gewissen m

consolation n Trost m
contents n Inhalt m continuation n Fortsetzung f continue v fortfahren cook n Koch m, v kochen corner n Ecke f cough v husten courage n Mut m cousin n Vetter m, Kusine f create v schaffen creation n Schaffung f
cup n Tasse f
customer n Kunde m
cut v schneiden

D

daily adj. täglich damp adj feucht danger n Gefahr f dangerous adj gefährlich dark adj dunkel daughter n Tochter f day n Tag m dead adj tot dead tired adj todmüde deaf adj taub death n Tod m decent adj anständig decline n Niedergang m decline v ablehnen deep adj tief defend v verteidigen defense n Verteidigung f delay n Verzögerung f
describe v beschreiben description n Beschreibung f desire n Wunsch m determine v bestimmen develop v entwickeln dictionary n Wörterbuch nt die v sterben difficult adj schwierig dig v graben diligent adj fleissig disadvantage n Nachteil m dismiss v entlassen dismissal n Entlassung dissatisfied adj unzufrieden distinguish v unterscheiden ditch n Graben m divine adj göttlich doctor n Arzt m dog n Hund m
donkey n Esel m door n Tür f dream n Traum m dress n Kleid n drink v trinken driver n Fahrer m
driver's license n Führerschein m drugstore n Drogerie f
dry adj trocken
during prep während dust n Staub m

E

eagle n Adler m ear n Ohr nt
early adv früh easy adj leicht eat v essen egg n Ei nt egotism n Egoismus m elbow n Ellbogen m elect v auserwählen election n Wahl f
emigrant n Auswanderer m empty adj leer end n Ende nt
enemy n Feind m engine n Motor m enough adv genug enrich v bereichern entrance n Eingang m envelope n Umschlag m envoy n Gesandte m envy n Neid m envy v neiden eradicate v ausrotten error n Fehler m Europe n Europa nt
even adv sogar evening n Abend m
exaggerate v übertreiben exaggeration n Übertreibung f except prep ausser excess n Übermass nt excursion n Ausflug m exhaust n Auspuff m exhaust v erschöpfen exhausted adj erschöpft exhibit n Austellung m exhibit v ausstellen exit n Ausgang m expensive adj teuer explain v erklären eye n Auge nt

F

face n Gesicht nt facilitate v erleichtern fairy tale n Märchen nt faithful adj treu false adj falsch familiar adj vertraut family n Familie f famous adj berühmt far adj weit
fast adj schnell
father n Vater m
father-in-law n Schwiegervater m fear n Furcht f, v fürchten fee n Gebühr f
fight n Kampf m, v kämpfen finally adv endlich find v finden finger n Finger m fire n Feuer nt
first name n Vorname m
fish n Fisch m
fish v fischen
flatter v schmeicheln flour n Mehl nt flower n Blume f
flue n Grippe f
food n Nahrung f foot n Fuss m
for prep für force v zwingen foreign worker n Gastarbeiter m forget v vergessen forgive v vergeben
fox n Fuchs m
France n Frankreich nt freeze v frieren
French adj französisch friend n Freund m, Freundin f friendly adj freundlich fright n Furcht f
frog n Frosch m

G

gas station n Tankstelle f get up v aufstehen girl n Mädchen nt
give v geben glass n Glas nt
glove n Handschuh m go v gehen
God n Gott m

good adj gut goodby interj auf Wiedersehen gossip n Klatsch m government n Regierung f grandchild n Enkel m, Enkelin f gratitude n Dankbarkeit f
green adj grün greet v grüssen greeting n Gruss m group n Gruppe f grow v wachsen
guest n Gast m

H

hail n Hagel m, v hageln hair n Haar nt
ham n Schinken m hand n Hand f happen v passieren harbor n Hafen m hardly adv kaum hat n Hut m
hay n Heu nt
head n Kopf m
headache n Kopfschmerz m heal v heilen healthy adj gesund hear v hören heart n Herz nt heartily adv herzlich heath n Heide f
heavy adj schwer hell n Hölle f
help n Hilfe f, v helfen helpless adj hilflos here adv hier high adj hoch highlight n Höhepunkt m highly adv höchst hilarious adj ausgelassen holiday n Feiertag m hope n Hoffnung f
hope v hoffen horse n Pferd nt hospital n Krankenhaus nt
host n Gastgeber m hour n Stunde f house n Haus nt
human being n Mensch m hunger n Hunger m hungry adj hungrig hunt n Jagd f
hunt v jagen husband n Mann m

I

idea n Gedanke m
ignition n Zündung f ill adj krank immigrant n Einwanderer m impatient adj ungeduldig import n Einfuhr f import v einführen important adj wichtig impress v beeindrucken impression n Eindruck m improve v verbessern impudent adj unverschämt incision n Einschnitt m income n Einkommen nt increase v vermehren inexpensive adj billig ink n Tinte f inn n Wirtshaus nt, Gasthaus nt instead of conj anstatt instruction n Unterricht m insurance n Versicherung f interesting adj interessant interrupt v unterbrechen interruption n Unterbrechung f introduce v bekannt machen, einführen invent v erfinden invention n Erfindung f invite v einladen ivy n Efeu m

K

kennel n Zwinger m kind adj freundlich, n Art f kiss n Kuss m kitchen n Küche nt knee n Knie nt
knife n Messer nt
know v wissen

L

lady n Dame f landlord n Hauswirt m
last name n Nachname m laugh n Lachen nt, v lachen law n Gesetz nt lazy adj faul learn v lernen leg n Bein nt lend v leihen letter n Brief m liberty n Freiheit f lie v (recline) liegen, (tell untruth) lügen, n (untruth) Lüge f light adj (color) hell, (weight) leicht lightning n Blitz m like to v gern
listen v zuhören literature n Literatur f
little adj klein live v leben living room n Wohnzimmer nt loan n Anleihe f lock v zuschliessen lose v verlieren loud adj laut
love n Liebe f, v lieben low adj niedrig luck n Glück

M

machine n Maschine f
Main Street n Hauptstrasse f majority n Mehrheit f make v machen man n Mann m
many adj viel market n Markt m meal n Mahlzeit f mean v meinen
measure n Mass nt measure v messen meet v treffen member n Mitglied nt memory n Gedächtnis nt menu n Speisekarte f
merry adj fröhlich middle n Mitte f midnight n Mitternacht f milk n Milch f minority n Minderhait f miracle n Wunder n mirror n Spiegel m miserable adj erbärmlich mistake n Fehler m
modest adj bescheiden modesty n Bescheidenheit f money n Geld nt month n Monat m
mother n Mutter f
mother-in-law n Schwiegermutter f mountain n Berg m

mourning n Trauer f mouse n Maus f murder n Mord m murderer n Mörder m muscle n Muskel m
music n Musik f

N

name n Name m
name v ernennen
napkin n Serviette f
naturally adv natürlich near adv nahe necessary adj nötig neck n Nacken m
necktie n Krawatte f, Schlips m needle n Nadel f nephew n Neffe m never adv nie
news n Nachricht f
next to prep neben niece n Nichte f night n Nacht f noise n Lärm m
noon n Mittag m
no one pron niemand nose n Nase f notebook n Heft nt
nothing pron nichts
notice v merken nurse n Krankenschwester f nurse v nähren

O

oath n Eid m obedience n Gehorsam m obedient adj gehorsam observation n Beobachtung f observe v beobachten occasion n Gelegenheit f often adv oft old adj alt
on time adv rechtzeitig open v öffnen, adj offen opera n Oper f or conj oder
originally adv ursprünglich otherwise adv sonst outside adv draussen

P

pack v packen package n Paket nt
page n Seite f
pale adj blass paper n Papier nt
parents n Eltern pl park n Park m parrot n Papagei m passenger n Passagier m passport n Pass m patience n Geduld f patiently adv geduldig pay v zahlen peculiar adj besonders pea n Erbse f
peace n Friede m pencil n Bleistift m people n Leute pl person n Person f
piano n Klavier nt pig n Schwein nt pillow n Kissen nt pipe n Pfeife f place n Platz m
plate n Teller m
please interj bitte, v gefallen poem n Gedicht m poet n Dichter m
police n Polizei f
police station n Polizeiwache f polite adj höflich poor adj arm population n Bevölkerung f possible adj möglich pot n Topf m
potato n Kartoffel f
pray v beten precisely adv genau predict v vorhersagen prediction n Vorhersage f prefer v vorziehen presence n Gegenwart f present n (gift) Geschenk nt pressure n Druck m pretty adj hübsch priest n Priester m prison n Gefängnis nt profound adv gründlich program n Programm nt property n Eigentum nt proposal n Vorschlag m propose v vorschlagen publish v veröffentlichen publisher n Herausgeber m punctual adj pünktlich punish v bestrafen purchase v kaufen

Q

quarrel v streiten question n Frage f
quick adj schnell quiet adj ruhig

R

rain n Regen m, v regnen raincoat n Regenmantel m
read v lesen ready adj bereit receive v erhalten
recently adv kürzlich
red adj rot relative n Verwandte m reluctant adj zögernd remember v sich erinnern an remorse n Gewissensbisse pl request n Forderung f request v fordern responsible adj verantwortlich result n Ergebnis nt retain v zurückbehalten ride v fahren ring v klingeln
rob v rauben robbery n Raub m room n Zimmer nt runner n Läufer m

S

sad adj traurig sand n Sand m
save v sparen scarce adj selten scarcely adv kaum school n Schule f
science n Wissenschaft f scientist n Wissenschaftler m scissors n Schere f secret n Geheimnis m secret adj geheim
see v sehen seek v suchen sell v verkaufen
send v schicken sentence n (grammar) Satz m, (judgment) Urteil nt serious adj ernst several adj mehrere share n Anteil m share v teilen

sharp adj scharf sheet n Laken nt shell n Muschel f ship n Schiff nt ship v versenden shirt n Hemd nt shoe n Schuh m
show v zeigen shut v schliessen sick adj krank siege n Belagerung f
sign n Zeichen nt, v unterschreiben similar adj ähnlich simultaneously adv gleichzeitig since prep seit sing v singen
sit down v sich setzen skin n Haut f
skirt n Rock m sky n Himmel m skyscraper n Wolkenkratzer m slaughter v schlachten sleep v schlafen slippery adj glatt
slow adj langsam smile n Lächeln nt, v lächeln smoke n Rauch m, v rauchen snow n Schnee m soft adj weich softly adv leise soiled adj schmutzig somebody pron jemand
sometimes adv manchmal son n Sohn m
soon adv bald soup n Suppe f
spacious adj geräumig spare tire n Ersatzreifen m spark n Funke m spark v funkeln speak v sprechen speaker n Sprecher m spider n Spinne f splendid adj herrlich spoon n Löffel m spring n Frühling m stamp n Briefmarke f staircase n Treppe f starve v hungern station n (train) Bahnhof m steam n Dampf m
steer v steuern steering wheel n Steuerrad nt
stone n Stein m stove n Ofen m strange adj seltsam street n Strasse f
strong adj stark study n Studium nt, v studieren succession n Nachfolge f
suddenly adv plötzlich sugar n Zucker m suit n Anzug m suitcase n Koffer m summer n Sommer m
sun n Sonne f
surgeon n Chirurg m swallow n Schwalbe f swallow v schlucken sweep v fegen

T

table n Tisch m
table of contents n Inhaltsverzeichnis nt take v nehmen
take part v teilnehmen tale n Erzählung f tall adj gross task n Aufgabe f
tea n Tee m
teacher n Lehrer m, Lehrerin f telephone n Telefon nt
telephone v telefonieren tell v erzählen teller n (bank) Kassier m temporary adj vorübergehend thank v danken theater n Theater nt
therefore adv also thick adj dick thief n Dieb m thing n Ding nt think v denken
thirst n Durst m thought n Gedanke m thumb n Daumen m thunder n Donner m thunderstorm n Gewitter nt time n Zeit f
timetable n Fahrplan m
tip n Trinkgeld nt
tire n Reifen m
today adv heute
together adv zusammen tolerate v ertragen tomorrow adv morgen tongue n Zunge f torture n Qual f torture v quälen towel n Handtuch nt town n Stadt f
trade n Handel m traffic n Verkehr m traffic light n Verkehrsampel f
train n Zug m transmission n Übertragung f transmit v übertragen travel v reisen tree n Baum m tribe n Volksstamm m true adj wahr truth n Wahrheit f

U

umbrella n Regenschirm m
uncle n Onkel m uncommon adj ungewöhnlich under prep unter understand v verstehen unfinished adj unvollendet unfortunately adv leider unhappy adj unglücklich unhealthy adj ungesund university n Universität f unmarried adj ledig unusual adj ungewöhnlich urgent adj dringend use v benutzen

V

vacation n Ferien pl valid adj gültig very adv sehr veterinarian n Tierarzt m victim n Opfer nt villain n Schurke m violence n Gewalttätigkeit f violent adj heftig visit n Besuch m, v besuchen voice n Stimme f vote v wählen voter n Wähler m
vouch for v garantieren

W

wait v warten waiter n Ober m war n Krieg m
wash v waschen

waste basket n Papierkorb m
watch v aufpassen water n Wasser nt waterfall n Wasserfall m waterproof adj wasserdicht wave n Welle f
waver v schwanken wavy adj wellig
wax n Wachs nt
way n Weg m
we pron wir weak adj schwach weaken v schwächen, feel weak v schwach werden weakness n Schwäche f wealth n Reichtum m wealthy adj reich weapon n Waffe f
wear v tragen wear out v abtragen weary adj müde weather n Wetter nt wedding n Hochzeit f week n Woche f
weekly adv and adj wöchentlich weep v weinen weigh v wiegen weight n Gewicht nt
weird adj unheimlich welcome n Willkommen nt
welcome v bewillkommnen welfare n Wohlergehen nt
well adv gut, (health) gesund well n Brunnen m
well-known adj bekannt west n Westen m
western adj westlich wet adj nass wetness n Nässe f wheel n Rad nt
when conj als, adv wann whether conj ob which adj and pron welcher whichever adj and pron welcher while conj während while n Weile f
whim n Laune f whip n Peitsche f
whip v schlagen
whipped cream n Schlagsahne f whirl v wirbeln whirlpool n Strudel m whirlwind n Wirbelwind m
whisker n Barthaar nt whiskey n Whisky m whisper v flüstern whistle n Flöte f whistle v flöten
white adj weiss wife n Frau f
wig n Perücke f
wild adj wild wilderness n Wildnis f will n Wille m
will v (future) werden, (bequeath) vermachen, (want to) wollen willful adj eigensinnig willow n Weide f
wilt v welken
wilted adj welk win v gewinnen
wind n Wind m
wind v aufziehen windshield n Windschutzscheibe f windshield wiper n Scheibenwischer m windy adj windig winter n Winter m wire n Draht m
wire v drahten wish n Wunsch m, v wünschen with prep mit within prep innerhalb without prep ohne
witness n Zeuge m
witty adj witzig woe n Leid nt
wolf n Wolf m
woman n Frau f
wood n Holz nt
woods n Wald m
word n Wort nt
work n Arbeit f, v arbeiten world n Welt f worldly adj weltlich worm n Wurm m
worn-out adj abgenutzt worry n Sorge f
worry v sich sorgen worse adj schlechter worship n Verehrung f
worship v verehren worst adj schlechtest worth n Wert m worthless adj wertlos worthy adj würdig wound n Wunde f
wound v verwunden wrap n Umhang m wrap v wickeln wrath n Zorn m wreath n Kranz m wreck n Wrack nt wreck v demolieren wrist n Handgelenk nt wristwatch n Armbanduhr f
write v schreiben write poetry v dichten

Y

year n Jahr nt
yell v schreien yellow adj gelb
yesterday adv gestern young adj jung youth n Jugend f
youthful adj jugendlich

For further reference

Texts

Huebener, Theodore, and Newmark, Maxim
A First Course in German
D.C. Heath and Company

Lange, Eva C.
German in 20 Lessons
R.D. Cortina

Steinhauer, Harry
Read, Write, Speak German
Bantam Books

Steinhauer, Harry, and Sundermeyer, William Introduction to German
Macmillan

Dictionaries

Cassell
German/English; English/German
Macmillan

Wehrle, Hugo
Deutscher Wortschatz
Ernst Klett Verlag.

Review of Spanish Grammar

- Articles 409
- Nouns 410
- Adjectives and adverbs 410
- Pronouns 412
- Prepositions 415
- Verbs 416
- Numbers, dates, time 424
- Spanish–English dictionary 426
- English–Spanish dictionary 432

Spanish grammar shares certain characteristics with English grammar, as you may recall from the time when you first studied these languages. For the most part, the names of the parts of speech and the terms used to show how words function in a sentence are the same. If you have any difficulty in recalling the meanings of any words used in this chapter, consult the dictionary in volume 2 of the Student Handbooks. No matter how long you have been away from the formal study of Spanish, you will quickly find yourself recalling what you once learned.

Spanish in Spain and Spanish America

Pronunciation. The z, ce, and ci are pronounced alike. In southern Spain and Spanish America, they are pronounced like the s in sin. In central and northern Spain, they are pronounced like the th in thin and fifth.

azúcar sugar
ah-soo-kahr (Spanish America, southern Spain)
ah-thoo-kahr (central and northern Spain)

quince fifteen keen-say (Spanish America, southern Spain) keen-thay (central and northern Spain)

hacienda farm
ah-see-en-dah (Spanish America, southern Spain)
ah-thee-en-dah (central and northern Spain)

The ll in southern Spain and Spanish America is pronounced like the y in yes. In central and northern Spain, the ll is pronounced like the ly sound in the second syllable of million.

gallo rooster
gah-yoh (Spanish America, southern Spain)
gah-lyoh (central and northern Spain)

Vocabulary. Certain words and expressions differ in Spain and Spanish America, but the differences are minor. A native of one Spanish-speaking country is easily understood by natives of other Spanish-speaking countries.

to drive	conducir	(Spain)
	manejar	(Spanish America)
bus	autobus	(Spain)
	camión	(Mexico)
peas	guisantes	(Spain)
	chícharos	(Spanish America)

The tortilla in Spain is an omelet; in Mexico and Guatemala it is a flat corn cake.

Articles

Definite and indefinite articles

	Singular		Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
Definite: the	el	la	los	las
Indefinite: a, an	un	una
some, a few			unos	unas

The neuter article lo is used with adjectives and past participles when they are used as nouns.

lo bueno y lo malo the good and the bad

Agreement

Articles agree in number and gender with the nouns they modify.

el niño the boy una niña a girl

El is used instead of la before a feminine singular noun that begins with a stressed a or ha.

el hacha the ax

Contractions of el

The prepositions de and a combine with the masculine article el to form del and al.

Voy al cine. I am going to the movies.

Uses of the definite article

Before each noun in a series.

El padre y el hijo van al centro.
The father and son are going downtown.

Before the names of languages except directly after hablar, en, or de.

El español es importante hoy.
Spanish is important today.

Mi padre habla alemán.
My father speaks German.

Before titles such as señor, doctor, and profesor, except in direct address.

El señor López llegó ayer.
Mr. Lopez arrived yesterday.

¿Cómo está usted, señora Gómez?
How are you, Mrs. Gomez?

Instead of the possessive with clothing and parts of the body.

Me lavo las manos. I wash my hands.

To express "o'clock."

Son las ocho. It is eight o'clock.

Before nouns used in a general or abstract sense.

La medicina es una profesión noble.
Medicine is a noble profession.

Before an infinitive used as a noun.

El comer es necesario. Eating is necessary.

With the names of seasons.

La primavera empieza en marzo.
Spring begins in March.

With days of the week, except after ser.

Voy de compras el sábado.
I'm going shopping on Saturday.

Hoy es jueves.
Today is Thursday.

Before certain geographic names such as:

la Argentina Argentina
el Brasil Brazil
los Estados Unidos United States

To express a or an with weights or measures.

dos pesos el metro two pesos a meter

Omission of the definite article

Before nouns in apposition.

Antonio, criado de los García, llegó tarde.
Anthony, the Garcias' servant, arrived late.

Before numerals expressing numerical order of rulers.

Carlos Quinto Charles the Fifth

Omission of the indefinite article

Before unmodified predicate nouns indicating occupation, profession, or nationality.

Su hermano es médico. His brother is a physician.

Before cien, cierto, mil, otro, and tal.

cien dólares a hundred dollars cierto libro a certain book mil estudiantes a thousand students otro amigo another friend
tal padre such a father

After the exclamatory ¡que!

¡Qué mujer! What a woman!

Nouns

Gender

Nouns referring to males and nouns ending in o are generally masculine.

el cuaderno the notebook
el abuelo the grandfather

Nouns referring to females and nouns ending in -a, -ión, -dad, -tad, -tud, or -umbre are generally feminine.

la nación the nation la madre the mother

Exceptions

Feminine nouns ending in o.

la mano the hand la radio the radio

Masculine nouns ending in a.

el drama the drama
el clima the climate el poeta the poet
el problema the problem
el tranvía the streetcar el idioma the language
el mapa the map

Plurals

For nouns ending in a vowel, add s; for nouns ending in a consonant, add es.

el libro, los libros the book, the books la pared, las paredes the wall, the walls

For nouns ending in z, change z to c before adding es.

la luz, las luces the light, the lights

Nouns ending in an unaccented syllable with final s remain unchanged in the plural.

el cumpleaños, los cumpleaños
the birthday, the birthdays

For nouns ending in an accented syllable with final n or s, drop the written accent in the plural.

el jardín, los jardines the garden, the gardens

Nouns indicating rank or relationship may be used in the masculine plural to designate individuals of either sex.

los reyes the kings, or the king and queen

Adjectives and adverbs

Adjectives

Adjectives whose masculine singular forms end in o and adjectives of nationality have two singular, two plural forms. All others have one singular, one plural.

Agreement

An adjective agrees in gender and number with the noun modified. An adjective modifying nouns of different genders is generally masculine plural.

Los lápices y las plumas son caros.
The pencils and pens are expensive.

Position

A descriptive adjective usually follows the noun it modifies.

el papel blanco the white paper

A limiting adjective such as a possessive, a demonstrative, or a number, and an adjective of quantity usually precede the noun.

ese vaso that glass

The following adjectives drop the final o before a masculine singular noun: bueno, malo, uno, primero, tercero, alguno, ninguno.

el primer día the first day

Grande becomes gran before a singular noun of either gender.

un gran pintor a great painter

Ciento becomes cien immediately before a noun of either gender.

cien vacas one hundred cows

Forms of adjectives

	Singular		Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
tall	alto	alta	altos	altas
English	inglés	inglesa	ingleses	inglesas
poor	pobre	pobre	pobres	pobres
easy	fácil	fácil	fáciles	fáciles

Common adjectives that change meaning with a change in position

	AFTER the noun	BEFORE the noun
antiguo	old (ancient)	old (former), old-time
cierto	sure, reliable	a certain grande	large, big	great, famous nuevo	new	another, different
pobre	poor	unfortunate
simple	silly, simple-minded	simple, mere

Demonstrative adjectives

	Masc.	Fem.
this	este	esta
these	estos	estas
that	ese	esa
those	esos	esas
that	aquel	aquella
those	aquellos	aquellas

Demonstrative adjectives

Demonstrative adjectives precede the nouns they modify and agree with them in number and gender.

esas manzanas those apples

Este refers to what is near the speaker. Ese refers to what is near the person addressed.

Aquel refers to what is remote from both the speaker and the person addressed.

Juan, déme Vd. aquellos libros que están en la sala.
John, give me those books that are in the living room.

Adverbs

Many adverbs are formed by adding the suffix -mente to the feminine singular form of the adjective.

un hombre ricamente vestido
a richly dressed man

La tortuga anda lentamente.
The turtle walks slowly.

¡Habla claramente!
Speak clearly!

Maneja cuidadosamente.
He drives carefully.

In a series of two or more adverbs normally formed with -mente, the suffix is used only with the last adverb.

Arturo escribió clara y facilmente.
Arthur wrote clearly, and easily.

Comparison

Comparison with adjectives

Superiority Juan es más rico que María.
John is richer than Mary.

Equality Juan es tan rico como María.
John is as rich as Mary.

Inferiority Juan es menos rico que María.
John is not as rich as Mary.

The superlative of an adjective is formed by placing the definite article or possessive adjective before the comparative form.

Miguel es el estudiante más inteligente de la clase.
Michael is the most intelligent student in the class.

Comparison with adverbs

Adverbs are compared as shown in this example.

rápidamente quickly
más (menos) rápidamente more (less) quickly lo más (menos) rápidamente the most (least) quickly

The article lo is used with the superlative form.

The superlative form of the adverb is followed by de.

The English word "than" is usually translated as que.

Tiene más dinero que Ana.
He has more money than Anna.

Before a number, "than" is translated as de if the sentence is affirmative and by que if negative.

Recibió más de cien dólares.
He received more than one hundred dollars.

Comparisons of equality are expressed by tan plus an adjective or adverb plus como.

Manuel es tan alto como Andrés.
Manuel is as tall as Andrew.

Tanto (-a, -os, -as) plus a noun plus como is used to express as much (as many) as.

Tengo tantas llaves como tú.
I have as many keys as you.

Tanto (-a, -os, -as) plus como is used to express as much (as many) as.

Antonio trabaja tanto como su hermano.
Anthony works as much as his brother.

Comparative forms of adjectives

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
bueno good	mejor better	el mejor the best malo bad	peor worse	el peor the worst grande great, big	mayor greater, older	el mayor the greatest, the oldest más grande larger	el más grande the largest menos grande not as large	el menos grande the least large pequeño small	menor minor, lesser, younger	el menor the least, the youngest más pequeño smaller	el más pequeño the smallest menos pequeño less, small	el menos pequeño the least small

Possession

Possession is expressed by de + the possessor.

la cama de mi hermano my brother's bed

Possessive adjectives

The short form always precedes the noun; the long form always follows the noun. Both forms agree in gender and number with the person or thing possessed.

nuestros amigos our friends

las maletas tuyas your suitcases

Possessive pronouns

A possessive pronoun is formed by the definite article plus the long form of the possessive adjective.

el tuyo yours

A possessive pronoun agrees in number and gender with the noun it replaces.

mi pelota y la tuya my ball and yours

Possessive adjectives	Short form		Long form
	Singular	Plural	Singular		Plural
			Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
my	mi	mis	mío	mía	míos	mías
your (familiar singular)	tu	tus	tuyo	tuya	tuyos	tuyas
your, his, her, its, their	su	sus	suyo	suya	suyos	suyas
our			nuestro	nuestra	nuestros	nuestras
your (familiar plural)			vuestro	vuestra	vuestros	vuestras

Possessive pronouns	Singular		Plural
	Masc.	Fem.	Masc.	Fem.
mine	el mío	la mía	los míos	las mías
yours (familiar singular)	el tuyo	la tuya	los tuyos	las tuyas
your, his, hers, its, theirs	el suyo	la suya	los suyos	las suyas
ours	el nuestro	la nuestra	los nuestros	las nuestras
yours (familiar plural)	el vuestro	la vuestra	los vuestros	las vuestras

Pronouns

Subject pronouns

Subject pronouns are used for clarity, emphasis, or politeness. The English word "it" is not expressed as a subject.

Es difícil hacer. It is difficult to do.

The plural form vosotros is used in Spain. In Spanish America, ustedes is preferred.

Object pronouns

A pronoun used as the object of a preposition always follows the preposition.

The pronouns mí, ti and sí combine with the preposition con as follows:

conmigo with me

contigo with you (familiar)

consigo with yourself, himself, herself, themselves

These pronoun forms do not change in gender or number.

An object pronoun, whether direct or indirect, is usually placed immediately before the verb. In an affirmative command, infinitive, or present participle, the object pronoun follows and is joined to the verb. In a negative command, the object pronoun precedes the verb. When the object pronoun is joined to an affirmative command or present participle, an accent mark is needed over the vowel of the accented syllable.

Double object pronouns

When a verb has two object pronouns, the indirect object pronoun precedes the direct object pronoun.

Me los entregan. They deliver them to me.

When both object pronouns are in the third person, the indirect object is written as se.

Se lo digo. I tell it to her.

The various meanings of se may be clarified by adding a Vd., a Vds., a él, a ella, a ellos, a ellas.

No se la enseñamos a ellos.

We don't show it to them.

Forms of pronouns (see also Possession on page 412)

Subject pronouns

Singular	Plural
yo I	nosotros, -as we
tú you (familiar)	vosotros, -as you (familiar)
usted (Vd. or Ud.) you	ustedes (Vds. or Uds.) you
él he	ellos they
ella she	ellas they

Pronouns used as objects of prepositions

Singular	Plural
mí me	nosotros, -as us
ti you (familiar)	vosotros, -as you (familiar)
usted (Vd. or Ud.) you	ustedes (Vds. or Uds.) you
él him, it	ellos them (masc.)
ella her, it	ellas them (fem.)
sí yourself, himself, herself, itself	sí yourselves, themselves

Object pronouns

Indirect	Direct	Reflexive
Singular	Singular	Singular
me to me	me me	me myself
te to you (familiar)	te you (familiar)	te yourself (familiar)
le to you, to him, to her, to it	le you (masc.), him lo him, it (masc.) la you (fem.), her, it (fem.)	se yourself, himself, herself, itself
Plural	Plural	Plural
nos to us	nos us	nos ourselves
os to you (familiar)	os you (familiar)	os yourselves (familiar)
les to you, to them	los you, them (masc.) las you, them (fem.)	se yourselves, themselves

Position of object pronouns

Finite verb	Les doy el regalo.	I give them the gift.
Infinitive	Quieren verlo.	They want to see it.
	Lo quieren ver.
Present participle	Estoy esperándolo.	I am waiting for it.
	Lo estoy esperando.
Affirmative command	Envíelo Vd.	Send it.
Negative command	No lo envíe Vd.	Don't send it.

Relative pronouns and adjectives

que that, which, who quien (-es) who el (la, los, las) cual (-es) which, who lo cual which el (la) que (the one) which, (the one) who, he (she) who los (las) que (the ones) which, (the ones) who, those who lo que what, which cuyo (-a, -os, -as) whose (as relative adjective)

Demonstrative pronouns

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
this (one)	éste	ésta	esto
these	éstos	éstas
that (one)	ése	ésa	eso
those	ésos	ésas
that (one)	aquél	aquélla	aquello
those	aquéllos	aquéllas

The placement of double object pronouns is the same as that given above for single object pronouns. Double object pronouns are always kept together.

When both object pronouns are attached to the verb, a written accent mark is used to keep the original stress.

Va a servírselo. He is going to serve it to him.

Demonstrative pronouns

Demonstrative pronouns agree in number and gender with the nouns they represent.

Me gustan estas faldas y aquéllas.

I like these skirts and those (distant).

Neuter forms of demonstrative pronouns indicate things indefinitely referred to, or general ideas and situations.

No haré esto. I shall not do this.

Relative pronouns and adjectives

Relative pronouns and adjectives are never omitted in Spanish.

La revista que compraste es interesante.

The magazine you bought is interesting.

Que refers to both persons and things. After a preposition, however, que refers only to things; quien (-es) refers to persons.

el chico que jugó	el chico con quien jugué
the boy who played	the boy with whom I played

Negation, interrogatives, and exclamations

Negative words and their opposites

Negative	Affirmative
no no, not	sí yes
nadie no one, nobody, not anyone	alguien someone, somebody
nada nothing, not anything	algo something nunca, jamás never, not ever	siempre always tampoco neither, not either	también also ninguno (-a) no, none, not any	alguno (-a) some, any ni . . . ni neither . . . nor, not . . . nor	o . . . o either . . . or sin without	con with

The negative word no precedes the verb.

¿No encontró usted el reloj?

Didn't you find the watch?

If an object pronoun precedes the verb, the negative word precedes the object pronoun.

No lo recibió. He didn't receive it.

All negative sentences must have a negative word preceding the verb. If the negative word follows the verb, then no must precede the verb.

Nunca lo haré. I shall never do it.

No lo haré nunca. I shall never do it.

When nadie is the object of the verb, it is preceded by the personal a.

No veo a nadie. I don't see anyone.

But is expressed as sino when the first element is negative and the second is in direct contrast.

No llevaba abrigo negro, sino azul.

He wasn't wearing a black coat, but a blue one.

Interrogative expressions

¿qué? what?
¿quién (-es)? who?
¿cuál (-es)? which, which one(s)?
¿dónde? where?
¿adónde? where? to where? (with verbs of motion) ¿cuándo? when?
¿cuánto (-a)? how much?
¿cuántos (-as)? how many?
¿cómo? how?
¿por qué? why?

Note that all interrogative expressions carry an accent mark.

Exclamations

All exclamatory words carry written accent marks. The most common are:

¡Qué . . . ! What . . . ! What a . . . ! How . . . !
¡Cuánto (a) . . . ! How much . . . !
¡Cuántos (as) . . . ! How many . . . !

Exclamatory sentences have an inverted exclamation point (¡) at the beginning and a regular exclamation point at the end.

¡Qué día! What a day!

Prepositions

Prepositions with infinitives

The infinitive is the only verb form that may follow a preposition.

Después de vestirse, salió.
After getting dressed, he went out.

The infinitive is used after many verbs. In many cases it follows the verb directly.

Quiere salir temprano. He wants to leave early.

In other cases the infinitive is preceded by a preposition. The following common verbs do not require a preposition before an infinitive.

creer to believe	necesitar to need deber ought to, should	poder to be able, can desear to wish, desire	querer to wish, want esperar to hope	saber to know how to

Verbs expressing beginning, motion, teaching, or learning and several other verbs require the preposition a before a following infinitive.

beginning	comenzar	motion	correr to run
	empezar		ir to go
	ponerse		llegar to arrive
	principiar		salir to go out to teaching	enseñar	other	invitar to invite learning	aprender	verbs	ayudar to help llamar to call

Los niños empezaron a llorar.
The children began to cry.

The following verbs require the preposition de before an infinitive.

acabar to have just	dejar to cease, stop, fail
acordarse to remember	olvidarse to forget alegrarse to be glad to	tratar to try cesar to cease, stop

Trató de esconderse. He tried to hide.

Uses of the personal a

The personal a is used before direct objects that denote persons or personified things. The personal a is not translated.

Visitan a su abuelo They visit their grandfather.

The personal a is used before pronouns referring to persons, even when used in a negative sense.

No veo a nadie. I see no one.

The personal a is omitted after the verb tener with the meaning "to have."

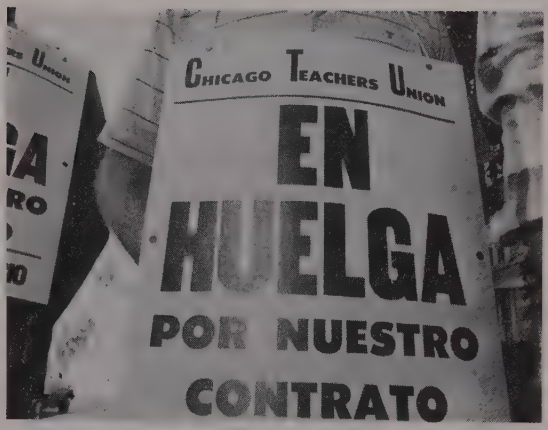
Tiene muchos amigos. He has many friends.

The personal a is used with querer when it means "to love" and omitted when it means "to want."

El niño quiere su madre.
The child wants his mother.

El niño quiere a su madre.
The child loves his mother.



A striker in Chicago, Illinois, carrying a sign that translates as "On strike for our contract."

Uses of para

Purpose:
Como para vivir. I eat in order to live.

Destination:
Saldrá para España. He will leave for Spain.

Use:
Es una caja para dulces. It is a candy box.

Future time:
Estará listo para el sábado.
It will be ready by Saturday.

"Considering the fact that":
Para estudiante, toca muy bien.
For a student, he plays very well.

"Be about to" after estar:
Estoy para salir. I am about to leave.

Uses of por

"For the sake of":
Lo hizo por su hermano. He did it for his brother.

Price or exchange:
Compró la revista por un peso.
He bought the magazine for a peso.

Length of time:
Quedó en Perú por dos semanas.
He stayed in Peru for two weeks.

"In the morning, afternoon, or night":
Trabajo por la tarde. I work in the afternoon.

"By, through, along":
Dan un paseo por el parque.
They take a walk through the park.

"For" after the verbs ir, enviar, luchar, llamar, or preguntar:
Fue por el médico. He went for the doctor.

The following verbs are not followed by para or por, since "for" is part of the meaning of the verb:

buscar to look for,
esperar to wait for,
pedir to ask for.

Buscaron una mesa. They looked for a table.

Verbs

Conjugation of regular verbs

The three conjugations are distinguished by the infinitive endings: -ar, -er, and -ir.

Conjugation of regular verbs

Simple tenses

Indicative

	Present I take, eat, live I do take, eat, live			Imperfect I was taking, eating, living I used to take, eat, live
yo	tomo	como	vivo	tomaba	comía	vivía
tú	tomas	comes	vives	tomabas	comías	vivías
Vd., él, ella	toma	come	vive	tomaba	comía	vivía
nosotros, nosotras	tomamos	comemos	vivimos	tomábamos	comíamos	vivíamos
vosotros, vosotras	tomáis	coméis	vivís	tomabais	comíais	vivíais
Vds., ellos, ellas	toman	comen	viven	tomaban	comían	vivían

Subjunctive

	Present that I may take, eat, live			Imperfect that I might take, eat, live that I should take, eat, live
yo	tome	coma	viva	tomara or tomase	comiera or comiese	viviera or viviese
tú	tomes	comas	vivas	tomaras or tomases	comieras or comieses	vivieras or vivieses
Vd., él, ella	tome	coma	viva	tomara or tomase	comiera or comiese	viviera or viviese
nosotros, nosotras	tomemos	comamos	vivamos	tomáramos or tomásemos	comiéramos or comiésemos	viviéramos or viviésemos
vosotros, vosotras	toméis	comáis	viváis	tomarais or tomaseis	comierais or comieseis	vivierais or vivieseis
Vds., ellos, ellas	tomen	coman	vivan	tomaran or tomasen	comieran or comiesen	vivieran or viviesen

Compound tenses

Indicative

Present perfect Present of haber plus past participle			Pluperfect Imperfect of haber plus past participle
I have taken he tomado	I have eaten he comido	I have lived he vivido	I had taken había tomado	I had eaten había comido	I h hab

Subjunctive

Present perfect
Present subjunctive of haber plus the past participle

that I may have taken	that I may have eaten	that I may have lived
haya tomado	haya comido	haya vivido

Progressive

The present participle is used with estar to denote continuing action.

I am taking	I am eating	I am living
estoy tomando	estoy comiendo	estoy viviendo

In all but the future and conditional tenses, the inflexional endings are added to the stem of the verb, for example:

tom, com, and viv for tomar, comer, and vivir. Future and conditional endings are added to the infinitive. These endings are the same for all verbs.

Preterite
I took, ate, lived
I did take, eat, live

tomé	comí	viví
tomaste	comiste	viviste
tomó	comió	vivió
tomamos	comimos	vivimos
tomasteis	comisteis	vivisteis
tomaron	comieron	vivieron

Future
I shall take, eat, live
I will take, eat, live

tomaré	comeré	viviré
tomarás	comerás	vivirás
tomará	comerá	vivirá
tomaremos	comeremos	viviremos
tomaréis	comeréis	viviréis
tomarán	comerán	vivirán

Conditional
I should take, eat, live
I would take, eat, live

tomaría	comería	viviría
tomarías	comerías	vivirías
tomaría	comería	viviría
tomaríamos	comeríamos	viviríamos
tomaríais	comeríais	viviríais
tomarían	comerían	vivirían

Infinitives	-ar verb	-er verb	-ir verb
	tomar	comer	vivir
	to take	to eat	to live

Participles

Present	taking	eating	living
	tomando	comiendo	viviendo
Past	taken	eaten	lived
	tomado	comido	vivido

Imperative	take	eat	live
Familiar s.	toma	come	vive
Familiar pl.	tomad	comed	vivid
Polite s.	tome Vd.	coma Vd.	viva Vd.
Polite pl.	tomen Vds.	coman Vds.	vivan Vds.

Preterite perfect
Preterite of haber plus past participle

I had taken	I had eaten	I had lived
hube tomado	hube comido	hube vivido

Future perfect
Future of haber plus past participle

I shall have taken	I shall have eaten	I shall have lived
habré tomado	habré comido	habré vivido

Pluperfect
Either form of the imperfect subjunctive of haber plus past participle

that I might have taken	that I might have eaten	that I might have lived
hubiera (hubiese) tomado	hubiera (hubiese) comido	hubiera (hubiese) vivido

Conditional perfect
Conditional of haber plus past participle

I should have taken	I should have eaten	I should have lived
habría tomado	habría comido	habría vivido

Stem changing verbs

In conjugating Spanish verbs, we are accustomed to changes in the verb endings, but certain verbs also change the spelling of their stems.

Stem changes are not uncommon in English. Consider the way the verb "eat" changes in English: I eat, I ate. Consider the verb "go": I go, I went. Finally, consider the verb "be": I am, I was.

Conjugation of stem-changing verbs

First class

Certain verbs of the first and second conjugations with stem vowels e or o change e to ie, o to ue when stressed. Note that jugar, to play, is conjugated as if it were a first class stem-changing verb with stem vowel o.

Examples:

pensar	volver
to think	to return

Present participle

pensando volviendo

Present indicative		Present subjunctive		Imperative
pienso	vuelvo	piense	vuelva
piensas	vuelves	pienses	vuelvas	piensa	vuelve
piensa	vuelve	piense	vuelva	piense	vuelva
pensamos	volvemos	pensemos	volvamos	pensemos	volvamos
pensáis	volvéis	penséis	volváis	pensad	volved
piensan	vuelven	piensen	vuelvan	piensen	vuelvan

Second class

Certain verbs of the third conjugation with stem vowels of e or o change e to ie, o to ue when stressed. Changes are the same as those listed above with the addition of e changing to i, and o to u, when the following syllable contains a stressed a, ie, or io.

Examples:

(ie) sentir	(ue) dormir
to feel	to sleep

Present participle

sintiendo durmiendo

Present indicative		Present subjunctive		Preterite		Imperfect subjunctive		Imperative
siento	duermo	sienta	duerma	sentí	dormí	sintiera	durmiera
sientes	duermes	sientas	duermas	sentiste	dormiste	sintieras	durmieras	siente	duerme
siente	duerme	sienta	duerma	sintió	durmió	sintiera	durmiera	sienta	duerma
sentimos	dormimos	sintamos	durmamos	sentimos	dormimos	sintiéramos	durmiéramos	sintamos	durmamos
sentís	dormís	sintáis	durmáis	sentisteis	dormisteis	sintierais	durmierais	sentid	dormid
sienten	duermen	sientan	duerman	sintieron	durmieron	sintieran	durmieran	sientan	duerman

Third class

Certain verbs of the third conjugation with stem vowel e change e to i in all forms affected in the first and second classes of stem-changing verbs.

Example:

(i) pedir
to ask for Present participle

pidiendo

Present indicative	Present subjunctive	Preterite	Imperfect subjunctive	Imperative
pido	pida	pedí	pidiera
pides	pidas	pediste	pidieras	pide
pide	pida	pidió	pidiera	pida
pedimos	pidamos	pedimos	pidiéramos	pidamos
pedís	pidáis	pedisteis	pidierais	pedid
piden	pidan	pidieron	pidieran	pidan

Spelling change verbs

This class of verbs undergoes changes in spelling during conjugation, with the effect of preserving the sound of the consonant found in the infinitive.

The chart below supplies examples of changes in the verbs buscar search, jugar play, averiguar investigate, vencer conquer, conocer know, escocer choose, leer read, and seguir follow.

Spelling change verbs

Verb ending	Spelling change	Examples
in verbs ending in car	c changes to qu before an e	buscar → busqué
in verbs ending in gar	insert u before an e	jugar → jugué
in verbs ending in guar	put dieresis over u before an e	averiguar → averigüé
in verbs ending in cer or cir preceded by a consonant	replace the c by z before an a or o	vencer → venzo
in verbs ending in cer or cir preceded by a vowel	insert z before c when followed by an a or o	conocer → conozco
in verbs ending in ger or gir	replace the g with j before an a or o	escoger → escojo
in verbs ending in er or ir	change the i of the endings ie and io to y	leer → leyó
in verbs ending in guir when the u is silent	drop the u before an a or o	seguir → sigo

Correspondencia Correspondence

La carta comercial A business letter

ciudad, fecha city, date	Miami, 8 de mayo de 19____ Miami, May 8, 19____
destinatario, dirreccion inside address	Sr. Juan Encina Avenida de las Américas 20 Lima, Perú
el saludo salutation	Estimado (a) señor (a): Dear Sir (Madam):
despedida closing	Atentamente, Attentively, Sinceramente, Sincerely,
firma signature	José Antonio Rivera

Carta personal A friendly letter

ciudad, fecha city, date	Nueva York, 20 de julio de 19____ New York, July 20, 19____
saludo salutation	Querido (a) amigo (a), Dear friend,
despedida closing	Cariñosamente, Lovingly, Recuerdos, Regards, firma signature	José

Irregular verbs

Irregular verbs are the most difficult verbs to learn. Yet, perhaps unfortunately, they describe actions and states of being that are most frequently needed in speaking and writing Spanish. The verb forms given in the chart below and continuing for two more pages take nineteen irregular verbs through nine tenses. As you will see, the verb endings for certain tenses are the same as those you will encounter in conjugating regular verbs.

Conjugation of irregular verbs

Infinitive	Indicative				Conditional	Subjunctive			Imper
	Present	Imperfect	Preterite	Future	Present	Present	Imperfect (1st form)	(2nd form)
andar	ando	andaba	anduve	andaré	andaría	ande	anduviera	anduviese
to go,	andas	andabas	anduviste	andaras	andarías	andes	anduvieras	anduvieses	anda
walk	anda	andaba	anduvo	andará	andaría	ande	anduviera	anduviese	ande
	andamos	andábamos	anduvimos	andaremos	andaríamos	andemos	anduviéramos	anduviésemos	andem
	andáis	andabais	anduvistei	andaréis	andaríais	andéis	anduvierais	anduvieseis	andad
	andan	andaban	anduvieron	andaran	andarían	anden	anduvieran	anduviesen	anden
dar	doy	daba	di	daré	daría	dé	diera	diese
to give	das	dabas	diste	darás	darías	des	dieras	dieses	da
	da	daba	dio	dará	daría	dé	diera	diese	dé
	damos	dábamos	dimos	daremos	daríamos	demos	diéramos	diésemos	demos
	dais	dabais	disteis	daréis	daríais	deis	dierais	dieseis	dad
	dan	daban	dieron	darán	darían	den	dieran	diesen	den
decir	digo	decía	dije	diré	diría	diga	dijera	dijese
to say,	dices	decías	dijiste	dirás	dirías	digas	dijeras	dijeses	di
tell	dice	decía	dijo	dirá	diría	diga	dijera	dijese	diga
	decimos	decíamos	dijimos	diremos	diríamos	digamos	dijéramos	dijésemos	digamo
	decís	decíais	dijisteis	diréis	diríais	digáis	dijerais	dijeseis	decid
	dicen	decían	dijeron	dirán	dirían	digan	dijeran	dijesen	digan
estar	estoy	estaba	estuve	estaré	estaría	esté	estuviera	estuviese
to be	estás	estabas	estuviste	estarás	estarías	estés	estuvieras	estuvieses	está
	está	estaba	estuvo	estará	estaría	esté	estuviera	estuviese	esté
	estamos	estábamos	estuvimos	estaremos	estaríamos	estemos	estuviéramos	estuviésemos	estemos
	estáis	estabais	estuvisteis	estaréis	estaríais	estéis	estuvierais	estuvieseis	estad
	están	estaban	estuvieron	estarán	estarían	estén	estuvieran	estuviesen	estén
haber	he	había	hube	habré	habría	haya	hubiera	hubiese
to have	has	habías	hubiste	habrás	habrías	hayas	hubieras	hubieses	he
	ha	había	hubo	habrá	habría	haya	hubiera	hubiese	haya
	hemos	habíamos	hubimos	habremos	habríamos	hayamos	hubiéramos	hubiésemos	hayam
	habéis	habíais	hubisteis	habréis	habríais	hayáis	hubierais	hubieseis	habed
	han	habían	hubieron	habrán	habrían	hayan	hubieran	hubiesen	hayan
hacer	hago	hacía	hice	haré	haría	haga	hiciera	hiciese
to make,	haces	hacías	hiciste	harás	harías	hagas	hicieras	hicieses	haz
do	hace	hacía	hizo	hará	haría	haga	hiciera	hiciese	haga
	hacemos	hacíamos	hicimos	haremos	haríamos	hagamos	hiciéramos	hiciésemos	hagam
	hacéis	hacíais	hicisteis	haréis	haríais	hagáis	hicierais	hicieseis	haced
	hacen	hacían	hicieron	harán	harían	hagan	hicieran	hiciesen	hagan

El Directorio Páginas Amarillas
Es El Camino Más Corto Para Hacer Sus Compras

Let your fingers do the walking: "The yellow pages directory is the shortest route for making your purchases."

jugation of irregular verbs (continued)

itive	Indicative				Conditional	Subjunctive			Imperative
	Present	Imperfect	Preterite	Future	Present	Present	Imperfect (1st form)	(2nd form)
	voy	iba	fui	iré	iría	vaya	fuera	fuese
	vas	ibas	fuiste	irás	irías	vayas	fueras	fueses	ve
	va	iba	fue	irá	iría	vaya	fuera	fuese	vaya
	vamos	íbamos	fuimos	iremos	iríamos	vayamos	fuéramos	fuésemos	vamos
	vais	ibais	fuisteis	iréis	iríais	vayáis	fuerais	fueseis	id
	van	iban	fueron	irán	irían	vayan	fueran	fuesen	vayan
	oigo	oía	oí	oiré	oiría	oiga	oyera	oyese
ear	oyes	oías	oíste	oirás	oirías	oigas	oyeras	oyeses	oye
	oye	oía	oyó	oirá	oiría	oiga	oyera	oyese	oiga
	oímos	oíamos	oímos	oiremos	oiríamos	oigamos	oyéramos	oyésemos	oigamos
	oís	oiais	oísteis	oiréis	oiríais	oigáis	oyerais	oyeseis	oíd
	oyen	oían	oyeron	oirán	oirían	oigan	oyeran	oyesen	oigan
r	puedo	podía	pude	podré	podría	pueda	pudiera	pudiese
e able	puedes	podías	pudiste	podrás	podrías	puedas	pudieras	pudieses	puede
	puede	podía	pudo	podrá	podría	pueda	pudiera	pudiese	pueda
	podemos	podíamos	pudimos	podremos	podríamos	podamos	pudiéramos	pudiésemos	podamos
	podéis	podíais	pudisteis	podréis	podríais	podáis	pudierais	pudieseis	poded
	pueden	podían	pudieron	podrán	podrían	puedan	pudieran	pudiesen	puedan
r	pongo	ponía	puse	pondré	pondría	ponga	pusiera	pusiese
ut	pones	ponías	pusiste	pondrás	pondrías	pongas	pusieras	pusieses	pon
	pone	ponía	puso	pondrá	pondría	ponga	pusiera	pusiese	ponga
	ponemos	poníamos	pusimos	pondremos	pondríamos	pongamos	pusiéramos	pusiésemos	pongamos
	ponéis	poníais	pusisteis	pondréis	pondríais	pongáis	pusierais	pusieseis	poned
	ponen	ponían	pusieron	pondrán	pondrían	pongan	pusieran	pusiesen	pongan
r	quiero	quería	quise	querré	querría	quiera	quisiera	quisiese
ant,	quieres	querías	quisiste	querrás	querrías	quieras	quisieras	quisieses	quiere
	quiere	quería	quiso	querrá	querría	quiera	quisiera	quisiese	quiera
	queremos	queríamos	quisimos	querremos	querríamos	queramos	quisiéramos	quisiésemos	queramos
	queréis	queríais	quisisteis	querréis	querríais	queráis	quisierais	quisieseis	quered
	quieren	querían	quisieron	querrán	querrían	quieran	quisieran	quisiesen	quieran
	sé	sabía	supe	sabré	sabría	sepa	supiera	supiese
now	sabes	sabías	supiste	sabrás	sabrías	sepas	supieras	supieses	sabe
	sabe	sabía	supo	sabrá	sabría	sepa	supiera	supiese	sepa
	sabemos	sabíamos	supimos	sabremos	sabríamos	sepamos	supiéramos	supiésemos	sepamos
	sabéis	sabíais	supisteis	sabréis	sabríais	sepáis	supierais	supieseis	sabed
	saben	sabían	supieron	sabrán	sabrían	sepan	supieran	supiesen	sepan

Conjugation of irregular verbs (continued)

Infinitive	Indicative				Conditional	Subjunctive			Imper
	Present	Imperfect	Preterite	Future	Present	Present	Imperfect (1st form)	(2nd form)
salir	salgo	salía	salí	saldré	saldría	salga	saliera	saliese
to go out	sales	salías	saliste	saldrás	saldrías	salgas	salieras	salieses	sal
	sale	salía	salió	saldrá	saldría	salga	saliera	saliese	salga
	salimos	salíamos	salimos	saldremos	saldríamos	salgamos	saliéramos	saliésemos	salgamo
	salís	salíais	salisteis	saldréis	saldríais	salgáis	salierais	salieseis	salid
	salen	salían	salieron	saldrán	saldrían	salgan	salieran	saliesen	salgan
ser	soy	era	fui	seré	sería	sea	fuera	fuese
to be	eres	eras	fuiste	serás	serías	seas	fueras	fueses	sé
	es	era	fue	será	sería	sea	fuera	fuese	sea
	somos	éramos	fuimos	seremos	seríamos	seamos	fuéramos	fuésemos	seamos
	sois	erais	fuisteis	seréis	seríais	seáis	fuerais	fueseis	sed
	son	eran	fueron	serán	serían	sean	fueran	fuesen	sean
tener	tengo	tenía	tuve	tendré	tendría	tenga	tuviera	tuviese
to have	tienes	tenías	tuviste	tendrás	tendrías	tengas	tuvieras	tuvieses	ten
	tiene	tenía	tuvo	tendrá	tendría	tenga	tuviera	tuviese	tenga
	tenemos	teníamos	tuvimos	tendremos	tendríamos	tengamos	tuviéramos	tuviésemos	tengamo
	tenéis	teníais	tuvisteis	tendréis	tendríais	tengáis	tuvierais	tuvieseis	tened
	tienen	tenían	tuvieron	tendrán	tendrían	tengan	tuvieran	tuviesen	tengan
traer	traigo	traía	traje	traeré	traería	traiga	trajera	trajese
to bring	traes	traías	trajiste	traerás	traerías	traigas	trajeras	trajeses	trae
	trae	traía	trajo	traerá	traería	traiga	trajera	trajese	traiga
	traemos	traíamos	trajimos	traeremos	traeríamos	traigamos	trajéramos	trajésemos	traigam
	traéis	traíais	trajisteis	traeréis	traeríais	traigáis	trajerais	trajeseis	traed
	traen	traían	trajeron	traerán	traerían	traigan	trajeran	trajesen	traigan
valer	valgo	valía	valí	valdré	valdría	valga	valiera	valiese
to be worth	vales	valías	valiste	valdrás	valdrías	valgas	valieras	valieses	val
	vale	valía	valió	valdrá	valdría	valga	valiera	valiese	valga
	valemos	valíamos	valimos	valdremos	valdríamos	valgamos	valiéramos	valiésemos	valgamo
	valéis	valíais	valisteis	valdréis	valdríais	valgáis	valierais	valieseis	valed
	valen	valían	valieron	valdrán	valdrían	valgan	valieran	valiesen	valgan
venir	vengo	venía	vine	vendré	vendría	venga	viniera	viniese
to come	vienes	venías	viniste	vendrás	vendrías	vengas	vinieras	vinieses	ven
	viene	venía	vino	vendrá	vendría	venga	viniera	viniese	venga
	venimos	veníamos	vinimos	vendremos	vendríamos	vengamos	veniéramos	viniésemos	vengam
	venís	veníais	vinisteis	vendréis	vendríais	vengáis	vinierais	vinieseis	venid
	vienen	venían	vinieron	vendrán	vendrían	vengan	vinieran	viniesen	vengan
ver	veo	veía	vi	veré	vería	vea	viera	viese
to see	ves	veías	viste	verás	verías	veas	vieras	vieses	ve
	ve	veía	vio	verá	vería	vea	viera	viese	vea
	vemos	veíamos	vimos	veremos	veríamos	veamos	viéramos	viésemos	veamos
	veis	veíais	visteis	veréis	veríais	veáis	vierais	vieseis	ved
	ven	veían	vieron	verán	verían	vean	vieran	viesen	vean

Uses of ser and estar

Both ser and estar mean to be. They are used in the following ways:

ser

With adjectives to express an inherent or permanent quality, such as age, characteristic, color, possession, shape, size, and wealth.

La casa es blanca. The house is white.

With the preposition de to express ownership, material, or origin.

La pulsera es de oro. The bracelet is gold.

With a predicate noun or pronoun.

Él es médico. He is a doctor.

With the past participle in a passive construction.

El libro fue escrito por él.
The book was written by him.

In impersonal expressions

Es mejor hacerlo ahora. It is better to do it now.

estar

With adjectives to express an accidental or temporary condition.

La chica está ausente. The girl is absent.

In expressions of location

Barcelona está en España. Barcelona is in Spain.

In expressions of health.

Estaban enfermos. They were sick.

With the past participle used as an adjective to express a condition.

Las ventanas están cerradas.
The windows are closed.

With the present participle to form the present progressive tense.

Estaba durmiendo. He was sleeping.

Gustar

Gustar, which literally means to be pleasing, is used to translate the verb "to like." For example, in the sentence Me gustan las revistas, I like the magazines, the subject becomes the indirect object, me, and the direct object revistas, becomes the subject of the verb gustar.

Reflexive verbs

Reflexive verbs are designated by se attached to the infinitive so lavarse means to wash oneself. Reflexive pronouns are used with reflexive verbs in any tense, so se lavaron means they washed themselves.

Uses of the subjunctive mood

The subjunctive is used mainly in certain types of subordinate clauses introduced by que. In general, a verb in the subjunctive expresses a feeling or thought in the mind of the speaker rather than an established fact.

After verbs of volition (with a subject change).

Quiero que lo hagas. I want you to do it.

After verbs of emotion (with a subject change).

Se alegra de que venga.
He is happy that I am coming.

After impersonal expressions followd by a definite subject in the subordinate clause.

Es probable que me escriba.
It is likely that he will write to me.

After verbs of doubt and denial in the affirmative.

Dudo que lo sepa. I doubt that he knows it.

After verbs of thinking and believing used in the interrogative or negative.

No creo que tenga razón. I don't think he is right.

In a relative clause modifying a negative or an indefinite antecedent.

No conozco a nadie que hable alemán.
I don't know anyone who speaks German.

After conjunctions of time, purpose, restriction, or result.

Iré con tal que volvamos temprano.
I shall go provided that we return early.

After certain indefinite expressions, such as dondequiera que and cualquier cosa que.

Dondequiera que viva será feliz.
Wherever she lives, she will be happy.

Idioms

a tiempo on time
Vuelve a tiempo si quieres ver la película.
Return on time if you want to see the movie.

darse prisa to hurry
Date prisa! Ya son las seis.
Hurry up! It's six o'clock.

de repente suddenly
De repente abrió la puerta.
Suddenly he opened the door.

en seguida immediately
Pagó la cuenta y salió en seguida.
He paid the check and left immediately.

estar de vuelta to be back (in a place)
Mi hijo está de vuelta en Nueva York.
My son is back in New York.

hacer frío (calor) of weather: to be cold (warm)
Hace frío hoy.
It is cold today.

hacer un viaje to take a trip
Hice un viaje a España.
I took a trip to Spain.

tener hambre (sed) to be hungry (thirsty)
Tengo mucha hambre.
I am very hungry.

tratar de to try to Trata de terminar el trabajo.
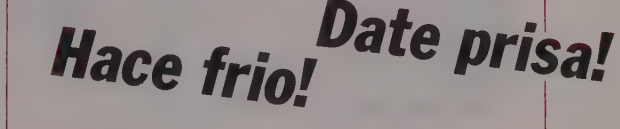
He tries to finish the work.



Cardinal numbers

The numbers 16 to 19 and 21 to 29 may be written as single words. Note that as single words, 16, 22, 23, and 26 carry accent marks on the final syllable.

16 dieciséis, 22 veintidós

The only numbers that change with gender are uno and the compounds of ciento from 200 through 900.

quinientas dos escuelas
five hundred and two schools

Ciento becomes cien before nouns and before the numbers mil and millones. In all other numbers, the full form ciento is used.

cien soldados one hundred soldiers

Millón requires the preposition de before the noun it multiplies.

tres millones de pesos three million pesos

Un is not used before ciento or mil. It is used before millón.

ciento doce sillas one hundred and twelve chairs
un millón de pesos a million pesos

Ordinal numbers

1st primero	4th cuarto	8th octavo
2nd segundo	5th quinto	9th noveno
3rd tercero	6th sexto	10th décimo
	7th séptimo

Ordinal numbers are generally used only through tenth; beyond that, the cardinal numbers are used. An ordinal number agrees in number and gender with the noun it modifies.

la Quinta Avenida Fifth Avenue

The ordinal numbers primero and tercero drop the final o before a masculine singular noun.

el tercer edificio the third building

Cardinal numbers

0	cero	30	treinta
1	uno, una	31	treinta y uno
		32	treinta y dos
2	dos	40	cuarenta
3	tres	41	cuarenta y uno
4	cuatro	50	cincuenta
5	cinco	51	cincuenta y uno
6	seis	60	sesenta
7	siete	61	sesenta y uno
8	ocho	70	setenta
9	nueve	71	setenta y uno
10	diez	80	ochenta
11	once	81	ochenta y uno
12	doce	90	noventa
13	trece	91	noventa y uno
14	catorce	100	ciento (cien)
15	quince	101	ciento uno
16	diez y seis (dieciséis)	102	ciento dos
		200	doscientos (-as)
17	diez y siete (diecisiete)	201	doscientos uno
		300	trescientos (-as)
18	diez y ocho (dieciocho)	400	cuatrocientos (-as)
		500	quinientos (-as)
19	diez y nueve (diecinueve)	600	seiscientos (-as)
		700	setecientos (-as)
20	veinte	800	ochocientos (-as)
21	veinte y uno (veintiuno)	900	novecientos (-as)
		1,000	mil
22	veinte y dos (veintidós)	2,000	dos mil
		100,000	cien mil
23	veinte y tres (veintitrés)	500,000	quinientos mil
		1,000,000	un millón

Time

The article la is always used when expressing one o'clock, las when expressing the other hours.

After or past is expressed by y; to or of, by menos. After half past the hour, time is expressed by the following hour minus (menos) the minutes.

¿Qué hora es?	What time is it?
Es la una.	It is one o'clock.
Son las dos.	It is two o'clock.
Son las tres y media.	It is three-thirty.
Son las cuatro y cuarto (quince).	It is a quarter past four.
Son las cinco menos cuarto.	It is a quarter to five.
Son las once y diez.	It is ten minutes past eleven.
Son las ocho menos cinco.	It is five minutes to eight.
Son las siete en punto.	It is exactly seven o'clock.
Es mediodía (medianoche).	It is noon (midnight).
¿A qué hora?	At what time?
Las nueve de la mañana.	Nine in the morning.

Dates

¿Cuál es la fecha de hoy? What is today's date?
¿A cuántos estamos hoy?
Es el primero de marzo. It is March 1.
Llegó el dos de junio de mil novecientos cincuenta. He arrived June 2, 1950.
Salió el cuatro de mayo. He left on May 4.

Cardinal numbers are used for all dates except primero (first).

Months, days, seasons

The names of the months, days of the week, and seasons are written with small letters.

enero	January	el lunes	Monday
febrero	February	el martes	Tuesday
marzo	March	el miércoles	Wednesday
abril	April	el jueves	Thursday
mayo	May	el viernes	Friday
junio	June	el sábado	Saturday
julio	July	el domingo	Sunday
agosto	August
septiembre	September	la primavera	spring
octubre	October	el verano	summer
noviembre	November	el otoño	autumn
diciembre	December	el invierno	winter

The English word "on" before a day of the week or a date is expressed by the definite article.

Los sábados voy de compras.
On Saturdays I go shopping.

The years are expressed in thousands and hundreds.

Nació en mil novecientos setenta.
He was born in nineteen seventy.

Age

Age is expressed with the verb tener.

¿Cuántos años tienes tú? How old are you?
Tengo once años. I am eleven.

Arithmetic

Sumar Add
Dos y tres son cinco.
Two and three are five.

Restar Subtract
Quince menos ocho son siete.
Fifteen minus eight are seven.

Multiplicar Multiply
Nueve por cuatro son treinta y seis.
Nine times four are thirty six.

Dividir Divide
Sesenta dividido por diez son seis.
Sixty divided by ten are six.

Names of countries

Alemania	Germany	Inglaterra	England
Austria	Austria	Italia	Italy
Bélgica	Belgium	Perú	Peru
Canadá	Canada	Rusia	Russia
Dinamarca	Denmark	Suecia	Sweden
España	Spain	Suiza	Switzerland

El menú
arroz con pollo
saffron-flavored rice and chicken bistec a la parrilla grilled steak churrasco barbecued steak (South America)
churro
a twist of batter deep fried, often eaten as a snack with hot chocolate in Spain enchilada (Mexico and Guatemala)
a corn cake stuffed with meat or chicken, rolled and baked with tomato sauce flavored with chili flan custard horchata
a cold drink made of almonds paella
saffron-flavored rice, chicken, seafood, and peas tortilla
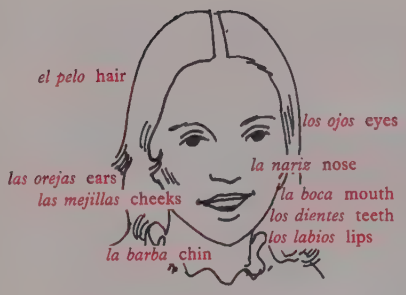
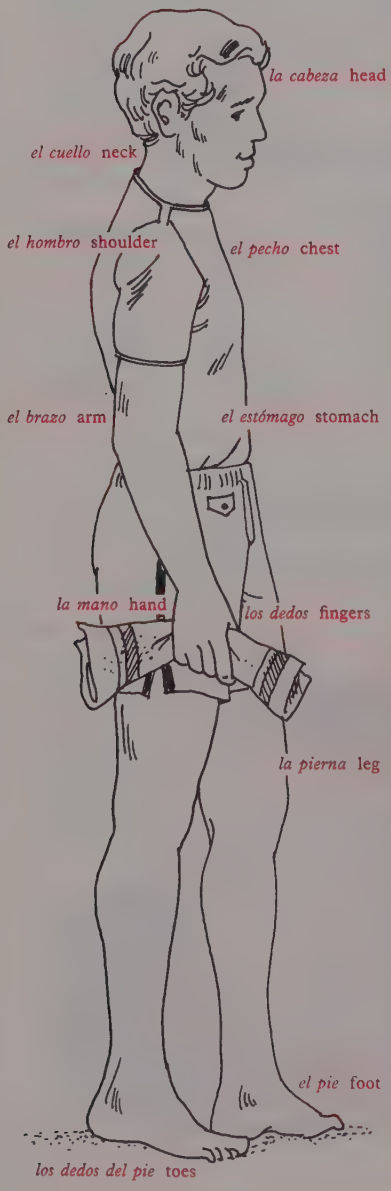
omelet;
in Mexico and Guatemala, corn meal cake



La cara The face

Dictionary

El cuerpo humano The human body



Dictionary abbreviations. Nouns are identified as masculine (m) or feminine (f). Adjectives are identified as adj, adverbs as adv, conjunctions as conj, interjections as interj, prepositions as prep, pronouns as pron, and verbs as v. Plurals are identified as pl.

Spanish-English

A

a prep at, to abajo adv below, down abeja f bee
abierto adj open abogado m lawyer
abrigo m overcoat abrir v open acá adv here
acabar v finish, acabar de to have just . . .
aceite m oil
acento m accent aceptar v accept acera f sidewalk acerca de prep about, concerning acercarse v approach acero m steel acompañar v accompany aconsejar v advise acordarse v remember acostarse v go to bed acto m act actual adj present acuerdo m agreement adelante adv forward además adv besides adentro adv inside
adiós interj and m goodbye admirar v admire adónde adv where aduana f custom house aeropuerto m airport afecto m affection afilado adj sharp afuera adv out, outside agradable adj pleasant, agreeable agradecer v be grateful for agua f water aguardar v wait for agudo adj sharp águila f eagle
aguja f needle
ahí adv there ahora adv now aire m air
al prep to the, at the albóndiga f meatball alcalde m mayor alcanzar v reach, catch alcoba f bedroom aldea f village alegrarse v be glad alegre adj happy alegría f joy
alfiler m pin
alfombra f carpet, rug algo pron something algodón m cotton alguien pron someone alguno adj some alimento m food
allá adv there allí adv there alma f soul
almacén m department store almohada f pillow almorzar v lunch
almuerzo m lunch alrededor adv around alto adj tall, high altura f height alumbrar v illuminate, light alumno, -a n pupil, student alzar v raise, lift amable adj amiable, kind, pleasant amar v love amargo adj bitter amarillo adj yellow ambos adj and pron both americano adj and n American amigo, -a, n friend amistad f friendship
amor m love
ancho adj wide anciano adj old andar v walk ángel m angel anillo m ring anoche adv last night antes adv before, formerly antiguo adj former añadir v add año m year apagar v extinguish aparecer v appear, show up apenas adv hardly aplicado adj diligent aprender v learn aquí adv here

árbol m tree arena f sand, arena
armario m closet
arreglar v arrange, fix, repair arriba adv above, up asar v roast
así adv so, thus asiento m seat
asistir v attend
asustar v frighten
atar v tie atrás adv behind avenida f avenue
averiguar v find out avisar v inform, notify ayer adv yesterday
ayudar v help
azul adj blue

B

bailar v dance bajar v descend, lower banco m bank, bench bandera f flag
baño m bath, bathroom barato adj cheap
barba f beard, chin barbero m barber
barco m ship
barrio m district
bastante adv and adj enough beber v drink bello adj beautiful beso m kiss
biblioteca f library
bien adv well
billete m ticket
bizcocho m cake, biscuit blanco adj white bolígrafo m ballpoint pen bolsa f purse bolsillo m pocket bonito adj pretty bosque m forest botella f bottle bueno adj good burro m donkey buscar v look for butaca f armchair

C

caballero m gentleman caballo m horse cabello m hair cabeza f head
cada adj each, every cadena f chain
caer v fall
café m coffee, café
caja f box
calentar v heat, warm caliente adj hot calle f street
calor m heat
cama f bed
cambio m change, exchange caminar v walk camino m road campo m country
canción f song
cansado adj tired cantar v sing
cara f face
cariño m affection caro adj expensive
carro m car
carta f letter casa f house
casarse v get married casi adv almost cena f supper
cepillo m brush cerca adv near cerdo m pig, hog cerrar v close cerveza f beer
cielo m sky, heaven
cita f appointment ciudad f city
clavel m carnation
coche m car
cocina f kitchen
cocinar v cook colina f hill
comedia f comedy, play comedor m dining room comenzar v begin comer v eat
comercio m commerce comida f food, meal, dinner como adv and conj as, like cómo interj how cómoda f dresser comprar v buy comprender v understand con prep with conocer v know conseguir v obtain contar v count, tell contento adj happy contestar v answer continuar v continue contra prep against copa f goblet
correo m mail, post office correr v run
corrida f race, corrida de toros bullfight cortina f curtain corto adj short cosa f thing
costar v cost creer v believe criada f maid cristiano m and adj Christian cuadro m picture ¿cuál? interj which ¿cuándo? interj when ¿cuánto? interj how much?
¿cuántos? interj how many?
cuarto m room, quarter
cuchara f spoon cuchillo m knife
cuenta f bill
cuero m leather cuidado m care, caution
cumpleaños m birthday

CH

charla f chat cheque m check chico, -a n boy, girl chiste m joke
choque m collision

D

dama f lady daño m damage dar v give de prep of, from debajo adv beneath deber v ought, should, owe débil adj weak

decir v say, tell dejar v leave delante de prep in front of delgado adj thin
demasiado adv and adj too much, too many, too dentista m dentist dentro adv within derecho adj and adv straight desastre m disaster desayunarse v breakfast desayuno m breakfast descansar v rest descubrir v discover desear v wish, desire despacio adv slowly despertar v wake después de prep after detrás de prep in back of devolver v return día m day
difícil adj difficult dinero m money
Dios m God
dolor m pain
don, doña n titles given to gentlemen and ladies. Used with first names.
dónde conj and adv where dormir v sleep
dormitorio m bedroom, dormitory duda f doubt dueño m master, owner dulce adj sweet duro adj hard

E

e conj and echar v throw edad f age
edificio m building ejemplo m example ejército m army
empleado m employee empresa f enterprise empujar v push en prep in, on, at encantador adj charming encontrar v find, meet enfermo adj sick enfrente de prep facing enojado adj angry enseñar v teach entender v understand entero adj entire, whole entonces adv then entrada f entrance entre prep between, among enviar v send, ship equivocado adj mistaken escalera f staircase escoba f broom escoger v choose escribir v write escuchar v listen to escuela f school español m and adj Spanish espejo m mirror esperar v hope, wait esposa f wife esposo m husband
esquina f corner estación f station, season estado m state, condition estar v be este m east estrecho adj narrow estrella f star
estudiar v study evitar v avoid éxito m success
extranjero m foreigner

F

fábrica f factory
fácil adj easy factura f invoice, bill falda f skirt
falta f lack, mistake, fault familia f family
fecha f date
feliz adj happy feo adj ugly ferrocarril m railroad fiebre f fever
fiesta f holiday, festival figurarse v imagine fin m end, purpose
fino adj fine
firmar v sign flan m custard flor f flower fonda f inn
fondo m bottom
francés m and adj Frenchman, French frase f sentence
frazada f blanket fresco adj cool, fresh frío m cold, tener frío v feel cold fuego m fire fuente f fountain fuera adv outside fuerte adj strong, loud fumar v smoke

G

gallina f hen
gallo m rooster
ganar v earn, win ganga f bargain gastar v spend gato m cat
gemelos m pl cufflinks
gente f people
golpe m blow
gordo adj fat
gozar v enjoy gracia f grace, wit gracias f pl thanks, thank you grande adj large, great gritar v shout guapo adj handsome guardar v keep, guard guerra f war gustar v please gusto m pleasure, taste

H

haber v have habitación f room hablar v speak hacer v do, make hacia prep toward hallar v find hambre f hunger, tener hambre be hungry hasta prep until, hasta luego until later hay v there is, there are hecho m fact hermoso adj beautiful hielo m ice
hierba f grass
hija f daughter hijo m son
hilo m thread
hoja f leaf hombre m man

hora f hour, time
hoy adv today
hueso m bone
huevo m egg

I

idioma m language iglesia f church igualmente adv equally inglés m and adj Englishman, English inquieto adj anxious, worried ir v go isla f island
izquierdo adj left

J

jabón m soap jamás adv never jardín m garden
jefe m chief, boss
joven adj young joya f jewel, gem judío m and adj Jew, Jewish juego m game
jugar v play jugo m juice
junto adj together

L

labio m lip
lado m side
ladrón m thief
lago m lake
lágrima f tear lana f wool
lápiz m pencil largo adj long lástima f pity lata f tin, tin can lavandería f laundry
lavar v wash
lectura f reading
leer v to read legumbres f pl vegetables lejos adv far lento adj slow
levantar v raise, lift, levantarse v get up, rise ley f law
libra f pound libre adj free
libro m book
ligero adj light
limpiar v clean, wash lindo adj pretty listo adj clever, ready lobo m wolf loco adj crazy lograr v achieve lucha f fight luego adv then lugar m place
luna f moon
luz f light

LL

llamar v call llamarse v be named llave f key llegar v arrive lleno adj full llevar v carry, wear llorar v cry
llover v rain
lluvia f rain

M

madera f wood madre f mother
maestro m teacher
maíz m corn mal adv badly
maleta f suitcase
malo adj bad, sick mandar v send manga f sleeve mano f hand
manta f blanket mantel m tablecloth
mar m and f sea
marido m husband
martillo m hammer más adj and adv more matador m bullfighter matar v to kill mayor adj greater, older medianoche f midnight médico m doctor medio m half mejor adj better menor adj smaller, younger mentira f lie
mercado m market
mes m month mesa f table
metro m meter, subway miedo m fear mientras conj while milla f mile mirar v look at mismo adj same modo m manner molestar v trouble, disturb moneda f coin mono m monkey
montar v mount, climb moreno adj dark, brunette morir v die
mozo m waiter, porter, lad muchacho, -a n boy, girl mucho adj much mueble m furniture muerte f death
mujer f woman, wife mundo m world
museo m museum
muy adv very

N

nacer v be born nada pron nothing
nadar v swim nadie pron nobody nariz f nose
Navidad f Christmas necesitar v need negar v deny negocio m business negro adj black nevar v snow
nieta f granddaughter
nieto m grandson
nieve f snow
niña f girl
niño m boy
no interj and adv no, not noche f night
nombre m name, noun norte m north noticia f news
novia f sweetheart
novio m sweetheart nube f cloud
nubile adj marriageable nublado adj cloudy nuevo adj new número m number nunca adv never

O

o conj or obra f work
océano m ocean
ocupado adj busy, occupied oeste m west oído m ear (inner) oír v hear olor m odor
olvidar v forget orar v pray
orgulloso adj proud orilla f shore
oro m gold
oso m bear
otro adj another, other, otra vez adv again
oveja f sheep

P

pagar v pay país m country
pájaro m bird
palabra f word paloma f dove
pañuelo m handkerchief papel m paper
paquete m package par m pair, equal para prep for paraguas m umbrella pardo adj brown parecer v seem pariente m relative parque m park
partida f departure pasajero m passenger paseo m walk paso m step paz f peace
pedir v ask (for) peinarse v comb one's hair pelota f ball
peluquero m hairdresser pena f pain, grief, trouble pensar v think peor adj worse pequeño adj small perder v lose perezoso adj lazy periódico m newspaper pero conj but perro m dog
pesado adj heavy piedra f stone
pintor m painter
pintura f painting
piso m floor
plata f silver plátano m banana playa f beach
pluma f pen
pobre adj poor
poco adj and adv little poder v be able poner v put por prep for, by, through por favor adv please porque conj because por qué pron why precio m price
pregunta f question preguntar v ask prestar v lend primero adj and adv first prisa f hurry probar v prove pronto adv soon
propina f tip propio adj own, proper pueblo m town, people puerta f door
pulsera f bracelet

Q

que pron that, than qué pron what quedar v remain
queja f complaint
quemar v burn querer v want, love querido adj dear, beloved quien pron who quién pron who quitar v remove quizá adv perhaps

R

raíz f root rana f frog
rápido adj fast rato m while raya f dash, stripe
razón f reason realizar v accomplish recibir v receive recibo m receipt recoger v gather recordar v remember recuerdo m remembrance, memory redondo adj round regalo m gift
regla f rule
regresar v return reina f queen
reír v laugh
reloj m watch, clock repetir v repeat resfriado m cold (illness)
respirar v breathe responder v answer respuesta f answer resto m remainder resultado m result retrete m toilet reunión f meeting
revista f magazine rey m king
rezar v pray rico adj rich rincón m corner
río m river
robar v steal
rogar v beg rojo adj red romper v break rubio adj blond rueda f wheel
ruido m noise

S

sábana f sheet
saber v know
sabio adj wise
sabor m flavor
sacar v take out sacerdote m priest sal f salt
sala f livingroom salida f exit, departure salir v leave saltar v jump
salud f health saludar v greet sandía f watermelon sangre f blood sano adj healthy, sane sastre m tailor satisfecho adj satisfied

seco adj dry sed f thirst
seda f silk
seguida f succession, en seguida immediately seguir v follow seguro adj sure sello m stamp
semana f week semejante adj similar señal f signal señor m sir, Mr., gentleman señora f madam, Mrs., lady señorita f young lady, Miss sentarse v sit down sentido m meaning, sense sentir v regret, feel, sense ser v be servicio m service servilleta f napkin servir v serve si conj if sí interj yes siempre adv always sierra f mountain range siglo m century significar v mean, signify siguiente adj following silla f chair
simpático adj congenial, nice sin prep without sobre m envelope sobre prep on socio m associate, partner sol m sun solamente adv only solo adj alone
sombra f shadow sonar v sound
sordo adj deaf
sorpresa f surprise
subir v ascend suceder v happen
sucio adj dirty
suelo m floor, ground sueño m dream suerte f luck
sur m south
susto m fright

T

tal adj such tamaño m size también adv also tampoco adv neither, either tan adv so tanto adj so much tarde f afternoon
tarjeta f card
taza f cup
teatro m theater
techo m ceiling, roof teléfono m telephone temprano adv and adj early tenedor m fork tener v have terminar v end, terminate tesoro m treasure tiempo m time, weather tienda f store tierra f earth, land tirar v throw tiza f chalk tocar v touch, play (instrument) todo adj all tomar v take, drink
tonto m and adj fool, foolish torero m bullfighter toro m bull
trabajar v work traducir v translate traer v bring tranvía m streetcar trapo m floor, ground tratar de v try to tren m train
trigo m wheat
triste adj sad
tronco m trunk

U

u conj or (before o or ho) último adj last único adj only unir v unite usar v wear, use
útil adj useful uva f grape

V

vaca f cow
vacaciones f pl vacation
vacío adj empty valer v be worth valle m valley vapor m steam varios adj several vaso m glass
vecino m neighbor vender v sell venir v come venta f sale ventana f window ver v see veras, de adv really veraz adj truthful verbo m verb
verboso adj talkative verdad f truth verde adj green verede f path
veredicto m verdict vergonzoso adj shameful, shy vergüenza f shame verificar v verify verja f grating verosímil adj likely vestir v dress vez f time, turn viajar v travel
viaje m trip vida f life
viejo adj old viento m wind
vino m wine
visita f visit visitar v visit vista f view
viudo, -a n widower, widow vivir v live
vivo adj living, alive
volar v fly voz f voice
vuelta f return, turn

Y

y conj and ya adv already yacer v lie
yema f egg yolk yerba f grass
yerro m error

Z

zapatería f shoe store
zapato m shoe zarzuela f musical comedy zona f zone
zorra f vixen
zorro m fox

Dictionary abbreviations. Nouns are identified as masculine (n m) or feminine (n f). Adjectives are identified as adj, adverbs as adv, conjunctions as conj, interjections as interj, prepositions as prep, pronouns as pron, and verbs as v. Plurals are identified as pl.

English-Spanish

A

a, an adj un, una able adj capaz, be able v poder abode n residencia f about prep acerca de above adv arriba absent adj ausente accent n acento m accept v aceptar accompany v acompañar accomplish v realizar ache n dolor m achieve v lograr
act n acto m
add v añadir admire v admirar advantage n ventaja f
advise v consejar affection n afecto m, cariño m after prep después de afternoon n tarde f
again adv otra vez age n edad f
agreement n acuerdo m air n aire m airport n aeropuerto m all adj todo almost adv casi alone adv solo already adv ya
also adv también always adv siempre American adj and nm americano among prep entre and conj y, e
angel n ángel m angry adj enojado
answer v responder, contestar anxious adj inquieto appear v aparecer appointment n cita f, nombramiento m approach v acercarse a apron n delantal m
armchair n butaca f
army n ejército m around adv alrededor arrange v arreglar arrive v llegar
as adv and conj como ascend v subir
ask v preguntar
ask for v pedir
associate n socio m at prep a, at the al attend v asistir a aunt n tía f
author n autor m avenue n avenida f
avoid v evitar
awful adj horrible, terrible

B

back adv atrás, in back of detrás de backward adj atrasado bad adj malo
badly adv mal
ball n pelota f
ballpoint pen n bolígrafo m banana n plátano m bank n banco m barber n barbero m
bargain n ganga f
bath n baño m bathroom n cuarto de baño m be v ser, estar beach n playa f
bear n oso m
beard n barba f
beautiful adj bello, hermoso because conj porque
bed n cama f, go to bed acostarse bedroom n alcoba f, dormitorio m bee n abeja f
beer n cerveza f
before adv antes beg v rogar
begin v comenzar, empezar behind adv detrás, prep detrás de believe v creer
bell n campana f
below adv abajo bench n banco m beneath adv debajo
besides adv además better adj and adv mejor
between prep entre
bill n cuenta f, factura f
bird n pájaro f birthday n cumpleaños m bitter adj amargo black adj negro blanket n manta f, frazada f blind adj ciego blond adj rubio blood n sangre f
blow n golpe m
blue adj azul boat n barco m
bone n hueso m
book n libro m
born, be v nacer
both adj and pron ambos bottle n botella f bottom n fondo m
box n caja f
boy n niño m, chico m, muchacho m bracelet n pulsera f break v romper
breakfast n desayuno m, v desayunar breathe v respirar bring v traer broom n escoba f
brother n hermano m
brown adj pardo brunette adj and nm moreno brush n cepillo m building n edificio m
bull n toro m bullfight n corrida de toros f bullfighter n torero m, matador m burn v quemar bus n autobús m
business n negocios m pl, comercio m busy adj ocupado butter n mantequilla f
buy v comprar

C

cabin n cabaña f cage n jaula f
cake n bizcocho m
call v llamar
car n carro m, coche m care n cuidado m carnation n clavel m carpet n alfombra f carry v llevar castle n castillo m cat n gato m ceiling n techo m century n siglo m chain n cadena f chair n silla f
chalk n tiza f change n cambio m charming adj encantador chat n charla f
cheap adj barato
check n (banking) cheque m
chief n jefe m chin n barba f
choose v escoger
Christmas n Navidad f church n iglesia f
city n ciudad f
clean v limpiar clever adj listo clock n reloj m close v cerrar closet n armario m
cloud n nube f
coffee n café m
coin n moneda f
cold n frío m, (illness) resfriado m collar n cuello m collision n choque m comb (one's hair) v peinarse
come v venir
comedy n comedia f commerce n comercio m concerning prep acerca de congenial adj simpático continue v continuar cool adj fresco
corn n maíz m
corner n esquina f, rincón m cost v costar cotton n algodón m
count v contar country n campo m, país m cow n vaca f
crash n choque m crazy adj loco cry v llorar
cufflinks n gemelos m pl cup n taza f custard n flan m custom n costumbre f customhouse n aduana f
cut v cortar

D

daily adj diario damage n daño m dance v bailar
dark adj moreno
dash n raya f
date n fecha f
daughter n hija f
day n día m
dead adj muerto deaf adj sordo
dear adj querido
death n muerte f decide v decidir deep adj hondo dentist n dentista m, f deny v negar
department store n almacén m departure n partida f, salida f descend v bajar
dew n rocío m difficult adj difícil
diligent adj aplicado dining room n comedor m dinner n comida f
dirty adj sucio disaster n desastre m discover v descubrir dish n plato m
district n barrio m disturb v molestar do v hacer
doctor n médico m dog n perro m
donkey n burro m door n puerta f
doubt n duda f
dove n paloma f
down adv abajo dozen n docena f
dream n sueño m, v soñar dress n vestido m, v vestir dresser n cómoda f
drink v beber
dry adj seco
during prep durante

E

each cada adj
eagle n águila f ear n (inner) oído m, (outer) oreja f
early adv and adj temprano earn v ganar
east n este m
Easter n Pascua Florida f easy adj fácil eat v comer egg n huevo m
employee n empleado m empty adj vacío end n fin m, v terminar enjoy v gozar enough adj and adv bastante enterprise n empresa f entire adj entero entrance n entrada f envelope n sobre m equally adv igualmente even adj igual, adv hasta example n ejemplo m exchange n cambio m exit n salida f expensive adj caro extinguish v apagar

F

face n cara f facing prep enfrente de fact n hecho m
factory n fábrica f
fall v caer false adj falso family n familia f
far adv lejos
farm n granja, hacienda f fat adj gordo fear n miedo m, v temer feel v sentir festival n fiesta f fever n fiebre f fight n lucha f
find v encontrar, hallar find out v averiguar fine adj fino, adv muy bien finish v acabar

fire n fuego m
first adj and adv primero flavor n sabor m floor n piso m, suelo m flower n flor f fly v volar, n mosca f
follow v seguir
following adj siguiente food n comida f fool n tonto m
for prep por, para foreigner n extranjero m forest n bosque m forget n olvidar v fork n tenedor m
former antiguo adj forward adelante adv
fountain n fuente f frankly adv francamente free libre adj
French adj and nm francés fresh fresco adj
friend n amigo m friendship n amistad f fright n susto m frighten asustar v
frog n rana f
from prep de front n frente m, in front of delante de full adj lleno
furniture n mueble m

G

gaiety n alegría f
game n juego m garbage n basura f garden n jardín m garlic n ajo m
gasoline n gasolina f gather v recoger gem n joya f
gentleman n caballero m, señor m gift n regalo m
girl n chica f, muchacha f, niña f give v dar glad adj contento, be glad v alegrarse glass n vaso m glove n guante m go v ir go out v salir
goblet n copa f
God n Dios m
gold n oro m
goodbye interj adiós grace n gracia f granddaughter n nieta f grandson n nieto m grape n uva f
grass n hierba f grateful adj agradecido, be grateful for v agradecer great adj gran, grande greater adj mayor green adj verde greet v saludar grief n pena f
ground n suelo m guess v advinar

H

hair n cabello m, pelo m hairdresser n peluquero m hammer n martillo m hand n mano f
handkerchief n pañuelo m handsome adj guapo happen v suceder
happy adj alegre, feliz, contento hard adj duro hardly adv apenas have v tener, haber
head n cabeza f
health n salud f healthy adj sano hear v oír
heat n calor m, v calentar heavy adj pesado height n altura f
help v ayudar hen n gallina f
here adv aquí, acá hill n colina f
holiday n fiesta f
honest adj honesto hope v esperar horse n caballo m
hot adj caliente hour n hora f
house n casa f
how interj como
how much, how many interj cuánto, cuántos hunger n hambre f
hurry n prisa f
husband n esposo, marido m

I

ice n hielo m
if conj si illuminate v alumbrar
imagine v figurarse immediately adv en seguida in prep en inform v avisar inn n fonda f
inside adv adentro, adj and nm interior invoice n factura f island n isla f

J

Jew n judio m, Jewish adj judio jewel n joya f
joke n chiste m, v bromear joy n alegría f
juice n jugo m
jump v saltar

K

keep v guardar
key n llave f
kill v matar kind adj amable
king n rey m kitchen n cocina f
knife n cuchillo m know v saber, conocer

L

lack n falta f, v faltar lady n dama f, señora f, young lady señorita f lake n lago m land n tierra f
language n idioma m large adj grande
last adj último
last night adv anoche
later, see you hasta luego laugh v reír laundry n lavandería f law n ley f
lawyer n abogado m lazy adj perezoso leaf n hoja f
learn v aprender
leather n cuero m

leave v dejar, salir left adj izquierdo lend v prestar
let v dejar letter n carta f
library n biblioteca f lie n mentira f, v mentir life n vida f light adj ligero, nf luz lip n labio m
listen (to) v escuchar little adj poco live v vivir living adj vivo
livingroom n sala f
look n mirada f, look at v mirar, look for buscar lose v perder
love n amor m, v amar, querer luck n suerte f
lunch n almuerzo m, v almorzar

M

madam n señora f magazine n revista f maid n criada f
mail n correo m make v hacer man n hombre m
manner n modo m market n mercado m marry v casarse con master n dueño m mayor n alcalde m meal n comida f
mean v significar meaning n sentido m meatball n albóndiga f meet v encontrar meeting n reunión f meter n metro m midnight n medianoche f mile n milla f
mirror n espejo m
miss n señorita f mistake n falta f
mistaken adj equivocado money n dinero m month n mes m
moon n luna f
mother n madre f
mount v montar mountain range n sierra f
Mr. n señor m
Mrs. n señora f
much adj mucho, so much tanto, too much demasiado museum n museo m

N

name n nombre m napkin n servilleta f narrow adj estrecho near adv cerca need v necesitar needle n aguja f neighbor n vecino m neither adv tampoco never adv jamás, nunca
new adj nuevo
news n noticias f pl newspaper n periódico m night n noche f
no adv no
nobody pron nadie noise n ruido m
north n norte m
nose n nariz f
not adv no
nothing nada pron
now adv ahora
number n número m

O

obtain v conseguir ocean n océano m odor n olor m
of prep de oil n aceite m old adj anciano, viejo older adj mayor on prep en, sobre
only adv solamente open adj abierto, v abrir
or conj o, u
other adj otro ought v deber out adv afuera outside adv fuera overcoat n abrigo m own adj propio
owner n dueño m

P

package n paquete m
pain n dolor m, pena f
painter n pintor m painting n pintura f, cuadro m pair n par m
paper n papel m
park n parque m, v estacionar partner n socio m passenger n pasajero m
pay v pagar, n pago, salario m pen n pluma f
pencil n lápiz m
people n gente f, pueblo m
perhaps adv quizá picture n cuadro m pig n cerdo m
pillow n almohada f pin n alfiler m place n lugar m play n comedia f, v jugar pleasant adj agradable please v gustar, adv por favor pleasure n gusto m pocket n bosillo m poor adj pobre porter n mozo m
post office n correo m pound n libra f
pray v rezar, orar present adj actual, presente, n regalo m pretty adj bonito, lindo price n precio m priest n sacerdote m proud adj orgulloso prove v probar pupil n alumno, -a purse n bolsa f push v empujar
put v poner

Q

quarter n cuarto m queen n reina f question n pregunta f

R

rag n trapo m
railroad n ferrocarril m rain v llover, n lluvia f raise v alzar reach v alcanzar
read v leer
reading n lectura f
ready adj listo

reason n razón f receipt n recibo m receive v recibir
red adj rojo regret v sentir, n pena f
relative n pariente m remain v quedar remainder n resto m remember v acordarse, recordar remembrance n recuerdo m remove v quitar
repeat v repetir rest v descansar, n descanso m result resultado m return v volver, devolver, regresar, n vuelta f rich adj rico
right adj and n derecho m ring n anillo m rise v levantarse river n río m
road n camino m
roast v asar roof n techo m
room n cuarto m, habitación f rooster n gallo m
root n raíz f
round adj redondo rule n regla f
run v correr

S

sad adj triste
sale n venta f
salt n sal f, v salar same adj and pron mismo sand n arena f satisfied adj satisfecho say v decir school n escuela f sea n mar m and f season n estación f seat n asiento m
see v ver seem v parecer sell v vender
send v enviar, mandar sentence n frase f
serve v servir
service n servicio m shadow n sombra f shame n vergüenza f
sharp adj afilado, agudo sheep n oveja f
sheet n sábana f
ship n barco m
shoe n zapato m
shoe store n zapatería f
shore n orilla f short adj corto should v deber shout v gritar sick adj enfermo, malo side n lado m
sidewalk n acera f
sign v firmar signal n señal f silk n seda f
silver n plata f
similar adj semejante, parecido sing v cantar
sir title señor sit down v sentarse size n tamaño m skirt n falda f
sky n cielo m
sleep v dormir
sleeve n manga f
slow adj lento
slowly adv despacio small adj pequeño smaller adj menor smile v sonreír, n sonrisa f smoke v fumar
snow v nevar, n nieve f
so adv tan, así
so much adj tanto soap n jabón m
some adj and pron alguno someone pron alguien something pron algo song n canción f
soon adv pronto soul n alma f
sound v sonar, n sonido m
south n sur m
Spanish adj and n m español speak v hablar spend v gastar
spoon n cuchara f staircase n escalera f
stamp n sello m star n estrella f
state n estado m station n estación f steal v robar steam n vapor m
steel n acero m
step n paso m
stone n piedra f
store n tienda f straight adj derecho street n calle f
streetcar n tranvía m stripe n raya f
strong adj fuerte study v estudiar subway n metro m success n éxito m such adj tal suitcase n maleta f
sun n sol m
supper n cena f
sure adj seguro surprise n sorpresa f
sweet adj dulce sweetheart n novio, -a swim v nadar

T

table n mesa f
tablecloth n mantel m tailor n sastre m take v tomar take out v sacar tall adj alto teach v enseñar teacher n maestro, -a tear n lágrima f telephone n teléfono m
tell v decir than conj que
that pron que
then adv entonces, luego
there adv ahí, allá, allí there are hay
there is hay thief n ladrón m thin adj delgado thing n cosa f
think v pensar thirst n sed f
thread n hilo m throw v tirar, echar
thus adv así ticket n billete m
tie v atar
time n hora f, tiempo m, vez f
tin n lata f
tin can n lata f
tip n propina f
tired adj cansado to prep a

today adv hoy together adj junto toilet n retrete m too adv demasiado, también touch v tocar toward prep hacia town n pueblo m
train n tren m translate v traducir travel v viajar treasure n tesoro m tree n árbol m
trip n viaje m
trouble v molestar, n apuro m, pena f trunk n tronco m truth n verdad f
try to v tratar de

U

ugly adj feo umbrella n paraguas m understand v comprender, entender unite v unir
use v usar useful adj útil

V

vacation n vacaciones f pl valley n valle m view n vista f
village n aldea f
visit n visita f, v visitar voice n voz f

W

wait for v aguadar, esperar waiter n mozo m, camarero m wake v despertar walk v andar, caminar want v querer war n guerra f
wash v lavar
watch n reloj m
water n agua f
watermelon n sandía f weak adj débil
weather n tiempo m week n semana f
well adv bien, adj bueno west n oeste m
what interj pron qué
wheat n trigo m wheel n rueda f
when adv cuándo, conj cuando where adv adónde, dónde, conj donde which pron cuál
while conj mientras, n rato m white adj blanco who pron quién, quien whole adj entero
why adv por qué wide adj ancho widow n viuda f
widower n viudo m
wife n esposa f
wild adj bárbaro wilderness n desierto m
wilt v marchitar win v ganar
wind n viento m window n ventana f
wine n vino m wing n ala f
winner n ganador m
winter n invierno m
wipe v limpiar
wise adj sabio wish v desear, n deseo m wit n gracia f
with prep con
within adv dentro without prep sin
wolf n lobo m
woman n mujer f
wood n madera f
wool n lana f
word n palabra f
work n obra f, v trabajar world n mundo m worried adj inquieto
worse adv peor worth n valor m, be worth v valer write v escribir

Y

year n año m
yellow adj amarillo
yes adv sí
yesterday adv ayer young adj joven younger adj menor

For further reference

Grammars

Greenfield, Eric V.
Spanish Grammar
Barnes and Noble

Jarvis, Ana C., Lebredo, Raquel, and Mena, Francisco
Basic Spanish Grammar
D. C. Heath and Company

Kendris, Christopher
301 Spanish Verbs
Barron's

Dictionaries

Castillo, Carlos and Bond, Otto
The University of Chicago Spanish-English, English-Spanish Dictionary
Pocket Books

Cuyás, Arturo
Appleton's New Cuyás English-Spanish, Spanish-English Dictionary
Prentice-Hall

Dutton, Brian, Harvey, L.P., and Walker, Roger M.
Cassell's Compact Spanish-English, English-Spanish Dictionary
Dell Publishing

Velázquez de la Cadena, Mariano, Gray, Edward, and Iribas, Juan R.
New Revised Velázquez Spanish-English, Diccionario Inglés-Español
New Century Publishers

Williams, Edwin B.
The Bantam New College Spanish and English Dictionary
Bantam Books

Index

How to use the index. The INDEX to the Family Handbook is arranged alphabetically according to a letter-by-letter system. All entries, regardless of punctuation or spaces between words, are in precise alphabetical order; there are no exceptions:

Cataract
Catering
Catholic Church
CAT scan

Each entry ends with a period. Following the period is the number of the page or pages on which the term will be found:

Lincoln, Abraham. 258–259, 274, 312

Handy cross-references are provided when a listing may be ambiguous or confusing. Few abbreviations are used in the index, and those that are used are so standard as to eliminate the need for an abbreviations list.

Books, plays, and other titles are not indexed, but authors, artists, composers, etc., are. Monarchs are listed in numerical order:

Charles I (King of England)
Charles II (King of England)
Charles V (Holy Roman Emp.)
Charles VII (King of France)

A

Abacus. 3
Abdomen. 96
Abortion. 142
Abscess. 96
Accidents. See Safety
Accounting. 23, 52, 55
Achievement tests. 328
Acromegaly. 96
ACTION. 47, 296
Addiction (drug). See Narcotics Addison's disease. 96
Adjectives. 214
Adler, Mortimer. 302
Adoption. 142
Adrenal gland. 104
Adrenalin. 60, 66
Advertising. 44, 54, 58, 156
Aerophagia. 96
Aflatoxin. 67
African languages. 234
Age Discrimination in Employment Act (1969). 296
Airplane. 29, 54, 55, 57
Air rights. 152
Alaska. 45
Alcohol. 59, 60, 61, 67, 70, 79, 88, 90, 91, 92, 93, 96, 98
Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.). 93 Algebra. 3
Aliens. See Citizenship
Alimony. 146, 177
Allergy. 81, 88, 96, 98
Alzheimer's disease. 86, 96
Amenorrhea. 96
American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). 297
American College Testing program (ACT). 328, 343–348
American Revolution. 235
Amniocentesis. 84, 96
Amphetamines. 94
Anaphylaxis. 96
Anemia. 59, 96, 107, 108
Anesthesia. 81
Aneurysm. 96
Angina pectoris. 76, 96
Angiography. 96
Annual percentage rate (APR). 114, 136
Annulment (marriage). 141
Anorexia nervosa. 97
Anthropology. 227
Antibiotics. 90, 97
Anticoagulants. 88, 90, 97
Antonyms. See Synonyms and antonyms Anxiety. 59, 60
Appendix (body). 97
Aptitude tests. 328
Archaeology. 227
Architecture. 52
Aristotle. 257
Arizona. 45, 146
Arkansas. 234
Armed forces (U.S.). 31, 301
Arrythmia. 97
Art. See Graphic arts; Painting
Arteriogram. 97
Arteriosclerosis. 97
Artery (human). 97, 105, 108
Arthritis. 58, 59, 60, 74, 76, 81, 97, 98, 103–104, 106, 107
Ascorbic acid. See Vitamin C
Aspirin. 88, 89
Assault and battery. 162
Asthma. 60, 61, 76, 97, 99
Astigmatism. 306
Atherosclerosis. 97
Athlete's foot. 63, 97
Attorneys. See Legal profession
Audio-visual materials. 261
Automobiles. 24, 54, 55, 125–126, 134, 160–161

B

Babbage, Charles. 3
Baked goods. 29, 47, 131
Bank finance and banking. 23, 24, 29, 52, 55, 114–115, 117, 137, 145. See also Checking accounts Bankruptcy. 136, 158
Barbiturates. 88, 94
Baton Rouge (La.). 234
Bedsores. 99
Bell Laboratories. 4
Beta blockers. 97

Beverages. 131
Bill collection. See Collection (bill)
Billingsgate Tower (London). 225
Billy the Kid. 235
Biology. 196, 227
Biopsy. 84, 97
Birds. 105, 227
Bixby, Lydia. 274
Blacks. 297
Bladder. 99, 100, 103, 106
Blindness. 17, 62
Blood. 81, 101, 105, 106, 108
Blood cells. 65, 66, 100
Blood pressure. 17, 60, 75, 76, 87, 90, 101
Blue Cross and Blue Shield. 123–124
Body (human). 155. See also specific body parts and diseases
Body language. 246, 254–256
Bond (financial). 118, 119, 126, 136, 137, 138
Bone. 65, 66, 68, 77, 97, 103, 104
Bookkeeping. 29, 55
Books. See authors' names; Libraries; Literature; Reading; Reference books; Textbooks Bowdler, Thomas. 225
Bowel. 102
Boycott. 225
Braille. 17
Brain. 96, 97, 98, 101, 105, 106
Bread. 64, 70
Breast. 102
Bronchitis. 97, 99
Brooklyn Bridge. 225
Budgeting. 111–112
Buffalo Bill (Cody). 225
Building. See Construction
Bunions. 63
Burglary. See Theft
Bursitis. 97
Business. 14, 23, 25, 49–51, 130, 165–167, 276–277

C

Cadmium. 67
Caffeine. 59, 60, 61
Calciferol. See Vitamin D
Calculator. 3
California. 146
Calluses (foot). 63
Calorie. 72–74, 76
Camping. 135
Cancer. 58, 59, 67, 70, 81, 97, 98, 99, 102, 106
Candidiasis. 97
Carbohydrates. 59, 64, 66, 76
Careers. 22–57, 278–279, 296, 303, 319. See also specific fields, jobs, and professions
Carotene. 109
Carpentry. 23, 29, 56
Cars. See Automobiles
Catalogs. 131
Cataract. 306
Catering. 50
Catholic Church. See Roman Catholic Church
CAT scan. 84, 98
Cellulose. 76
Census Bureau (U.S.). 3
Certificates of deposit (CD's). 115, 117, 136
Cervix. 99
Charge account. See Credit
Charity. 121
Charts. See Graph; Tables
Checking accounts. 115–117
Chemistry and chemicals. 29, 52, 196 Chemotherapy. 97
Chesterfield (Lord). 268
Chicago (Ill.). 234
Chicken pox. 98
Childbed fever. 98
Children. 12–13, 29, 48, 62, 81, 85–86, 88, 121, 142–143, 146, 164, 167. 272–273. See also Abortion; Adoption; Reading Chiropracty. 81
Cholesterol. 64, 65, 67, 69, 76, 98
Christmas. 273
Chromium. 65
Chromosome. 98
Cigarettes. See Tobacco
Cirrhosis. 98
Cities. 29
Citizenship. 144
Civil Rights Act (1964). 164
Civil War (U.S.). 235
Clemens, Samuel Langhorne. 206, 260
Clergy. See Religion
Clerks. See Office work
Clothing. 36–37, 41, 131, 216, 256
Clubs and organizations. 290–291, 292, 297
Coffee. 59
Cola. 59
Cold, common. 68, 88
Collagen. 98
Collection (bill). 158, 286, 287
Colleges and universities. 22, 28–31, 44, 53, 111, 139, 145, 294, 303
Colon (body part). 70, 98, 99, 107
Colorado. 45
Common law marriage. 141, 173
Computers. See Data processing
Condominium. 136, 153
Congress (U.S.). 300
Conjunctivitis. 98
Conrad, Joseph. 206
Construction. 23, 56, 149
Consumer price index. 136
Consumer protection. 156–158
Contracts. 142, 143, 147–149, 151, 156, 165, 173, 287. See also Lease
Convulsions. 98
Co-ops (food). 131
Co-ops (housing). 153
Copper. 65, 70
Copyright. 159
Cornea. 76
Cornell University. 131
Corns (foot). 63
Corporation. 166
Courts. 157, 172–179, 219, 300
Credit. 114–115, 117, 134, 157–158, 159, 287. See also Mortgages
Crib death. 107
Crime. 142, 167–168, 172–179
Cross-eye. 107
Croup. 98
Cryosurgery. 98

Culdoscopy. 98–99
Curettage. 99
Cyst. 99
Cystocele. 99

D

Damages (legal). 162–163, 174, 178
Data processing. 2–21, 22, 23, 29, 44, 54, 55, 56
Da Vinci, Leonardo. See Leonardo da Vinci
De Soto, Hernando. 234
Death. 121, 126, 275. See also Estate
Defamation of character. 162–163, 178
Dentistry. See Teeth
Depression (mental). 91, 92
Des Moines (Iowa). 234
Diabetes. 59, 77, 87, 99, 101
Diarrhea. 89, 99
Dickens, Charles John Huffam. 275
Diction. 250, 252
Dictionary. 230, 317
Diets. See Weight
Digestive system. 66, 81, 84, 102
Digital Equipment Corp. 4
Disability insurance. 165
Disaccharide. 71, 76
Discrimination. 39, 151, 164. See also Minorities; specific groups Disease. See Medicine and health; specific diseases Diverticula. 99
Divorce. 145–146
DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid). 66, 76, 99
Doctors. See Medicine and health Donnybrook (Ireland). 225
Down's syndrome. 84, 99
Draco. 225
Drama. See Theater
Drugs. 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 79, 87–91. See also Narcotics; specific drugs
Dutch language. 234
Dysmenorrhea. 99
Dysplasia. 99

E

Ear. 63, 102, 103, 104, 108. See also Hearing Earthquake. 125, 309
Economics. 110–139
Education. 9, 12–13, 22, 24, 28–31, 44, 47, 53, 143, 294, 297
EEG (electroencephalogram). 84, 99
Eisenhower, Dwight David. 111
EKG (electrocardiogram). 84, 99
Elderly. See Old age
Electricity. 22, 23, 29, 56
Electronics. 23, 56. See also Data processing Embezzlement. 174
Embolism. 99, 105
Eminent domain. 152, 174
Emphysema. 99
Employment. 46, 164–165
Encyclopedia. 317
Energy (power). 121, 133
Engineering. 22, 23, 29, 52, 54
English-French dictionary. 375–381
English-German dictionary. 402–407
English language. 44, 196, 234–235. See also Reading; Vocabulary; parts of speech
English-Spanish dictionary. 432–437
ENIAC (computer). 4, 5
Entertainment. 44, 54
Enzymes. 65, 66, 76, 100
Epilepsy. 100
Erythrocytes. 100
Escrow. 149, 174
Estate. 121, 126, 137, 154–156, 174, 175, 176, 177
Etiquette. 266
Executor. See Estate
Exercise. 17, 59, 60, 61, 67, 68, 73, 74
Extortion. 175
Eye. 62, 81, 98, 100, 106, 249–250, 306–307, 311. See also Blindness

F

Fair Labor Standards Act. 164
Fallopian tube. 106
Family. 141–146, 322–323
Farsightedness. 306
Fashion. See Clothing
Fatigue. 59–60
Fats. 64, 65, 66, 69, 70, 71, 76, 77
FBI (Federal Bureau of Investigation). 29 Feet. 63, 81
Fever. 100
Fiber. 64, 70
Fibroma. 100
Films. See Motion pictures
Finances. 14, 110–139, 293
Fire. 24, 55
Fish and fishing. 227
Fistula. 100
Fitness. See Medicine and health
Flatulence. 100
Flood. 125
Florida. 45
Flu. See Influenza
Fluorine. 65
Fluoroscopy. 100
Folic acid. 66–67
Food. 53, 55, 59–60, 61, 70–71, 130–131, 218, 293. See also Catering; Nutrition; Weight
Food and Drug Administration (FDA). 58, 87, 88
Forgery. 175
Foster Grandparents. 47, 296
Franchise. 166–167
Frankfurt (Ger.). 234
Fraud. 175, 283
French adjectives. 357–358
French articles. 352–354
French-English dictionary. 370–374
French language. 234, 352–381
French pronouns. 354–359
French verbs. 354, 360–366
Fructose. 71, 76
Fruit. 64, 68, 70, 130
Funerals. See Death

G

Gallbladder. 98, 100
Games. 8, 9, 17, 236
Gamma globulin. 100
Gardening. 47, 221
Gastritis. 100
General Educational Development (GED) test. 328, 332–335
Genetics. 99, 100
Geology. 227
German adjectives and adverbs. 387
German articles. 382–383
German conjunctions. 391
German-English dictionary. 396–401
German language. 234, 382–407
German measles (rubella). 100
German nouns. 383–384
German prepositions. 386
German pronouns. 384–386
German verbs. 388–391
Gerry, Elbridge. 225
Gerrymander. 225
Gettysburg Address. 258–259
Gifts. 144–145, 146, 172
Glands. 81, 100
Glaucoma. 62, 76, 100, 306
Glossitis. 100
Glucose. 65, 71, 76
Glycogen. 76
Godwin, William. 303
Goiter. 65, 76, 100
Gonorrhea. 100
Government. 292, 300
Government bond. See Bond (financial)

Graduate Record Examination (GRE). 328, 349–351
Grammar. 250, 252
Graph. 321
Graphic arts. 14
Graves' disease. 101
Gray Panthers. 297
Greek language. 223, 226, 227
Green Thumb. 296
Grooming. 36–37, 256
Guaranteed Student Loan program. 111
Guaranties and warranties. 137, 138, 156–157, 160, 175, 283, 285
Gum. 64
Gynecology. 81, 101

H

Hair. 29, 37, 55
Hamburg (Ger.). 234
Hand. 307
Handicapped. 17, 143
Handicrafts. 47
Harvard University. 4, 15
Hashimoto's disease. 101
Hawthorne, Nathaniel. 312
Headache. 60, 61, 88, 101, 103
Health. See Medicine and health
Health insurance. 123–124, 125, 126, 136, 137. See also Medicaid; Medicare Hearing. 4, 17, 63
Heart. 59, 60, 61, 67, 69, 76, 81, 97, 98, 99–100, 102, 103, 104, 107
Heartburn. 101
Hematoma. 101
Hemophilia. 101
Hemorrhoids. 101
Hepatitis. 101
Hernia. 99, 101
Heroin. See Narcotics
Herpes. 101
Hispanic-Americans. 297
History. 13
HMO (Health Maintenance Organization). 124
Hodgkin's disease. 101
Hollerith, Herman. 3
Homes. See Home-owner's insurance; Housing; Mortgages
Homonyms. 222–223
Home-owner's insurance. 124, 125
Hospitals. 82–86
Hotels. See Motels and hotels
Housing. 121, 147–153, 216, 292. See also Condominium; Energy; Home-owner's insurance; Mortgages; Real estate
Human Engineering Laboratory. 206 Hydrocarbon. 76
Hydrocephalus. 101
Hydrogenation. 76
Hypertension. See Blood pressure
Hypoglycemia. 101
Hypothermia. 101
Hysterectomy. 102

I

IBM (International Business Machines). 3, 4, 21
Idaho. 146, 234
Illegitimacy. 142
Illinois. 45, 234
Illness. See Medicine and health; specific diseases Immune system. 102
Income. 137, 138, 144
Income tax. See Tax
Indiana. 45
Indians (N. Am.). 234 Indigestion. See Digestive system
Inflation. 110, 112, 119, 127
Influenza. 102
Inheritance. 142, 146. See also Estate
Insect. 227
Insomnia. See Sleep
Installment payments. See Credit
Insulin. 101, 102
Insurance. 29, 44, 54, 122–126, 137, 139, 150, 152, 160–161. See also specific types, e.g., Life insurance
Interest (financial). 110, 111, 114, 115, 118, 136, 137, 138, 157, 175. See also Mortgages
Internal Revenue Service (IRS). 120, 165
Interviews (job). 36–39
Intestines. 109
Investment (financial). 119, 137
Iodine. 65
Iowa. 45, 234
IRA (Individual Retirement Account). 112, 115, 118, 129, 137, 138
Iron (element). 65, 70, 96
Italian language. 234

J

Jaundice. 102
Javal, Emil. 306
Jews. 234, 301
Jobs. See Careers; Labor
Joyce, James. 321

K

Kentucky. 234
Keogh accounts. 115, 118–119, 137
Kidney. 81, 99, 101, 103, 106, 109
Kroc, Ray. 47

L

Labeling. 71, 130
Labor. 43, 121, 164–167. See also Careers; Employment; specific fields
Labor, Department of (U.S.). 296 Lamp. See Light
Landscape architecture. 24, 52
Language. 227. See also Speech and speaking; Vocabulary; specific languages
Larynx. 102
Latin language. 223, 226, 227, 228
Law. 140–179, 219
Lawyers. See Legal profession
Laxatives. 68
Lead (metal). 102
Lease. 152–153, 176
Lectures. 197
Legal profession. 23, 29, 44, 53, 54, 160, 169–171, 172
Legionnaires' disease. 102
Leibniz, Gottfried. 3
Leonardo da Vinci. 278
Letter writing. 36, 266–301
Leukemia. 102
Libel. 162–163
Libraries. 24, 29, 44, 53, 323
Lice. 104
Lien. 149–150, 159, 176
Life insurance. 122–123, 125, 138
Light. 62, 306
Lincoln, Abraham. 258–259, 274, 312
Lip. 307
Listening. 38, 42
Literature. 219
Liver. 65, 67, 98, 101
London, Jack. 309
Lorayne, Harry. 180
Louis XIV (King of France). 234
Louisiana. 146, 234
Lungs. 70, 81, 99, 104–105
Lupus erythematoses. 81, 98, 102
Lymph system. 102

M

Ménierè's disease. 103
Machines. 57
Magazines. 225, 289, 308–309, 313, 320
Mail. See Postal service
Mail order. 123, 156
Manganese. 65
Manic depression. 102
Mannose. 71, 76
Maps. 197
Mark I (computer). 4

Marketing. See Selling
Market research. 24, 44
Marriage. 121, 141, 144–145, 271–273. See also Divorce
Mastoid. 102
Mathematics. 3, 14, 18, 52, 196
Measles. 102–103
Meat. 130
Medicaid. 95, 137, 294
Medicare. 95, 129, 137, 294
Medicine and health. 17, 22, 23, 44, 53–54, 55, 58–77, 78–109, 144, 215, 294. See also Hospitals; Mental illness; specific body parts and diseases
Melanin. 65
Memory. 180–205, 209
Meningitis. 103
Menopause. 103
Menstruation. 96, 99, 103
Mental illness. 91, 92–95, 103, 105, 143
Metabolism. 103
Meteorology. 227
Michigan. 45
Microchip. 4, 5, 20
Microcomputer. 5, 9, 17, 20
Microorganisms. 103
Microphone. 249
Milan, Duke of. 278
Milk. 70
Minerals. 64–65, 152
Minicomputer. 4
Minnesota. 234
Minorities. 297. See also specific minority groups
Mississippi. 234
Missouri. 45
Mole (skin). 103
Molybdenum. 65
Money. 110–139
Money market accounts and funds. 117, 119, 137–138
Mongolism. See Down's syndrome
Mononucleosis. 103
Monosaccharide. 71, 77
Morphine. 94
Mortgages. 115, 121, 127, 132–133, 136, 145, 147, 150, 152, 173
Motels and hotels. 159, 287
Motion pictures. 218
Movies. See Motion pictures
Moving. 121
MSG (monosodium glutamate). 70, 71, 77
Multiple sclerosis. 103
Mumps. 103
Murder. 175, 176
Muscle. 103
Muscular dystrophy. 103
Music. 47, 220
Mutual funds. 119, 138, 139
Myasthenia gravis. 103
Myelitis. 103
Myocardial infarction. See Heart
Myoglobin. 77

N

Names (personal). 141, 184, 194, 200–205
Narcotics. 92, 94, 96, 101
National Association of Retired Civil Employees (NARCE). 297
National Council of Senior Citizens (NCSC). 297
National Council of the Aging (NCOA). 297
National Direct Student Loan program. 111
National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA). 297
Nearsightedness. 306
Negligence (legal). 160–161, 176
Negroes. See Blacks
Nervous system. 65, 66, 81, 103
Nevada. 45, 146
New Mexico. 45, 146
Newspapers. 224, 313, 320
New York State. 45, 122, 123
Niacin. See Vitamin B_3
Nicotine. 61
Nitrogen dioxide. 67
Nitrosamines. 77
No-fault insurance. 161
Noise. 306
Nose. 100
NOW accounts. 115
Nursing. 23, 29, 44, 53–54
Nursing homes. 82
Nutrition. 17, 24, 64–71, 77

O

Oakley, Annie. 225
Obesity. See Weight
Ocean. 29, 52
Office work. 23, 29, 52, 55. See also Secretaries
Ohio. 45
Oil (animal and plant). 71
Oklahoma. 45
Old age. 22, 47, 81, 86, 88–89, 107, 127–130, 135, 139, 144, 150, 164, 193, 292–297
Older Americans Act. 292
Operation Mainstream. 296
Organizations. See Clubs and organizations; specific organizations Osteomalacia. 77
Osteoporosis. 68
Ovary. 98, 100, 103, 104
Oxford English Dictionary. 230 Oxygen. 59
Ozone. 67

P

Paget's disease. 104
Pain. 90
Painting. 29, 47
Pancreas. 104, 109
Paralysis. 104
Paratyphoid fever. 104
Parkinson's disease. 104
Parliamentary procedure. 263–265
Partnership (business). 166
Pascal, Blaise. 3, 20
Patent. 159, 177
Peace Corps. 47, 296
Pectin. 64, 77
Pell Grants. 111
Pellagra. 104
Peller, Clara. 47
Penicillin. 90
Pennsylvania. 45
Pensions. 129, 137, 165. See also Social insurance Peritonitis. 104
Perjury. 177, 178
Personal appearance. See Grooming
Personal computer. See Microcomputer Personnel. 24, 44
Pharmaceuticals. See Drugs
Phlebitis. 104
Photography. 24, 54
Physicians. See Medicine and health
Physics. 29, 52
Pizza. 71
Plastics. 23
Plastic surgery. 81
Pleurisy. 104
Pneumonia. 104
Poisoning. 106, 108
Poker (card game). 235
Police. 24, 44, 55
Polio. 105
Polyps. 105
Polysaccharide. 77
Pontiac fever. 105
Postal service. 24, 29, 55, 290, 298–299
Pott's disease. 105
Prefixes. 226
Pregnancy. 81, 84, 88, 97, 105, 108
President (U.S.). 300
Printing. 6, 11, 16, 21
Privacy. 163
Probate. See Estate
Profanity. 253
Programming (computer). See Data processing
Property. 143–146, 159, 162–163, 173, 178. See also Estate; Real estate

Prostaglandins. 105
Prostate. 105
Protestantism. 301
Prothrombin time (PT). 105
Pseudodementia. 105
Psittacosis. 105
Psoriasis. 105
Psychiatry. 95, 105
Psychology. 29, 44, 53, 227
Publishing. 44
Pulse (human). 75
Puritans. 314, 318
Purpura. 105
Puzzles. See Games
Pyelography. 105
Pyridoxine. See Vitamin B_6

Q

Q fever. 106

R

Radiation. 106
Radio. 4, 23, 29, 44, 54, 56, 247
Rape. 178
Raynaud's disease. 106
Reading. 13, 17, 197, 219, 302–327
Real estate. 23, 29, 54, 119, 136, 145, 150–151. See also Housing; Mortgages Record-keeping. 111–113, 116
Recreation. 295
Red blood cells. See Blood cells
Reference books. 316–317, 321
Refrigerator. 133
Religion. 29, 44, 53, 227, 301
Renting. 152–153
Repairs. 23, 29, 55, 56, 134, 153, 159
Restaurants. 24, 29, 44, 55
Résumés. 32–33
Retina. 106
Retinol. See Vitamin A
Retired Officers Association (ROA). 297
Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP). 47 Retirement. See Old age
Reye's syndrome. 106
Rheumatic fever. 106
Rh factor. 106
Rhode Island. 45
Riboflavin. See Vitamin B_2
Rickets. 106
RNA (ribonucleic acid). 106
Robbery. See Theft
Robert's Rules. 263–265
Rocky Mountain spotted fever. 106
Roman Catholic Church. 301

S

Saccharides. 77
Safety. 41, 160–163, 164
Salary. See Wages
Sales. See Selling
Salmonellosis. 106
Salt. 70, 71
San Francisco (Calif.). 309
SAT's. See Scholastic Aptitude Tests
Saunders, Colonel. 47
Savings accounts. 115, 117
Scabies. 106
Scalp. 108
Scarlet fever. 106
Schizophrenia. 92, 94, 106–107
Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT's). 328, 329, 336–342
Schools. See Education
Sciatic nerve. 107
Science. 52–53. See also specific fields
Scleroderma. 81, 98, 107
Scoliosis. 107
Search and seizure. 167–168, 179
Secretaries. 23, 24, 29, 44, 55
Selenium. 65
Selling. 24, 29, 44, 54, 156, 262–263, 284, 288, 290
Selye, Hans. 60
Semiconductor. 21
Senility. 107
Senior citizens. See Old age
Senior Citizens of America (SCA). 297
Senior Companion Program. 296
Separation (marital). 145–146
Services. 22, 29, 44, 47, 48, 52–57. See also specific fields and industries
Sewing. 47
Sheridan, Richard Brinsley. 225
Shingles. See Herpes
Shock (physiological). 107
Shoes. 63
Shopping. 130–131, 139
Sickle-cell anemia. 107
Silicon. 5
Sinus. 107
Skin. 81, 99, 100, 105, 106, 109
Slander. 162–163
Slang. 38, 253
Sleep. 59, 60, 61, 91, 102
Sleeping sickness. 108
Slipped disk. 107
Smallpox. 107
Smell. 75
Smoking. See Tobacco
Snail fever. 106
Social insurance. 22, 47, 115, 120, 122, 127–130, 138, 141, 165–166, 293
Social welfare. 29, 44, 53
Sodium. 70, 71, 77
Software (computer). 8–9, 12, 14, 15, 21
Solar energy. 121
Sonogram. 84, 109
Sound. 108. See also Sonogram
Sound recording. 246, 247, 251
Spanish adjectives and adverbs. 410–414
Spanish articles. 409
Spanish-English dictionary. 426–431
Spanish language. 234, 408–437
Spanish nouns. 410
Spanish prepositions. 415
Spanish pronouns. 412–414
Spanish verbs. 416–423
Speech and speaking. 44, 244–265
Spelling. 16, 196
Spine. 81, 84, 103, 104, 105, 107
Sports. 217
Spreadsheet (electronic). 15
Stationery. 268
Still's disease. 107
Stock (financial). 136, 137, 138, 172
Stokes-Adams syndrome. 107
Stomach. 100, 101
Stonehenge (Eng.). 3
Stress. 59, 60–61
Stroke (apoplexy). 107
Suchar, Elizabeth W. 31
Sugar. 71, 101, 102
Supermarket. 130
Supreme Court (U.S.). 300
Surgery. 80–81, 82, 95, 98, 101
Synonyms and antonyms. 16, 210, 213
Syphilis. 107

T

Tables (charts). 321
Tape recorder. See Sound recording
Tax. 118, 120–121, 126, 137, 138, 139, 146, 150, 165–166, 292
Taxis. 29
Tay-Sachs disease. 107
Teaching. See Education
Teeth. 23, 24, 29, 53–54, 55, 65, 66, 68
Telangiectasia. 108
Telecommunications. 22
Telephone. 29, 44, 56, 261–262
Television. 23, 29, 44, 56, 62, 221
Terre Haute (Ind.). 234
Testing. 213–214, 232–233, 328–351
Testing (medical). 75, 82–84, 86, 96–109
Tetanus. 108

Tetany. 108
Texas. 45, 146
Textbooks. 309, 313, 317
Thalassemia. 108
Thalidomide. 108
Theater. 44, 47, 218
Theft. 159, 167, 172
Thermography. 108
Thiamin. See Vitamin B_1
Thorndike, Edward. 193
Thyroid. 65, 100, 101
Time. 226
Tissue (physiol.). 59
Title (property). 149, 179
Tobacco. 59, 60, 61, 67, 70, 79
Toe. 63
Tongue. 100
Tonsils. 108
Tort. 162, 179
Toxic shock syndrome. 108
Toxoplasmosis. 108
Trademark. 159
Tranquilizers. 91, 94, 108
Transistor. 4, 5
Transportation. 295
Travel. 121, 295
Traveler's checks. 117
Trespass. 162, 163, 179
Trichinosis. 108
Trichomoniasis. 108
Trucks. 23, 29, 55, 57
Trust (financial). 144
Tuberculosis. 105, 108
Twain, Mark. See Clemens, Samuel Langhorne
Typewriter. 22, 23, 44, 55, 268
Typhoid fever. 108

U

Ulcerative colitis. 108
Ulcers. 60, 61, 90, 99, 104
Ultrasound. See Sonogram
Unemployment. See Employment Unions. See Labor
UNIVAC (computer). 4
Uremia. 109
Urethra. 103
Urticaria. 109
Uterus. 99, 100, 102, 105

V

Vacations. 135
Vacuum tube. 21
Vagina. 99, 100, 108, 109
Varicose veins. 109
Vascular system. 109
Vegetables. 64, 68, 70, 130
Vegetarianism. 70
Venereal disease. 79. See also specific diseases
Vermont. 234
Vertigo. 109
Veterans. 164
Vision. See Eye
VISTA. See Volunteers in Service to America
Vitamin A. 66–68, 70
Vitamin B. 59, 104
Vitamin B_1. 66–67
Vitamin B_2. 66–67
Vitamin B_3. 66–67
Vitamin B_6. 66–67
Vitamin B_{12}. 70
Vitamin C. 66–68, 70
Vitamin D. 66–68, 70
Vitamin E. 65, 66–67
Vitamins. 64, 66–67
Vocabulary. 196, 206–243, 253–254
Vocalization. 307–308
Vocational training. 22, 31
Voice. 247
Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA). 47, 296

W

Wages. 35, 40–41, 43, 164–165
Waiters and waitresses. See Restaurants
Wart. 109
Washington (state). 45, 146
Water. 64, 68, 152
Wax (ear). 63
Weight. 17, 58, 64, 72–73, 97
Welfare. See Social welfare
West Virginia. 45
Whooping cough. 109
Will. See Estate
Wine. 227
Women. 22, 48, 51, 68, 141, 144–145, 164
Word processing. 14, 16, 22
Words. See Vocabulary
Workers' compensation. 165, 166
World War I. 235
World War II. 235
Writing. 29, 44, 54. See also Letter writing Wyoming. 45

X

Xanthema. 109
X-rays. 81, 83, 96, 97, 98, 102, 105, 109

Y

Yeast. 109
Yiddish language. 234
Youth. See Children

Z

Zinc. 65
Zollinger-Ellison syndrome. 109
Zoning. 151

Part 2

Roget's University Thesaurus

Roget's University Thesaurus

Edited by Eugene Ehrlich

This work was originally published under the title
Roget's International Thesaurus of English Words and Phrases.

ROGET'S UNIVERSITY THESAURUS.
Copyright 1911, 1922, 1930, 1932, 1936, 1938, 1939, copyright © 1958, 1959, 1960, 1963, 1985
by Harper & Row, Publishers, Inc.
All rights reserved.

Preface

This edition of Roget's University Thesaurus remains true to the original formulation of Peter Mark Roget, followed by all his distinguished successors, including the late C. O. Sylvester Mawson, who edited the first University Thesaurus. The distinguishing feature of the present edition is that it responds to the particular needs of all family members, young and old, who are students. The day does not go by when writing or when preparing a speech that an appropriate word or phrase is difficult to recall. It is at those times that the University Thesaurus proves invaluable.

The University Thesaurus offers its users

1. a large list of synonyms and antonyms;
2. a special grouping of comparisons and related terms;
3. systematic treatment of specialized terminology;
4. a grouping of synonyms in individual paragraphs supplying words more or less related and interchangeable;
5. characterization of all obsolete, obsolescent, rare, archaic, colloquial, dialectal, and slang words, as well as British, foreign, and special terms;
6. plural forms in all cases of unusual difficulty;
7. numerous phrases and idioms;
8. citations from modern authors.

The words new in the University Thesaurus run well into the thousands and embrace all aspects of knowledge, particularly in the sciences and social sciences. The aim has been to suggest ideas and turns of thought. The arrangement of synonyms and antonyms peculiar to the Roget scheme adds to the usefulness of the work: Roget gives goodness and badness, for example, in sequential entries. There is no need to refer to another part of the book.

Another distinguishing feature of Roget is the inclusion of phrases. Not only does the use of phrases enlarge the group of synonyms for any particular word, but in many instances the phrase furnishes the only possible synonym. Improvement of this feature in the University Thesaurus has received painstaking attention.

Our language marches with no frontiers; English is a world possession. Every race and country is reflected in its vocabulary. The University Thesaurus is alive to this universality, and, in order to assist writers and speakers in giving local color, the birthplace of every imported word is duly recorded.

Attention must be drawn to the need for using any thesaurus in tandem with a dictionary. Synonyms are often only related words. The dictionary provides precise definitions of individual words, so it must be consulted before using a word or phrase new to the reader.

Eugene Ehrlich

Table of Contents

Roget's University Thesaurus

- Preface iii
- Abbreviations vi
- How to Use the Thesaurus viii
- Tabular Synopsis of Categories x
- Roget's University Thesaurus 3
- Index Guide 366

Abbreviations

abbr. abbreviated, abbreviation
adj. adjective, adjectival expression
adv. adverb, adverbial expression
Afr. Africa
Am. or Amer. America, American Am. hist. American history anat. anatomy
anc. ancient Anglo-Ind. Anglo-Indian anon. anonymous
antiq. antiquities
Ar. Arabic
arch. architecture
archaeol. archaeology
arith. arithmetic
A.-S. Anglo-Saxon
astrol. astrology
astron. astronomy
Austral. Australian Bib. Biblical
biol. biology
bot. botany
Brit. British
Can. Canada, Canadian
Can. F. Canadian French
Celt. Celtic chem. chemistry Chin. Chinese
Ch. of Eng. Church of England class. classical colloq. colloquial
com. commerce, commercial conj. conjunction
Du. Dutch
Dan. Danish
derog. derogatory
dial. dialect, dialectal
dim. diminutive
E. East
eccl. ecclesiastical econ. economics
elec. electricity
Eng. English, England
erron. erroneous, erroneously esp. especially
exc. except
F. French
fem. feminine
fig. figurative, figuratively
G. or Ger. German
Gr. Greek
gram. grammar
Gr. Brit. Great Britain
Heb. Hebrew
her. heraldry Hind. Hindustani
hist. history, historical Icel. Icelandic
Ind. Indian
Ir. Irish, Ireland
int. interjection
It. Italian
Jap. Japanese
Jew. Jewish
joc. jocular
L. Latin
l.c. lower case masc. masculine math. mathematics
Meth. Methodist
Mex. Mexico, Mexican
mil. military Moham. Mohammedan
myth. mythology
N. North
n. noun
N. Am. North American
naut. nautical
N. E. or New Eng. New England neut. neuter
Nfld. Newfoundland
NL. New Latin
Norw. Norwegian
N. W. Northwest, Northwestern
N. Z. New Zealand
obs. obsolete
obsoles. obsolescent OE. Old English
opp. opposed orig. original, originally parl. parliamentary path. pathology
Per. Persian
Pg. Portuguese
pharm. pharmacy philos. philosophy
physiol. physiology
P. I. Philippine Islands
pl. plural

pol. or polit. political
pop. popular, popularly prep. preposition Prot. Epis. Protestant Episcopal prov. proverb, provincial psychol. psychology
R. C. Ch. Roman Catholic Church relig. religion
rhet. rhetoric, rhetorical Russ. Russian
S. or So. South
S. Afr. South African
S. Am. South American
Scand. Scandinavian Scot. Scottish, Scotland
sing. singular
Skr. Sanskrit
Sp. Spanish
Sp. Amer. Spanish American surg. surgery
Sw. Swedish
S. W. Southwest, Southwestern
S. W. U. S. Southwest United States tech. technical theat. theatrical theol. theology
theos. theosophy Turk. Turkish
typog. typography
Univ. University
U. S. United States
v. verb
W. West
W. Ind. West Indies
zool. zoology

Dashes and hyphens are used to avoid the repetition of a term common to each word or phrase in the same group. For example:

"over-, above- the mark;"	=	"over the mark," "above the mark"
"on the -verge, -brink, -skirts of;"	=	"on the verge of," "on the brink of," "on the skirts of"
"brush-, whisk-, turn-, send- -off, -away;"	=	"brush off," "brush away," "whisk off," "whisk away," "turn off," "turn away," "send off," "send away"
"quick-, keen-, clear-, sharp- -eyed, -sighted, -witted;"	=	"quick-eyed," "quick-sighted," "quick-witted," "keen-eyed," "keen-sighted," "keen-witted," "clear-eyed," "clear-sighted," "clear-witted," "sharp-eyed," "sharp-sighted," "sharp-witted"
"away from-, foreign to-, beside- the -purpose, -question, -transaction, -point;"	=	"away from the purpose," "away from the question," "away from the transaction," "away from the point," "foreign to the purpose," etc., "beside the purpose," etc.
"fall, -to the ground;"	=	"fall," "fall to the ground"
"shortness etc. adj.;" "shortly etc. adj.;" "shortening etc. v.;"	=	in a similar manner form other words from the groups of adjectives or verbs in the same category

How to Use the Thesaurus

1. To find a synonym or antonym for any given WORD:

Turn to the Index Guide and find the particular word or any term of kindred meaning; then refer to the category indicated. Under the part of speech sought for [n., v., adj., adv.] will be found a wide choice of synonymous and related terms, with their antonyms in the following category or in the preceding category. For example, suppose a synonym is wanted for the word "rare" in the sense of "choice." Turn to the Index Guide, where the following references will be found:

rare unique 20 exceptional 83
few 103
infrequent 137
underdone 298
tenuous 322
neologic 563
choice 648

The italicized words denote the general sense of the related terms in the respective categories. Turning to No. 648 (the sense required), we select the most appropriate expression from the comprehensive list presented. To widen the selection, suggested references are given to allied lists; while in No. 649 are grouped the corresponding antonyms. The groups are arranged, not merely to supply synonyms for some special word, but to suggest new lines of thought and to stimulate the imagination.

The writer at a loss for some archaism, colloquialism, or even slang, will find the University Thesaurus a veritable mine, such terms being clearly indicated in the text.

2. To find suitable words to express a given IDEA:

Find in the Index Guide some word relating to the idea, and the categories referred to will supply the need. Thus, suppose a writer wishes to use some less hackneyed phrase than "shuffle off this mortal coil," let him look up "die" or even the phrase itself, and reference to No. 360 will immediately furnish a generous list of synonymous phrases.

3. To find appropriate words or new ideas on any given SUBJECT:

Turn to the subject or any branch of it. The Index Guide itself will frequently suggest various lines of thought, while reference to the indicated groups will provide many words and phrases that should prove helpful.

Thus, suppose "philosophy" is the theme, No. 451 will be found most suggestive. Or again, the subject may be "the drama" (599), "music" (415), "zoology" (368), "psychical research" (992a), or "mythology" (979). Writers may perhaps be hazy about the titles of the ruling chiefs of India. The Thesaurus (875) will prevent applying a Hindu title to a Mohammedan prince. The subject may be such an everyday one as "food" (298), "automobiles" (272), "aviation" (267 and 269a), or various kinds of "amusements" (840); whatever it is, the Thesaurus will prove profitable as regards ideas. Writers and speakers who have acquired the Roget habit do not need to be reminded of this valuable aid.

N.B. To grasp the underlying principle of the classification, study the Tabular Synopsis of Categories, which begins on the next page. Reference may be made direct from this Synopsis to the body of the work; but it is usually found more convenient to consult the Index Guide first.

The Guide numbers always refer to the section numbers in the text and not to pages.

Tabular Synopsis of Categories

Class 1. Abstract Relations

Section 1. Existence
	1. Abstract	1. Existence	2. Nonexistence
	2. Concrete	3. Substantiality	4. Unsubstantiality
	3. Formal	Internal	External
		5. Intrinsicality	6. Extrinsicality
	4. Modal	Absolute	Relative
		7. State	8. Circumstance
Section 2. Relation
	1. Absolute	9. Relation	10. Irrelation
		11. Consanguinity
		12. Correlation
		13. Identity	14. Contrariety
			15. Difference
	2. Continuous	16. Uniformity	16*a*. Nonuniformity
	3. Partial	17. Similarity	18. Dissimilarity
		19. Imitation	20. Nonimitation
			20*a*. Variation
		21. Copy	22. Prototype
	4. General	23. Agreement	24. Disagreement
Section 3. Quantity
	1. Simple	Absolute	Relative
		25. Quantity	26. Degree
	2. Comparative	27. Equality	28. Inequality
			29. Mean
			30. Compensation
		By Comparison with a Standard
		31. Greatness	32. Smallness
		By Comparison with a Similar Object
		33. Superiority	34. Inferiority
		Changes in Quantity
		35. Increase	36. Decrease
	3. Conjunctive	37. Addition	38. Nonaddition
			Deduction
		39. Adjunct	40. Remainder
			40*a*. Decrement
		41. Mixture	42. Simpleness
		43. Junction	44. Disjunction
		45. Vinculum
		46. Coherence	47. Incoherence
		48. Combination	49. Decomposition
	4. Concrete	50. Whole	51. Part
		52. Completeness	53. Incompleteness
		54. Composition	55. Exclusion
		56. Component	57. Extraneous
Section 4. Order
	1. General	58. Order	59. Disorder
		60. Arrangement	61. Derangement

2. CONSECUTIVE		62. Precedence	63. Sequence
		64. Precursor	65. Sequel
		66. Beginning	67. End
			68. Middle
		69. Continuity	70. Discontinuity
		71. Term
3. COLLECTIVE		72. Assemblage	73. Nonassemblage Dispersion
		74. Focus
4. DISTRIBUTIVE		75. Class
		76. Inclusion	77. Exclusion
		78. Generality	79. Speciality
5. CATEGORICAL		80. Rule	81. Multiformity
		82. Conformity	83. Unconformity
Section 5. Number
1. ABSTRACT		84. Number
		85. Numeration
		86. List
2. DETERMINATE		87. Unity	88. Accompaniment
		89. Duality
		90. Duplication	91. Bisection
		92. Triality
		93. Triplication	94. Trisection
		95. Quaternity
		96. Quadruplication	97. Quadrisection
		98. Five, etc.	99. Quinquesection, etc.
3. INDETERMINATE		100. Plurality	100*a*. Fraction
			101. Zero
		102. Multitude	103. Fewness
		104. Repetition
		105. Infinity
Section 6. Time
1. ABSOLUTE		106. Time	107. Neverness
		Definite	Indefinite
		108. Period	109. Course
		108*a*. Contingent Duration
		110. Diuturnity	111. Transience
		112. Perpetuity	113. Instantaneity
		114. Chronometry	115. Anachronism
2. RELATIVE	1. To Succession	116. Priority	117. Posteriority
		118. Present time	119. Different time
		120. Synchronism
		121. Futurity	122. Preterition
	2. To a Period	123. Newness	124. Oldness
		125. Morning	126. Evening
		127. Youth	128. Age
		129. Infant	130. Veteran
			131. Adolescence

	3. To an Effect or Purpose	132. Earliness 134. Occasion	133. Lateness 135. Intempestivity
	3. Recurrent	136. Frequency 138. Periodicity	137. Infrequency 139. Irregularity
Section 7. Change
	1. Simple	140. Change 142. Cessation 144. Conversion 146. Revolution 147. Substitution	141. Permanence 143. Continuance 145. Reversion 148. Interchange
	2. Complex	149. Changeableness Present 151. Eventuality	150. Stability Future 152. Destiny
Section 8. Causation
	1. Constancy of Sequence	Constant Antecedent 153. Cause Assignment of Cause 155. Attribution	Constant Sequence 154. Effect Absence of Assignment 156. Chance
	2. Connection between Cause and Effect	157. Power Degrees of Power 159. Strength	158. Impotence 160. Weakness
	3. Power in Operation	161. Production 163. Reproduction 164. Producer 166. Paternity 168. Productiveness 170. Agency 171. Energy 173. Violence	162. Destruction 165. Destroyer 167. Posterity 169. Unproductiveness 172. Inertness 174. Moderation
	4. Indirect Power	175. Influence 176. Tendency 177. Liability	175*a*. Absence of Influence
	5. Combination of Causes	178. Concurrence	179. Counteraction
Class 2. Space
Section 1. Space in General
	1. Abstract Space	Indefinite 180. Space	180*a*. Inextension Definite 181. Region Limited 182. Place
	2. Relative Space	183. Situation 184. Location	185. Displacement
	3. Existence in Space	186. Presence 188. Inhabitant 190. Contents	187. Absence 189. Abode 191. Receptacle
Section 2. Dimensions
	1. General	192. Size 194. Expansion 196. Distance 198. Interval	193. Littleness 195. Contraction 197. Nearness 199. Contiguity
	2. Linear	200. Length 202. Breadth Thickness 204. Layer 206. Height 208. Depth 210. Summit 212. Verticality 214. Pendency 216. Parallelism 218. Inversion 219. Crossing 220. Exteriority 222. Centrality 223. Covering 225. Investment 227. Circumjacence	201. Shortness 203. Narrowness Thinness 205. Filament 207. Lowness 209. Shallowness 211. Base 213. Horizontality 215. Support 217. Obliquity 221. Interiority 224. Lining 226. Divestment 228. Interjacence

3. Centrical	1. General	229. Circumscription
		230. Outline
		231. Edge
		232. Inclosure
		233. Limit
	2. Special	234. Front	235. Rear
		236. Laterality	237. Contraposition
		238. Dextrality	239. Sinistrality
Section 3. Form
1. General		240. Form	241. Amorphism
		242. Symmetry	243. Distortion
2. Special		244. Angularity
		245. Curvature	246. Straightness
		247. Circularity	248. Convolution
		249. Rotundity
3. Superficial		250. Convexity	252. Concavity
		251. Flatness
		253. Sharpness	254. Bluntness
		255. Smoothness	256. Roughness
		257. Notch
		258. Fold
		259. Furrow
		260. Opening	261. Closure
		262. Perforator	263. Stopper
Section 4. Motion
1. Motion in General		264. Motion	265. Quiescence
		266. Journey	267. Navigation
		268. Traveler	269. Mariner
			269*a*. Aeronaut
		270. Transference
		271. Carrier
		272. Vehicle	273. Ship
2. Degrees of Motion		274. Velocity	275. Slowness
3. Conjoined with Force		276. Impulse	277. Recoil
4. With reference to Direction		278. Direction	279. Deviation
		280. Precession	281. Sequence
		282. Progression	283. Regression
		284. Propulsion	285. Traction
		286. Approach	287. Recession
		288. Attraction	289. Repulsion
		290. Convergence	291. Divergence
		292. Arrival	293. Departure
		294. Ingress	295. Egress
		296. Reception	297. Ejection
		298. Food	299. Excretion
		300. Insertion	301. Extraction
		302. Passage
		303. Overrun	304. Shortcoming
		305. Ascent	306. Descent
		307. Elevation	308. Depression
		309. Leap	310. Plunge
		311. Circuition
		312. Rotation	313. Evolution
		314. Oscillation
		315. Agitation
Class 3. Matter
Section 1. Matter in General		316. Materiality	317. Immateriality
		318. World
		319. Gravity	320. Levity
Section 2. Inorganic Matter
1. Solids		321. Density	322. Rarity
		323. Hardness	324. Softness
		325. Elasticity	326. Inelasticity
		327. Tenacity	328. Brittleness
		329. Texture
		330. Pulverulence
		331. Friction	332. Lubrication
2. Fluids	1. In General	333. Fluidity	334. Gaseity
		335. Liquefaction	336. Vaporization

	2. Specific		337. Water	338. Air
			339. Moisture	340. Dryness
			341. Ocean	342. Land
			343. Gulf
			Lake	344. Plain
			345. Marsh	346. Island
	3. In Motion		347. Stream
			348. River	349. Wind
			350. Conduit	351. Air Pipe
3. Imperfect Fluids			352. Semiliquidity	353. Bubble Cloud
			354. Pulpiness	355. Unctuousness
				356. Oil
				356*a*. Resin
Section 3. Organic Matter
1. Vitality	1. In General		357. Organization	358. Inorganization
			359. Life	360. Death
				361. Killing
				362. Corpse
				363. Interment
	2. Special		364. Animality	365. Vegetation
			366. Animal	367. Vegetable
			368. Zoology	369. Botany
			370. Cicuration	371. Agriculture
			372. Mankind
			372*a*. Anthropology
			373. Man	374. Woman
2. Sensation	1. General		375. Sensibility	376. Insensibility
			377. Pleasure	378. Pain
	2. Special	(1) Touch	379. Touch
			380. Sensations of Touch	381. Numbness
		(2) Heat	382. Heat	383. Cold
			384. Calefaction	385. Refrigeration
			386. Furnace	387. Refrigeratory
			388. Fuel
			389. Thermometer
		(3) Taste	390. Taste	391. Insipidity
			392. Pungency
			393. Condiment
			394. Savoriness	395. Unsavoriness
			396. Sweetness	397. Sourness
		(4) Odor	398. Odor	399. Inodorousness
			400. Fragrance	401. Fetor
		(5) Sound	(i) Sound in General
			402. Sound	403. Silence
			404. Loudness	405. Faintness
			(ii) Specific Sounds
			406. Snap	407. Roll
			408. Resonance	408*a*. Nonresonance
				409. Sibilation
			410. Stridor
			411. Cry	412. Ululation
			(iii) Musical Sounds
			413. Melody
			Concord	414. Discord
			415. Music
			416. Musician
			417. Musical Instruments
			(iv) Perception of Sound
			418. Hearing	419. Deafness
		(6) Light	(i) Light in General
			420. Light	421. Darkness
				422. Dimness
			423. Luminary	424. Shade
			425. Transparency	426. Opacity
				427. Semitransparency
			(ii) Specific Light
			428. Color	429. Achromatism
			430. Whiteness	431. Blackness
			432. Gray	433. Brown
			434. Redness	435. Greenness

	436. Yellowness	437. Purple
	438. Blueness	439. Orange
	440. Variegation
	(iii) Perceptions of Light
	441. Vision	442. Blindness
		443. Dim-sightedness
	444. Spectator
	445. Optical Instruments
	446. Visibility	447. Invisibility
	448. Appearance	449. Disappearance

Class 4. Intellect

Division 1. Formation of Ideas

Section 1. Operations of Intellect in General	450. Intellect	450*a*. Absence of Intellect
	451. Thought	452. Incogitance
	453. Idea	454. Topic
Section 2. Precursory Conditions and Operations	455. Curiosity	456. Incuriosity
	457. Attention	458. Inattention
	459. Care	460. Neglect
	461. Inquiry	462. Answer
	463. Experiment
	464. Comparison
	465. Discrimination	465*a*. Indiscrimination
	466. Measurement
Section 3. Materials for Reasoning	467. Evidence	468. Counterevidence
		469. Qualification
	Degrees of Evidence
	470. Possibility	471. Impossibility
	472. Probability	473. Improbability
	474. Certainty	475. Uncertainty
Section 4. Reasoning Processes	476. Reasoning	477. Intuition
		Sophistry
	478. Demonstration	479. Confutation
Section 5. Results of Reasoning	480. Judgment	481. Misjudgment
	480*a*. Discovery
	482. Overestimation	483. Underestimation
	484. Belief	485. Unbelief
		Doubt
	486. Credulity	487. Incredulity
	488. Assent	489. Dissent
	490. Knowledge	491. Ignorance
	490*a*. Science
	492. Scholar	493. Ignoramus
	494. Truth	495. Error
	496. Maxim	497. Absurdity
	Faculties
	498. Intelligence	499. Imbecility
	Wisdom	Folly
	500. Sage	501. Fool
	502. Sanity	503. Insanity
		504. Madman
Section 6. Extension of Thought
1. To the Past	505. Memory	506. Oblivion
2. To the Future	507. Expectation	508. Inexpectation
		509. Disappointment
	510. Foresight
	511. Prediction
	512. Omen
	513. Oracle
Section 7. Creative Thought	514. Supposition
	515. Imagination

Division 2. Communication of Ideas

Section 1. Nature of Ideas Communicated	516. Meaning	517. Unmeaningness
	518. Intelligibility	519. Unintelligibility
		520. Equivocalness
	521. Metaphor
	522. Interpretation	523. Misinterpretation
	524. Interpreter
Section 2. Modes of Communication	525. Manifestation	526. Latency
	527. Information	528. Concealment

529. Disclosure
530. Ambush
531. Publication
532. News
533. Secret
534. Messenger
535. Affirmation
536. Negation
537. Teaching
538. Misteaching
539. Learning
540. Teacher
541. Learner
542. School
543. Veracity
544. Falsehood
545. Deception
546. Untruth
547. Dupe
548. Deceiver
549. Exaggeration

Section 3. Means of Communication

1. Natural Means

550. Indication
551. Record
552. Obliteration
553. Recorder
554. Representation
555. Misrepresentation
556. Painting
Black and white 557. Sculpture
558. Engraving
559. Artist

2. Conventional Means — 1. Language Generally

560. Language
561. Letter
562. Word
563. Neology
564. Nomenclature
565. Misnomer
566. Phrase
567. Grammar
568. Solecism
569. Style
Qualities of Style
570. Perspicuity
571. Obscurity
572. Conciseness
573. Diffuseness
574. Vigor
575. Feebleness
576. Plainness
577. Ornament
578. Elegance
579. Inelegance

2. Spoken Language

580. Voice
581. Aphonia
582. Speech
583. Stammering
584. Loquacity
585. Taciturnity
586. Allocution
587. Response
588. Interlocution
589. Soliloquy

3. Written Language

590. Writing
591. Printing
592. Correspondence
593. Book
594. Description
595. Dissertation
596. Compendium
597. Poetry
598. Prose
599. The Drama

Class 5. Volition

Division 1. Individual Volition

Section 1. Volition in General

1. Acts

600. Will
601. Necessity
602. Willingness
603. Unwillingness
604. Resolution
605. Irresolution
604*a*. Perseverance
606. Obstinacy
607. Tergiversation
608. Caprice
609. Choice
609*a*. Absence of Choice
610. Rejection
611. Predetermination
612. Impulse
613. Habit
614. Desuetude

2. Causes

615. Motive
615*a*. Absence of Motive
617. Plea
616. Dissuasion

3. Objects

618. Good
619. Evil

Section 2. Prospective Volition

1. Conceptional

620. Intention
621. Chance
622. Pursuit
623. Avoidance
624. Relinquishment
625. Business

	626. Plan
	627. Method
	628. Mid-course	629. Circuit
	630. Requirement
2. Subservience to Ends
	1. Actual Subservience
	631. Instrumentality
	632. Means
	633. Instrument
	634. Substitute
	635. Materials
	636. Store
	637. Provision	638. Waste
	639. Sufficiency	640. Insufficiency
	641. Redundance
	2. Degree of Subservience
	642. Importance	643. Unimportance
	644. Utility	645. Inutility
	646. Expedience	647. Inexpedience
	648. Goodness	649. Badness
	650. Perfection	651. Imperfection
	652. Cleanness	653. Uncleanness
	654. Health	655. Disease
	656. Salubrity	657. Insalubrity
	658. Improvement	659. Deterioration
	660. Restoration	661. Relapse
	662. Remedy	663. Bane
	3. Contingent Subservience
	664. Safety	665. Danger
	666. Refuge	667. Pitfall
	668. Warning
	669. Alarm
	670. Preservation
	671. Escape
	672. Deliverance
3. Precursory Measures	673. Preparation	674. Nonpreparation
	675. Essay
	676. Undertaking
	677. Use	678. Disuse
		679. Misuse
Section 3. Action
1. Simple	680. Action	681. Inaction
	682. Activity	683. Inactivity
	684. Haste	685. Leisure
	686. Exertion	687. Repose
	688. Fatigue	689. Refreshment
	690. Agent
	691. Workshop
2. Complex	692. Conduct
	693. Direction
	694. Director
	695. Advice
	696. Council
	697. Precept
	698. Skill	699. Unskillfulness
	700. Proficient	701. Bungler
	702. Cunning	703. Artlessness
Section 4. Antagonism
1. Conditional	704. Difficulty	705. Facility
2. Active	706. Hindrance	707. Aid
	708. Opposition	709. Cooperation
	710. Opponent	711. Auxiliary
	712. Party
	713. Discord	714. Concord
	715. Defiance
	716. Attack	717. Defense
	718. Retaliation	719. Resistance
	720. Contention	721. Peace
	722. Warfare	723. Pacification
	724. Mediation
	725. Submission
	726. Combatant
	727. Arms
	728. Arena

Section 5. Results of Action	729. Completion	730. Noncompletion
	731. Success	732. Failure
	733. Trophy
	734. Prosperity	735. Adversity
		736. Mediocrity
Division 2. Intersocial Volition
Section 1. General	737. Authority	738. Laxity
	739. Severity	740. Lenity
	741. Command
	742. Disobedience	743. Obedience
	744. Compulsion
	745. Master	746. Servant
	747. Scepter
	748. Freedom	749. Subjection
	750. Liberation	751. Restraint
		752. Prison
	753. Keeper	754. Prisoner
	755. Commission	756. Abrogation
		757. Resignation
	758. Consignee
	759. Deputy
Section 2. Special	760. Permission	761. Prohibition
	762. Consent
	763. Offer	764. Refusal
	765. Request	766. Deprecation
	767. Petitioner
Section 3. Conditional	768. Promise	768*a*. Release
	769. Compact
	770. Conditions
	771. Security
	772. Observance	773. Nonobservance
		774. Compromise
Section 4. Possessive Relations
1. Property in General	775. Acquisition	776. Loss
	777. Possession	777*a*. Exemption
	778. Participation
	779. Possessor
	780. Property
	781. Retention	782. Relinquishment
2. Transfer of Property	783. Transfer
	784. Giving	785. Receiving
	786. Apportionment
	787. Lending	788. Borrowing
	789. Taking	790. Restitution
	791. Stealing
	792. Thief
	793. Booty
3. Interchange of Property	794. Barter
	795. Purchase	796. Sale
	797. Merchant
	798. Merchandise
	799. Mart
4. Monetary Relations	800. Money
	801. Treasurer
	802. Treasury
	803. Wealth	804. Poverty
	805. Credit	806. Debt
	807. Payment	808. Nonpayment
	809. Expenditure	810. Receipt
	811. Accounts
	812. Price	813. Discount
	814. Dearness	815. Cheapness
	816. Liberality	817. Economy
	818. Prodigality	819. Parsimony
Class 6. Affections
Section 1. Affections in General	820. Affections
	821. Feeling
	822. Sensibility	823. Insensibility
	824. Excitation
	825. Excitability	826. Inexcitability

Section 2. Personal

1. Passive

827. Pleasure
828. Pain
829. Pleasurableness
830. Painfulness
831. Content
832. Discontent
833. Regret
834. Relief
835. Aggravation
836. Cheerfulness
837. Dejection
838. Rejoicing
839. Lamentation
840. Amusement
841. Weariness
842. Wit
843. Dullness
844. Humorist

2. Discriminative

845. Beauty
846. Ugliness
847. Ornament
848. Blemish
849. Simplicity
850. Taste
851. Vulgarity
852. Fashion
853. Ridiculousness
854. Fop
855. Affectation
856. Ridicule
857. Laughingstock

3. Prospective

858. Hope
859. Hopelessness
860. Fear
861. Courage
862. Cowardice
863. Rashness
864. Caution
865. Desire
867. Dislike
866. Indifference
868. Fastidiousness
869. Satiety

4. Contemplative

870. Wonder
871. Expectance
872. Prodigy

5. Extrinsic

873. Repute
874. Disrepute
875. Nobility
876. Commonalty
877. Title
878. Pride
879. Humility
880. Vanity
881. Modesty
882. Ostentation
883. Celebration
884. Boasting
885. Insolence
886. Servility
887. Blusterer

Section 3. Sympathetic

1. Social

888. Friendship
889. Enmity
890. Friend
891. Enemy
892. Sociality
893. Seclusion
894. Courtesy
895. Discourtesy
896. Congratulation
897. Love
898. Hate
899. Favorite
900. Resentment
901. Irascibility
901*a*. Sullenness
902. Endearment
903. Marriage
904. Celibacy
905. Divorce
Widowhood

2. Diffusive

906. Benevolence
907. Malevolence
908. Malediction
909. Threat
910. Philanthropy
911. Misanthropy
912. Benefactor
913. Evildoer

3. Special

914. Pity
914*a*. Pitilessness
915. Condolence

4. Retrospective

916. Gratitude
917. Ingratitude
918. Forgiveness
919. Revenge
920. Jealousy
921. Envy

Section 4. Moral

1. Obligations

922. Right
923. Wrong
924. Dueness
925. Undueness
926. Duty
927. Dereliction
927*a*. Exemption

2. Sentiments	928. Respect	929. Disrespect
		930. Contempt
	931. Approbation	932. Disapprobation
	933. Flattery	934. Detraction
	935. Flatterer	936. Detractor
	937. Vindication	938. Accusation
3. Conditions	939. Probity	940. Improbity
		941. Knave
	942. Disinterestedness	943. Selfishness
	944. Virtue	945. Vice
	946. Innocence	947. Guilt
	948. Good Man	949. Bad Man
	950. Penitence	951. Impenitence
	952. Atonement
4. Practice	953. Temperance	954. Intemperance
		954*a*. Sensualist
	955. Asceticism
	956. Fasting	957. Gluttony
	958. Sobriety	959. Drunkenness
	960. Purity	961. Impurity
		962. Libertine
5. Institutions	963. Legality	964. Illegality
	965. Jurisprudence
	966. Tribunal
	967. Judge
	968. Lawyer
	969. Lawsuit
	970. Acquittal	971. Condemnation
		972. Punishment
	973. Reward	974. Penalty
		975. Scourge
Section 5. Religious
1. Superhuman Beings and Regions	976. Deity
	977. Angel	978. Satan
	979. Mythic and Pagan Deities	980. Evil Spirits
	981. Heaven	982. Hell
2. Doctrines	983. Theology
	983*a*. Orthodoxy	984. Heterodoxy
	985. Revelation (Biblical)	986. Sacred Writings (non-Biblical)
3. Sentiments	987. Piety	988. Impiety
		989. Irreligion
4. Acts	990. Worship	991. Idolatry
		992. Sorcery
		992*a*. Psychical Research
		993. Spell
		994. Sorcerer
5. Institutions	995. Churchdom
	996. Clergy	997. Laity
	998. Rite
	999. Canonicals
	1000. Temple

Roget's University Thesaurus

Class 1. Abstract Relations

Section 1. Existence

1. Existence

n. existence, being, entity, ens [L.], esse [L.], subsistence; quid, hypaxis [rare], automaton.

reality, actuality; positiveness etc. adj.; fact, matter of fact, sober reality; truth etc. 494; actual existence.

presence etc. (existence in space) 186; coexistence etc. 120.

stubborn fact; not a dream etc. 515; no joke.

essence, inmost nature, center of life, inner reality, vital principle.

[science of existence] ontology.

v. exist, be; having being etc. n.; subsist, live, breathe, stand, obtain, be the case; occur etc. (event) 151; have place, rank, prevail; find oneself, pass the time, vegetate.

come into existence etc. n.; arise etc. (begin) 66; come forth etc. (appear) 446.

become etc. (be converted) 144; bring into existence etc. 161; coexist, postexist [rare], preëxist [rare].

consist in, lie in; be comprised in, be contained in, be constituted by.

abide, continue, endure, last, remain.

adj. existing etc. v.; existent, subsistent, under the sun; in existence etc. n.; extant; afloat, on foot, current, prevalent; undestroyed.

real, actual, positive, absolute; factual, veritable, true etc. 494; substantial, substantive; self-existing, self-existent; essential.

well-founded, well-grounded; unideal, unimagined; not potential etc. 2; authentic.

adv. actually etc. adj.; in fact, in point of fact, in reality; indeed; de facto [L.], ipso facto [L.].

2. Nonexistence

n. nonexistence, nonsubsistence; inexistence; nonentity, nil [L.]; negativeness etc. adj.; nullity; nihility, nihilism; tabula rasa [L.], blank; abeyance; absence etc. 187; no such thing etc. 4; nonbeing, nothingness, oblivion, non esse [L.].

annihilation; extinction etc. (destruction) 162; extinguishment, extirpation, Nirvana, obliteration.

v. not exist etc. 1; have no existence etc. 1; be null and void; cease to exist etc. 1; pass away, perish; be or become extinct etc. adj.; die out; disappear etc. 449; melt away, dissolve, leave not a rack behind; go, be no more; die etc. 360.

annihilate, render null, nullify; abrogate etc. 756; destroy etc. 162; take away; remove etc. (displace) 185; obliterate, extirpate, deracinate [rare].

adj. inexistent, nonexistent etc. 1; negative, blank; null, minus, missing, omitted; absent etc. 187; insubstantial, shadowy, spectral, visionary.

unreal, potential, virtual; baseless, in nubibus [L.]; unsubstantial etc. 4; vain.

unborn, uncreated, unbegotten, unconceived, unproduced, unmade.

perished, annihilated etc. v.; extinct, exhausted, gone, lost, departed; defunct etc. (dead) 360.

fabulous, ideal etc. (imaginary) 515; supposititious etc. 514.

adv. negatively, virtually etc. adj.

3. Substantiality

n. substantiality, hypostasis; person, thing, object, article; something, a being, an existence; creature, body, substance, flesh and blood, stuff, substratum; matter etc. 316; corporeity, element, essential nature, groundwork, materiality, substantialness, vital part.

[totality of existences] world etc. 318; plenum [L.].

adj. substantive, substantial; hypostatic or hypostatical; personal, bodily, practical, effective; tangible etc. (material) 316; corporeal; right, sober.

adv. substantially etc. adj.; bodily, essentially.

4. Unsubstantiality

n. unsubstantiality, insubstantiality; nothingness, nihility; no degree, no part, no quantity, no thing.

nothing, naught, nil [L.], nullity, zero, cipher, no one, nobody; never a one, ne'er a one; no such thing, none in the world; nothing whatever, nothing at all, nothing on earth; not a particle etc. (smallness) 32; all talk, all moonshine, all stuff and nonsense; matter of no importance, matter of no consequence.

thing of naught, man of straw, John Doe and Richard Roe, fagot (or faggot) voter [polit. cant, Eng.]; nominis umbra [L.], nonentity, cipher, nought, nothing, obscurity, lay figure; flash in the pan, vox et praeterea nihil [L.].

phantom etc. (fallacy of vision) 443; shadow; dream etc. (imagination) 515; ignis fatuus

[L.] etc. (luminary) 423; "such stuff as dreams are made on" [Tempest]; air, thin air; bubble etc. 353; mockery.

blank; void etc. (absence) 187; hollowness.

inanity, fatuity, fool's paradise.

v. vanish, evaporate, fade, fleet, sink, fly, dissolve, melt away; die, die away, die out; disappear etc. 449.

adj. unsubstantial; baseless, groundless; ungrounded; without foundation, having no foundation.

visionary etc. (imaginary) 515; immaterial etc. 317; spectral etc. 980; dreamy; shadowy; ethereal, airy, gaseous, imponderable, tenuous, vague, vaporous, dreamlike, mushroom; cloud-built, cloud-formed; gossamery, illusory, insubstantial, unreal, unsolid [rare], slight, bodiless.

vacant, vacuous; empty etc. 187; eviscerated; blank, hollow; nominal; null; inane [rare].

5. Intrinsicality

n. intrinsicality, intrinsicalness, inbeing, inherence, inhesion, immanence, indwelling; subjectiveness; ego; egohood; essence, quintessence, elixir; essentialness etc. adj.; essential part, incarnation, quiddity, gist, pith, core, kernel, marrow, sap, lifeblood, backbone, heart, soul, life, substance, flower; important part etc. (importance) 642.

principle, nature, constitution, character, type, quality, crasis, diathesis.

temper, temperament; spirit, humor, grain, nature, vein, mood, frame, cue; disposition; habit.

capacity, endowment; capability etc. (power) 157.

aspects, moods, declensions, features; peculiarities etc. (specialty) 79; idiosyncrasy; idiocrasy etc. (tendency) 176; diagnostics.

v. be in the blood, run in the blood; be born so; be intrinsic etc. adj.

adj. intrinsic, intrinsical; derived from within, subjective; idiocratic or idiocratical, idiosyncratic or idiosyncratical; fundamental, normal; implanted, inherent, essential, natural; innate, inborn, inbred, ingrained, indwelling, inwrought; coeval with birth, genetic, genetous, haematobious, syngenic; radical, incarnate, thoroughbred, hereditary, inherited, immanent; congenital, congenite [obs.]; connate, running in the blood; ingenerate, ingenit or ingenite [obs.], ingenita [obs.], indigenous; in the grain etc. n.; bred in the bone, instinctive; inward, internal etc. 221; to the manner born; virtual.

characteristic etc. (special) 79, (indicative) 550; invariable, incurable, ineradicable, fixed.

adv. intrinsically etc. adj.; at bottom, in the main, in effect, practically, virtually, substantially, au fond [F.]; fairly.

6. Extrinsicality

n. extrinsicality, objectiveness, non ego [L.]; extraneousness etc. 57; accident.

adj. extrinsic, extrinsical; derived from without; objective; extraneous etc. (foreign) 57; modal, adventitious; ascititious, adscititious; incidental, accidental, nonessential, unessential, accessory; contingent, fortuitous, casual, subsidiary.

implanted, ingrafted; inculcated, infused.

outward etc. (external) 220.

adv. extrinsically etc. adj.

7. State

n. state, condition, category, estate, lot, case, trim, mood, temper; aspect etc. (appearance) 448.

dilemma, pass, predicament, quandary, corner, hole, impasse [F.], fix, pickle, plight.

frame, fabric etc. 329; stamp, set, fit, mold or mould; constitution, habitude, diathesis.

form, fettle, shape, kilter or kelter; tone, tenor, turn; trim, guise, fashion, light, complexion, style, character; build etc. 240; mode, modality, schesis [obs.]

v. be in–, possess–, enjoy- a state etc. n.; be on a footing, do, fare; come to pass.

adj. conditional, modal, formal; structural, organic.

adv. conditionally etc. adj.; as the matter stands, as things are; such being the case etc. 8; quae cum ita sint [L.].

8. Circumstance

n. circumstance, situation, phase, position, posture, attitude, place, point; terms; régime [F.]; footing, standing, status.

occasion, juncture, conjuncture; contingency etc. (event) 151.

predicament; emergency; exigency, crisis, pinch, pass, plight, push; occurrence; turning point.

bearings, how the land lies.

adj. circumstantial; given, conditional, provisional; critical; modal; contingent, incidental; adventitious etc. (extrinsic) 6; limitative.

detailed, minute, full, fussy.

adv. thus, in such wise; in or under the circumstances etc. n.; in or under the conditions etc. 7.

accordingly; that being the case; such being the case; that being so; since, seeing that.

as matters stand; as things go, as times go.

conditionally, provided, if, in case; if so, if so be, if it be so; if it so happen, if it so turn out; in the event of; in such a contingency, in such a case, in such an event; provisionally, unless, without.

according to circumstances, according to the occasion; as it may happen, as it may turn out, as it may be; as the case may be, as the wind blows.

Section 2. Relation

9. Relation

n. relation, bearing, reference, connection, concern, cognation, applicability, apposition, appositeness; correlation etc. 12; analogy; similarity etc. 17; affinity, homology, alliance, nearness, rapport, homogeneity, association; approximation etc. (nearness) 197; filiation etc. (consanguinity) 11; interest; relevancy etc. 23; dependency, relationship, relative position; correlation, interrelation, interconnection.

ratio, proportion; comparison etc. 464.

link, tie, bond of union, privity [law].

v. be related etc. adj.; have a relation etc. n.; relate to, refer to; bear upon, regard, concern, touch, affect, have to do with; pertain to, belong to, appertain to; answer to; interest.

associate, connect; bring into relation with, bring to bear upon; draw a parallel; link etc. 43.

adj. relative; correlative etc. 12; relating to etc. v.; relative to, in relation with, referrable or referable or referrible to; belonging to etc. v.; appurtenant to, in common with.

related, connected; implicated, associated, affiliated; allied, allied to; collateral, connate [rare], cognate, congenerous, connatural, affinitive, paronymous; en rapport [F.], in touch with.

approximative, approximating; proportional, proportionate, proportionable; allusive, comparable, equiparable [obs. or rare].

relevant etc. (apt) 23; applicable, equiparant; in the same category etc. 75; like etc. 17.

adv. relatively etc. adj.; pertinently etc. 23.

thereof; as to, as for, as respects, as regards; about; concerning etc. v.; anent; relating to, as relates to; with relation to, with reference to, with respect to, with regard to; in respect of; speaking of, à propos [F.] of; in connection with; by the way, by the by; whereas; for as much as, in as much as; in point of, as far as; on the part of, on the score of; under the head of etc. (class) 75; in the matter of, in re [L.].

10. Irrelation

[want or absence of relation]

n. irrelation, dissociation; misrelation; inapplicability; inconnection; multifariousness; disconnection etc. (disjunction) 44; inconsequence, independence; incommensurability; irreconcilableness etc. (disagreement) 24; heterogeneity; unconformity etc. 83; irrelevancy, impertinence, nihil ad rem [L.]; intrusion etc. 24; nonpertinence.

v. not concern etc. 9; have no relation to etc. 9; have no bearing upon, have no concern with etc. 9; have no business with; have nothing to do with, have no business there; intrude etc. 24.

bring–, drag–, lug- in by the head and shoulders.

adj. irrelative, irrespective, unrelated, disrelated, irrelate [rare]; arbitrary; independent, unallied; disconnected, unconnected, adrift, isolated, insular; extraneous, strange, alien, foreign, outlandish, exotic.

not comparable, incommensurable, heterogeneous; unconformable etc. 83.

irrelevant, inapplicable; not pertinent, not to the purpose; impertinent [legal], unessential, inessential, accidental, inapposite, beside the mark; aside from–, away from–, foreign to–, beside-the -purpose, –question, –transaction, –point; misplaced etc. (intrusive) 24; traveling out of the record.

remote, far-fetched, out-of-the-way, forced, neither here nor there, quite another thing; detached, apart, segregated, segregate; disquiparant.

multifarious; discordant etc. 24.

incidental, parenthetical, obiter dictum [L.], episodic.

adv. parenthetically etc. adj.; by the way, by the by; en passant [F.], incidentally, obiter [L.]; irrespectively etc. adj.; without reference to, without regard to; in the abstract etc. 87; a se [L.].

11. Consanguinity

[relations of kindred]

n. consanguinity, relationship, kindred, blood; parentage etc. (paternity) 166; filiation, affiliation; lineage, agnation, connation [obs.], cognation, connection, alliance; people [as, my people], family, family connection, family tie; ties of blood, blood relation; nepotism.

kinsman, kinsfolk; kith and kin; relation, relative; connection; sib [rare]; next of kin; uncle, aunt, nephew, niece; cousin, cousin-german; first cousin, second cousin; cousin once removed, cousin twice removed etc.; near relation, distant relation; brother, sister, one's own flesh and blood.

family, fraternity; brotherhood, sisterhood, cousinhood.

race, stock, generation; sept etc. 166; stirps, side; strain; breed, clan, tribe.

v. be related to etc. adj.; claim relationship with etc. n.

adj. related, akin, sib [Scot. or archaic], consanguineous, of the blood, family, allied, collateral; cognate, agnate, connate [rare]; kindred; affiliated; fraternal.

intimately related, nearly related, closely related, remotely related, distantly related; intimately allied, nearly allied, closely allied, remotely allied, distantly allied; affinal, german.

12. Correlation

[double or reciprocal relation]

n. reciprocalness etc. adj.; reciprocity, reciprocality, reciprocation; mutuality, correspondence, correlation, interrelation, interconnection, interdependence; interchange etc. 148; exchange, barter, quid pro quo [L.].

alternation, seesaw, shuttle [rare], to-and-fro.

reciprocitist.

v. reciprocate, alternate, interact; interchange etc. 148; exchange; counterchange.

adj. reciprocal, mutual, commutual [rare], correlative; correspondent, corresponding; alternate; interchangeable; international; complemental, complementary; equivalent.

adv. mutatis mutandis [L.]; vice versa [L.]; each other; by turns etc. 148; reciprocally etc. adj.

13. Identity

n. identity, sameness, identicalness, unity, self-sameness, coincidence, coalescence; convertibility; equality etc. 27; selfness, self, oneself; identification.

connaturality, connature, connaturalness, homogeneity.

monotony; tautology etc. (repetition) 104.

facsimile etc. (copy) 21; homoousia; alter ego [L.] etc. (similar) 17; ipsissima verba [L.] etc. (exactness) 494; same; self-same, very same, one and the same; counterpart; very thing, actual thing; no other.

v. be identical etc. adj.; coincide, coalesce.

treat as the same, render the same; treat as identical; render identical; identify; recognize the identity of.

adj. identical; self, ilk [archaic]; the identical same etc. n.; selfsame, homoousian, one and the same; ditto.

coincident, coinciding, coalescing, coalescent, indistinguishable; one; equivalent etc. (equal) 27; much the same, much of a muchness; unaltered.

adv. identically etc. adj.; on all fours with; ibidem [L.], ibid.

14. Contrariety

[noncoincidence]

n. contrariety, contrast, foil, antithesis, antipode, counterpole, counterpoint; counterpart; complement; vis-à-vis [F.], oppositeness; contradiction; antagonism etc. (opposition) 708; clashing, repugnance, antipathy.

inversion etc. 218; the opposite, the reverse, the inverse, the converse, the antipodes, the other extreme.

v. be contrary etc. adj.; contrast with, oppose, antithesize [rare]; differ toto coelo [L.].

invert, reverse, turn the tables; turn topsy-turvy, turn end for end, turn upside down; retrograde, transpose, invaginate, intussuscept.

contradict, contravene; antagonize etc. 708.

adj. contrary, contrarious [archaic], contrariant [rare], opposite, counter, dead against; adverse, averse, converse, reverse; opposed, antithetical, contrasted, antipodean, antagonistic, opposing; conflicting, inconsistent, contradictory, at cross purposes; negative; hostile, inimical etc. 703.

differing toto coelo [L.]; diametrically opposite; as opposite as black and white, as opposite as light and darkness, as opposite as fire and water, as opposite as the poles; "Hyperion to a satyr" [Hamlet]; quite the contrary, quite the reverse; no such thing, just the other way, tout au contraire [F.].

adv. contrarily etc. adj.; contra, contrariwise, per contra [L.], on the contrary, nay rather; vice versa [L.]; on the other hand etc. (in compensation) 30.

15. Difference

n. difference; variance, variation, variety; diversity, divergence, heterogeneity, discongruity, contrast, inconformity, incompatibility, antithesis, antitheticalness, discrepation [rare], dissimilarity etc. 18; disagreement etc. 24; disparity etc. (inequality) 28; distinction, dissimilitude [rare], distinctness, contradiction, contradictoriness, contrariety, contradistinction; alteration.

nice distinction, fine distinction, delicate distinction, subtle distinction; shade of difference, nuance; discrimination etc. 465; differentia.

different thing, something else, apple off another tree, another pair of shoes; this, that, or the other.

modification, commutation [rare], moods and tenses.

v. be different etc. adj.; differ, vary, ablude [obs.], mismatch, contrast; diverge from, depart from, deviate from, disaccord with, discrepate [rare]; divaricate; differ toto coelo [L.], differ longo intervallo [L.].

vary, modify etc. (change) 140.

discriminate etc. 465.

adj. differing etc. v.; different, diverse, heterogeneous; distinguishable; varied, variant, divergent, contrastive, incongruous, discrepant, dissonant, inharmonious, disparate, inconformable, differential, modified; diversified, various, divers [archaic], all manner of; variform etc. 81.

other, another, not the same; unequal etc. 28; unmatched; widely apart.

distinctive, characteristic; discriminative, differentiative, distinguishing; diacritic, diacritical; diagnostic.

adv. differently etc. adj.

16. Uniformity

n. uniformity; homogeneity, homogeneousness; stability, continuity, permanence, consistency; connature [rare], connaturality [rare], connaturalness; homology; accordance; conformity etc. 82; agreement etc. 23; consonance, uniformness.

regularity, constancy, evenness, sameness, unity, even tenor, routine; monotony.

v. be uniform etc. adj.; accord with etc. 23; run through.

become uniform etc. adj.; conform to etc. 82.

render uniform etc. adj.; assimilate, level, smooth, dress.

adj. uniform; homogeneous, homologous; of a piece, consistent, connatural; singsong, drear [rare], drearisome, dreary, monotonous, even, equable, constant, level; invariable; regular, unchanged, undeviating, unvaried, undiversified, unvarying; jog-trot.

adv. uniformly etc. adj.; uniformly with etc. (conformably) 82; in harmony with etc. (agreeing) 23; in a rut.

always, ever, evermore, perpetually, forever, everlastingly, invariably, without exception, never otherwise; by clockwork.

16a. Nonuniformity

[absence or want of uniformity]

n. diversity, irregularity, unevenness; multiformity etc. 81; unconformity etc. 83; roughness etc. 256; dissimilarity, dissimilitude, divarication, divergence, heteromorphism, heterogeneity.

adj. diversified, varied, irregular, checkered, daedal, uneven, rough etc. 256; multifarious; multiform etc. 81; of various kinds; all manner of, all sorts of, all kinds of.

adv. in all manner of ways; here, there, and everywhere.

17. Similarity

n. similarity, resemblance, likeness, similitude [rare], semblance, consimilarity [rare]; affinity, approximation, parallelism; agreement etc. 23; analogy, analogicalness; correspondence, homoiousia, parity.

connaturalness, connature [rare], connaturality [rare]; brotherhood, family likeness.

alliteration, rime or rhyme, pun.

repetition etc. 104; sameness etc. (identity) 13; uniformity etc. 16; isogamy.

analogue; the like; match, pendant, fellow, companion, pair, mate, twin, double, congener, counterpart, brother, sister; one's second self, alter ego [L.], chip of the old block, par nobile fratrum [L.], Arcades ambo [L.], birds of a feather, et hoc genus omne [L.]; gens de même famille [F.].

simile; parallel; type etc. (metaphor) 521; image etc. (representation) 554; photograph; close–, striking–, speaking–, faithful etc. adj. —likeness, –resemblance.

v. be similar etc. adj.; look like, resemble, favor [colloq.], follow, echo, reproduce, bear resemblance; savor of, smack of; approximate; parallel, match, rime or rhyme with; take after; imitate etc. 19; span; hunt in couples, run in couples.

render similar etc. adj.; assimilate, approximate, bring near; connaturalize, make alike; rime or rhyme, pun.

adj. similar; resembling etc. v.; like, alike; twin.

analogous, analogical; parallel, of a piece; such as, so; homoiousian.

connatural, correlative, corresponding, cognate, congeneric, congenerous, allied to; akin to etc. (consanguineous) 11.

approximate, much the same, near, close, something like, near- [as near-silk, colloq.], such like; a show of; mock, pseudo, simulating, representing.

exact etc. (true) 494; lifelike, faithful; true to nature, true to life; the very image of, the very picture of; for all the world like, comme deux gouttes d'eau [F.], as like as two peas, as like as it can stare; instar omnium [L.], cast in the same mold, ridiculously like.

adv. as if, so to speak; as it were, as if it were; quasi [L.], just as.

18. Dissimilarity

n. dissimilarity, dissimilitude; unlikeness, diversity, disparity, dissemblance; divergence, variation; difference etc. 15; novelty, originality; creativeness; oögamy.

v. be unlike etc. adj.; vary etc. (differ) 15; bear no resemblance to, differ toto coelo [L.].

render unlike etc. adj.; vary etc. (diversify) 140.

adj. dissimilar, unlike, disparate; divergent, nonidentical, unidentical; of a different kind etc. (class) 75; unmatched, unique; new, novel; unprecedented etc. 83; original.

nothing of the kind; no such thing, quite another thing; far from it, other than, cast in a different mold, tertium quid [L.], as like a dock as a daisy, "very like a whale" [Hamlet]; as different as chalk from cheese, as different as Macedon and Monmouth; lucus a non lucendo [L.].

diversified etc. 16*a*.

adv. otherwise, elsewise; alias.

19. Imitation

n. imitation; copying etc. v.; transcription; repetition, duplication, reduplication; quotation; reproduction; mimeography.

mockery, apery, mimicking, mimicry.

simulation, personation; parrotism, parrotry; representation etc. 554; semblance, pretense; copy etc. 21; assimilation.

paraphrase, parody etc. 21.

plagiarism; forgery etc. (falsehood) 544.

imitator, echo, cuckoo, parrot, ape, monkey, mocking bird, mimic; copyist.

v. imitate, copy, mirror, reflect, reproduce, repeat; do like, echo, reëcho, catch; transcribe; match, parallel.

mock, take off, borrow, mimic, ape, simulate, personate; act etc. (drama) 599; represent etc. 554; counterfeit, forge, parody, travesty, caricature, burlesque.

follow in the steps of, follow in the footsteps of; follow in the wake of; tread in the steps of, tread in the footsteps of; take pattern by; follow suit [colloq.], follow the example of; walk in the shoes of, take a leaf out of another's book, strike in with; take after, model after; emulate.

adj. imitated etc. v.; mock, mimic; modeled after, molded on.

paraphrastic; literal; imitative; secondhand; imitable; aping, apish, mimicking, borrowed, counterfeit, imitation, false, pseudo, near- [as, near-silk, colloq.].

adv. literally, to the letter, verbatim, literatim [L.], sic [L.], totidem verbis [L.], word for word, mot à mot [F.], verbatim et literatim [L.]; exactly, precisely.

20. Nonimitation

n. nonimitation, no imitation; originality; creativeness.

adj. unimitated, uncopied; unmatched, unparalleled; inimitable etc. 33; unique, original, archetypal, prototypal, prototypical, primordial, creative, untranslated; exceptional, rare, sui generis [L.], uncommon, unexampled, out-of-the-way, inusitate [rare], unwonted, recherché [F.], unordinary [rare], supernormal.

20a. Variation

n. variation; alteration etc. (change) 140.

modification, moods and tenses; discrepance, discrepancy.

divergency etc. 291; deviation etc. 279; aberration; innovation.

v. vary etc. (change) 140; deviate etc. 279; diverge etc. 291; alternate, swerve.

adj. varied etc. v.; modified; diversified etc. 16*a;* dissimilar etc. 18.

21. Copy

[result of imitation]

n. copy, facsimile, counterpart, effigies [L.], effigy, form, likeness, similitude, semblance, cast, tracing, ectype, electrotype; imitation etc. 19; model, representation, adumbration, study; "counterfeit presentment" [Hamlet]; portrait etc. (representment) 554; resemblance.

duplicate; transcript, transcription; counterscript; reflex, reflexion; shadow, echo; chip off the old block; reprint, replica, offprint, transfer, reproduction; second edition etc. (repetition) 104; réchauffé [F.]; apograph, fair copy, revise, rewriting.

matter; manuscript, typescript, flimsy [cant].
parody, caricature, burlesque, travesty, travestie [F.], paraphrase; cartoon.
servile copy, servile imitation; counterfeit etc. (deception) 545; pasticcio [It.].

adj. faithful; lifelike etc. (similar) 17; close, exact, strict, conscientious.

22. Prototype

[thing copied]

n. prototype, original, model, pattern, precedent, standard, scantling [rare], type; archetype, antitype; protoplast, protoplasm, plasm [obs.], proplasm [rare], module, exemplar, example, ensample [archaic], paradigm; lay-figure; fugleman, guide.
copy, text, design; keynote.
die, mold; matrix, last, mint, seal, punch, intaglio, negative; stamp.

v. be an example, set an example; set a copy.

23. Agreement

n. agreement, accord, accordance; unison, harmony; concord etc. 714; concordance, concert; understanding, mutual understanding; gentleman's agreement, entente cordiale [F.], consortium; unanimity, consension [rare], consentaneity.
conformity etc. 82; conformance; uniformity etc. 16; assonance, consonance, consentaneousness, consistency; congruity, congruence or congruency; keeping; congeniality; correspondence, concinnity, parallelism, apposition, union.
fitness, aptness etc. adj.; relevancy; pertinence or pertinency; sortance [obs.]; case in point; aptitude, coaptation, propriety, applicability, admissibility, commensurability, compatibility; cognation etc. (relation) 9.
adaptation, adaption, adjustment, graduation, accommodation; reconciliation, reconcilement; assimilation.
consent etc. (assent) 488; concurrence etc. 178; consensus, rapport [F.], meeting of minds, coöperation etc. 709.
right man in the right place, very thing; quite the thing, just the thing.

v. be accordant etc. adj.; agree, accord, harmonize; correspond, tally, respond; meet, suit, fit, befit, do, adapt itself to; fall in with, chime in with, square with, quadrate with, consort with, comport with; dovetail, assimilate; fit like a glove; fit to a tittle, fit to a T; match etc. 17; become one; homologate.
consent etc. (assent) 488.
render accordant etc. adj.; fit, suit, adapt, accommodate; graduate; adjust etc. (render equal) 27; dress, regulate, readjust; accord, harmonize, reconcile; fadge, dovetail, square.

adj. agreeing, suiting etc. v.; in accord, accordant, concordant, consonant, congruous, consentaneous [archaic], answerable, correspondent, congenial; coherent; becoming; harmonious, reconcilable, conformable; in accordance with, in harmony with, in keeping with, in unison with etc. n.; at one with, of one mind, of a piece; consistent, compatible, proportionate; commensurate; on all fours with.
apt, apposite, pertinent, pat; to the point, to the purpose; happy, felicitous, germane, ad rem [L.], in point, bearing upon, applicable, relevant, admissible.
fit, adapted, in loco [L.], à propos [F.], appropriate, seasonable, sortable, suitable, idoneous [rare], deft; meet etc. (expedient) 646.
at home, in one's proper element.

adv. à propos of; pertinently etc. adj.

24. Disagreement

n. disagreement; discord, discordance, discordancy; dissonance, dissidence, disunity, disunion, discrepancy; unconformity etc. 83; incongruity, incongruence; discongruity, mésalliance [F.]; jarring etc. v.; dissension etc. 713; conflict etc. (opposition) 708; bickering, clashing, misunderstanding, wrangle.
disparity, mismatch, disproportion, dissimilitude, inequality; disproportionateness etc. adj.; variance, divergence, repugnance.
unfitness etc. adj.; inaptitude, impropriety; inapplicability etc. adj.; inconsistency, inconcinnity; irrelevancy etc. (irrelation) 10.
misjoining, misjoinder; syncretism, intrusion, interference.
fish out of water.

v. disagree; clash, conflict, dispute, quarrel, jar etc. (discord) 713; interfere, intrude, come amiss; not concern etc. 10; mismatch; humano capiti cervicem jungere equinam [L.]

adj. disagreeing etc. v.; discordant, discrepant; at variance, at war; hostile, antagonistic, repugnant, inaccordant, clashing, jarring, factious, dissentient, dissentious, dissident, inacquiescent, incompatible, irreconcilable, inconsistent with; unconformable, exceptional etc. 83; intrusive, incongruent, incongruous; disproportionate, disproportioned; unharmonious; unconsonant; divergent, repugnant to.

inapt, unapt, inappropriate, malappropriate [rare], improper; unsuited, unsuitable; inapplicable; unfit, unfitting, unbefitting; unbecoming; ill-timed, ill-adapted, dissuitable [rare], infelicitous, unseasonable, mal à propos [F.], inadmissible; inapposite etc. (irrelevant) 10.

uncongenial; ill-assorted, ill-sorted; mismatched, misjoined, misplaced; unaccommodating, irreducible, uncommensurable; unsympathetic.

out of character, out of keeping, out of proportion, out of joint, out of tune, out of place, out of season, out of its element; at odds, at variance with.

adv. in defiance of, in contempt of, in spite of; discordantly etc. adj.; à tort et à travers [F.].

Section 3. Quantity

25. Quantity
[absolute quantity]

n. quantity, magnitude; size etc. (dimensions) 192; amplitude, mass, amount, quantum, measure, measurement, substance, strength.

[science of quantity] mathematics, mathesis [rare].

[logic] category, general conception, universal predicament.

[definite or finite quantity] armful, handful, mouthful, spoonful, capful; stock, batch, lot, dose; quota, quotiety [rare], quotum, pittance, driblet, grist.

v. quantify, rate.

adj. quantitative, some, any, more or less.

adv. to the tune of.

26. Degree
[relative quantity]

n. degree, grade, step, extent, measure, amount, ratio, stint or stent, standard, height, pitch; reach, amplitude, range, scope, caliber; gradation, shade; tenor, compass; sphere, station, rank, standing; rate, way, sort.

point, mark, stage etc. (term) 71; interval, line [music], space [music]; intensity, strength etc. (greatness) 31.

v. graduate, calibrate, measure; rectify.

adj. comparative; gradual, gradational, gradatory [rare], shading off; within the bounds etc. (limit) 233.

adv. by degrees, gradually, inasmuch, pro tanto [L.]; however, howsoever; step by step, bit by bit, little by little, inch by inch, drop by drop; by inches, by slow degrees, by little and little; in some degree, in some measure; to some extent; di grado in grado [It.].

27. Equality
[sameness of quantity or degree]

n. equality, parity, coextension, symmetry, balance, poise; evenness, monotony, level.

equivalence; equipollence, equipoise, equilibrium, equiponderance; par, quits; not a pin to choose; distinction without a difference, six of one and half a dozen of the other; identity etc. 13; similarity. etc. 17; coequality, coevality [rare], isonomy, isopolity, isotropy, parallelism.

equalization, equation; equilibration, coördination, adjustment, readjustment.

tie, dead heat; drawn game, drawn battle; neck-and-neck race.

match, peer, compeer, equal, mate, fellow, brother; equivalent.

v. be equal etc. adj.; equal, match, reach, keep pace with, run abreast; come to, amount to, come up to; be on a level with, lie on a level with; balance; cope with; come to the same thing, even off.

render equal etc. adj.; equalize, level, dress, balance, equate, handicap, give points, trim, adjust, poise; fit, accommodate; adapt etc. (render accordant) 23; strike a balance; establish equality, restore equality, establish equilibrium, restore equilibrium; readjust; stretch on the bed of Procrustes.

adj. equal, even, level, monotonous, coequal, symmetrical, coördinate; on a par with, on a level with, on a footing with; up to the mark; equiparant, equiparate [rare].

equivalent, tantamount; quits; homologous; synonymous etc. 522; resolvable into, convertible, much at one, as broad as long, neither more nor less; much the same as, the same thing as, as good as; all one, all the same; equipollent, equiponderant, equiponderous, equibalanced; equalized etc. v.; drawn; half and half; isochronal, isochronous; isoperimetric or isoperimetrical; isobath, isobathic.

adv. equally etc. adj.; pari passu [L.], ad eundem [L.], caeteris paribus [L.], in equilibrio [L.]; to all intents and purposes.

28. Inequality [difference of quantity or degree]

n. inequality, inequalness [rare]; disparity, imparity [rare]; odds; difference etc. 15; unevenness; inclination of the balance, partiality;

shortcoming; casting weight, makeweight; superiority etc. 33; inferiority etc. 34; inequation, inadequation [archaic], inadequacy.

v. be unequal etc. adj.; countervail; have the advantage, give the advantage; turn the scale; kick the beam; topple, topple over; overmatch etc. 33; not come up to etc. 34.

adj. unequal, inequal [rare], uneven, disparate, partial, inadequate; overbalanced, unbalanced; top-heavy, lopsided; disquiparant; unequaled, unparalleled, fellowless [rare], unmatched [rare], unrivaled, unique, unapproached, matchless, inimitable, transcendent, peerless, nonpareil, unexampled, unpatterned [rare], unpeered [rare].

adv. unequally etc. adj.

29. Mean

n. mean, medium, intermedium [obsoles.], average, balance, normal, rule, run; mediocrity, generality; golden mean etc. (mid-course) 628; middle etc. 68; compromise etc. 774; middle course, middle state; neutrality.

v. average, split the difference; take the average etc. n.; reduce to a mean etc. n.; strike a balance, pair off.

adj. mean, intermediate; medial, middle etc. 68; average, normal, standard; neutral.

mediocre, middle-class, bourgeois [F.], commonplace etc. (unimportant) 643.

adv. on an average, in the long run; taking one with another, taking all things together, taking it for all in all; communibus annis [L.], in round numbers.

in the middle, in medias res [L.].

30. Compensation

n. compensation, equation; commutation; indemnification; compromise etc. 774; neutralization, nullification; counteraction etc. 179; reaction; measure for measure; retaliation etc. 718; equalization etc. 27; redemption, recoupment.

set-off, offset; makeweight, casting weight; counterpoise, ballast; indemnity, equivalent, quid pro quo [L.]; bribe, hush money; gift, donation etc. 784; amends etc. (atonement) 952; counterbalance, counterclaim, countervailing; cross debt, cross demand.

pay, payment, reward etc. 973.

v. compensate, compense [obs.], make compensation, indemnify; counteract, countervail, counterpoise; balance; counterbalance, offset, outbalance, overbalance, set off; hedge, square, give and take; make up for, make leeway; cover, fill up, neutralize, nullify; equalize etc. 27; make good; recoup, redeem etc. (atone) 952; pay, reward etc. 973.

adj. compensating, compensatory, compensative, amendatory, indemnificatory, reparative; countervailing etc. v.; in the opposite scale; equivalent etc. (equal) 27.

adv. for a consideration, in return, in consideration.

notwithstanding, but, however, yet, still, nevertheless; although, though; howbeit, albeit; at all events, in spite of, in despite of, despite, at any rate; be that as it may, for all that, even so, on the other hand, at the same time, quand même [F.], however that may be; after all, after all is said and done; taking one thing with another etc. (average) 29.

31. Greatness

n. greatness etc. adj.; magnitude; size etc. (dimensions) 192; multitude etc. (number) 102; immensity, enormity, muchness; infinity etc. 105; might, strength, intensity, fullness.

great quantity, quantity, deal [colloq.], power [colloq.], sight [colloq.], pot [colloq.], volume, world; mass, heap etc. (assemblage) 72; stock etc. (store) 636; peck, bushel, load, cargo; cartload, wagonload, shipload; flood, spring tide; abundance etc. (sufficiency) 639.

principal part, chief part, main part, greater part, better part, major part, best part, essential part; bulk, mass etc. (whole) 50.

fame, distinction, grandeur, dignity; importance etc. 642; generosity.

v. be great etc. adj.; run high, soar, tower, loom, tower above, rise above, transcend; rise to a great height, carry to a great height; bulk, bulk large; know no bounds; ascend, mount.

enlarge etc. (increase) 35, (expand) 194.

adj. great; greater etc. 33; large, considerable, fair, above par; big, bulky, huge etc. (large in size) 192; titanic, Atlantean, Herculean, cyclopean, voluminous; ample; abundant etc. (enough) 639; wholesale; many etc. 102; full, intense, strong, sound, passing [archaic], heavy, plenary, deep, high; signal, at its height, in the zenith.

worldwide, widespread, far-famed, extensive.

goodly, noble, precious, mighty; sad, grave, serious; far gone, arrant, downright; uttermost; crass, gross, tall, mickle [archaic], arch, profound, intense, consummate; rank, unmitigated, red-hot desperate; glaring, flagrant, stark staring; thorough-paced, thorough-going; roaring, whacking [colloq.], magnitudinous [rare], thumping; extraordinary; important etc. 642; unsurpassed etc. (supreme) 33; complete etc. 52.

august, grand dignified, sublime, majestic etc. (repute) 873.

vast, immense, enormous, extreme; inordinate, excessive, extravagant, exorbitant, outrageous, preposterous, unconscionable, swinging, monstrous, overgrown; towering, stupendous, prodigious, astonishing, incredible, pronounced, fearful [colloq.], thundering [slang], terrible [colloq.], dreadful [colloq.], terrific [colloq.]; marvelous etc. (wonder) 870.

unlimited etc. (infinite) 105; unapproachable, unutterable, indescribable, ineffable, unspeakable, inexpressible, beyond expression, fabulous.

undiminished, unabated, unreduced, unrestricted.

absolute, positive, stark, decided, unequivocal, essential, perfect, finished.

remarkable, of mark, marked, pointed, veriest; notable, noticeable, noteworthy; renowned.

adv. [in a positive degree] truly etc. (truth) 494; decidedly, unequivocally, purely, absolutely, seriously, essentially, fundamentally, radically, downright, in all conscience; for the most part, in the main.

[in a complete degree] entirely etc. (completely) 52; abundantly etc. (sufficiently) 639; widely, far and wide.

[in a great or high degree] greatly etc. adj.; much, muckle [archaic], well, indeed, very, very much, a deal, no end of, most, not a little; pretty, pretty well; enough, in a great measure, no end, passing, richly; to a large extent, to a great extent, to a gigantic extent; on a large scale; so; never so, ever so; ever so much; by wholesale, mighty [colloq.], mightily, powerfully; ultra, in the extreme, extremely, exceedingly, intensely, exquisitely, acutely, indefinitely, immeasurably; beyond compare, beyond comparison, beyond measure, beyond all bounds; out of sight [colloq.]; incalculably, infinitely.

[in a supreme degree] preëminently, superlatively etc. (superiority) 33.

[in a too great degree] immoderately, monstrously, preposterously, inordinately, exorbitantly, excessively, enormously, out of all proportion, with a vengeance.

[in a marked degree] particularly, remarkably, singularly, curiously, uncommonly, unusually, peculiarly, notably, signally, strikingly, pointedly, mainly, chiefly; famously, egregiously, prominently, glaringly, emphatically, strangely, wonderfully, amazingly, surprisingly, astonishingly, incredibly, marvelously, awfully, stupendously.

[in an exceptional degree] peculiarly etc. (unconformity) 83.

[in a violent degree] furiously etc. (violence) 173; severely, desperately, tremendously, extravagantly, confoundedly, deucedly [slang], devilishly [colloq.], with a vengeance, à outrance [F.], à toute outrance [F.].

[in a painful degree] painfully, sadly, grossly, sorely, bitterly, piteously, grievously, miserably, cruelly, woefully, lamentably, shockingly, frightfully, dreadfully, fearfully, terribly, horribly, distressingly, balefully, dolorously.

32. Smallness

n. smallness etc. adj.; littleness etc. (small size) 193; tenuity; paucity; fewness etc. (small number) 103; meanness, insignificance etc. (unimportance) 643; mediocrity, moderation.

small quantity, modicum, minimum; vanishing point; material point, atom, particle, electron, molecule, muon, photon, quark, corpuscle, point, speck, dot, mote, jot, iota, ace; minutiae, details; look, thought, idea, soupçon [F.], dab, dight [dial.], whit, tittle, shade, shadow; spark, scintilla, gleam; touch, cast; grain, scruple, granule, globule, minim, sup, sip, sop, spice, drop, droplet, sprinkling, dash, morceau [F.], screed [Scot.], smack, tinge, tincture; inch, patch, scantling, tatter, cantle, cantlet, flitter, gobbet, dole, mite, bit, morsel, crumb; scrap, shred, tag, splinter, rag; seed, fritter, shive; snip, snippet; snick, snack [dial.], snatch, slip; chip, chipping; shiver, sliver, driblet, clipping, paring, shaving, hair.

nutshell; thimbleful, spoonful, handful, capful, mouthful; fragment; fraction etc. (part) 51; drop in the ocean.

animalcule etc. 193.

trifle etc. (unimportant thing) 643; mere nothing, next to nothing; hardly anything; just enough to swear by; the shadow of a shade.

finiteness, finite quantity.

v. be small etc. adj.; lie in a nutshell.

diminish etc. (decrease) 36, (contract) 195.

adj. small, little; diminutive etc. (small in size) 193; minute, miniature, minikin; fine; inconsiderable, dribbling, paltry etc. (unimportant) 643; faint etc. (weak) 160; slender, light, slight, scanty, scant, limited; meager etc. (insufficient) 640; sparing; few etc. 103; low; soso or so-so or so so [colloq.], middling, tolerable, no great shakes [slang]; below par, under par, below the mark, under the mark; at a low ebb; halfway; moderate, modest; tender, subtle.

inappreciable, evanescent, infinitesimal, homeopathic, very small; atomic, corpuscular, microscopic, molecular; skin-deep.

mere, simple, sheer, stark, bare; near run.

dull, petty, shallow, stolid, phlegmatic, unintelligent; Boeotian, ungifted etc. 499.

adv. [in a small degree] to a small extent, on a small scale; a little, a wee bit; slightly etc. adj.; imperceptibly; miserably, wretchedly; insufficiently etc. 640; imperfectly; faintly etc. 160; passably, pretty well, well enough.

[in a certain or limited degree] partially, in part; in a certain degree, to a certain degree; to a certain extent; comparatively; some, rather, middling [colloq.]; in some degree, in some measure; something, somewhat; simply, only, purely, merely; at least, at the least, at most, at the most; ever so little, as little as may be, tant soit peu [F.], in ever so small a degree; thus far, pro tanto [L.], within bounds, in a manner, after a fashion.

almost, nearly, well-nigh, short of, not quite, all but; near upon, close upon; peu s'en faut [F.], near the mark; within an ace of, within an inch of; on the brink of; scarcely, hardly, barely, only just, no more than.

[in an uncertain degree] about, thereabouts, somewhere about, nearly, say; be the same more or less, be the same little more or less.

[in no degree] noway or noways, nowise, not at all, not in the least, not a bit, not a bit of it, not a whit, not a jot, not a shadow; in no wise, in no respect; by no means, by no manner of means; on no account, at no hand.

33. Superiority

[supremacy]

n. superiority, majority, plurality; greatness etc. 31; advantage; pull [slang]; preponderance, preponderation; vantage ground, prevalence, partiality; personal superiority; scepter, sovereignty, sovranty [poetic]; nobility etc. (rank) 875; Triton among the minnows, primus inter pares [L.], nulli secundus [L.]; superman, overman; captain; crackerjack [slang].

supremacy, supremeness, supremity [rare], primacy, paramountcy, preëminence; lead; maximum, record; crest, climax; culmination etc. (summit) 210; transcendence; ne plus ultra [L.]; lion's share, Benjamin's mess; excess, surplus etc. (remainder) 40; redundance etc. 641.

v. be superior etc. adj.; exceed, excel, transcend; outdo, outbalance, outweigh, outrank, outrival, out-Herod Herod; pass, surpass, get ahead of; overtop, override, overpass, overbalance, overweigh, overmatch; top, o'ertop, cap, beat, cut out [colloq.]; beat hollow [colloq.]; outstrip etc. 303; eclipse, throw into the shade, take the shine out of [colloq.], put one's nose out of joint [colloq.]; have the upper hand, have the whip hand of, have the advantage; turn the scale; play first fiddle etc. (importance) 642; preponderate, predominate, prevail; precede, take precedence, come first; come to a head, culminate; beat etc. all others, bear the palm; break the record; take the cake [slang].

become or render larger etc. (increase) 35, (expand) 194.

adj. superior, greater, major, higher; exceeding etc. v.; great etc. 31; distinguished, ultra; vaulting; more than a match for.

supreme, greatest, maximal, maximum, utmost, paramount, preëminent, foremost, crowning, hegemonic [rare]; first-rate etc. (important) 642, (excellent) 648; unrivaled; peerless, matchless; second to none, sans pareil [F.]; unparagoned, unparalleled, unequaled, unapproached, unsurpassed; superlative, inimitable, facile princeps [L.], incomparable, sovereign, without parallel, nulli secundus [L.], ne plus ultra [L.]; beyond compare, beyond comparison; culminating etc (topmost) 210; transcendent, transcendental; plus royaliste que le Roi [F.].

increased etc. (added to) 35; enlarged etc. (expanded) 194.

adv. beyond, more, over; over the mark, above the mark; above par; upwards of, in advance of; over and above; at the top of the scale, at its height.

[in a superior or supreme degree] eminently, egregiously, preëminently, surpassing, prominently, superlatively, supremely, above all, of all things, the most, to crown all, par excellence [F.], principally, especially, particularly, peculiarly, a fortiori [L.], even, yea, still more.

34. Inferiority

n. inferiority, minority, subordinacy [obs.], subordinance [obs.]; shortcoming, deficiency; minimum; smallness etc. 32; imperfection; subjacency [rare]; lower quality, lower worth; meanness, poorness, baseness, shabbiness.

[personal inferiority] commonalty etc. 876; juniority, subordinacy; subaltern, sub [colloq.].

v. be inferior etc. adj.; fall short of, come short of; not pass, not come up to; want.
become smaller, render smaller etc. (decrease), 36, (contract) 195; hide its diminished head, retire into the shade, yield the palm, play second fiddle, take a back seat [colloq.], kick the beam.

adj. inferior, deterior [rare], smaller; small etc. 32; minor, less, lesser, deficient, minus, lower, subordinate, secondary, junior, humble; second-rate etc. (imperfect) 651; sub-, subaltern.
least, smallest etc. (see little, small etc. 193); lowest.
diminished etc. (decreased) 36; reduced etc. (contracted) 195; unimportant etc. 643.

adv. less; under the mark, below the mark, under par, below par; at the bottom of the scale, at a low ebb, at a disadvantage; short of, under.

35. Increase

n. increase, augmentation, increasement [rare], addition, enlargement, extension; dilatation etc. (expansion) 194; increment, accretion; accession etc. 37; development, growth; aggrandizement, accumulation, reënforcement, redoubling, intensification, inflation, enhancement, aggravation; rise; ascent etc. 305; exaggeration, exacerbation; spread etc. (dispersion) 73; flood tide, spring tide.
gain, produce, product, profit, gettings [archaic], advantage, booty, plunder, superlucration [rare], clean-up.

v. increase, augment, add to, enlarge; dilate etc. (expand) 194; grow, wax, get ahead, gain strength; advance; run up, shoot up; rise; swell, mount, ascend etc. 305; sprout etc. 194.
aggrandize; raise, exalt; deepen, heighten, lengthen, greaten [archaic], thicken; eke [archaic], inflate; strengthen, intensify, enhance, magnify, redouble, double, triple, etc.; aggravate, exaggerate; exasperate, exacerbate; add fuel to the flame, oleum addere camino [L.]; superadd etc. (add) 37; spread etc. (disperse) 73.

adj. increased etc. v.; on the increase, undiminished; additional etc. (added) 37.
increasing, growing, crescent, crescive [rare], lengthening, multiplying, intensifying, intensive, intensitive [rare], incretionary [rare]; crescendo.

adv. crescendo, increasingly.

36. Nonincrease, Decrease

n. decrease, diminution, decrescence, decrement, diminishment, lessening etc. v.; subtraction etc. 38, reduction, rebatement [rare], abatement, declension; shrinkage etc. (contraction) 195; coarctation [obs.]; curtailment, abridgment etc. (shortening) 201; extenuation.
subsidence, wane, ebb, decline; ebb tide, neap tide, ebbing; descent etc. 306; reflux, depreciation, wear and tear, erosion, consumption; deterioration etc. 659; anticlimax; mitigation etc. (moderation) 174; catabasis [med.].

v. decrease, diminish, lessen; abridge etc. (shorten) 201; shrink etc. (contract) 195; drop off, fall off, tail off; fall away, waste, wear; wane, ebb, decline; descend etc. 306; subside; melt away, die away; retire into the shade, hide its diminished head, fall to a low ebb, run low, languish, decay, crumble, erode, consume away.
bate, abate [archaic], dequantitate [obs.]; discount, belittle, minify [rare], minimize, minish [rare], depreciate; extenuate, lower, weaken, attenuate, fritter away; mitigate etc. (moderate) 174; dwarf, throw into the shade; reduce etc. 195; shorten etc. 201; subtract etc. 38; deliquesce, ease, remit [rare].

adj. unincreased etc. (see increase etc. 35); decreased, decreasing etc. v.; decrescent, reductive; deliquescent, contractive; decrescendo; on the wane etc. n.

adv. decrescendo, decreasingly.

37. Addition

n. addition, annexation, adjection [rare], junction etc. 43; superposition, superaddition, superjunction, superfetation; accession, reënforcement; increase etc. 35; increment.
affix, codicil, subscript, tag, rider, appendage, continuation, equation, postscript, adjunct, etc. 39; supplement; accompaniment etc. 88; interlineation, interposition etc. 228; insertion etc. 300.
computation, footing, totaling, casting, summation.

v. add, annex, affix, superadd, subjoin, superpose; clap on, saddle on; tack to, append, tag, adject [rare], attach, postfix, adjoin [rare], ingraft; saddle with; sprinkle; introduce etc. (interpose) 228; insert etc. 300.
compute, foot up, total, cast, sum, count up.
become added, accrue; supervene, advene.
reënforce or reinforce, restrengthen; strengthen, swell the ranks of; augment etc. 35.

adj. added etc. v.; additional; supplement, supplemental, supplementary; suppletive [rare], supervenient [rare], suppletory, subjunctive;

adjectitious, adscititious, ascititious; additive, extra, further, fresh, more, new, ulterior, other, remanent [rare]; auxiliary, contributory, accessory; spare.

adv. au reste [F.]; in addition, more, plus, extra; and, also, likewise, too, furthermore, further, item; and also, and eke [archaic]; else, besides, to boot; et cetera, etc.; and so on, and so forth; into the bargain, cum multis aliis [L.], over and above, moreover.

with, withal; including, inclusive, as well as, not to mention, let alone; together with, along with, coupled with, in conjunction with; conjointly; jointly etc. 43.

38. Nonaddition, Deduction

n. deduction, subtraction, subduction; retrenchment; removal; sublation [rare], ablation; abstraction etc. (taking) 789; garbling etc. v.; mutilation, detruncation; amputation; recision, abscision, excision; abrasion; curtailment etc. 201.

rebate etc. (decrement) 40*a*; minuend, subtrahend; decrease etc. 36.

v. subduct, subtract, deduct, deduce; bate, retrench; remove, withdraw; take from, take away; detract; garble.

mutilate, amputate, detruncate; cut off, cut away, cut out; abscind, excise.

pare, thin, prune, decimate, eliminate, rebate; bant [colloq.], reduce; abrade, scrape, file.

geld, castrate, envirate [rare], cut, spay (female), capon or caponize (a cock), eunuchize [rare], unman, emasculate.

diminish etc. 36; curtail etc. (shorten) 201; deprive of etc. (take) 789; weaken.

adj. subtracted etc. v.; subtractive.

tailless, acaudal, acaudate.

adv. in deduction etc. n.; less; short of; minus, without, except, excepting, with the exception of, barring, bar, save, exclusive of, save and except, with a reservation, ablatitious [rare].

39. Adjunct

[thing added]

n. adjunct; addition, additament; additum [L.], affix, appendage, annex; augment, augmentation; increment, reënforcement, supernumerary, accessory, item; garnish, sauce; accompaniment etc. 88; adjective, addendum (pl. addenda); complement, supplement; continuation.

rider, offshoot, episode, side issue, corollary, codicil etc. (addition) 37.

flap, lug, lapel, apron, tab, fly, tuck, lap, piece, lappet, skirt, embroidery, trappings, cortege or cortège [F.]; tail, suffix etc. (sequel) 65; wing.

v. add, annex etc. 37.

adj. additional etc. 37.

winged, alate or alated.

adv. in addition etc. 37.

40. Remainder

[thing remaining]

n. remainder, residue; remains, remanet [rare], relict [rare], remanence [rare], remnant, rest, relic; leavings, heeltap, odds and ends, cheeseparings, candle ends, orts; residuum; dregs etc. (dirt) 653; refuse etc. (useless) 645; stubble, result, educt; fag-end; ruins, wreck, skeleton, stump, rump; alluvium.

surplus, overplus, excess; balance [commercial slang], complement; surplusage; superfluity etc. (redundance) 641; survival, survivance [rare]; fossil, shadow, caput mortuum [L.].

v. remain; be left etc. adj.; exceed, survive; leave.

adj. remaining, left; left behind, left over; residual, residuary; over, odd; unconsumed, sedimentary; surviving; net; exceeding, over and above; outlying, outstanding; cast off etc. 782; superfluous etc. (redundant) 641.

40a. Decrement

[thing deducted]

n. decrement, discount, rebate, rebatement, tare, offtake, drawback, draft, reprise; defect, loss, deduction; afterglow; eduction; waste.

41. Mixture

[forming a whole without coherence]

n. mixture, admixture, mixtion [obs.], admixtion, commixture, commixtion or commixion [obs.], intermixture, immixture, minglement, eucrasy [med.], interfusion, intertanglement, interlacement, interlacery, intertexture, levigation, alloyage; matrimony; junction etc. 43; combination etc. 48; miscegenation.

impregnation; infusion, diffusion, suffusion, transfusion; infiltration; seasoning, sprinkling, interlarding; interpolation etc. 228; adulteration, sophistication.

[thing mixed] tinge, tincture, touch, dash, smack, sprinkling, spice, seasoning, infusion, soupçon [F.].

[compound resulting from mixture] alloy, amalgam; brass, chowchow, pewter; magma, half-and-half, mélange [F.], tertium quid [L.], miscellany, medley, mess, hash, hodgepodge, hotchpotch, hotchpot, pasticcio [It.], patchwork, odds and ends, all sorts; jumble etc. (disorder) 59; salad, sauce, mash, omnium-gatherum [colloq.], gallimaufry, olla-podrida, olio, salmagundi, potpourri, Noah's ark; texture; mingled yarn; mosaic etc. (variegation) 440.

half-blood, half-breed, half-caste; mulatto; quarteron or quarteroon [rare], quintroon or quinteron, quadroon, octoroon, sambo or zambo; cafuzo; Eurasian; fustee or fustie [W. Ind.], mestee [W. Ind.], mestizo (fem. mestiza), griffe, ladino, marabou, sacatra; zebrule; catalo; mule; cross, hybrid, mongrel; cross-breed etc. (unconformity) 83.

v. mix; join etc. 43; combine etc. 48; commix, immix, intermix; levigate, mix up with, mingle; commingle, intermingle, bemingle; shuffle etc. (derange) 61; pound together; hash up, stir up; knead, brew; impregnate with; interlard etc. (interpolate) 228; intertwine, interweave etc. 219; associate with; miscegenate.

be mixed etc.; get among, be entangled with.

imbue; infuse, suffuse, transfuse, instill or instil, infiltrate, dash, tinge, tincture, season, sprinkle, besprinkle, attemper, medicate, blend, cross; alloy, amalgamate, compound, adulterate, sophisticate, infect.

adj. mixed etc. v.; implex [rare], composite, half-and-half, linsey-woolsey, medley, chowchow, hybrid, mongrel, heterogeneous; motley etc. (variegated) 440; miscellaneous, promiscuous, indiscriminate; miscible.

adv. among, amongst, amid, amidst; with; in the midst of, in the crowd.

42. Simpleness

[freedom from mixture]

n. simpleness etc. adj.; purity, homogeneity.

elimination; sifting etc. v.; purification etc. (cleanness) 652.

v. render simple etc. adj.; simplify.

sift, winnow, bolt, eliminate; exclude, get rid of; clear; purify etc. (clean) 652; disentangle etc. (disjoin, 44).

adj. simple, uniform, of a piece, homogeneous, Attic, homespun, single, pure, clear, sheer, neat.

unmixed, unmingled, unblended, uncombined, uncompounded; elemental, elementary, undecomposed; unadulterated, unsophisticated, unalloyed, untinged, unfortified; pur et simple [F.]; incomplex, incomposite [rare].

free from, exempt from; exclusive.

adv. simply etc. adj.; only.

43. Junction

n. junction; joining etc. v.; joinder, union; connection, conjunction, conjugation; annexion, annexation, annexment [rare]; astriction, attachment, compagination [rare], subjunction, vincture [obs.], ligation, alligation; accouplement; marriage etc. (wedlock) 903; infibulation, inosculation, symphysis, anastomosis, confluence, communication, concatenation; meeting, reunion; assemblage etc. 72.

coition, copulation; sexual congress, sexual conjunction, sexual intercourse.

joint, joining, juncture, chiasm, osculature, pivot, hinge, articulation, commissure, seam, gore, gusset, suture, stitch; link etc. 45; miter, mortise.

contingency, emergency, predicament, crisis, concurrence.

closeness, tightness etc. adj.; coherence etc. 46; combination etc. 48.

annexationist.

v. join, unite; conjoin, connect; associate; put together, lay together, clap together, hang together, lump together, hold together, piece together, tack together, fix together, bind up together; embody, reëmbody; roll into one.

attach, fix, affix, immobilize, saddle on, fasten, bind, secure, clinch, twist, make fast etc. adj.; tie, pinion, string, strap, sew, lace, stitch, tack, knit, button, buckle, hitch, lash, truss, bandage, braid, splice, swathe, gird, tether, moor, picket, harness, chain; fetter etc. (restrain) 751; lock, latch, belay, brace, hook, grapple, leash, couple, accouple, link, yoke, bracket; marry etc. (wed) 903; bridge over, span.

pin, nail, bolt, hasp, clasp, clamp, screw, rivet; impact, solder, braze; cement, set; weld together, fuse together; tighten, trice up, screw up; wedge, rabbet, mortise, miter, jam, dovetail, enchase; graft, ingraft, inosculate.

entwine or intwine; interlink, interlace, intertwine, intertwist, interweave; entangle; twine round, belay.

be joined etc.; hang together, hold together; cohere etc. 46.

adj. joined etc. v.; joint; conjoint, conjunct; corporate, compact; hand in hand.

firm, fast, close, tight, taut or taught, secure, set, intervolved [obs.]; inseparable, indissoluble, insecable [obs.], inseverable.

adv. jointly etc. adj.; in conjunction with etc. (in addition to) 37; fast, firmly, etc. adj.; intimately.

44. Disjunction

n. disjunction, disconnection, disunity, disunion, disassociation, disengagement, dissociation, disjointure; discontinuity etc. 70; abjunction [obs.]; cataclasm; inconnection [obs.]; abstraction, abstractedness; isolation; insularity, insulation; oasis; island; separateness etc. adj.; severalty; disjecta membra [L.]; dispersion etc. 73; apportionment etc. 786.

separation; parting etc. v.; circumcision, detachment, segregation; divorce, sejunction [obs.], seposition [obs.], diduction [rare], diremption [rare], discerption; elision; caesura, division, subdivision, break, fracture, rupture; compartition [obs.]; dismemberment, disintegration, dislocation; luxation; severance, disseverance; scission; rescission, abscission; laceration, dilaceration; disruption, abruption; avulsion, divulsion; section, resection, cleavage; fission; partibility, separability, separatism.

fissure, breach, rent, split, rift, crack, slit, incision.

dissection, anatomy; decomposition etc. 49; cutting instrument etc. (sharpness) 253; buzz saw, circular saw.

separatist.

v. be disjoined etc.; come off, come to pieces, fall off, fall to pieces; peel off; get loose.

disjoin, disconnect, disengage, disunite, dissociate, dispair [obs.]; divorce, part, dispart, detach, separate, cut off, rescind, segregate; set apart, keep apart; insulate, isolate; throw out of gear; cut adrift; loose; unloose, undo, unbind, unchain, unlock etc. (fix) 43, unpack, unravel; disentangle; set free etc. (liberate) 750.

sunder, divide, subdivide, sever, section, sectionize [rare], segment, dissever, abscind; circumcise; cut; incide [obs.], incise; saw, snip, nib [obs.], nip, cleave, rive, rend, slit, split, splinter, chip, crack, snap, break, tear, burst; rend etc., asunder, rend in twain; wrench, rupture, shatter, shiver, crunch, craunch or cranch, chop; cut up, rip up; hack, hew, slash; whittle; haggle, hackle, discind [obs.], lacerate, scamble [obs.], mangle, gash, hash, slice; cut up, carve, quarter, dissect, anatomize; dislimb; take to pieces, pull to pieces, pick to pieces, tear to pieces; tear to tatters, tear piecemeal; divellicate; skin etc. 226.

disintegrate, dismember, disbranch, disband; disperse etc. 73; dislocate, disjoint; break up; mince; comminute etc. (pulverize) 330; apportion etc. 786.

partition, parcel, demarcate [rare], graduate, district, chapter, canton.

part, part company; separate, leave; alienate, estrange.

adj. disjoined etc. v.; discontinuous etc. 70; bipartite, biparted [rare], multipartite, abstract; disjunctive; secant; isolated etc. v.; insular, separate, disparate, discrete, apart, asunder, far between, loose, free; lobate, lobulate, lobulated, lobulose, digitate; unattached, unannexed, unassociated, unconnected; distinct; adrift; straggling; rift, reft, cleft.

[capable of being cut] scissile, divisible, discerptible [rare], partible, separable, severable, dividuous [rare].

adv. separately etc. adj.; one by one, severally, apart; adrift, asunder, in twain; in the abstract, abstractedly.

45. Vinculum

[connecting medium]

n. vinculum, link; connective, connection; junction etc. 43; bond of union, copula, intermedium, hyphen; bracket; bridge, stepping-stone, isthmus.

bond, tendon, tendril; fiber; cord, cordage; ribband, ribbon, rope, guy, cable, line, halser [obs.], hawser, painter, moorings, wire, chain; string etc. (filament) 205.

fastening, tie; ligament, ligature; strap; tackle, rigging; standing rigging; running rigging; traces, harness; yoke; band, bandage; brace, roller, fillet; inkle; with, withe, withy; thong, braid; girder, tiebeam; girth, girdle, cestus, garter, halter, noose, lasso, surcingle, knot, running knot; cabestro [Sp. Amer.], cinch, lariat, legadero [Sp. Amer.], oxreim [S. Africa]; suspenders.

pin, corking pin, nail, brad, tack, skewer, staple, clamp; cramp, cramp iron, detent, larigo [Sp. Amer.], pawl, terret, screw, button, buckle, clasp, hasp, bar, hinge, hank, catch, latch, bolt, latchet, tag; tooth; hook, hook and eye; lock, holdfast, padlock, rivet, couple, coupler, ring; anchor, grappling iron, treenail or trennel, stake, post; prop etc. (support) 215.

cement, glue, gum, paste, size, wafer, solder, lute, putty, birdlime, mortar, stucco, plaster, grout; viscum.

shackle, rein etc. (means of restraint) 752.

v. bridge over, span; connect etc. 43; hang etc. 214.

46. Coherence

n. coherence, cohesion, cohesiveness, adherence, adhesion, adhesiveness; concretion, accretion;

conglutination, conglomeration, agglutination, agglomeration; aggregation; consolidation, set, cementation; sticking, soldering etc. v.; connection; dependence.

tenacity, toughness; stickiness etc. 352; inseparability, inseparableness; bur or burr, remora.

conglomerate, concrete etc. (density) 321.

v. cohere, adhere, coagulate, stick, cling, cleave, hold, take hold of, hold fast, close with, clasp, hug; grow together, hang together; twine round etc. (join) 43.

stick like a leech, stick like wax, stick like the paper on the wall; stick closer than a brother; stick close; cling like ivy, cling like a bur; adhere like a remora, adhere like Dejanira's shirt.

glue; agglutinate, conglutinate; cement, lute, belute [rare], paste, gum; solder, weld; ferruminate [archaic]; cake, consolidate etc. (solidify) 321; agglomerate.

adj. adhesive, cohesive, adhering, cohering etc. v.; tenacious, tough; sticky etc. 352.

united, unseparated, sessile, inseparable, inextricable, infrangible; compact etc. (dense) 321.

47. Incoherence

[nonadhesion, immiscibility]

n. incoherence, nonadhesion; immiscibility; looseness etc. adj.; laxity; relaxation; loosening etc. v.; freedom; disjunction etc. 44; rope of sand.

v. make loose etc. adj.; loosen, slacken, relax; unglue etc. 46; detach etc. (disjoin) 44.

adj. nonadhesive, immiscible; incoherent, detached, loose, baggy, slack, lax, relaxed, flapping, streaming; disheveled; segregated, like grains of sand; unconsolidated etc. 231; uncombined etc. 48; noncohesive.

48. Combination

n. combination; mixture etc. 41; junction etc. 43; union, unification, synthesis, synizesis, synneresis, incorporation, amalgamation, embodiment, coalescence, crasis, fusion, coalescing, blend, blendure [rare], blending, absorption, centralization.

alloy, compound, amalgam, composition, tertium quid [L.]; resultant, impregnation.

v. combine, unite, incorporate, inosculate, consubstantiate, alloy, intermix, interfuse, interlard, syncretize, interlace, agglutinate, amalgamate, embody, absorb, reëmbody, blend, merge, fuse, melt into one, consolidate, coalesce, solidify, commix [archaic], contemper, centralize, impregnate; put together, lump together.

league, interleague [rare], federate, confederate, fraternize, club, associate, amalgamate, cement a union, marry, couple, pair, ally.

adj. combined etc. v.; wedded; indiscrete, conjunctive, conjugate, conjoint; impregnated with, ingrained; imbued, inoculated.

allied, amalgamated, federate, confederate, corporate, leagued.

49. Decomposition

n. decomposition, analysis, dieresis, dissection, resolution, catalysis, dissolution, break-up; dispersion etc. 73; disjunction etc. 44; disintegration.

decay, rot, putrefaction, putrescence, putridity, caries; corruption etc. (uncleanness) 653.

electrolysis, electrolyzation, hydrolysis, proteolysis, thermolysis, catalysis.

v. decompose, decompound [rare]; analyze, disembody, dissolve; resolve into its elements, separate into its elements; dissect, decentralize, break up; disintegrate, disperse etc. 73; unravel etc. (unroll) 313; crumble into dust.

corrupt [archaic], rot, decay, consume; putrefy, putresce.

electrolyze, hydrolyze, thermolyze, catalyze.

adj. decomposed etc. v.; catalytic, analytical; resolvent, separative, solvent.

50. Whole

[principal part]

n. whole, totality, integrity; totalness etc. adj.; entirety, entire [rare], ensemble [F.], collectiveness; unity etc. 87; completeness etc. 52; indivisibility, indiscerptibility; integration, embodiment; integer, integral.

all, general [archaic], the whole, total, aggregate, one and all, gross amount, sum, sum total, the altogether [humorous], tout ensemble [F.], length and breadth of, Alpha and Omega, "be all and end all"; complex, complexus [L.]; lock, stock, and barrel.

bulk, mass, lump, tissue, staple, body, compages; trunk, torso, bole, hull, hulk, skeleton; greater part, major part, best part, principal part, main part; essential part etc. (importance) 642; lion's share, Benjamin's mess; the long and the short; nearly all, almost all.

v. form a whole, constitute a whole; integrate, embody, amass; aggregate etc. (assemble) 72; amount to, come to.

adj. whole, total, integral [rare], integrate [rare], entire; complete etc. 52; one, individual.

unbroken, uncut, undivided, unsevered, unclipped, uncropped, unshorn; seamless; undiminished; undemolished, undissolved, undestroyed, unbruised.

indivisible, indissoluble, indissolvable, indiscerptible.

wholesale, sweeping; comprehensive.

adv. wholly, altogether; as a whole, one and indivisible; totally etc. (completely) 52; entirely, all, all in all, wholesale, in a body, collectively, all put together; in the aggregate, in the lump, in the mass, in the gross, in the main, in the long run; en masse [F.], on the whole, bodily, en bloc [F.], in extenso [L.], throughout, every inch; substantially.

51. Part

n. part, portion; dose, item, particular; aught, any; division; ward, parcel [law or archaic], count; sector, segment; fraction, fragment; cantle, cantlet; frustum [rare]; detachment, subdivision.

section, chapter, verse; article, clause, phrase, paragraph, passage, number, book, fascicle, fascicule or fasciculus, livraison [F.].

piece, lump, bit, snatch; cut, cutting; chip, chunk, collop, slice, scrap, crumb, scale; lamina etc. 204; small part; morsel, moiety, particle etc. (smallness) 32; installment, dividend; share etc. (allotment) 786.

oddments, débris [F.], odds and ends, detritus; excerpta [L.], excerpt.

member, limb, lobe, lobule, arm, wing, scion, branch, bough, joint, link, offshoot, ramification, twig, bush, spray, sprig; runner, tendril; leaf, leaflet; stump; component part etc. 56; sarmentum.

cue, role, cast; lines, pageant [archaic].

compartment; department etc. (class) 75; county etc. (region) 181.

v. part, divide, break etc. (disjoin) 44; partition etc. (apportion) 786.

adj. fractional, fragmentary, portional [rare]; sectional, aliquot; divided etc. v.; in compartments, multifid; disconnected; incomplete, partial.

divided, broken, cut, severed, clipped, cropped, shorn; seamed.

divisible, dissoluble, dissolvable, discerptible.

adv. partly, in part, partially; piecemeal, part by part; by installments, by snatches, by inches, by driblets; bit by bit, inch by inch, foot by foot, drop by drop; in detail, in lots.

52. Completeness

n. completeness etc. adj.; completion etc. 729; integration; allness [rare], totality, integralness, totalness, integrality [rare], integrity.

entirety; perfection etc. 650; solidity, solidarity; unity; all; ne plus ultra [L.], ideal, limit; undividedness, intactness, universality.

complement, supplement, make-weight; filling up etc. v.

fill; impletion; saturation, saturity [obs.]; high water; high tide, flood tide, springtide; load, bumper, bellyful; brimmer; sufficiency etc. 639.

v. be complete etc. adj.; come to a head.

render complete etc. adj.; complete etc. (accomplish) 729; fill, charge, load, stevedore, replenish; make up, make good; piece out, eke out; supply deficiencies; fill up, fill in, fill to the brim, fill the measure of; satiate; saturate.

go the whole hog [colloq.], go the whole length; go all lengths; go the limit [colloq.].

adj. complete, entire; whole etc. 50; perfect etc. 650; full, good, absolute, thorough, plenary; solid, undivided; with all its parts; all-sided.

exhaustive, radical, sweeping, thorough-going; dead.

regular, consummate, unmitigated, sheer, unqualified, unconditional, free; abundant etc. (sufficient) 639.

brimming; brimful, topful; chock-full, chokefull; saturated, crammed; replete etc. (redundant) 641; fraught, laden; full-laden, full-fraught, full-charged; heavy laden.

completing etc. v.; supplemental, supplementary; ascititious.

adv. completely etc. adj.; altogether, outright, wholly, totally, in toto [L.], quite; all out; over head and ears; effectually, for good and all, nicely, fully, through thick and thin, head and shoulders, out of sight [slang]; neck and heel, neck and crop; in all respects, in every respect; at all points, out and out, to all intents and purposes; toto coelo [L.]; utterly; clean, clean as a whistle; to the full, to the utmost, to the limit, to the backbone; hollow, stark; heart and soul, root and branch, down to the ground.

to the top of one's bent, as far as possible, à outrance [F.].

throughout; from first to last, from beginning to end, from end to end, from one end to the other, from Dan to Beersheba, from head to foot, from top to toe, from top to bottom; de fond en comble [F.]; à fond [F.]; a capite ad

calcem [L.]; ab ovo usque ad mala [L.]; fore and aft; every whit, every inch; cap-à-pie [F.], to the end of the chapter; up to the brim, up to the ears, up to the eyes; as . . . as can be.

on all accounts; sous tous les rapports [F.]; with a vengeance.

53. Incompleteness

n. incompleteness etc. adj.; deficience [rare], deficiency, short weight, short measure; shortcoming etc. 304; want, lack, insufficiency etc. 640; imperfection etc. 651; immaturity etc. (non-preparation) 674; half measures.

[part wanting] defect, deficit, defalcation, omission; caret; wantage [rare], ullage, shortage; interval etc. 198; break etc. (discontinuity) 70; noncompletion etc. 730; missing link.

v. be incomplete etc. adj.; fall short of etc. 304; lack etc. (be insufficient) 640; neglect etc. 460.

adj. incomplete; imperfect etc. 651; unfinished; uncompleted etc. (see complete etc. 729); defective, deficient, wanting, failing; bobtailed; in default, in arrear; short, short of; hollow, meager, jejune, poor, scarce, lame, half-and-half, perfunctory, sketchy; crude etc. (unprepared) 674.

mutilated, garbled, hashed, mangled, butchered, docked, lopped, truncated.

in progress, in hand; going on, proceeding.

adv. incompletely etc. adj.; by halves.

54. Composition

n. composition, constitution; crasis, synizesis, syneresis; confection [rare], synthesis, compaction [rare], make, make-up; combination etc. 48; inclusion, admission, comprehension, reception; embodiment; formation.

authorship, compilation, composition, recueil [F.], production, inditing or inditement, conflation, invention; writing etc. 590.

hymnody, hymnology, instrumentation; opus, aria etc. (music) 415.

painting, scenography, etching, design etc. (painting) 556; relief, relievo etc. (sculpture) 557.

typesetting, typography etc. (printing) 591.

v. be composed of, be made of, be formed of, be made up of; consist of, be resolved into.

include etc. (in a class) 76; contain, hold, comprehend take in, admit, embrace, embody; involve, implicate; drag into; synthesize.

compose, constitute, form, make; make up, fill up, build up; fabricate, weave, construct; compile, redact, collate, dash off, address, indite, score, scribble, draw, write; set (in printing); enter into the composition of etc. (be a component) 56.

adj. containing, constituting etc. v.

55. Exclusion

n. exclusion, nonadmission, omission, exception, rejection, repudiation; exile etc. (seclusion) 893; noninclusion, preclusion, debarrance [rare], debarment, lock-out, disfellowship [rare], ostracism, prohibition.

separation, segregation, seposition [obs.], elimination, expulsion; cofferdam.

v. be excluded from etc.

exclude, bar; leave out, shut out, bar out; reject, repudiate, blackball, ostracize; lay apart, lay aside, put apart, put aside, set apart, set aside; relegate, segregate; throw overboard; strike off, strike out; neglect etc. 460; banish etc. (seclude) 893; separate etc. (disjoin) 44.

pass over, omit; garble; eliminate, weed, winnow.

adj. excluding etc. v.; exclusive, exclusory; excluded etc. v.; unrecounted, not included in; inadmissible, preclusive, preventive, prohibitive.

adv. exclusive of, barring; except; with the exception of; save; bating.

56. Component

n. component, integrant; component part, integral part, integrant part; element, constituent, ingredient, leaven; part and parcel; contents; appurtenance; feature; member etc. (part) 51; personnel.

v. enter into, enter into the composition of; be a component etc. n.; be or form part of etc. 51; merge in, be merged in; be implicated in; share in etc. (participate) 778; belong to, appertain to; combine, inhere in, unite.

form, make, constitute, compose, precompose, recompose; sonnetize [rare]; fabricate etc. 54.

adj. forming etc. v.; inherent, intrinsic, essential.

inclusive, all-embracing, compendious, comprehensive, inclusory.

57. Extraneousness

n. extraneousness etc. adj.; extrinsicality etc. 6; exteriority etc. 220; alienage, alienism.

foreign body, foreign substance, foreign element.

alien, stranger, intruder, interloper, foreigner, novus homo [L.], newcomer, jackaroo [Australia], griffin [Anglo-Ind.]; recruit, immigrant, emigrant; creole, Africander; outsider, outlander [archaic], barbarian, extern [rare], tramontane [rare], ultramontane; tenderfoot.

adj. extraneous, foreign, alien, ulterior, exterior, external, outlandish, outside, outland [archaic]; barbaric, barbarian, metic, oversea, tramontane [rare], ultramontane.

excluded etc. 55; inadmissible; exceptional.

adv. abroad, in foreign parts, in foreign lands; beyond seas; oversea, overseas; on one's travels.

Section 4. Order

58. Order

n. order, regularity, uniformity, symmetry, lucidus ordo [L.]; harmony, music of the spheres.

gradation, progression; series etc. (continuity) 69.

course, even tenor, routine; method, disposition, arrangement, array, system, economy, discipline; orderliness etc. adj.; subordination.

rank, place etc. (term) 71.

v. form; be or become in order etc. adj.; fall in, draw up; arrange itself, range itself, place itself; fall into one's place, fall into rank, take one's place, take rank; rally round.

adjust, methodize, regulate, systematize, standardize, normalize; time, police.

adj. orderly, regular; in order, in trim, in apple-pie order, in its proper place; neat, tidy, en règle [F.], well regulated, correct, methodical, uniform, symmetrical, shipshape, businesslike, systematic, systematical, normal, habitual; unconfused etc. (see confuse etc. 61); arranged etc. 60.

adv. in order; methodically etc. adj.; in turn, in its turn; step by step; by regular steps, by regular gradations, by regular stages, by regular intervals; seriatim [NL.], systematically, by clockwork, gradatim; at stated periods etc. (periodically) 138.

59. Disorder

[absence or want of order, etc.]

n. disorder; derangement etc. 61; irregularity; deray [archaic], deordination [rare]; anomaly etc. (unconformity) 83; anarchy, anarchism; want of method; untidiness etc. adj.; disunion; discord etc. 24.

confusion; confusedness etc. adj.; mishmash, mix; disarray, jumble, topsy-turvy, botch, huddle, litter, lumber; cahotage [F.]; farrago; mess, mash, muddle, muss, hash, hodgepodge, hotchpotch, hotchpot; what the cat brought in [colloq.]; imbroglio, chaos, omnium-gatherum [colloq.], medley; mere mixture etc. 41; fortuitous concourse of atoms, disjecta membra [L.].

complexity; complexness etc. adj.; complexus, complication, implication; intricacy, intrication [rare]; perplexity; network, maze, labyrinth; wilderness, jungle; involution, raveling, entanglement, dishevelment; coil etc. (convolution) 248; sleave, tangled skein, knot, Gordian knot, wheels within wheels; kink, gnarl or knarl [obs.]; webwork.

turmoil; ferment etc. (agitation) 315; to-do [colloq.], trouble, pudder [obs. or dial.], pother, row [colloq.], disturbance, convulsion, tumult, uproar, riot, rumpus [colloq.], stour [archaic], scramble, fracas, embroilment, mêlée [F.], spill and pelt, rough and tumble; whirlwind etc. 349; bear garden, pandemonium, Babel, Saturnalia, Donnybrook, confusion worse confounded, most admired disorder, concordia discors [L.]; Bedlam broke loose, hell broke loose; bull in a china shop; all the fat in the fire, diable à quatre [F.], Devil to pay; pretty kettle of fish; pretty piece of work.

slattern, slut, drab, dowdy, trollop, sloven, draggle-tail [colloq.].

v. be disorderly etc. adj.; ferment, play at cross-purposes.

put out of order; botch, derange etc. 61; drag from under the bed [colloq.]; ravel etc. 219; ruffle, rumple.

adj. disorderly, orderless; out of order, out of place, out of gear, out of kilter [colloq.]; irregular, desultory; anomalous etc. (unconformable) 83; acephalous; aimless; disorganized; straggling; unmethodical, immethodical; unsymmetric, unsystematic; untidy, slovenly, messy [colloq.], hugger-mugger, dislocated; out of sorts; promiscuous, indiscriminate; chaotic, anarchic, anarchical; unarranged etc. (see arrange etc. 60); confused; deranged etc. 61; topsy-turvy etc. (inverted) 218; shapeless etc. 241; disjointed, out of joint; gnarled or knarled [obs.].

complex, complexed; intricate, complicated, perplexed, involved, raveled, entangled, knotted, tangled, inextricable; irreducible.

troublous, tumultuous, turbulent; riotous etc. (violent) 173.

adv. irregularly etc. adj.; by fits, by fits and snatches, by fits and starts; pellmell; higgledy-piggledy; helter-skelter [colloq.], harum-scarum [colloq.]; in a ferment; at sixes and sevens, at cross-purposes; upside down etc. 218.

60. Arrangement

[reduction to order]

n. arrangement; plan etc. 626; preparation etc. 673; disposal, disposition, disposure; collocation, allocation; distribution; sorting etc. v.; assortment, allotment, apportionment, taxis, taxonomy, syntaxis, graduation, organization, ordination, grouping, groupage.

analysis, classification, division, systematization, categorization, codification, digestion.

[result of arrangement] orderliness, form, lay, array, digest; synopsis etc. (compendium) 596, syntagma, table, atlas; register etc. (record) 551; cosmos, schematism, organism, architecture; instrumentation, orchestration, score etc. (music) 415; stipulation, settlement, bandobast or bundobust [Anglo-Ind.].

[instrument for sorting] sieve, riddle, screen, bolter, colander, grate, grating.

file, card index.

v. reduce to order, bring into order; introduce order into; rally.

arrange, dispose, place, form; put in order, set in order, place in order; set out, collocate, allocate, compose, space, range, pack, marshal, array, size, rank, group, parcel out, allot, distribute, deal; cast the parts, assign the parts; dispose of, assign places to; assort, sort; sift, riddle; put to rights, put into shape, put in trim, put in array, set to rights, set into shape, set in trim, set in array; tidy; apportion.

class, classify; divide; file, list, string together, thread; register etc. (record) 551; catalogue, tabulate, index, alphabetize, graduate, digest, grade, codify; orchestrate, score, harmonize.

methodize, regulate, systematize, coördinate, organize, brigade, echelon, seriate [rare], settle, fix.

unravel, disentangle, unweave, ravel, card; disembroil; feaze.

adj. arrange etc. v.; embattled, in battle array; cut and dried; methodical, orderly, regular, systematic, on file; tabular, tabulate.

61. Derangement

[subversion of order; bringing into disorder]

n. derangement etc. v.; muss, mess, disorder etc. 59; evection, discomposure, disturbance; disorganization, deorganization; dislocation; perturbation, interruption; shuffling etc. v.; inversion etc. 218; corrugation etc. (fold) 258; involvement; insanity etc. 503.

v. derange; misarrange, disarrange, displace, misplace; mislay, discompose, disorder; disorganize; embroil, unsettle, disturb, confuse, trouble, perturb, jumble, tumble; huddle, shuffle, muddle, toss, hustle, fumble, riot; bring into disorder, put into disorder, throw into disorder etc. 59; muss, mess; break the ranks, disconcert, convulse; break in upon.

unhinge, dislocate, put out of joint, throw out of gear.

turn topsy-turvy etc. (invert) 218; bedevil; complicate, involve, perplex, confound; embrangle or imbrangle, tangle, entangle, ravel, tousle, dishevel, ruffle; rumple etc. (fold) 258; dement, become insane etc. 503.

litter, scatter; mix etc. 41.

adj. deranged etc. v.; syncretic, syncretistic; mussy.

62. Precedence

n. precedence; predecession [rare]; coming before etc. v.; the lead, le pas [F.]; superiority etc. 33; importance etc. 642; premise or premiss; antecedence or antecedency; anteriority etc. (front) 234; precursor etc. 64; priority etc. 116; precession [rare] etc. 280; anteposition; epacme; preference.

prefix, prefixture [rare], prelude, affix, preamble, overture, ritornel, ritornello [It.], voluntary.

v. precede, forerun, forego [archaic], prevene [rare]; come before, come first; head, lead, take the lead; lead the way, lead the dance; introduce, prologize [rare], usher in; have the pas [F.]; set the fashion etc. (influence) 175; open the ball, lead the cotillion, lead the german; rank, outrank; take precedence, have precedence; have the start etc. (get before) 280.

place before; prefix; premise, prelude, preface; affix.

adj. preceding etc. v.; precedent, antecedent; anterior; prior etc. 116; before; former, foregoing; before mentioned, above mentioned, aforementioned; aforesaid, said; precursory, precursive; prevenient, preliminary, prefatory, introductory; prelusive, prelusory; proemial, preparatory.

adv. before; in advance etc. (precession) 280.

63. Sequence

n. sequence, train, coming after; pursuance, going after etc. (following) 281; consecution, succession; posteriority etc. 117.

continuation, prolongation; mantle of Elijah; order of succession; successiveness; paracme.

secondariness; subordinancy [obs.], subordinacy etc. (inferiority) 34.

afterbirth, afterburden, afterclap, aftercrop, afterglow, aftergrass, aftermath, afterpain, afterpiece, aftertaste; placenta, secundines; sequelae.

v. succeed; come after, come on, come next; follow, ensue, step into the shoes of; alternate.

follow, tag [colloq.], heel, dog, dodge, shadow, hound, bedog, hunt; trace, retrace.

place after, suffix, append, subjoin.

adj. succeeding etc. v.; sequent; subsequent, consequent; sequacious, proximate, next; consecutive etc. (*con*tinuity) 69; alternate, amoebean.

latter; posterior etc. 117.

adv. after, subsequently; behind etc. (rear) 235.

64. Precursor

n. precursor, antecedent, precedent, predecessor; forerunner, apparitor, vancourier [obs.]; pioneer, prodrome [obs.], prodromos [Gr.], prodromus [rare], outrider; leader, bellwether; herald, harbinger; dawn; bellmare, avant-coureur [F.], avant-courier, avant-courrier [F.], forelooper or foreloper or forelouper [S. Afr.], voorlooper [Dutch], voortrekker [Dutch].

prelude, preamble, preface, prologue, foreword, avant-propos [F.], protasis, proemium, prolusion [rare], proem, prolepsis, prolegomena, prefix, exordium, introduction; heading, frontispiece, groundwork; preparation etc. 673; overture, voluntary, ritornel, ritornello [It.], descant, symphony; premises.

prefigurement etc. 511; omen etc. 512.

adj. precursory; prelusive, prelusory, preludious; proemial [rare], introductory, preludial, prefatory, prodromous [rare], inaugural, preliminary; precedent etc. (prior) 116.

65. Sequel

n. sequel, suffix, successor; tail, queue, train, wake, trail, rear; retinue, suite; appendix, postscript, subscript, postlude, conclusion, epilogue; peroration; codicil; continuation, sequela [pl. sequelae]; appendage; tailpiece, heelpiece; tag, more last words; colophon.

follower, successor, sectary, heeler [slang], pursuer, adherent, partisan, disciple, client; sycophant, parasite.

aftercome [Scot.], aftergrowth, afterpart, afterpiece, after course, aftergame, afterthought; arrière pensée [F.], second thoughts; outgrowth.

66. Beginning

n. beginning, incunabula [pl.], commencement, opening, outset, incipience, incipiency, inception, inchoation, inchoacy [rare]; introduction etc. (precursor) 64; alpha, initial; inauguration, ingress, début [F.], le premier pas [F.], embarkation, rising of the curtain; curtain-raiser, maiden speech; exordium; outbreak, onset, brunt; initiative, move, first move; prelude, prime, proem, gambit; narrow or thin end of the wedge, fresh start, new departure.

first stage, first blush, first glance, first impression, first sight.

origin etc. (cause) 153; source, rise; bud, germ etc. 153; egg, embryo, rudiment; genesis, birth, nativity, cradle, infancy; forefront, outstart, start, starting point etc. 293; dawn etc. (morning) 125.

head, heading; title-page; van etc. (front) 234; caption, fatihah [Ar.].

entrance, entry; inlet, orifice, mouth, chops, lips, porch, portal, portico, propylon, door; gate, gateway; postern, wicket, threshold, vestibule; propylaeum; skirts, border etc. (edge) 231; tee.

rudiments, elements, principia, outlines, grammar, protasis, alphabet, ABC.

v. begin, commence, inchoate, rise, arise, originate, conceive, initiate, open, start, gin [archaic], dawn, set in, take its rise, enter upon, enter; set out etc. (depart) 293; embark in; incept [rare], institute.

usher in; lead off, lead the way, take the lead, take the initiative; inaugurate, auspicate, head; stand at the head, stand first, stand for; lay the foundations etc. (prepare) 673; found etc. (cause) 153; set up, set on foot, set agoing, set abroach, set the ball in motion; apply the match to a train; launch, broach; open up, open the door to; set about, set to work; make a beginning, make a start; handsel; take the first step, lay the first stone, cut the first turf; break ground, break the ice, break cover; pass the Rubicon, cross the Rubicon; open fire, open the ball; ventilate, air; undertake etc. 676.

come into existence, come into the world; make one's début [F.], take birth; burst forth, break out; spring up, crop up.

recommence; begin at the beginning, begin ab ovo [L.], begin again, begin de novo [L.]; start afresh, make a fresh start, shuffle the cards, resume.

adj. beginning etc. v.; initial, initiatory, initiative; inceptive, introductory, incipient; proemial

[rare], inaugural, inauguratory; inchoate, inchoative [rare]; embryonic, rudimentary, rudimental; primal, primary, prime, premier [rare], primigenial, primigenious or primigenous, primogenial; primeval etc. (old) 124; aboriginal; natal, nascent.

first, foremost, front, head, leading; maiden.

begun etc. v.; just begun etc. v.

adv. at or in the beginning etc. n.; first, in the first place, imprimis [L.], first and foremost; in limine [L.]; in the bud, in embryo, in its infancy; from the beginning, from its birth; ab initio [L.], ab ovo [L.], ab incunabilis [L.], ab origine [L.]; formerly, erst [archaic].

67. End

n. end, close, termination; desinence [rare], conclusion, finis, finale, period, term, terminus, last, omega; extreme, extremity; gable end, butt end, fag-end; tip, nib, point; tail etc. (rear) 235; verge etc. (edge) 231; tag, peroration, appendix, epilogue; bottom dollar [colloq.], bitter end, tail end [colloq.], terminal, apodosis.

consummation, dénouement [F.]; finish etc. (completion) 729; fate; doom, doomsday; crack of doom, day of Judgment, fall of the curtain; goal, destination; limit, stoppage, end-all, wind-up [colloq.]; determination; expiration, expiry; dissolution, death etc. 360; end of all things; finality; eschatology.

break up, commencement de la fin [F.], last stage, evening (of life); turning point; coup de grâce [F.], deathblow; knock-out, knock-out blow; sockdolager [slang], K. O. [slang].

v. end, close, finish, terminate, conclude, be all over; expire; die etc. 360; come to a close, draw to a close etc. n.; perorate; have run its course; run out, pass away.

bring to an end etc. n.; put an end to, make an end of; determine; get through; achieve etc. (complete) 729; stop etc. (make to cease) 142; shut up shop; hang up the fiddle [colloq.], hang up the gloves [colloq.].

adj. ending etc. v.; final, terminal, terminative [rare], conclusive, conclusory, determinative, definitive; crowning etc. (completing) 729; last, ultimate; hindermost; rear etc. 235; caudal; vergent [rare].

conterminate [obs.], conterminous, conterminable [rare].

ended etc. v.; at an end; settled, decided, over, played out, set at rest; conclusive.

penultimate; last but one, last but two, etc.

adv. finally etc. adj.; in fine; at the last; once for all.

68. Middle

n. middle, midst, mid [rare], thick, midmost, middlemost [rare], mediety [obs.]; mean etc. 29; medium, middle term; center etc. 222, midcourse etc. 628; mezzo termine [It.], mezzo cammin [It.]; juste milieu [F.] etc. 628; halfway house, nave, navel, omphalos; nucleus, nucleolus.

equidistance, bisection, half distance; equator, diaphragm, midriff; interjacence etc. 228.

adj. middle, medial, mesial, mesian, mean, mid, middlemost, midmost, midway [rare], midship, mediate [rare]; intermediate etc. (interjacent) 228; equidistant; central etc. 222; mediterranean, equatorial; homocentric.

adv. midway, halfway; in the middle; midships, amidships, in medias res [L.] meden agan [Gr.].

69. Continuity

[uninterrupted sequence]

n. continuity, continuousness, unbrokenness; consecution, consecutiveness etc. adj.; succession, round, suite, progression, series, train, catena, chain; catenation, concatenation; scale; gradation, course; ceaselessness, constant flow, unbroken extent; perpetuity.

procession, column; retinue, cortège [F.], cavalcade, parade; funeral, ovation, triumph; rank and file, line of battle, array.

pedigree, genealogy, lineage, history, tree, race; ancestry, descent, family, house; line, line of ancestors; strain.

rank, file, line, row, range, tier, string, thread, team; suit; colonnade.

v. form a series etc. n.; fall in; follow in a series etc. n.

arrange in a series etc. n.; string together, file, list, thread, graduate, tabulate.

adj. continuous, continued; consecutive; progressive, gradual; serial, successive; immediate, unbroken, entire; linear; in a line, in a row etc. n.; uninterrupted, unintermitting; unremitting; perennial, evergreen; constant.

adv. continuously etc. adj.; seriatim [NL.]; in a line etc. n.; in succession, in turn; running, gradually, step by step, gradatim, at a stretch; in file, in column, in single file, in Indian file.

70. Discontinuity

[interrupted sequence]

n. discontinuity, discontinuousness, discreteness, disconnectedness; disjunction [rare] etc. 44; anacoluthon; interruption, break, fracture, flaw, fault, crack, cut; gap etc. (interval) 198;

solution of continuity, caesura; broken thread; parenthesis, episode, rhapsody, crazy quilt [colloq.], patchwork; intermission; alternation etc. (periodicity) 138; dropping fire.

v. be discontinuous etc. adj.; alternate, intermit.

discontinue, pause, interrupt; intervene; break, break in upon, break off; interpose etc. 228; break the thread, snap the thread; disconnect etc. (disjoin) 44; dissever.

adj. discontinuous, unsuccessive, disconnected, broken, interrupted, décousu [F.]; disconnected, unconnected; discrete, disjunct [rare], disjunctive; fitful etc. (irregular) 139; spasmodic, desultory; intermitting etc. v., intermittent; alternate; recurrent etc. (periodic) 138.

adv. at intervals; by snatches, by jerks, by skips, by catches, by fits and starts; skippingly, per saltum [L.]; longo intervallo [L.].

71. Term

n. term, rank, station, stage, step; degree etc. 26; scale, remove, grade, link, peg, round of the ladder, status, state, position, place, point, mark, pas [F.], period, pitch; stand, standing; footing, range.

v. hold a place, occupy a place, find a place, fall into a place etc. n.; rank.

72. Assemblage

n. assemblage; collection, collocation, colligation; compilation, levy, gathering, ingathering, mobilization, meet, forgathering, muster, attroupement [F.]; team; concourse, conflux, congregation, contesseration [obs.], convergence etc. 290.

meeting, levee, reunion, drawing room, at home; conversazione [It.] etc. (social gathering) 892; assembly, congress, house, senate, legislature, convocation; caucus, séance, eisteddfod, gemot or gemote; convention, conventicle; conclave etc. (council) 696; Noah's ark.

company, platoon, faction, caravan, claque, posse, posse comitatus [L.]; watch, squad, corps, troop, troupe; army, regiment etc. (combatants) 726; host etc. (multitude) 102; populousness.

miscellany, collectanea [L.]; museum, menagerie etc. (store) 636; museology.

crowd, throng; flood, rush, deluge; rabble, mob, rout, press, crush, cohue [F.], horde, body, tribe; crew, gang, knot, squad, band, party; swarm, shoal, school, covey, flock, herd, drove; kennel; atajo [Sp. Amer.]; bunch, drive, force, mulada; remuda [Sp.]; round-up; array, bevy, galaxy.

clan, brotherhood, association etc. (party) 712.

group, cluster, Pleiades, clump, pencil; set, batch, lot, pack; budget, assortment, bunch; parcel; packet, package; bundle, fascine, bale, seron [Sp.], fagot, wisp, truss, tuft; grove, thicket, plump [archaic]; shock, rick, fardel, stack, sheaf, haycock, swath; fascicle, fascicule, fasciculus, gavel, hattock [dial. Eng.], stook [dial.].

volley, shower, storm, cloud.

accumulation etc. (store) 636; congeries, heap, lump, pile, rouleau, tissue, mass, pyramid; bing [obs.]; drift; snowball, snowdrift; acervation [rare], cumulation, amassment; glomeration, agglomeration; conglobation; conglomeration, conglomerate; coacervation [rare], coagmentation [obs.], aggregation, concentration, congestion, omnium-gatherum [colloq.], spicilegium [L.], Black Hole of Calcutta; quantity etc. (greatness) 31.

collector, gatherer; whip, whipper-in.

v. [be or come together] assemble, collect, muster; meet, unite, join, rejoin; cluster, flock, swarm, surge, stream, herd, crowd, throng, associate; congregate, conglomerate, concentrate; center round, rendezvous, resort; come together, flock together, get together, pig together; forgather or foregather; huddle; reassemble.

[get or bring together] assemble, muster; bring together, get together, put together, draw together, scrape together, lump together; collect, collocate, colligate; get in, whip in; gather; hold a meeting; convene, convoke, convocate; rake up, dredge, heap, mass, pile; pack, put up, truss, cram; acervate [rare]; agglomerate, aggregate; compile; group, aggroup, concentrate, unite; collect into a focus, bring into a focus; amass, accumulate etc. (store) 636; collect in a dragnet; heap Ossa upon Pelion.

adj. assembled etc. v., closely packed, dense, serried, crowded to suffocation, teeming, swarming, populous; as thick as hops; swarming like maggots; all of a heap, fasciculated; cumulative.

73. Nonassemblage. Dispersion

n. dispersion; disjunction etc. 44; divergence etc. 291; aspersion; scattering etc. v.; dissemination, diffusion, dissipation, distribution; apportionment etc. 786; spread, respersion [obs.], circumfusion, interspersion, spargefaction [obs.], affusion.

waifs and estrays, flotsam and jetsam, disjecta membra; waveson.

v. disperse, scatter, sow, disseminate, diffuse, radiate, shed, spread, bestrew, overspread, dispense, disband, disembody, dismember, distribute; apportion etc. 786; blow off, let out, dispel, cast forth, draft (or draught) off; strew, straw [obs.], strow [archaic]; ted; spurtle or spirtle [obs.], cast, sprinkle; issue, deal out, retail, utter; intersperse, resperse [obs.]; set abroach, circumfuse.

spread like wildfire, disperse themselves.

turn adrift, cast adrift; scatter to the winds; sow broadcast.

adj. unassembled etc. (see assemble etc. 72); diffuse, disseminated scattered, strown, strewn, dispersed etc. v., dispersive, dissipative, diffusive, dispellent [rare]; sparse, dispread, broadcast, sporadic, widespread; epidemic etc. (general) 78; adrift, stray; disheveled, streaming resolvent, discutient [med.].

adv. sparsim [L.], here and there, passim [L.].

74. Focus

[place of meeting]

n. focus; point of convergence etc. 290; corradiation [rare]; center etc. 222; gathering place, resort; haunt; retreat; venue; rendezvous; rallying point, headquarters, home, club; depot etc. (store) 636; tryst, trysting place; place of meeting, place of resort, place of assignation; point de réunion [F.] issue

v. bring to a point, bring to a focus, bring to an issue, focus, corradiate [rare].

75. Class

n. class, division, subdivision, category, head, order, section; department, province, domain, sphere.

kind, sort, estate, genus, species, variety, family, race, tribe, caste, sept, phylum, clan, breed; clique, coterie; type, kit, sect, set; assortment; feather [rare], kidney; suit; range; gender, sex, kin.

manner, description, denomination, persuasion, connection, designation, character, stamp; predicament; indication, particularization, selection, specification.

similarity etc. 17.

76. Inclusion

[comprehension under, or reference to, a class]

n. inclusion, admission, incorporation, comprisal, comprehension, reception.

composition etc. (inclusion in a compound) 54.

v. be included in etc.; come under, fall under, range under; belong to, pertain to; range with; merge in.

include, comprise, comprehend, contain, admit, embrace, subsume, receive, inclose etc. (circumscribe) 229; incorporate, cover, embody, encircle.

reckon among, enumerate among, number among; refer to; place under, place with, arrange under, arrange with; take into account.

adj. inclusive, inclusory; included, including etc. v.; congener [rare], congenerous; of the same class etc. 75; comprehensive, sweeping, all-embracing, liberal, unexclusive [rare].

77. Exclusion[1]

n. exclusion etc. 55.

[1]The same set of words is used to express Exclusion from a class and Exclusion from a compound. Reference is therefore made to the former at 55. This identity does not occur with regard to Inclusion, which therefore constitutes a separate category.

78. Generality

n. generality, generalization; universality; catholicity, catholicism; miscellany, miscellaneousness; dragnet; common run; worldwideness.

Pan-Americanism, Pan-Anglicanism, Pan-Hellenism, Pan-Germanism, Pan-slavism or Panscslavism.

everyone, everybody, tout le monde [F.]; all hands [colloq.], all the world and his wife [humorous]; anybody, N or M, all sorts.

prevalence, rifeness, run.

v. be general etc. adj.; prevail, be going about, stalk abroad.

render general etc. adj.; spread, broaden, universalize, generalize.

adj. general, generic, collective; current, wide, broad, comprehensive, sweeping; encyclopedic or encyclopedical, panoramic; widespread etc. (dispersed) 73.

universal; catholic, catholical; common, worldwide, nationwide, statewide, heavenwide, ecumenical; prevalent, prevailing, rife, epidemic, besetting; all over [colloq.], covered with.

Pan-American, Pan-Anglican, Pan-Hellenic, Pan-Germanic, Panslavic or Pansclavic, Panslavonic, Panslavonian; panharmonic.

every, all; unspecified, impersonal, indefinite.

customary etc. (habitual) 613.

adv. whatever, whatsoever; to a man, one and all.

generally etc. adj.; always, for better for worse; in general, generally speaking; speaking generally; for the most part; in the long run etc. (on an average) 29; by and large, roughly speaking.

79. Specialty

n. specialty, spécialité [F.]; individuality, individuity [obs.]; particularity, peculiarity; je ne sais quoi [F.], nescio quid [L.]; idiocrasy etc. (tendency) 176; personality, characteristic, mannerism, idiosyncrasy, physiognomic [rare], diagnostic; specificness etc. adj.; singularity etc. (unconformity) 83; reading, version, lection; state; trait; distinctive feature; technicality; differentia.

particulars, details, items, counts; minutiae.

I, self, I myself; myself, himself, herself, itself.

v. specify, particularize, individualize, realize, specialize, designate, determine; denote, indicate, point out, select, differentiate, come to the point.

itemize, detail, descend to particulars, enter into detail.

adj. special, particular, individual, specific, proper, personal, original, private, respective, definite, determinate, minute, especial, certain, esoteric, endemic, partial, party, peculiar, marked, intimate, appropriate, several, characteristic, diagnostic, exclusive, restricted; singular etc. (exceptional) 83; idiomatic; typical, representative.

this, that; yon, yonder.

adv. specially etc. adj.; in particular, in propria persona [L.]; ad hominem [L.]; for my part.

each, apiece, one by one; severally, respectively, each to each; seriatim [NL.], in detail, bit by bit; pro hac vice [L.], pro re nata [L.].

namely, that is to say, videlicet [L.], viz.; to wit.

80. Rule

n. regularity, uniformity, constancy, clockwork precision; punctuality etc. (exactness) 494; even tenor, rut; system; routine etc. (custom) 613; formula; canon, convention, maxim, rule etc. (form, regulation) 697; keynote, standard, model; precedent etc. (prototype) 22; conformity etc. 82.

law, capitular or capitulary, gnomology [rare], règlement [F.], order of things; normality, normalcy; normal state, normal condition, natural state, natural condition, ordinary state, ordinary condition, model state, model condition; standing dish, standing order; Procrustean law; law of the Medes and Persians; hard and fast rule; nature, principle.

adj. regular, uniform, symmetrical, constant, steady; according to rule etc. (conformable) 82; normal, habitual, customary etc. 613; methodical, orderly, systematic, systematical.

81. Multiformity

n. multiformity, omniformity; variety, diversity; multifariousness etc. adj.; varied assortment.

adj. multiform, multifold, multifarious, multigenerous, multiplex; variform [rare], diversiform, amoebiform, manifold, many-sided; omniform, omnigenous, omnifarious; polymorphic, polymorphous, multiphase, metamorphotic, protean, proteiform, heterogeneous, motley, mosaic; epicene.

indiscriminate, desultory, irregular, diversified, different, divers; all manner of; of every description, of all sorts and kinds; et hoc genus omne [L.]; and what not?

82. Conformity

n. conformity, conformance; observance; habituation; naturalization; conventionality etc. (custom) 613; agreement etc. 23.

example, instance, specimen, sample, quotation; exemplification, illustration, case in point; object lesson; elucidation.

pattern etc. (prototype) 22.

conventionalist, formalist, bromide [slang], Philistine.

v. conform to, conform to rule; accommodate oneself to, adapt oneself to; rub off corners.

be regular etc. adj.; move in a groove, move in a rut, travel in a rut; follow–, observe–, go by–, bend to–, obey- -rules, –precedents; agree with, comply with, tally with, chime in with, fall in with; be guided by, be regulated by; fall into a custom, fall into a usage; follow the fashion, follow the multitude; assimilate to, shape, harmonize, conventionalize, pass muster, do as others do, hurler avec les loups [F.]; do in Rome as the Romans do; go with the -stream, –current, –tide; swim with the -stream, –current, –tide; pass current; tread the beaten track etc. (habit) 613; keep one in countenance.

exemplify, illustrate, example, sample, type [rare], cite, quote, put a case; produce an instance etc. n.; elucidate, explain.

adj. conformable to rule; adaptable, consistent, agreeable, compliant; regular etc. 80; according to regulation, according to rule, according to Cocker, according to Gunter, according to Hoyle [all colloq.]; en règle [F.], selon les règles [F.], well regulated, orderly; symmetric etc. 242.

conventional etc. (customary) 613; of daily occurrence, of everyday occurrence; in the natural order of things; ordinary, common, habitual, usual, commonplace, prosaic, bromidic, Philistine.

in the order of the day; naturalized.

typical, normal, formal; canonical, orthodox, sound, strict, rigid, positive, uncompromising, Procrustean.

secundum artem [L.], shipshape, point-device [archaic], technical.

exemplary, illustrative, in point.

adv. conformably etc. adj.; by rule; agreeably to; in conformity with, in accordance with, in keeping with; according to; consistently with; as usual, ad instar [L.], instar omnium [L.]; more solito [L.], more majorum [L.].

for the sake of conformity; of course, as a matter of course; pro forma [L.], for form's sake, by the card.

invariably etc. (uniformly) 16.

for example, for instance; exempli gratia [L.]; e. g.; inter alia [L.].

83. Unconformity

n. nonconformity etc. 82; unconformity, disconformity; unconventionality, informality, abnormity, anomaly; anomalousness etc. adj.; exception, peculiarity; infraction–, breach–, violation–, infringement- of -law, –custom, –usage; teratism, eccentricity, bizarrerie [F.], oddity, je ne sais quoi [F.], monstrosity, rarity; freak of nature.

individuality, idiosyncrasy, singularity, selfness [rare], originality, mannerism.

aberration; irregularity; variety; singularity; exemption; salvo [rare] etc. (qualification) 469.

nonconformist, bohemian, nondescript, character [colloq.], original, nonesuch [rare], freak, crank [colloq.], prodigy, wonder, miracle, curiosity, missing link, flying fish, black swan, monster, white blackbird, basilisk, salamander, lusus naturae [L.], rara avis [L.], queer fish [slang].

mongrel; half-caste, half-blood, half-breed etc. 41; metis, crossbreed, hybrid, mule, mulatto; tertium quid [L.], hermaphrodite.

monster, phoenix, chimera, hydra, sphinx, minotaur; griffin or griffon; centaur; xiphopagus; hippogriff, hippocentaur; sagittary; kraken, cockatrice, wivern or wyvern [obs.], roc, dragon, sea serpent; mermaid; unicorn; Cyclops, "men whose heads do grow beneath their shoulders" [Othello]; teratology.

fish out of water; neither one thing nor another; neither fish, flesh, fowl, nor good red herring; one in a way, one in a thousand.

outcast, outlaw, Ishmael, pariah.

v. be uncomformable etc. adj.; abnormalize; leave the beaten track, leave the beaten path; infringe–, break–, violate - a -law, –habit, –usage, –custom; stretch a point; have no business there; baffle all description, beggar all description.

adj. uncomformable, exceptional; abnormal, abnormous; anomalous, anomalistic; out of order, out of place, out of keeping, out of tune, out of one's element; irregular, arbitrary; teratogenic, teratogenetic; lawless, informal, aberrant, stray, wandering, wanton; peculiar, exclusive, unnatural, eccentric, egregious; out of the beaten track, out of the common, out of the common run, out of the pale of; misplaced; funny [colloq.].

unusual, unaccustomed, uncustomary, unordinary, unwonted, uncommon; rare, singular, unique, curious, odd, extraordinary, strange, monstrous; wonderful etc. 870; unexpected, unaccountable; outré [F.], out of the way, remarkable, noteworthy, recherché [F.], queer, quaint, nondescript, sui generis [L.]; original, unconventional, supernormal [rare], bohemian, sulphitic [slang], unfashionable; undescribed, unprecedented, unparalleled, unexampled, unheard of, unfamiliar; fantastic, newfangled, grotesque, bizarre; outlandish, exotic, tombé des nues [F.], preternatural; denaturalized.

heterogeneous, heteroclite, amorphous, mongrel, amphibious, epicene, half blood, hybrid; androgynous, androgynal; unsymmetric etc. 243; adelomorphic or adelomorphous, gynandrous, bisexual, hermaphrodite, androgynic, androgynous, monoclinous.

adv. unconformably etc. adj.; except, unless, save, barring, beside, without, save and except, let alone.

however, yet, but.

int. what on earth! what in the world!

Section 5. Number

84. Number

n. number, symbol, numeral, figure, cipher, digit, integer; counter; round number; formula; function; series.

sum, difference, complement, subtrahend; product, total, aggregate; multiplicand, multiplier, multiplicator; coefficient, multiple; dividend, divisor, factor, quotient, submultiple, fraction; mixed number; numerator, denominator; decimal, circulating decimal, repetend; common measure, aliquot part; reciprocal; prime number; totient; quota, quotum [rare].

figurate numbers, pyramidal numbers, polygonal numbers.

permutation, combination, variation; election.

ratio, proportion; progression; arithmetical progression, geometrical progression, harmonical progression; percentage.

power, root, radix, exponent, index, logarithm, antilogarithm; modulus. differential, integral, fluxion, fluent.

adj. numeral, complementary, divisible, aliquot, reciprocal, prime, fractional, decimal, figurate, incommensurable.

proportional, exponential, logarithmic, logometric, differential, fluxional, integral, totitive.

positive, negative; rational, irrational; surd, radical, real, imaginary, impossible.

85. Numeration

n. numeration; numbering etc. v.; pagination; tale, tally, telling [archaic], recension, enumeration, summation, reckoning, computation, supputation [obs.]; calculation, calculus; algorithm, rhabdology, dactylonomy; measurement etc. 466; statistics, logistics.

arithmetic, analysis, algebra, fluxions; differential calculus, integral calculus, infinitesimal calculus; calculus of differences.

[statistics] dead reckoning, muster, poll, census, capitation, roll call, recapitulation; account etc. (list) 86.

[operations] notation, addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, proportion, rule of three, practice, equations, extraction of roots, reduction, involution, evolution, approximation, interpolation, differentiation, integration, indigitation [rare].

[instruments] abacus, calculator, computer, suan pan, logometer, slide rule, tallies, Napier's bones, calculating machine, difference engine; adding machine; cash register.

arithmetician, calculator, geodesist, abacist; algebraist, geometrician, trigonometrician, mathematician, actuary, statistician.

v. number, count, tell; call over, run over; take an account of, enumerate, call the roll, muster, poll, recite, recapitulate; sum; sum up, cast up; tell off, score, cipher, reckon, reckon up, tally estimate, make an estimate, furnish an estimate, make up accounts, compute, calculate, suppute [obs.], add, subtract, multiply, divide, extract roots, algebraize.

check, prove, demonstrate, balance, audit, overhaul, take stock.

page, affix numbers to, foliate, paginate.

amount to, come to, total.

adj. numeral, numerical; arithmetical, analytic, algebraic, statistical, countable, reckonable, numberable, computable, calculable, rhabdological; commensurable, commensurate; incommensurable, incommensurate.

86. List

n. list, catalogue or catalog, inventory, schedule, calends [rare]; register etc. (record) 551; account; bill, bill of costs; syllabus; terrier, tally, file; calendar, index, table, atlas, contents; book, ledger; synopsis, catalogue raisonné [F.]; scroll, brief [obs.], screed, manifest, invoice, bill of lading; prospectus, program; bill of fare, menu, carte; score, bulletin, tableau [F.], census, statistics, returns; Red Book, Blue Book, Domesday Book; directory, gazetteer.

almanac; army list, clergy list, civil service list, navy list; Statesman's Yearbook, Whitaker's Almanack, Almanach de Gotha, cadastre or cadaster, cadre [F.], card index; Lloyd's Register, Nautical Almanac, Who's Who.

dictionary, lexicon, glossary, word-book, thesaurus, gloss [rare], gradus.

roll; check roll, checker roll, bead roll; muster roll, muster book; roll of honor; roster, slate, rota, poll, panel; chartulary or cartulary, diptych.

v. list, enroll, schedule, inventorize [rare], inventory, register, catalogue or catalog, invoice, bill, book, indent, slate, post, manifest, docket; matriculate, empanel, calendar, tally, file, index, tabulate, enter, score, keep score; census.

adj. inventorial, cadastral; listed etc. v.

87. Unity

n. unity; oneness etc. adj.; individuality; solitude etc. (seclusion) 893; isolation etc. (disjunction) 44; unification etc. 48; completeness etc. 52.

one, unit, ace, monad; individual; none else, no other, nought beside.

integer, item, point, module.

v. be one, be alone etc. adj.

isolate etc. (disjoin) 44.

render one; unite etc. (join) 43, (combine) 48.

adj. one, sole, only-begotten, single, solitary, companionless; individual, apart, alone; kithless.

unaccompanied, unattended; solus (fem., sola) [L.], single-handed; singular, odd, unique, unrepeated, azygous, first and last; isolated etc. (disjoined); insular.

monadic, monadical; unific, uniflorous, unilobed, uniglobular, unifoliolate, unigenital, uniliteral, unilocular, unimodular, unitary; monospermous.

inseverable, indiscerptible; compact, irresolvable.

lone, lonely, lonesome; desolate, dreary.

adv. singly etc. adj.; alone, by itself, per se [L.], only [rare], apart, in the singular number, in the abstract; one by one, one at a time; simply; one and a half, sesqui-.

88. Accompaniment

n. accompaniment; adjunct etc. 39; context; appendage, appurtenance.

company, association, companionship; coexistence, concomitance; partnership, copartnership; coefficiency.

concomitant, accessory, coefficient; companion, attendant, fellow, associate, fidus Achates [L.], consort, spouse, colleague; partner, copartner; satellite, hanger-on, shadow; escort, cortège [F.], suite, train, convoy, follower etc. 65; attribute.

v. accompany, coexist, attend, company [archaic], convoy, chaperon; hang on, wait on; go hand in hand with; synchronize etc. 120; bear company, keep company; row in the same boat; bring in its train; associate with, couple with.

adj. accompanying etc. v.; concomitant, fellow, twin, joint; associated with, coupled with; accessory, attendant, comitant [rare], obbligato.

adv. with, withal; together with, along with, in company with; hand in hand, side by side; cheek by jowl; arm in arm; therewith, herewith; and etc. (addition) 37.

together, in a body, collectively, in conjunction.

89. Duality

n. duality, dualism; duplicity; biplicity [rare], biformity; polarity.

two, deuce, couple, couplet, both, twain, brace, pair, cheeks, twins, Castor and Pollux, gemini, Siamese twins; fellows; yoke, conjugation; dispermy, doublets, dyad, duad, twosome [rare], distich, span.

v. [unite in pairs] pair, couple, bracket, yoke; conduplicate; mate, span [U.S.]

adj. two, twain; dual, dualistic; binary, binomial; twin, biparous; dyadic; conduplicate; duplex etc. 90; biduous, binate, binary, binal [rare], diphyletic, dispermic, paired, unijugate; tête-à-tête [F.].

coupled etc. v.; conjugate.

both, both the one and the other.

90. Duplication

n. duplication; doubling etc. v.; gemination, ingemination; reduplication; iteration etc. (repetition) 104; renewal.

duplicate, facsimile, copy, replica, counterpart etc. (copy) 21.

v. double; redouble, reduplicate; geminate [rare]; repeat etc. 104; renew etc. 660.

adj. double; doubled etc. v.; bicipital, bicephalous, bidental, bilabiate, bivalve, bivalvular, bifold, biform, bilateral, bifarious, bifacial; twofold, twosided; disomatous; duple [rare], duplex; double-faced, double-headed; twin, duplicate, geminous [rare], geminate, ingeminate; second: dual etc. 89.

adv. twice, once more; over again etc. (repeatedly) 104; as much again, twofold.

secondly, in the second place, again.

91. Bisection

[division into two parts]

n. bisection, bipartition; dichotomy, subdichotomy [rare]; halving etc. v.; dimidiation.

bifurcation, furcation, forking, branching, ramification, divarication; fork, crotch, furculum, prong; fold.

half, moiety.

v. bisect, halve, hemisect [rare], divide, split, cut in two, cleave, dimidiate, dichotomize.

go halves, divide with.

separate, fork, bifurcate, furcate, divaricate; branch off or out; ramify.

adj. bisected etc. v.; cloven, cleft; bipartite, dimidiate, divaricate, biconjugate, bicuspid, bifid; bifurcous [rare], bifurcate, bifurcated; bigeminate, distichous, distichal, dichotomous, furcular, furcate, lituate [rare]; semi-, demi-, hemi-.

92. Triality

n. triality [rare], trinity, triunity, Trimurti [Hindu], triplicity, trialism [rare].

three, triad, triplet, ternion, ternary, trine [rare], trey, trio, leash; shamrock, tierce, delta, trefoil; triangle, trident, triennium, trigon [rare], trinomial, trionym, triplopia or triplopy, tripod, trireme, triseme, triskelion or triskele, trisul or trisula, triumvirate.

third power, cube.

adj. three; triform, trinal, trinomial; tertiary; triune; triarch, triadic.

93. Triplication

n. triplication, triplicity; trebleness, terza, trine; trilogy.

v. treble, triple, triplicate, cube.

adj. treble, triple; tern, ternary, ternate, tertiary; triplicate, threefold, trilogistic; triplasic; third; trinal, trine [rare].

adv. three times, thrice, in the third place, thirdly, threefold, triply, trebly etc. adj.

94. Trisection

[division into three parts]

n. trisection, tripartition, trichotomy; third, third part.

v. trisect, divide into three parts, third.

adj. trifid; trisected etc. v.; tripartite, trichotomous, trisulcate; ternal, trident, tridental.

triadelphous, triangular, trichotomic, tricuspid, tricapsular, tridental, tridentate or tridentated, tridentiferous, trifoliolate, trifurcate or trifurcated, trigonoid, trigonous, trigonal, trigrammic or trigrammatic, tripedal, trilateral, tripetalous, tripodal, tripodic, triquetral, triquetrous.

95. Quaternity

n. quaternity [rare], four, tetrad, quartet or quartette, quatre [rare], quadruplet, quaternion, square, quadrilateral, quadrinomial, biquadrate, quarter, quarto, tetract, tetragon.

quadrangle, quadrature, quadruplet; quatrefoil; tetragram, tetragrammaton; tetrahedron, tetrapody, tetrology, quatrefoil or quadrefoil.

v. square, biquadrate, reduce to a square.

adj. four; quaternary, quaternal; quadratic; quartile, quartic, quadrifid, quadriform, quadric, biquadratic; tetract, tetractine, tetractinal [zool.], four-rayed; tetrad, quadrivalent; quadrangular, tetragonal, quadrilateral, tetrahedral.

96. Quadruplication

n. quadruplication.

v. quadruplicate, biquadrate, multiply by four.

adj. fourfold; quadrable, quadruple, quadruplex, quadruplicate, quadrible; fourth.

adv. four times; in the fourth place, fourthly.

97. Quadrisection

[division into four parts]

n. quadrisection, quadripartition; quartering etc. v.; fourth; quart, quarter, quartern; farthing

v. quarter, divide into four parts, quadrisect.

adj. quartered etc. v.; quadrifid, quadripartite [rare]; quadrifoliate, quadrigeminal, quadrigeminous, quadrigeminate, quadripennate, quadriplanar, quadriserial, quadrivial, quadrifurcate, quadrumanal, quadrumane, quadrumous.

98. Five, etc.

n. five, cinque, quint, quincunx, quintet or quintette, quintuple, quintuplet, quinary [rare], pentad; pentagon, pentagram, pentameter, pentapody, pentarchy, pentastich, Pentateuch.

six, sise or size [rare], hexad, sextuplet, hexagon, hexahedron, hexagram, hexameter, hexapod, hexapody, hexastich, Hexateuch, sextet, half-a-dozen.

seven, heptad, septenary [rare], heptagon, heptahedron, heptameter, heptarchy, Heptateuch.

eight, octave, octonary, octad, ogdoad, octagon, octahedron, octameter, octastyle, octavo, octet.

nine, novenary [rare], ennead, nonary [rare]; nonagon, three times three; novena [R. C. Ch.].

ten, decad [rare], decade, dicker; decagon, decagram, decahedron, decapod, decare, decastere, decastyle, decasyllable, decemvir, decemvirate, decennium.

eleven; twelve, dozen; thirteen; long dozen, baker's dozen; twenty, score; twenty-four, four and twenty, two dozen; twenty-five, five and twenty, quarter of a hundred; forty, twoscore; fifty, half a hundred; sixty, sexagenary, threescore; seventy, threescore and ten; eighty, fourscore; ninety, fourscore and ten.

hundred, centenary, hecatomb, century, bicentenary, tercentenary; hundredweight, cwt.; one hundred and forty-four, gross.

thousand, chiliad, milliad [rare], millenary [rare], millennium; myriad, ten thousand; one hundred thousand, lac or lakh [India], plum [obs.], million; ten million, crore [India]; thousand million, billion, milliard.

billion, trillion etc.

v. quintuplicate, sextuple, centuplicate, centuriate [obs.].

adj. five, fifth, quinary, quintuple; quintuplicate, pentangular, pentagonal, pentastyle.

sixth, senary [rare], sextuple, hexagonal, hexangular, hexastyle, hexahedral, sextan.

seventh, septuple, septenary, septimal [rare]; heptagonal, heptahedral, heptamerous, heptangular.

eighth, octuple, octonary; octagonal, octahedral, octan, octangular, octastyle.

ninth, ninefold, novenary [rare], nonary [rare], enneahedral, enneastyle.

tenth, tenfold, decimal, denary, decuple, decagonal, decahedral, decasyllabic.
eleventh, undecennial, undecennary.
twelfth, duodenary, duodenal.
in one's teens, thirteenth, etc.
twentieth, vicenary, vicennial, vigesimal, vicesimal.
sixtieth, sexagesimal, sexagenary.
seventieth, septuagesimal, septuagenary.
centuple, centuplicate, centennial, centenary, centurial; secular, hundredth; thousandth, millenary, millennial etc.

99. Quinquesection, etc.

n. quinquesection etc.; division by five etc. 98; decimation; fifth etc.
v. decimate; quinquesect; decimalize.
adj. quinquefid, quinqueliteral, quinquepartite. sexpartite; octofid; decimal, tenth, tithe; duodecimal, twelfth; sexagesimal, sexagenary; hundredth, centesimal; millesimal etc.

100. Plurality

[more than one]

n. plurality; a number, a certain number; one or two, two or three etc.; a few, several; multitude etc. 102; majority.
adj. plural, more than one, upwards of, some, certain; not, not alone etc. 87.
adv. et cetera, etc.

100a. Fraction

[less than one]

n. fraction, fractional part; part etc. 51.
adj. fractional, fragmentary, inconsiderable, partial, portional.

101. Zero

n. zero, nothing; naught, nought; cipher, none, nobody; nichts [Ger.], goose egg, nix [slang]; not a soul; absence etc. 187; unsubstantiality etc. 4.
adj. no, not one, not any.

102. Multitude

n. multitude; multitudinousness, numerousness etc. adj.; numerosity, numerality [obs.]; multiplicity; profusion etc. (plenty) 639; legion, host; great number, large number, round number, enormous number; a quantity, numbers, array, sight, army, sea, galaxy; scores, peck, bushel, shoal, oodles [colloq.], pile [colloq.], heap [colloq.], power [colloq.], sight [colloq.], lot [colloq.], lots [colloq.], swarm, bevy, cloud, flock, herd, drove, flight, covey, hive, brood, litter, farrow, fry, nest; mob, crowd etc. (assemblage) 72; all the world and his wife [humorous].
[increase of number] greater number, majority; multiplication, multiple.
v. be numerous etc. adj.; swarm with, teem with, be alive with, creep with; crowd, swarm, come thick upon; outnumber, multiply; people; swarm like locusts, swarm like bees.
adj. many, several, sundry, divers, various, not a few; Briarean; a hundred, a thousand, a myriad, a million, a billion, a quadrillion, a nonillion, a thousand and one; some ten or a dozen, some forty or fifty etc.; half a dozen, half a hundred etc.; alive with; very many, full many, ever so many; numerous; profuse, in profusion; manifold, multifold, multiplied, multitudinous, multiple, multinomial, teeming, populous, peopled, outnumbering, crowded, thick, studded; galore [colloq.].
thick coming, many more, more than one can tell, a world of; no end of, no end to; cum multis aliis [L.], thick as hops, thick as hail; plenty as blackberries; numerous as the stars in the firmament, numerous as the sands on the seashore, numerous as the hairs on the head; and what not, and heaven knows what; endless etc. (infinite) 105.

103. Fewness

n. fewness etc. adj.; paucity, scarcity, sparseness, sparsity, small number; only a few; small quantity etc. 32; rarity; infrequency etc. 137; handful; minority; exiguity.
[diminution of number] reduction; weeding etc. v.; elimination, sarculation [obs.], decimation; eradication.
v. be few etc. adj.
render few etc. adj.; reduce, diminish, diminish the number, weed, eliminate, thin, decimate.
adj. few; scant, scanty; thin, rare, scarce, sparse, thinly scattered, few and far between; exiguous; infrequent etc. 137; rari nantes [L.]; hardly any, scarcely any; to be counted on one's fingers, to be counted on the fingers of one hand; reduced etc. v.; unrepeated.
adv. here and there.

104. Repetition

n. repetition, iteration, reiteration, iterance [rare], reiterance [rare], alliteration, duplication, reduplication, monotone, harping, recurrence, succession, run; battology, tautology; monotony, tautophony; rhythm etc. 138; diffuseness, pleonasm, redundancy.

chimes, repetend, echo, reëcho, encore, dilogy [rare], ritornello [It.], burden of a song, refrain, undersong; rehearsal; réchauffé [F.], rifacimento [It.], recapitulation.

cuckoo etc. (imitation) 19; reverberation etc. 408; drumming etc. (roll) 407; renewal etc. (restoration) 660.

twice-told tale, chestnut [slang], old stuff [slang], old story, old song; second edition, new edition; reappearance, reproduction; periodicity etc. 138.

v. repeat, iterate, reiterate, reproduce, echo, reëcho, drum, harp upon, battologize, tautologize, hammer, redouble.

recur, revert, return, reappear; renew etc. (restore) 660.

rehearse; do over again, say over again; ring the changes on; harp on the same string; din in the ear, drum in the ear; conjugate in all its moods, tenses and inflexions; begin again, go over the same ground, go the same round, duplicate, reduplicate, never hear the last of; resume, return to, recapitulate, reword.

adj. repeated etc. v.; warmed up, warmed over, repetitional, repetitionary, repetitive, repetitious, reduplicatory [rare], reduplicative, recurrent, recurring; ever recurring, thick coming; frequent, incessant; redundant, pleonastic, tautological, tautologous, tautophonical; inexhaustible, unplumbed.

monotonous, harping, iterative, unvaried; mocking, chiming; retold; habitual etc. 613; another.

aforesaid, aforenamed; above-mentioned, said.

adv. repeatedly, often, again, anew, over again, afresh, once more; ditto, encore, de novo [L.], bis, da capo [It.].

again and again; over and over, over and over again; many times over; time and again, time after time; times without number; year after year; day by day etc.; many times, several times, a number of times; many a time, full many a time; frequently etc. 136; inexhaustibly, depth beyond depth.

105. Infinity

n. infinity, infinitude, infiniteness etc. adj.; perpetuity etc. 112; inexhaustibility, immensity, boundlessness.

v. be infinite etc. adj.; know no limits, know no bounds, have no limits, have no bounds; go on forever.

adj. infinite; immense; numberless, countless, sumless, measureless, innumerable, immeasurable, incalculable, illimitable, interminable, unfathomable, unapproachable; exhaustless, indefinite; without number, without measure, without limit, without end; incomprehensible; limitless, endless, boundless, termless; untold, unnumbered, unmeasured, unbounded, unlimited, illimited; perpetual etc. 112.

adv. infinitely etc. adj.; ad infinitum [L.].

Section 6. Time

106. Time

n. time, duration; period, term, stage, space, tide [archaic], span, spell, season; the whole time, the whole period; course etc. 109; snap.

intermediate time, while, bit, breathing, interim, interval, pendency; intervention, intermission, intermittence, interregnum, interlude; respite.

era, epoch, Kalpa, eon, cycle; time of life, age, year, date; decade etc. (period) 108; point, bell, moment etc. (instant) 113; reign etc. 737.

glass of time, ravages of time, whirligig of time, noiseless foot of Time; scythe of Time.

v. continue, last, endure, stay, go on, remain, persist, subsist, abide, run, stand, dure [archaic], perdure [rare], perennate [rare], stick [colloq.]; intervene; elapse etc. 109; hold out.

take time, take up time, fill time, occupy time.

pass time; pass away time, spend time, while away time, consume time, talk against time; tide over; use time, employ time; seize an opportunity etc. 134; linger on, drag on, drag along, tarry etc. 110; waste time etc. (be inactive) 683; procrastinate etc. 133.

adj. continuing etc. v.; on foot; permanent etc. (durable) 110; timely etc. (opportune) 134.

adv. while, whilst, during, pending; during the time, during the interval; in the course of; for the time being, day by day; in the time of, when; meantime, meanwhile; in the meantime, in the interim; ad interim [L.], pendente lite [L.]; de die in diem [L.]; from day to day, from hour to hour etc.; hourly, always; for a time, for a season; till, until, up to, yet; the whole time, all the time; all along; throughout etc. (completely) 52; for good etc. (diuturnity) 110.

then, hereupon, thereupon, whereupon; anno Domini [L.], A.D.; ante Christum [L.], A.C.; before Christ, B.C.; anno urbis conditae [L.], A.U.C.; anno regni [L.], A.R.; once upon a time, one fine morning.

107. Neverness

n. "neverness"; absence of time, no time; dies non [L.]; St. Tib's eve; Greek Calends (or Kalends).

adv. never, ne'er; at no time, at no period; on or at the Greek Calends (or Kalends); on no occasion, never in all one's born days [colloq.], jamais de ma vie [F.], nevermore, sine die [L.], in no degree.

108. Period

[definite duration, or portion of time]

n. period; second, minute, hour, day, week, month, octave, novena [L.], semester, quarter, year, decade, decennium, luster or lustrum, indication; cycle–, era- of indiction (or indictions); quinquennium, lifetime, generation; epoch, era, epact, ghurry or ghari [India], lunation, moon.

century, age, millennium; annus magnus [L.], annus mirabilis [L.].

adj. horary; hourly, annual, epochal etc. (periodical) 13 ; ante bellum [L.].

108a. Contingent Duration

adv. during pleasure, during good behavior; quandiu se bene gesserit [L.].

109. Course

[indefinite duration]

n. corridors of time, sweep of time, vista of time, halls of time, course of time, progress of time, process of time, succession of time, lapse of time, flow of time, flux of time, stream of time, tract of time, current of time, tide of time, march of time, step of time, flight of time; duration etc. 106.

[indefinite time] aeon or eon, age, Kalpa; aorist.

v. elapse, lapse, flow, run, proceed, advance, pass; roll on, wear on, press on; flit, fly, slip, slide, glide; crawl, drag; run its course, run out; expire; go by, pass by; be past etc. 122.

adj. elapsing etc. v.; aoristic; transient etc. 111; progressive.

adv. in time; in due time, in due season, in due course; in course of time, in process of time, in the fullness of time.

110. Diuturnity

[long duration]

n. diuturnity [rare]; a long time, length of time; an age, aeon or eon, a century, an eternity; slowness etc. 275; coeternity, sempiternity, perpetuity etc. 112; blue moon [colloq.], coon's age [colloq.], dog's age [colloq.].

durableness, durability; persistence, eternalness, lastingness etc. adj.; continuance, standing; permanence etc. (stability) 150; survival, survivance; longevity etc. (age) 128; distance of time.

protraction of time, prolongation of time, extension of time; delay etc. (lateness) 133.

v. last, endure, stand, remain, abide, continue etc. 106; brave a thousand years.

tarry etc. (be late) 133; drag on, drag its slow length along, drag a lengthening chain; protract, prolong; spin out, eke out, draw out, lengthen out; temporize; gain time, make time, talk against time.

outlast, outlive; survive; live to fight again.

adj. durable, endurable [rare]; lasting etc. v.; of long duration, of long standing; permanent, chronic, longstanding; diuturnal [rare]; intransient, intransitive; intransmutable, persistent; lifelong, livelong; longeval [rare], longevous, endless, fixed, immortal, perdurant [rare], perdurable, long-lived, macrobiotic, evergreen, perennial; sempervirent [rare], sempervirid; unintermitting, unremitting; perpetual etc. 112.

lingering, protracted, prolonged, spun out etc. v.; long-pending, long-winded; slow etc. 275.

adv. long; for a long time, for an age, for ages, for ever so long, for many a long day; long ago etc. (in a past time) 122; longo intervallo [L.].

all the day long, all the year round; the livelong day, as the day is long, morning, noon and night; hour after hour, day after day etc.; for good, for good and all; permanently etc. adj.; semper et ubique [L.].

111. Transience

[short duration]

n. transience, transiency, ephemerality, transientness [rare] etc. adj.; evanescence, impermanence or impermanency, preterience [rare], volatility, fugacity, caducity [rare], mortality, span; nine days' wonder, bubble, Mayfly; spurt; temporary arrangement, interregnum, interim.

velocity etc. 274; suddenness etc. 113; changeableness etc. 149.

ephemeron; transient, transient boarder, transient guest, transient rates.

v. be transient etc. adj.; flit, pass away, fly, gallop, vanish, fleet, sink, melt, fade, evaporate; pass away like a cloud, –summer cloud, –shadow, –dream.

adj. transient, transitory, transitive; passing, evanescent, fleeting; flying etc. v.; fugacious, fugitive; transeunt, interim, shifting, slippery; spasmodic.

temporal, temporary; provisional, provisory; cursory, short-lived, ephemeral, ephemerous [rare], preterient [rare], caducous [rare], deciduous; perishable, mortal, precarious; impermanent.

brief, quick, brisk, fleet, cometary, meteoric, volatile, extemporaneous, summary; pressed for time etc. (haste) 684; sudden, momentary etc. (instantaneous) 113.

adv. temporarily etc. adj.; pro tempore [L.]; for the moment, for a time; awhile, en passant [F.], in transitu [L.]; in a short time; soon etc. (early) 132; briefly etc. adj.; at short notice; on the point of, on the eve of; in articulo mortis [L.]; between cup and lip.

112. Perpetuity

[endless duration]

n. perpetuity, eternity, everness,[1] aye, sempiternity, perenniality [rare], coeternity, immortality, athanasy, athanasia; everlastingness etc. adj.; perpetuation; continued existence, uninterrupted existence; perennity [obs.].

v. have no end; last forever, endure forever, go on forever.

eternize, immortalize, eternalize, monumentalize, perpetuate.

adj. perpetual, eternal; everduring, everlasting, everliving, everflowing; continual, sempiternal, sempiternous [rare], eviternal [rare]; coeternal; endless, unending; ceaseless, incessant, uninterrupted, indesinent [obs.], unceasing; interminable, eterne [poetic], having no end; unfading, evergreen, amaranthine; never-ending, never-dying, never-fading; deathless, immortal, undying, imperishable.

adv. perpetually etc. adj.; always, ever, evermore [archaic], aye; forever, for aye, forevermore, forever and a day, forever and ever; forever and aye, in all ages, from age to age; without end; world without end, time without end; in secula seculorum [L.]; to the end of time, to the crack of doom, to the "last syllable of recorded time" [Macbeth]; till doomsday; constantly etc. (very frequently) 136.

113. Instantaneity

[point of time]

n. instantaneity, instantaneousness; suddenness, abruptness.

moment, instant, second, minute; twinkling, flash, breath, crack, jiffy [colloq.], coup [F.], burst, flash of lightning, stroke of time.

time; epoch, time of day, time of night; hour, minute; very minute etc., very time, very hour; present time, right time, true time, exact time, correct time.

v. be instantaneous etc. adj.; twinkle, flash.

adj. instantaneous, momentary, extempore, sudden, instant, abrupt; subitaneous [obs.], hasty; quick as thought, quick as lightning; rapid as electricity.

adv. instantaneously etc. adj.; in no time, in less than no time; presto, subito [It. and L.], instanter, forthright [archaic], eftsoon or eftsoons [archaic], in a trice, in a jiffy [colloq.], suddenly, at a stroke, like a shot; in a moment etc. n.; in the twinkling of an eye; in one's tracts; right away; toute à l'heure [F.]; at one jump, in the same breath, per saltum [L.], uno saltu [L.]; at once, all at once; plump, slap [colloq.]; "at one fell swoop" [Macbeth]; at the same instant etc. n.; immediately etc. (early) 132; extempore, on the moment, on the spot, on the dot [colloq.], on the spur of the moment; just then; slapdash etc. (haste) 684.

114. Chronometry

[estimation, measurement, and record of time]

n. chronometry, horometry, chronology, horology; date, epoch; style, era, age.

almanac, calendar, ephemeris; standard time, daylight-saving time; register, registry; chronicle, annals, journal, diary, chronogram, isochronon.

[instruments for the measurement of time] clock, watch; chronometer, chronoscope, chronograph; repeater; timekeeper, timepiece; dial, sundial, gnomon, horologe, horologium [rare], hydroscope, pendule [F.], hourglass, clepsydra; ghurry or ghari [Hind.].

chronographer, chronologer, chronologist, horologer; annalist.

v. fix the time, mark the time; date, register, chronicle, chronologize; measure time, beat time, mark time; bear date.

adj. chronologic or chronological, chronometric or chronometrical, chronogrammatical; data [rare], temporal, isochronous, isochronal, cinquecento, quattrocento, trecento.

adv. o'clock.

115. Anachronism

[false estimate of time]

n. anachronism, metachronism, parachronism, prochronism; prolepsis, misdate; anticipation, antichronism [rare].

disregard of time, neglect of time, oblivion of time.
intempestivity [rare] etc. 135.

v. misdate, antedate, postdate, overdate; anticipate; take no note of time; anachronize [rare].

adj. misdated etc. v.; undated; overdue; out of date, anachronous, anachronistic, intempestive, behind time.

116. Priority

n. priority, antecedence, anteriority, precedence, preëxistence; precession etc. 280; precursor etc. 64; the past etc. 122; premises.

v. precede, come before; forerun; prevent [rare], antecede; go before etc. (lead) 280; preëxist; dawn; presage etc. 511; herald, usher in, announce.
be beforehand etc. (be early) 132; steal a march upon, anticipate, forestall; have the start, gain the start.

adj. prior, previous; preceding, precedent [rare]; anterior, antecedent; preëxistent; former, aforegoing, aforesighted, aforementioned, aforethought, fore [obs.], foregoing; beforementioned, above-mentioned; aforesaid, said; introductory etc. (precursory) 64; prodromal.

adv. before, prior to; earlier; previously etc. adj.; afore [obs.], aforehand [archaic], ere, theretofore, erewhile; ere then, ere now, before then, before now; already, yet, beforehand; or ever, aforetime; on the eve of.

117. Posteriority

n. posteriority; succession, sequence; following etc. 281; subsequence, subsequency, supervention; continuance, prolongation; futurity etc. 121; successor; sequel etc. 65; remainder, reversion.

v. follow after etc. 281, come after, go after; succeed, supervene; ensue, attend, emanate [rare], occur, result; step into the shoes of.

adj. subsequent, posterior, following, after, later, succeeding, sequacious [rare], successive, sequential [rare], ensuing, consecutive, attendant, sequent, postliminary [rare], postnate [obs.]; postdiluvial, postdiluvian; posthumous; future etc. 121; after-dinner, postprandial.

adv. subsequently, after, afterwards, since, later; at a subsequent period, at a later period; next, in the sequel, close upon, thereafter, thereupon, upon which, eftsoon or eftsoons [archaic]; from that time, from that moment; after a while, after a time; in process of time.

118. Present Time

n. the present time, the present day, the present moment, the present juncture, the present occasion; the times, existing time, time being; twentieth century; crisis, epoch, day, hour.
age, time of life.

adj. present, actual, instant, current, nonce, latest, existing, that is.

adv. at this time, at this moment etc. 113; at the present time etc. n.; now, at present; at hand.
at this time of day, to-day, now-a-days; already; even now, but now, just now; on the present occasion; for the time being, for the nonce; on the nail, on the spot; on the spur of the moment, on the spur of the occasion.
until now; to this day, to the present day.

119. Different Time

[time different from the present]

n. different time, other time.
[indefinite time] aorist.

adj. aoristic; indefinite.

adv. then, at that time, at that moment, at that instant; at which time, at which moment, at which instant; on that occasion, upon.
when; whenever, whensoever; whereupon, upon which, on which occasion; at another time, at a different time, at some other time, at any time; at various times; some of these days, one of these days, some fine morning, one fine morning; some fine day, on divers occasions, sooner or later; some time or other.
once, formerly, once upon a time.

120. Synchronism

n. synchronism; coexistence, coincidence; simultaneousness etc. adj.; concurrence, concomitance, unity of time, interim.
[having equal times] isochronism.
contemporary, coeval, coetanian [obs.].

v. coexist, concur, accompany, go hand in hand, keep pace with; synchronize, isochronize.

adj. synchronous, synchronal, synchronic or synchronical, synchronistic or synchronistical, simultaneous, coexisting, coincident, concomitant, concurrent; coeval, coevous [obs.]; contemporary, contemporaneous; coetaneous [rare], coinstantaneous, coterminous, collateral, coeternal; isochronous.

adv. at the same time; simultaneously etc. adj.; together, in concert, during the same time; in the same breath; pari passu [L.]; in the interim.
at the very moment etc. 113; just as, as soon as; meanwhile etc. (while) 106.

121. Futurity

[prospective time]

n. futurity, futurition [rare]; future, hereafter, time to come; approaching—, coming—, subsequent—, after- -time, —age, —days, —hours, —years, —ages, —life; morrow, to-morrow, by and by, the yet [rare]; millennium, chiliad [rare], millenary, doomsday, day of judgment, crack of doom, remote future.

approach of time, advent, time drawing on, womb of time; destiny etc. 152; eventuality.

heritage, heirs, posterity, descendants.

prospect, anticipation etc. (expectation) 507; foresight etc. 510.

v. look forward; anticipate etc. (expect) 507, (foresee) 510; forestall etc. (be early) 132.

approach, await, threaten; impend etc. (be destined) 152; come on, draw on; draw near.

adj. future, to come; coming etc. (impending) 152; next, near; near at hand, close at hand; eventual, ulterior; anticipant, expectant, prospective, in prospect etc. (expectation) 507; millenary, millennial.

adv. prospectively, hereafter, in future; on the knees of the gods; kal [Hind.], to-morrow, the day after tomorrow; in course of time, in process of time, in the fullness of time; eventually, ultimately, sooner or later; proximo; paulo post futurum [L.]; in after time; one of these days; after a time, after a while.

from this time; henceforth, henceforwards; thence; thenceforth, thenceforward; whereupon, upon which.

soon etc. (early) 132; on the eve of, on the point of, on the brink of; about to; close upon.

122. Preterition

[retrospective time]

n. preterition; priority etc. 116; the past, past time; heretofore [rare]; days of yore, days of old, days past, days gone by; times of yore, times of old, times past, times gone by; bygone days; old times, ancient times, former times; foretime [rare]; yesterday, the olden time, good old time; langsyne; eld [obs. or poetic].

antiquity, antiqueness, ancientness, status quo [L.]; time immemorial, distance of time; history, remote age, remote time; remote past; rust of antiquity.

paleontology, paleography, paleology; palaetiology, archaeology; archaism, antiquarianism, medievalism, Pre-Raphaelitism.

retrospection, looking back; memory etc. 505.

antiquary, antiquarian; paleologist, archaeologist etc.; Oldbuck, Dryasdust; laudator temporis acti [L.]; medievalist, Pre-Raphaelite.

ancestry etc. (paternity) 166.

v. be past etc. adj.; have expired etc. adj., have run its course, have had its day; pass; pass by, pass away, pass off; go by, go away, go off; lapse, blow over.

look back, trace back, cast the eyes back; exhume.

adj. past, gone, gone by, over, passed away, bygone, foregone [archaic]; elapsed, lapsed, preterlapsed [rare], expired, no more, run out, blown over, that has been, bypast, agone [archaic], whilom [archaic], extinct, never to return, exploded, forgotten, irrecoverable; obsolete etc. (old) 124.

former, pristine, quondam, ci-devant [F.], late; ancestral.

foregoing; last, latter; recent, overnight, preterit or preterite, past, plu-perfect, past perfect.

looking back etc. v.; retrospective, retroactive; archaeological etc. n.

adv. formerly; of old, of yore; erst [archaic or poetic], erstwhile [archaic], whilom [archaic], erewhile [archaic], time was, ago, over; in the olden time etc. n.; anciently, long ago, long since; a long while ago, a long time ago; years ago, ages ago; some time ago, some time since, some time back.

yesterday, the day before yesterday; last year, last season, last month etc.; ultimo [L.]; lately etc. (newly) 123.

retrospectively; ere now, before now, till now; hitherto, heretofore; no longer; once, once upon a time; from time immemorial; in the memory of man; time out of mind; already, yet, up to this time; ex post facto [L.].

123. Newness

n. newness etc. adj.; novelty, recency; neology, neologism; immaturity; youth etc. 127; gloss of novelty.

innovation; renovation etc. (restoration) 660.

modernist, neoteric; neologist.

upstart, narikin [Jap.], start-up [rare], nouveau riche [F.], parvenu.

modernism, modernness, modernity; modernization; dernier cri [F.]; latest fashion; mushroom.

v. renew etc. (restore) 660; modernize.

adj. new, novel, recent, fresh, green; young etc. 127; evergreen; raw, immature; virgin; untried, unhandseled, unheard-of, untrodden, unbeaten; fire-new, span-new.

modern, late, neoteric, neoterical; new-born, new-fashioned, newfangled, newfledged; of yesterday; just out [colloq.], brand-new, up-to-date [colloq.]; fin-de-siècle [F.], vernal, renovated; sempervirent [rare], sempervirid [rare].

fresh as a rose, fresh as a daisy, fresh as paint [colloq.]; spick-and-span, spick-and-span-new, unhandled.

adv. newly etc. adj.; afresh, anew, lately, just now, only yesterday, the other day; latterly, of late.

not long ago, a short time ago.

124. Oldness

n. oldness etc. adj.; age, antiquity, eld [obs. or poetic]; cobwebs of antiquity.

maturity, matureness, ripeness.

decline, decay; senility etc. 128.

seniority, eldership, primogeniture.

archaism etc. (the past) 122; thing of the past, relic of the past; megatherium; Babylonian, Assyrian, Sanskrit.

tradition, prescription, custom, immemorial usage, common law; folklore.

v. be old etc. adj.; have had its day, have seen its day.

become old etc. adj.; age, fade.

adj. old, ancient, olden [archaic], eldern [archaic], antique; of long standing, time-honored, venerable, hoary, vetust [obs.]; elder, eldest; firstborn.

primitive, prime, primeval, primigenous, primigenial, primigenious; paleoanthropic; primordial, primordiate [rare]; aboriginal etc. (beginning) 66; diluvian, antediluvian, protohistoric, prehistoric, dateless, patriarchal, preadamite; palaeocrystic; fossil, paleozoic, preglacial, antemundane; archaic, Vedic, classic, medieval, Pre-Raphaelite, ancestral; black-letter.

immemorial, traditional, traditive, traditionary [rare], prescriptive, customary, unwritten, whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary; inveterate, rooted.

antiquated, of other times, old as the hills, of the old school, after-age, obsolete; out-of-date, out-of-fashion; stale, old-fashioned, old-fangled [rare], fusty, outworn, moth-eaten [humorous], behind the age; old-world; exploded; gone out, gone by, passé [F.], extinct, dead, disused, past, run out; senile etc. 128; time-worn; crumbling etc. (deteriorated) 659; secondhand.

old as the hills, old as Methuselah, old as Adam, old as history.

adv. since the world was made, since the year one, since the days of Methuselah.

125. Morning

[noon]

n. morning, morn, matins [eccl.], morningtide [rare or poetic], forenoon, a.m., prime, dawn, daybreak; dayspring, foreday [chiefly Scot.], sun-up, peep of day, break of day; aurora; first blush of the morning, first flush of the morning, prime of the morning; twilight, crepuscle or crepuscule, sunrise; daylight, daypeep, cock-crow, cockcrowing; the small hours, the wee sma' hours [Scot.].

noon, midday, noonday, noontide, meridian, prime; nooning, noontime.

spring, springtide, springtime, seedtime; vernal equinox.

summer, summertide, summertime, midsummer.

adj. matin, matutinal, matinal, matutinary [rare]; crepuscular.

noon, noonday, midday, meridional [rare in this sense].

spring, vernal, vernant [obs.].

summer, aestival or estival.

adv. at sunrise etc. n.; with the lark, when the morning dawns.

126. Evening

[midnight]

n. evening, eve; decline of day, fall of day, close of day; candlelight, candlelighting; eventide, evensong [eccl. or archaic], vespers [eccl.], nighttide [archaic], nightfall, curfew, dusk, twilight, eleventh hour; sunset, sundown; going down of the sun, cockshut [obs.], dewy eve, gloaming, bedtime.

afternoon, post meridiem [L.], p.m.

midnight; dead of night, witching hour of night, witching time of night, killing-time.

autumn; fall, fall of the leaf; harvest, autumnal equinox; Indian summer, St. Luke's summer, St. Martin's summer.

winter, hiems [L.].

adj. vesper, vespertine, nocturnal; autumnal.

wintry, winterly, brumous, brumal.

127. Youth

n. youth; juvenility, juvenescence [rare]; juniority; infancy; babyhood, childhood, boyhood, girlhood, youthhood [archaic]; incunabula; minority, boyage [rare], immaturity, nonage, teens, tender age, bloom.

cradle, nursery, leading strings, puberty, pucelage.

flower of life, springtide of life, seedtime of life, prime of life, golden season of life; heyday of youth, school days; rising generation.

adj. young, youthful, juvenile, juvenescent, green, callow, budding, sappy, puisne [law], beardless, under age, in one's teens, in statu pupillari [L.]; younger, junior; hebetic, unfledged, unripe.

128. Age

n. age; oldness etc. adj. old age, advanced age; senility, senescence; years, anility, gray hairs, climacteric, grand climacteric, declining years, decrepitude, hoary age, caducity [rare], eld [archaic], superannuation; second childhood, childishness; dotage; vale of years, decline of life, senectitude [rare], "sear and yellow leaf" [Macbeth]; threescore years and ten; green old age, ripe age; longevity; time of life.

seniority, eldership; elders etc. (veteran) 130; firstling; doyen [F.], dean, father; primogeniture.

[science of old age] nostology; geriatrics and gerontology and gerocomy [med.].

v. be aged etc. adj.; grow old, get old etc. adj.; age; decline, wane, senesce [rare].

adj. aged; old etc. 124; elderly, eldern [archaic], senile; matronly, anile; in years; ripe, mellow, run to seed, declining, waning, past one's prime; gray, grayheaded; hoar, hoary; venerable, time-worn, antiquated, passé [F.], effete, decrepit, superannuated; advanced in life, advanced in years; stricken in years; wrinkled, marked with the crow's foot; having one foot in the grave; doting etc. (imbecile) 499; like the last of pea time.

years old; of a certain age, no chicken [colloq.], old as Methuselah; ancestral; patriarchal etc. (ancient) 124; gerontic.

older, elder, oldest, eldest; senior; firstborn.

129. Infant

n. infant, babe, baby; nursling, suckling, yearling, weanling; papoose, bambino [It.]; vagitus.

child, bairn [Scot.], tot, mite, scrap, chick, kid [slang], butcha or bacha [Hind.]; little one, brat, chit, pickaninny, urchin; bantling, bratling elf.

youth, boy, lad, laddie, slip, sprig, stripling, youngster, younker [colloq.], whipster [rare], youngling [rare], damoiseau [archaic], cub, callant [Scot.], whippersnapper [colloq.], schoolboy, hobbledehoy, hopeful, cadet, minor, master.

scion, sapling, seedling; tendril, olivebranch, nestling, chicken, duckling, larva, chrysalis, tadpole, whelp, cub, pullet, fry, callow [obs.], codling or codlin; fetus, calf, colt, pup, puppy, foal, kitten; lamb, lambkin; aurelia, caterpillar, cocoon, nymph, nympha, pupa, staddle.

girl, lass, lassie; wench [dial.], miss, damsel; damoiselle, damosel or damozel [archaic]; demoiselle; maid, maiden; virgin; nymph, colleen, girleen, flapper [slang], girly [colloq.], minx, missy, baggage, hussy; schoolgirl; hoyden, tomboy, romp.

adj. infantine, infantile; puerile; boyish, girlish, childish, babyish, kittenish; childly [rare], boylike, girllike, kiddish [colloq.], dollish [colloq.]; youngling, infant, baby; newborn, unfledged, newfledged, callow.

in the cradle, in swaddling clothes, in long clothes, in arms, in leading strings; at the breast; in one's teens; young etc. 127.

130. Veteran

n. veteran, old man, reverend sir, seer, patriarch, graybeard; grandfather, grandsire [archaic], grisard [rare], oldster [colloq.], pantaloon [obs.]; gaffer, sexagenarian, octogenarian, nonagenarian, centenarian; doyen [F.], old stager; dotard etc. 501.

granny, grandam or grandame [archaic], gammer [dial. Eng.], crone, hag, oldwife, beldam or beldame.

preadamite, Methuselah, Nestor, old Parr; elders; forefathers etc. (paternity) 166; Darby and Joan, Philemon and Baucis, "John Anderson, my jo" [Burns].

adj. veteran; aged etc. 128.

131. Adolescence

n. adolescence, pubescence, majority; adultism; adulthood, adultness etc. adj.; manhood, virility; flower of age; full bloom; spring of life.

man etc. 373; woman etc. 374; adult, pubescent, no chicken [colloq.].

middle age, mezzo cammin [It.], maturity, full age, ripe age, prime of life, meridian of life.

v. come of age, come to man's estate, come to years of discretion; attain majority, put on long trousers, assume the toga virilis [L.]; have cut one's eyeteeth [colloq.], settle down, have sown one's wild oats.

adj. adolescent, pubescent, of age; of full age, of ripe age; out of one's teens, grown up, full-blown, in full bloom, full-grown, manly, manlike, virile, adult; womanly, matronly; marriageable, marriable, nubile.

middle-aged, mature, in one's prime; matronly.

132. Earliness

n. earliness etc. adj.; morning etc. 125.

punctuality; promptitude etc. (activity) 682; haste etc. (velocity) 274; suddenness etc. (instantaneity) 113.

prematurity, precocity, precipitation, anticipation, prevenience; a stitch in time.

v. be early etc. adj.; be beforehand etc. adv.; keep time, take time by the forelock, anticipate, forestall; have the start, gain the start; steal a march upon; gain time, draw on futurity; bespeak, secure, engage, preëngage.

accelerate; expedite etc. (quicken) 274; make haste etc. (hurry) 684.

adj. early, prime, timely, seasonable, in time, punctual, forward; prompt etc. (active) 682; summary.

premature, precipitate, precocious; prevenient, anticipatory; rath or rathe [obs. or poetic].

sudden etc. (instantaneous) 113; unexpected etc. 508; imminent, impending, near, near at hand; immediate.

adv. early, soon, anon, betimes, rath or rathe [poetic]; eftsoon or eftsoons [archaic]; ere long, before long; punctually etc. adj.; to the minute; in time; in good time, in military time, in pudding time [obs.], in due time; time enough, on time, on the dot [slang].

beforehand; prematurely etc. adj.; precipitately etc. (hastily) 684; too soon; before its time, before one's time; in anticipation; unexpectedly etc. 508.

suddenly etc. (instantaneously) 113; before one can say "Jack Robinson," at short notice, extempore; on the spur of the moment, on the spur of the occasion [Bacon]; at once; on the spot, on the instant; at sight; off hand, out of hand; à vue d'oeil [F.]; straight, straightway, straightforth; forthwith, incontinently, summarily, instanter, forthright [archaic], immediately, briefly, shortly, erewhile [archaic], quickly, speedily, apace, before the ink is dry, almost immediately, presently, at the first opportunity, in no long time, by and by, in a while, directly.

133. Lateness

n. lateness etc. adj.; tardiness etc. (slowness) 275.

delay, cunctation [rare] tarriance, moration [rare], delation [archaic], procrastination; deferring etc. v.; postponement, adjournment, prorogation, retardation, respite; protraction, prolongation; after-time; circumlocution office [ridicule], "circumlocution court" [Dickens], chancery suit, Fabian policy, médecine expectante [F.], moratorium; leeway; high time; truce, reprieve, demurrage; stop, stay, suspension, remand.

v. be late etc. adj.; tarry, wait, stay, bide, take time; dawdle etc. (be inactive) 683; linger, loiter; bide one's time, take one's time; gain time; hang fire; stand over, lie over; hang, hang around or about [colloq.], hang back [colloq.], hang in the balance, hang in the hedge, hang up [colloq.], sit up for, stay up for.

put off, defer, delay, lay over, suspend; shift off, stave off; waive, retard, remand, postpone, adjourn; procrastinate; dally; prolong, protract; spin out, draw out, lengthen out; prorogue; keep back; tide over; push to the last, drive to the last; let the matter stand over; table, lay on the table, shelve; respite [rare], perendinate [rare]; reserve etc. (store) 636; temporize, filibuster, stall [slang]; consult one's pillow, sleep upon it.

be kept waiting, dance attendance; kick one's heels [colloq.], cool one's heels [colloq.]; faire antichambre [F.]; wait impatiently; await etc. (expect) 507; sit up, sit up at night; lose an opportunity etc. 135.

adj. late, tardy, slow, cunctatious or cunctative [rare], behindhand, serotine [rare], belated, postliminary [rare], posthumous, backward, unpunctual, impunctual [rare], overdue, moratory; dilatory etc. (slow) 275; delayed etc. v.; in abeyance.

adv. late; backward, lateward [obs.], late in the day; at sunset, at the eleventh hour, at length, at last; ultimately; after time, behind time; too late; too late for etc. 135.

slowly, leisurely, deliberately, at one's leisure; ex post facto [L.]; sine die [L.].

134. Occasion

n. occasion, opportunity, opening, room, scope, space, place, liberty, show [colloq., U. S.]; suitable time, suitable season, proper time, proper season; high time; opportuneness etc. adj.; tempestivity [obs.].

nick of time; golden opportunity, well-timed opportunity, fine opportunity, favorable opportunity; clear stage, fair field; mollia tempora [L.]; spare time etc. (leisure) 685.

crisis, turn, emergency, juncture, conjuncture; turning point, given time.

v. improve the occasion; seize etc. (789) an opportunity or an occasion; use etc. (677) an opportunity or an occasion; give etc. (784) an opportunity or an occasion.

suit the occasion etc. (be expedient) 646.

strike the iron while it is hot, battre le fer sur l'enclume [F.], make hay while the sun shines, seize the present hour, take time by the forelock, prendre la balle au bond [F.].

adj. opportune, timely, well-timed, timeful [obs.], seasonable, tempestive [archaic], timeous [rare].

lucky, providential, fortunate, happy, favorable, propitious, auspicious, critical; suitable etc. 23; obiter dicta [L.].

occasional, accidental, extemporaneous, extemporary; contingent etc. (uncertain) 475.

adv. opportunely etc. adj.; in proper time, in proper course, in proper season; in due time, in due course, in due season; for the nonce; in the nick of time, in the fullness of time; all in good time; just in time, at the eleventh hour, now or never.

by the way, by the by; en passant [F.], à propos [F.]; pro hac vice [L.]; par parenthèse [F.], parenthetically, by way of parenthesis; while on this subject, speaking of; par exemple [F.]; extempore; on the spur of the moment, on the spur of the occasion; on the spot etc. (early) 132.

135. Intempestivity

n. intempestivity [rare]; unsuitable time, improper time; unreasonableness etc. adj.; evil hour; contretemps [F.], misventure [archaic], misadventure; intrusion; anachronism etc. 115.

v. be ill-timed etc. adj.; mistime, intrude, come amiss, break in upon; have other fish to fry; be busy, be occupied, be engaged.

lose an opportunity; throw away an opportunity, waste an opportunity, neglect etc. (460) an opportunity; allow or suffer the opportunity or occasion to -pass, –slip, –go by, –escape, –lapse; waste time etc. (be inactive) 683; let slip through the fingers, lock the stable door when the steed is stolen.

adj. ill-timed, mistimed; ill-fated, ill-omened, ill-starred; untimely, intrusive, unseasonable; out of date, out of season; inopportune, timeless [archaic], inconvenient, intempestive [rare], untoward, mal à propos [F.], unlucky, inauspicious, unpropitious, unfortunate, unfavorable; unsuited etc. 24; inexpedient etc. 647.

unpunctual etc. (late) 133; too late for; premature etc. (early) 132; too soon for; wise after the event.

adv. inopportunely etc. adj.; as ill luck would have it, in an evil hour, the time having gone by, a day after the fair.

136. Frequency

n. frequency, frequence, oftness [rare], oftenness [rare], quotiety [rare]; repetition etc. 104.

v. keep, keep on; recur etc. 104; do nothing but.

adj. frequent, often [archaic], many, many times, not rare, thickcoming, incessant, perpetual, continual, constant, repeated etc. 104; habitual etc. 613; hourly etc. 138.

adv. often, oft, ofttime [archaic], ofttimes, oftentimes; oftentime [rare], oftentide [obs.], not seldom, frequently; repeatedly etc. 104; unseldom, not unfrequently; in quick succession, in rapid succession; many a time and oft; oftly [rare], daily, hourly etc.; every day, every hour, every moment etc.

perpetually, continually, constantly, incessantly, unchangingly, steadfastly, without ceasing, at all times, daily and hourly, night and day, day and night, day after day, morning noon and night, ever and anon.

commonly etc. (habitually) 613; most often.

sometimes, occasionally, at times, now and then, from time to time, there being times when, toties quoties [L.], often enough, again and again.

137. Infrequency

n. infrequency, infrequence, unfrequency [rare], rareness, rarity; sparseness, fewness etc. 103; seldomness; uncommonness.

v. be rare etc. adj.

adj. infrequent, unfrequent [rare], seldseen [archaic], uncommon, sporadic; rare, rare as a blue diamond; few etc. 103; scarce; almost unheard of, scarce as hen's teeth [colloq.], unprecedented, which has not occurred within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, not within one's previous experience.

adv. seldom, rarely, scarcely, hardly; not often, unfrequently, infrequently, uncommonly, sparsely, unoften; scarcely ever, hardly ever; once in a blue moon [colloq.].

once; once for all, once in a way; pro hac vice [L.].

138. Regularity of recurrence. Periodicity

n. periodicity, intermittence; beat; oscillation etc. 314; pulse, pulsation; systole and diastole; rhythm; alternation, alternateness, alternacy [rare], alternativeness, alternity [rare].

round, revolution, rotation, bout, turn, say.
anniversary, biennial, triennial, quadrennial, quinquennial, sextennial, septennial, octennial, decennial; tricennial, jubilee, centennial, centenary, bicentennial, bicentenary, tercentenary; birthday, birthright, natal day, fête day, saint's day.
catamenia, courses, menses, menstrual flux.
[regularity of return] rota, cycle, period, stated time, routine; days of the week; Sunday, Monday etc.; months of the year; January etc.; feast, festival, fast etc.; Christmas, Yuletide, New Year's day, Ash Wednesday, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Easter; Allhallows, Allhallowmas, All Saints' Day; All Souls' Day; Candlemas, Dewali [Hindu], Holi or Hoolee [Hindu], Memorial or Decoration Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving, ground-hog day, woodchuck day [U. S.], Halloween, Hallowmas, Lady Day; leap year, bissextile; Bairam, Ramadan, Muharram [Mohammedan]; St. Swithin's Day; Midsummer Day; May Day etc. (holiday) 840; yearbook.
punctuality, regularity, steadiness.

v. return, revolve; recur in regular -order, –succession; come again, come in its turn; come round, –again; beat, pulsate; alternate; intermit.

adj. periodic, periodical; serial, recurrent, cyclic, cyclical, rhythmic or rhythmical; recurring etc.v.; intermittent, remittent; alternate, every other; every.
hourly; diurnal, daily, quotidian [rare]; tertian, weekly; hebdomadal, hebdomadary; biweekly, fortnightly; bimonthly, monthly, catamenial, menstrual; yearly, annual; biennial, triennial etc.; centennial, secular; paschal, lenten etc.
regular, steady, constant, methodical, punctual, regular as clockwork.

adv. periodically etc. adj.; at regular intervals, at stated times; at fixed periods, at established periods; punctually etc. adj.; de die in diem [L.]; from day to day, day by day.
by turns; in turn, in rotation; alternately, every other day, off and on, ride and tie, round and round.

139. Irregularity of recurrence

n. irregularity, uncertainty, unpunctuality; fitfulness etc. adj.; capriciousness, ecrhythmus; acatastasia [med.].

adj. irregular, uncertain, unpunctual, capricious, erratic, heteroclite, ecrhythmic, ecrhythmous, desultory, fitful, flickering; rambling, rhapsodical; spasmodic; immethodical, unsystematic, unequal, uneven, variable.

adv. irregularly etc. adj.; by fits and starts etc. (discontinuously) 70.

Section 7. Change

140. Change

[difference at different times]

n. change, alteration, mutation, permutation, variation, novation [rare], modification, modulation, inflection or inflexion, mood, qualification, innovation, eversion, deviation, shift, turn; diversion; break.
transformation, transfiguration, transfiguremement; metamorphosis; metabola or metabole [med.], transmorphism [rare], transmutation; deoxidization, deoxidation; transubstantiation; metagenesis, transanimation, transmigration, metempsychosis, version [rare]; metasomatism or metasomatosis, metathesis; metabolism, metastasis; transmogrification [colloq.]; avatar; alterative.
resolution, conversion etc. (gradual change) 144; revolution etc. (sudden or radical change) 146; inversion etc. (reversal) 218; displacement etc. 185; transference etc. 270.
changeableness etc. 149; tergiversation etc. (change of mind) 607.

v. change, alter, vary, wax and wane; modulate, diversify, qualify, tamper with; turn, shift, veer, gybe or jibe, jib, tack, chop, shuffle, swerve, warp, deviate, dodge, tergiversate, turn aside, evert, intervert [obs.]; pass to, take a turn, turn the corner, resume.
work a change, modify, vamp, patch, piece, vamp up, superinduce; transform, transfigure, transmute, transmogrify [colloq.], transume [rare], transverse [rare], transshape [rare], metabolize, convert, transubstantiate, resolve, revolutionize; chop and change; metamorphose, ring the changes.
innovate, introduce new blood, shuffle the cards; give a turn to, give a color to; influence, turn the scale; shift the scene, turn over a new leaf.
recast etc. 146; reverse etc. 218; disturb etc. 61; convert into etc. 144.

adj. changed etc. v.; newfangled; eversible; changeable etc. 149; transitional; modifiable; metagenetic; alterative.

adv. mutatis mutandis [L.].

int. quantum mutatus! [L.].

141. Permanence

[absence of change]

n. permanence, permanency, fixity, persistence, endurance; durableness, durability, lastingness; standing, status quo [L.]; maintenance, preservation, conservation; conservatism; laisser faire [F.], laisser aller [F.]; law of the Medes and Persians; standing dish.

stability etc. 150; quiescence etc. 265; obstinacy etc. 606.

v. let alone, let be; persist, remain, stay, tarry, rest; hold, hold on; last, endure, bide, abide, aby or abye [archaic], dwell, maintain, keep; stand, –still, –fast, –pat [colloq.]; subsist, live, outlive, survive; hold–, keep- one's -ground, –footing; hold good.

adj. permanent; stable etc. 150; persisting etc. v.; established; fixed, irremovable, durable; pucka or pukka or pakka [Hind.]; unchanged etc. (change etc. 140); renewed; intact, inviolate; persistent; monotonous, uncheckered; unfailing, unfading.

undestroyed, unrepealed, unsuppressed; conservative, qualis ab incepto [L.]; prescriptive etc. (old) 124; stationary etc. 265.

adv. finally; in statu quo [L.]; for good, at a stand, at a standstill, uti possidetis [L.]; without a shadow of turning; as you were!

142. Cessation

[change from action to rest]

n. cessation, discontinuance, desistance, desinence. intermission, remission; suspense, suspension; interruption; stop; hitch [colloq.]; stopping etc. v.; stoppage, halt; arrival etc. 292.

pause, rest, lull, respite, truce, truce of God, armistice, stay, drop; interregnum, abeyance.

[in debate] closure, cloture, clôture [F.].

deadlock, checkmate, backwater, dead water, dead stand, dead stop; end etc. 67; death etc. 360.

punctuation, comma, semicolon, colon, period, full stop, caesura.

v. cease, discontinue, desist, stay; break off, leave off; hold, stop, pull up, stop short; check, check in full career, deadlock; stick, hang fire; halt; pause, rest.

come to a -stand, –standstill, –deadlock, –full stop; arrive etc. 292; go out, die away; wear away, wear off; pass away etc. (be past) 122; be at an end.

have done with, give over, surcease, shut up shop; give up etc. (relinquish) 624.

hold–, stay- one's hand; rest on one's oars, repose on one's laurels.

interrupt, suspend, interpel [obs.]; intermit, remit; put an end to, put a stop to, put a period to; derail; bring to a -stand, –standstill; stop, stall, cut short, arrest, stem the -tide, –torrent; pull the check-string.

int. stop! hold! enough! avast! [naut.], have done! a truce to! soft! leave off! tenez! [F.], fade away! [slang], let up! [slang], cut it out! [slang].

143. Continuance in action

n. continuance, continuation; run, pursuance, maintenance, extension, perpetuation, prolongation; persistence etc. (perseverance) 604*a*; repetition etc. 104.

v. continue, persist; go on, jog on, keep on, run on, hold on; abide, keep, pursue, stick to; take–, maintain- its course; carry on, keep up, drag on, stick [colloq.], persevere, endure, carry on.

sustain, uphold, hold up, keep on foot; follow up, perpetuate, prolong, maintain; preserve etc. 604*a*; harp upon etc. (repeat) 104.

keep going, keep alive, keep the pot boiling [colloq.], keep up the ball [colloq.]; die in harness; plug at it or along [slang]; keep the field, keep the ball rolling, keep at it, keep up; hold on–, pursue -the even tenor of one's way.

let be; stare super antiquas vias [L.]; quieta non movere [L.]; let things take their course.

adj. continuing etc. v.; uninterrupted, unintermitting, unvarying, persistent, unceasing, unremitting, unshifting; unreversed, unstopped, unrevoked, unvaried; sustained; chronic; undying etc. (perpetual) 112; inconvertible.

int. carry on! stand fast!

144. Conversion

[gradual change to something different]

n. conversion, reduction, transmutation, resolution, assimilation; chemistry, alchemy; lapse, assumption, growth, progress; naturalization; transportation.

proselytization, regeneration, Catholicization, Protestantization.

passage, transit, transition, transmigration; shifting etc. v.; flux; phase; conjugation; convertibility.

laboratory etc. 691; crucible, alembic, caldron, retort, mortar; potter's wheel, anvil, lathe, blowpipe.

convert, neophyte, catechumen, proselyte; pervert, renegade, apostate, turncoat.

v. be converted into; become, get, wax; come–, turn- -to, –into; turn out, lapse, shift; run–, fall–, pass–, slide–, glide–, grow–, ripen–, open–, resolve itself–, settle–, merge- into; melt, grow, come round to, mature, mellow; assume the - form, –shape, –state, –nature, character- of; illapse [rare]; assume a new phase, undergo a change.

convert into, resolve into; make, render; mold, form etc. 240; remodel, new-model, refound, reform, reorganize; assimilate to, bring to, reduce to.

adj. converted into etc. v.; convertible, resolvable into; conversible [rare], chemical, transitional; naturalized.

adv. gradually etc. (slowly) 275; in transitu [L.] etc. (transference) 270.

145. Reversion

n. reversion, return; revulsion.

turning point, turn of the tide; status quo ante bellum [L.]; calm before a storm.

alternation etc. (periodicity) 138; inversion etc. 219; recoil etc. 277; retrocession, retrospection, regression etc. 283; restoration etc. 660; relapse etc. 661; atavism, throwback; vicinism; escheat.

v. revert, reverse, return, turn back; relapse etc. 661; invert etc. 219; recoil etc. 277; retreat etc. 283; restore etc. 660; undo, unmake; turn the tide, turn the scale; escheat.

adj. reverting etc. v.; revulsive, reactionary; retrorse.

adv. revulsively, retrorsely, on the rebound, à rebours [F.].

146. Revolution

[sudden or violent change]

n. revolution, revolt, bouleversement [F.], subversion, breakup; destruction etc. 162; sudden–, radical–, sweeping–, organic- change; clean sweep, debacle, débâcle [F.], overturn, overthrow, coup d'état [F.], rebellion, rising, uprising, mutiny, sansculottism, bolshevism, counter-revolution.

spasm, convulsion, throe, revulsion; storm, earthquake, eruption, upheaval, cataclysm, transilience or transiliency [rare], jump, leap, plunge, jerk, start, dash; explosion.

legerdemain etc. (trick) 545.

v. revolutionize, revolt, rebel, insurrect, rise; new-model, remodel, recast; strike out something new, break with the past; change the face of, unsex.

adj. unrecognizable; transilient.

revolutionary, catastrophic, cataclysmic, cataclysmal, convulsionary, insurgent, Red, insurrectional, insurrectionary, mutinous, rebellious, sansculottic, bolshevist or bolshevik.

147. Substitution

[change of one thing for another]

n. substitution, commutation, subrogation [law], surrogation [rare]; supplanting etc. v., supersession, supersedence, supersedure; metonymy etc. (figure of speech) 521.

[thing substituted] substitute, succedaneum, makeshift, temporary expedient; shift, apology, pis aller [F.], stopgap, jury mast, locum tenens [L.], alternate, warming pan [colloq.], dummy, scapegoat; double; changeling; quid pro quo [L.], alternative; representative etc. (deputy) 759; palimpsest.

price, purchase money, consideration, equivalent.

v. substitute, put in the place of, change for; make way for, give place to; supply–, take- the place of; surrogate [rare], subrogate [law], supplant, supersede, replace, cut out [colloq.], serve as a substitute; step into the shoes of, stand in the shoes of; make a shift with, put up with; borrow of Peter to pay Paul; commute, redeem, compound for.

adj. substituted etc. v.; vicarious, vicarial, substitutional, subdititious [rare].

adv. instead; by proxy; in place of, in lieu of, in the stead of, in the room of; faute de mieux [F.].

148. Interchange

[double or mutual change]

n. interchange, exchange; commutation, permutation, intermutation; reciprocation, transposition, transposal, shuffle, shuffling; alternation, reciprocity; castling [at chess]; hocus-pocus; swap [colloq.].

barter etc. 794; a Roland for his Oliver; tit for tat etc. (retaliation) 718; cross fire, battledore and shuttlecock; quid pro quo [L.].

interchangeableness, interchangeability.

v. interchange, exchange, counterchange; bandy, barter, transpose, shuffle, change hands, swap [colloq.], permute, reciprocate, commute; interwork, give and take, return the compliment; play at -puss in the corner, –battledore and shuttlecock; take in one another's washing; retaliate etc. 718; requite.

adj. reciprocal, interactive, mutual, commutative, interchangeable; interchanged etc. v.; intercurrent [rare].

international, interstate, interurban, intercollegiate, intertribal, interdenominational, interscholastic.

adv. in exchange, vice versa [L.], conversely, mutatis mutandis [L.], backwards and forwards, forward and back, to and fro, back and forth, by turns, turn about, contrariwise, commutatively, turn and turn about; each in his turn, every one in his turn.

149. Changeableness

n. changeableness etc. adj.; mutability, inconstancy; versatility, mobility; instability, unstable equilibrium; vacillation etc. (irresolution) 605; fluctuation, vicissitude; dysphoria; alternation etc. (oscillation) 314; transientness etc. 111.

[comparisons] moon, Proteus, kaleidoscope, chameleon, quicksilver, shifting sands, weathercock, vane, weathervane, harlequin, turncoat, Vicar of Bray, Cynthia of the minute, April showers; wheel of Fortune.

restlessness etc. adj.; fidgets, disquiet; disquietude, inquietude; unrest; agitation etc. 315.

v. fluctuate, vary, waver, flounder, flicker, flitter [archaic], flit, flutter, shift, shuffle, shake, totter, tremble, vacillate, wamble [dial.], turn and turn about, ring the changes; sway–, shift- to and fro; change and change about; oscillate etc. 314; vibrate–, oscillate- between two extremes; alternate; have as many phases as the moon.

adj. changeable, changeful; changing etc. 140; mutable, variable, checkered, ever changing, kaleidoscopic; protean, proteiform; versatile.

inconstant, unstaid, unsteady, unstable, unfixed, unsettled; fluctuating etc. v.; restless, uneasy; agitated etc. 315; erratic, fickle; mercurial, irresolute etc. 605; capricious etc. 608; touch and go; inconsonant, fitful, spasmodic; vibratory; vagrant, feathery [rare], lightheaded, wayward; desultory; afloat; alternating; alterable, plastic, mobile; transient etc. 111; wavering.

adv. seesaw etc. (oscillation) 314; off and on.

150. Stability

n. stability; immutability etc. adj.; unchangeableness etc. adj.; constancy; stable equilibrium, immobility, soundness, vitality, stabiliment [rare], stabilization; stiffness, ankylosis, solidity, aplomb [F.]; coherence.

permanence etc. 141; obstinancy etc. 606.

fixture, establishment; rock, pillar, tower, foundation, leopard's spots, Ethiopian's skin; law of the Medes and Persians.

standpatter [politics].

v. be firm etc. adj.; stick fast; stand firm, keep firm, remain firm; stand pat; weather the storm.

establish, settle, stablish [archaic], ascertain, fix, set, stabilitate [obs.], stabilize; stet [printing], retain, keep hold; make good, make sure; fasten etc. (join) 43; set on its legs [colloq.], set on its feet; float; perpetuate.

settle down; strike root, take root; take up one's abode etc. 184; build one's house on a rock.

adj. unchangeable, immutable; unaltered, unalterable; not to be changed, constant; permanent etc. 141; invariable, unyielding, undeviating; stable, durable; perennial etc. (diuturnal) 110.

fixed, steadfast, firm, firm as Gibraltar, firm as a rock, on a rock; tethered, anchored, moored, at anchor, firmly -seated, –established etc. v.; deep-rooted, ineradicable; fast, steady, balanced; confirmed, inveterate, valid; fiducial; immovable, irremovable, reveted, rooted; stated, settled, stereotyped, established etc. v.; obstinate etc. 606; vested; incontrovertible, indeclinable.

stuck fast, transfixed, aground, high and dry, stranded.

incommutable, indefeasible, irretrievable, intransmutable, irresoluble, irrevocable, irreversible, reverseless, inextinguishable, irreducible; indissoluble, indissolvable; indestructible, undying, imperishable, indelible, indeciduous; insusceptible, –of change.

int. stet [L., printing].

151. Eventuality

n. eventuality, eventuation, event, occurrence, supervention, incident, affair, transaction, proceeding, fact; matter of fact, naked fact; phenomenon: advent.

circumstance, particular, casualty, accident, happening, adventure, passage, crisis, pass, emergency, contingency; concern, business.

consequence, issue, result, termination, conclusion.

affairs, matters; the world, life, things, doings; things–, affairs- in general; the times, state of affairs, order of the day; course–, tide–, stream–, current–, run–, march-of-things, –events; ups and downs of life; chapter of accidents etc. (chance) 156; situation etc. (circumstances) 8; memorabilia.

v. happen, occur; take place, take effect; come, become of; come -off, –about, –round, –into existence, –forth, –to pass, –on; pass, present itself; fall; fall out, turn out; run, be on foot, fall in; befall, betide, bechance; prove, eventuate, draw on; turn up, crop up, spring up, cast up; supervene, survene, [obs.] issue, arrive, ensue, result, eventuate, arise, start, hold, take its course; pass off etc. (be past) 122.

experience; meet with; fall to the lot of; be one's -chance, –fortune, –lot; find; encounter, undergo; pass through, go through; endure etc. (feel) 821.

adj. happening etc. v.; going on, doing, current; in the wind, afloat; on foot, on the carpet, on the tapis; at issue, in question; incidental.

eventful, stirring, bustling, full of incident; memorable, momentous, signal.

adv. eventually, ultimately, finally; in the event of, in case; in the course of things; in the natural or ordinary course of things; as things go, as times go; as the world -goes, –wags; as the tree falls, as the cat jumps [colloq.]; as it may -turn out, –happen.

152. Destiny

n. destiny etc. (necessity) 601; future existence, post-existence; hereafter; foredoom, future state, next world, world to come, after life; futurity etc. 121; everlasting life, everlasting death; life beyond the grave, life to come, world beyond the grave; prospect etc. (expectation) 507.

v. impend; hang over, lie over; threaten, loom, await, hover, come on, approach, stare one in the face; foreordain, preordain; predestine, doom, foredoom, have in store for.

adj. impending etc. v.; destined; about to be, about to happen; coming, in store, to come, going to happen, instant, at hand, near; near at hand, close at hand; overhanging, hanging over one's head, imminent; brewing, preparing, forthcoming; in the wind, in the cards [colloq.], in reserve; that will be, that is to be; in prospect etc. (expected) 507; looming in the -distance, –horizon, –future; postexistent, unborn, in embryo; in the womb of -time, futurity; on the knees of the gods, in the future; pregnant etc. (producing) 161.

adv. in time, in the long run; all in good time; eventually etc. 151; whatever may happen etc. (certainly) 474; as chance etc. (156) would have it.

Section 8. Causation

153. Cause

[constant antecedent]

n. cause, origin, source, principle, element; prime mover, primum mobile [L.], primordium [rare]; vera causa [L.], ultimate cause, Great First Cause; author etc. (producer) 164; mainspring, agent; leaven; groundwork, foundation etc. (support) 215.

spring, fountain, well, font; fountainhead, springhead, reservoir, headspring, wellspring, wellhead; fons et origo [L.], genesis; descent etc. (paternity) 166; remote cause; influence.

pivot, hinge, turning point, lever; key; heart, nucleus, hub, focus; proximate cause, causa causans [L.]; the straw that breaks the camel's back.

reason, reason why; ground; why and wherefore [colloq.], rationale, occasion, derivation; final cause etc. (intention) 620; les dessous des cartes [F.]; undercurrents.

rudiment, egg, germ, embryo, fetus, bud, root, radix, radical, radication [rare], etymon, nucleus, seed, stem, stock, stirps, trunk, taproot, gemma, gemmule, radicle, semen, sperm.

nest, cradle, nursery, womb, nidus, birthplace, breeding-place, hotbed.

causality, causation; origination; causative; production etc. 161.

v. be the cause of etc. n.; originate; give origin to, give rise to, give occasion to; cause, occasion, sow the seeds of, kindle, suscitate [obs.]; bring on, bring to pass, bring about; produce; create etc. 161; set up, set afloat, set on foot; found, broach, institute, lay the foundation of; lie at the root of.

procure, induce, draw down, open the door to, superinduce, evoke, entail, operate; elicit, provoke.

contribute; conduce to etc. (tend to) 176; have a hand in; have a finger in the pie [colloq.]; determine, decide, turn the scale, have the deciding vote, have the final word; have a common origin; derive its origin etc. (effect) 154.

adj. caused etc. v.; causal, aetiological or etiological, original; primary, primitive, primordial; aboriginal; originative, generative, inceptive, productive, creative, constitutive, procreative, formative, demiurgic, protogenic, protogenal; radical; in embryo, embryonic, embryotic; in ovo [L.]; seminal, germinal; at the bottom of; connate, having a common origin.

adv. from the beginning, in the first place, before everything; because etc. 155; behind the scenes.

154. Effect

[constant sequent]

n. effect, consequence; aftercome [Scot.], aftergrowth, afterclap, aftermath, aftercrop, derivative, derivation; result; resultant; upshot, issue, outcome, resultance [rare], dénouement [F.], conclusion; falling action, catastrophe, end etc. 67; impress, impression; development, outgrowth; blossom, bud, ear, fruit, crop, harvest, product.

production, produce, work, handiwork, fabric, performance; creature, creation; offspring, offshoot; first fruits, firstlings; heredity, telegony; premices [obs.], primices [obs.].

v. be the effect of etc. n.; be due to, be owing to; originate in or from; rise from, arise from, take its rise from, spring from, proceed from, emanate from, come from, grow from, bud from, sprout from, germinate from, issue from, flow from, result from, follow from, derive its origin from, accrue from; come to, come of, come out of; depend upon, hang upon, hinge upon, turn upon.

take the consequences, reap where one has sown, make one's bed and lie on it, sow the wind and reap the whirlwind.

adj. owing to; resulting from etc. v.; resultant, firstling; derivable from; due to; caused by etc. 153; dependent upon; derived from, evolved from; derivative; hereditary; telegonous.

adv. consequently, of course, it follows that, naturally; as a consequence, in consequence; through, necessarily, eventually.

155. Attribution

[assignment of cause]

n. attribution, theory, ascription, assignment, reference to, rationale; accounting for etc. v.; etiology, imputation, derivation from.

filiation, affiliation; filiality; pedigree etc. (paternity) 166.

explanation etc. (interpretation) 522; reason why etc. (cause) 153.

v. attribute to, ascribe to, impute to, refer to, lay to, point to, trace to, bring home to; put down to, set down to; blame; blame upon [colloq.]; charge on, ground on; invest with, assign as cause, lay at the door of, father upon, saddle, filiate, affiliate; account for, derive from, point out the reason etc. 153; theorize; tell how it comes; put the saddle on the right horse; find the real culprit.

adj. attributed etc. v.; attributable etc. v.; referable or referrible; due to, derivable from; affiliate, derivate [rare]; owing to etc. (effect) 154; putative; ecbatic.

adv. hence, thence, therefore, for, since, on account of, because, owing to; on that account; from this cause, from that cause; thanks to, forasmuch as; whence, propter hoc [L.].

why? wherefore? whence? how comes it? how is it? how happens it? how come? [colloq.] how does it happen? how so?

in some way, in some such way; somehow, somehow or other.

156. Chance[1]

[absence of assignable cause]

n. chance, indetermination, accident, fortune, hazard, hap [rare], haphazard, chance-medley, random, luck, raccroc [F.], fluke [cant], casualty, fortuity, contingence, adventure, hit; fate etc. (necessity) 601; equal chance; lottery; tombola; lotto; toss-up [colloq.] etc. 621; turn of the -table, –cards; hazard of the die, chapter of accidents; cast–, throw- of the dice; heads or tails, wheel of Fortune; sortes [L.], sortes Virgilianoe [L.].

probability, possibility, contingency, odds, long odds, run of luck; accidentalness, accidentalism, accidentality; main chance.

theory of -probabilities, –chances; bookmaking; assurance; gamble, speculation, gaming etc. 621.

v. chance, hap, turn up; fall to one's lot; be one's fate etc. 601; stumble on, light upon; blunder upon, hit, hit upon; take one's chance etc. 621.

adj. casual, fortuitous, accidental, chance, chanceable [archaic], chanceful [archaic], haphazard, random, casual, adventive, adventitious, causeless, incidental, contingent, uncaused, undetermined, indeterminate; possible etc. 470; unintentional etc. 621.

adv. by chance, by accident; at random, casually; perchance etc. (possibly), 470; for aught one knows; as -good, –bad, –ill-luck etc. n.- would have it; as it may -be, –chance, –turn up, –happen; as the case may be.

[1]The word Chance has two distinct meanings: the first, the absence of assignable cause, as above; and the second, the absence of design—for the latter see 621.

157. Power

n. power; potency, potentiality; jiva [theos.]; puissance, might, force; energy etc. 171; dint; right hand, right arm; ascendancy, sway, control; prepotency, prepollence or prepollency [rare]; almightiness, omnipotence; carte blanche [F.], authority etc. 737; strength etc. 159; predominance.

ability; ableness etc. adj.; competency; efficiency, efficacy; validity, cogency; enablement; vantage ground; influence etc. 175.

pressure, electromotive force, high pressure; conductivity; elasticity; gravity, electricity, magnetism, magneto-electricity, galvanism, voltaic electricity, voltaism, electromagnetism, electrostatics, electrokinetics, electrodynamics; electromotion, electrification; magnetization, galvanization; attraction, pull; vis inertiae [L.], vis mortua [L.], vis viva [L.]; potential–, dynamic- energy; friction, suction; live-circuit, –rail, –wire; volt, voltage.

[instruments] galvanometer, rheometer; variometer, magnetometer, magnetoscope, electrometer, electroscope, galvanoscope, electrophorus, electrodynamometer, voltameter, ammeter, voltammeter, voltmeter, wattmeter.

capability, capacity; quid valeant humeri quid ferre recusent [L.]; faculty, quality, attribute, endowment, virtue, gift, property, qualification, susceptibility.

v. be powerful etc. adj.; gain power etc. n.

belong to, pertain to; lie–, be- in one's power; can.

empower; give–, confer–, exercise-power etc. n.; enable, invest; indue, endue; endow, arm; strengthen etc. 159; compel etc. 744.

electrify, magnetize, energize, galvanize, attract.

adj. powerful, puissant; potent, potential [rare]; capable, able; equal to, up to; cogent, valid; effective, effectual; efficient, efficacious, adequate, competent; multipotent [rare], plenipotent [rare], prepollent [rare], predominant; mighty, ascendent, prepotent, omnipotent, armipotent, mightful [archaic]; almighty.

forcible etc. adj. (energetic) 171; influential etc. 175; productive etc. 168.

electric, electrodynamic, electrokinetic, electromagnetic, electrometric, electrometrical, electromotive, electronegative, electropositive, electroscopic; magnetic, magneto-electric or magneto-electrical, magnetomotive; voltametric, voltaic; galvanic, galvanometric, galvanoscopic, dynamo-electric or dynamo-electrical; dynamic, static, potential.

adv. powerfully etc. adj.; by virtue of, by dint of.

158. Impotence

n. impotence; inability, disability; disablement, impuissance [rare], caducity, imbecility; incapacity, incapability; inaptitude, ineptitude; indocility; invalidity, inefficiency, incompetence, disqualification.

telum imbelle [L.], brutum fulmen [L.], blank cartridge, flash in the pan, vox et praeterea nihil [L.], dead letter, bit of waste paper, dummy; Quaker gun; cripple.

inefficacy etc. (inutility) 645; failure etc. 732.

helplessness etc. adj.; prostration, paralysis, palsy, apoplexy, syncope, sideration [obs.], vincibility, vincibleness, deliquium, collapse, exhaustion, softening of the brain, senility, superannuation, atony, decrepitude, imbecility, neurasthenia, invertebracy, inanition; emasculation, orchotomy; eunuch.

mollycoddle, old woman, muff [colloq.], tenderling [rare], milksop, molly [colloq.], sissy [colloq.], mother's darling.

v. be impotent etc. adj.; not have a leg to stand on. vouloir rompre l'anguille au genou [F.], vouloir prendre la lune avec les dents [F.].

collapse, faint, swoon, fall into a swoon, drop; go by the board; end in smoke etc. (fail) 732.

render powerless etc. adj.; depotentiate [rare], deprive of power; disable, disenable; disarm, incapacitate, disqualify, unfit, invalidate, disinvigorate [rare], undermine, deaden, cramp, tie the hands; double up, prostrate, paralyze, muzzle, cripple, becripple, maim, lame, hamstring, unsinew [rare], draw the teeth of; throttle, strangle, garrote or garrotte, ratten [trade-union cant], silence, sprain, clip the wings of, put hors de combat [F.], spike the guns; take the wind out of one's sails, scotch the snake, put a spoke in one's wheel; break the -neck, –back; unhinge, unfit; put out of gear.

unman, unnerve, devitalize, effeminize, attenuate, enervate; emasculate, evirate [rare], spay, eunuchize [rare], caponize, castrate, geld, alter.

shatter, exhaust; weaken etc. 160.

adj. powerless, impotent, unable, incapable, incompetent; inefficient, ineffective; inept; unfit, unfitted; unqualified, disqualified; unendowed; doddering [colloq.], wambly [Scot. and dial. Eng.], inapt, unapt; crippled, disabled etc. v.; armless; senile, decrepit, superannuated.

harmless, unarmed, weaponless, defenseless, sine ictu [L.], unfortified, mightless [archaic], indefensible, vincible, pregnable, untenable.

paralytic, paralyzed; palsied, imbecile; nerveless, sinewless, marrowless, pithless, lustless; emasculate, disjointed; out of joint, out of gear; unnerved, unhinged; waterlogged, on one's beam ends, rudderless; laid on one's back; done up [colloq.], done for [colloq.], done brown [colloq.], done [colloq.], dead-beat [colloq.], exhausted, shattered, atonic, demoralized; graveled [colloq.] etc. (in difficulty) 704; helpless, unfriended, fatherless; without a leg to stand on, hors de combat [F.], laid on the shelf.

nugatory, null and void, inoperative, good for nothing, invertebrate, ineffectual etc. (failing) 732; inadequate etc. 640; inefficacious etc. (useless) 645.

159. Strength

[degree of power]

n. strength; power etc. 157; energy etc. 171; vigor, force; main–, physical–, brute- force; spring, elasticity, tone, tension, tonicity.

[comparisons] adamant, steel, iron, oak, heart of oak; iron grip; bone.

virility, vitality; stoutness etc. adj.; lustihood, stamina, nerve, muscle, sinew or sinews, thews and sinews, physique; grit, pith, pithiness.

athletics, athleticism; gymnastics, acrobatism, agonistics, feats of strength.

athlete, gymnast, pancratiast, acrobat; Atlas, Hercules, Antaeus, Samson, Cyclops, Briareus, Colossus, Polyphemus, Titan, Brobdingnagian, Goliath; tower of strength; giant refreshed strengthening etc. v.; invigoration, refreshment, refocillation [obs.].

[science of forces] dynamics, statics.

v. be strong etc. adj., be stronger; overmatch.

render strong etc. adj.; give strength etc. n.; strengthen, invigorate, potentiate [rare], brace, nerve, fortify, buttress, sustain, harden, case-harden, steel, gird; screw up, wind up, set up; gird–, brace-up one's loins; recruit, set on one's legs [colloq.]; vivify; refresh etc. 689; refect [archaic], reinforce or reënforce etc. (restore) 660.

adj. strong, mighty, vigorous, forcible, hard, adamantine, stout, robust, sturdy, husky, doughty, hardy, powerful, potent, puissant, valid.

resistless, irresistible, invincible, proof against, impregnable, unconquerable, indomitable, inextinguishable, unquenchable; incontestable; more than a match for; overpowering, overwhelming; all-powerful, all-sufficient; sovereign.

able-bodied; athletic, gymnastic, carobatic, agonistic, palaestral [rare]; Herculean, Briarean, Brobdingnagian, Titanic, Cyclopean, Atlantean; muscular, brawny, wiry, well-knit, broad-shouldered, sinewy, sinewous [rare], strapping, stalwart, gigantic.

manly, manlike, manful; masculine, male, virile, in the prime of manhood.

unweakened, unallayed, unwithered, unshaken, unworn, unexhausted; in full force, in full swing; in the plentitude of power.

sound; stubborn, thick-ribbed, made of iron, deep-rooted; strong as -a lion, –an ox, –a horse -brandy; sound as a roach; in fine feather, in high feather [both colloq.]; like a giant refreshed.

adv. strongly etc. adj.; by force etc. n.; by main force etc. (by compulsion) 744.

160. Weakness

n. weakness etc. adj.; debility, atony, relaxation, languor, enervation; impotence etc. 158; infirmity, effeminacy, feminality; fragility, flaccidity; inactivity etc. 683.

[comparisons] reed, thread, rope of sand, house of cards, house built on sand.

anemia, bloodlessness, deficiency of blood, poverty of blood.

invalidation; declension–, loss–, failure- of strength; delicacy, decrepitude, asthenia, adynamy [rare], cachexia or cachexy, sprain, strain.

weakling; softling [obs.]; infant etc. 129; youth etc. 127.

v. be weak etc. adj.; drop, crumble, give way, totter, dodder, tremble, shake, halt, limp, fade, languish, decline, flag, fail, have one foot in the grave.

render weak etc. adj.; weaken, enfeeble, debilitate, invalidate, shake, deprive of strength, relax, enervate; unbrace, unnerve; cripple, unman etc. (render powerless) 158; cramp, reduce, sprain, strain, blunt the edge of; dilute, impoverish; decimate; extenuate; reduce in strength, reduce the strength of; mettre de l'eau dans son vin [F.].

adj. weak, feeble, debile [obs.]; impotent etc. 158; relaxed, unnerved etc. v.; sapless, strengthless, powerless; weakly, unstrung, flaccid, adynamic, asthenic; nervous.

soft, effeminate, feminate [obs.], womanish.

frail, fragile, shattery; flimsy, sleazy, gossamery, papery, unsubstantial, gimcrack, gingerbread; rickety, jerry-built, kucha or kachcha [Hind.], cranky; craichy [dial. Eng.], drooping, tottering, doddering [colloq.] etc. v.; broken, lame, withered, shattered, shaken, crazy, shaky, tumbledown; palsied etc. 158; decrepit.

unsound, poor, infirm; faint, faintish; sickly etc. (disease) 655; dull, slack, evanid [obs.], languid; spent, short-winded, effete; weather-beaten; decayed, rotten, forworn [archaic], worn, seedy, languishing, wasted, washy, wishy-washy [colloq.], laid low, pulled down, the worse for wear.

unstrengthened etc. 159, unsupported, unaided, unassisted; aidless, defenseless etc. 158.

on its last legs; weak as a -child, –baby, –chicken, –cat, –rat, –rag; weak as -water, –water gruel, –gingerbread, –milk and water; colorless etc. 429.

161. Production

n. production, creation, construction, formation, fabrication, manufacture; building, architecture, erection, edification; coinage; disaster; organization; nisus formativus [L.]; putting together etc. v.; establishment; workmanship, performance; achievement etc. (completion) 729.

flowering, fructification, fruition; inflorescence.

bringing forth etc. v.; parturition, birth, birth throe, childbirth, delivery, confinement, accouchement [F.], travail, labor, midwifery, obstetrics; geniture [obs.]; gestation etc. (maturation) 673; assimilation; evolution, development, growth; entelechy; fertilization, gemination, germination, heterogamy, genesis, generation, histogenesis, breeding, begetting, isogamy, epigenesis, procreation, progeneration, propagation; fecundation, impregnation; albumen etc. 357.

spontaneous generation; archigenesis, archebiosis, abiogenesis, biogenesis, biogeny, dysmerogenesis, eumerogenesis, heterogenesis, oögenesis, merogenesis, metogenesis, monogenesis, parthenogenesis, homogenesis, xenogenesis.

dissogeny, digenesis, physiogeny, phylogeny, ontogeny, ontogenesis, mitosis, xenogeny; theogony, tocogony, tocology, vacuolation, vacuolization.

publication; works, oeuvres [F.], opus (pl. opera) [L.]; authorship structure, building, edifice, fabric, erection, pile, tower; flower, fruit, blossom.

v. produce, perform, operate, do, make, gar [obs.], form, construct, fabricate, frame, contrive, manufacture; weave, forge, coin, carve, chisel; build, raise, edify, rear, erect, put together; set up, run up; establish, constitute, compose, organize, institute; achieve, accomplish etc. (complete) 729.

flower, burgeon, blossom, bear fruit, fructify, teem, ean [obs.], yean, farrow, drop, pup, whelp, kitten, kindle [obs.], spawn, spat; bear, lay, bring forth, give birth to, lie in, be brought to bed of, evolve, pullulate, usher into the world.

make productive etc. 168; create; beget, get, generate, fecundate, impregnate; procreate, progenerate, propagate; engender; bring–, call- into -being, –existence; breed, hatch, develop, bring up.

induce, superinduce; suscitate [obs.]; cause etc. 153; acquire etc. 775.

adj. produced, producing etc. v., productive of; prolific etc. 168; creative; formative; procreant, generative, genitive, genetic, genial [rare], genital; pregnant; enceinte [F.], big with, fraught with; in the family way [colloq.], teeming, parturient, in the straw [colloq.], brought to bed of; lying-in; puerperal, puerperous [rare].

digenetic, heterogenetic, oögenetic, xenogenetic; ectogenous, gamic, hematobious, sporogenous, sporophorous.

architectonic or architectonical, constructive.

162. Destruction [nonproduction]

n. destruction; waste, dissolution, breaking up; disruption; diruption [obs.], consumption; disorganization.

fall, downfall, ruin, perdition, debacle, débâcle [F.], crash, éboulement [F.], smash [colloq.], havoc, délabrement [F.], breakdown, break-up; prostration, cave-in [colloq.]; desolation, bouleversement [F.], wreck, wrack [archaic], shipwreck, cataclysm; washout.

extinction, annihilation; destruction of life etc. 361; knock-out, K. O. [slang], knock-out blow, knock-down blow; doom, crack of doom.

destroying etc. v.; demolition, demolishment [rare], overthrow, subversion, suppression; abolition etc. (abrogation) 756; biblioclasm; sacrifice; ravage, devastation, razzia; incendiarism; revolution etc. 146; extirpation etc. (extraction) 301; commencement de la fin [F.], road to ruin; dilapidation etc. (deterioration) 659; sabotage [F.].

v. be destroyed etc.; perish; fall, fall to the ground; tumble, topple; go–, fall- to pieces; break up; crumble, –to dust; go to -the dogs, –the wall, –smash, –shivers, –wreck, –pot [colloq.], –wrack and ruin; go by the board, go down the drain [colloq.]; be all over with, be all up with [colloq.], go to glory [colloq.], go to pieces, go under, go up the spout [colloq.], totter to its fall.

destroy; do–, make- away with nullify; annul etc. 756; sacrifice, demolish; tear up; overturn, overthrow, overwhelm; upset, subvert, put an end to seal the doom of, do for [colloq.], dish [slang], undo; break up, cut up; break down, cut down, pull down, mow down, blow down, beat down; suppress, quash, put down; cut short, take off, blot out; efface, obliterate, cancel, erase, strike out, expunge, delete, dele; dispel, dissipate, dissolve; consume.

smash, crash, quell, squash [colloq.], squelch [colloq.], crumple up, shatter, shiver; batter;

tear–, crush–, cut–, shake–, pull–, pick -to pieces; laniate [rare]; nip; tear to -rags, –tatters; crush–, knock- to atoms; ruin; strike out; throw down, throw over, knock down, knock over, lay out [slang], lay by the heels, fell, sink, swamp, scuttle, wreck, shipwreck, engulf or ingulf, submerge; lay in ashes, lay in ruins; sweep away, raze; level, –with the -ground, –dust.

deal destruction, lay waste, ravage, gut; disorganize; dismantle etc. (render useless) 645; devour, swallow up, desolate, devastate, sap, mine, blast, confound; exterminate, extinguish, quench, annihilate; snuff out, put out, stamp out, trample out; lay–, trample- in the dust; prostrate; tread–, crush–, trample- under foot; lay the ax to the root of; make short work of, make a clean sweep of, make mincemeat of; cut up root and branch; fling–, scatter- to the winds; throw overboard; strike at the root of, sap the foundations of, spring a mine, blow up; ravage with fire and sword; cast to the dogs; eradicate etc. 301.

adj. destroyed etc. v.; perishing etc. v.; trembling–, nodding–, tottering- to its fall; in course of destruction etc. n.; extinct; all-destroying, all-devouring, all-engulfing.

destructive, subversive, ruinous, incendiary, deletory [obs.]; destroying etc. n.; suicidal; deadly etc. (killing) 361.

adv. with crushing effect, with a sledge hammer.

163. Reproduction

n. reproduction, renovation; restoration etc. 660; renewal; new edition, reprint etc. (copy) 21; revival, regeneration, palingenesis, revivification; apotheosis; resuscitation, reanimation, resurrection, resurgence, reappearance; regrowth; Phoenix.

generation etc. (production) 161; multiplication.

v. reproduce; restore etc. 660; revive, renovate, renew, regenerate, revivify, resuscitate, reanimate, refashion, stir the embers, put into the crucible; multiply, repeat; resurge.

crop up, crop out, spring up like mushrooms.

adj. reproduced etc. v.; renascent, resurgent, reappearing; reproductive, proligerous [rare], progenitive, proliferous, gametal; hydra-headed; suigenetic.

164. Producer

n. producer, originator, inventor, author, founder, generator, mover, architect, grower, raiser, introducer, deviser, constructor, begetter, creator; maker etc. (agent) 690; prime mover.

165. Destroyer

n. destroyer etc. (destroy etc. 162); cankerworm etc. (bane) 663; assassin etc. (killer) 361; executioner etc. (punish) 975; biblioclast; eidoloclast, iconoclast, idoloclast; vandal, destructor [rare], Hun, nihilist.

166. Paternity

n. paternity; parentage; consanguínity etc. 11.

parent, father, sire, dad, papa, governor [Engl. slang], pater [Engl. colloq.], daddy [colloq.], paterfamilias, abba; genitor [rare], progenitor, procreator, begetter; ancestor; grandsire, grandfather; great-grandfather; fathership, fatherhood; mabap [Hind.].

motherhood, maternity, motherhead [rare], mothership; mother, dam, mamma or mama, mammy, mam [colloq.], motherkin, matriarch, materfamilias; grandmother.

stem, trunk, tree, stock, stirps, pedigree, house, lineage, line, family, tribe, sept, race, clan; genealogy, family tree, descent, extraction, birth, ancestry; forefathers, forbears, patriarchs.

adj. parental; paternal; maternal; family, ancestral, linear, patriarchal; racial, phyletic.

167. Posterity

n. posterity, progeny, breed, issue, offspring, brood, litter, seed, farrow, spawn, spat; family, children, grandchildren, heirs; great-grandchildren.

child, son, daughter, bairn, baby, kid [colloq.], papoose [Am. Ind.], imp, brat, moppet [archaic], lambkin, cub, cherub, nestling, tot, innocent, urchin, chit [colloq.]; infant etc. 129; butcha or bacha [Hind.]; bantling, scion; acrospire, plumule, shoot, sprout, olive-branch, sprit, branch; offshoot, offset; ramification; descendant; heir, heiress; heir-apparent, heir-presumptive; chip of the old block; heredity; rising generation.

lineage, straight descent, sonship, line, filiation, primogeniture.

adj. filial; diphyletic.

168. Productiveness

n. productiveness etc. adj.; fecundity, fertilization, fertility, luxuriance, uberty [obs.].

[comparisons] milch cow, rabbit, hydra, warren, seed plot, land flowing with milk and honey.

aftermath, second crop, aftercrop, aftergrowth, arrish [dial. Eng.], eddish [dial. Eng.], rowen.

multiplication, multiparity, propagation, procreation; superfetation, pregnancy, pullulation [rare], fructification.

v. make productive etc. adj.; fructify; procreate, pullulate, generate, fertilize, spermatize, impregnate; fecundate, fecundify; teem, spawn, multiply; produce etc. 161; conceive.

adj. productive, prolific, copious; teeming, teemful [dial.]; fertile, fruitful, frugiferous [obs.], fructuous [rare], plenteous, proliferous, fructiferous, fruitbearing; fecund, luxuriant; pregnant, uberous.

procreant, procreative; generative, life-giving, spermatic, inceptive, originative; multiparous; omnific; propagable.

parturient etc. (producing) 161; profitable etc. (useful) 644.

169. Unproductiveness

n. unproductiveness etc. adj.; infertility, sterility, infecundity; impotence etc. 158; unprofitableness etc. (inutility) 645.

waste, desert, Sahara, wild, karoo, wilderness, howling wilderness.

v. be unproductive etc. adj.; hang fire, flash in the pan, come to nothing.

adj. unproductive, acarpous, inoperative, barren, addle, unfertile, unprolific, arid, sterile, unfruitful, infecund, [rare], jejune, infertile; useless, otiose; sine prole [L.]; fallow; teemless, issueless, fruitless, infructuose [rare]; unprofitable etc. (useless) 645; null and void, of no effect.

170. Agency

n. agency, operation, force, working, strain, function, office, maintenance, exercise, work, swing, play; interworking, interaction; procuration procurement.

causation etc. 153; mediation, intermediation, instrumentality etc. 631; conation, influence etc. 175; action etc. (voluntary) 680; modus operandi [L.] etc. 627.

quickening–, maintaining–, sustaining- power; home stroke.

v. be in action etc. adj.; operate, work; act, act upon; perform, play, support, sustain, strain, maintain, take effect, quicken, strike.

come–, bring- into -operation, –play; have play, have free play; bring to bear upon.

adj. operative, operant [rare], efficient, efficacious, practical, exertive, conative, effectual.

at work, on foot; acting etc. (doing) 680; in operation, in force, in action, in play, in exercise; acted upon, wrought upon.

adv. by the agency of etc. n.; through etc. (instrumentality) 631; by means of etc. 632.

171. Energy

n. energy, physical energy, force; keenness etc. adj.; intensity, vigor, backbone [colloq.], vim [colloq.], mettle, vis viva [L.], vis vitae [L.], pep [slang], ginger [slang], go [colloq.]; strength, elasticity; high pressure; fire; rush; human dynamo.

activity, agitation, effervescence; ferment, fermentation; ebullition, splutter, perturbation, stir, bustle; voluntary energy etc. 682; quicksilver.

exertion etc. (effort) 686; excitation etc. (mental) 824; resolution etc. (mental energy) 604.

acrimony, acridity, acritude [obs.]; causticity, virulence, poignancy; harshness etc. adj.; severity, edge, point; pungency etc. 392.

excitant, stimulant; Spanish fly, cantharides; seasoning etc. (condiment) 393.

v. give energy etc. n.; energize, stimulate, kindle, excite, exert; activate, potentialize [rare], dynamize, doubleshot; sharpen, intensify; inflame etc. (render violent) 173; wind up etc. (strengthen) 159.

strike, –into, –hard, –home; make an impression.

adj. energetic, strong, forcible, active, strenuous, forceful, mettlesome, enterprising; go-ahead [colloq.]; intense, deep-dyed, severe, keen, vivid, sharp, acute, incisive, trenchant, brisk.

rousing, irritating; poignant; virulent, caustic, corrosive, mordant, harsh, stringent; double-edged, double-shotted, double-distilled; drastic, escharotic; racy etc. (pungent) 392; excitant, excitative, excitatory.

potent etc. (powerful) 157; radioactive.

adv. strongly etc. adj.; fortiter in re [L.]; with telling effect.

172. Inertness

n. inertness, physical inertness, inertia, vis inertiae [L.], inertion, inactivity, torpor, languor; dormancy, fainéance [F.], quiescence etc. 265; latency, inaction; passivity; stagnation; dullness etc. adj.

mental inertness; sloth etc. (inactivity) 683; inexcitability etc. 826; irresolution etc. 605; obstinacy etc. 606; permanence etc. 141.

v. be inert etc. adj.; hang fire, smolder or smoulder.

adj. inert, inactive, passive; torpid etc. 683; sluggish, stagnant, fainéant [F.], dull, heavy, flat, slack, tame, slow, blunt; lifeless, dead, uninfluential.

latent, dormant, smoldering or smouldering, unexerted.

adv. inactively etc. adj.; in suspense, in abeyance.

173. Violence

n. violence, inclemency, vehemence, might, impetuosity, furiosity [rare]; boisterousness etc. adj.; effervescence, ebullition; turbulence, bluster; uproar, callithump, riot, row [colloq.], rumpus, le diable à quatre [F.], devil to pay [colloq.], the fat in the fire [colloq.].

ferocity, rage, fury; exacerbation, exasperation, malignity; severity etc. 739.

force, brute force; outrage; coup de main [F.]; strain, shock, shog [rare].

fit, paroxysm, spasm, convulsion, throe; hysterics, passion etc. (state of excitability) 825; orgasm, aphrodisia.

outbreak, outburst; debacle; burst, bounce, dissilience [rare], discharge, volley, explosion, blow-up, blast, detonation, rush, eruption, displosion [obs.], torrent.

turmoil etc. (disorder) 59; ferment etc. (agitation) 315; storm, tempest, rough weather; squall etc. (wind) 349; earthquake, volcano, thunderstorm.

fury, berserk, dragon, demon, tiger, beldam or beldame, madcap, wild beast; fire eater [colloq.] etc. (blusterer) 887; Erinys (pl. Erinyes), Eumenides, Tisiphone, Megaera, Alecto.

v. be violent etc. adj.; run high; ferment, effervesce; romp, rampage; run wild, run riot; break the peace; rush, tear; rush headlong, rush headforemost; run amuck, raise a storm, make a riot; make–, kick up- a row [colloq.]; rough-house [slang]; bluster, rage, roar, riot, storm; boil, boil over; fume, foam, come in like a lion, wreak, bear down, ride roughshod, out-Herod Herod; spread like wildfire.

explode, go off, displode [obs.], detonate, detonize, fulminate, let off, let fly, discharge, thunder, blow up, flash, flare, burst; shock, strain.

break open, force open, prize open, pry open; break out, fly out, burst out.

render violent etc. adj.; sharpen, stir up, quicken, excite, incite, urge, lash, stimulate; irritate, inflame, kindle, suscitate [obs.], foment; accelerate, aggravate, exasperate, exacerbate, convulse, infuriate, madden, lash into fury; fan the flame, add fuel to the flame; oleum addere camino [L.].

adj. violent, vehement; warm; acute, sharp; rough, tough [colloq.], vicious [colloq.], rude, ungentle, bluff, boisterous, wild; brusque, abrupt, waspish; impetuous; rampant.

turbulent; disorderly; blustering, towering, raging etc. v.; troublous, riotous; tumultuary, tumultuous; obstreperous, uproarious; extravagant; unmitigated, immitigable; ravening, tameless; frenzied etc. (insane) 503; desperate etc. (rash) 863; infuriate, furious, outrageous, frantic, hysteric, in hysterics.

fiery, flaming, scorching, hot, red-hot, ebullient.

savage, fierce, ferocious, fierce as a tiger.

excited etc. v.; unquelled, unquenched, unextinguished, unrepressed, unbridled, unruly; headstrong; ungovernable, unappeasable, unmitigable; uncontrollable, incontrollable; insuppressible, irrepressible; orgastic.

spasmodic, convulsive, explosive; detonating etc. v.; volcanic, meteoric; stormy etc. (wind) 349.

adv. violently etc. adj.; amain; by storm, by force, by main force; with might and main; tooth and nail, vi et armis [L.], at the point of the -sword, –bayonet; at one fell swoop; with a high hand, through thick and thin; in desperation, with a vengeance; à outrance [F.], à toute outrance [F.]; headlong, headfirst, headforemost.

aphrodisiac, aphrodisiacal, aphroditous.

174. Moderation

n. moderation; lenity etc. 740; temperateness, temperance, passability, passableness, gentleness etc. adj.; sobriety; quiet; mental calmness etc. (inexcitability) 826.

moderating etc. v.; anaphrodisia; relaxation, remission, mitigation, tranquilization, assuagement, alleviation, contemporation [obs.], pacification.

mean, measure, juste milieu [F.], golden mean, meden agan [Gr.], ariston metron [Gr.].

moderator; lullaby, sedative, calmative, lenitive, palliative, demulcent, antispasmodic, carminative; laudanum; rose water, balm, poppy, chloroform, opium: soothing sirup, opiate, anodyne, milk.

v. be moderate etc. adj.; keep within -bounds, –compass; sober down, settle down; keep the peace, remit, relent; take in sail.

moderate, soften, mitigate, temper, accoy [obs.]; attemper, contemper [obs.], mollify, lenify [rare], dulcify, dull, take off the edge, blunt, obtund, sheathe, subdue, chasten; sober down, tone down, smooth down, slow down; weaken etc. 160; lessen etc. (decrease) 36; check; palliate.

tranquilize, assuage, appease, suage or swage [dial.], lull, soothe, compose, still, calm, cool, quiet, hush, quell, sober, pacify, tame, damp, lay, allay, rebate [archaic], slacken, smooth, alleviate, rock to sleep, deaden, smother; throw cold water on, throw a wet blanket over; slake; curb etc. (restrain) 751; tame etc. (subjugate) 749; smooth over; pour oil on the -waves, –troubled waters; pour balm into; mettre de l'eau dans son vin [F.].

go out like a lamb, "roar you as gently as any sucking dove" [Midsummer Night's Dream].

adj. moderate; lenient etc. 740; gentle, mild; cool, sober, temperate, reasonable, measured; tempered etc. v.; calm, laid back [slang], unruffled, quiet, tranquil, still; slow, smooth, untroubled; tame; peaceful, peaceable; pacific, halcyon.

unexciting, unirritating; soft, bland, oily, demulcent, lenitive, anodyne; hypnotic etc. 683; sedative, calmative, assuaging, assuasive, calmant; antiorgastic, anaphrodisiac.

mild as mother's milk, mild as milk, milk and water, gentle as a lamb.

adv. moderately etc. adj.; gingerly; piano; under easy sail, at half speed, in moderation; within bounds, within compass; in reason.

175. Influence

n. influence; importance etc. 642; weight, pressure, preponderance, prevalence, sway; predominance, predominancy; ascendancy; dominance, reign; control, domination, pull [colloq.]; authority etc. 737; power, potency, capability etc. (power) 157; interest; spell, magic, magnetism.

footing; purchase etc. (support) 215; play, leverage, vantage ground, advantage.

tower of strength, host in himself; protection, patronage, auspices; patron etc. (auxiliary) 711.

v. have influence etc. n.; be influential etc. adj.; carry weight, sway, bias, actuate, weigh, tell; have a hold upon, magnetize, bear upon, gain a footing, work upon; take root, take hold; strike root in.

pervade, run through; spread like wildfire, be rife etc. adj.; rage, gain head.

dominate, subject, predominate; outweigh, overweigh; override, overbear; have–, get–, gain--the upper hand, –full play; prevail.

be recognized, be listened to; make one's voice heard, gain a hearing; play a -part, –leading part- in; lead, control, rule, manage, master, get the mastery of, get control of, make one's influence felt; take the lead, pull strings; wind round one's finger; turn–, throw one's weight into the scale; set the fashion, lead the dance.

adj. influential, effective, effectual [rare], potent; important etc. 642; weighty; prevailing etc. v.; prevalent, rife, rampant, dominant, regnant, predominant, in the ascendant, hegemonical; authoritative, recognized, telling.

adv. with telling effect, with authority.

175a. Absence of Influence

n. impotence etc. 158; powerlessness; inertness etc. 172; irrelevancy etc. 10.

v. have no influence etc. 175.

adj. uninfluential; unconducing [rare], nonconductive, unconductive; forceless, powerless etc. 158; irrelevant etc. 10.

176. Tendency

n. tendency; aptness, aptitude; proneness, proclivity, bent, turn, tone, bias, set, warp, leaning (with to or towards), predisposition, inclination, tendence [rare], propensity, susceptibility; conatus, conation [obs.], nisus; liability etc. 177; quality, nature, temperament; idiocrasy, idiosyncrasy; cast, vein, grain; humor, mood; trend; drift etc. (direction) 278; conduciveness, conducement; applicability etc. (utility) 644; subservience etc. (instrumentality) 631.

v. tend, contribute, conduce, lead, influence, dispose, incline, verge, bend to, warp, turn, work towards, trend, affect, carry, redound to, bid fair to, gravitate towards; promote etc. (aid) 707.

adj. tending etc. v.; conative, conducent [obs.], conducive, working towards, in a fair way to, likely to, calculated to; liable etc. 177; subservient etc. (instrumental) 631; useful etc. 644; subsidiary etc. (helping) 707; idiocratic, indiosyncratic, idiosyncratical.

adv. for, whither; for the purpose of.

177. Liability

n. liability, liableness; possibility, contingency; susceptivity, susceptiveness, susceptibility.

v. be liable etc. adj.; incur, lay oneself open to, be subjected to, run the chance, stand a chance; lie under, expose oneself to, open a door to.

adj. liable, subject, susceptive; in danger etc. 665; open to, exposed to, obnoxious to; answerable, responsible, accountable, amenable; unexempt from; apt to; dependent on; incident to.

contingent, incidental, possible, on the cards, within range of, at the mercy of.

178. Concurrence

n. concurrence, coöperation, coagency; union; coadunation, coaction [rare], coworking [rare], synergy, collaboration, conformity, conformableness, agreement etc. 23; consilience;

consent etc. (assent) 488; alliance; concert etc. 709; partnership etc. 712.

v. concur, conduce, conspire, contribute; agree, unite, harmonize, jibe [colloq.], coadunate, combine; hang–, pull- together etc. (coöperate) 709; help to etc. (aid) 707.

keep pace with, run parallel; go with, go along with, go hand in hand with.

adj. concurring etc. v.; concurrent, conformable, corresponsive [rare], joint, coöperative, concomitant, coincident, concordant, harmonious, consentaneous [archaic]; coadunate, coadunative, consilient, in alliance with, banded together, of one mind, at one with.

adv. with one consent.

179. Counteraction

n. counteraction, opposition; contrariety etc. 14; antagonism, polarity; clashing etc. v.; collision, interference, resistance, renitency, friction; reaction; retroaction etc. (recoil) 277; counterblast; neutralization etc. (compensation) 30; vis inertiae [L.]; check etc. (hindrance) 706.

voluntary opposition etc. 708; voluntary resistance etc. 719; repression etc. (restraint) 751.

v. counteract; run counter, clash, cross; interfere with, conflict with; contravene; jostle; go–, run–, beat–, militate- against; stultify; antagonize, frustrate, oppose etc. 708; traverse; overcome, overpower, withstand etc. (resist) 719; impede, hinder etc. 706; repress etc. (restrain) 751; react etc. (recoil) 277.

undo, neutralize, offset, cancel; counterpoise etc. (compensate) 30; overpoise.

adj. counteracting etc. v.; antagonistic, conflicting, retroactive, renitent, reactionary; contrary etc. 14.

adv. although etc. 30; against; mauger, malgre [obs.], malgrado [obs.], notwithstanding; in spite of etc. 708.

Class 2. Space

Section 1. Space in General

180. Space

[indefinite space]

n. space, extension, extent, superficial extent, expanse, stretch; room, accommodation, capacity, scope, range, latitude, field, way, expansion, compass, sweep, play, swing, spread.

spare room, elbowroom, houseroom; leeway, seaway, headway, stowage, roomage [obs.], tankage, margin; opening, sphere, arena.

open space, free space; void etc. (absence) 187; waste, desert, wild; wildness [obs.], wilderness; moor, down, downs, upland, moorland; prairie, steppe, llano [Sp. Amer.], campagna.

unlimited space; heavens, ether, plenum, infinity etc. 105; world, wide world; ubiquity etc. (presence) 186; length and breadth of the land; abyss etc. (interval) 198.

proportions, acreage; acres, –roods and perches; square -inches, –yards etc.; ares, arpents.

adj. spacious, roomy, extensive, expansive, capacious, ample; widespread, vast, world-wide, wide, far-flung, vasty [rare], uncircumscribed; boundless etc. (infinite) 105; shoreless, trackless, pathless; extended; beyond the verge, far as the eye can see.

adv. extensively etc. adj.; wherever; everywhere; far and -near, –wide; right and left, all over, all the world over; throughout the world, –length and breadth of the land; under the sun, in every quarter; in all -quarters, –lands; here, there, and everywhere; from pole to pole, from China to Peru [Johnson], from Indus to the pole [Pope], from Dan to Beersheba, from end to end; on the face of the earth, in the wide world, on the face of the waters, "from the four corners of the earth" [Merchant of Venice], from all points of the compass; to the four winds, to the uttermost parts of the earth.

180a. Inextension

n. inextension, nonextension, point, dot, speck, spot, pinprick, tittle; atom etc. (small, ness) 32.

181. Region

[definite space]

n. region, sphere, ground, soil, area, realm, hemisphere, quarter, orb, circuit, circle; pale etc. (limit) 233; compartment, department; clearing; domain, tract, terrain, dominion, colony, commonwealth, territory, country, fatherland, motherland.

canton, county, shire, province, arrondissement [F.], mofussil [India], parish, diocese, township, commune, ward, wapentake [hist.], hundred, riding, soke [hist.], tithing, bailiwick; principality, duchy, palatinate, archduchy, dukedom, kingdom, empire.

precinct, arena, enceinte [F.], walk, march, district, beat; patch, plot, inclosure, close, enclave, field, garth, court; street etc. (abode) 189; paddock etc. (inclosure) 232.

clime, climate, zone, meridian, latitude.

adj. territorial, local, parochial, provincial, regional, insular.

ins and outs; every hole and corner.

adv. somewhere, in some place, wherever it may be, here and there, in various places, passim [L.].

182. Place

[limited space]

n. place, lieu, spot, whereabouts, point, dot; niche, nook etc. (corner) 244; hole; pigeonhole etc. (receptacle) 191; compartment; confine, premises, precinct, station; area, courtyard, square, place [F.], piazza [It.], plaza [Sp.], forum [L.], agora [Gr.], hamlet, village etc. (abode) 189; pen etc. (inclosure) 232; countryside, location, site, locality etc. (situation) 183.

183. Situation

n. situation, position, locality, locale (properly, local), status, latitude and longitude; footing, standing, standpoint, post; stage; aspect, attitude, posture, set [colloq.], pose.

place, site, situs, station, seat, venue, whereabouts, environment, ground; bearings etc. (direction) 278; spot etc. (limited space) 182.

topography, geography, chorography; map etc. 554.

v. be situated, be situate, be located; lie; have its seat in.

adj. situate, situated; local, topical, topographical etc. n.

adv. in situ [L.], in loco [L.]; here and there, passim [L.]; hereabouts, thereabouts, whereabouts; in place, here, there.

in–, amidst- such and such- -surroundings, –environs, -entourage [F.].

184. Location

n. location, localization; lodgment; deposition, reposition; stowage; collocation; packing, lading; establishment, settlement, installation; fixation; insertion etc. 300.

anchorage, roadstead, mooring, encampment.

settlement, plantation, colony, cantonment; situation; quarters, barracks; habitation etc. (abode) 189; "a local habitation and a name" [Midsummer Night's Dream].

domestication, cohabitation, colonization; endenization [obs.], naturalization.

v. place, situate, locate, localize, make a place for, put, lay, set, seat, station, lodge, quarter, post, install; house, stow; establish, fix, pin, root; graft; plant etc. (insert) 300; shelve, pitch, camp, lay down, deposit, reposit, store, store away, cradle; moor, tether, picket; pack, tuck in; embed, imbed; vest, invest in.

billet on, quarter upon, saddle with.

load, lade, stevedore, freight; pocket, put up, bag.

inhabit etc. (be present) 186; domesticate, colonize, found, people; take root, strike root; anchor; cast–, come to an- anchor; sit down, settle down; settle; take up one's -abode, –quarters; plant–, establish–, locate- oneself; have one's legal residence at; hang out one's shingle [colloq.]; squat, perch, hive, se nicher [F.], bivouac, burrow, get a footing; encamp, pitch one's tent; put up -at, –one's horses at; keep house.

naturalize, endenizen [rare], adopt.

put back, replace etc. (restore) 660.

adj. placed etc. v.; situate, posited, ensconced, imbedded, embosomed, rooted; domesticated; vested in, unremoved.

moored etc. v.; at anchor.

185. Displacement

n. displacement, elocation [obs.], heterotopy, transposition.

ejectment etc. 297; exile etc. (banishment) 893.

removal etc. (transference) 270; unshipment, transshipment or transshipment, unplacement [rare], moving, shift.

misplacement, dislocation etc. 61; fish out of water.

v. displace, displant, dislodge, disestablish; misplace, unplace [rare], translocate [rare], unseat, disturb, disniche; exile etc. (seclude) 893; ablegate [obs.], set aside, remove; take away, cart away; take off, draft off; lade etc. 184.

unload, empty etc. (eject) 297; transfer etc. 270; dispel.

vacate; depart etc. 293.

adj. displaced etc. v.; unplaced, unhoused, unharbored, unestablished, unsettled; houseless, homeless, harborless [archaic]; out of place, out of a situation.

misplaced, out of its element.

186. Presence

n. presence, presentness, occupancy, occupation; attendance.

permeation, pervasion; diffusion etc. (dispersion) 73.

whereness, ubiety, ubiquity, ubiquitariness; omnipresence.

bystander etc. (spectator) 444.

v. be present etc. adj.; assister [F.]; make one -of, –at; look on, attend, remain; find–, present-oneself; show one's face; fall in the way of, occur in a place; exist in space, lie, stand; occupy.

inhabit, dwell, reside, stay, sojourn, live, abide, lodge, bunk, room, nestle, roost [colloq.], perch; take up one's abode etc. (be located) 184; tenant; people.

frequent, resort to, haunt; revisit.

pervade, permeate; be diffused through, be disseminated through; overspread, overrun; fill, run through; meet one at every turn.

adj. present; occupying, inhabiting etc. v.; moored etc. 184; resiant [obs.], resident, residential, residentiary; domiciled.

ubiquitous, ubiquitary; omnipresent; universally present.

peopled, populous, full of people, inhabited.

adv. here, there, where, everywhere, aboard, on board, at home, afield; on the spot; here there and everywhere etc. (space) 180; in presence of, before; under the eyes of, under the nose of; in the face of; in propria persona [L.].

187. Absence

[nullibicity]

n. nullibicity, nullibiety [rare], absence; awayness [rare], cut [colloq.]; inexistence etc. 2; nonresidence, absenteeism; nonattendance, alibi.

emptiness etc. adj.; void, vacuum; vacuity [rare], vacancy, voidness [rare], tabula rasa [L.]; exemption; hiatus etc. (interval) 198; lipotype.

truant, absentee.

nobody; nobody -present, –on earth; not a soul; no man, nix [slang].

v. be absent etc. adj.; keep away, keep out of the way; play truant, absent oneself, stay away; slip off, slip out, slip away; keep–, hold- aloof.

withdraw, make oneself scarce [colloq.], retreat, retire, vacate; go away etc. 293.

adj. absent, not present, away, nonresident, gone, from home; missing; lost; wanting; omitted; nowhere to be found; inexistent etc. 2.

empty, void; vacant, vacuous; blank, null; untenanted, unoccupied, uninhabited; tenantless; desert, deserted; devoid; unhabitable, uninhabitable.

exempt from, not having.

adv. without, minus, nowhere; elsewhere; neither here nor there; in default of; sans; behind one's back.

188. Inhabitant

n. inhabitant; resident, residentiary; dweller, indweller, habitant [rare]; addressee; occupier, occupant; householder, lodger, roomer, inmate, tenant, incumbent, sojourner, locum tenens [L.], commorant; settler, squatter, backwoodsman, colonist; islander; denizen, citizen; burgher, oppidan, cockney, cit [colloq.], townsman, burgess; villager; cottager, cottier, cotter; compatriot; backsettler, boarder; hotel keeper, innkeeper; habitant; paying guest; planter.

native, indigene [rare], aborigines, autochthon (pl. autochthones), aboriginal; newcomer etc. (stranger) 57.

American; Briton, Englishman, Britisher, John Bull; Canadian, Canuck [slang]; downeaster; Scot, Scotchman, Scotsman, Caledonian; Hibernian, Irishman, Paddywhack, Paddy, Mick, Teague, Greek or Grecian [slang]; Welshman, Cambrian, Taffy; Frenchman, Parleyvoo, Frog or Froggy [slang]; Chinaman, Celestial; Uncle Sam, Yankee, Brother Jonathan.

people etc. (mankind) 372; colony, settlement; household; mir [Russia]; garrison, crew; population.

v. inhabit etc. (be present) 186; endenizen [rare] etc. (locate oneself) 184.

adj. indigenous; native, natal; autochthonal, autochthonous; British, English; American; Canadian; Irish, Hibernian; Scotch, Scottish; Welsh, Cambrian; French, Gallic; Chinese, Celestial, Sinaean, Sinaic or Sinic [rare]; domestic; domiciliated, domiciled; naturalized, vernacular, domesticated; domiciliary; colonial.

occupied by, in the occupation of; garrisoned by.

189. Abode

[place of habitation, or resort]

n. abode, dwelling, lodging, domicile, residence, address, habitation, where one's lot is cast, local habitation, berth, diggings [colloq.], seat, lap, sojourn, housing, pad [slang], quarters, headquarters, resiance [obs.], tabernacle, throne, ark.

home, fatherland, motherland, country; homestead, home stall [Eng.], fireside; hearth, hearthstone; chimney corner, ingleside; harem, seraglio, zenana; household gods, lares et penates [L.], roof, household, housing, dulce domum [L.], paternal domicile; native soil, native land, "God's country," down home [colloq.]

quarter, parish etc. (region) 181.

retreat, haunt, resort; nest, nidus, snuggery [colloq.], arbor, bower etc. 191; lair, den, cave, hole, hiding place, cell, sanctum sanctorum, aerie, eyrie or eyry, rookery, hive; habitat, covert, perch, roost; nidification; kala jagâh [Hind.].

camp, bivouac, encampment, cantonment; castrametation; barrack, casemate, casern or caserne; tent etc. 223.

tenement, messuage, farm, farmhouse, grange, hacienda [Sp. Amer.], toft [Scot., and dial. Eng.].

cot, cabin, hut, chalet or chalet [F.], croft, shed, booth, stall, hovel, bothy or boothy, shanty, dugout [U.S.], wigwam; pen etc. (inclosure) 232; barn, bawn [obs.], kennel, sty, doghole, cote, coop, hutch; byre, cowhouse, cowshed, cowbyre; stable, dovecote, columbary, columbarium; shippen [dial.]; igloo or iglu [Eskimo], jacal; lacustrine–, lake–, pile- dwelling; log cabin, log house; shack [colloq.], shebang [slang], tepee, topek.

house, mansion, place, villa, cottage, box, lodge, hermitage, rus in urbe [L.], folly, rotunda, tower, château [F.], castle, pavilion, hotel, court, manor-house, messuage, hall, palace; kiosk, brownstone, bungalow, chummery [esp. Anglo-Indian], casa [Sp., Pg. and It.], country seat; apartment–, frame–, ranch–, shingle- house; duplex, flat, high-rise, tenement; building etc. (construction) 161; room, chamber etc. (receptacle) 191; buildings, mews.

hamlet, village, bustee or basti [Hind.], thorp or thrope, dorp, kraal [S. Africa], rancho [Sp. Amer.].

town, borough, burgh, ham [now used only in compounds], city, capital, metropolis; suburb; provincial town, county town, county seat; courthouse; ghetto.

street, place, terrace, parade, esplanade, alameda [Sp.], board walk, embankment, road, row, lane, alley, court, quadrangle, quad [colloq.], wynd [dial.], close, yard, passage.

square, polygon, circus, crescent, mall, piazza, arcade, colonnade, peristyle, cloister; gardens, grove, residences; block of buildings, market place, place [F.], plaza.

anchorage, roadstead, roads; dock, basin, wharf, quay, port, harbor.

assembly room, auditorium, concert hall, armory, gymnasium; cathedral, church, chapel, meetinghouse etc. (temple) 1000; parliament etc. (council) 696.

inn, hostel [archaic], hostelry [archaic], hotel, tavern, caravansary or caravanserai, xenodochium, dak bungalow [India], khan, hospice; public house, alehouse, pothouse, mughouse; gin palace; bar, barroom cocktail lounge; cabaret, chophouse; club, clubhouse; cookshop, dive; grill room, saloon, shebeen [Irish and Scot.]; coffee-house, eating-house; canteen, restaurant, buffet, café, estaminet [F.], posada [Sp.]

almshouse, flophouse, poorhouse, townhouse.

garden, park, pleasure ground, pleasance or plaisance [archaic], demesne.

sanatorium. health resort, Hill station or the Hills [India], health retreat, sanitarium, spa, watering-place, pump room.

v. inhabit etc. (be present) 186; take up one's abode etc. (locate oneself) 184.

adj. urban, oppidan [rare], metropolitan; suburban; provincial, rural, rustic, agrestic, country, countrified, regional; domestic; cosmopolitan; palatial.

190. Contents

[things contained]

n. contents; cargo, lading, freight, shipment, load, bale, burden, jag [Engl. colloq.]; cartload, shipload; cup of, basket of etc. (receptacle) 191; inside etc. 221; stuffing.

v. load, lade, ship, charge, weight, pile, fill, stuff.

191. Receptacle

n. receptacle, container; inclosure etc. 232; recipient, receiver, reservatory [obs.].

compartment; cell, cellule; follicle; hole, corner, niche, recess, nook; crypt, stall, pigeonhole, cove, oriel; cave etc. (concavity) 252; mouth.

capsule, vesicle, cyst, pod, calyx, cancelli, utricle, bladder; pericarp, udder.

stomach, paunch, belly, venter, ventricle, inglu-vies, crop, craw, maw, gizzard, breadbasket [slang], Little Mary [slang]; omasum, manyplies, abomasum, rumen, reticulum.

bag, sac, sack, saccule, wallet, pocket, pouch, fob, sheath, scabbard, socket, cardcase, scrip [archaic], poke [chiefly dial.], knapsack, haversack, satchel, reticule, budget [dial.], net; ditty-bag, –box; housewife or hussif; saddlebags; portfolio; quiver etc. (magazine) 636.

case, chest, box, coffer, caddy, casket; pyx or pix, monstrance [R. C. Ch.]; caisson; desk, bureau, reliquary, shrine; trunk, portmanteau, bandbox, valise, grip or gripsack [colloq.], suitcase, handbag, Boston bag, school bag, brief case, travelingbag, Gladstone or Gladstone bag; skippet, vasculum; boot, imperial [now rare]; vache [F.]; cage, manger, rack.

vessel, vase, bushel, barrel; canister, jar; pottle, basket, pannier; buck basket, clothes basket, hopper, maund [obs.], creel, cran or crane [Scot.], crate, cradle, bassinet, whisket or wisket [dial. Eng.]; jardinière [F.], corbeille [F.], hamper, dosser or dorser, tray, hod, scuttle, utensil; brazier; cuspidor, spittoon.

[for liquids] cistern etc. (store) 636; vat, caldron or cauldron, barrel, cask, puncheon, keg, rundlet, tun, butt, firkin, kilderkin, carboy, amphora, bottle, jar, decanter, ewer, cruse, carafe, crock, kit [dial. Eng.], canteen, flagon; demijohn; flask, flasket; stoup or stoop, noggin, vial, phial, cruet, caster; urn, epergne, salver, patella, tazza [It.], patera; piggin; biggin, percolator, coffeepot, coffee urn, teapot, tea urn, samovar; tig or tyg [dial. Eng.], nipperkin [now rare], pocket pistol [slang], tub, bucket, pail, skeel [dial.], pot, tankard, jug, pitcher, mug, pipkin; gallipot; matrass or mattrass, receiver, retort, alembic, bolthead, capsule, can, kettle; bowl, basin, jorum [colloq.], punch bowl, cup, goblet, chalice, tumbler, glass, rummer, horn, saucepan, skillet, posnet [obs.], tureen, stein.

bail, beaker, billy [Australia], cannikin or canakin; catch basin, catch drain; chatti or chatty [India], lota or lotah [India], mussuk or mussuck [India]; schooner, spider, terrine, toby, urceus [L.].

plate, platter, dish, trencher, calabash, porringer, potager [obs.], saucer, pan, crucible; glassware, tableware; vitrics.

ladle, dipper, tablespoon, spoon; shovel, trowel, spatula.

cupboard, closet, commode, cellaret, chiffonier or chiffonnier, chiffonnière [F.], locker, bin, bunker, buffet, press, clothespress, safe, sideboard, drawer, chest of drawers, till, escritoire, scrutoire [obs.], secretary, secrétaire [F.], davenport, bookcase, cabinet, canterbury; étagère [F.], vargueno, vitrine.

chamber, apartment, room, cabin; office, court, hall, atrium; suite of rooms, apartment, flat, story; saloon, salon [F.], parlor; by-room, cubicle; presence chamber; living–, sitting–, drawing–, reception–, state-room; best room [colloq.], keeping room [dial. Eng.]; gallery, cabinet, closet; pew, box; boudoir; adytum, sanctum; bedroom, dormitory; refectory, dining room, salle-à-manger [F.]; nursery, schoolroom; library, study; studio; billiard room, bathroom, lavatory, toilet, powder room, smoking room; den; state room, tablinum, tenement.

attic, loft, garret, cockloft, clerestory; cellar, vault, hold, cockpit; cubbyhole; cook house; entre-sol [F.]; mezzanine or mezzanine floor; ground floor, rez-de-chaussée [F.], basement, kitchen, pantry, bawarchi-khana [Hind.], scullery, offices; storeroom etc. (depository) 636; lumber room; dairy, laundry, coach house; garage; hangar; outhouse, penthouse; lean-to.

portico, porch, stoop [U.S.], veranda, lobby, court, hall, vestibule, corridor, passage; anteroom, antechamber; lounge; piazza [= veranda, U.S.].

bower, arbor, summerhouse, alcove, grotto, hermitage; conservatory, greenhouse.

lodging etc. (abode) 189; bed etc. (support) 215.

carriage etc. (vehicle) 272.

adj. capsular; saccular, sacculated; recipient; ventricular, cystic, vascular, vesicular, cellular, camerated, locular, multilocular, polygastric; gastric, stomachic, gasteral [rare]; marsupial; siliquose, siliquous.

Section 2. Dimensions

192. Size

n. size, magnitude, dimension, bulk, volume; largeness etc. adj.; greatness etc. (of quantity) 31; expanse etc. (space) 180; amplitude, mass; proportions.

capacity; tonnage or tunnage; cordage; caliber or calibre; scantling [obs.].

corpulence, obesity; plumpness etc. adj.; embonpoint [F.], corporation [colloq.], flesh and blood, lustihood; turgidity etc. (expansion) 194.

hugeness etc. adj.; enormity, immensity; monstrosity.

giant, Brobdingnagian, Antaeus, Goliath, Polyphemus, Colossus, Titan, Titaness, Briareus,

Norn, Hercules, Cyclops, Gog and Magog, Gargantua, King Kong; monster, mammoth, cachalot, whale, porpoise, behemoth, leviathan, elephant, jumbo, hippopotamus; colossus.

lump, bulk, block, loaf, mass, swad [slang], clod, nugget, tun, cord, bushel; thumper [slang], whopper or whapper [colloq.], spanker [slang], strapper [slang]; "Triton among the minnows" [Coriolanus].

mountain, mound; heap etc. (assemblage) 72.

full-size, life-size; largest portion etc. 50.

v. be large etc. adj.; become large etc. (expand) 194.

adj. large, big; great etc. (in quantity) 31; considerable, bulky, voluminous, ample, massive, massy; capacious, comprehensive, spacious etc. 180; mighty, towering, fine, magnificent.

stout, corpulent, fat, plump, squab, full, lusty, strapping [colloq.], bouncing; portly, burly, well-fed, full-grown; corn-fed, gram-fed [Anglo-Ind.]; stalwart, brawny, fleshy; goodly; in good -case, –condition; in condition, in shape; chopping, jolly; club-faced [obs.], chubby-faced.

large as life; plump as a -dumpling, –partridge; fat as -a pig, –a quail, –butter, –brawn, –bacon [all colloq.].

hulky, hulking, unwieldy, lumpish, lubberly, gaunt, spanking [slang.], whacking [colloq.], whopping [colloq.], thumping [colloq.], thundering [colloq.], overgrown; puffy etc. (swollen) 194.

huge, immense, enormous, titanic, mighty; vast, vasty [archaic]; stupendous; monster, monstrous; gigantic; elephantine; giant, giantlike; colossal, Cyclopean, Brobdingnagian, Gargantuan; infinite etc. 105.

193. Littleness

n. littleness etc. adj.; smallness etc. (of quantity) 32; exiguity, inextension; parvitude [rare], parvity [obs.]; duodecimo; epitome; microcosm; rudiment; vanishing point; thinness etc. 203.

dwarf, pygmy or pigmy, Liliputian, Negrito, Negrillo; chit, fingerling [rare], Pigwiggen, pigwidgeon [rare], urchin, elf; atomy, dandiprat [archaic], doll, puppet; Tom Thumb, hop-o'-my-thumb; manikin or mannikin; micromorph [rare], homunculus, dapperling.

mite, insect, arthropod, ephemerid, ephemera, bug [pop.], larva, emmet, fly, midge, gnat, shrimp, minnow, worm, maggot, grub; tit, tomtit, runt, mouse, small fry; millet seed, mustard seed; barleycorn; pebble, grain of sand; molehill, button, bubble.

atom, monad, animalcule, animalculum (pl. animalcula), diatom, dyad, triad, tetrad, pentad, hexad, heptad, octad, molecule, microbe, germ, microörganism, bacterium (pl. bacteria), microphyte, microzyme, amoeba, microzoa, entozoön (pl. entozoa), phytozoaria, infusoria.

particle etc. (small quantity) 32; point, micron; scintilla; fragment etc. (small part) 51; powder etc. 330; point of a pin, mathematical point; minutiae etc. (unimportance) 643.

micrography; micrometer, microscope, interferometer, vernier; scale.

v. be little etc. adj.; lie in a nutshell; become small etc. (decrease) 36, (contract) 195.

adj. little; small etc. (in quantity) 32; minute, diminutive, microscopic; inconsiderable etc. (unimportant) 643; exiguous, puny, runty, tiny, wee [colloq.], petty, minikin [obs.], miniature, pygmy or pigmy, elfin; undersized; dwarf, dwarfed, dwarfish; spare, stunted, limited; cramp, cramped; pollard, Liliputian, Negritic, dapper, pocket; portative, portable; duodecimo; dumpy, squat; short etc. 201.

impalpable, intangible, evanescent, imperceptible, invisible, inappreciable, infinitesimal, homeopathic; rudimentary, rudimental; embryonic, vestigial.

animalcular, amoebic, amoeboid, diatomaceous, diatomic, microzoal, microbial, microbic, molecular, atomic, corpuscular.

scant, weazen [obs.], scraggy, scrubby; thin etc. (narrow) 203; granular etc. (powdery) 330; shrunk etc. 195; brevipennate.

adv. in a small compass, in a nutshell; on a small scale.

194. Expansion

n. expansion, dilation, expansibleness; increase etc. 35 -of size; enlargement, extension, augmentation; amplification, ampliation; aggrandizement, spread, increment, growth, development, pullulation [rare], swell, dilatation, rarefaction; turgescence or turgescency, turgidness, turgidity; dispansion [obs.]; obesity etc. (size) 192; hydrocephalus, hydrophthalmus; dropsy, tumefaction, intumescence, swelling, tumor, diastole, distension; puffing, puffiness; inflation; pandiculation.

dilatability, expansibility.

growth, upgrowth; accretion etc. 35; germination, budding, gemmation.

bulb etc. (convexity) 250; plumper; superiority of size.

overgrowth, overdistension; hypertrophy, tympany.

v. become larger etc. (large etc. 192); expand, widen, enlarge, extend, grow, increase, incrassate, swell, gather; fill out; deploy, take open order, dilate, stretch, spread; mantle, wax; grow up, spring up; bud, burgeon or bourgeon, shoot, sprout, germinate, put forth, vegetate, pullulate, open, burst forth; gain flesh, gather flesh; outgrow; spread like wildfire, overrun.

be larger than; surpass etc. (be superior) 33.

render larger etc. (large etc. 192); expand, spread, extend, aggrandize, distend, develop, amplify, spread out, widen, magnify, rarefy, inflate, puff, blow up, stuff, pad, cram, bloat; exaggerate; fatten.

adj. expanded etc. v.; larger etc. (large etc. 192); swollen; expansive; wide open, widespread; fan-shaped, flabelliform; overgrown, exaggerated, bloated, fat, turgid, tumid, hypertrophied, dropsical; pot-bellied, swagbellied [obs.]; edematous, corpulent, obese, puffy, pursy, blowzy, distended; patulous; bulbous etc. (convex) 250; full-blown, full-grown, full-formed; big etc. 192; abdominous, enchymatous, rhipidate; tumefacient, tumefying.

195. Contraction

n. contraction, reduction, diminution; decrease etc. 36 -of size; defalcation, decrement; lessening, shrinking etc. v.; compaction [rare], tabes, collapse, emaciation, attenuation, tabefaction [rare], consumption, marasmus, atrophy; systole, syncopation, syncope; neck, hourglass.

compression, condensation, constraint, astriction [rare], compactness; compendium etc. 596; squeezing etc. v.; strangulation; corrugation; constringency, astringency; astringents, sclerotics; contractibility, contractibleness, contractility, compressibility, compressibleness, coarctation.

inferiority in size.

v. become small, become smaller; lessen, decrease etc. 36; grow less, dwindle, shrink, contract, narrow, shrivel, syncopate, collapse, wither, lose flesh, wizen [dial.], fall away, waste, wane, ebb; decay etc. (deteriorate) 659.

be smaller than, fall short of; not come up to etc. (be inferior) 34.

render smaller, lessen, diminish, contract, draw in, narrow, pucker, cockle, coarct or coarctate [rare]; boil down; deflate, exhaust, empty; constrict, constringe; condense, compress, squeeze, corrugate, crush, crumple up, warp, purse, purse up, pack, stow; pinch, tighten, strangle; cramp; dwarf, bedwarf; shorten etc. 201; circumscribe etc. 229; restrain etc. 751.

pare, reduce, attenuate, rub down, scrape, file, grind, chip, shave, shear.

adj. contracting etc. v.; astringent, constringent, shrunk, shrunken, tabescent, tabetic, contractible, contracted etc. v.; strangulated, tabid, wizened, weazen, weazeny [colloq.], corky, stunted; waning etc. v.; neap, compact, compacted.

unexpanded etc. (expand etc. 194); contractile; compressible; smaller etc. (small etc. 193).

196. Distance

n. distance; space etc. 180; remoteness, farness; far cry to; longinquity [rare], elongation; easting, westing, drift, offing, background; remote region; removedness; parallax; reach, span, stride.

outpost, outskirt; horizon, sky line; aphelion; foreign parts, ultima Thule [L.], ne plus ultra [L.], antipodes; jumping-off place [colloq.], long range, giant's stride.

dispersion etc. 73.

v. be distant etc. adj.; extend to, stretch to, reach to, spread to, go to, get to, stretch away to; range, outreach, outlie [rare].

remain at a distance; keep–, stand--away, –off, –aloof, –clear of.

adj. distant; far off, far away; remote, telescopic, distal, wide of; stretching to etc. v.; yon, yonder; ulterior; transmarine, transpontine, transatlantic, transpacific, transoceanic, transalpine; tramontane; ultramontane, ultramundane; hyperborean, antipodean; inaccessible, out-of-the-way, God-forsaken [colloq.]; unapproached, unapproachable; incontiguous [obs.].

adv. far off, far away; afar, –off; off; away; a -long, –great, –good- way off; wide away, beyond range, aloof; wide of, clear of; out of -the way, –reach; abroad, yonder, farther, further, beyond; outre mer [F.], over the border, far and wide, "over the hills and far away" [Gay]; from pole to pole etc. (over great space) 180; to the -uttermost parts, –ends- of the earth; out of range, out of hearing, nobody knows where, à perte de vue [F.], out of the sphere of, wide of the mark; a far cry to.

apart, asunder; wide apart, wide asunder; longo intervallo [L.]; at arm's length.

197. Nearness

n. nearness etc. adj.; proximity, propinquity; vicinity, vicinage; neighborhood, adjacency, nigh-ness [archaic], appropinquity [rare]; contiguity etc. 199.

short -distance, –step, –cut; earshot, close quarters, range, stone's throw; bowshot, gunshot, pistol shot; hair's breadth, span.

purlieus, neighborhood, vicinage, environs, alentours [F.], suburbs, faubourg [F.], confines, banlieue [F.], borderland; whereabouts.

bystander, spectator; neighbor or neighbour, borderer.

approach etc. 286; convergence etc. 290; perihelion.

v. be near etc. adj.; adjoin, abut, neighbor, hang about, trench on; border upon, verge upon; stand by, approximate, tread on the heels of, cling to, clasp, hug; huddle; hang upon the skirts of, hover over; burn [colloq.].

bring or draw near etc. 286; converge etc. 290; crowd etc. 72; place side by side etc. adv.

adj. near, nigh; close–, near- at hand; close, neighboring, vicinal, propinquent [rare]; bordering upon, contiguous, adjacent, adjoining; proximate, proximal; at hand, warm [colloq.], handy; near the mark, near run; home, intimate.

adv. near, nigh; hard by, fast by; close to, close upon; hard upon; at the point of; next door to; within -reach, - call, –hearing, –earshot, –range; within an ace of; but a step, not far from, at no great distance; on the -verge, –brink, –skirts- of; in the environs etc. n.; at one's -door, –feet, –elbow, –finger's end, –side; on the tip of one's tongue; under one's nose; within a stone's throw etc. n.; in sight of, in presence of; at close quarters; cheek by jowl, cheek to cheek, shoulder to shoulder; beside, alongside, side by side, tête-à-tête [F.]; in juxtaposition etc. (touching) 199; yardarm to yardarm; at the heels of; on the confines of, at the threshold, bordering upon, verging to; in the way.

about; hereabout or hereabouts, thereabout or thereabouts; roughly, in round numbers; approximately, approximatively; as good as, well-nigh.

198. Interval

n. interval, interspace; separation etc. 44; hiatus, caesura; interruption, interregnum; interstice, intersection, lacuna.

parenthesis etc. (interjacence) 228; void etc. (absence) 187; incompleteness etc. 53.

cleft, break, gap, opening; hole etc. 260; chasm, mesh, crevice, chink, rime [rare], creek, cranny, crack, chap, slit, fissure, scissure, rift, fault, flaw, breach, fracture, rent, gash, cut, leak, dike, ha-ha.

gorge, defile, ravine, cañon, crevasse, abyss, abysm; gulf; inlet, frith, strait, gully, nullah [India]; pass; furrow etc. 259; abra [Sp. Amer.], barranco [Sp.]; clove, gulch, notch, yawning gulf; hiatus maxime deflendus [L.], hiatus valde deflendus [L.].

v. gape etc. (open) 260; separate etc. 44.

adj. with an interval, far between; breachy, rimose, rimous, rimulose.

adv. at intervals etc. (discontinuously) 70; longo intervallo [L.].

199. Contiguity

n. contiguity, contiguousness, contact, proximity, apposition, abuttal, juxtaposition, touching etc. v.; abutment, osculation; meeting, appulse, appulsion, rencontre [F.], rencounter, syzygy, conjunction, conjugation, coincidence, coexistence; adhesion etc. 46.

borderland; frontier etc. (limit) 233; tangent; abutter.

v. be contiguous etc. adj.; join, adjoin, abut on, neighbor, border, march with; graze, touch, meet, osculate, come in contact, coincide; coexist; adhere etc. 46.

adj. contiguous; touching etc. v.; in contact etc. n.; conterminous, end to end, osculatory; pertingent [obs.]; tangential.

hand to hand; close to etc. (near) 197; with no interval etc. 198.

200. Length

n. length, longitude, longness [rare], extent, span; mileage.

line, bar, rule, stripe, streak, spoke, radius.

lengthening etc. v.; prolongation, production, protraction; tension, tensure [obs.]; extension.

[measures of length] line, nail, inch, hand, palm, foot, cubit, yard, ell, fathom, rood, pole, furlong, mile, knot, league; chain; arpent, handbreadth, jornada [Sp. Amer.], kos [Hind.], vara [Sp. & Pg.]; meter, kilometer, centimeter etc. pedometer, odometer, odograph, viameter, viatometer, log [naut.], speedometer, telemeter, perambulator; scale etc. (measurement) 466.

v. be long etc. adj.; stretch out, sprawl; extend to, reach to, stretch to; make a long arm, "drag its slow length along" [Pope].

render long etc. adj.; lengthen, extend, elongate; stretch; prolong, produce [rare], protract; let out, draw out, spin out; drawl.

enfilade, look along, view in perspective.

adj. long, longsome [archaic]; elongate or elongated, longish, lengthy, wiredrawn, outstretched, extended; lengthened etc. v.; sesquipedalian etc. (words) 577; interminable, no end of [colloq.].

linear, lineal; longitudinal, oblong.

lanky, lank, slabsided [slang], rangy; tall etc. 206; macrocolous, long-limbed.

as long as -my arm, –to-day and to-morrow; unshortened etc. (shorten etc. 201).

adv. lengthwise, at length, longitudinally, endlong [archaic], endways, endwise, along; tandem; in a line etc. (continuously) 69; in perspective.

from end to end, from stem to stern, from head to foot, from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot, from tip to toe, from top to toe; fore and aft; over all.

201. Shortness

n. shortness etc. adj.; brevity littleness etc. 193; a span.

shortening etc. v.; abbreviation, abbreviature [obs.], abridgment, concision, retrenchment, curtailment, decurtation [obs.], epitomization, obtruncation [rare], condensation; reduction etc. (contraction) 195; epitome etc. (compendium) 596.

elision, ellipsis; conciseness etc. (in style) 572.

abridger, epitomist, epitomizer, obtruncator [rare].

v. be short etc. adj.; render short etc. adj.; shorten, curtail, abridge, abbreviate, take in, reduce; compress etc. (contract) 195; epitomize etc. 596.

cut short, retrench, obtruncate [rare], scrimp, cut, chop up, hack, hew; cut down, pare down; clip, dock, lop, prune, shear, shave, mow, reap, crop; snub; truncate, pollard, stunt, nip, check the growth of; foreshorten [drawing].

adj. short, brief, curt; compendious, compact; stubby, pudgy, tubby [colloq.], squatty, squidgy [rare], scrimp; shorn, stubbed; stumpy [colloq.], thickset, pug; chunky, curtate, curtal [archaic], decurtate; retroussé [F.], turned up; scrub, stocky; squab, squabby; squat, squattish, dumpy; little etc. 193; curtailed of its fair proportions; short by; oblate; abbreviatory; concise etc. 572; summary.

adv. shortly etc. adj.; in short etc. (concisely) 572.

202. Breadth, Thickness

n. breadth, width, latitude, amplitude; diameter, bore, caliber, radius; superficial extent etc. (space) 180.

thickness, crassitude [obs.]; corpulence etc. (size) 192; dilatation etc. (expansion) 194.

v. be broad etc. adj.; become or render broad etc. adj.; expand etc. 194; thicken, widen, calibrate.

adj. broad, wide, ample, extended; discous, discoid; fanlike; outspread, outstretched; "wide as a church-door" [Romeo and Juliet]; latifoliate [rare], latifolious [rare].

thick, dumpy, squab, squat, thickset, stubby etc. 201; thick as a rope.

203. Narrowness, Thinness

n. narrowness etc. adj.; closeness, exility [rare]; exiguity etc. (little) 193.

line; hair's-, finger's- breadth; strip, streak, vein.

thinness etc. adj.; tenuity; emaciation, marcor [obs.], macilence or macilency [rare].

shaving, slip etc. (filament) 205; thread paper, skeleton, shadow, scrag, atomy [obs. or joc.], anatomy, [archaic], study in anatomy [humorous], spindle-shanks [humorous or contemptuous], bare-bone, lantern jaws, mere skin and bone.

middle constriction, stricture, coarctation [med.]; neck, waist, isthmus, wasp, hourglass; ridge, ghat or ghaut [India], pass; ravine etc. 198.

narrowing, angustation, tapering; contraction etc. 195.

v. be narrow etc. adj.; narrow, taper, contract, etc. 195; render narrow etc. adj.

adj. narrow, close; slender, gracile, thin, fine; threadlike etc. (filament) 205; finespun, taper, slim, slight-made; scant, scanty; spare, delicate, incapacious; contracted etc. 195; unexpanded etc. (expand etc. 194); slender as a thread.

lean, emaciated, meager or meagre, gaunt, macilent; lank, lanky; weedy [colloq.], skinny; scrawny, slinky [dial.]; starved, starveling; attenuated, shriveled, pinched, poor, peaked [colloq.], lathy [colloq.], skeletal, flatsided [colloq.], slabsided [slang]; spindle-legged, spindle-shanked, spindling; coarctate, angustate, tabic, tabelic, tabid, extenuated, marcid [obs.], rawboned; herring-gutted [colloq.]; worn to a shadow, "lean as a rake" [Chaucer]; thin as a -lath, –whipping post, –wafer; hatchet-faced; lantern-jawed.

204. Layer

n. layer, stratum, course, bed, couch, coping, zone, substratum, floor, flag, stage, story, tier, slab, escarpment; table, tablet; dess [Scot. & dial. Eng.]; flagstone; board, plank; trencher, platter.

leaf, lamina, lamella, sheet, flake, foil, wafer, scale, coat, peel, pellicle, membrane, film, lap, ply, slice, shive, cut, rasher, shaving, plate; overlay, integument etc. (covering) 223; eschar.

stratification, lamination, delamination, foliation; scaliness, nest of boxes, coats of an onion.

v. slice, shave, pare, peel, skive; delaminate; plate, coat, veneer; cover etc. 223.

adj. lamellar, lamelliferous, lamellate or lamellated, lamelliform; laminate or laminated, laminiferous; micaceous; schistose, schistous; scaly, filmy, membranous, membranaceous, flaky, squamous; foliated, foliaceous; stratified, stratiform; tabular, discoid; spathic, spathose.

205. Filament

n. filament, line; fiber, fibril; funicle, vein, hair, cobweb, capillary, ciliolum, capillament [rare], cilium, cirrus, barbel, strand, tendril, gossamer; hair stroke; veinlet, venula, venule.

beard etc. (roughness) 256; ramification.

thread, threadlet, harl, yarn, pack-thread, cotton, sewing silk.

string, twine, twist, whipcord, cord, rope, hemp, oakum, jute; tape, ribbon, wire.

strip, shred, slip, spill, list, taenia or tenia, band, fillet, fascia; ribbon, ribband or riband [archaic], roll, lath, splinter, shiver, shaving; ligule or ligula.

adj. filamentous, filamentiferous, filaceous [rare], filiform; fibrous, fibrillous, fibrilliform, fibrilliferous; thread-like, wiry, stringy, ropy; capillary, capilliform; funicular, wire-drawn; anguilliform; flagelliform; barbate, hairy etc. (rough) 256; taeniate, taeniform, taenioid; venose, venous; ligulate or ligulated.

206. Height

n. height, altitude, elevation; eminence, pitch; loftiness etc. adj.; sublimity, celsitude [rare].

tallness etc. adj.; stature, procerity [rare]; prominence etc. 250; apex, zenith, culmination.

colossus etc. (size) 192; giant, grenadier; giraffe, camelopard.

height, mount, mountain; hill, alto [Sp.], butte, monticule, monticle [obs.], fell [obs. exc. in proper names], knap; cape; headland, foreland; promontory; ridge, hogback or hog's-back, dune, rising–, vantage- ground; down; moor, moorland; Alp; uplands, highlands; heights etc. (summit), 210; knob, loma, pena, picacho [Sp.], tump [dial.]; knoll, hummock, hillock, barrow, mound; steeps, bluff, cliff, craig [Scot.], tor, peak, pike [dial.], clough [obs.]; escarpment, edge, ledge, brae [Scot. & dial. Eng.]; dizzy height.

tower, pillar, column, obelisk, monument, belfry, steeple, spire, minaret, campanile, turret, dome, cupola; pylon, tourelle [F.], barbican, martello tower; pyramid, pagoda, mole [Rom. antiq.], ceiling etc. (covering) 223; upstairs.

pole, pikestaff, maypole, flagstaff; mast, mainmast, topmast, topgallant mast.

high water; high–, flood–, spring-tide.

hypsography, hypsometry, hypsometer, altimeter, altimetry etc. (angle) 244; hypsophobia.

v. be high etc. adj.; tower, soar, command; hover; cap, culminate; overhang, hang over, impend, beetle; bestride, ride, mount; perch, surmount; cover etc. 223; rise above, overtop etc. (be superior) 33; stand on tiptoe.

become high etc. adj.; grow, grow higher, grow taller; upgrow; rise etc. (ascend) 305.

render high etc. adj.; heighten etc. (elevate) 307.

adj. high, elevated, eminent, exalted, lofty; tall; gigantic etc. (big) 192; Patagonian; towering, beetling, soaring, mountained, hanging [gardens]; elevated etc. 307; higher, superior, upper, supernal; highest etc. (topmost) 210; high-reaching, insessorial, perching; hill-dwelling, monticoline, monticolous.

tall as a -maypole, –popular, –steeple; lanky etc. (thin) 203.

upland, moorland; hilly, knobby; mountainous, alpine, subalpine, heaven-kissing; cloud-topt, cloud-capt, cloud-touching; aërial.

overhanging etc. v.; incumbent; overlying; superincumbent, supernatant, superimposed; prominent etc. 250.

hypsographic, hypsographical, hypsometric, hypsometrical.

adv. on high, high up, aloft, up, above, aloof, overhead; airward; upstairs, above stairs; in the clouds; on tiptoe, on stilts, on the shoulders of; over head and ears; breast high.

over, upwards; from top to bottom etc. (completely) 52.

207. Lowness

n. lowness etc. adj.; debasement; prostration etc. (horizontal) 213; depression etc. (concave) 252; subjacency; lowlands.

ground floor; rez de chaussée [F.]; street floor.

basement, basement floor, cellar; hold; base etc. 211.

[comparison] feet, heels; molehill.

low water; low–, ebb–, neap- tide.

v. be low etc. adj.; lie low, lie flat; underlie; crouch, slouch, wallow, grovel; lower etc. (depress) 308.

adj. low, neap, debased; lower, inferior, under, nether; lowest, nether-most, lowermost; flat, level with the ground; lying low etc. v.; crouched, subjacent, squat, prostrate etc. (horizontal) 213; depressed.

adv. under; beneath, underneath; below; down, downwards; adown, at the foot of; underfoot, underground; downstairs, belowstairs; at a low ebb; below par.

208. Depth

n. depth; deepness etc. adj.; profundity, depression etc. (concavity) 252.

pit, shaft, hollow, well, crater; gulf etc. 198; deep, abyss, bowels of the earth, bottomless pit, hell.

soundings, depth of water, water, draft or draught, submersion; plummet, sound, probe; sounding-rod, –line; lead; bathometer, bathymeter, bathymetry; benthos; submarine, sub [colloq.], U-boat; depth bomb.

v. be deep etc. adj.; render deep etc. adj.; deepen.

sound, heave the lead, take soundings; dig etc. (excavate) 252; plunge etc. 310.

adj. deep, deep-seated, deep-bosomed; profound, sunk, buried; submerged etc. 310; subaqueous, submarine, subterranean, subterrene [obs.], subterraneous; underground.

knee-deep, ankle-deep.

bottomless, soundless, fathomless; unfathomed, unfathomable; abysmal; deep as a well; bathycolpian or bathukolpic or bathukolpian; deep-sea, benthal, benthopelagic; bathymetric, bathymetrical; bathypelagic, bathysmal; down-reaching, yawning.

adv. out of one's depth; beyond one's depth; over head and ears.

209. Shallowness

n. shallowness etc. adj.; shoals; mere scratch.

adj. shallow, slight, superficial; skin–, ankle–, knee-deep; depthless, just enough to wet one's feet; shoal, shoaly.

210. Summit

n. summit, top, vertex, apex, summit [obs.], zenith, pinnacle, acme, culmination, meridian, utmost height, ne plus ultra [L.], height, pitch, maximum, climax; culminating–, crowning–, turning- point; turn of the tide, fountainhead; watershed, water parting; sky, pole.

tip, tiptoe; crest, crow's nest, cap, truck, peak, nib; end etc. 67; crown, brow; head, nob [slang], noddle [colloq.], pate [humorous]; cap-sheaf.

high places, heights.

topgallant mast, skyscraper; quarter deck, hurricane deck.

architrave, frieze, cornice, corona, coping, coping stone, zoöphorus, capital, headpiece, capstone, fastigium, larmier, epistyle, sconce, pediment, entablature; tympanum; ceiling etc. (covering) 223.

attic, loft, garret, housetop, upper story, roof.

v. crown, top, cap, crest, surmount; overtop etc. (be superior to) 33; culminate.

adj. highest etc. (high etc. 206); top; topmost, overmost, uppermost; tiptop; culminating etc. v.; meridian, meridional; capital, head, polar, supreme, supernal, apical, culminate [rare], culminal [rare], topgallant, skyward.

adv. atop, at the top of the tree; en flûte [F.]; à fleur d'eau [F.].

211. Base

n. base, basement; plinth, dado, wainscot; baseboard, mopboard; bedrock, hardpan; foundation etc. (support) 215; substructure, substratum, ground, earth, pavement, floor, paving, flag, carpet, ground floor, deck; footing, ground work, basis; hold, bilge, sump; cullet.

bed, basin, channel, coulee [Western N. Amer.], cañon etc. (interval) 198.

bottom, nadir, foot, sole, toe, hoof, keel, root; centerboard.

adj. bottom, undermost, nethermost; fundamental; founded on, based on, grounded on, built on.

212. Verticality

n. verticality; erectness etc. adj.; perpendicularity, aplomb; right angle, normal; azimuth circle.

cliff, steep, crag, bluff, palisades; wall, precipice.

elevation, erection; square, plumb line, plummet.

v. be vertical etc. adj.; stand -up, –on end, –erect, –upright; stick up, cock up.

render vertical etc. adj.; set up, stick up, raise up, cock up; erect, rear, raise, pitch, raise on its legs.

adj. vertical, upright, erect, perpendicular, unrecumbent [rare], plumb, normal, straight, bolt upright; rampant; straight up; standing up etc. v.; rectangular orthogonal.

adv. vertically etc. adj.; up, on end; up–, right- on end; à plomb [F.], endwise; on one's legs; at right angles.

213. Horizontality

n. horizontality; flatness; level, plane; stratum etc. 204; dead level, dead flat; level plane.

recumbency; lying down etc. v.; reclination, decumbence or decumbency, discumbency [obs.]; proneness etc. adj.; accubation, supination, resupination, prostration; azimuth.

[level surfaces] plain, floor, platform, bowling green; cricket ground; croquet -ground, –lawn; billiard table, pool table; terrace, estrade [rare], esplanade, parterre, table-land, plateau, ledge.

v. be horizontal etc. adj.; lie, recline, couch; lie -down, –flat, –prostrate; sprawl, loll; sit down.

render horizontal etc. adj.; lay, lay down, lay out; level, flatten, even, raze, equalize, smooth, align.

prostrate, knock down, floor, fell, ground, drop, grass [slang]; cut–, hew–, mow- down.

adj. horizontal, level, even, plane, flush; flat etc. 251; flat as a -billiard table, –bowling green, –pool table, –pancake; alluvial; calm, –as a mill pond; smooth, –as glass.

recumbent, procumbent, accumbent, decumbent [bot.]; lying etc. v.; prone, supine, couchant, jacent [rare], prostrate, recubant [rare], resupinate.

adv. horizontally etc. adj.; on one's back, on all fours, on its beam ends.

214. Pendency

n. pendency, dependency; suspension, hanging etc. v.

pendant, drop, eardrop, tassel, tippet, lobe, tail, train, flap, skirt, queue, pigtail, pendulum; hangnail.

peg, knob, button, hook, nail, stud, ring, staple, tenterhook; fastening etc. 45; spar, horse.

chandelier, gaselier, electrolier.

v. be pendent etc. adj.; hang, depend, swing, dangle, lower, droop: swag [dial.]; daggle, flap, trail, flow; beetle, jut, overhang.

suspend, hang, sling, hook up, hitch, fasten to, append.

adj. pendent, pendulous, pendulant [rare], decumbent, penduline [rare], pensile; hanging etc. v.; beetle; beetling, jutting over, overhanging, projecting; dependent; lowering; suspended etc. v.; loose, flowing.

having a pendant etc. n.; tailed, caudate.

215. Support

n. support, ground, foundation, base, basis; terra firma [L.], bearing, fulcrum, bait, caudex, crib; point d'appui [F.], pou sto [Gr.], purchase, footing, hold, locusstandi [L.]; landing, –stage, –place; stage, platform; block; rest, resting place; groundwork, substratum, riprap, sustentation [now rare], sustention [rare], subvention; floor etc. (basement) 211.

supporter; aid etc. 707; prop, stand, anvil, fulciment [obs.]; cue rest, jigger [slang], monkey [builders' slang], hod; stay, shore, skid, rib, truss, bandage; sleeper; stirrup, stilts, shoe, sole, heel, splint, lap; bar, rod, boom, spirit, outrigger; ratline or ratlin or ratling.

pedicle, pedicel or pedicellus or pediculus, peduncle [all bot.], stalk.

board, ledge, shelf, hob, bracket, trivet, arbor, rack; mantel, mantelpiece, mantelshelf; slab, console; counter, dresser; flange, corbel; table, trestle; shoulder; perch; horse; easel, desk; clotheshorse, hatrack; retable, predella, teapoy.

staff, stick, crutch, alpenstock, baton, crosier, cross, crook, lituus [Rom. antiq.], caduceus, thyrsus, staddle; bourdon, cowlstaff [archaic], lathi [Hind.], maulstick or mahlstick.

post, pillar, shaft, thill, column, pilaster; pediment, pedestal; plinth, shank, leg, socle or zocle; buttress, jamb, mullion, stile, abutment; baluster, banister, stanchion; balustrade; headstone.

frame, framework; scaffold, skeleton, beam, rafter, girder, lintel, joist, travis or traviss [dial. Eng.], trave, corner stone, summer, breastsummer or bressomer, summertree, transom; rung, round, step, sill; angle-rafter, hip-rafter; cantilever, modillion; crown-post, king-post; vertebra, modiolus.

columella, backbone; keystone; axle, axletree; axis; arch, mainstay.

trunnion, pivot, rowlock; peg etc. (pendency) 214; tiebeam etc. (fastening) 45; thole pin.

seat, throne, dais; divan, musnud or masnad [Ar.], guddee or gaddi [Hind.]; chair, bench, form, sofa, davenport, couch, day-bed, settee, stall; wingchair, armchair, easychair, elbow-chair, rocking-chair; fauteuil [F.], woolsack, ottoman, settle, squab, bench; long chair, long-sleeve chair [Anglo-Ind.], chaise longue [F.], morris chair; lamba chauki or lamba kursi [Hind.]; saddle, aparejo, panel or pannel, pillion; sidesaddle, packsaddle; pommel, horn.

stool, foldstool, prie-dieu [F.], hassock, footstool; tabouret; tripod.

bed, berth, pallet, tester-bed, crib, cot, hammock, shakedown, truckle-bed, trundle-bed, cradle, litter, stretcher, bedstead; four-poster, French bed; bunk, kip [dial.], palang [Hind.]; roost [slang]; bedding, bichhana [Hind.], mattress, paillasse; pillow, bolster; mat, rug, cushion.

Atlas, Herakles or Hercules; tortoise that supports the earth.

[in architecture] atlas (pl. atlantes), telamon (pl. telamones), caryatid (pl. caryatids or caryatides).

v. be supported etc.; lie–, sit–, recline–, lean–, loll–, rest–, stand–, step–, repose–, abut–, bear–, be based etc.-on; have at one's back; bestride, bestraddle.

support, bear, carry, hold, sustain, shoulder; hold up, back up, bolster up, shore up; uphold, upbear; brace, truss, cradle, pillow, prop; underprop, underpin, underset; riprap; bandage etc. 43.

give–, furnish–, afford–, supply–, lend- -support, –foundations; bottom, found, base, ground, embed, imbed.

maintain, keep on foot; aid etc. 707.

adj. supporting, supported, etc. v.; Atlantean, columellar, columelliform; sustentative, sustentational; fundamental; dorsigerous.

having a pedicle etc. n.; pedunculate, pedicellate.

adv. straddle, astride on.

216. Parallelism

n. parallelism, coextension, equidistance, concentricity; collimation.

v. be parallel etc. adj.; parallel, equal; collimate.

adj. parallel, coextensive, equidistant, collateral, concentric, concurrent; abreast, aligned, equal, even, alongside.

adv. alongside etc. (laterally) 236.

217. Obliquity

n. obliquity, inclination, incline, slope, slant, skew, thrawnness [Scott. & dial. Eng.]; crookedness etc. adj.; slopeness; leaning etc. v.; bevel, ramp, pitch, bezel, tilt; bias, list, twist, swag [prov. Eng.], sag, cant, lurch; distortion etc. 243; bend etc. (curve) 245; tower of Pisa.

acclivity, rise, ascent, gradient [chiefly Brit.], grade [U. S.], khudd [Hind.], glacis, rising ground, hill, bank, declivity, downhill, dip, fall, devexity [obs.]; gentle–, rapid- slope; easy -ascent, –descent; shelving beach; talus; montagne Russe [F.]; facilis descensus Averni [L.].

steepness etc. adj.; cliff, precipice etc. (vertical) 212; escarpment, scarp; chevron.

[measure of inclination] clinometer; sine, cosine, cotangent, angle, hypothenuse.

diagonal; zigzag.

v. be oblique etc. adj.; slope, slant, skew, lean, incline, shelve, stoop, decline, descend, bend, keel, careen, sag, swag [dial.], seel [obs.], slouch, cant, sidle.

render oblique etc. adj.; sway, bias; slope, slant; incline, bend, crook; cant, tilt; distort etc. 243.

adj. oblique, inclined; sloping etc. v.; tilted etc. v.; recubant [rare], recumbent, clinical, skew, askew, slant, bias, aslant, plagihedral, indirect, wry, awry; agee or ajee, thrawn [both Scot. & dial. Eng.], crooked; sinuous, zigzag, zigzaggy, chevrony; knock-kneed etc. (distorted) 243; bevel, out of the perpendicular; aslope; asquint, backhand or backhanded.

uphill, rising, ascending, acclivous.

downhill, falling, descending; hanging (as, hanging gardens), declining, declivitous, proclivous [rare], declivous, devex [obs.], synclinal, anticlinal.

steep, abrupt, precipitous, breakneck.

diagonal; transverse, transversal; athwart, antiparallel; curved etc. 245; loxic, loxotic, loxodromic.

adv. obliquely etc. adj.; on one side, all on one side; askew, askance or askant, awry, skew, skewed, edgewise, at an angle; sidelong, sideways; slopewise, slantwise; by a side wind.

218. Inversion

n. inversion, eversion, subversion, reversion, retroversion, introversion; retroflexion; contraposition etc. 237; contrariety etc. 14; reversal; turn of the tide etc. (reversion) 145.

overturn; somersault or summersault, somerset or summerset; culbute [F.] eversion [archaic]; revulsion; pirouette.

transposition, transposal, anastrophy, metastasis, hyperbaton, anastrophe; hysterology, hysteron proteron; hypallage, synchysis, tmesis, parenthesis; metathesis; palindrome; ectropion [path.]; invagination, intussusception.

pronation and supination.

v. be inverted etc.; turn–, go–, wheel- -round, –about, –to the right-about [colloq.]; turn–, go–, tilt–, topple- over; capsize, turn turtle.

invert, subvert, retrovert, introvert; reverse; turn the cat in the pan [obs]; upturn, overturn, upset, overset, bouleverser [F.], evert [archaic]; turn topsy-turvy etc. adj.; culbuter [F.]; transpose, put the cart before the horse, turn the tables; invaginate, intussuscept.

adj. inverted etc. v.; wrong side -out, –up; inside out, upside down; bottom–, keel- upwards; supine, on one's head, topsy-turvy, sens dessus dessous [F.]; ectropic.
inverse; reverse etc. (contrary) 14; opposite etc. 237; palindromic or palindromical.
topheavy, unstable.
adv. inversely etc. adj.; heels over head, head over heels.

219. Crossing

n. crossing etc. v.; intersection, interdigitation; decussation, transversion; chiasm or chiasma; convolution etc. 248; level crossing [Eng.], grade crossing.
network, reticulation, cancellation; inosculation, anastomosis, intertexture, mortise.
net, plexus, plexure, web, mesh, twill, skein, Hippocrates' sleeve, sleave [archaic]; sieve, sifter, riddle rocker, screen, cradle; felt, lace; wicker; mat, matting; plait, trellis, wattle, lattice, grating, grille, gridiron, tracery, fretwork, filigree, reticle [obs.]; tissue, netting, moke [dial. Eng.]; rivulation.
cross, chain, wreath, braid, cat's cradle, knot; entanglement etc. (disorder) 59.
crucifix, cross, rood, crisscross, christcross, tau; crux.
[woven fabrics] cloth, linen, muslin, cambric, toile [F.], drill, homespun, silk, satin, broadcloth, tweed etc.
v. cross, decussate; intersect, interlace, intertwine, intertwist, interweave, interdigitate, interlink, intercross [rare], crisscross, crossbar.
twine, entwine, weave, inweave, twist, wreathe; anastomose, inosculate, dovetail, splice, link.
mat, plait, pleat, plat, braid, felt, twill; tangle, entangle, ravel; net, knot; dishevel, raddle.
adj. crossing etc. v.; crossed, matted etc. v.; transverse; intersected, decussate or decussated; chiasmal.
cross, cross-shaped cruciform, crucial; netlike, retiform, reticular, reticulate; areolar, cancellate or cancellated, cancellous, latticed, grated, barred, streaked; textile; crossbarred, cruciate, secant; cruciferous; plexal, plexiform; anastomotic; web-footed, palmiped.
adv. cross, thwart, athwart, transversely; at grade; crosswise, thwartwise [rare].

220. Exteriority

n. exteriority; outside, exterior; surface, superficies; skin etc. (covering) 223; superstratum; disk or disc; face, facet; extrados.
eccentricity; circumjacence etc. 227.
v. be exterior etc. adj.; lie around etc. 227.
place exteriorly, place outwardly, place outside; put out, turn out.
externalize, objectize [rare], objectify, visualize, envisage, actualize.
adj. exterior, external, extraneous; outer, outermost; outward, outlying, outside, outdoor, alfresco [It.]; round about etc. 227; extramural; extralimitary, extramundane, extraterrene, extraterrestrial, extraterritorial, exterritorial; extern [rare].
extraregarding; eccentric or eccentrical; outstanding; extrinsic etc. 6; ecdemic, exomorphic.
superficial, skin-deep; frontal, discoid.
adv. externally etc. adj.; out, without, over, outwards, ab extra [L.], out of doors; extra muros [L.].
in the open air; sub Jove [L.], sub dio [L.]; à la belle étoile [F.], alfresco [It.].

221. Interiority

n. interiority; inside, interior; interspace, subsoil, substratum; intrados.
contents etc. 190; substance, pith, marrow; backbone etc. (center) 222; heart, bosom, breast; abdomen.
vitals, viscera, entrails, bowels, belly, intestines, guts [vulgar or tech.], chitterlings, chitlings or chitlins, womb, lap [obs.], rectum, cecum or caecum, ileum, duodenum, jejunum.
gland, glandule [rare], gland cell; thyroid, parotid, prostate; liver, kidney.
penetralia, recesses, innermost recesses; cave etc. (concavity) 252.
enterology, enterotomy, enteropathy, enteritis, splanchnology; peristalsis, vermiculation.
inmate, intern, inhabitant etc. 188.
v. be inside etc. adj.; be within etc. adv.
inclose etc. (circumscribe) 229; intern embed or imbed etc. (insert) 300; place within, keep within.
adj. interior, internal; inner, intern [archaic], intraneous [rare], intimate, inside, inward, intraregarding; inmost, innermost; deep-seated; intestine, intestinal, visceral, rectal, duodenal, splanchnic; subcutaneous; abdominal, celiac or coeliac, endomorphic.
intracanal, intracellular, intralobular, intramarginal, intramolecular, intramundane, intraocular, intraseptal, intratelluric, intrauterine, intravascular, intravenous, intraventricular.
interstitial etc. (interjacent) 228; inwrought etc. (intrinsic) 5; inclosed etc. v.

home, inland, domestic, family, indoor, intramural, vernacular; endemic.

adv. internally etc. adj.; inwards, within, in, inly; herein, therein, wherein, ab intra [L.]; indoors, within doors; at home, in the bosom of one's family.

222. Centrality

n. centrality, centricalness, centricality, center or centre; middle etc. 68; focus etc. 74.

center of -gravity, -pressure, -percussion, -oscillation, -buoyancy etc.; metacenter.

core, kernel; nucleus, nucleolus; heart, pole, axis, bull's-eye, nave, hub, navel, umbilicus; marrow, pith; backbone; vertebra, vertebral column; hotbed.

concentration etc. (convergence) 290; centralization; symmetry; metropolis.

v. be central etc. adj.; converge etc. 290.

render central, centralize, concentrate; bring to a focus.

adj. central, centrical; middle etc. 68; axial, pivotal, nuclear, nucleate, centric, focal, umbilical, concentric; middlemost; rachial, rachidial or rachidian; spinal, vertebral; metropolitan.

adv. middle; midst; centrally etc. adj.

223. Covering

n. covering, cover, baldachin or baldaquin; canopy, shamianah [Hind.], tilt, awning, tent, marquee, marquise, wigwam, tepee, tente d'abri [F.], umbrella, parasol, sunshade; veil (shade) 424; shield etc. (defense) 717.

roof, ceiling, thatch, tile, pantile, tiling, slates, slating, leads, shingles; dome, cupola, mansard, hip roof; barrack, plafond [F.], planchment, tiling, shed etc. (abode) 189.

top, lid, covercle [obs.], door, operculum; bulkhead.

wrapping, bandage, dressing, plaster, lint, dossil, pledget, finger stall.

coverlet, counterpane, sheet, quilt, blanket, rug, drugget; housing; tidy, antimacassar, eiderdown quilt or eiderdown; comforter or comfortable or comfort, numdah [Hind.], pillowcase, pillowslip; linoleum, oilcloth; tarpaulin; saddle blanket, saddlecloth; tilpah, apishamore, poncho.

tegmen (pl. tegmina), integument, tegument; skin, pellicle, fleece, fell, fur, leather, lambskin, sable, miniver, beaver, ermine, shagreen, hide, coat, buff, pelt, peltry [collective noun]; cordwain [archaic]; robe, buffalo robe.

cuticle, cutis, dermis, corium, scarfskin, epidermis, derm [rare], derma; ectoderm, epithelium, ecderon, ecteron, enderon.

exuviae, desquamation, slough, cast, cast-off skin.

clothing etc. 225; mask etc. (concealment) 530.

peel, crust, bark, rind. cortex, husk, shell, epicarp, testa; eggshell, glume.

capsule; sheath, sheathing; pod, cod [dial.], casing, case, theca; elytron; elytrum; involucrum; wrapping, wrapper; envelope, vesicle; cornhusk, cornshuck.

dermatography, dermatology, dermatogen, dermoplasty, dermatopathy, dermatophyte; conchology; testaceology.

veneer, facing; pavement; imbrication, scale etc. (layer) 204; anointing etc. v.; ointment etc. (grease) 356; inunction; incrustation, superposition, obduction [obs.]; coating, paint, stain, engobe; varnish etc. (resin) 356*a;* ground, enamel, whitewash, plaster, stucco, roughcast, plasterwork, scagliola, compo; cerement; cerecloth, shroud.

v. cover; superpose, superimpose; overlay, overspread; wrap etc. 225; incase, encase, enchase, face, case, veneer, pave, paper; tip, cap, bind; bulkhead, bulkhead in; clapboard, shingle; imbricate.

overlie, overarch; endome [rare]; conceal etc. 528.

coat, paint, stain, varnish, flat, incrust, encrust, crust, cement, roughcast, stucco, dab, plaster, tar; wash; besmear; bedaub; anoint, do over; gild, plate, japan, lacquer, lacker, enamel, whitewash; parget; lay it on thick.

adj. covering etc. v.; cutaneous, dermal, cortical, cuticular, tegumentary, tegumental, tegmental, integumentary, integumental, epidermal or epidermic, endermic, epicarpal, testaceous, dermatopathic, dermatological, dermoplastic, dermatophytic, subcutaneous, hypodermic.

scaly, squamate, squamiferous, squamous; covered etc. v.; imbricate, imbricated, loricate, loricated, armored, encuirassed, armor-plated, ironclad, under cover.

hooded, cowled, cucullate or cucullated, tectiform, rooflike; vaginate.

skinlike, dermic, dermoid, dermatoid, epidermoid, skinny.

224. Lining

n. lining, inner coating; coating etc. (covering) 223; stalactite, stalagmite.

filling, stuffing, wadding, padding, facing; bushing.

wainscot, parietes, wall, brattice, sheathing.

v. line, stuff, incrust, wad, pad, fill, face, ceil, bush, wainscot, sheathe.

adj. lined etc. v.

225. Investment

n. investment; covering etc. 223; dress, clothing, raiment, drapery, costume, attire, guise, toilet, toilette, trim; habiliment; vesture, vestment; garment, garb, palliament [obs.], apparel, wardrobe, wearing apparel, clothes, things.

array; tailoring, millinery; best bib and tucker [colloq.]; finery etc. (ornament) 847; full dress etc. (show) 882; garniture; theatrical properties.

outfit, equipment, trousseau; uniform, khaki, olive-drab, regimentals; continentals [Am. hist.]; canonicals etc. 999; livery, gear, harness, turnout, accouterment, caparison, suit, rigging, trappings, traps [colloq.], slops, togs [colloq.], toggery [colloq.]; masquerade.

dishabille or deshabille, morning dress, tea gown, wrapper, negligee or négligé [F.], dressing gown, undress; kimono; shooting coat; smoking jacket; mufti [chiefly Eng.]; rags, tatters, old clothes; mourning, weeds; duds [colloq.]; slippers.

robe, tunic, paletot, habit, gown, coat, frock, blouse, middy blouse or middy, jumper, shirt waist, suit; one-piece -, two-piece- suit; toga, smock, frock; Prince Albert coat [colloq.]; frock–, sack–, tail- coat.

dress suit, dress clothes, evening dress, swallow-tailed coat [colloq.], claw-hammer coat [colloq.]; dinner -coat, –jacket; tuxedo, soup-and-fish [colloq.]; glad rags [slang].

cloak, pall [archaic], mantle, mantua, mantelet or mantlet, sagum, shawl, pelisse, wrapper; veil; cape, kirtle [archaic], plaid [Scot.], tippet, muffler, comforter, balaklava helmet, haik, huke [obs.], chlamys, mantilla, tabard, housing, horse cloth, burnoose or burnous, roquelaure; houpland [hist.]; surcoat, overcoat, greatcoat; surtout, spencer; oilskins, slicker, mackintosh, waterproof, ulster, dreadnaught or dreadnought, wraprascal, poncho; pea-coat, pea-jacket; cardinal, pelerine; chuddar or chadar [Hind.], jubbah [Hind.], pullover, pyjamas or pajamas, pilot jacket, sweater, blazer, coatee, cardigan or cardigan jacket; Mackinaw coat or Mackinaw; talma.

jacket, vest, jerkin [hist. or dial.], chaqueta [Sp.], sontag, waistcoat, doublet, gaberdine; stays, corsage, corset, bra, brassière [F.], camisole, corselet, bodice; stomacher.

skirt, petticoat, farthingale, kilt, filibeg or philibeg, jupe, crinoline, bustle, panier, apron, pinafore; bloomer, bloomers; tablier [F.].

loin cloth, dhoti [Hindu], lungi [Burmese]; G string.

trousers, breeches, pantaloons, inexpressibles [humorous], trews [Scot.], innominables [humorous], unmentionables [humorous], continuations [slang], kicks [slang]; overalls, smalls [colloq. or archaic], smallclothes [archaic]; pants [colloq.]; shintiyan; shorts; tights, drawers; knickerbockers, knickers [Engl. colloq.].

headdress, headgear, coiffure [F.], head, headcloths, chignon [F.]; chapeau [F.], crush hat, opera hat; kaffiyeh [Ar.]; taj, tam-o'-shanter, topee or topi [India], sola topi [India], puggree or pagri [Hind.]; sombrero, sundown, cap, hat, beaver, castor, bonnet, tile [slang], wide-awake, panama, leghorn; derby, bowler [Eng.], billycock [Eng.]; wimple; nightcap, skullcap; mobcap, boudoir cap, Dutch cap; Salvation-Army bonnet; hood, coif, capote, calash, kerchief, snood; crown etc. (circle) 247; pelt, wig, front, peruke, periwig; caftan, turban, fez, tarboosh, shako, busby; kepi, forage cap, campaign hat, overseas cap, bearskin; helmet etc. 717; mask, domino.

body clothes; linen; hickory shirt [U. S.]; shirt, O.-D. (olive-drab) shirt; sark [archaic or dial.], smock, shift, chemise; nightgown, nightshirt; bed-gown, sac de nuit [F.]; jersey; underclothing, underwaistcoat, undershirt, undervest, chemisette, guimpe.

tie, neckerchief, neckcloth; ruff, collar, cravat, stock, handkerchief, scarf; bib, tucker; boa; girdle etc. (circle) 247; cummerbund [India], rumal [Hind.], rabat [F.], rabato.

shoe, pump, sneakers, boot, slipper, sandal, galosh or galoshe, patten, clog; high-low; Blucher–, Wellington–, Hessian–, jack–, top- boot; Oxford -shoe, –tie; Balmoral; arctics, bootee, bootikin, brogan, brogue, chaparajos [Mex. Sp.], chaps [colloq.], chivarras or chivarros [Sp. Amer.]; gums [U. S.], larrigan [N. Amer.], rubbers; snowshoe, ski; stogy; veldtschoen [Dutch], legging, puttee or putty, buskin, greave, galligaskin [dial.], moccasin, gambado, gaiter, spatterdashes, spats, gamashes [archaic or dial. Eng.], gamache [F.]; antigropelos.

stocking, hose, gaskins [obs.], trunk hose, sock; hosiery.

glove, gauntlet, mitten, mitt.

cuff, wristband; sleeve.

baby linen, swaddling clothes, diaper, layette.

[suppliers] clothier, tailor, snip [slang], tailoress, milliner, costumer, costumier, seamstress or sempstress, dressmaker, modiste [F.], habit-maker; breeches-maker; shoemaker, Crispin cordwainer, cobbler; hosier, hatter, glover, draper, linen draper, haberdasher, mercer; hairdresser, friseur [F.].

v. invest; cover etc. 223; envelop, lap, involve; inwrap or enwrap; wrap; fold up, wrap up, lap up, muffle up; overlap; sheathe, swathe, swaddle, roll up in, shroud, circumvest [obs.].

clothe, vest [rare], array, dress, dight [archaic], bedight [archaic], drape, robe, enrobe, attire, apparel, tire [archaic], habilitate [rare], garb, enclothe, breech, coat, jacket, gown, accouter, rig, fit out; dizen, bedizen, deck etc. (ornament) 847; perk, equip, harness, caparison.

wear; don; put on, huddle on, slip on; mantle.

adj. invested etc. v.; habited; dight, dighted; barbed, barded; clad, costumé [F.], shod, chaussé [F.]; en grande tenue [F.] etc. (show) 882; décolletée [F.].

sartorial, sartorian [rare].

226. Divestment

n. divestment; taking off etc. v.

nudity; bareness etc. adj.; undress; dishabille etc. 225; altogether; tout ensemble [F.]; nudation [rare], denudation; decortication, depilation, excoriation, desquamation, slough etc. 223; molting or moulting, exuviation; exfoliation; trichosis.

baldness, hairlessness, alopecia.

v. divest; uncover etc. (cover etc. 223); denude, bare, strip; disfurnish; undress, disrobe etc. (dress, enrobe etc. 225); uncoif; dismantle; put off, take off, cast off; doff.

peel, pare, decorticate, desquamate, slough, excoriate, skin, scalp, flay, bark, husk, rind; expose, lay open; exfoliate, molt or moult, exuviate, mew [archaic]; cast the skin.

adj. divested etc. v.; bare, naked, nude; undressed, undraped, unclad, ungarmented, unclothed, unappareled, unarrayed; exposed; in dishabille.

in a state of nature, in nature's garb, in the buff, in native buff, in birthday suit; in puris naturalibus [L.]; with nothing on, stark-naked; bare as the back of one's hand.

out at elbows; threadbare, ragged, callow, roofless; barefoot; bareback, barebacked; leafless, napless, hairless.

bald, hairless, depilous [rare], glabrous, glabrate, tonsured, beardless, bald as a coot.

exuvial, sloughy, desquamative, desquamatory.

227. Circumjacence

n. circumjacence or circumjacency, circumfluence [rare], circumambience environment, encompassment; atmosphere, medium; surroundings, entourage [F.].

outpost; border etc. (edge) 231; girdle etc. (circumference) 230; outskirts, boulevards, suburbs, purlieus, precincts, faubourgs [F.], environs, environment, entourage, banlieue [F.], neighborhood, vicinage, vicinity.

v. lie around etc. adv.; surround, beset, compass, encompass, environ, inclose or enclose, encircle, encincture [rare], circle, girdle, ensphere, hedge, embrace, circumvent, lap, gird; belt; begird, engird; skirt, twine round; hem in etc. (circumscribe) 229; beleaguer, invest, besiege, beset, blockade.

adj. circumjacent, circumambient, circumfluent; ambient; surrounding etc. v.; circumferential, suburban.

adv. around, about; without; on every side, on all sides; right and left, all round, roundabout.

228. Interjacence

n. interjacence or interjacency, intercurrence, intervenience or interveniency [rare], interlocation, interdigitation, interpenetration; permeation.

interjection, interpolation, interlineation, interspersion, intercalation; embolism.

intervention, interference, interposition, intromission, intrusion, obtrusion; insinuation; insertion etc. 300; dovetailing; infiltration.

intermedium, intermediary; go-between, interagent, middleman, intervener, mean, medium, bodkin [colloq.], intruder, interloper; parenthesis, episode, flyleaf.

partition, septum, interseptum, phragma, septulum, mediastinum, diaphragm, midriff; dissepiment; party wall, panel, bulkhead, brattice, cloison [F.], perpend, halfway house.

v. lie between, come between, get between; intervene, slide in, interpenetrate, permeate.

put between, introduce, import; throw in, wedge in, edge in, jam in, worm in, foist in, run in, plow in, work in; interpose, interject, intercalate, interpolate, interline, interleave, intersperse, interweave, interlard, interdigitate; let in, dovetail, splice, mortise; insinuate, smuggle; infiltrate, ingrain.

interfere, put in an oar, stick one's nose in; intrude, obtrude; have a finger in the pie; introduce the thin end of the wedge; thrust in etc. (insert) 300.

adj. interjacent, intervenient [rare], intervening etc. v.; intercalary, intercolumnar, intercostal, intercurrent, interfacial, intergrowth, interlineal, interlobular, interlocular, intermedial, intermediary, intermediate, intermaxillary, intermolecular, intermundane, internasal, interneural, internodal, interoceanic, interosseal, interosseous, interplanetary, interpolar, interradial, interrenal, interscapular, interseptal, interstellar, interstitial, intervalvular, intervascular, interventricular, intervertebral; septal, embolismal.

parenthetical, episodic; mediterranean; intrusive; embosomed; merged.

mean, medium, mesne, middle, median.

adv. between, betwist; 'twixt; among or amongst; amid, amidst; 'mid, 'midst; in the thick of; betwixt and between [colloq.]; sandwich-wise; parenthetically, obiter dictum [L.].

229. Circumscription

n. circumscription, limitation, inclosure; confinement etc. (restraint) 751; circumvallation; encincture; envelope etc. 232.

v. circumscribe, limit, bound, confine, inclose or enclose; surround etc. 227; compass about; imprison etc. (restrain) 751; hedge in, wall in, rail in; fence round, hedge round; picket; corral.

enfold, bury, incase, pack up, enshrine, inclasp or enclasp; wrap up etc. (invest) 225; embay, embosom.

adj. circumscribed etc. v.; begirt, circumambient, girt, cinct [rare], circumcinct [rare], lapt; buried in, immersed in; embosomed, in the bosom of, imbedded, encysted, mewed up; imprisoned etc. 751; landlocked, in a ring fence.

230. Outline

n. outline, circumference; perimeter, periphery; ambit, circuit, lines, tournure [F.], contour, profile, silhouette, relief, lineaments; bounds; coast line.

zone, belt, girth, band, baldric, zodiac, girdle, tire, cingle [rare], clasp, girt, girth; cordon etc. (inclosure) 232; circlet etc. 247.

v. outline, contour, delineate, silhouette, block, sketch, profile; circumscribe etc. 229.

adj. outlined etc. v.; circumferential, perimetric, perimetrical, peripheral.

231. Edge

n. edge, verge, brink, brow, brim, margin, border, confine, skirt, rim, flange, side, mouth; jaws, chops, chaps, fauces; lip, muzzle.

shore, coast, strand, bank; bunder, bund [both Oriental], quay, wharf, dock, mole, landing.

fringe, flounce, frill, list, trimming, edging, skirting, hem, selvage or selvedge, welt; furbelow, valance; frame; exergue.

threshold, door, porch; portal etc. (opening) 260.

v. edge, border, skirt, fringe, marginate.

adj. border, marginal, skirting; labial, labiated, marginated.

232. Inclosure

n. inclosure or enclosure, envelope; case etc. (receptacle) 191; wrapper; girdle etc. 230.

pen, fold; sty, penfold, sheepfold; paddock, croft, pasture, wood lot; pound; corral; yard, compound; net, seine net.

fence etc. (defense) 717; pale, paling, balustrade, rail, railing, quickset hedge, park paling, circumvallation, enceinte [F.]; ring fence; wall; hedge, hedgerow; espalier.

barrier, barricade; gate, gateway; weir; bent, dingle; door, hatch, cordon; prison etc. 752.

dike, ditch, fosse, trench, drain, dugout, tranchée [F.], coupure [F.], moat.

v. inclose or enclose; circumscribe etc. 229.

233. Limit

n. limit, boundary, bounds, confine, enclave, term, bourn or bourne, verge, curbstone, but [Scot.], pale; termination, terminus, terminal; stint, stent; frontier, precinct, marches; backwoods.

boundary line, landmark; line of -demarcation, -circumvallation; pillars of Hercules; Rubicon, turning point; ne plus ultra [L.]; sluice, floodgate.

v. limit, bound, compass, confine, define, circumscribe, demarcate, delimit.

adj. definite; conterminate [obs.], conterminable; terminable, limitable; terminal, frontier; bordering, border, limitary, boundary, limital [rare].

adv. thus far, -and no further.

234. Front

n. front; fore, fore part or forepart; foreground, forefront; face, disk or disc, frontage, façade, proscenium, facia, frontispiece; priority, anteriority; obverse (of a medal).

van, vanguard; advanced guard; forerank, front rank; outpost; first line; scout.

brow, forehead, visage, physiognomy, phiz [colloq.], features, countenance, mug [slang]; metoposcopy; chin, mentum; rostrum, beak, bow, stem, prow, prore, jib, bowsprit.

pioneer etc. (precursor) 64; metoposcopist, physiognomist

v. front, face, confront, breast, buck [slang], brave, dare, defy oppose, outbrazen; bend forwards; come to the front, come to the fore; be or stand in front etc. adj.

adj. fore, forward, anterior, front, frontal; metopic

adv. before in front, in the van, in advance; ahead right ahead; foremost, headmost in the foreground, in the lee of; before one's -face, -eyes: face to face, vis-à-vis [F.]; front à front [F.].

235. Rear

n. rear, back, posteriority; rear rank, rear guard, rearward [archaic]; background, hinterland.

occiput, nape; heels.

spine, backbone, rachis, spinal column, chine.

tail, scut, brush, appendage [humorous].

rump, croup, buttock, posteriors, fundament, bottom [colloq.], stern [colloq.], seat, backside [vulgar], breech, dorsum, tergum, loin; dorsal-, lumbar-region; hind quarters; aitchbone.

stern, poop, counter, mizzenmast, postern door, tailpiece, after-part, heel-piece, crupper.

wake; train etc. (sequence) 281.

reverse; other side of the shield.

v. be behind etc. adv.; fall astern; bend backwards; bring up the rear; heel, tag, shadow, follow etc. (pursue) 622.

adj. back, rear; hind, hinder, hindmost, hindermost; sternmost; postern, posterior; dorsal, after; caudal, tergal, neural, spinal, vertebral, lumbar; mizzen.

adv. behind; in the -rear, -background; behind one's back; at the -heels, -tail, -back- of; back to back.

after, aft, abaft, baft, astern, aback, rearward, hindward, backward.

236. Laterality

n. laterality [rare]; side, flank, quarter, lee; hand; cheek, jowl or jole, wing; profile; temple, paries (pl. parietes), loin, haunch, hip; beam.

gable, gable-end; broadside; lee side.

points of the compass; East, sunrise, Orient, Levant; West, Occident, sunset; orientation.

v. flank, outflank; sidle; skirt, border, wing; orientate; be on one side etc. adv.

adj. lateral, sidelong; collateral; parietal, flanking, skirting; flanked; sideling.

many-sided; multilateral, bilateral, trilateral, quadrilateral.

eastern, eastward, east, orient, oriental, auroral or aurorean; Levantine.

western, west, westerly, westward, occidental, Hesperian.

adv. sideways or sideway, sidewise, sideling, sidelong; broadside on; on one side, abreast, alongside, beside, aside; by, by the side of; side by side; cheek by jowl etc. (near) 197; to windward, to leeward; laterally etc. adj.; right and left; on her beam ends.

237. Contraposition

n. contraposition, opposition; polarity; inversion etc. 218; opposite side; reverse, inverse; counterpart; antithesis.

antipodes, opposite poles, North and South.

v. be opposite etc. adj.; subtend.

adj. opposite; reverse, inverse; converse; antipodal, diametrical, antithetic, counter, subcontrary; fronting, facing, diametrically opposite.

northern, north, northerly, northward, hyperborean, septentrional, boreal, polar, arctic.

southern, south, southerly, meridional, southward, Austral, antarctic.

adv. over, over the way, over against; against; face to face, vis-à-vis [F.]; as poles asunder.

238. Dextrality

n. dextrality; right, right hand; dexter, offside, starboard.

adj. dextral, dexterous or dextrous, right-handed; dexter, dextrorsal, dextrorse.

ambidexter, ambidextrous, ambidextral.

adv. dextrad, dextrally; ambidextrously.

239. Sinistrality

n. sinistrality, sinistration; left, left hand, southpaw; sinistra or sinistra mano [music, It.]; nearside, larboard, port.

adj. left-handed, sinister-handed [obs.], sinister, sinistral, sinistrorsal, sinistrorse, sinistrous, ambilevous [rare]; sinistrogyrate, sinistrogyric.

adv. sinistrad, sinistrally, sinistrously.

Section 3. Form

240. Form

n. form, figure, shape; conformation, configuration; make, formation, frame, construction, cut, set, build, tournure [F.], outline, get-up [colloq.], trim, cut of one's jib [colloq.]; stamp, type, cast, mold or mould; fashion; contour etc. (outline) 230; structure etc. 329; plasmature [obs.].

feature, lineament, turn; phase etc. (aspect) 448; posture, attitude, pose.
[science of form] morphology.
[similarity of form] isomorphism; isomorph.
formation, figuration, efformation [rare]; forming etc. v.; sculpture; plasmation [rare].

v. form, shape, figure, fashion, efform [rare], carve, cut, chisel, hew, cast; roughhew, roughcast; sketch; block out, hammer out; trim; lick–, put into shape; model, knead, work up into, set, mold, sculpture; cast, stamp; build etc. (construct) 161.

adj. formed etc. v.; structural, morphologic or morphological.
shapely, well-proportioned, symmetrical, well-made, well-formed, comely, trim, neat.
[receiving form] plastic, fictile; formative, impressible, creative.
[giving form] plasmatic, plasmic; protoplasmic.
[similar in form] isomorphic, isomorphous.

241. Amorphism

[absence of form]

n. amorphism, misproportion, informity [rare]; uncouthness; rough diamond; unlicked cub; rudis indigestaque moles [L.]; disorder etc. 59; deformity etc. 243.
disfigurement, defacement; mutilation; deforming.

v. [destroy form] deface, disfigure, deform, mutilate, truncate; derange etc. 61; blemish, mar.

adj. shapeless, amorphous, formless; unshapely, misshapen, unsymmetrical, malformed, unformed, unhewn, unfashioned, unshapen; anomalous.
rough, rude, Gothic, barbarous, rugged, scraggy, vandalic; in the rough.

242. Symmetry

[regularity of form]

n. symmetry, shapeliness, finish; beauty etc. 845; proportion, eurythmy or eurhythmy, eurythmics or eurhythmics, uniformity, parallelism; bilateral–, trilateral–, multilateral-symmetry; centrality etc. 222; radiation, regularity, evenness.
arborescence, branching, ramification; arbor vitae; peloria.

adj. symmetrical, shapely, well set, finished; beautiful etc. 845; classic, chaste, severe.
regular, uniform, radiate, radiated, balanced; equal etc. 27; parallel, coextensive.
arborescent, arboriform; dendriform, dendroid or dendroidal; branching; ramous, ramose; fern-shaped, filiciform, filicoid; subarborescent; papilionaceous.

243. Distortion

[irregularity of form]

n. distortion, detortion [rare], contortion, contortuosity, knot, warp, buckle, screw, twist; crookedness etc. (obliquity) 217; grimace; deformity; malformation, malconformation; harelip; monstrosity, misproportion, want of symmetry, anamorphosy, anamorphosis; ugliness etc. 846; talipes, club-foot; teratology.

v. distort, contort, twist, warp, buckle, screw, wrench, writhe, gnarl, wrest, writhe, make faces, deform, misshape.

adj. distorted etc. v.; out of shape, irregular, unsymmetric, anamorphous, awry, wry, askew, crooked; not true, not straight; on one side, crump [obs.], deformed; harelipped; misshapen, misbegotten; misproportioned, ill-proportioned; ill-made; grotesque, crooked as a ram's horn; camelbacked, humpbacked, hunchbacked, bunchbacked, crook-backed; bandy; bandylegged, bowlegged; bowkneed, knock-kneed; splayfooted, taliped or talipedic, club-footed; round-shouldered; snub-nosed; curtailed of one's fair proportions; stumpy etc. (short) 201; gaunt (thin) etc. 203; bloated etc. 194; scalene; simous.

adv. all manner of ways.

244. Angularity

n. angularity, angularness; aduncity; angle, cusp, bend; fold etc. 258; notch etc. 257; fork, furculum, bifurcation.
elbow, knee, knuckle, ankle, groin, crotch, crutch; crane, fluke, scythe, sickle; zigzag.
corner, nook, recess, niche, oriel, coign (as in "coign of vantage").
right angle etc. (perpendicular) 212; obliquity etc. 217; angle of 45 degrees, miter; acute–, obtuse–, salient–, reëntering –, spherical-angle.
angular -measurement, –elevation, –distance, –velocity; trigonometry, goniometry; altimeter, pantometer, altimetry; clinometer, graphometer, goniometer; theodolite; transit or transit theodolite, sextant, quadrant; dichotomy.
triangle, trigon, wedge; rectangle, square, lozenge, diamond; rhomb, rhombus, rhomboid, rhom-bohedron, quadrangle, quadrilateral; parallelogram; quadrature; polygon, pentagon, hexagon, heptagon, octagon, oxygon, decagon.

Platonic bodies; cube, rhomboid; tetrahedron, pentahedron, hexahedron, octahedron, dodecahedron, icosahedron; prism, pyramid; parallelepiped or parallelepipedon; curb–, gambrel–, French–, mansard- roof.

v. fork, furcate, divaricate, branch, ramify, bifurcate, bend, crinkle.

adj. angular, bent, crooked, aduncous, adunc or aduncal, aduncate or aduncated, uncinated, aquiline, jagged, serrated; falciform, falcated; furcal, furcate, furcated, forked, bifurcate, crotched, zigzag, furcular, hooked; dove-tailed; knockkneed, crinkled, akimbo, kimbo [obs.], geniculated; oblique etc. 217.

wedge-shaped, cuneiform; cuneate, multangular, oxygonal; triangular, trigonal, trilateral; quadrangular, quadrilateral, foursquare, rectangular, square; multilateral; polygonal etc. n.; cubical, rhombic or rhombical, rhomboidal, pyramidal.

245. Curvature

n. curvature, curvity [rare], curvation; incurvature, incurvity [obs.], incurvation; bend; flexure, flexion; conflexure [obs.]; crook, hook, bought [obs.], bending; deflexion, inflexion; concameration; arcuation, devexity [obs.], turn; deviation, detour or détour [F.], sweep; curl, curling; bough; recurvity [rare], recurvation [rare]; sinuosity etc. 248; aduncity.

curve, arc, arch, arcade, vault, bow, crescent, meniscus, half-moon, lunule, horseshoe, loop, crane neck; parabola, hyperbola; catacaustic, diacaustic; geanticline, geosyncline; catenarian, catenary, festoon; conchoid, cardioid; caustic; tracery; arched- ceiling, –roof; bay window, bow window.

v. be curved etc. adj.; sweep, swag [obs. or dial.], sag; deviate etc. 279; turn; reënter.

render curved etc. adj.; bend, curve, incurvate; deflect, inflect; crook; turn, round, arch, arcuate, arch over, embow, recurvate [rare], concamerate [rare]; bow, coil, curl, recurve, frizzle, friz or frizz.

adj. curved etc. v.; curvate or curvated, lobiform; curviform, curvilineal or curvilinear; devex [obs.], devious; recurved, recurvous; crump [obs.]; bowed etc. v.; vaulted; geanticlinal, geosynclinal; bow-legged etc. (distorted) 243; oblique etc. 217; circular etc. 247.

beak-shaped, beaked, rostrate, rostriform, rostroid, rhamphoid.

bell-shaped, campaniform, campanular, campanulous, campanulate.

boat-shaped, navicular, cymbiform, naviform, scaphoid.

bow-shaped, arcuate or arcuated, arcual; arciform, arclike, embowed.

crescent-shaped, crescent, crescentiform, crescentic, convexo-concave, sigmoid, semilunar, horned, meniscal, bicorn, bicornute or bicornuate, bicornuous [rare], bicorned or bicornous, semicircular.

heart-shaped, cordiform, cardioid, cordate.

helmet-shaped, galeiform, galeate, galeated, cassidiform.

hook-shaped, hooked, hooklike, unciform, uncate, uncinal, uncinate, hamulate, hamate, hamiform, hamose or hamous [both rare]; unguiform, unguiculate or unguiculated; curvated, aduncate, aduncous, adunc.

kidney-shaped, reinform.

lens-shaped, lenticular, lentoid, lentiform, meniscal, meniscoid.

moon-shaped, lunar, lunate or lunated, luniform, lunular, lunulate or lunulated, crescent-shaped (q. v.); Cynthian.

oar-shaped, remiform [rare].

pear-shaped, pyriform; obconic.

shell-shaped, conchate, conchiform, conchylaceous [rare], conchoidal [min.].

shield-shaped, scutate, scutiform, peltate, clypeate or clypeated, clypeiform.

sickle-shaped, falcate, falciform, falculate [rare].

tongue-shaped, linguiform, lingulate, ligulate.

turnip-shaped, napiform.

246. Straightness

n. straightness, rectilinearity, rectilinearness; directness; inflexibility etc. (stiffness) 323; straight–, bee–, right–, direct- line; short cut.

v. be straight etc. adj.; have no turning; not -incline, –bend, –turn, –deviate- to either side; go straight; steer for etc. (direction) 278.

render straight, straighten, rectify; set–, put-straight; unbend, unfold, uncurl etc. 248; unravel etc. 219, unwrap.

adj. straight; rectilinear, rectilineal; direct, even, right, true, in a line; virgate, unbent etc. v.; undeviating, unturned, undistorted, unswerving; straight-lined, straight as an arrow etc. (direct) 278; inflexible etc. 323.

perpendicular, plumb, vertical, upright, erect.

247. Circularity

[simple circularity]

n. circularity, roundness; rotundity etc. 249.

circle, circlet, ring, areola, hoop, roundlet, annulus, annulet, bracelet, armlet; ringlet; eye, loop, wheel; cycle, orb, orbit, rundle, zone, belt, cordon, band; contrate–, crown- wheel; hub, nave; sash, girdle, cestus, cest or ceste, cincture, baldric, fillet, fascia, wreath, garland; crown, corona, coronet, chaplet, snood, necklace, collar; noose, lasso.

ellipse, oval, ovule; ellipsoid, cycloid, epicycloid, epicycle.

semicircle; quadrant, sextant, sector.

v. make round etc. adj.; round.

go round; encircle etc. 227; describe a circle etc. 311.

adj. round, rounded, circular, annular, orbicular, orbiculate or orbiculated; oval, ovate, obovate, ovoid, ovoidal [rare], elliptic, elliptical, egg-shaped; pear-shaped etc. 245; cycloidal etc. n.; spherical etc. 249; fasciate or fasciated.

248. Convolution

[complex circularity]

n. convolution, involution, circumvolution; winding etc. v.; wave, undulation, tortuosity, anfractuosity; sinuosity, sinuation, sinuousness, flexuosity, tortility; meandering, circuit, circumbendibus [humorous], twist, twirl, windings and turnings, ambagiousness, ambages; torsion; inosculation; reticulation etc. (crossing) 219; rivulation.

coil, roll, curl, buckle, spiral, helix, corkscrew, worm, volute, whorl, rundle; tendril; scollop, scallop, escalop or escallop; kink; ammonite, snakestone.

serpent, snake, eel; maze, labyrinth.

v. be convoluted etc. adj.; wind, twine, turn and twist, twirl; wave, undulate, meander; inosculate; entwine or intwine; twist, coil, roll; wrinkle, curl, crisp, twill; frizz, frizzle; crimp, crape, indent, scollop, scallop; wring, intort; contort; wreathe etc. (cross) 219.

adj. convoluted; winding, twisted etc. v.; tortile, tortive [obs.]; wavy; undate or undated [rare], undulatory; circling, snaky, snakelike, serpentine, serpentiform, anguilliform, anguiform, anguilloid, anguillous, vermiform, vermicular; mazy, tortuous, sinuose, sinuous, sinuate, flexuous; undulating, undulated, wavy; anfractuous, reclivate [rare], rivulose, scolecoid; sigmoid, sigmoidal; spiriferous, spiroid.

wreathy, frizzly, crêpé [F.], buckled; raveled etc. (in disorder) 59.

involved, intricate, complicated, perplexed; labyrinthic, labyrinthian, labyrinthine; circuitous, ambagious; peristaltic; Daedalian; kinky, curly.

spiral, coiled, helical; cochlear, cochleate, cochleous [rare]; screw-shaped; turbinated, turbiniform, turbinoid, turbinal.

adv. in and out, round and round.

249. Rotundity

n. rotundity; roundness etc. adj.; cylindricity; sphericality, sphericity, spheroidicity or spheroidity, globoseness, globosity, globularity, annularity, orotundity, orbiculation.

cylinder, cylindroid; barrel, drum; roll, roller; rouleau, column, rolling-pin, rundle.

cone, conoid; pear-shape, egg-shape, bell-shape.

sphere, globe, ball, bowlder or boulder; spheroid, geoid, globoid, ellipsoid; oblong–, oblate-spheroid; drop, spherule, globule, vesicle, bulb, bullet, pellet, clew, pill, marble, pea, knob, pommel, horn, knot; oval etc. 247.

v. render spherical etc. adj.; form into a sphere, sphere, roll into a ball; give rotundity etc. n.; round.

adj. rotund; round etc. (circular) 247; cylindric or cylindrical, cylindroid or cylindroidal, columnar, vermiform, lumbriciform; conic, conical; spherical, spheroidal; globular, globous, globose; gibbous; fungiform, bulbous; teres atque rotundus [L.]; round as -an orange, –an apple, –a ball, –a billiard ball, –a cannon ball.

bead-shaped, beadlike, moniliform, monilated.

bell-shaped, campaniform, campanulate, campanulous, campanular.

egg-shaped, ovoid, oviform, ovoidal, ovate, globoid, globate or globated; obovate, obovoid [both bot.].

pear-shaped, pyriform.

rice-shaped, riziform.

250. Convexity

n. convexity, prominence, projection, swelling, gibbosity, bilge, bulge, protuberance, protrusion, excrescency; camber, swell.

intumescence, tumidity; tumor or tumour; tubercle, tuberousness, tuberosity, carunculation, bubo.

excrescence, hump, hunch, bunch; knob, knur, knurl, gnarl, knot; bow, boss, embossment, bump, mamelon, clump; bulb, node, nodule, nodosity.

tooth, molar; lip, flange; tongue; withers, shoulder, back, dorsum; elbow.
process, apophysis, condyle.
wheel, hub, hubble.
peg; button, stud; ridge, rib, trunnion, snag; sugar loaf etc. (sharpness) 253.
pimple, wen, whelk, papula, papule, pustule, pock, proud flesh, growth, sarcoma, caruncle, corn, wart, verruca, furuncle, polypus, fungus, fungosity, exostosis, bleb, blister, bulla, blain; boil etc. (disease) 655; air bubble, blob.
papilla, nipple, teat, pap, breast, dug, mammilla.
proboscis, nose, olfactory organ, neb, beak, snout, nozzle.
belly, corporation [colloq.], paunch, epigastrium, abdomen.
arch, cupola, dome, vault, beehive; balcony; eaves.
relief, relievo, cameo; low relief, bas-relief, basso-relievo or basso-rilievo [It.]; half relief, mezzo-relievo or mezzo-rilievo [It.]; high relief, alto-relievo or alto-rilievo [It.]; pilaster.
point of land, hill etc. (height) 206; cape, promontory, mull; foreland, headland; hummock, ledge, spur; naze, ness; mole, jetty, jutty.

v. be prominent etc. adj.; project, bulge, protrude, bag, belly, carunculate, pout, bouge [obs.], bunch; jut out, stand out, stick out, poke out; stick up, bristle up, start up, cock up, shoot up; swell over, hang over, bend over; beetle.
render prominent etc. adj.; raise 307; emboss, chase.

adj. prominent, protuberant, protrusile, protrusive; undershot, underhung; projecting etc. v.; bossed, bossy, nodular, convex, bunchy; clavate, clavated, claviform; hummocky, moutonné [F.]; caruncular or carunculous, carunculate or carunculated; furuncular, furunculous, furunculoid; mammiform; papulous, papulose; hemispheric, bulbous; bowed, arched; bold; bellied; tuberous, tuberculous; tumorous; cornute, odontoid; lentiform, lenticular; gibbous; club-shaped, hubby, hubbly, knobby, papillose; saddle-shaped, selliform; subclavate, torose, ventricose, verrucose; excrescential.
salient, in relief, raised, repoussé [F.]; bloated etc. (expanded) 194.

251. Flatness

n. flatness etc. adj.; smoothness etc. 255.
plane; level etc. 213; plate, platter, table, tablet, slab.

v. flatten; render flat; squelch, squash, fell; level etc. 213.

adj. flat, plane, even, flush, scutiform, discoid; complanate, flattish, homaloid; level etc. (horizontal) 213; flat as -a pancake, –a fluke, –a flounder, –a board, –my hand; smooth.

adv. flat, flatly [rare], flatways, flatwise, lengthwise, horizontally.

252. Concavity

n. concavity, depression, dip; hollow, hollowness; indentation, intaglio, cavity, vug or vugg or vugh, dent, dint, dimple, follicle, pit, sinus, antrum, alveolus, lacuna; honeycomb.
excavation, pit, sap, mine, shaft, colliery; caisson, fougasse [F.], countermine; trough etc. (furrow) 259; bay etc. (of the sea) 343.
cup, basin, crater, punch bowl; cell etc. (receptacle) 191; socket.
valley, vale, dale, dell, dingle, coomb or combe, bottom, slade [obs.], strath [Scot.], gill or ghyll [Scot. & dial. Eng.], glade, grove, glen, donga [S. Africa], nullah [India], park.
cave, subterrane, cavern, cove; grot, grotto; alcove, blind alley, cul-de-sac [F.], hole, burrow, kennel, tunnel; gully etc. 198; arch etc. (curve) 245.
excavator, sapper, miner.

v. be concave etc. adj.; retire, cave in.
render concave etc. adj.; depress, dish, hollow; scoop, scoop out; gouge, dig, delve, excavate, dent, dint, mine, sap, undermine, burrow, tunnel, stave in.

adj. depressed etc. v.; alveolate, alveolar, calathiform, cup-shaped, dishing; favaginous, faveolate, favose; scyphiform, scyphose; concave, hollow, vuggy, stove in; retiring; retreating; cavernous; porous etc. (with holes) 260; cellular, spongy, spongious; honey-combed; infundibular, infundibuliform, funnel-shaped, bell-shaped, campani-form, capsular; vaulted, arched.

253. Sharpness

n. sharpness etc. adj.; acuity, acumination, mucronation; spinosity.
point, spike, spine, spiculum; needle, pin; prick, prickle; spur, rowel, barb; spit, cusp; horn, antler; snag; tag; thorn, bristle; Adam's needle, bear grass, tine, yucca.
nib, tooth, tusk; spoke, cog, ratchet.
beard, cheval-de-frise (pl. chevaux-de-frise), porcupine, hedgehog, brier, bramble, thistle; comb; awn, beggar's lice, bur or burr, catchweed, cleavers or clivers, goose grass, hairif or hariff [dial. Eng.], flax comb, hatchel or hackle or heckle.

peak, crag, crest, arête [F.], cone, sugar loaf, pike, aiguille; spire, pyramid, steeple.

cutting-edge, knife-edge, blade, edge tool, cutlery, knife, penknife, whittle, razor; scalpel, bistoury, lancet; plowshare, colter; hatchet, ax or axe, pickax, mattock, pick, adz or adze, bill; billhook, cleaver, cutter; scythe, sickle, scissors, shears; sword etc. (arms) 727; wedge; bodkin etc. (perforator) 262; belduque [F.], bowie knife, paring knife; bushwhacker; drawing knife or drawknife, drawshave.

sharpener, hone, strop; grindstone, whetstone; novaculite; steel, emery.

v. be sharp etc. adj.; taper to a point; bristle with, acuminate.

